INTRODUCTION.

ROWALLAN CASTLE.

ROWALLAN CASTLE, the ancient residence of the Mures of Rowallan, stands on the banks of the Carmel Water, about three miles north of Kilmarnock. It is more than probable that at some remote period the stream, widening at this point, altogether surrounded the slight elevation on which the castle stands, and thus formed of it a small island rock or craig—a circumstance to which, it has been suggested, the name Rowallan is due. Several rocks of similar appearance in the Firth of Clyde, in the neighbourhood of the Cumbraes, are called Allans to the present day. The promontory forming the approach to the castle would perhaps sufficiently account for the first syllable of the name.¹ The prominence occupied by it is stated by Crawford to have been called the “Craig of Rowallan,” and the proprietors were sometimes designated therefrom “de Crag.” The environs of Rowallan, adorned with many aged trees, some of them of great size and beauty, are delightfully suggestive of poetic musings, while the venerable mansion itself “affords a very perfect specimen of an early feudal residence, progressively enlarged and fashioned to the advancing course of civilisation and manners.”

The original fortlet, of which only the vaulted under apartment remains, has been with great probability assigned as the birthplace of Elizabeth More, the first wife of Robert, the High Steward of Scotland, afterwards Robert II. By this marriage—the most important event in the long history of the Barons of Rowallan, and a source of lively discussion to several generations of historians—the descendants of Elizabeth were destined to fill first the throne of Scotland, and afterwards that of Great Britain, and by it the blood of the Mures of Rowallan flows in the veins of our royal family at the present day.

The southern front, the principal and more ornamental part of the building, was erected about the year 1562 by John Mure of Rowallan and his wife, Marion Cunninghame, of the family of Cunninghamehead. This is indicated by the inscription on a small tablet at the top of the wall JON . MVR . M . CVGM . SPVVIS . 1562. In the neighbourhood of this inscription appears the arms of the family and also its crest, a Moor's head. This crest, which seems to be alluded to in the old family tree as the “bludy heid,” may probably refer to some feat of arms performed against the Saracens during the Crusades. Unfortunately the building, with its pleasant old garden, is fast falling into decay. With the exception of the part occupied by the ground-officer on the estate, it has long been uninhabited.

LIFE OF SIR WILLIAM MURE.

Sir William Mure was born in the year 1594. As his grandfather was then alive, it is likely that he first saw the light not in the Castle of Rowallan itself, but in the Old Hall, a building situated a short distance from the family seat, and the recognised dwelling of the eldest son after marriage. There is little now to distinguish the Old Hall from the ordinary farmhouse, but in earlier times it was a place of some importance. Before the existence of the village of Fenwick, the smith's and cartwright's shops, and the dwellings of others of the more useful retainers of the family, grouped themselves around it, and in its immediate neighbourhood grew up the first school of the barony.

Of the early life of the poet we cannot speak with any certainty. Whether he received the rudiments of his education in the barony school and afterwards at Kilmarnock, or privately in his father's house, there is no record left to tell us. That he may have attended school at Kilmarnock, however, seems probable. It is true we have no authentic information regarding the parish school of that town until the comparatively late date of 1727. But we know that in 1633 Parliament passed an Act authorising the establishment of a school in every parish in Scotland, "upon a sum to be stented upon every plough or husband land according to the worth"; and, as Kilmarnock had risen to the rank of a burgh long before then, there is no great improbability in supposing it to have had the means of affording rudimentary instruction as early as the period of Mure's boyhood. With greater probability may it be assumed that he finished his scholastic career at the University of Glasgow. His younger brother Hugh, afterwards "preacher at Burstone, in Northfolke in England," was enrolled there as a student in 1618, and his own connection with the university in after-life points to the likelihood of some earlier bond of union. It has been suggested that the sentiment of veneration which he ever cherished towards the eminent Principal, Robert Boyd of Trochrig, may have been due, in part at least, to their early relation as teacher and student; but as Boyd was only appointed Professor and Principal in 1615, the year of Mure's marriage, the suggestion cannot be held to be of much value. Be that as it may, there is no doubt that Mure received the best education the times could afford. There is abundant evidence of this in his writings. The frequent references to classical fable in his earlier poems may not, indeed, prove much. They were probably to some extent due to youthful vanity, and the desire to write "according to the fashion." But his later works, especially his translations from Virgil, and his faithful and vigorous rendering of Boyd's 'Hecatombè Christiana,' prove that he was not only widely read in the classical authors, but also that he was deeply imbued with their spirit and beauty. That with such tastes he should content himself with the exercise of his poetic faculty in his native tongue would be, perhaps, too much to expect, and accordingly we find that the manuscript of his Miscellaneous Poems contains several specimens of his Latin versification. These, however, have not been included in the present volumes, partly because they were considered beyond the scope of the work—partly, perhaps mainly, because of their incompleteness. With one exception,¹ they seem to

" Vir virtutis, homo antiquæ fideique recumbit,
 Quales haud multos tempora nostra ferunt,
 Simplicitas cui cordi et priscae secula vitæ,
 Sors sine dissidio mens sine fraude fuit,
 Quæ, quia degeneri hoc ævo sunt rara, perosus,
 Ævum hoc indignum dignius ille adiit."

be little more than first drafts. They have many unmusical lines, and contain defects in Latinity which would most assuredly have been amended had they had the benefit of their author's revising hand.

Mure seems to have looked upon himself as a poet by heredity, and there is no doubt he did his best to cultivate his hereditary gift. In this endeavour he received every encouragement from his friends and contemporaries. His mother was Elizabeth Montgomery,¹ daughter of the laird of Hazelhead, and sister of Alexander Montgomery, the author of 'The Cherrie and the Slae.' To this connection he makes reference in his address to Charles, Prince of Wales, afterwards Charles I., in the following lines :—

“ Machles Montgomery in his native tounge,
In former tymes to thy Great Syre hath sung,
And often ravischt his harmonious ear
W^t straynes fitt only for a prince to heir.

My muse, q^{ch} noght doth challenge worthy fame,
Sae from Montgomery sche hir birth doth clayme,
(Altho his Phoenix ashes have sent forth
Pan for Apollo, if compaird in worth),
Pretending tytyls to supply his place
By ryt hereditar to serve thy grace.”

In one of two sonnets addressed to him, probably about the year 1617, the same relationship is also mentioned,²

² The reference is contained in the following lines :—

“ Sprang thou from Maxwell and Montgomerie's muse,
To let o^r poets perisch in the West?
No, no ! (brave youth) continow in thy kynd.
No sweeter subject sall thy muses fynd.”

The name of Maxwell which here occurs as that of a then recognised poet seems to have perished. As Mure's grandmother, however, was a daughter of Maxwell of Newark, in Renfrewshire, his descent from that branch of the Maxwells would seem to be pretty clearly indicated.

On the last page of his edition of 'The Historie and Descent of the House and Mure is urged to continue his poetical efforts. He probably required no encouragement. At all events, from 1611, the date of the first of his poems which has come down to us, till his death in 1657, his pen was rarely idle.

The chief events of Mure's life, as far as possible in their chronological order, may now be given. In 1615, before fully completing his majority, he married Anna Dundas, daughter to the laird of Newliston. It now became necessary for him to set up an establishment of his own, and he accordingly built the house of Dalmusternock. It is prettily situated, and stands quite in the neighbourhood both of the castle itself and of the Old Hall. The arms of Sir William and his wife are still to be seen above the door at Dalmusternock. The date of his marriage, 1615, is shown on a stone to the right of the doorway, and the initials A. D. (Anna Dundas) appeared, until recently, on a stone to the left. The D still remains, but the A has become obliterated within the last few years.

Of this marriage five sons and six daughters were born. The sons were: "Sir William who succeeded, Captain Alex^r, slaine in the warre against the Rebels in Irland, Major Ro^t, married to the ladie Newhall in fyfe, Johne, finnickhill, and Patrick." Of the daughters only one, Elizabeth, reached years of maturity. She married Knox, laird of Ranfurly.

On the death of his first wife Mure married again, choosing for his second wife Dame Jane Hamilton, Lady Duntreth, by whom he had two sons, James and Hugh, and two daughters, Jeane and Marion.

of Rowallan,' the Rev. Wm. Muir curiously enough gives the first part of one of the above-mentioned sonnets, with the omission of two lines, and to this tags on the four lines quoted, which only occur in the other sonnet.

In 1616, the year after Sir William's first marriage, his grandfather died and his father succeeded to the family estates.

In 1617 appeared his 'Address to the King's Maiestie,' which was included in the collection entitled 'The Muse's Welcome,' published the following year, and was thus in all probability the first of Mure's effusions to appear in print. His 'Dido and Æneas' was written before this. In the second stanza of that poem he describes himself as—so that we shall not probably err in ascribing it to the year 1614. It is now published for the first time.

From 1617 till 1628 we have nothing from Mure's pen; but in the latter year he issued a small volume containing 'A Spirituall Hymne,' 'Fancies Farewell,' and 'Doomes-day.' The first of these is a translation of Boyd of Trochrig's Latin poem, the 'Hecatombe Christiana'; the last is an original poem of considerable length, the nature of which is sufficiently indicated by its full title. In 'Fancies Farewell,' a series of three sonnets, the poet describes the change which had taken place in his views of life since the time when his mind was wholly occupied with his "Amourouse Essayes." He deploras the years of youth wasted in the composition of his "lovelie layes,"—

"Love's false delight and beautees blazing beame
Too long benighted haue my dazled eyes,"

and resolves to devote his remaining days to the consideration of the only subject worthy of concern to sinful man.

“Hence-foorth fare-well all counterfeit delyte,
 Blinde Dwarfing, I disclaime thy deitie,
 My Pen thy Trophees neuer more shall write :
 Nor after shall thine arts enveigle mee.
 With sacred straines, reaching a higher key,
 My Thoughts about thy fictions farre aspire :
 Mounted on wings of immortalitie,
 I feele my brest warmde with a wountless fire.”

These were no idle words. Mure kept his promise—and wrote very little more that is worthy the name of poetry.

In 1629 ‘The Trve Crvcifixe’ appeared. This is Mure’s longest, and, from his own point of view, most important work. It is also his best known, and, whatever we may think of its merits, it undoubtedly deserves the credit of having done more than any of his other writings to preserve his memory from utterly perishing. As a poem, in the true sense of the word, however, it will hardly bear investigation.

The consideration of Mure’s remaining works need only occupy a few lines. Between the years 1629 and 1639 he seems to have been engaged on his version of the Psalms, now published for the first time. Next to the ‘Dido and Æneas,’ this is undoubtedly the most valuable and interesting thing he ever produced. The ‘Covnter-bvff to Lysimachus Nicanor’ appeared in 1640 under the nom de plume of Philopatris. ‘Caledon’s Complaint,’ which bears no date, may, with a fair degree of likelihood, be put down to 1641. ‘The Cry of Blood and of a Broken Covenant’ was published in 1650. It was the last of Mure’s works, with the probable exception of ‘The Historie and Descent of the House of Rowallan,’ of which we can only surmise, since it was left unfinished, that he was engaged on it at the time of his death in 1657.

On the death of his father in 1639, Mure was at once drawn into the whirlpool of political life. This change, which is immediately reflected in his writings, cannot have been altogether pleasing to one of his disposition and studious habits. Nevertheless, with a conscientious recognition of the claims of his position, he threw himself with vigour into the troublous life of the times, and promptly took his place as the representative of an important county family. In Scotland, as in England, the political atmosphere had long been stormy. The headstrong and bigoted policy of the Court, brought into conflict with the no less obstinate resistance of the Presbyterians, had rendered an open rupture unavoidable. The crisis came in the Assembly held at Glasgow in 1638. There the Covenanters found themselves forced, as a last resource, to decide upon resistance by arms. Early in the summer of 1639, therefore, the forces of the Covenant began to assemble, and, about the beginning of June, they formed the famous camp at Dunse Law. To this gathering Ayrshire sent a contribution of 1200 men, foot and horse, under the leadership of Lord Loudon. Lord Montgomery, the son of the Earl of Eglinton, accompanied them on the march, and the Earl himself, whom a threatened descent from Ireland had kept employed in the west, joined the camp later on. Of this subsidy Mure commanded a company of his own tenants and others from the neighbourhood.

After the assembling of the Scots at Dunse Law we hear nothing of our author until 1643, in which year we find his name mentioned as member of the Scots Parliament for Ayrshire. In 1644 he accompanied the Scottish army into England; and on July 2nd he was present and wounded in the memorable battle of Marston Moor. In August he was engaged in the storming of Newcastle, where, for some time, he held command of his regiment, owing to the absence of Colonel Hobart and other officers who had been wounded in the late battle.¹

This is the last glimpse we have of Mure in any political or military capacity. That he did not lose his interest in public affairs is shown by the publication of 'The Cry of Blood and of a Broken Covenant' in 1650. But, so far as we know, the last years of his life were spent in those peaceful pursuits so suitable to his disposition, and in the enjoyment of such domestic felicity as the turbulent times

¹ The following letter from Sir William to his son may be of interest as bearing on these events:—

“LOVEING SONE,

“We are now lying before Newcastle engaged anew to rancounter w^t new dangers, for we are to adventure the storming of the town if it be not quickly rendred by treaty, wherof ther is very smal apearance for they look very quickly for ayde to releave them. They are very proud as yet for oght we can perceave, and those that come out to us resolute. For the most part they are reformer officers under the commandment of the Earle of Craufurd and Mackay. We have had diverse bowts w^t them, and on satterday last, a sound one, wherein we had good sport from the sunryseing till twelve a'clock, both partyes retreating and chairgeing by touers w^tout great losse to eyther for o^r gen: Ma: shew himselfe that day both a brave and wise commander, and if it had not been so, we could not but haue great losse, for we were put back over the water at the last, for their forces grew, and we had no armes but pistoles and they played upon us still at a very far distance w^t muskets and long fowling peeces. I am kept heir now beyond my purpose upon necessity, haveing the only chairge of the Regiment till Col: Hobert, the Lieut: Col: and Major come heir, who have bein all in very great danger but are now pretty well recovered so that I expect them heir very shortly. allowed. The Rowallan loft in Fenwick church was evidently built by him during this period of retirement, since over the door leading to it is a representation of the Mure arms with the date 1649. Mure's character is excellently, if somewhat quaintly, summed up in the concluding words of the 'Historie': "This Sr W^m was pious & learned, & had ane excellent vaine in poyesie; he deltyed much in building and planting, he builded the new wark in the north syde of the close, & the batlement of the back wall, & reformed the whole house exceidingly. He lived Religiouslie & died Christianlie in the yeare of [his] age 63, and the yeare of [our] lord 1657."

MURE'S POSITION AS A POET.

Considering the esteem in which Sir William Mure was held by his contemporaries, it is remarkable that no edition of his collected works has appeared before this time. The Rev. William Muir, editor of the 'Historie,' did indeed announce as preparing for publication in 1625, "The Poetical Remains of Sir William Mure, written from the year 1611 to 1635"; but, unfortunately, for some reason the project seems to have fallen through, and Mure was left in undisturbed obscurity. That there has been some excuse for this obscurity and this neglect cannot be doubted. Mure's manuscripts had passed, by some means, regarding which it would be unprofitable now to make any inquiry, into the possession of certain individuals who made use of them simply in so far as it suited their own convenience. Consequently it was only by those works which were published by their author himself that any estimate of his position as a poet could be formed. The grounds for judgment have hitherto, therefore, been insufficient. No wonder, then, that the judgment itself has been inadequate and unjust. The works which Mure considered most important are precisely those which reveal him at his weakest as a poet. A perusal of 'The Trve Crvcifixe,' 'Caledon's Complaint,' or the 'Covnter-bvff,' is not calculated to impress the reader with any high idea of the "divine fire" of their author. But as those and a few other similar pieces were almost all by which the reader had to judge, there is little cause for astonishment that Mure's name should long have been—among the comparatively few who were aware of his existence at all—a synonym for all that is dreary and barren in poetry. The criticism is justifiable only so far as it concerns itself with his later writings; applied in a general sense it is unjust, because it is based on insufficient knowledge. That large proportion of Mure's work which now sees the light for the first time contains all of his that is most valuable from a literary, not to mention a poetical, point of view. In his earlier years at least Mure was no mere Dryasdust. In some of his Miscellaneous Poems, in his paraphrase of the Psalms, and particularly in his 'Dido and Æneas,' qualities are shown and excellences displayed which will no doubt materially alter the views of those who have hitherto looked upon him merely as the stern and somewhat gloomy laureate of the Covenanters.

On the other hand, however, it is true that by no possibility can Mure ever be assigned a high rank among poets. His limits are too narrow. Nevertheless, by confining himself to the two great concerns of love and religion, he enjoyed a considerable reputation in his own day as the poet of both. His later poems contain his most serious and original work; but they cannot compare with those of his more youthful days in lightness, grace, and mastery of technique. Much of his earlier poetry, indeed, will bear favourable comparison for smoothness of diction, and purity and delicacy of thought, with the work of his better known contemporaries and immediate predecessors both in Scotland and England.

Whether all of Mure's love poetry is to be taken seriously is open to question. He was apparently well read in the English poets of the Elizabethan period, and much of his work is modelled on their writings. It had become recognised as indispensable to the reputation of a man of blood and breeding that he should offer up homage to beauty; and if he was not touched with a real passion, nothing was easier than to feign one. It was but natural that much of this imitated emotion should be expressed in exaggerated and artificial language. Its main design was to paint the unhappy condition of the lover agitated by doubts and terrors; to extol the beauty of his lady, and chronicle the means by which she maintained her empire over his susceptible feelings, her looks and gestures, her disdain that froze, and her kindness that thawed again his heart. Hence, while there was considerable scope for variety in the treatment of details, there was little room for originality of conception. Consequently we find the same ideas, the same images, and even the same turns of expression, constantly reproduced. It would be easy to parallel lines of Mure with those of Surrey, Wyatt, and other writers who did much to transplant this fictional love from the sonnets of Petrarch into English poetry. But the mistake must not be made of setting down as artificial all that is expressed in conventional form. The miscellaneous poems numbered viii., ix., and x. seem undoubtedly to have been addressed by Mure to the lady who became his wife. They breathe the spirit of a true and fervent love in the language of genuine passion.

It is not so much in the mere art of expression that Mure falls short of more famous writers. It is because, as a love poet, he has only one string to his harp. Though altogether introspective, his glance penetrates to no great depth. He has but little originality, and is deficient in powers both of reflection and of observation.

Let us examine the last point somewhat in detail, as one which must forcibly strike every reader of Mure's poems. It is not too much to say that for him external nature has absolutely no existence. Apart from the 'Dido and Æneas,' which is mostly translation, there is hardly a reference to outside nature in all his writings. Even in the 'Dido and Æneas' itself he seems to avoid the merely picturesque as much as possible. To take an example. The happy and restful description of the bay, or inlet, where the Trojans, wearied with the buffeting of the stormy seas, and burdened with the grief of lost comrades, first find refuge on the Carthaginian coast, is entirely omitted. The pictures of the hunting of the deer and of the feasting that followed also appeal to him in vain. These and similar omissions are particularly interesting in the case of a writer like Mure, who, as a man, was evidently not insensible to the charms of wood and stream and flower. Brought up amid the scenery surrounding his ancestral seat of Rowallan, which he did so much to improve and beautify, such insensibility on his part would seem to be impossible. But the sense of beauty, though undoubtedly there, was not strong enough to assert itself in literary form.

From this point of view Mure's "ryt hereditar" to the mantle of Montgomery is open to question. The influence of Montgomery on his young relative was unmistakable, and is remarked on elsewhere;¹ but, in nearly all that constitutes the true poet, the older man towers head and shoulders above the younger. In vigour, passion, and power Mure never approaches Montgomery. Unlike the latter, he neither sees with the eye nor feels with the heart of the true lover of nature. The "melodious mirth of merle and mavis," the bloom spread over "branche and bewch," the sparkling dew, like diamonds "vpon the tender twists," "the sounding beis," the shadows of the trees in the river,—none of these, or the thousand other equally beautiful sights and sounds with which he must have been familiar from his childhood, had importance, even existence, for Mure as a poet. It is true that in the opening lines of his second poem he makes reference to a pleasant spring—

“Wt fairest schads of trees o’rschadoued, wnder”—

but the description is too general to be effective. It strikes one as accidental rather than as due to any innate sense of beauty. What is perhaps his only other attempt at nature - painting occurs in his ‘Address to the King’s Maiestie,’ lines 97-102 :—

“Heir plesant plains alongst the crystall Clyd,
Which in a flowrie labyrinth her playes,
Heir blooming banks, heir silver brooks doe slyd,
Heir Mearle and Mavis sing melodious layes,
Heir heards of Deer defy the fleetest hounds ;
Heir wods and vails and echoes that resounds.”

This is not only merely conventional ; as a piece of poetical description it is stiff, forced, and utterly hopeless.

The late Professor Veitch, whose own passionate delight in every aspect of external nature lay at the root of most of his writings, has well expressed the condition into which Scottish poetry had sunk in the time of Mure : “With Montgomerie and his contemporaries, Scott and Hume, we bid adieu for a long period to any apparent sympathy with the Scottish landscape. After these men, we have almost no references to outward scenery in the way of description for several generations of poets, and those we have are generally mere imitations. There was, indeed, no true return to nature among the acknowledged poets until the time of Drummond of Hawthornden, to be followed by Allan Ramsay. For the most part it is wholly passed by ; and we find the Scottish muse employed on what are known as sacred themes—seeking to make popular, or throw into recognised popular forms, theological and spiritual conceptions and experience—often with a passionate conviction and enthusiasm which command respect, while it is quaint in its form and eminently national. The very intensity which pervades this kind of composition is perhaps essentially connected with its narrowness, even in the religious sphere, and with its exclusion of what is high, elevating, and refining, alike in the walks of reflection and imagination. It was probably a necessity of the age and time; it arose partly in the way of reaction from the insincerity, hypocrisy, and unworthiness of life characteristic of the immediately preceding age; but that it involved a serious loss to the integrity of our human life—to its breadth, its culture, its true vitality and place in the real world of experience—cannot, I think, be doubted. We cannot without harm turn a deaf ear to any side of that world through which God is revealed to us. To sever the twinship of Nature and Revelation, or to break with art for the sake of worship, is a mistake hurtful to the interests of both.”¹ It is not difficult to believe, although he makes no mention of him, that while penning the above sentences the writer had in his mind the author of ‘The True Crucifixe.’

But although we must deny Mure the divine gift of originality, and not only acknowledge but insist on the limits, both natural and self-imposed, within which he worked, we must grant him the possession of a cultured literary taste and a high power of literary expression. He was in no sense a “Makar,” but, on the other hand, he was no contemptible artist. His skill in versification led him to the occasional perpetration of a mere feat of rhyming gymnastics, but his feeling for what was best in literature was pure and true. Detached examples, such as the application of Spenser's beautiful line, to Venus, might be given in proof of this:—

“ Thus having said, she turn'd away her face,
Which made a sunne-shine in the shady place.”

But the best proof is his choice of the story of Dido and Æneas itself, combined with his selection of Virgil for translation rather than Ovid. That a Scottish lad, barely twenty years of age, should undertake the translation of two books of the ‘Æneid’ into English verse, one of those being the fourth, and thus challenge direct comparison with the famous Lord Surrey, perhaps only indicates the presence of the usual self-confidence of youth. That he succeeded so well proves that the confidence was not unfounded. The performance, indeed, in no small degree justified the pretension. In his choice of a subject, to begin with, Mure showed that he was possessed of the true instinct. Of all the episodes in the ‘Æneid,’ perhaps in all Roman literature, there is nothing that appeals to us—awakens our sympathies, kindles our emotions, and arouses our feelings of kinship as human beings—like the story of the unfortunate Dido. In the words of Professor Sellar, “The only personage of the ‘Æneid’ which entitles Virgil to rank among great creators is Dido, an ideal of a true queen and a true woman. She is the sole creation which Roman poetry has added to the great gallery of men and women filled by the imaginative art of different times and peoples. . . . Dido alone is a life-like and completed picture. On the episode of which she is the heroine the most intense human interest is concentrated." In his choice, therefore, Mure showed an unmistakable appreciation, not only of what was best in his author and most calculated to interest his readers, but also of what he himself was best fitted to accomplish. But he had not only the ability to recognise; he had also the power to assimilate and reproduce—in a word, the gifts of the born translator. How great is the pity, then, that he should have buried so much of his talent in the barren field of religious and political controversy!

That Mure should have so tightly bound himself within the limits of verse in his translation was perhaps unfortunate. Into the question of the possibility of doing justice to Virgil in any verse-rendering there is no need to enter here. That is a point regarding which there seems to be no doubt in the minds of those best qualified to judge. In Mure's case the effect of the restraint on the dignity and power of his original is marked; but his attempt, as a totally new departure, may fairly enough look for lenient criticism, and this can be the more willingly accorded in consideration of the truthful rendering, and in admiration of the force and beauty of many of the passages.

Regarding Mure's later works, almost all that need be said will be found in the notes. Perhaps the most valuable, and undoubtedly the most interesting, of them is his paraphrase of the Psalms. Of the esteem in which his other works were held by his contemporaries we can judge from their own utterances. But from the nineteenth century point of view, it seems that little would have been lost, perhaps something gained, had they been composed in good nervous prose. His own standing, and the conditions of his time, seemed to demand their composition and publication as a duty ; but it is perhaps not too much to say, that if all the works which Mure published in his lifetime had remained unwritten, and only those had been made public which appear in these volumes for the first time, his reputation as a poet would not have suffered.

Of Mure as a man, apart from the indirect evidence of his writings, we know little. What his personal appearance was—whether he was tall or short, dark or fair, slender or buirdly—we cannot tell. What we do know is that he was, in every sense of the word, a truly religious and highly cultured gentleman. Upright, kindly, courteous, no word he ever wrote could give offence to the most fastidious taste. He could indeed write strongly when stirred to indignation by injustice and oppression ; but the course ribaldry of the “Flytings” and the witty licentiousness of many of his predecessors were equally distasteful to his pure and modest mind. That he could fight bravely in defence of what he believed to be the right he proved, and that he was a careful and prudent manager of his own affairs his letter to his son shows.

An interesting relic, giving evidence of Mure’s musical tastes, is still preserved in the Edinburgh University Library.¹ This is his ‘Lute Book,’ a small, neatly bound volume, containing a considerable number of pieces, and bearing the quaint inscription : “For Kissing, for Clapping, for Lowing, for Proveing, goe to ye Lute be W. Mure.” Several of the tunes have no title, but among those which have are “Corne Yairds,” “Battel of Harlaw,” “Our the dek [dyke], Davie,” “Maggr^t. Ramsay,” and “Katherine Bairdie.” Most of the pieces in this interesting collection have probably been long forgotten — both names and music. None of them are accompanied by the words.

It is believed that the present edition of Sir William Mure's works is as complete as it is possible now to make it. At all events, it contains every writing of his made mention of by the numerous authorities consulted by the editor, with two exceptions. These two, a religious poem called 'The Joy of Tears,' and another called 'The Challenge and Reply,' are mentioned in the Rev. Wm. Muir's continuation of the 'Historie of the House of Rowallan,' but no trace of them has been found. They are probably lost beyond recovery.

I have to record my obligations to the following gentlemen for kindly aid in preparing this book : To Dr Cranstoun and the late Dr Gregor, for assistance in reading the proofs ; to Mr Webster of the University Library, and Mr Clark of the Advocates' Library, for facilities in consulting MSS., original editions, and works of reference ; to the authorities of Glasgow University Library, for permission to copy the MSS. of the Psalms ; and particularly to Mr George Muir, of Kilmarnock, who placed his wide knowledge of all pertaining to the Rowallan family, as well as his manuscript notes to the 'Historie,' entirely at my disposal.

EARLY MISCELLANEOUS POEMS

I.

ANE CONFLICT TUIX LOVE AND RESSOUN.

QUHEN Morpheus, w^t his sleepe vaile,
 Apollo's brightnes did assaile,
 And forc'd him change his course,
 Towards ye Ocean streamis,
 To coole his burning beimis 5
 In ould Neptunus' source,
 And quhen the Night the Stigian caues had schroudit,
 And ye Horizons of myne eyes o'rcloudit,

 The Citherean boy in Airmes
 Appeird then, sounding Loues alarmes. 10
 Ane Ensigne displayed
 In sing of ware he bair,
 Quhose colours to declair
 3it maks my hert affrayed,
 Resolu'd, by force, by subtil slight, or treassoune, 15
 To siege, and sack the Rampier of my ressoune.

 His campe was arm'd w^t horrid night
 As one quho lothed to sie ye Light,
 A bow bent in his hand
 He caryed to invoid 20
 All such as durst wpbraid,
 Or contrar his comãd.
 Inventing then all the Ingynes he can,
 To brash my breast ye battery thus began.

Cup. “Zeeld to his powar quho rules and ringis 25
 Both ower mein men, and o’re kingis ;
 Quhose schafths hath ay subdued
 Ye most heroick hertis ;
 Quhose flames and deidly derts
 No martiall mynds eschued ; 30
 Zeild thou and learne how to practize and proue
 The heavinly Joyes, and suggared sweets of Loue.

“Once taist yat nectared delyte,
 Of all pleasoures ye most perfyte,
 To spend thy tender zeiris 35
 In loves lascivious layes
 Sporting thy youthfull dayes
 In Ven^s wantoune weiris :
 O, so the springtyme of thyne age t’employ,
 It is to baith in oceanes of Joy.” 40

His speichis beutifully sainted,
 And for ye present purpose painted,
 Mou’d, (by thair chairming power,)
 Against me to conspyre,
 Youth, courage, and desyer, 45
 To haist my fatall houer ;
 Ressoune alone, to ratifie my right,
 To Cupid then replyed, suolne w^t dispicht :

R. “Cease, serpent, seik no to subdue
 And kill ane hert, bot for a vieu ; 50
 Thy pleasour is bot paine,
 A dreame, a toy, a schadou,
 Lyk to a blooming meadou,
 Quhose pryd doth schort remaine.
 Thy sweetest joyes proue oft in end most sowre, 55
 Lyk to a fair sunschyne befor a schoure.”

Youth then, with courage and desyer,
 All flaming in voluptuose fyre,
 W^t fervent myndys assayed
 My Sences to suppryse, 60
 Esteiming me wnwysse
 To ressounne to be tyed,
 So that, by only his adwyce and will,
 My actiounes all must be directed still.

Z. "Fy thou," (quod youth,) "faint is the spirit, 65
 Of lytill vertue, worth, or merit,
 Can tolerat to liue,
 Thrall to an oyers will,
 His humour to fulfill,
 As he comānd doth giwe. 70
 Fy thou, contemne such servile slawischnes,
 If any spunk of valour ye possesse."

R. "Peace, peace," (q^d ressounne), "stint thy tounge,
 No lesse he profits hes bein dumbe ;
 Thoght thine owin eyes be blind, 75
 ʒit woldst thou teach ane oyer,
 To saile w^tout ane routhier,
 Contrair both waue and wind ;
 To losse ane Infinit and endles treassour,
 In hope to gaine ye fleiting frooths of pleassour." 80

I then perplex'd q^t to performe,
 To hazard or escheu ʒe storme :
 To suime in sueatned seas
 Now loues delights bereaues me :
 Now feir of falling greeues me, 85
 To such as raschly flies :
 Sua, now to loue, now contrairely inclyn'd,
 A field of fancies musterd in my mynd.

- To flie I long'd, aboue all things ;
 3it loth to trust in Cupid's wings, 90
 TuiX danger and desyer,
 Thus howering to and fro,
 3outh newer ceas'd to blo,
 Forging affectiounes fyre.
- Bot ressoune, then, perceauing my estait, 95
 W^t wraithfull voice did thus begin to threat :
- R.* " Art thus thy vertue rock'd asleepe,
 Thy witt dround in a boundles deepe,
 Thy senses so ensnared,
 To sie and 3it miskno 100
 Ane labyrinth of woe,
 For ye (puir wretch), prepair'd?
 Behold h'lll proue, quho now doth ye promote,
 Ane monstrouse Minotaur to cutt thy throate.
- " Ane spytfull spidar, ewer spewing 105
 Ye poysonous potioun of late rewing,
 3ouths venemous infectioun ;
 In age, a doating madnes,
 A schort abiding glaidnes,
 A foolisch imperfectioun, 110
 A basse-borne passioun schairce rype till rottin,
 TuiX hatefull lust and Idilnes begottin."
- C.* Quod Cupid then : " Let ressoune raue ;
 Its not his counsell thou must craue ;
 Bot once his 3ock reject, 115
 And proue yat divine pleassour,
 That Joy bezond all meassour,
 First from aboue direct,
 That heavin[y] vniting of tuo mynds in one,
 Quhich nothing can dissolue bot death alone." 120

R. "Abstract," (q^d ressoune,) "then thyne eares
 Ye charming Sirenes songs q^{ch} hears,
 Flie ye voluptuose voice,
 Quhich hes no other scope
 But guyde ye on ye rock 125
 Of thy perpetuell losse.
 In tyme tak heid then, least too lait thou mourne,
 Ye port is patent, bot w^tout retourne."

C. "Behold," (q^d Cupid,) "ressounes schifts
 Of false philosophie consists ; 130
 By sophistrie he schaues
 Loues hoñy to be gall,
 A bait only to thrall
 Such as obeys his lawes.
 Bot quho into such Rhethorick reposes, 135
 Lyfes sueitest joyes, and true contentmēt lossis.

"Since then, to the, consists our stryfe,
 Of no lesse momēt then thy lyfe,
 Present, befoir thyne eyes,
 Ye cause of our dissentioun, 140
 And ponder my intentioun
 W^t ressoues fenziēd eyes.
 Let yen thy hert discern quho best doth merit,
 If subtile fraud, or faith, sould the inherit."

My hert, elected then to judge, 145
 Armies of diverse tho^tis did ludge ;
 3it, out of judgments deepe,
 Did loue in end prefer,
 Quhose adversar did erre
 And thus pronunc'd decretit : 150
 Hencefoorth contemne, reject and banisch reassoune,
 A crocodoil, w^t tears obscuring treassoune.

“ Giue place to loues cælestial force,
 Quhich joynes tuo soules w^tout diworce;

 Quhose vertue and true power 155

 No crosse can oght impaire,

 Bot still growes mair and mair,

 Quhen most it seimes to lowre.

Since then this heavinly essence thus doth proue,

Let death alone put period to thy loue.” 160

Finis be me, W. Mure.

II.

MES AMOURS ET MES DOULEURS SONT
SANS COMPARISOUNE.

QUHILL Beutie by a pleasant spring reposes,
 W^t fairest schads of trees o'rschadoued, wnder ;
 Ye cooling air, w^t calmest blasts, rejoyses
 To sport hir w^t hir locks, o'rcume w^t wonder ;
 So then, admiring hir most heavinly featour, 5
 I mervel'd much if scho was form'd by natour.

The smyling blinks, sent from hir wantoune eyes,
 Had force to robe proud Cupid of his dairts ;
 Hir schamefast, blusching smyles quho ever sies,
 Must pairt perforce, liuing behind yair herts. 10
 I stuid astonisch'd, greedie to behold
 So rair perfectione as cannot be told.

B. Scho then, perceauing me in thot perplex'd,
 W^t voice angelicall did thus begin :
 "Thy gesture doth bewray thy mynd is wexed, 15
 W^t crosses compast and invironed in :
 Schau then if loue, or q^t misfortoune else,
 Such sings of sorow in thy saule compellis."

A. "No crosse at all, fair dame, no force in loue
 Can aght disquet or perturbe my mynde. 20
 Ye wonders now ar present me doth moue
 To sie heavins excellence in humane kynd."

B. "No, Cupid the molestis, cease to deny him."

A. "Fy, treacherouse loue, fond Cupid I defy him."

Evin at this tyme the blindit god arywed, 25

His bow bent in his hand ready to nocke :

Bot q^{ll} he aim'd, of power quyte deprywed,

Himself he band in his awin flattering 3ocke.

Feeding his eyes on beuties tempting lookes,

His pain he thot to ease w^t baited hookes. 30

C. So boyl'd w^t flames, vex'd both w^t feir and teires,
Out of the anguisch of his hert did plaine :

"Ah, mackles dame, quhom all ye world admires,
Pitty, I pray, my never ceasing paine.

Do not thy rigour wnto me extend, 35

Quhome once no mortall durst presume t'offend.

"Bot now at last, o'rcume, I humbly 3eild ;

Save then or sloe ane captiue beggand grace :

Receau, in sing that thou hes won the field,

Ye bow, ye schafte, ye quaver and ye brace, 40

Once q^{ch} I bruick'd, bot now w^tout invy

I yeild to the, more worthie thame nor I."

The homage endit, and ye goddesse aimed

W^t proud, presuming Cupid's conquered spoyle,

He then, remitted, fled away wnhairmed : 45

Bot, (woes me,) left behind his tort'ring toyle.

Scho, spying me 3it wnacquaint in loue,

Hir new got dairts throught my puir hert did roue.

[B.] "Sport now," (scho sayes), "w^t Cupid : boldly try him ;
In loue if any force, no[w] proue, I pray : 50

Too lait, I feir, thow rew thou did espy him,

Thyne insolence 'gainst him or he repay."

Disdainfully delywring thus hir words,

No small displeasour to my saule affordis.

I, zit ane novice in my new learned airt, 55
 Admir'd so quick a chainge from joy to woe ;
 Doubted myself ; ewin gif it was my hert ;
 My tears, quhich trickling from myne eyes did go,
 Bot (ah) in vaine, for zit my wound did bleede ;
 No spaits of teires culd quench ye boyling leede. 60

I flam'd, I fruise, in loue, in cold disdaine,
 Dyed in dispair, in hope againe I liued.
 All pleasours past agreedg'd my present paine,
 Hir froune did kill, hir smyle againe reviued.
 Qⁿ death I wish'd, lyf then refused to liue me : 65
 Liue qⁿ I wold, death then propon'd to riue me.

Quhil in this weak estait, all meanes I soght
 To be aweng'd on him quhose schaftes did greiue me :
 Alace ! ane faint persuit ; I furthered noht.
 For he, now Cupid, now a spreit, did liue me. 70
 Thus metamorphos'd fled away for ayde,
 In Beuties lippes, q^r I durst not inuaid.

Then favour beg'd, pittie moued hir consent
 Rendir ye fortresse, and his suirest scheild.
 Great searche I maid to mak ye wretch repent 75
 His bold attempes, intreating him to zeild.
 Bot nather prayers could preuaile nor wisses,
 Then I resolved to kill him euen w^t kissis.

Afrayed he fled then in hir eyes to hyde him,
 Out of hir eyes into hir lipps againe. 80
 "Stay, fond wretch, stay," thus I beguth to chyde him,
 "Or chuisse hir hert, thou chainges oft in vaine.
 Sua, as by the, our lipps els ar vnited,
 Our herts als to conioyne may be invited."

Bot nothing could ye cruel spidar moue 85
 To liue his hold, delichting in my woe :
 Sche lykwyse, quhom I serued, bot scorn'd my loue,
 Lauching to sie my trickling teirs doune go.
 The more sche did perceauē increase my paine,
 The more sche mach'd my loue w^t cold disdaine. 90

Quhat then, sall I liue off my hope to speid,
 And liue no more, cros'd w^t consuming cair?
 No ! let hir froune and flit, yairs no remeid ;
 I liue resolued neauer to dispair.
 Content I am, (and sua my faith deserwest,) 95
 My spring be toylsome w^t a pleasent herwest.

Finis, 1611.

III.

ANE REPLY TO I CAIR NOT QUITHER
I GET HIR OR NO.

TO pleid bot q^r mutuel kyndnes is gain'd,
 And fancie alone quhair favour hath place,
 Such frozen affectioun I ewer disdain'd.
 Can oght be impaird by distance or space?
 My loue salbe endles quhair once I affect. 5
 Ewin thocht it sould please hir my service reject,
 Stil sall I determine, till breath and lyfe go,
 To loue hir quither scho loue me or no.

If sche, by quhose favour I liue, sould disdaine,
 Sall I match hir wnkyndnes by prowng wngrait? 10
 O no! in hir keiping my hert must remaine,
 To honour and loue hir, more then sche can heat.
 Hir pleasour can nowayes retourne to my smairt,
 Quhose lyfe, in hir power, must stay or depairt.
 Thocht fortune delyt into my owirthro, 15
 I loue hir quither scho loue me or no.

To losse both trawel and tyme for a froune,
 And change for a secret surmize of disdaine;
 Loues force, and trew vertue to such is wnknowne,
 Quhose faintnes of courage is constancies staine. 20

My loyal affectiounes no tyme sall diminish.

Quhair once I affect my favour sall finish.

So sall I determine, till breath and lyfe go,

To loue hir quither scho loue me or no.

Finis, 1614, 10 Octob.

IV.

ELEGIE.

ALACE! q^u I begin into my mynd to call
 The tragick end of Icarus and his most fatall fall ;
 My stait yen worse then his, if any worse can be,
 Convoyed w^t duilfull death, ensues to end the fait's decree,
 Lyk as he did presume, too hie w^t borrowed pends, 5
 Bot by the raiging force of floods o'rquhelm'd but mercie endis.
 Sua q^u aboute my bounds fondly I did aspyre,
 Deceau'd by loues alluiring wingis, I fell in quenchles fyre,
 In quich alace I boyle but mercie or retourne.
 Sche quhom I serue the fornace feeds, quhair my puir hert doth burne ; 10
 Bot causles is sche blaim'd, in hir no wayt remaines,
 Nocht els bot cruell Cupid's ire my martyrdome constrainis.
 In endles pain I liue, in furieuse fla^ms I fume,
 Death still doth threat my dayes to end, I sie no other doome.
 My passiounes ar extreame, my hert doth brist for woe, 15
 My tears lyk water from a spring doune from myne eyes doth go.
 Consum'd w^t secret sighs, but confort I remaine ;
 Ilk thing on earth gainst me conspyre to agravat my paine.
 Bot most of all, alace ! that sche by quhom I liue,
 Feeling, by simpatheie, my smairt, from death wold me reviuie. 20
 Bot (ah), the frouning faits, always my fatall foes,
 Noch bot our myndis permits to meet, to periodize our woes.
 3it tho^t ane perfyte end in loue ye faits deny,
 Still sall I hir adoir and serwe, ewer till death envy :

Resolu'd I am but chainge to loue hir q^u I liue. 25
 Let fortoune froune, the world invy, hir smyle will me reuiue.
 And tho^t, against my will, distant we must remaine,
 }it in a breist sall both our herts no more at all be tuaine.
 Thought crossis intervein to mak our myndis remoue,
 }it still sall I most constant liue, death sall dissolue my loue. 30

Finis, 1611.

V.

CHAUNSOUNE.

CALLING to mynd the heuinly featour,
 The baschfull blinks, and comely grace,
 The forme of hir angelick face
 Deckt w^t ye quintascence of natour,
 To none inferiour in place, 5
 Oft am I forc'd,
 Altho diuors'd
 From presence of my deirests eyes,
 The too slou day
 To steil away, 10
 Admiring hir, my smart quho sies.

Thought by myne eyes I sould distill,
 And quyt dissolue in tears my hert
 To satisfie hir causles smairt;
 3it rather sche delytis to kill, 15
 Then any joy to me impairt.
 Bot since ye faits,
 Q^{ch} ruils all staitis,
 Such tragick luck to me doth threat,
 Do quhat sche can, 20
 Resolued I am
 To loue hir more then sche can heat.

VI.

ANAGRAMME.

TO the Cupido 3eilds his golden dairt,
 Quoise name aboue both fame and envy flies ;
 No rair decoirment natour can impairt,
 Q^{ch} doth not schyne in those sueit Angel's eyes,
 Heauin's admiratioune, and ye world's terrour, 5
 Earth's excellence, and loue's most machles mirroure.

A machles mirroure of vnstain'd renoune,
 Quhair beutie, (by wnsponsored purnes graced,)
 Adorn'd w^t chest Dianais sacred croune,
 (To tymes amaizment,) from above is plac'd ; 10
 So that to the, in nather earth nor heauin,
 In all preferment, any match is giwin.

Na maches giwin to equall thy perfectione
 In diuin rairnes, vertue, worth, or witt.
 Euin so, (the heuins doth kno,) in true affectiounne, 15
 In spotles loue, no maches I admitt.
 Since then on earth machles we liue alone,
 Justly, (sueit loue), we sould be mach'd in one.

Finis, 1614, W. Muir.

VII.

ANE REPROCH TO YE PRATLER.

ENVIOUSE wretch, on earth ye most ingrait,
 In Venus Court thy libertie is loissed,
 Deseruing punischment as Momus mait,
 Misconstruing ladies mirrily disposit.
 If proud Ixion, in ye hels incloisit, 5
 Doth suffer tortour on ye restles quheele,
 Justly from all felicity deposisit,
 Junois discredit quho did not conceale ;
 And if Acteon Cynthya's ire did feele,
 Turn'd in a hert, (thus for a vieu revengit), 10
 Much more thou, then, quho ladyes did reveale,
 In worse then he demerites to be chaingit ;
 Form'd in a doge, to bark at such, most meet,
 As chalmer talk divulgats on ye street.

Finis, 1614.

VIII.

TO YE TUNE OF PERT JEAN.

FAIR goddess, Loadstar of delight,
 Natours triumph, and beauties lyfe,
 Earth's ornament, my hopes full hight,
 My only peace, and pleasing stryfe
 Let mercie mollifie thy mynd ! 5
 A Saturnes hert sould Venus haue?
 Or sould thou prouè to him wnkynd,
 Quho humbly lyfe of ye doth craue?
 Since all thy pairts sum special grace
 Decoris, to schau thy heavinly race, 10
 Vertue thy mynd, and loue thy face,
 Proportioune braue thy featour,
 Pitty then must neids haue place
 In such a diuin creatour,
 Quhose sueitnes 15
 And meiknes
 Exceids ye bounds of natour.

Quhen first thoise angel's eyes I vieued,
 (Tuo sparks t'inflame a world of loue),
 My fatal thraldome then ensued, 20
 Then did my liberty remoue.
 Thair first infected was my mynd,
 Loues nectared poysoune thair I drank,
 Thy sacred countenance so schyn'd
 So far aboue all humane rank. 25

Let then thiose eyes qth did insnair,
 (Those schyning stares), thair fault repair,
 Dispersing by thair beimes preclair
 The clouds of thy disdaining,
 Wosdome, vertue, beutie rair, 30
 In the haue all remaining.
 Let not then Ye spot then
 Of rigour be thy staining.

Sould crueltie, (sueit loue,) ecclips 35
 Ye sunschyne of those glorious rayes?
 Or sould thiose louely smyling lips
 Breath foorth affectiounes delayes?
 Let mercie countervail thy worth,
 And measour pittie by my paine ; 40
 Sua, thy perfectiounes to paint foorth
 Ane endles labour sall remaine.
 Lat beuties beames then thau away,
 (Reflecting only on ws tuay),
 The ycinesse of loues delay, 45
 And melt disdaines cold treassour.
 Natours due so sall we pay,
 Baithing in boundles pleassour,
 Inioying
 That toying, 50
 Quhose sueits exceid all meassour.

Finis, 1615.

IX.

[ANOTHER VERSION OF THE SAME.]

[In this version the first two verses are the same as in the other, with the following exceptions :—

Verse 1, line 2, has "Triumph of nature," for "Natours triumph."

" " " 8, reads—"Quho lyfe of the alone doth craue."

" 2, " 6, has "potions," for "poysonne."

Verse 3 is given here in full.]

SOULD crueltie, sueit love, ecllipse
 Those eyes quhos smyls seame voyd of wraith?
 Or sould those soule enchanting lips
 Pronounce the sentance of my death?
 Banisch disdain, (my deir^t), O spair 5
 In guiltles blood thy hands to stayne!
 Be bountifull as thow art fair,
 Measur thy pittie w^t my pain.
 So shall my Muse rich trophes rayse
 To eternize thy endles prayse, 10
 Qⁿ heavins haue stars, qⁿ sune hath rayes,
 W^t light all creatours cheering;
 Qⁿ Cupid's sceptor earth o'rsweyes
 Nor great nor small forbearing,
 Thy prayse sall 15
 Amaze all
 Things sensible of heering.

TO THE TUNE OF ANE NEW LILT.

BEUTIE hath myne eyes assailed,
 And subdued my saulis affectioun.
 Cupid's dairt hath so prevail'd,
 That I must liue in his subiectioun,
 Tyed till one, 5
 Quho's machles alone,
 And secund to none
 In all perfectioun.
 Since my fortune such must be,
 No change sall pairt my loue and me. 10

Wosdome, meiknes, vertue, grace,
 Sueitnes, modestie, bontie but meassour,
 Decks her sueit celestial face,
 Rich in beuties heavinly treassour.
 Joy nor smairt 15
 Sall newer diuert
 My most loyall hert
 For paine nor pleassour.
 Bot resolu'd, I auou, till I die,
 No change sall pairt my loue and me. 20

Tyme nor distance sall have force,
 (Altho by fortunoues smyle invited),
 Ws tuo ewer to diuorce,
 By such a sympathie vnited.

TO THE TUNE OF ANE NEW LILT. 25

True loue hates 25

Ye waw'ring estaits

Of such as ye faitis

Hath chaing'd or retreated.

But recourse in any degre,

No chainge sall pairt my loue and me. 30

Deir ! Let death then only finisch,

And alter alone our choyse and electioun.

Let no chainge our loue diminisch,

Nor breed from constancie any defectioun.

Time nor space, 35

No distance of place,

Sall ewer deface

Our fervēt affectioun.

Then, (sueit loue), thus let us decrie,

No chainge sall pairt ws q^{ll} we die. 40

Finis, 1615.

Oh, (sueit !) then scho
 Compassioun on my woe,
 Or lett no longer lyf remain.

Lyf giwes no more . 30
 To cuir my inward soare,
 Bot ʒeilds, the greater sence of pain.

Hatred (alace !) for deirest loue I gain,
 (Ay me !) this is my best reward,
 And, for my paines, reaps wndeserued disdain. 35

My service sche doth thus regaird,
 Tho^t I plead in vain
 Loue for loue of hir t'obtean,
 And humbly begs remorse ;
 Thoght my tears down rain, 40

Q^{ch} my sorowing cheiks do stain,
 Such is hir bewties force
 To charme my mynd,
 To liue, alace, thus pynd
 For hir, in such a ruefull stait, 45
 Resolving still
 To wait wpon hir will,
 And loue hir more then sche can heat.

Bot as the rose, in pulling, oft impairts
 The prick, before the smell be found, 50

Sua may my Loue now, w^t disdainfull dairts
 Thocht sche my hert but mercie wound.
 Sche the stroak did giwe,
 Only sche must me reviuē,
 Thocht reuthles now sche proue. 55

Such ane heavinly face
 Can not bot giwe pitty place,
 And ʒeild at lenth to loue.
 Sueit ! then, the more
 Thou heats, I sall adore, 60

And serwe the qⁿ my breath be gone.
My changles mynd
No tyme sall mak wnkynd,
Bot death my loue sall end alone.

Finis, S. W. M., Rowallan, 3oungar, 1616.

HYMNE.

HELP, help, O Lord! sueit saviour aryse,
Giwe ear unto my humble suits, and heir my wofull
cryes,

My sorowing sighes, (guid Lord!), do not dispyse,
Awalk, my sillie saul, in sin q^{ch} too securely lyes.

Help (blessed Lord!) I pray, 5

Thy servant in distresse;

Haist, (sueit Jehova!) schune delay,

My hynous sins redresse.

Deir Father, I confesse

Still yat I ran astray; 10

Bot now recall me, not ye lesse,

Out of ye wandring way,

In quhich so long

I have gone wronge,

Alace! 15

Accompany'd w^t bluid convoyes.

One drop afford,

O heavinly Lord!

Of grace,

And cloath my sorowing saule w^t joyes. 20

Thyne ayde, O my creatour, I implore;

Withhold from me thy favour now no more;

Justly tho^t I deserued thyne ire,

And nothing bot hels fyre,

3it, Lord, I humbly the requyre,	25
Contemne not my desyre.
Erect my puir dejected spreit,
Prostrat befoir thy mercies feete,
Full sore affrayed to pleid for grace,
Wnworthy to present thy face.	30
3it suffer not, sueit Lord, I pray,
My silly saule decay,
Bot once remitt, w ^t out delay,
My sinis for now and ay.

THE EPITAPH OF THE RY^T VENERABLE, GODLY AND LEARNED FATHER GEORGE, BE GRACE FROM GOD, ORDERLY CALLIT, AND BE HIS PRINCE
 APOYNTE TO BE GREATEST PRELAT
 IN SCOTLAND, ARCHBISCHOPPE OF SANCTANDROIS.

BEREFT of breath, 3it nocht from lyfe depoided,
 Heir lyes inclos'd Sanctandrois richest treassour,
 A pearle but meassour hath ye word ill loossed
 Quhoise mynd repoissed in no decaying pleassour,
 A machles Phoenix, quho, from mein estait, 5
 Becam a prelat and a prince's mait.
 A painfull pastour, worthy such a place,
 Too schort a space his natioune hath decoired ;
 Quho now restord to earth, doth rest in peace,
 Receaued in grace, the heavins in sanctis hath stoired. 10
 Quhoise corps t'intoinb, glaid ar ye sensles stones,
 Promou'd to honour by his buried bones,

IN ZOILUM

Thou then, quho by thy false and fenziend fact,
 Strywes to detract this prudent prelat's name, 15
 Bewar such schame becum thy suirest hap,
 Thrawin from ye tap of fortune to defame.
 No blot, no blemisch, no defect, no moth
 Presum'd to enter in so rich a cleath.

ANE EPITAPH (EFTER YE VULGAR OPINIOUNE)
 WPON YE D(EATH) OF GEORGE GLAIDSTANES
 B. OF S. A.

GLAIDSTONES is gone, his corps doth heir duell,
 Bot q^r be his oyer halfe no man can tell.
 The heauins doth abhor to ludge such a ghost,
 Quho still, q^{ll} he liued, to Pluto raid post.
 The earth hath expell'd him, as loathing such load, 5
 Quho honoured Bacchus and no other god.
 Since both then reiect him, t' this outcast of heavin
 In midst of ye furies a place must be giwin ;
 Quhose covetouse mynd no richesse contented,
 Bot heiping wp treassour wnmyndfull quho lēt it, 10
 Till contrarie fortoun, by turning ye dyce,
 Metamorphos'd his thowsands in milleounes of lyce ;
 Quhich endit ye dayes of this sensuall slaue,
 Wnwordy the earth sould ʒeild him a graue.
 By him quho wischeth that this wretches fait 15
 May giwe exemple wnto ewery stait ;
 That hyer Powares be w^t feir regairdit,
 Or by this Athist's punischmēt rewairded.

THE EPITAPH OF THE WERY VERTUOUSE AND
 EXCELLENT GENTELUOMAN A. C. SISTER
 TO 3E RIGHT HONO^{LL} THE LAIRD OF CAPRINTOUNE.

AH! q^t ecclipse, q^t night of sad aⁿoyis
 Thus hath o^rschadoued Phoebus' schyning face?
 Art natour's pryde, loue's mirrou, earthis true joyes,
 Fled and evanischt in a moment's space?
 Ah! art affectiounes florisch, beutie's vigour, 5
 Crop't in the floure, and slain by Clotho's rigour?

Ah! art ye sunschyne of those machles beames
 In sorowes seas so suddenly gone doune,
 Lyk fleing schadoues, and deceauing dreames,
 Tomorrou clay, today perfectiounes croune? 10
 Ah! art ye world of hir rair Phoenix spoyld,
 And earth's decoirment by death's furie soyl'd?

3it nothing straunge, thot Joue chusd such a mait,
 This age wnworthy such a braue ingyne;
 And chaing't this mortal's mutable estait' 15
 For ay in immortality to schyne.

Thus sche, to quhom belou na mache's giuin,
 Triumphs in endles glorie, mached in heauin.

Then happie nimph, quhoise spreit in peace repoises,
 Fred of all chainge and to na frailtie thrall, 20
 The tomb thryse happie, q^{ch} thy corps incloises,
 So happie ay, bot happiest nou of all,
 That, as ye world did learne to liue by the,
 Sua, by thy death, ye world may learne to die.

Be then comforted, ʒe, whom natour tyes 25
 W^t weiping eyes this spectacle to vieu.
 Heuins did afford, and now ʒe heuins denyes
 This staige of toyes sould more retein thair due.
 Since all must die, thē let nō mortall froune,
 Thot hyer powers do reclaime thair owin. 30

SAX LYNES WPON THE FALL OF SOMERSAIT.

EACH man w^t silence stopes his mouth, and heares
 Sad newes w^t wonder, bot my barren muse
 Fain wold brust foorth, bot ʒit to wryt forbear[s];
 Feir to offend must be my best excuse.

Since malice thirsts for braue Ephestion's blood, 5
 He wryt no Ill, nor dar I wryt no good.

XVII.

EPITAPH OF THE VERY EXCELLENT, VERTUOUSE AND TRULIE HONOURED LADY, THE LADY ARNESTOUN.

PEACE! wantone Muse, Leave now thy lovelie layes.
Here, here a sadder subject thou doth fynd.
Hence Helicon, hence Phoebus blooming bayes,
The sorowing Cypres now thy brows must bynd,
Ane Tragick Token of a mourning mynd, 5
 Quhich fain wold wtter, (if it could for smairt,)
 Thir latest dutyes of a dulefull hert.

Quhat ey so cruell must no melt in teares?
Q^t flintie hert from sorow can refrain?
Q^t ruthles care, this tragedy q^{ch} heares, 10
Can inward anguish smother and restrain?
O! sence wnsensible q^{ch} feeles no pain,
 And, pittiles, doth not w^t greif regrait
 This ruefull object and wntymely fait.

Death hath subdued Wit, Vertue, Beutie braue, 15
By conquering hir in q^m those all remain'd.
Nane humbler, meiker, modester, more graue,
Mor wyse, more worthy, Natour ewer framed.
Few matches earth hath any quhair retain'd
 So prudent, patient, pittifull, but pryde. 20
 More courtesse, comelie creator newer dyed.

Then nothing strange tho^t Joue chus'd such a mait,
This age wnworthy such a rair ingyne,
And chang't this mortal's mutable estate,
For ay in iñortality to schyne ; 25
Quho glorefied amidst the schads d'ewyne,
In place of wordlie transitorie toyes
Reaps now all plentie of Celestiall joyes.

Finis, 1616.

VPON THE DEATH OF THE RICHT WORSCHIPFULL, VERTEOUSE AND WERY WORTHY GENTLEMAN,
 THE LAIRD OF ARNESTON 3OUNGAR

THOU, thou, quhose lovelie schaip, of all admyr'de,
 In robs most rich a richer spreit attyrd ;
 In quhom true vertue, worth and valour schynd ;
 In face a Venus, and a Mars in mynd.
 Too sone, (alace !) in blossome of thyn age 5
 Thy pairt is acted on this wordlie stage.

3it happie, happie thou, in earth quho lyes !
 Quhose ghost triumphes in azor-volted skyes !
 Lou'd q^{ll} thou liu'd, of all, all now regrait
 In 3outhes Apryle thy far vntymelie fait. 10
 Bot ah ! no eyes can render store of teares
 To mōurne aneugh thy losse in such 3oung 3eares.

Then, (worthy 3outh,) dear to thy freinds, adieu !
 Heawins have reclaimed bot q^t to thame was due.
 Ane Angel's place far better doth beseame the, 15
 For this inferiour fram could no conteane the.
 For quhy, (braue 3outh,) basse earth was far wnfitt
 To comprehend such beutie, grace, and wit.

XIX.

[MUST I WNPITTIED STILL REMAIN].

MUST I wnpittied still remain,
 But regaird,
 Or rewaird,
 Nothing caird,
 Bot by my sueitest slain? 5

Ah! sall I still contenned remain,
 Still, alace!
 Begging grace,
 Bot in place
 Of favo^r reap disdain? 10

}it, most sueit,
 I must no retreat,
 Altho thou froun a quhyle.
 Since my pain proceeds of the,
 All is sueit it breeds to me, 15
 If thou wouchaife bot on smyle.

XX.

TO THE MOST HOPEFUL AND HIGH-BORN
PRINCE CHARLES, PRINCE OF WALES.

MACHLES Montgomery in his native tounge,
 In former tymes to thy Great Syre hath sung,
 And often ravischt his harmonious ear
 W^t straynes fitt only for a prince to heir.
 My muse, q^{ch} nocht doth challenge worthy fame, 5
 Saue from Montgomery sche hir birth doth clayme,
 (Altho his Phoenix ashes have sent forth
 Pan for Apollo, if compaird in worth),
 Pretending tytyls to supply his place
 By ryt hereditar to serve thy grace. 10
 Tho the puir issues of my weak ingyne
 Can add smal luster to thy gloryes schyne,
 Q^{ch}, (lyk the boundles oceā), swels no moir,
 Tho springs and founts infuis thair liquid stoir;
 And tho the guift be mean I may bestow, 15
 ʒit, (gratiows prince,) my myt to thee I owe,
 Q^{ch} I w^t ʒeale present. O daigne to vieu
 Those airtles measurs, to thee only due;
 Qⁿ thy auntcestors' passiouns I have schowne,
 Iff, (but offence,) Great Charles, Ile sing thyne owne. 20

THE KINGS MAIESTIE CAME TO HAMILTON
ON MONDAY THE XXVIII IULY [1617].

BURST furth, my Muse, Too long thou holds thy peace.
 Paint furth the passions of thy new-borne joy :
 Forbear to sing thy lovelie layes a space ;
 Leave wanton Venus and her blinded boy.
 Raise vp thy voice and now, deare Muse, proclaime 5
 A greater subject and a graver theame.

Since our much lov'd Apollo doth appeare
 In pompe and pow'r, busked with golden rayes,
 More brigth heir shyning on our hemispheare,
 Nor that great planet, father of the dayes ; 10
 With boldnes offer at his sacred shryne
 These firstlings of thy weake and poore ingyne.

GREAT IAMES, whose hand a thre-fold scepter swayes,
 By heavens exalted to so high a place,
 Both crown'd with gold and never fading bayes. 15
 Who keps three kingdoms in so still a peace,
 Whose love, cair, wisdom, grace & high deserts
 Have maid thee Monarch of thy subjects' harts.

Thogh thou by armes great empyrs may'st emprise,
 Mak Europ thrall and over Asia reigne, 20
 Yet at thy feet despysed, Bellona lyes :
 No crownes thou craves which bloodie conqueis staine.

Whill others aime at greatnes boght with blood,
Not to bee great thou stryves, bot to bee good.

Whome snakie hatred, soule conceav'd disdaine, 25
Hart-rooted rancor, envy borne in hell
Did long in long antipathie detaine
To eithers ruine, as they both can tell.

Uniting them thou hast enlarged thy throne,
And maid devyded Albion all bee one. 30

O heavenlie vnion! O thryse happie change!
From bloodie broyles, from battells and debait,
From mischeifs, cruelties and sad revenge
To love and peace thou hes transformd our stait,
Which now confirmed, by thee before begunne, 35
Shall last till earth is circuit with the Sunne.

Jov's great vice-gerent, Neptun's richest treasure,
Earth's glorie, Europ's wonder, Britann's pryde,
Thy wit (lyk heaven) in such a divyne measure
This litle world so happilie doth guyd, 40
That Caesar, Trajan, Pompey, Alexander,
If now they liv'd, the place to thee might rander.

What wants in the (O king) heavens could impair?
Or what is in thee not of highest pryce?
A liberall hand, a most magnifick hart, 45
A readie judgment, and a prompt advyse,
A mynd unconquered, fearcest foes to thrall,
Bright eye of knowledge: singular in all.

Thy waitchfull caire, thy zeale, and fervent love,
The Church, the laye, each high or low estaite 50
Long-since by many worthie deeds did prove;
Bot most of all by these effects of laite.

For thou affects amongst thy high desigus
To build the Sanctuarie of the King of Kings.

THE KINGS MAIESTIE CAME TO HAMILTON. 43

Heavens therefore did thy royall grandeur guaird ; 55
Thy Royall person from the cradle keap'd
From thousand plots t'eclips thy Sunne, prepair'd
By these who horror vpon horror heap'd
 Their barbarous hands into thy blood to bathe
 And mak thee (guiltles) object of their wrathe. 60

Thogh Anak's cursed children did repyne,
Yet heavens made Josua over them prevaill :
Thogh hellish harts envyd'd thy glories shyne,
Yet in the practise their attempts did fail.
 But loe, thy mercie still to be admir'd ! 65
 Thou spared them against thee who conspyr'd.

For as in all thou second art to none,
To thee all kings in clemencie give place.
Thryce happie people rul'd by such a one,
Whose lyfe both this and after-tymes shall grace : 70
 Long may thy subjects, ere thy glasse outrunne,
 Enjoy the light of thee, their glorious Sunne.

What Load-stone strange had such attractive force
To draw thee home-ward to these northerne parts ?
Whill Mars the world affrights with trumpets hoarse, 75
Broyls inhumaine devyding humane harts ;
 Whill Belgium braine-sick is, France mother sick,
 And with Iberian fyres the Alpes doe reik.

Most lyk that fishe, whose golden shape of late
Was to thee given, thy love to represent, 80
Which in the Ocean thogh she doe grow great,
And many foraine floods and shelves frequēt ;
 Yet not vnmyndfull of her native Burnes,
 Thogh with great toyle, vnto them back returnes.

Rejoyce then, Scotland ; change thy mourning weed ; 85
 Now deck thyselfe into thy best attyre :
 And lyk a bryd advance thy chearfull head ;
 Enjoy with surfet now thy soules desyre ;
 Uncessantlie with sights importune heaven
 That thou may long enjoy this gift new given. 90

Welcome, O welcome thryse, our glorious guyd ;
 A thousand tymes this soyle doth thee salute ;
 Welcome, O welcome, Britann's greatest pryde,
 By thee which happie doth it selfe repute.
 Thogh all-where welcome ; yet most welcome heir ; 95
 Long haunt thir bounds, ere thou from hence retire.

Heir plesant plains alongst the crystall Clyd,
 Which in a flowrie labyrinth her playes,
 Heir blooming banks, heir silver brooks doe slyd,
 Heir Mearle and Mavis sing melodious layes, 100
 Heir heards of Deer defy the fleetest hounds ;
 Heir wods and vails and echoes that resounds.

Stay then, O stay, and with thy presence grace
 That noble race, which famous by thy blood,
 Long toyle and trouble glaidlie did embrace, 105
 And wounded oft gusht furth a crimson flood,
 In hazards great defending with renowne
 The liberties and glorie of thy Crowne.

But leaving more to entertaine thyn ears
 With airie accents, hoarse and homelie songs, 110
 My solitarie Muse her selfe reteirs,
 Un-usd abroad to haunt such pompous throngs.
 Sua renders place that after emptie words
 Thou may partack such as this soyle affords.

Sr. William Mure, younger : of Rowallan.

SONNETS

I.

[TO MARGAREIT.]

MORE chest then fair Diana, first in place,
 From quhose fair eyes floues loue's alluring springis ;
 Secund to none in bonty, beutie, grace,
 Quhoise heavinly hands holds proud Cupidois stingis ;
 Endles repourt, wpon aspyring wingis, 5
 Thy hie, heroick verteues hath stoired.
 Admir'd, but maik, euin in a thowsand thingis,
 To eternize ye fame hath endeuoired.
 Miraculous, machles Margareit, decoired
 With all preferments natour can afford ! 10
 Favourd from heauins aboue, in earth adoir'd,
 Extold by treuth of thy most loyall word,
 With vertue grac'd far more yen forme of face,
 3it Venus in ye same doth 3eild ye place.

II.

[TO THE SAME.]

MAIRGRAIT then I can any wayes deserue,
 Mair rair then fair, 3it machles in ye same.
 Quho with thy eyes, (least my puir lyfe sould sterue),
 Wouchaiffes to look w^t pittie on my paine.
 Heir I avou thyne ewer to remaine, 5
 To serwe ye still, till breath and lyfe depairt,
 Reviu'd by vertue of thy sacred name.
 Cum death or lyfe, in loue I find no smairt.
 Let Cupid wreck him on my martyred hert ;
 Let fortune froune, and all ye world invy ; 10
 Gif I be thyne, no greiff can death impairt
 Sall mak me seime thy service to deny.
 I liue mair weil contented thyne to die
 Then cround w^t honour, and disdain'd by the.

IV.

[TO THE SAME.]

ALACE! (sueit love,) yat ewer my puir eyes
 Presum'd to gaize on yat most heuinly face.
 Alace! yat fortune ewer seimd to ease
 My endles woes, but now wold me deface.
 Alace! yat ewer I expected grace, 5
 To snair myselve in hope to be reliued.
 Alace! Alace! that loue' wold now disgrace
 My loyall hert, q^{ch} once to serwe him liued.
 Alace! Alace! yat ewer I surviued
 Ye fatal tyme, quhen first appeir'd my joy : 10
 For now, alace! I die : bot zit reviued,
 In hope thy love my luck sall once injoy.
 Still to remaine, resolued then sall I liue,
 Thy humblest servant, ewin till breath me liue.

V.

[TO THE SAME.]

L YK as Actaeon fand the fatall boundis
 Q^r as Diana baithed hir by a well,
 Quhich hie attempt, punisch'd by his awin hounds,
 Turn'd in ane timorouse hert, he fled, bot fell.
 Sua, q^{ll} my Cynthia, quho doth hir excell, 5
 I did behold, cruell Cupid invyed,
 And myne awin eyes to crosse me did compell,
 Still gaizing on ye goddesse they espyed.
 At liberty befor, alace! now tyed,
 I live expecting my Dianais doome; 10
 Ather to be prefer'd, or die denyed,
 Wnworthy of ye honour to presume.
 }it tho^t I die, (for sua I ewer doe,)
 Had I mo lyfes, tham sould I hazart too.

VI.

[TO THE SAME.]

SINCE fame's schril trumpet equal'd w^t the skyes
 The rair perfectiounes and miraculous art,
 Natour and educatioun did impairt
 To mak the wondrous to amazed eyes,
 Thy beutyas did my senses suire suppryse, 5
 Or eir thy sight my ravischt eyes did blesse.
 Bot now I fynd Fame too, too niggard is,
 Or thy deserts above hir reach aryse.
 All loue, all joy, all sueitnes, all delight,
 The heawins into thoise angel's eyes haue plac'd. 10
 Thryse happie he quho may the rosis taist,
 And pull the lilies of those cheeks so quhyt.
 But those fayre brests' rype clusters quho myt presse
 W^t Jove may weel compair in happines.

VII.

[TO THE SAME.]

A DIEU ! my loue, my lyfe, my blesse, my beeing,
 My hope, my hape, my joy, my all, adieu !
 Adieu ! sueit subject of my pleasant dying,
 And most delichtfull object of my view.
 Bright spark of beutie, paragon'd by few ; 5
 Wnspotted pearle, q^{ch} doth thy sex adorne ;
 Loadstar of loue, quhose puir vermilion hew
 Makes pale the rose & stains the blushing morne ;
 That zeale to the q^{ch} I haue ewer borne,
 Sole essence, lyfe and vigour of my spreit, 10
 By tract of tyme sall newer be out worne ;
 My secund self, my charming syren sueit.
 And so, my Phoenix & my turtle true,
 A thousand, thousand tymes adieu ! adieu !

VIII.

[TO THE SAME.]

SOME gallant spreits desyrouse of renowne,
 To climb w^t pain Parnassus do aspyre.
 By Natour some do weir ye Lawrell croun,
 And some the poet proues for hoip of hyre.
 Bot none of those my spirits doth inspyre, 5
 My muse is more admird then all the nyne,
 Quho doth infuse my breast w^t sacred fyre
 To paint hir foorth most heavinly and dewyne.
 Hir worth I raise in Elegiak lyne ;
 In Lyricks sueit hir beauties I extoll ; 10
 The brave Heroik doth hir rair ingyne
 In tyme's i^mortal register enroll :
 Since thou of me hath maid thy poet, then
 Be bold, (sueit Lady), to imploy my pen.

IX.

[THE POWER OF BEAUTY.]

IN bewty, (loúe's sueit object), ravischt sight
 Doth some peculiar perfectioun pryse,
 In which most worth e admiration lyes,
 The sensses charming with most deir delight.
 Some eyes adoir, lyk stars, cleir glistering bright; 5
 Some, wrapt in blak, those comets most entyse;
 Some ar transported w^t pureayn dyes,
 And some most value greene about ye light.
 Awrora's flaṃing hayre some fondly love.
 Quhyt dangling tresses, yallow curls of gold, 10
 Wthers in greatest estimation hold.
 All eyes alyk, each bewty doth me move;
 Eyes lovely broun, broun chastnut color'd hayre
 Enflame my hart, and sensses all ensnair.

[ON A VILE PRIEST.]

FAITH, now, e wryt all falsified ar found
 By one, quho must be faithles, fals, perjur'd ;
 Quhose othe e promeis ar a slidrie ground
 To build wpon, to make a man assuird.
 My modest muse must keip his name obscur'd ; 5
 His epithets do sound the same a-loud.
 A drunken divin, by the devil obdurd,
 A preacher, oh ! a persecuter proud,
 To Bacchus great, quhose knees ar oftest boud.
 Devoirs tabacco, Cupid's plagues to quenche ; 10
 Quhose paralytik lips and tounge vntrou'd
 Hath oft intrappit many a wanton wench ;
 This Priest, or beist, doth weir a fylthy fame,
 A blotted conscience, and a spotted name.

XI.

[THE SAME.]

NAME spotted, fame defyld, saule fraucht w^t sin,
 Too long in such a carioun vyle inchois'd ;
 Presumptuous, puir, aspyring for a pin,
 Adulterous, double, deuilischly disposit,
 A sensual slaue, quho sence of schame hath loosit ; 5
 False, flatt'ring, fickle, and defamed for ay,
 Quhose doating and deceat ar oft discloisd ;
 Earth's excrement, heavin's hatred, Plutoes pray,
 A parlage cur, a brokin staffe for stay ;
 A Turk but treuth, a Pagane for a preist, 10
 Quho, for his faults, sall render count one day,
 Qⁿ wormes wpon his filthy fleche do feast.
 Sua, till the feinds this fyre brand fetch, I

DIDO AND ÆNEAS

DIDO AND ÆNEAS.

THE FIRST BOOK.

I SING Aeneas fortunes, whil on fyr
 Of dying Troy he takes his last farewell ;
 Queen Didoe's love, and cruell Junoe's ire
 With equall fervor which he both doth feell.
 Path'd wayes I trace, as Theseus in his neid, 5
 Conducted by a loyall virgin's threid.

But pardon ! Maro, if myn infant muse
 (To twyse two lustres scarce of 3eirs attained),
 Such task to treat (vnwisely bold), doth choose,
 As thy sweit voyce hath earst divinly strained. 10
 And in grave numbers of bewitching verse
 Ravisht with wonder all the vniverse.

Rap't with delight of thy mellifluous phrase,
 Thy divine discant, and harmonious layes,
 Whose sugg'red accords, (which thy worth do blaze), 15
 The hearers' senses, at thair ears betrays.
 O then I stowp as one in airt too shallow
 Thy never matched monarch muse to follow.

But, ravisht with a vehement desyre,
 Those paths to trace which 3eilds ane endles name, 20
 By the, to climb Parnassus I aspyre,
 And by thy feathers to impen my fame :
 Nothing asham'd thir colour's to display,
 Vnder thy conduct as my first assay.

Sacred Apollo ! Lend thy Cynthia light, 25
 Which by thy gloriows rayes reflexe doth shyne,
 That I, partaking of thy purest spright,
 May grave (anew) on tyme's immortall shryne,
 In homely stile, those sweet deliciows ayrs
 In which thy Muse admirable appears. 30

And 3e Pierian maids ! 3e sacred nyne !
 Which haunt Parnassus and the Pegas spring,
 Infuse 3our furie in my weak ingyne,
 That (mask'd with Maro) sweetly I may sing,
 And warble foorth this Hero's changing state, 35
 Eliza's love, and last, her tragick fate.

Now bloody warre, (the mistres of debait,
 Attendit still with discorde, death, dispair ;
 The child of wrath, nurst by despightfull hait,
 With visage pale, sterne lookes, and snaikey hair), 40
 By Groecian armes, old Troy had beatne downe,
 And rais'd the ten-3eirs siege from Priam's towne.

Whose brasen teeth her walls did shake asunder,
 And staitly turrets levell'd with the ground ;
 Insulting Greeks, with fire and sword, did thunder, 45
 And both alike the sone and syre confound,
 The maid and matron, striving to compence
 Fair Helen's rapt, and Paris' prowde offence.

When Venus' sone, got by Anchises great,
 The noble prince Æneas re-units 50
 His scattered forces, dissipate of laite
 By Graecian furie on Troy's bloody streets,
 And sweetly chearing their dejected hearts,
 By sugg'red words he stryves to ease their smarts.

“Lo! (champions bold,” quoth he), “quha fyr and sword,
 And thowsand dangers have with me eschewed, 56
 Courage and comfort let my words afford
 To 3ow, though now by sad mischaunce subdued.
 Blind Fortune favoures oft th’ignoble parte,
 But he is free keeps ane vnconquered heart. 60

“Banish base sorrow, raise 3owr drowping heids.
 Vertue oppressed brighter still doth blaze.
 Let wonted valour, by 3owr worthy deids,
 Reconquere credit, and the world amaze ;
 That ritch with spoiles and praise, 3owr prowes hie
 May be renoun’d with fame and victorie. 66

“Learne, (noble warriours !) Fortunes storme to beir ;
 And let 3owr valour be by vertue back’t.
 The golden sunne-shyn of her count’nance cleir
 On vs againe may shyne, though Troy be sack’t. 70
 Palmes, whil prest downe, ar loathest to give place,
 And Phaebus lowest showes her broadest face.

“Since heir ovr countrey, by the foe possest,
 And conquer’d kingdomes small content can 3eild ;
 Since honour seldome is acquir’d by rest, 75
 But wonne by awfull armes in open field :
 Let vs a navie then prepair with speid
 With wings displayed the seas to overspreid.

“In perill praise, in hazard honour lyes.
 Hiest attempts ar worthiest of renowne. 80
 And who do most death’s bitter stroake despise,
 Fortune doth such with glory soonest crowne.
 Let vs resolve to suffer all assayes,
 To purchase fame, or perish all with prayse.”

Thus said, their hopes half dead ar now revived ; 85
 Their troubles calm'd : his speaches so prevaill.
 Their hearts of sorrow's heavie load relieved,
 Off suddaine joy strange passiouns do assail ;
 All cry aloud : "Quhair ever thow dost leid,
 We follow the, ovr prince, ovr guide, ovr heid." 90

Their valiant chiftane speidily gives charge,
 With sayles display'd, to turne their backs on Troy.
 Now many a gailley, brigandine, and barge
 Rid ov'r the roaring billowes ; whil with joy
 The Trojane fleet in armes to seas ar gone. 95
 Great Neptune with the burthene greiv'd doth grone.

Their speedy cowrse amidst the maine they ply,
 And ways vnknown search out, twixt foame and flood.
 Now scarce the soyle, with bleeding hearts, they spy,
 Quhair Troy, (Rome's stately rival whilome), stood ; 100
 Whose ruines poore, which low in ashes lye,
 Doth force a teare from every gaizing eye.

The pleasant plaines of Thracia then they coast,
 Which doth their eyes of native land deprive,
 Thence through the Ocean speedily they poast, 105
 Till now in sight of Delos they arrive.
 The Ile no sooner to their eyes appear'd,
 Till thither Palinure their pilote steir'd.

Apollo there, in dark responses, told
 Of things to come the 3it-vnknowne event ; 110
 And did in dowbtsome oracles vnfold
 Hid mysteries the curioss to content :
 Where nōw arriv'd their prince setts foot on land,
 His fortunes of the God to vnderstand.

“Behold!” (quoth he) “before thy sacred shrine, 115
 Divine Apollo, the distrest estate
 Of Troy’s poor remnant, servants all of thine ;
 Brought lowe by Graecian furie, and by fate.
 Show to quhat soyle ovr cowrse sall be address,
 Which after toyle in end, may zeild vs rest.” 120

“Renowned Prince ! of heavenly issue sprung,”
 The God replyed, “Jove doth for the provide !
 Thy trophe’s sall, (by after-ages sung),
 In times immortall register abide.
 Spread fourth thy sayles, to Italy repair ; 125
 Thow and thy race sall swey the scepter thair.”

Ravish’d with joy, with clamoures lowd they loose,
 And smoothly through the silver waves do slide.
 A gentle gale sweet Zephyrus bestowes,
 Which streight their cowrse to Italy doth guide. 130
 The azure face of heaven’s broad looking-glasse
 With cannowse wings they quickly overpasse.

But scarce the floods had zit depriv’d their eyes
 Frome sight of shoare, and viewe of neirest land,
 Quhen angrie Juno, frome the christall skyes, 135
 Vpon ye seas the Trojane navie fand.
 Her deadly hatred and deep-rooted ire
 Inflams her minde, and sets her all on fire.

But say ! my muse, what crime so hynows hath Commoved the Goddes, who in furie fryes? 140
 Showe thow the source of her vindictive wrath :
 Why she this Prince so singulare envyes,
 Him tosses to and fro, deprives of rest?
 Are heavenly mindes with such despight possest?

The Goddess heiring that demolish'd Troy 145
 Out of her ashes should a Phoenix raise,
 A natione fierce, who Carthage should destroy,
 Her stately towres ov'rturne, and city raise ;
 A martiall people far and neir to reigne,
 In warre invincible, so the Fates ordaine ; 150

This towne above all others to extoll
 Her native soyle at Samos Ile she leaves ;
 Throughout the streets her hurling chariots roll ;
 Her armes heir places, and great honors gives :
 And heir she mindes, (if Fates do not withstand), 155
 To found ane empire shall the world command.

His kinde she hates, which should the same supprise,
 And Ganimesdes rapt vpbraides her minde ;
 And how her beauty Paris did despise
 The golden fruit to Venus who assign'd ; 160
 Which most her heart with malice doth incense,
 No mends can expiat this hie offence.

Her forme disprais't ingenders such disdain
 As never female heart could 3it forgive.
 Beauty can not abide to beir a stayne, 165
 And with a rivall doth abhorre to live.
 Quhat can so loathsome be a woman told,
 As say she lookes deformed, fowl, or oid ?

O cruell sexe ! whose hate no time can change,
 Nor furyowse minde with sugg'red words be meased. 170
 As Hyrcane tigers, greedy of revenge,
 Bellona[s] fury far easier is appeased.
 For one man's caws no Trojane finds a shield.
 Who may resist whil heavinly broode doth 3eild ?

But what strange furie thus transportes my pen, 175
 Those creatures sweit of cruelty to taxe?
 Who now-adayes do prove so kinde to men,
 Apt for impression as the zeilding waxe.
 Of this sweit sexe my muse doth pardon crave,
 Which thus misledde with Juno's rage did rave. 180

The Trojane fleet now being vnder saile,
 Whil smyling Nereus with cups is crown'd;
 And mariners, glaid of the prosperows gaile,
 Their chearful whisles meryly do sownd.
 Enraged Juno, full of discontent, 185
 Thus doth apairt by words her passion vent:

"Thus must I zeild? thus my designes forgoe?
 And sall the Trojanes save arive on shoare
 Maugre my will? Have Fat's ordain'd it so?
 Of such a conquest justly [lose the] gloir? 190
 By Pallas earst for Ajax caws alone
 The Graecian fleet was sunk and overthro'ne.

"Devoiring flames downe from the clouds she threw,
 Thunder and fireflaught, to avenge her ire.
 Waves threat the skies, a fearfull tempest blew, 195
 The raging seas against the Greeks conspire.
 Himself, with fire transfixt, against a rock
 She dasht with whirlwind, quhair his corps did smoake.

"But I, first Goddes, first by birth and place,
 Jove's spowse, and sister, heaven's arch-empresse great, 200
 With one poore nation never zit at peace!
 What do availl my dignity, my state?
 Who Juno's godhead, thus contemn'd, sall feare?
 Or who sall offrings on my altar reare?"

With heart inflam'd, from clouds with furie fleeing, 205
 The Goddess at Æolia doth arise ;
 A land where tempests dwell, stormes have their being ;
 In caves inclos'd, where murm'ring winds do strive.
 But Æolus, their king, with mace in hand,
 Their rage restrains, and fury doth withstand. 210

At such impresonement they oft, repining,
 Lowd bellowing all break out, with blust'ring noyse ;
 But he in chaines more stoutly them confining,
 Tempers their ire, and calmes their roaring voyce ;
 For if they were vnbridled and vnbound, 215
 Heavens, earth, and seas they should anone confound.

The thunder great this fearing, then inclosed
 In caverns dark, fast bound with brazen bands :
 With hills supprest them, and a prince imposed
 To let or loose their rains, as he commands ; 220
 To whom these speeches Juno fierce directed,
 With gesture sad, and ey's on ground dejected :

“O Æolus! at whose imperiows word
 The storms arise, and swelling seas give place ;
 My mortall foes, new scaip't the Graecian sword, 225
 The Trojans crosse the seas to my disgrace.
 Let louse the winds, thy rav'nows postes imploy,
 Disperse their navie, and themselves destroy !

“Of all my nymphs, in beauty most excelling,
 Fair Diopeia sall be thy rewarde ; 230
 Who, all her lyf in thy subjection dwelling,
 The as her lord and husband sall regarde ;
 With the who many happy dayes sall have,
 And mak the parent of a bairne-tyme brave.”

"Too many words, (great Goddess!)," he replies, 235
 "Are spent in vaine, thy servand to entraite.
 My self, my scepter, and in me what lyes,
 Boldly command to execute thy haite.
 Jov's love by the I find, by the I reigne,
 By thee the stormes I raise, and tempests straine." 240

Butt more, him turning to the hallow hill,
 With silver scepter open passage made ;
 The winds owt gushing heavens and earth do fill
 With hiddeows noyse, none in the cave abaide :
 They roar, they rush, and with a murmuring sownd, 245
 The elements all threatne to confound.

To seas anone all furiows foorth they flew ;
 'Gainst East and West are Sowth and North opposed.
 Waves climb the clouds, a deadly tempest blew ;
 Gray Proteus' flocks through foamie floods ar tossed, 250
 Which present death to sailing Trojans threatne.
 Men cry, and caibles crack by Boreas beatne.

The day grew dark, night shew her sable face,
 Ane hoste of clouds did overcast the skies ;
 Ane mist obscure did light of day displace, 255
 And load starre rest frome woefull sailers eyes.
 With lightning flashes thund'ring heavens gave light ;
 Each where pale death vpbraids the Trojanes sight.

Æneas now, (sad prince), in minde dismayed,
 With hands heav'd vp first having heavens implor'd : 260
 "Thrise happy ze, my mates !" sore sighing say'd,
 "In Troyes defence who died by Graecian sword.
 O Diomedes, would to God that I,
 Kill'd by thy martiall hand, at Troy did ly !

"Quhair noble Hector by Achilles spear, 265
 And stowt Sarpedon both their breathes did 3eild ;
 Whose live-lesse bodyes Simois' floods did bear
 With bloody armes and many a woundit sheild."
 Thus whil apairt he speiks, a contrare blast
 Doth force his saile against the trembling mast. 270

Now helme-les, oar-les now, the shippe doth sail ;
 Her ribbes do roare, her tacklings all are torne ;
 The tumbling billowes fast her syddes assaill,
 She sinking sippes the seas, by weight downe borne.
 The fleet disperst, some to the heavins are throwne,
 To some the bottomes of the seas are showne. 276

Thus tos't with stormes, the poore remaine of Troy
 Each to some speciall office him betaks :
 Some sailes pull in, others the oares imploy,
 Some the maine bouling hale, some tacklings slacks ; 280
 Some hold the helme, some caibles cut in twaine,
 Some at the pumpe powr seas in seas againe.

But all in vaine they strive 'gainst angrie heavin ;
 In shallow shelves some vnawares ar cast ;
 Some 'gainst a rock are violently drivin ; 285
 And some in Syrtes sinking sands are fast ;
 Some, (being robb't of ruther, mast and oares),
 With gaiping mowth the whirling poole devores.

The remnant past all hope, now neir ov'rthrowne,
 Their leiking seames drink in the floods so fast, 290
 Whil Neptune wond'ring by what charge vnknowne
 The swelling seas their limits have ov'rpast ;
 By what strange pow'r they have ov'rflow'd the plains,
 And who, (by his command), hath loos'd the raines.

At which emov'd, his hoarie head he reares 295
 Above the waters, toss'd by Juno's wraith.
 The Trojane fleet soone to his eyes appeares,
 Some drown'd, some dying, some scarce drawing breath ;
 Whome pittying, in the twinkling of ane eye
 The storme he stills, and calm's the raging sea. 300

Even as a rude concurse of people swairmes,
 A heidles multitude misledde by rage,
 Do fight confus'd ; furie doth furnish armes ;
 No meanes can their ignoble ire asswage.
 But if some man of eminence appeare, 305
 They quit their strife, and to his words give eare.

Even so, no sooner Neptune show[s] his face,
 Till bello'ing Boreas calmes his roaring voyce.
 The striving stream's are suddenly at peace,
 And raging tempests still their blust'ring noyse. 310
 With trumpets hoarse the Trytons sownd retrait.
 Waves war no more against the scattered fleet.

Cymothoe applies her helping hands,
 With many a sea-nymph Neptun's cowrt frequenting ;
 Who free the shipp's frome shoalds and sinking sands, 315
 To Trojan's pittyfull themselves presenting.
 The storme allay'd, they saiff away do slide.
 On smooth-fac'd seas the God by coatch doth ride.

Now weary sailers with desired sight
 Discerne afarre the long-long wissed land ; 320
 And thither plying, on the coasts do light
 Of Africk, where Queen Dido bears command.
 Frome Italy, a contrare cowrse, which driven,
 Of all the sailes none find the porte but seven.

Soone as the rosie-fingered morning fair 325
 Left Tython's bed, and glaid good-morrow gave
 To Phaebus, blushing red, with golden hair,
 Ariseing from the Orientall wave :
 Wher Æneas early go's abroad,
 And leaves the shipp's at anchore in the roade. 330

To see the soile he slumber sweet forsakes,
 Longing to learne what people thair do stay ;
 Achates only he his convoy makes,
 Swa journey taks where fortune guides the way,
 By paths vnknow'n, perplexed much in minde, 335
 They travell long, but people none can finde.

Till Venus last, disguised in shape, appears,
 Most like a Spartan maid in armes and weed ;
 The gesture of Harpalice she bears,
 To whom the light-foote horse gives place in speed. 340
 Owt runnes swift running Heber's rav'nows streames ;
 With bowe on shoulder she ane huntres seames.

The heavenly treasure of her golden hair
 Was toss'd by sweet-breath'd Zephyr heir and thair ;
 Her rayment short, her lovely knees wer bair, 345
 With which no snowe in whitnes might compair.
 Her eyes shin'd favour, courtesie, and grace,
 No mortall ever saw more sweet a face.

“Stay, stowtly zowthes !” (she sayes), “who heir resorte,
 And showe me if by chance ze have espied 350
 Heir any of my sister nymphs at sporte,
 With bowe in hand, and quaver by their syd,
 The footsteps of a foamie boare who trace,
 And hallo'ing lowd, fast follow on the chace.”

"None such we saw," (quoth they), "O nymph divine! 355
 Or sall we rather the a Goddes call?
 Such heavenly beautys on thy face do shine,
 Thy gloriows rayes ovr mortall eyes appal;
 But O! thrice happy Goddes, nymph or maid,
 Quhat e're thow art, we humbly crave thine aid. 360

"Teach vs what soile is this, what countrey strange,
 What fields so fair heir to ovr sight are shoven,
 Vnder what climat of the heaven we range,
 Where neither man nor place to vs are knowne.
 We crave" (sweit lady), "if a stile so lowe 365
 Beseeme thy state, this let thy servants knowe."

"To me such honors," she replies, "forbeare;
 For this the fashion is for virgins heir
 A bowe and quaver by their thighs to beare,
 And rayment short above their knee to weir. 370
 Of fertile Africk heir the soile 3e see,
 And those the walls of famows Carthage be.

"The scepter Dido swayes, heir fled of late
 For horro^r of Pigmalion's cruell crime,
 Against her mate in privy perpetrate, 375
 Which sad discowrse requirs a longer time.
 But things of greatest moment to discover,
 All circumstance I breefly sall runne over.

"Sicheus was her lord and loyall mate,
 With many gifts of minde and body graced, 380
 Who her espous'd into her virgin state,
 A spotless maid, 3oung, beautyfull, and chaste.
 Her bloody brother over Tyrus raigned:
 No fiercer monster on the earth remained.

“He, blind with greid, to gaine Sicheus gold 385
 Him vnawars before the altars slew,
 And forg’t inventiounes to his sister told,
 Cloaking his cruelty with airts anew.

But murther, though it ly a space conceal’d,
 By meanes vnlook’t for, ay at last’s reveal’d. 390

“Himself, vnburied zit, Sicheus shew,
 Before this wofull lady’s sleeping eyes,
 With visage wan, pale looks, and deidly hew,
 Whom, fearfull lyk, she trembling fast espyes,
 With gapeing wound, from whence a crimson flood 395
 Ran gushing downe his breast, begor’d with blood.

“‘Flie ! flie ! my dearest half,’ quoth he, ‘from hence
 Expect no better at thy brother’s hands,
 Flie him who kill’d thy husband but offence,
 And cruelly dissolv’d ovr nuptiall bands ; 400
 Whose cursed weapon Hymen’s solemne knot
 Disjoin’d, which joined was so long by lote.

“She, (wofull soule), appalled with the sight,
 Her fainting hands three times stretcht owt in vaine
 The shadow to embrace ; but sadly sight 405
 When nought but air her folded armes containe.
 Three times againe, thus in her sleep misse-led
 Three times his ghost her kinde embraces fled.

“Awak’t, the charge she speedily obeyes ;
 Prepares for flight, conveying such as hate 410
 This monster, who with fear the scepter swayes,
 And tyrannizing reignes with terrour greate.
 Whom spoiling, hence they fled with wealth vntold ;
 Their shippes they ballast with the traitouris gold.

“Heir they arived, where now the walls arise 415
Of stately Carthage, reaching to the skies.

The soile she bought, along the coast which lies,
Within the reach and compasse of your eyes :

First Byrsa call'd, as much in length and breid
As she could with an oxen hide ov'rspreid. 420

“But whence be ye, (my freinds), who seame so sad,
Whose ruethfull looks your inward sorrows showe ?
Frome what far coast have ye your journey had ?
Or whither further purpose ye to go ?”

To which, with wounded heart and watrie eyes, 425
Sore sighing, thus the sea-toss'd prince replies :

“Ah lady ! if I should at length relate
And of our bitter sorrows showe the source ;
Our adverse fortune and estrang't estate
Requires a longsome dolorows discourse : 430

Day should departe and Phoebus bright descend,
Long ere our wofull tragedy should end.

“Frome Troy we come, Troy was our haples soile,
(If ever Troy into thine ears fand place),
By wind and wave heir toss'd we are with toile, 435
Of heavenly issue and immortall race.

Frome Jove I sprang ; brought lowe, before thine eyes
Æneas stands, whose fame surmounts the skyes.

“To Italy Apollo did exhorte
My course : I follow'd where the Fates did guide ; 440
With twentie sailes, (alas !) I left the porte,
Of which scarce seven saiff frome the stormes abide.

Myself in neid heir straves, to all vnknowne,
Far, far from Europ, and frome Asia throwne.”

But such regrates vnable more to hear : 445
 “ Brave Trojane, be encourag’d,” Venus sayes ;
 “ Raise vp thine heart, such sad complaints forbear,
 Heavens guide thy footsteps and direct thy wayes.
 Hold on to Carthage, where Quein Dido reignes ;
 Thy shipps ar save ; thy mates alive remaines. 450

“ Even as those swanns, by six and six which flye,
 Doung by ane eagle in the skies of late,
 For joy of perill past all mounting hye,
 With wanton wings the yieliding air they beat :
 Even so thy shipps, long toss’d on seas, in end 455
 With mirth and noyse all to the porte intend.”

Thus having said, she turn’d away her face,
 Which made a sunne-shine in the shady place,
 With rosie cheeks and cheirfull smiling face,
 Such as Adonis earst she did embrace, 460
 Her sweet ambrosiall breath and nect’red hair,
 With musk and amber did perfume the air.

He ravish’t both with wonder and delight,
 “ Ah ! mother, stay thy cowrse ;” sore sighing sayes,
 “ Why, masked thus, dost thow delude my sight ? 465
 Pitty thy childe, heir comfortles who stayes.”
 Ne’re word she spak, but as they walk’t in dowbt,
 She with a cloud encompass them about.

The subtle air, (a wondrows thing to showe),
 In solide substance did the self congeale, 470
 With wonder rapt, environing the two,
 Themselves with mists enfolded thus to feel,
 To whome alone the cloud transparent bright,
 With thick’ned damps debarr’d all others sight.

They, subject now vnto no mortall eyes, 475
 Hold foreward, where the Goddes them commands.
 She to her soile, by skies, to Paphos flies,
 Wher consecrate to her a temple stands,
 Whose altars, which in odowrs sweet excell,
 With cassia, myrrhe, and cynamome do smell. 480

They meanwhile to a mountaines toppe intending,
 From which the towne lies subject to their sight;
 The stately work with walls to skies ascending,
 The pompows ports with gold all glist'ring bright,
 The towres, on Porphyr pillars which arise, 485
 And mabre streets feed with delight their eyes.

The workmen earnestly do their hands applie ;
 Some dig the earth and search a solide ground ;
 Some found below, some build amidst the skie ;
 With noyse of hammers hollow heavens resownd. 490
 Some stones do roll ; some vnder burthens grone ;
 Some grave in brasse ; some kyth their craft in stone.

Lyk as when Phoebus, father of the zeir,
 With warme reflexe the frosted flowrs revives,
 When natur's alchymists from rest reteir, 495
 And to the sluggarde life and courage gives.
 Whil some at home, some in the fields abroade,
 Their tender thighs with waxe & hony load ;

Assail'd by stormes, some litle stones do beir,
 And ballast thus do contrepoyze the winde ; 500
 Some waxen pallaces with paine do reir ;
 Some search a field the fragrant flowrs to finde ;
 Some, bussied in the hyve, great murmure mak,
 Whil others of the brood the charge do tak.

All wisely for the winter do provide, 505
 And empty combs with liquours sweet do fill ;
 Parte at the ports, as sentinells abide,
 Vnloade their mat's and drowsie dron's do kill ;
 The work doth prosper, Nectar-plenish't cels
 With thyme and cammomile most sweetly smels. 510

Even so the Tyrians, some a stately stage
 On arches rais'd for comedyes ereck ;
 For judgement some a place prepare more sage,
 Establish lawes, and magistrats elect.
 Each with a sev'rall work employ'd tak paine : 515
 None sluetfull in the citty do remaine.

“Happy ! O happy ze !” Æneas sayes,
 “Whose fortun's flourish, and whose walls arise.”
 No longer he vpon the mountaine staves,
 But, ent'ring at the porche, seene by no eyes, 520
 Bereft with wonder he abroad doth range,
 Apparell'd with this airy rayment strange.

A shaddy groave amidst this citty grew,
 Of amrows myrtles and immortall bayes,
 Which, heavenly sweet, deliciows odours threw, 525
 Whil Zephyr breath'd among the palme-trie spraves,
 Whose topps, entwyn'd, a pleasant arbor made,
 Which yeelded a delightsome cooling shade.

Amidst this groave, to Juno sacred, stood
 A church with all choyse rarities enriched, 530
 Which, of no humane industry denude,
 All eyes with admiratioune bewitched,
 Who viewe what arte hath in this work devis'd,
 With curiows pencill, cunningly compris'd.

Heir she to nature not inferiowr much, 535
 In shapes admir'd her excellence hath showne,
 The live-les pictures seeme to see, move, touch,
 With wondrows colours by the painter drawne :
 The statues stand, wrought with exceeding coste,
 By cunning craftsmen carved and embost. 540

Æneas wond'ring at this temple's glory,
 And, with those sights, his sorrowing eyes delighting,
 Neir by, abr[i]g'd, he viewes Troyes tragick story,
 Drawn with such life as seem'd he saw them fighting :
 Great Ilion by triumphing Greeks suppris'd, 545
 Their bloody rage who prowdly exercys'd.

Before the towne did stand the wooden horse ;
 Whilas the ramme the walls is vndermining.
 The Trojans val'rowsly resist their force,
 In plumed caskes and glitt'ring armour shining. 550
 Now frome the ports the Greeks they seeme to chase,
 And now retreating, to the foe give place.

Heir sent to death by Diomedes' hand,
 The breathles body of prowd Rhesus lyes.
 Heir Troylus, vnable to withstand 555
 Achilles' stroak's, by gloriows conquest dyes.
 Heir Priame doth his strenthles hands uphold,
 Sueing to ransome Hector's corps with gold.

There, 'mongst his foes, himself anone he viewes,
 Acting his parte vpon this bloody stage, 560
 In Graecian blood his blaid who oft embrues,
 Arm'd with trew valowr, not misseledde with rage.
 There Memnon, there the souldiers of Aurore,
 Distill their dearest blood to conquere glore.

But see ! see how Penthesilea leads 565
 Her Amazonian trowpes to Troye's supplie !
 To all her valour admiration breids,
 But death and horreur to the enemy.

All other women with their tongues mak warre,
 She, by her hands, more famows is be farre. 570

But in this age such Amazons ar rare,
 Now strange Hermaphrodites supplie their place,
 Whose cloths, whose cariage, curlings, cutted haire,
 Complexiounes, coloures, ar their cheifest grace :
 Whose greatest study's foundlings to abuse ; 575
 The mystery of painting how to vse.

Viewing at last those vnexpected sights :
 " Ah, deir Achates ! " sighing sore, he said :
 " In owr mishapps what nation not delights ?
 What place doth not owr infamies vpbraid ? 580
 Betwix the fyrie and the frozen zone
 Our sad misfortunes are vnknowne to none."

But as no joy's so great as lasteth ay,
 So no mis-hap's so hard, but once may end.
 Dark night o'rpast, succeedes the pleasant day, 585
 Heavens, after sorrowes, joyes and solace send.
 So now, the lustre of Eliza's eyes
 Cheirs vp his spreits e calmes his miseryes.

Her presence soone gives respett to his teares ;
 Her milde aspect him with assurance armes ; 590
 Her beautyes peace proclaime vnto his feares ;
 Her gratiows countenance his anguish charmes.
 For, loe, as Cynthia 'mongst the stars doth shyne,
 She comes attended with a stately tryne.

Fair Iris in her choisest colour clad, 595
 Arayed in robes of pure blew-golden-green,
 Should in this cowrt have look't but pale and sad
 Amids the pompows throng which garde the Queen,
 Who might have put a period to the strife
 'Twix Juno, Pallas, and lame Vulcan's wife. 600

More lovely creature never mortall ey,
 More ritche in beautyes, ever zit did viewe,
 Whose lips of corall, cheeks of yvorie,
 Where lillyes sweet e budding roses grew,
 The smothest pearle, and ritchest rubies stain'd, 605
 Still kissing and still blushing which remain'd.

Her fore-head full of bashfullnes and state,
 Where Venus' babe did bend his Heben bowe,
 Of majesty and mildenes seam't the seate,
 Whose native white made pale the purest snowe. 610
 Two stars are fixt into this beautyes spheare,
 Smile-frowning, stormie-calm, and cloudie-cleare.

Each glance alone of those celestiaall lights
 Dairt foorth a living death, or deadly wound,
 And by allurements strange insnare the sights, 615
 And do beholders' senses quite confound,
 Whose silent rhetorick far more perswade
 Then all the airts enchanting Circe hade.

Each beawty, to attract the curiows eye,
 Hath something rare, peculiar, and alone, 620
 Which most the face with forme doth beautyfie,
 And leaves impression in a heart of stone.
 Some, sweetly smileing, kinde Cupid's fire,
 And, blushing, some adde fewell to desire.

Some with the cherryes of sweet lips ensnare ; 625
 Some with the dimples of a vermile cheek ;
 By wanton looks some leave a lasting care,
 And others most do move by seeming meek.
 But heir, all beautyes in this object meit :
 O miracle of nature thus compleit ! 630

Even as Diana, by Eurota's banks,
 Or Cynthus' tops, with many a nymph attendit,
 With deep-mouth'd hounds the fleeing deir disranks ;
 Some fall, by flight some have their lyves defendit.
 The Goddes egerly the chace doth follow, 635
 Cheiring her hounds with a harmoniows hallow.

The wanton wod-nymphs fast about her throng,
 Both at her sport and heavenly shape amazed.
 She joyfully them traines the plains along,
 Still more admiring, more on her they gazed. 640
 For loe ! she shyenes amids this crew more bright
 Then clear Aurora, parting frome the night.

So ent'red Dido : such her princely port,
 A sweet, majestick, and heart-moving creature,
 With pompows splendour, far above report, 645
 But airt adorn't, with beautyes choyssest feature,
 Whose gracefull gesture, whose enchanting eyes,
 Æneas' sorrows seam't at once to ease.

Magnifickly thus mounting to her throne,
 Weiring a costly coronet of gold, 650
 The sword of justice to her subjects showne,
 The scepter her imperiall hand doth hold ;
 Where, guarded with a groave of awfull armes,
 She sitts secure frome spightfull traitors' harmes.

There, like that nymph who fled from earth to heaven, 655
 So much by all for equity renown'd,
 Of justice she doth hold the ballance eaven,
 And solidly doth lawes and statutes found,
 Wherby good subjects easily are rain'd,
 The viciows sort by fear and force restrain'd. 660

The Queen scarce plac't into her yvorie throne,
 Whil suddenly a companie arives
 Of souldiers, as it seam't to all vnknowne,
 Which preassing, as perplex't, for presence strives :
 Sergestus, Antheus and Cloanthus strong, 665
 Were leaders of this vnexpected throng.

Three Trojane captanes with their trowpes attendit,
 New scaipt the furie of the boyst'rows king,
 Heir last on shoare, whil otherwise intendit ;
 Heaven's angry Empresse hindred their designe, 670
 Their ships assailing on the wattrie plaine,
 Till Neptune calm'd the swelling seas againe.

Their prince, his people heir at cowrt espying,
 In Thetis' bosome whom entomb't he trowed,
 Amaz'd he stood, with deep attention trying 675
 If visions false his eyes did overcloud,
 If apparitions or chymerœes vaine
 Appear'd, illudeing his distempered braine.

But finding heir his followers in effect,
 Sick with a surffeit of excessive joy, 680
 He long'd himself vnmasked to detect,
 That mutuallie they comfort might enjoy ;
 But, seasouning this passion with feare,
 Their sute to Dido first resolves to heare.

Meanwhile Ilioneus doth humbly kneel, 685
 And thus the Queen with reverence doth greet :
 "Great Princes! we, (poore strangers), do appeale
 To thy protection, prostrate at thy feet,
 Embold'ned by thy virtewes to draw neare,
 And in thy sacred presence to appeare. 690

"We, wofull Trojanes, wand'ring in exile,
 Long toss't abroad vpon the troublows seas,
 Do humbly crave to rest with the a while ;
 Let not ovr sute thy patience displease ;
 But, (gratiows Princes!), pitty ovr distres, 695
 And over vs thy people's pride repres.

"To raise thy cittyes and returne with spoile,
 To no such end we did vs heir addresse ;
 We, being objects of disgrace and toile,
 No such prouwd thoughts ovr conquer'd mindes possesse.
 Whil first we did on foamie seas ascend, 701
 To Italy we did ovr cowrse intend.

"Scarce did the floods ovr sight from shoar divorce,
 Whil mad with furie, and inflam'd with rage,
 Lowd bellowing Boreas prouwdly offers force, 705
 And maid ovr navie of his pride the stage.
 The elements, all intermixt in one,
 Ovr ships were soone disperst and overthrowne.

"A Prince we had, (O had!), word full of grieff!
 By name Æneas, great in armes and fame, 710
 Whom, if the heavens preserve for ovr relieff,
 Feir no ; thy fortune thow shall never blame,
 That we by the ar favor'd for his çaws."
 Thus, with a sigh, the Trojane maide a pause.

Her waxen heart, touch't with a trew remorse, 715
 And sympathie of their distrest estate,
 Did her compassion in such sort enforce,
 As, sweetly smileing, from her regall seat :
 "Cheer vp 30^r mindes, (brave Trojanes)," she replied ;
 "Exile base sorrow, be no more dismayed. 720

"What people are so barren of engine,
 As have not heard of great Æneas' name ?
 Troyes ancient splendour ? of her gloryes shine ?
 With longsome warre how Mars did her inflame ?
 To vs 3our vertewes admiration breeds, 725
 Amazed much by 3owr heroick deeds.

"If hence 3e minde, free pasport I will give,
 And, with a lib'rall hande, 3owr wants supplie.
 Or, if my kingdome can 3owr woes relieve,
 Welcome ! thrise welcome, heir to stay with me ! 730
 If Trojanes can submit them to my throne,
 Trojane and Tyrian sall to me be one.

"And O ! I wish 3owr brave, illustruows prince,
 With whose renowne the earth's seaven climats rings,
 Were heir ; if heavens have not him ravish't hence, 735
 But do reserve for some vnknowne designes,
 Happy, how happy should Queen Dido bee,
 To succour him in his extremitie."

Scarce had she endit till the airie cloud,
 Which him encompass't, vanisht owt of sight, 740
 And he, deliv'red of his sable shroud,
 With sudden wonder, shyn'd into the light,
 More lyke a God then any earthly creature,
 So perfect he appear'd in every feature.

With stately shape, a smileing awfull eye, 745
 A piercing look, a sweet majestick face ;
 The golden treasure of his locks which lye
 Adowne his shoulders with celestiall grace,
 In heavenly hew excell'd that far sought fleece,
 Gain'd with such hazarde by the growth of Greece. 750

Now see how Dido narrowly doth eye him,
 Into her heart great things of him divining ;
 With admiration all the cowrt espye him,
 Vpon his royall brow true vertue shining.
 No dame so chaste but, spite of all defences, 755
 Must yeeld to love, him viewing with right senses.

“Behold,” (quoth he), “great Princes, in thy sight,
 The man for whome thou kindly dost enquire ;
 Thy humblest servant, if a sea-tost wight,
 Infolded in misfortune's sad attire, 760
 Can be thought worthy the, (dear Queen), to serve,
 Who dost so infin'tly of vs deserve.

“Thow onely with owr miseryes art moved ;
 By the alone we comfort do enjoy ;
 Thow only kinde and pittiful hast proved 765
 To vs, the poore distrest remaine of Troy.
 We only by thy gratiows favour breath,
 Near ent'red at the frozen gates of death.

“Thow, feelingly enflam't with zealows fire,
 Our indigence dost vndeserv'dly aid, 770
 The wofull objects of proud Æol's ire,
 Whom heavens each where, by sea, by land, invaide ;
 The scorne of time, the mirrour of mishap,
 Of deepest grieff the most expressive map.

"Can e're thy bountyes be by vs repayed? 775
 All-vertuose princes! Africk's gloriows starre!
 We straying Pelerins will ne'r assay't,
 Thy great deserts exceed owr pow'r so farre.
 Jove, dowbtles, Dido duely sall rewarde,
 If Jove doth rueth or equity regarde. 780

"Whill night's clear torches in true measure daunce
 To heavenly accords of harmoniows spheares,
 Whil Phoebus' steeds abowt the Poles do prounce,
 Earth's pond'rows masse whill giant Atlas beares;
 Thy fame, praise, glory, and thy partes divine, 785
 Shall last, enrol'd on times immortall shrine.

"And, whill the heavens dissolve owr bodyes frame,
 Thy kindnes no oblivion shall blot owt."
 Thus having said, burnt with affection's flame,
 His subjects he embraces all abowt. 790
 Hands join'd in hands, joy hath their hearts transfix'd,
 Both smiles and teares at once ar intermixed.

"Great Cytherea's sone!" the Queen replied,
 Ravish't with wonder of this object strange;
 "What fortune heir thy wand'ring steps doth guide? 795
 How coms't thir costs thow solitare dost range?
 Art thow that Prince, by progeny divine,
 Whom great Anchises gote on beautyes Queen?

"My father Belus, (well I do record),
 Whil wasteing Cyprus with victoriows hand, 800
 To Teucer's aide, who by the dint of sword
 Most violently was expell'd the land;
 Their first thy fame did sound into mine eare;
 Their Troyes distres and ruine I did heare.

"Like bitter fortunes als myself have proved ; 805
 But, greiff digested, sweet content redowbles.
 Afflicted wights to pittie I am moved,
 Not inexpert in woe and saddest troubles.
 Rest heir, Æneas, in thir partes a space,
 For bloody broiles enjoying blessed peace." 810

Butt more, descending frome imperiall seate,
 Her ghuests she guides into a pompows hall,
 Then holy-dayes proclaim'd with triumph great,
 In honour of th' ensewing festivall :
 A Hecatombe is offered, beasts are slaine 815
 To Neptune, ruler of the glassie plaine.

The regall palace, royally prepar'd,
 With hangings ritch is sumptuously decor'd ;
 In midst the tables, on ritch pillars rear'd,
 With silver plate are plentifully stor'd. 820
 On which, laboriowsly engraven in gold,
 The Princes' royall pedegrie's enrol'd.

Æneas now discharg't of heavy care,
 Preparing to refresh his fainting sprights,
 Ascanius' absence only doth empare 825
 His perfect joyes, enless'ning his delights.
 Such was the tender, fatherly respect
 Whereby his child he dearly doth affect.

"Achates, haist," (quoth he), "at length relate 830
 To that sweet Boy, who in the ships doth stay,
 The period of owr paines, owr present state,
 How calme a night hath still'd owr stormie day.
 Be thow a guide vnto his footsteps weake,
 That of owr pleasures heir he may partake.

“ And those few tokens, which alone do laste 835
 Of all the treasures of demolish't Troy,
 Bring with that hopefull childe to vs in haste ;
 The costly jewells Helen did enjoy,
 Her ritch embroid'red robes, the scepter rare,
 And crowne, which fair Ilionea bare. 840

“ With these the Queen I purpose to present,
 Small pledges of these dueties to her due.
 Whill smoothest words to no effect are spent,
 Gifts, (strange perswadeing oratours), subdue,
 And force the firmest mindes, do still prevaill, 845
 Whil complements and kindest speaches fail.”

But whill Achates for Ascanius hyes
 With winged pace : Loe ! frome the cristall skies,
 The Cyprian Goddes suddenly espyes
 Th'event of all ; who doth anone devise 850
 That Cupid shall assume the shape and face
 Of sweet Ascanius, and supplie his place,

And so the Queen with furie strange enspire,
 Into her bosome breathing love's infection,
 And kindle in her breast a boyling fire, 855
 A quenchles flame of violent affection,
 Whose deadly poyson, once infused deep,
 May peice and peice through all her arteirs creep.

And whill he doth present the ritch propyne
 Of Trojan reliques, in Ascanius' shape, 860
 He may, (vnwarre), the Princes vndermyne,
 And craftily her liberty entrape ;
 So, being once enamor'd on her sone,
 May free his danger her suspition.

“Cupid, my sone,” saith she, (for Cupid still’s Attending Venus), “thow my strenth, my stay,
 Whose trophes great both heavens and earth do fill,
 O’r gods, o’r men, who dost thy scepter swey,
 Behold before thy sacred Deity,
 Thy mother Venus comes entreating the. 870

“With what despight, (thow knowes), Jove’s jealows wife
 Thy brother, dear Æneas, hath persewed,
 Whom, nixt to the, I tender as my life,
 My joy, my cheifest care, and neir subdewed
 On Neptune’s azure bosome, to my smarte ; 875
 Thow of my woes hast oft made vp a parte.

“Him Carthage now containes ; Loe ! how the Queen,
 With sugg’red speaches, much his stay importunes,
 And royally her ghuest doth entertaine,
 With kinde compassion on his former fortunes. 880
 But what these gloriows guilded sho’s portend,
 It’s hard to constre : O ! I fear the end.

“In Junoes citty, since by Juno hated,
 How can he draw secure one minute’s breath ?
 Since no where saiff, but by her furie threatend, 885
 Heir, at her pleasure, she may plot his death.
 No place more oportune, no time more fit,
 Such inhumane a murther to commit.

“But hark ! deir infant, Loe ! I have devis’d
 A policie all perill to prevent. 890
 Queen Dido, by thy slights, must be suppris’d ;
 A secret flame must frome thy forge be sent
 To boyle her breast, her minde to fancie move,
 Æneas only object of her love.

"Now fit occasion favors owr designes. 895
 The lovely boy Ascanius goes to cowrt.
 Lay thow aside a space thy shafts, thy wings,
 Put on his person, and his princely porte.
 A child, thow mayst a childe in shape resemble,
 More subtilly with Dido to dissemble. 900

"That whil embraced, cherish't, entertain'd,
 The nectar of thy balmie lips she seiks,
 And whil she clasps the in her armes enchain'd,
 Redowbling kisses on thy rosiall cheeks,
 Thow privily may in her veines enspire 905
 A pleasing poyson, a deceiving fire."

Cupid obeyes the Goddes' charming voice.
 An humane shape him instantly investes.
 Of sweet Ascanius' shadow he maks choise,
 And of his wings himself anone devestes, 910
 Layes downe his bow and arrowes, one by one,
 So with Achates to the cowrt is gone.

But, least Ascanius should the guile disclose,
 To Ida wods the Goddes him doth beare,
 Where pleasant slumber, rest and sweet repose 915
 Lock't vp his eyes ; and Morpheus drawing neire
 Seas'd on his senses, in the cooling shade
 Which lillyes sweet and budding roses made.

So now, whil Dido doth her ghuests entreat,
 With choisest cowers and deliciows faire, 920
 Loading the tables with all sortes of meat,
 Which yilded are on earth or liquid aire,
 An hundreth groomes, with diligence and skill,
 Giving attendance on the strangers still.

And whill Iöpas sweetly doth expresse 925
 With warbling voice, and yvorie instrument,
 The motion, order, cowrse of great and lesse,
 Fires fixt and straying, in the firmament ;
 How Phoebus eyther hemi-spheare enflames,
 And how his thunders Jove, and lightnings frames. 930

How Mars and Venus Vulcane did ensnare ;
 How stars' aspects benigne or froward bee ;
 How Iris bends her bowe amidst the aire ;
 How rolling spheares resound harmoniowsly :
 Lo ! suddenly amidst this joyfull throng, 935
 Ascanius, comming, interrupts the song.

For, as he ent'red, all with greedy eyes
 Gaze on the beautyes of the lovely boy.
 Resplendant rayes his visage beautifyes,
 His chearfull countenance augments their joy. 940
 Smiles grace his gesture, which in them doth move
 Amazement, wonder, joy, delight, and love.

They mervell at Æneas ritch propyne.
 They mervell at the boy the gifts doth bring.
 They muse a mortall's face so bright doth shyne, 945
 Mistaking him to be a God, a king,
 A mighty monarch, whose imperiows hand
 Bears over all the vniverse command.

But none, so much as Dido, him admires :
 In this sweet object such delight she fand, 950
 She, in his breast, (as fixed starrs), ensphears
 Her sparkling lights, which still butt motion stand.
 But, still the more, her starving eyes she feeds,
 Desire encreasing still the greater breeds.

The silver beames about his locks of gold, 955
 The heavenly lustre of his shining face,
 Her more and more still in amazement hold.
 Within her breast she finds no rest nor peace,
 But, surfeitting on such vnusuall sights,
 Although enflam't, she in the flame delights. 960

Thus, whilst she feeds, she pynes herself away,
 (An harmeles flie allured by the low);
 Her self, vnwar, thus doth her self betray,
 And feels the force of this small archer's bowe,
 Whose eyes alone, sweet, cowrtes, voide of ire, 965
 Dairt lightnings foorth, a world of love to fire.

But now the Syren, by enchantments false,
 The senses charmes of his supposed syre,
 Now sucks his lips, now hings about his halse,
 With kinde embraceings kindling his desyre. 970
 He tenderly his child doth intertaine,
 Mistaking whome his folded armes containe.

His cowrse, anone, vnto the Queen he takes,
 Whose marrowe boyles already in her bones.
 She, for the cherries of his lips forsakes 975
 All other daintyes, and in love suppones
 A sweeter issue, nor experience bad,
 In end expressed, in characters sad.

Within the prison of her yvorie armes,
 The infant clasping closely, she confines; 980
 And to her foe's assaultes herself disarmes,
 Vnwar, her liberty who vndermines,
 And ignorant she holdeth on her breast
 So great a God, so dangerows a ghest.

He, peice and peice, the dear remembrance kills 985
 Of late Sicheus, who her love enjoyed,
 And empty veines with living fire he fills,
 Her former flames which quickly have destroyed ;
 Her heart, long disaccustom'd now to love,
 Affections strange and passions new doth prove. 990

Now is the Queen ensnar'd with Cupid's airts,
 By love led captive to a suddaine change.
 She feels the poyson of his deadly dairts
 To work in her by operation strange.
 But none her trembling pulses neids to finde. 995
 Her eyes bewray the sicknes of her minde.

O love ! how many are thy subtle snares,
 To conquer beauty and to climb her forte ;
 Vowes, protestations, prayers, sighs and teares,
 And cowlring strange in many a sundry sorte, 1000
 Betray poore women. Nature beauty made
 Both to be loved and proved, nought die and fade.

Now silent night spred foorth her sable wings,
 And broad display'd her spangled cannopye.
 In fire, air, sea and earth, all living things, 1005
 Which moving, flying, creeping, breathing be,
 Did rest, in pleasant slumber buryed deep,
 Save she whose wakeing thoughts impeacht her sleep.

Heir endeth the First Book.

THE SECOND BOOK.

THE quein, sore sick of love, surcharg't with care,
 In wounded veines a secret flame doth feed.
 Æneas' vertue and his stemme preclare,
 Still, in her ravisht minde, a place doth plead.
 Both voyce and eyes one onely object hold, 5
 A masse of cares her restles thoughts enfold.

If slumber sweet vpon her senses sease,
 Her troubled braines, with visions new acquainted,
 Present her lover still before her eyes,
 The object which by day they most frequented. 10
 Awak't againe frome her vnquiet rest,
 She finds her spreit with passions strange possest.

Her beating pulses and her panting heart
 Showe the distemper of her troubled minde.
 No practise, humane industry, nor airt, 15
 For her infection a remeid can finde ;
 Whose spreading poyson wholly hath ov'rrunne
 Her veines, ere scairce she knew her grieff begun.

With purple blush, soone as the morne displays
 Heaven's cristall gates, (dayes golden beames recall'd), 20
 "Deir sister Anna," sighing sore, she sayes,
 "What dreames, by night, my senses have appal'd !
 What apparitions did vpraid my sight !
 And broken sleeps, with sudden fears, affright !

"What ghest so strange hath heir ariv'd of late? 25
 How brave of gesture! and in armes as great!
 Whose eyes, of humble majesty the seat,
 With grave-sweit looks, imperiowsly entreat.
 What broyles, what battles, what encontres bold,
 Hath he ov'rpast with courage vncontrol'd! 30

"If most advis'dly I did not resolve,
 Myself to none in nuptiall bands to joine,
 Since death my first affection did dissolve,
 And sacred Hymen's solemne knot disjoine;
 To his assault, (if vnto any one), 35
 I might be moved, (perhaps), to 3eeld alone.

"To the, (dear Anne), to the I must reveale,
 Since death frome me Sicheus did divorce,
 Who prow'd Pigmalion's cruelty did feele,
 This man alone my fredome did enforce. 40
 He only hath enflam't my dead desires;
 I feel the footsteps of my former fires.

"I feel within the fornace of my breast
 A secret flame, a close confined fire;
 What hope is left to smother and supress't? 45
 Which bred my sight, is fostered by desire;
 O how I frye and freize, I faint and feare.
 How great a loade, (alace), is love to beare!

"What passion strange, (poore Dido!) thus transports the?
 Love bids the 3eeld the in a stranger's will. 50
 But honor tells how highly it imports the,
 With headles haste thy pleasures to fulfill.
 Since flying beauty most enflames desire,
 And sweet deniall kindles Cupid's fire.

“ Love bids the runne where sweet delight doth leade, 55
 And prove those pleasures which to 3owth belong ;
 But honor doth advise the to tak heade,
 Thy spotles fame and princely partes to wrong.
 Since vertue’s field is easily laid waste,
 And meates vnwholsomest most please the taste. 60

“ Nay, rather earth devore me first alive,
 And, Erebus’ dark shad’s enclos’d among,
 Let thund’ring Jove me of my life deprive,
 O sacred modesty, ere I the wrong !
 Or ever prease the statutes to eschew, 65
 Of shamefastnes which to my sexe is due.

“ He, he, (alace), to whome I first was fast,
 My soules affection hes frome hence transported ;
 O let it with his ghost for ever last,
 Entomb’t with him, where first my love resorted.” 70
 This said, her eyes a cristall flood foorth powre,
 And on her cheiks distill a pearlie showre.

“ Sweet sister,” Anna then at lenth replied,
 “ Dear as my life, more then my self affected,
 Still shall thy 3owth to mourne alone be tied ? 75
 Are childrene deare, by the, no more respected ?
 Hatst thow so much those joyes which Venus brings ?
 And think’st thow soules departed care such things ?

“ Although, when sade melancholie of late
 Seas’d on thy minde, all sutes thow didst reject ; 80
 No Lybian husband, not Hiarbas great,
 Nor Africk captaine couldst thow then affect ;
 But canst thow now resist, and not approve
 The sweet effects of such contenting love ?

"Thow weyes not well what bounds thow dost possesse ; 85
 Heir the Getulianes and Numidians stowt,
 Heir Syrtes sands, famowse in barrenesse,
 Heir the Barceans compas the about ;
 What shall I speak of Tyrus' new debates,
 Which now arise, and of thy brother's threats? 90

"By heaven's assent, (I hope), and Junoes aide,
 The Trojane ships have heir the cowrse intended ;
 What citty, (sister), sall of this be made,
 If such alliance prosperowsly wer ended?
 What reignes arise, if Troy with vs wer one? 95
 With what triumph should Africk shine anone?

"Plead first, frome heaven, protectione divine,
 Pretending cawses to thy ghest of stay,
 Till stormes be still, the seas to smile incline,
 Ships saiff may saile, and heavens their furie lay." 100
 Her kindled breast thus Anna did enflame,
 Swa hope she caught, exiling dowbt and shame.

How easily do women women move,
 To whome they truste the secret of their heart !
 By her perswasion, O how quick doth love 105
 Disperse the self, and spreed in every parte
 A furiows flame, a fumeing fever fell !
 No antidote this poyson can expell.

To church they haste, and first heaven's peace entreate,
 On altars off'ring to the gods above, 110
 To Ceres, Phaebus, and to Bacchus great,
 To Juno chiefly, who hath care of love.
 With cuppe in hand, the Queen herself doth syne
 Powre foorth vpon the sacrifice the wyne.

Or at the altars off'ring gifts she spaces, 115
 Observing what new Fortunes do ensue ;
 Marking the bowells, and the breathing places
 Of every beast, with most attentive viewe,
 Which open to her sight ; with narrow eyes,
 She gaz'd and guess'd ; what all doth boad she sies. 120

Ah fond conceits ! What do her vowes avail ?
 Or what do temples sought her rage empare ?
 Whill as her marrow doth already fail,
 With soaking flames consumed, dry'd vp with care,
 And whill enclos'd into her breast profound, 125
 She nourisheth a deadly feast'ring wound.

Like as the dear, which wounded vnawar,
 With hunter's shaft fast fix't into her side,
 Runnes headlongs heir and their, both near and far,
 But still the dart doth in her breast abide, 130
 So Dido, poyson'd with a deadly head,
 Butt rest doth rage, sore martyr'd but remeid.

Through stately Carthage now her ghuest she guides,
 With gloriows shows to entertaine his sight ;
 Now sumptuows banquets painfully provides, 135
 With variows objects surffeiting delight.
 Then Trojane toyles with burning minde to heere,
 Oft she entreats, and gives most watchfull eare.

But whill she speaks, her speach confus'd doth fail,
 Whill frome her minde her wav'ring tongue debordes ; 140
 With looks anone she doth anew assaill,
 Dumb oratours perswading more then words ;
 Whose silent language doth most lively teach,
 How meane a messenger in love is speach.

For loe ! her eyes, the index of her minde, 145
 With piercing lookes imperiowsly entreate,
 And tell her lover that, too long vnkinde,
 He overlookes her passionat estate.

O heavenly Rhet'rike ! which butt words reveals
 What modesty in women still conceales. 150

But ah ! whil he is gone, and night's pale face
 Day doth displace, provoking pleasant rest,
 Oft she alone laments, oft doth embrace
 The happy place which he of late imprest.
 Oft to her trowbled senses it appeares, 155
 That him still present she both sees and heares.

Then young Ascanius she doth entertaine,
 His parents portrate perfectly presenting,
 Whome in her armes she softly doth enchaine,
 By sweits suppos'd, her sowres of life relenting. 160
 Thus stealing by the slowly sliding howres,
 So to subdue loves still assailing powers.

Her careles minde, slouth, meanwhile, doth surprise ;
 Buildings begun ar left : growth armes despise ;
 No bullwarkes brave, no rampiers rare arise, 165
 But all engine of warre imperfect lies.
 No martiall thought her minde doth more retaine,
 For love and slouth inseparable remaine.

When Juno, from her azure pale, espied
 With such a frensie Didoes minde infected ; 170
 And when her furiows fever, such she tried,
 As no reporte nor rumour she respected,
 To Venus first her cowrse she doth direct,
 And to the Goddes thus begowth to break :

“How great thy conquest, glory and renowne !
 Thy boy and thow victoriows parte the spoile.
 Have two, of heavenly issue both, throwne downe
 One simple woman? O! a famows foile.

175

Art a beleving lady, vnadvised,
 By Cupid conquer'd, and thy slight surpris'd? 180

“Oh poore weak conquest! But to what effect
 Thus keep we armes? Why peace and amity
 Prefer we not, though earst we did suspect
 Owr prowld skie-reaching wals of Carthage hie?
 Those feares remov'd, now at thine owne desire,
 Thow hast what heart can wish or tongue require. 185

“Love-sick Eliza now thy boy doth burne.
 The furiows forge Æneas feeds alone.
 O! let vs then conjoine, withowt returne,
 With equall love vniting both in one. 190
 Now Dido may be tyed to Trojane mate,
 And thow receive, in tougher, Carthage great.”

But Venus soone the stinging snake espied,
 Hid in the grasse, quick in her gilded wordes,
 And counterfeet the Siren's song she tried; 195
 To whome the Goddes answeere thus affordes, (Perceiving that of policy she spak
 From Italy Æneas to keip back.)

“Who war so mad, with the in armes contend,
 Refuse thy freindship, or thy sutes denie? 200
 If fates owr projects happily would end!
 But O, I feare, when Jove owr minds doth trie,
 If he will graunt this purpose to approve,
 And if assent those partyes joine in love.

"Thow art his spowse, thow boldly may assay 205
 To learne [his] will ; lead thow the way I followe."
 "That parte," (quoth shee), "pertaines to me to play,
 That fuird, though fear'd, I hope to find but shallowe.
 But how the present purpose finish may,
 Give eare, and shortly I sall showe the way. 210

"Soone as Aurora frome her bed of roses,
 Arising chearfully, beginnes to blush ;
 And, in the East, heavens cristall gate vncloses,
 From whence big-looking Phaeton doth rush
 With flaming haire ; then are those lovers two 215
 A hunting in the woddes resolv'd to goe.

"There, whil the horsemen, prancing to and fro,
 Enclose abowt with hounds the trembling deir,
 I, frome above, a tempest downe shall thro',
 A fearfull storme, till all their troupes reiteir. 220
 With thund'ring noyse both heaven and earth sall shake,
 Perforce the hunters shall the fields forsake.

"Their mates, butt more, shall all at once be gone ;
 None shall abide, but all in darknes stray ;
 With sable wings night shall envolve anone 225
 The world each where : all shall in darknes stray.
 One cave shall then, (butt witnes more), containe
 The Trojane prince and Carthaginiane queene.

"Where, if thow firmly to my minde accord,
 I shall be present, and with mutuall voves 230
 Mak her his wife, and him her mate and lord,
 In all respects to vse her as his spouse ;
 Both tying with vnseparable bands,
 In Hymen's presence joining hearts and hands."

The Goddess showing by a gracefull smile, 235
 That she applauded vnto Junoes minde,
 Begowth to laugh when shee perceiv'd the guile,
 And gave a signe in token she enclin'd,
 And to the purpose did assent, and so,
 Whil they devise, the night away doth go. 240

Aurora blushing then at once appears.
 The gallant 3owthes for pastime all prepare,
 With nets of ev'ry sorte, with hunting speares ;
 The horsemen haste with hounds, of sent most rare.
 Before the palace all the cowrt attends 245
 The Queen's aryvall, whil the morning spends.

With gold attir'd, and robes of costly worth,
 Threat'ning the bitt, her palfrey stamping stayed.
 With mighty traine herself then marches foorth,
 With broid'red mantle, hunter-like arrayed. 250
 Of gold her quaver, gold her loks dividis,
 And purple garment, tied with gold, abides.

Lo ! now, the prince Ascanius proceeds,
 Accompany'd with all the Trojane peers.
 Æneas last majestickly succeeds, 255
 Whose brave proportion all, butt match, admires.
 With stately cariage, marching forward fast,
 Till with the Queen his troupes he joines at last.

Most like Apollo, shuneing winters stormes,
 When Zanthus' floods, and Lycia's cold he flies, 260
 And to his native soile himself conformes,
 To Delos, there to feast and sacrificize.
 For gladenes all th' inhabitants do shout,
 Dancing with joy the altars round about.

On Cynthus' toppes the God doth proudly space, 265
 With hov'ring locks, which drest in circling rownds,
 With Lawrell garlandes, and with golden lace,
 Are touss'd; his shafts betwix his shoulders sounds.
 So march't the stately Trojane; such his grace,
 Such was the beauty of his heavinly face. 270

How soone the' aryv'd upon the montaines hie,
 And found the haunts where as the beasts had stayed;
 Behold! the deir downe frome the rocks do flie,
 Coursing abroad, athort the fields affrayed.
 Both heards of Hart and Hinde the hills forgoe, 275
 And in one globe with feet the dust vpthroe.

But in the vaile Ascanius doth abide,
 Making his steid his 3owthfull rider feele;
 And now doth one, now others over-ride,
 With dastard beasts disdaining more to deele, 280
 But earnestly wisheth for some foamie boare,
 Or that ane ramping lyon once would roare.

Heaven's ordinance with this the earth do threat,
 With noyse and terrour; fire and lightnings flie;
 Of raine and rageing wind a tempest great, 285
 With horride darknes, dimme the worlds bright eye;
 Fire, water, air, and earth seame all anone,
 With hiddeows tumult, intermixt in one.

Not trees alone but solide rocks do shake,
 Assail'd by rageing torrents tumbling downe 290
 Frome toppes of steipest montaines: all forsake
 The fields, affrayed in every rill to drowne.
 Their troupes, divided, search themselves to shroud
 Frome furiows heavins, with thunders roaring lowd.

One cave, whil all the tempest dark do shield, 295
 The Trojane Duke and Dido both contained.
 Prodigiows presages sad earth did 3eeld,
 With them when Juno in the cave convey'd.
 The guilty air gave light ; the fire did glance ;
 And montaine Faryes did bewaile the chance. 300

Looke ! how a Comet, whose bright flamming haire
 Brings tidings sad of dearth, or death of kings,
 Draws all men's eyes to gaze amidst the aire,
 Conjecturing thereby of future things ;
 So, whil at first, the Princes beauty shin'd, 305
 Æneas wond'ring ravish't was in minde.

Her pure vnborrowed blush, her native white,
 The piercing rayes of her victoriows eyes,
 Bred in his soule such singulare delight,
 And did his senses suddainely surprise, 310
 In such a sort, that of all sense denude,
 He long a lifles, senseles statue stooede.

But soone her looks, of pow'r t'awaken death,
 And ravish with amazement hardest hearts,
 Reviv'd him frome his traunse, recal'd his breath, 315
 And to his sleeping senses life empertes ;
 Who instantly confines, within his armes,
 His sweetest Siren, who his fancie charmes.

Sie now how honour, love, and modesty,
 With diverse colours dye her blushing cheeks ! 320
 When, (lay'd aside respect of majesty),
 The fort to render, proud Æneas seeks.
 And whil, (desire rul'd by the blinded boy,)
 Loves sweet-stolne sport he labours to enjoy.

With faint repulses and denials sweet, 325
 Lo ! how she shrinking, strives his sutes to shune ;
 But he now offers force, now doth entreate,
 And still persewes, till last the prise is wonne.
 The jemme enjoy'd, which women hold so deare,
 And honour prostrate, blushing did reteare. 330

Can words, can vowes, can feeble hands resist,
 With hote desire whil 3owthfull blood doth boyle ?
 Though she repine, do his assaults desist ?
 Small glory is a 3eelded foe to foyle.
 Women must still deny and vse defences, 335
 Till charming Cupid lull a sleep the senses.

This wrought to sin, anone she waxeth bold,
 And mutually her mate doth entertaine ;
 Loe ! how her strict embraces him enfold,
 Whil as they issue frome the cave againe, 340
 Nothing asham'd to come in open sight,
 Thus vse in sinning soone maks sin seame light.

This disemall day did Didoes death begin ;
 This day of all her sorrowes was the source :
 Now neither fame she cares, nor shame, nor sin, 345
 Nor more devises any secrete cowrse
 To cloake her love ; but mariage this she thinks,
 And at this foule offence, (effronted), winks.

Swift-flying fame those tydings quickly spreads,
 And suddaine rumours soone through Africk sends. 350
 Fame, which by flight and moving lives & breads,
 Lurks first belowe, then straight to hevin ascends.
 With nimble wings from earth she doth arise,
 And hides her head amidst the starry skies.

Her mother earth, (whil as her brood rebelld 355
 Against the gods, with blind ambition driven,
 Themselves ov'rthrowne, their proud designs repell'd,
 Darring to scale the batlements of heaven),
 Her brooded foorth, (they say), in great despight,
 A sister light of foot, and swift of flight. 360

A fearfull monster, horrible butt match ;
 How many wav'ring plumes her carcasse beares,
 Als many eyes them vnderneath do watch ;
 (A wondrous thing to showe), als many eares
 Still heark both near and far, throughowt all bounds ; 365
 Als many mowthes ; als many tongues resounds.

Twixt heaven and earth, by night she nimbly flyes.
 Her brazen trumpe to sownd she sleep forsakes.
 Great cittyes oft by day she terrifyes.
 On turrets hie she sitts, when rest she takes. 370
 And whil she showes what she hath seene by viewe,
 Things ofter fain'd she doth reporte then true.

Then diverse rumours she disperst anone,
 Blazing abroad both things vndone and done.
 How to Æneas, of the Trojanes one, 375
 The matchles Dido dain'd her self to joine,
 Who given to please the flesh, (a life vnjust),
 Care-les of kingdomes, live in lawles lust.

With those reportes whil she the world did fill,
 To loath'd Hiarbas now she taks her flight, 380
 And showes this lover even the worst of ill,—
 How, he disdain'd, a stranger joyes his right.
 This king was Joves owne sone, and child most deare,
 Whome Garamanth the noble nymph did beare.

An hundreth temples in his large empire, 385
 An hundreth altars are to Jove vpraised,
 Where he hath consecrate a quencheles fire,
 Where, night and day, th' eternall gods are praised.
 The blood of bullocks cover all the grounde ;
 Sweit smelling floures through all the flures are founde. 390

He, mad almost in minde, depriv'd of rest,
 Sore griev'd and with those bitter newes displeas'd,
 Himself in presence of the gods address,
 And their before the altars sacrific'd.
 With humble heart, and hie erected hands, 395
 Thus powring forth his plaints to Jove he stands :

“Æternall Jove ! whom Lybianes all adore,
 As heaven's most gloriows guide and judge supreme,
 On carpetts ritch, to thy immortall glore
 Solemnely feasting, celebrate thy name. 400
 Beholdst thow this, O father most benigne !
 Of heaven and earth the sempiternall king.

“Though, frome above, thow fire-flaughts downe dost throwe,
 (Dread soveraigne !) ÿit we nothing are affrayed ;
 Though by thy lightnings we thy wraith do knowe, 405
 ÿit not-the-les owr wickednes is stayed ;
 As lacking force, thy fires no fear affords,
 And judgements past no mortall more records.

“A woman, wand'ring in owr coastes of late,
 To whome, both towne and bounds where she remain'd 410
 I gave, with lawes to governe her estate,
 My mariage most vngrately hath disdain'd,
 And plac'd a stranger over her empires,
 As only Sov'raigne of her soules desires.

“And now he, Paris-like, with mates disguised, 415
 Half-men, half-maids, resembling both or neither,
 His curled head with Phrygian mytre guised,
 With balmed haire, his spoyle enjoys the rather.
 But we, befoire thine altares gifts do heape,
 And nothing els but fruteles fame do reape.” 420

Him playning thus, with melancholiows minde,
 The Thund’rer heard, and turning straight his eyes
 To Carthage cowrt, (whose stately turrets shin’d ‘Gainst Phœbus’ rayes), where he those lovers sees,
 Drunk with delight of sin, not careing shame, 425
 Whole given to lust and misregarding fame :

“Go, Mercury, my sone, mak haste,” he sayes,
 “And with Æolian wings addresse thy flight
 To Carthage, where the Trojane chiftane staves,
 And kingdomes given by Fate regardes so light. 430
 Go swiftly sliding through the subtile aire,
 My vncontrolled will to him declare.

“None such fair Venus promiseist he shuld prove,
 Nor wise for this from Graecian armes reskued ;
 But one to daunt sterne Mars, not doate in love, 435
 Ov’r Italy to reigne, by him subdued.
 To kythe his courage frome his noble race,
 And mak the world each where his lawes embrace.

“If no desire of glore can raise his spright,
 Nor loves for praise to putt himself to paine, 440
 Should he Ascanius frustrate of his right?
 Amidst his foes what meanes he to remaine?
 Nor looks what justly to his ayres doth fall?
 To sea he must ! this is the summe of all !”

This said : the God hence, (swift as thought), he flew, 445
 With nimble feathers to the winds displayed ;
 Divides the cristall spears and circles blew,
 And cutts the clouds, with golden wings arrayed.
 * The mover first, the light and shyning fire
 He leaves, descending frome great Jove's empire. 450

The Ramme, the bull, the Twinnes he passeth nixt,
 With all the signes the Zodiak adorne.
 Owtrunnes the cowrse of straying starres and fixt,
 Of planets, which the rest in beauty scorne,
 And glist'ring bright, each in a golden robe, 455
 With gloriows lustre, grace heaven's azure globe.

Now by the Artick Pole he swiftly slides,
 Owtflyes the eagle and the silver swan,
 The flamming dragon, which the Beirs divides,
 The Dolphin ravish't with delight of man, 460
 The croune and speare, with many many a million
 Of lamps, which light this spatiows pavillion.

This climate cold, where haill, where frost and snowe,
 Where raine and thunders, heat and cold do strive,
 He leaves als swift as shaft from archers bowe, 465
 And in a sweitter soyle doth soone arive,
 Where as the Hydra, and the hirpling Hare,
 As mates, in the Antartick Pole repare.

A rod he bears, by which he calls againe,
 And sends downe soules to Plutoes dark empires ; 470
 Both giveth sleep, and sleeping doth restraine,
 Lenthes and abridges life, as he desires.
 Still thus he flyes, till he discernes the tops
 Of Atlas hudge, the Pole which vnderprops,—

Of aged Atlas, whose pyn-bearing browes, 475
 With sable clouds encompass all about,
 Nor haile, nor sleet, nor wind, nor weit eschewes ;
 Adoune his shoulders raging spates do spowt ;
 Whose wrinkled chin great floods do overflowe,
 And hiddeows beard maide stiff with frost and snowe. 480

Heir first his flight heaven's nimble herauld staves ;
 Hence posts with speed, his cowrse through th' ocean plying,
 And as the swiftest bird, a thowsand wayes,
 Now soaring hie, now low her feathers trying,
 Alongst the coast of Africk still he flies, 485
 Till stately Carthage now at lenth he sees.

Heir whil he first with winged feet did light,
 And touch't the turrets of those buildings rare,
 Anone Æneas he perceaves in sight,
 Raising ritche monuments amidst the aire, 490
 To building bent, begirt with sword most bright
 With jasper stones, which, starrified, gave light.

With Tyrian purpoure robe arayed he shin'd,
 Hung from his shoulders, gloriows to behold,
 Which gifts the noble Dido had propin'd, 495
 Wov'ne by her self, and warpt with twist of gold.
 No sooner him thus busied he beholds,
 But instantly his message sad vnfolds.

“Thow most effeminatly who dost found,
 And, (far from hence), heir sumptuous buildings reares, 500
 Skie-reaching castells raising from the ground,
 Vnmindfull of thy kingdome and effaires ;
 To the I come, to the, frome heavens above,
 The winged herauld of great thund'ring Jove.

"Hee hath given charge I should imparte his minde. 505
 What meantst thou heir in Africk to remaine?
 To conquere glory if thou be not inclin'd,
 Nor loves for praise to put thy self to paine,
 Ascanius rising 3it behold, and wey
 The hope of ayers from him by just degrie, 510

"To which the crowne of Italy is due,
 To which the Romane empire appertaines.
 To sea thou must!" Thus said, he bids adieue,
 And visible no more at all remaines
 To mortall sight: as Phoebus beames do banish 515
 A sable cloud, so did the god evanish.

But now, sad Prince, what stand'st thou thus amazed?
 What passions the perplexed? why lookst thou pale?
 What suddaine sorrowes on thy soule have seized?
 What froward fate hath turn'd thy blesse to baill? 520
 What woes so vive, charact'ed in thy face,
 Thus overcloud the rayes of princely grace?

As one whome fearfull visions do affright,
 In nature's dear embraces laid a sleep,
 Whil Hydras and Chymeras mock the sight, 525
 And wound the soule with apprehensions deep,
 Whil as this masse, wherein nought moves but breath,
 Oft starts, whil gastly Gorgones threatne death;

So still he stands, nor voyce nor gesture steirs,
 With armes acrossed; his colour comes and goes; 530
 Words find no vent; confus'd with suddaine feares,
 His haire for horreur and affright vprose.
 Sad, pale, astonisht, and of sense bereft
 He seem'd; this sight such deep impression left.

But, self-return'd, he layes aside respect 535
 Of things humane to Jove's eternall will.
 He must not follow what he doth affect.

What heavens command poore mortalls must fulfill.
 Now must he leave his princesse and her state.
 Who may resist inevitable Fate? 540

But ah! (sad soule), what shall he first attempt?
 How dar he this his enterprise reveale
 To furiows Dido? how her minde relent?
 What way with her dar he begin to deale?
 Resolving now, now changing, nought contents, 545
 In diverse partes his dowbtsome minde he rents.

At last his captaines he concludes to call,
 (As only best advise to be embrac'd),
 Sergestus, Mnestheus, and Cloanthus tall;
 Straight gives command their fleet to rig in haist, 550
 And by their counsell, providence, and care,
 For flight by sea doth privily prepare.

Their souldiers they do secretly conveene,
 In readines remaining on the shoare,
 In shining armes who suddainly ar seene 555
 For feare of any following vproare,
 And cawses fain'd, to keip their plots vnkend,
 Of such novationes publickly pretend.

He meanwhile minds, whil Dido least doth knowe,
 And doubts no breach of such sure founded love, 560
 To try her pleasant hours most fitt to showe,
 And search if he her owne consent could move.
 Their prince's pleasure they, butt more delay,
 Haste all anone with glaidnes to obey.

But watchfull Dido did the guile perceive, 565
 And fand the cowrse intended for their flight,
 (What slight so great a lover can deceive?
 What fetch of fyne device could syle her sight?)
 Then foorthwith fame disperst for newes abroade,
 In readines their ships at anchore roade. 570

She, mov'd in minde, with looks and gesture sad,
 With hiddeows clamoure railes the streets through owt,
 Most like the furiows Thyas running mad,
 The fearfull leader of that rageing rowt ;
 Whil as the Moenads, who abhorre the light, 575
 Do sacrificze to Bacchus in the night.

With boundles rage, thus overrul'd a space,
 Anger and furie in her face did flame ;
 Mad passions did her patience displace,
 Despight and rancour reason overcame ; 580
 Wraith kept in words, sighs only passage finde,
 Whose vapours vented, ease her burden'd minde.

At last, more calme, she thus begowth to speak, (Extremity to words a way affords :)
 " Dost thou intend, deir lord," (quoth she), " to break 585
 Thy solemne vowes, and violate thy words?
 Thy sad departure frome thy love to hyd,
 And frome thir shoares thus secretly to slyde?

" Whither, O cruell ! whither dost thou flie?
 What discontent thus change in the doth move? 590
 What wrong, (alas !), or what offence in me,
 Thus maks the loath and vilipend my love?
 With too much kindnes art thou overcloyed?
 Or ar my favowrs hated, 'cawse enjoyed?

“ Ah ! ’twas not so, when thou did pensive sit,
Sigh, faine to die, look pale, protest, and sweare,
Vowing thy service at my feet, whil zit
For all thy oathes thy policies appear.

By sad experience, O ! I find it true,
That seldome lust delights in what is due. 600

“ But zit the world in me some fault may deeme,
(For poore, weak women euer bear the blame),
Why thou my bed, as stayn’d, dost disesteeme,
Regardles of my favour, thy defame.

But I to the appeal, if ere my zowth
Gave prooffe of ought butt vndistained trewth. 605

“ Did my cold breast so long vnwarm’t remaine
From men’s deceits, and charming flatterings free,
Nor once one thought of love did intertaine,
Cruell to all, but kinde alone to the ?

Keipt I so long my marble minde vnshaken,
To be by the disdain’d, and thus forsaken? 610

“ Stay zit, O ! stay, my Deir, possesse in peace
The jewell, which of laite so dear thou prised ;
And be not author of her sad disgrace,
Who cannot breath and be by the despised.

Returne, Deir Lord, leave not thy halfe behind,
What I entreate with tears thy oathes do bind. 615

“ Oh ! hast thou ells forgot, (when in the cave
Thy guilded words and vowes first won the field ;
When, to thy sutes, consent my silence gave,
And poore beleiving I, myself did zeild.)

How thou did swear, resolve, protest and vow,
Still to be hers, whom thou disdainest now? 620

“How can I think those sighs, so feeling, fained? 625
 Those passionat regrates, but arm’d with airt?
 Those looks, so sad, but for the fashion framed
 To melt with pittie my relenting heart?

Whil thow beneath thy passions seam’d to faint,
 And thowsand colours thy pale cheiks did paint. 630

“Those sighs, regrates, lookes, passions, colours strange,
 Though faynd, in me produc’t no false effects.
 By those betray’d, I from myself did range,
 Too prodigall of what thow now neglects ;

And headlesly to thy desires consenting ; 635
 Whilk breeds in the dislike, in me lamenting.

“If thow object thy love was then entire,
 What owtward virtues now in me do want?
 Do not thir beautyes even the same appeare,
 That did attract thine heart of adamant? 640

No stolne vermilion blush, to charme delight
 With false allurements, did bewitch thy sight.

“That bastard beauty, and adultrate dye,
 That new-found falshood, conterfoot of nature,
 Shame of owr sexe, the stayne of modesty, 645
 Fewell to lust, to chastity a traitoure,

That mystery to me was still vnknowne,
 This red and white was then, as now, mine owne.

“Though loathed beauty lack perswading force,
 Now overclouded with afflictions vaile ; 650

Though sutes, nor sighes find pittie nor remorse ;
 Though passions, plaints, and prayers nought prevaile ;
 And though thir eyes’ bright sunne, obscur’d with smarte,

Lack piercing rayes to penetrate thy heart ;

“ 3it cannot my affection nor thy faith,
 My constant love, thy promise and right hand,
 Nor thine owne Didoes miserable death ;—
 Can none of those deteine the in this land?

But ah ! whil winter’s stormes thus raigeing be,
 Wilt thou endanger both thy self and me ? 660

“ Wilt thou, O cruell thou, to saile mak haste, Whil boystrows Boreas threats the swelling seas ?
 Suppone, though Troy 3it vndestroy’d did last,
 And to no forraine countrey now thou flies,
 Whil furiows Neptune rageing doth remaine, 665
 Thy native Troy should thou by shipping gaine ?

“ Ah ! fleest thou me ? 3it by those streaming teares,
 Which leaue affliction’s furrowes on my face ;
 By thy right hand, by all the hopes and feares
 Possesse poore lovers, by those oathes, alace ! 670
 Which me betrayed, by ovr espousall day,
 And by that love thou bar’st me once, I pray,

“ If ever I of the did well deserve,
 To the ought dear if ever Dido gave,
 Showe now compassion ; firme thy faith observe ; 675
 My life and croune from death and ruine save.
 O ! let my prayers 3it relent thy minde,
 If any place with the my sutes may finde.

“ For thee, the Lybian Kings conspire my wrack ;
 For thee, the hatred of mine owne I beare ; 680
 For thee alone, my shamefast lyf I brack,
 And Fame I lost, to me nor life more deare.
 To whom thus leavest thou me, to die with shame,
 O ghuest ? I dar no more the husband name.

" Ah ! loathed Dido, must thou live to sie 685
 Thy foes triumph? thy self detained a slave?
 Sit, if at least before thy flight from me,
 My luck had been succession sweet to have ;
 If any small Æneas heir did play
 Within this hall, thy face who might bewray, 690

" Those sorrowes then I should not shrink to prove,
 Nor vtterly forsaken should I seeme."
 Thus clos'd she weeping, but no words culd move
 His marble minde, he doth so much esteime
 The Thund'rer's will. With stedfast eyes he stair'd, 695
 And, obstinate, for answere thus prepar'd :

" Deir Queen ! (quoth he), I never shall deny
 Thy favowres far surmount my meane deserts.
 Thy beauty's bountys, and thy loyaltie,
 Would ravish with remorce the hardest hearts. 700
 Nor shall I euer cease, (till heavens afford
 My life's last gaspe), thy kindnes to record.

" Those dear delights which I enjoyed of the
 No tract of time shall frome my minde remove.
 Dear shall thy memory be still to me ; 705
 Dear the remembrance of Eliza's love ;
 And, where so e're remov'd, thou may by right
 Esteime me still thy souldier and thy knight.

" But to the purpose briefly I replie :
 As to this end I never heir arived 710
 Myself in Hymen's sacred bands to tie,
 To be of dearest liberty deprived.
 So, butt thy knowledge, neither did I minde
 To steale from hence, forçetfull, and vnkinde.

“ If heavens and Fortune did assent that I 715
 My life, according to my minde, shuld lead,
 Demolish't Troy in dust no more should lie,
 And Priam's tow'rs should 3it amazement bread.
 Those hands my native city should restore,
 And raise anone to all her former glore. 720

“ To Itally, but now Apollo great,
 To Itally the dest'nyes me command.
 Their my delight, my countrey, mine estate.
 How canst thow my departure thus withstand?
 As thow a stranger dost in Africk stay, 725
 Why may not I to Italy mak way?

“ How oft dark night with shadowes overcasts
 Earth's low'ring face, and glist'ring starres arise ;
 Anchises' ghost als oft my soule agasts
 With fearfull visions to my sleeping eyes ; 730
 Admonishing, with terrour and affright,
 Me to forgoe thy soyle and deirest sight.

“ Ascanius als, whom I vnjustly wrong,
 By dreames appeareth frustrate of his right,
 Keipt from the croune of Itally so long, 735
 And fatall bounds ; both those steir vp my flight.
 And now wing'd Hermes, sent from Jove to me,
 Commands from hence that I in haste should flie.

“ Myself the God within the walls appeare
 (Whil as dayes bright beames wer shining) did perceive ; 740
 His heavenly voyce thir humane ears did heare.
 Leaue then, (I pray), dear Queen, those things to crave,
 As may steir vp both the and me to woe.
 To Italy against my will I goe.”

Him speaking thus, she, sore perplext in minde, 745
 (With greiff in heart and sorrow in her face,
 Rolling each where her eyes with lookes vnkinde,
 As in amazement), did behold a space.

Not able more her passion to suppress,
 Those bitter words, at last, she doth expresse: 750

“ Remorceles traitour, whom I held too deare!
 Sprung from no parents, but of brutish kinde,
 The Paphyen Queen such brood did never beare,
 Nor the Anchises gott, O wretch vnkinde!

But of the hoarse sea wavs, and hardest stane, 755
 Nurst by some Tigresse, thow hast essence taine.

“ Why do I longer my designes disguise?
 For what things more should I myself reserve?
 Oh! how he did my wofull plaints despise,
 And stood vnmov'd, whill I for greiff did swarve. 760

All my regrades and tears, powr'd foorth in vaine,
 From his hard breast one sigh could never straine.

“ Ay me! what shall I first lament (alace)?
 Ay me! where shall my tragoedy begin?
 Let heauens behold my sad afflicted cace, 765
 The grievs and woes I am envolved in.

Let mighty Jove, let Juno from above,
 Look on my wrongs and ill-rewarded love.

“ 3e happy maids, in fredome who enjoy
 The dear delights of sacred chastity, 770
 Free from the slee deceits of Venus' boy,
 Secure frome danger of disloyalty;

Who never 3it have knowne men's perjuries,
 Nor stand in neid of Argus' hundreth eyes;

“ O ze, who, (Phoenix like), do live but one ; 775
 Whose vertew's streame vntrubled still runnes pure ;
 Frie birds, whom never hand hath seiz't vpon,
 From fouler's whisle and deceits secure ;
 Frie from love's plague and perillows infection,
 Nor wonne by men, nor vassails to affection ; 780

“ O never, never to the oaths giue eare,
 Nor truste that impiows and vnfaithfull race,
 Who ne're to vs do what they are appeare,
 (Perniciows instruments of ovr disgrace) ;
 And whatsomever showe they do pretend, 785
 Nought but ovr shame and infamy intend.

“ Their vows, their prayers, protestations, teares,
 Are all but fain'd to breid in vs compassion.
 None minds his oaths, nor meanes the thing he sweares,
 3it cunningly can cōterfitt a passion. 790
 Ovr tender hearts with pittie which betraying,
 Works their advantage, and ovr sure decaying.

“ O then, how of ovr favours kinde they boast,
 And overcloud with black reproach ovr fame !
 Thus are ovr fortunes mar'd, ovr honours lost, 795
 By those who ar delighted in ovr shame.
 Let Dido's sad experience serve to prove
 Their is no trewth in men, nor trust in love.

“ No trust in love, nor trewth in men remaines.
 This wretch whom seas had naked cast on shoare, 800
 I, (foolish I), prefer'd, who now disdaines
 My self, my scepter, and will stay no more ;
 Vnmindfull miser whom I did receive,
 And plac'd, as Lord, ov'r me and all I have.

"What furies thus (alace!), incense my breast? 805
 Apollo now! now Oracles Divine!
 Now heaven's great messenger is thus impesht!
 Quhat ells? Now thund'ring Jove doth thus encline,
 And hath his winged herauld sent to vs!
 It's like enough the gods ar busied thus! 810

"A deep invention, forg'd by fine deceit,
 I neither hold it's trew, nor false repells.
 Go, cruell, go! to Italy, ingrate!
 Go, traitour! where thy dest'nies the compells.
 Go with such joy, such comfort, peace, and rest, 815
 As now thow leaves in my afflicted breast.

"I hope, in midst of furiows rageing seas,
 (If heavens with equity behold my wrongs),
 Vengeance on the, in presence of thir eyes,
 For thy deserts, shall fall, the rocks amongs, 820
 Where Dido, whom thow oft by name shall call,
 With brands of fire thy conscience shall apall.

"And when death's inevitable decree
 My body from my better halfe shall parte,
 My angry ghost, till I avenged be, 825
 Shall the persew each where with armes and airt,
 Nor earth's lowe centre, neither heaven nor hell,
 Shall shield the frome my spight and fury fell."

Ov'rcome with passion, she no more could speak,
 But, preassing to eschew his hatefull sight, 830
 Excesse of greiff her purpose heir did break,
 (Her latest words scarce heard, nor vtt'red right).
 Her vitall powers did fail, her life did faint,
 And death his image in her face did paint.

Thus, sleeping in a traunce, his eyes she fled, 835
 And left him, (wofull wight), himself alone,
 Full many things prepareing to have said,
 And maid reply. With that her maids anone,
 With ruefull cryes, her frozen corps do bear,
 And her in bed they lay with duilfull chear. 840

But now Æneas, though he much enclined,
 (Ov'rcome with greiff, and wounded with remorse),
 T' have calm'd the tempest of her troubled minde
 With chearfull words, touch't with affection's force ;
 Whil as the tears, which from his eyes did slide, 845
 If seene by her, her rage had mollifi'd ;

Afflicted soule ! what shall he now resolve ?
 To heavens and her his duety how discharge ?
 A labyrinth of dowbts doth him involve ;
 Pitty withstood what Jove did strictly charge ; 850
 Constraint him led at lenth, with ruefull look,
 Loe ! how of her, his last farewell he took.

Hard hearted lover to thy loyall love !
 Could not the sunne-set of those lovely eyes,
 (Whil death her senses stopt), to pitty move 855
 Thy flinty heart? O ! so to tyrannize
 Ov'r conquer'd beauty, to thy fame adds soyle :
 The victor seldome leaves behind his spoyle.

Now Trojanes all with earnestnes endevore
 Their fleet to loose, and launch into the deepe : 860
 Ships, hulks, and galleyes slide along the shore,
 And frome the haven with pitched keills do creep.
 Trees jit vnshapen, blooming leawes for haste,
 And oakes jit floorishing for oares they plac't.

Them, swarming from the portes, now might have spied, 865
 All rushing headlongs, hasting from the towne ;
 As emmets, whil for winter they provide,
 Disperst abroad, each running vp and downe,
 An heap of corne do spoyle, and beare away
 To those hid dennes where they intend to stay. 870

Those little troupes marche through the fields butt feare,
 And through darne passages their spoyles convoy ;
 The greatest graine on shoulders some do beare,
 With all his might each doth himself employ.
 With earnest repare the paths do seeme to sweate : 875
 So ran the Trojanes to launch foorth their fleate.

What minde, (alace !) then Dido, was to the ?
 What sense of sorrow ? what vnkindly care ?
 What deep-drawne sighs ? when thow, (sad soule), didst see,
 (Wak't from thy traunce), such tumult every where. 880
 When all the Ocean seem'd, frome shore to shore,
 With thund'ring noyse into thine eares to rore.

O love ! thow tyrant love ! what humane wight
 Feeles not the force of thy vnbounded ire ?
 What breathing creature may resist thy might ? 885
 Thy fierce assaults, thy bowe, thy shafts, thy fire ?
 What dost thow not poor mortall's force to trie,
 Subjected once vnto thy tyranny ?

Now is she forc't, who late triumph't ov'r love,
 Againe to treat, againe to turne to teares ; 890
 A poore petitioner constrain't to prove,
 An humble supplicant to closed eares ;
 And least, vntried, she ought had overpast,
 Thus she resolv's to try him 3it at last.

“O! Anna! Anna! siest thou now what haste 895
 Those impiows traitours mak from hence to saile?
 And leaue me loath'd, forsaken, and disgrac't,
 Whome death and infamy alike assaile.

Loe! where their fleet, an happy gayle to finde,
 Doth ly at anchor, waiting on the winde. 900

“If ever such an ocean of annoyes,
 A waste abyse, a boundles gulf of greiff,
 I could have fear'd should thus have drown'd my joyes,
 Those feares afforded might haue my releiff.

But, (sister), zit before my tragick fate, 905
 Go, charg't with teares, this last requeest entreate.

“For, faithles, he to the alone gaue eare,
 To the alone his minde he would reveale;
 Thow knows his graciows howres, O sister deare;
 Thow knows his times, most fitt with him to deale. 910

Go! I entreat, to my disdainfull foe,
 And those few words from his poore Dido shoe.

“'Gainst him with Graecians I did not conspire,
 Nor vow'd at Aulis ancient Troyes disgrace;
 Nor sent I navies, armed with sword and fire, 915
 To sack his citty, or extirpe his race.

Anchises' ghost, inter'd, I did not teare.

Why, why refuses he my words to hear?

“Where hastes he headlongs? whither doth he move?
 Nought ells I crave, (O! let him now obey 920
 This last request of me his dying love),
 Before his flight let heavens their fury lay,

O! let him stay whil Æol's rage doth last,

Till Thetys calme, till perill first be past.

" Rejected Hymen, now I crave no more, 925
 Nor sues he should forgoe his mindes delight.
 Showe him nought els his Dido doth emlore,
 But let him choose a time more fitt for flight.
 A pause to slack my fury I beseach,
 My state to mourne, till me my fortune teach. 930

" This latest fauour, this my last desire,
 I humbly plead ; pittie thy sister's state,
 And when thou hast obtain'd what I require,
 To all my greiffs death shall afforde a date."
 Thus she entreats, thus Anna weeping goes, 935
 And thus with teares Æneas' answe're sho'es.

But he, (most cruell tyger), stops his eares,
 No pittie can preuale to plead remorse ;
 Sighs are despised, no place is found for teares,
 Her sutes vnheard, her prayers have no force. 940
 Fates do withstand, great Ioue his eares hath charmed,
 And heavens him with an hard'ned heart have armed.

Most like an ancient oake or statly pine,
 Which rageing winds impetuously assaile,
 And threat the trembling tree to vndermine, 945
 On each side striving her from earth t' vphaile,
 With hiddeows noyse which reeling to and froe,
 Now heir now their, still seames to overbloe.

Her branches beatne by the storme resound,
 Her heaven-bent bewes must either bow or break, 950
 Her straughtest tops are forc't the earth to wound,
 But jit how much they do themselves ereck
 To heavens ; als much her rootes reach downe belowe,
 And grips the rocks ; no storme can her ov'rthrowe.

Even so, Æneas, now for flight prepar'd, 955
With tears and prayers on each side assail'd,
Though long his minde confus'd with dowbts appear'd,
}it neither pittty, plaints, nor words avail'd ;
 He stedfast stands, sighes can no favour gaine ;
 Torrents of teares ar powred foorth in vaine. 960

THE THIRD BOOKE, CONTAINING ÆNEAS
DEPARTURE AND DIDOES TRAGAEDY, &c.

NOW woefull Dido, sad afflicted wight,
 Greiv'd with the Fates' vnflexible decree,
 Her heavy soull abhorres the loathed light,
 Charg't with affliction and anxietie.
 Heaven's cristall vaults she wearyes more to view, 5
 Resolv't at once to bid the world adiewe.

Whil as on altars she did incense burne,
 It seem't she saw, (a monstrows sight to showe),
 The liquours black, the wyne in blood to turne,
 Presaging her approaching overthrowe. 10
 To none this fearfull vision she reveal'd, ÿea, even from Anne, she this sight conceal'd.

Ane chappell wals as in the palace plac'd,
 Where humbly heavens Sicheus earst ador'd,
 Whose marble walls rare artifice had grac'd, 15
 With sacred bewes, and fleeces white decor'd.—
 From thence, (whill night earth's face did overcloud),
 It seem'd Sicheus call'd her name aloud.

And als the light-envying owle, alone,
 With tragick toones her smarte and sorrow shew, 20
 With mourning accents seiming to bemone,
 As if she knew some bad mischaunce t' ensue ;
 Then diverse things, which prophets shew of old,
 Her mangled minde with monstrows visions hold.

Her oft, by dreames, Æneas fierce doth chace, 25
 Still seaming to be left herself alone,
 And vagabounding in ane heavy cace
 Through fields vnknowne, accompanied by none,
 Searching her people, but she none can finde,
 A tediows journey to her wearyed minde : 30

As Pentheus mad, affray't by furyes, seam't
 Two Sunnes, two Thebes, both at once to see ;
 Or as Orestes in his fancy dream't
 His hydra-headed mother he did flie,
 Arm'd all with snakes, and brands of burning fire, 35
 Each place seam't plenisht with revenge and ire.

In guilty conscience having now decreed,
 No salue butt death could cure her inward sore,
 And with her self on time and forme agreed,
 (Loathing the world, resolv't to liue no more), 40
 This fain'd device, suspicion till eschew,
 Of her designes she to her sister shew.

(Her thoughts disguising with a smiling face,
 And hope appearing in her eyes to shine) :
 " O Anna, now rejoyce thy sister's cace, 45
 For I an way have found by rare engine,
 Which him with me to stay shall either move,
 Or teach me to reclaime from him my love.

" A land there is, far, far remote from hence,
 Which sees the sonne go downe in westerne deeps ; 50
 Whose coastes about the Ocean doth fence ;
 Of Æthiopia the name it keeps ;
 Where Atlas hudge on shoulders strong doth beare,
 And vnderprops heaven's star-embroidred speare.

" A virgin preist by chance of Morish lyne, 55
 Expert in magick, hath from thence repair'd,
 Who keeps the garden of th' Hesperian tryne,
 And feeds the dragon which the frute doth garde ;
 Mixing with honey, and with liquours sweet,
 The purple poppy which provoketh sleep. 60

" She, by her charmes, can stop affection's source,
 And whom she pleases, als can plague with love ;
 Torrents ar stayed ; stars retrograde their cowrse ;
 Spreits from belowe do at her word remove ;
 Dull earth doth roare, and horribly resound, 65
 And tallest trees do headlongs fall to ground.

" Let heavens and the, deir sister ! bear recorde,
 And witnes to the world, against my will,
 That I, constrain'd, to magick airts accorde,
 And seeks redresse by such vnlawfull skill. 70
 Go thow, ereck in th' inner cowrt in haste
 A fire of wod, vpon the walls hie plac'd.

" Tak syne the sword leaft by this perjur'd wretch,
 His cloaths, and als owr haples wedding-bed,
 In which I perisht whil I fear'd no bretch ; 75
 And let those all vpon the flame be laid,
 So that no token vndestroyed may stand
 Which him pertain'd. Thus doth the priest cōmand."

Heir clois'd she, sighing sore, perplext a space 80
 To stop the currant of her swelling teares ;
 The crimson dy abandoning her face,
 Sad, faint, and pale, she look't, confus't with feares.
 }it Anna doubts not that she doth intend
 Thus to disguise her death, and cloak her end.

No rage so great, no fury so extreame, 85
 She dreids her sister in her thoughts conceav'd ;
 Nor feares now ought more fearfull till haue seene,
 Nor when Sicheus was of life bereav'd.
 Wherefore in haste, she, (simple soull), obeyes,
 And, to performe her charge, no more delays. 90

Ane heap of wod for fire prepair'd at once,
 With garlands deckt, and crownd with Cypres bewes.
 The Queen her sad misfortunes first bemones,
 And with her teares his portrate she bedewes.
 Syne with the bed, sword, cloathes, she layes ye same 95
 Vpon the heap, to perish in the flame.

In circles rownd, the altars stand abowt ;
 The Priest appearing then with hov'ring haire,
 With thund'ring noyse, three hundreth times doth showt
 On Fiends and Pharyes thither to repare ; 100
 Conjuring by some charme or magick spell,
 The fowle three headed Hecate from hell.

Then sprinkling waters of the Stygian fount,
 They search by night some sucking foale to finde,
 And pull the hippom'nes from his tender front, 105
 The mother's minde which to the brood doth binde.
 Collecting als, their damned work to speed,
 The milkie poyson of each ven'mowse weed.

The Queen herself before the altars stands,
 With one foot bair, her garment loose vntied, 110
 With humble heart, and heaven-erected hands,
 Calling to witnes, (now before she dyed),
 Her guilty starres, and all the gods above,
 Of both their partes,—his perjury, her love.

If any pow'r supreme then heavens containe, 115
 Or godhead which such lovers doth regarde,
 As loves sweet yock, and sympathie, do stayne,
 And true affection with disdaine regarde,
 With fervent minde, fixing her eyes above,
 To such she prayes, mindfull and just to prove. 120

With mantle dark night now did earth ovrspreed,
 Each living soull death's image pale possest.
 The savage citizens, which life did leed
 In wods and waters, all secure did rest.
 Whil as the heavenly torches, burning bright, 125
 The equall half had wasted of their light.

The skailly squadrones of the liquid lakes,
 The brutish bands which in the deserts dwell,
 Easing their wearyed mindes, sweet slumber takes,
 Cares past entombeing in oblivion's cell. 130
 But not so Dido : neither sleep nor ease
 Vpon her self-consuming minde can sease.

Her cares increase, her sorrowes never sleep ;
 No night her eyes, no rest her thoughts obtaine ;
 Despight, wraith, furie,—each his place doth keip ; 135
 No paussing-space her troubled spreit doth gaine.
 But now, inflamed, she burnes in furiows fire,
 Now foorth with freezeth in revenge and ire.

“ Ah ! shall I zit assay, (quoth she), to speak
 My scornfull victor, proud of my disgrace ? 140
 Shall I with shame my former suters seeke ?
 There sew for favour, there entreat for grace
 Where pittie pleaded, I so oft disdain'd ?
 Where mercy beg'd, I ruethles still remain'd ?

“Or shall I follow that inglorious fleet,
 Fraughted with falshood, guile, and perjuries?
 As if thy former favours now shuld meet
 My discontents, and sad afflictions ease.

O yes! performed pleasures, kindnes past,
 In gratefull mindes lay'd vp so long doth last. 150

“Suppone such thoughts to practise I would prove,
 Should any second my desires? alace!
 Who would regarde so much my loathed love,
 As daigne their stips to render me a place?

Forsaken soule, too late thow dost repent,
 Thow knew Laomedon's perjur'd discent. 155

“Shall I, alone, my bragging foes persewe,
 Or raise my people to revenge and waste?
 And so endanger by the seas anew,

Those, present perill who have scarce ov'rpast? 160
 Fy! Dye thyself! such is thy due desert;
 Once let this sword put period to thy smarte.

“Thow, sister, first, thow, by my teares betrayed,
 Didst overloade me with this masse of care;

Thow to my foe captiv'd me vnaffrayed; 165
 Thow to mine en'mie mad'st me zeeld butt feare.

Ah! might I not have happy liv'd alone,
 And never more the cares of wedlock knowne?

“I needed not thus waste in teares my yowth,
 With love's misfortunes and afflictions crost,

If I had kept inviolate my trueth 170
 To my Sicheus, dear departed ghost.”

Those sad regrates, with all the wofull words
 A troubled soull could zeeld, she thus affords.

But, each thing now for present flight prepar'd, 175
 Æneas in his schip secure did sleep,
 When to his eyes the god againe appear'd,
 Such as before, and thus did seame to speak,
 Lyk Mercury in all, in yowthfull stature,
 In golden haire, in speach, in face, in feature : 180

“Fair Venus’ issue, canst thou now tak ease,
 And pond’rest not thy perillows estate?
 Hath sleep so much o’rcome thy fainting eyes,
 That thou regard’st no danger nor deceate?
 Rests thou secure, whil death doth the invade, 185
 Vnwar what plottes against thy life ar laid?”

“Hear’st thou not how the whisling winds invite the?
 Sweet-breathing Zephyr with a gentle gale
 From hence to haiste seames smilingly t’entraite the;
 For death-bent Dido, full of bitter bale, 190
 Transported with a rageing spait of ire,
 ’Gainst the is minded both with sword and fire.

“And flyest thou not, whil flye thou may’st in peace?
 The seas anone shall scarce for shippes be seene;
 Thy navy furiows firebrands shall deface, 195
 And all the Ocean in one flame shall seeme,
 If fondly thou thy flight frome hence delay,
 Till once Aurora parte the night from day.

“Haist! haist! Dispatch with speed! But more be gone!
 A woman wav’ring formed is by nature; 200
 Now bent to love, to hate inclyn’d anone,
 In only ynconstancie a constant creature.”
 This spoken, he evanisht owt of sight
 In the ayrie essence of the sable night.

Æneas, with this vision dismay'd, 205
 Rouz'd vp his sleepy senses ; loud did call :
 " Awake, my mates ! too long our flight's delay'd ;
 Hoase sayle in haste ! hy to the hatches all !
 The thund'rer great hath sent anone by night,
 His winged messenger into my sight. 210

" Now anchors wey ! now let's owr navy loose !
 Trusse vp owr taickling ! cables cut in twaine !
 Once let's set fordwart all with one applawse,
 Behold, the God admonisheth againe !
 We follow the, O gloriows guide, butt stay, 215
 And thy great charge we gladly all obey.

" Be thow propitiows ! prosper owr designe !
 Adjoine thy presence and thine helping might !
 Grant that a prosp'rows Planet now may reigne !
 Let happy starres arise to guide owr flight !" 220
 This having said, butt more the anchore roape,
 With shyning sword vnsheath't, in twaine he stroake.

One earnestnes then, one fervency to all ;
 All headlongs haiste ; one ardowre all retaine ;
 They rush, they reele, as heaven and earth did fall, 225
 And overspread with sayles the wat'ry plaine.
 On Neptun's back all whyt with foame they ride,
 And ov'r the tumbling billows fast do slide.

Now was the time when as Aurora cleare
 Over sad earth her silver mantle spread, 230
 And in the Orient blushing did appeare,
 Asham't to rise frome aged Tython's bed,
 When watchfull Dido from her palace spy'd
 The Trojane fleet amongst the coast to glyde.

Of shipp, hulks, galleyes, brigandines and barkes, 235
 With wings owtstreach't, all vnder equall saile,
 The hudge armado, watching, she remarkes
 Through Neptun's empires with ane evenly gale ;
 Whil roaring engines, throwing globes off steele,
 Did thunder foorth an horrible fareweell. 240

Beating her breast with blows, with plaints the aire,
 Hope's wings cutt of, she enters in despare,
 And renting foorth, (enrage't), her golden haire :
 "O Jove," she cries, "who know'st alone my care,
 Thus shall he go? And must I, in my soyle, 245
 Of such a vagabound receiue this foyle ?

"Thus is he gone? And shall not armes avail ?
 Or shall my subjects all persue the chase
 With fire and sword their scornfull shipp to quail?
 Fy! People owt! Their fleet with flames deface! 250
 Hoase sayle in haste! Fy, now your oares employ,
 Sack, wreak, revenge, demolish and destroy!

"Complaints, farewell, which butt bewaill my wrongs,
 With armes and arte I will persue to death
 This traitour. Vengeance now to me belongs. 255
 In hope alone of sweet revenge I breath.
 In crwely I will this cruell wight
 Surpas. No sheild shall saue him frome my spight.

"But what do now prowde words avail, alace?
 Where art thou now thus frome thy self astray, 260
 Afflicted Dido? O how hard thy cace!
 What suddaine change doth thus thy minde dismay?
 Oh how accurst! how haples is thy fate!
 These threats (alace!) thou vtters now too late.

"Such seem'd the when thy scepter thow didst render, 265
 When thus the fortune of thy foe thow rays'd.
 Is this his promise? Is his faith so slender,
 Whose piety each where abroad was blaz'd,
 Both to his Gods, and aged parent deare,
 Whome, worne with zeirs, on shoulders he did beare? 270

"Ah! might I not long since have sent to death
 This truethles tyrant and his fellowes all?
 Ah! might I not have stop't Ascanius' breath,
 And torne his tender flesh in parcells small?
 Then drest him for that traitour false to eate, 275
 To faire his belly with so kindly meate.

"O that I had their shipps once set on fire,
 And ov'rlofts all with flaming firebrands fill'd!
 O that thir hands at once both sonne and syre,
 And all those traitours cruelly had kill'd! 280
 O, then how gladly should this hand and sword
 In that same moment als my death afford!

"Thow great Apollo, whose bright gloriows ey
 With piercing rayes each work on earth doth viewe;
 Thow, Juno, guilty of my misery, 285
 Sacred Diana, with thy silver hew,
 Whose triple-horned forehead doth controule
 Skies, earth and hell,—the night's swift moving soule;

"Ze heavenly pow'rs, just, bountyfull, divine!
 Ze, in whose safegarde wretch't Eliza lived! 290
 And ze, O furies! O vindictive tryne!
 Who venge their wrongs who are vnjustly grieved,
 Pitty my plaints! O zeeld to my desire!
 Vpon those traitours exercise zowr ire!

" If so must be this exsecrable wight 295
 At heaven's dispose must passe the Stygian tide,
 And after death enjoy that wished sight,
 Ferry'd by Charon to the farther side,
 3it grant ! O grant, whil flesh his ghost doth wrap,
 Plague, sword and famine, be his surest hap ! 300

" Of awfull natiounes let him feele the force,
 Frome place to place persu'd, in saifty never.
 Exil'd, in neid, butt any man's remorse,
 Dissev'red from his only child for ever.
 Imploring pittty, let him none obtaine ; 305
 But see his people with dishonour slaine.

" And if he ever peace on earth enjoy,
 Short be his reigne ; soone may his dayes be spent.
 And, whill he breathes, be never butt annoy ;
 But by vntimely death his powr prevent ; 310
 Synne rott on ground butt honour of a grave :
 This I employe, this with my blood I crave.

" Last, to his lineage showe despight and ire,
 Deir people whose true love a life I fand !
 This latest favo^r onely I require, 315
 Let never love nor league betwixt 3ow stand !
 O let mine ashes, after death, afford
 One to destroy those clownes with fire and sword !

" As time and place permitts, both now and ay,
 Let discord alwise, and debate domine ! 320
 Let shoare to shoare, let streame 'gainst streime, I pray,
 And let ovr ofspring ever armes reteine !"
 Heir closing, deeply she doth now revolve,
 What way she soonest may her life dissolve.

Then calling on Sicheus' aged nurse, 325
 (Of purpose only to be left alone),
 "Go, Barce! carefull nurse, direct thy cowrse
 To Anna, pray her heir arive anone,
 With waters purg't from each polluted thing,
 Expiatory offrings caws her bring. 330

"And thow, enfold with sacred cloithes thine head;
 The rites intended now I minde to finish
 To Stygian Jove, which must afford remead,
 Whereby my cares may peice and piece diminish."
 With aged pase, this said, to haste enclin'd, 335
 She stagg'ring foorth did show her fordward minde.

Now deathbent Dido, (trembling fast for feare
 Her horrible attemptings to persue,
 Rolling her eyes, which bloody did appeare,
 And flaming sparkles of her fury showe, 340
 With sorrow-tainted cheiks, and deadly hew),
 Look't pale for horrour of the fact t'ensue.

But quickly ent'ring where the flame was fram'd,
 The wodden heap she doth amount anone;
 The haples sword she in her hand retain'd 345
 Vnsheath'd, which once pertain'd to him was gone;
 That cursed blaide, that instrument of death,
 Ordained never to abridge her breath.

Thair whil her eyes, which still butt motion stair'd,
 Th' acquainted cowtch and remnant weids did viewe, 350
 Paussing, (now vtterly of life despair'd),
 With gushing teares her breath a litle d[r]ew;
 Syne tumbling on the bed, withowt moe words,
 Thir latest speaches she, poore soull, affords:

"O thow sweet vesture! and O happy bed!
 355
 Whil heavens above and dest'nyes did permitt,
 That once, ah! once with þow my life I led,
 Receive this soull, frome me which hence doth flitt,
 This fleshly preson ready now to leave,
 And of all earthly toyles ane end to have. 360

"My glasse is spent; my time I have owt-lived;
 The race is runne, which Dest'nyes did designe;
 And as the heavens my terme of life contrived,
 Swa have I lived, accomlisht in my reigne.
 So now this earthly shaddow goeth to grave; 365
 So now at once this loathed lyf I leave.

"Skie-matching Carthage from the ground I rais'd;
 Her staitly walls I floorishing did viewe;
 My wrath vpon the prowde Pigmalion seas'd,
 My lord Sicheus trait'rously who slewe. 370
 Happy, (alace)! too happy had I beene,
 If never Trojane ship my shoare had seene."

With drowping gesture and dejected eye,
 "Die shall I," sayes she, "and no vengeance finde?
 Butt die thow must, faint Dido, boldly die: 375
 Thus, thus my breath I render in the winde.
 Now let the traitour viewe, though not regrate,
 This flame, the presage of my present Fate.

"But oh! þit art thow, (feeble flesh), affray'd?
 Why trembles thow to be depriv'd of breath? 380
 Oh coward hand! and art thow als dismay'd
 To be the executioner of Death?
 Though hands, though flesh doth faint, O fearles knife,
 End thow my cares, and cut my threed of life!"

With gushing teares, those words whil as she spak, 385
 The cursed blaide but more her purpose brak,
 Which in her breast vnto the hilts she strak,
 Withowt remorse : O exsecrable fact !
 The wepon, foaming in her luk-warme blood,
 Maide open passage to the gushing flood. 390

Her Dams attending see their mistris fall
 On piercing sword, with armes abroad othrow'ne,
 Sprauling in paine, with blood begoared all,
 Which freshly from her woned breast was gone :
 The skreigh is rais'd, with many rewfull cries, 395
 The clamours great reverberat the skies.

Fame through the citty blaz'd her fall anone ;
 Anone the streets with those sad newes ar fill'd ;
 The women wailing zeeld a pitteows mone,
 Viewing their Princes and their lady kill'd. 400
 Showts, sighs, smarte, sorow, all each where abound ;
 With hiddeows noyse the hallow hevens resownd.

Most lyk, as by some vnexpected plott,
 The rageing en'my ent'red had the citty ;
 The bulwarks brave downe batt'red all with shott ; 405
 With dint of sword destroying all butt pitty.
 Whate'ere occur'd made objects of their rage,
 Regairdles both of sexe, of zowth, of age.

Whil rageing flames of furiows spreiding fire,
 The buildings both of gods and men devore : 410
 Whil rewfull cries of those who life require,
 With dying groanes for pitty who emlore,
 For rewth would rent a flinty heart a sunder :
 Such were the clamoures through the air did thunder.

But Anna, wofull nymph, ran trembling there, 415
 Confus'd and speachles, where the noyse was heard.
 Faint, breathles, pale, astonisht, full of feare,
 To see this rewfull object she appear'd ;
 Then, preissing through the throng, her call'd by name,
 And oft, "Dear Dido! Dido!" did exclave. 420

" Ah sister ! wast for this thow sought by slight
 To syle my sight, thy curs't designes to cloake ?
 Ah ! wast for this the flame I built on hight ?
 To this intent or did the altars smoake ?
 Ah wretched wight, left now thyself alone ! 425
 Forsaken soull ! what shall I first bemone ?

" Did ever I demerite such disdaine,
 That thow thine Anna hast at death debarr'd
 To be thy convoy ? to partake thy paine ?
 And reape with the the fruits of thy reward ? 430
 Hast thow despis'd thine only sister thus ?
 Such guerdon never was deserv'd of vs.

" O ! since one sword, dy'd in a crimson streame,
 Had in one moment both bereft of breath.
 But ah ! and have thir hands, (O lasting shame !)
 Prepair'd the flame, as guilty of thy death ? 435
 Call'd I my Gods at altars, prostrate lowe,
 Alace ! 3it absent at thy last ov'rthrowe.

" Thy self, thy sister, and thy subjects all,
 Thy citty, senate, kingdome and estate, 440
 Each by one stroak destroy'd, with the do fall,
 And perish all by thy abortive Fate."
 This said : her bleeding wounds she bath'd in haist,
 And kyndly her in dying armes embract.

Then seizing on her death-seal'd lipps to knowe 445
 If any sponk of breath as ʒit remain'd,
 The streaming teares her face did overflowe,
 Whil as she, clasping in her armes, retain'd
 Her half-dead sister, faintly drawing breath
 In dead-throwe ent'ring at the gates of death. 450

She, feeling in this agony of minde,
 (With soft though sad embraces oft bestowd),
 Herself in such frequented bounds confin'd,
 As mindefull of the favo^r Anna show'd,
 To lift her eyes assay'd, but streight did fail : 455
 Her heart fix't wounds presage a sad farewell.

Then leining on her elbowe, preis'd in vaine,
 Thrie times her body from the bed to rayse ;
 Three times she fainting tumbles downe againe,
 Death on her senses ready now to seaze. 460
 Three times she strove to see the cristall skies,
 And three times clos'd again her gazing eyes.

Then heaven's Arch-empresse from her azure tent,
 Viewing this dead-lyve lover's toylsome end,
 Her stormy breast compassion did relent, 465
 And Iris quickly from the clouds did send
 To calme the combat, and compoise the sight
 Betwix her drossie flesh and ayrie spright.

For sith no dest'ny did abridge her breath,
 Nor due deserved death her day prevent ; 470
 Both spightfull rage did antidate her death,
 And turn'd the Glasse befor her howr was spent.
 Her haire as ʒit Proserpine had not touch't,
 Nor by such gift th' Elysian groaves enrich't.

On saffroun pineouns soaring then anone, 475
 The winged Iris cutts the cristall skies,
 In thowsand colours shining 'gainst the Sunne,
 Doth light at lenth where this poore patient lyes :
 Syne off'ring vp her haires at Pluto's shryne,
 "Leave, leave," (quoth she), "this corps, O soule divine!" 480

Thus whil she said, with fingers heavenly white
 The golden fleece clip't frome her head in haist.
 The native heit her limmes abandon'd quite,
 Then in ane instant, by cold death displac't,
 Her breath expiring, ane eternall sleep 485
 Did piece and piece vpon her senses creep.

 With which heauen's tables charged are, 370
¹ Cor. 2. 9. ^aWhich man's weake Eye, amazed Eare nor Heart, can right conceave,
 Things hid by his eternall care,
 Who doth them for his Saintes prepare,
 Who, gaining him, the fairest faire, 375
 they All in all things have.
- ^b ¹ Cor. 15. 24. ^bWhen conquering life hath death subdued,
^c Rev. 21. 1. This World's false ^cshew our sight eschued, Whose face and countenance renewde shall more delightfull seeme, 380
 Thou, who with grace thy Saintes indued,
 Whose shield them from this wrath rescued,
 Transport mee thither, all bedewed with blood did mee redeeme.
- ^d Rev. 22. 16. ^dBright Starre—illightning darkest night, 385
 Attractive loadstone, full of might,
 Jnflamt by thy transpeircing sight,
 there draw my heatlesse heart ;
 Winge my desires, that raisde on hight,
^e ^eI may arriue by heauenly flight 390
^e Rev. 21. 4. There, where's no feare of ill, no spight, but blesse, without desart.
- Where J, thy praises may make knowne,
 Three vndivided Trinall One !
 Joynde with thy Saynts about thy Throne, 395
 in hymnes not made by Men.
 Grant this sweet Sauour, Thou alone
 Crowne these desires, here to Thee showne,
 As to its end this raptur's flowne,
 Sweet Jesu, say Amen. 400

DOOMSDAY

CONTAINING

HELLS HORROUR AND HEAVENS HAPPINESSE

BY

SR. WILLIAM MVRE

Yo: of Rowallane Knight.

BUT now, my Sprite refresht a space,
Forbearing pressed steppes to trace,
Aspires aboue the vulgar prease,
to raise a second flight.

I feele my bosome, peece and peece, 5
Warmde with vnusuall flammes : Giue place
Eare-charming fancies, Artes disgrace, affording false delight.

Thoughts, which aboue the spheares inclyne,
Wings, furnish to my weake engine, 10
If Thou, O Lord, the ^aHorne of Thine
in mee, this Rapture wrought.

Bee present by thy power divine,
Grant in my lines thy might may shyne,
From drosse of sinne my sprite refine, 15 raise from the earth my thought.

^a 2 Sam. 22.

3.

But why thus pants thou in my breast
 Affrighted soule, deprive of rest?
 What sudden feares thy joyes molest?
 what jarres disturbe thy peace? 20

Why tremblest thou, with terrours prest,
 To heare that fearefull doome exprest
 By that great Judge, who euer blest, is just, as full of grace?

Heere pause a space, (My Soule,) acquaint 25
 Thy selfe this judgement to prevent:
 No moment of our time is spent,
 which thither doth not lead.

The dangers seene which doe torment
 Thy troubled mind with discontent, 30
 Gainst them let fervent suites be sent,
 Immunitie to plead.

Haste, haste my Soule, shake off delay,
 Which too much of thy time makes prey.
 Lay vp provision for that Day 35
 there boldlie to arriue,

Where Reprobats, accurst for aye,
 Shall wish in vaine their lifes decay,
 That earth would to their soules make way,
 them swallowing vp aliue. 40

Oh! what encounter sad shall bee
 Twixt soules from darknesse chaines set free,
 And bodies, mates in miserie,
 calde forth to bee combynd,
 Not for reciprocall supplie, 45
 As friends new joynde in amitie,
 But neuer dying, aye to die,
 in quenchlesse flammes confynde.

Death's loathsome den, detested Jayle,
 Scout, following sin with stretched sayle, 50
 Which fleeting froaths, which pleasures fraile, on Rocke of shipwrack led.

Maske of mischiefe, sin's slender vaile,
 Good Motions euer bent to quaile,
 Which in the birth thou didst assaile, 55
 them burying as they bred.

Wretch, who to pamper dust didst doate,
 Whom Hell attends with open throate,
 Readie to retribute the lote
 to thy deservings due. 60

Oh! what hath violate death's knot,
 That still in graue thou didst not rot,
 Masse overspred with sin's foule spot,
 raisde anguish to renue.

Thus, (too, too late,) the Soule shall rayle ; 65
 Re-entring this abhorred Iayle,
 Which recombyned, while both bevaile
 Life's misgoverned raines.

Then Angels shall to Judgement haile,
 There, whence no party can appeale, 70
 To heare deathe's sentence countervaile,
 Lyfe's Ioyes, with endlesse paines.

O wretch! who Judgement heere delays,
 Whom false securitie betrays,
 Who ne're thy Sins' blacke summe surveyes, 75
 which future anguish breedes.

Then shall the Auncient of dayes,
 Who all men's works in ballance layes,
 Examine all thy wordes, thy wayes,
 thy thoughts, thy foule misdeeds. 80

None shall this search seuere eschew,
 From bookes laide open to the view
 A summar processe shall ensew, conforme to thy trespasse.
 Thy sins all summond, Thee which slew, 85
 Approving thy damnation due,
 When all the blest cœlestiall crew shall on thee verdict passe.

Thou, who to lewdnesse now art prone,
 What shame, what smart, (lif's pleasures gone,) 90
 Shall on thee seaze, when gazde vpon
 By earth, by angrie heauen?
 When naked, comfortlesse, alone,
 Thou trembling stands before the Throne,
 Under God's wrath, guilt's loade doth grone, 95
 Feares with thy faults made eaven.

When thy tormenting conscience torne,
 Thou guiltie stands that Iudge beforene,
 Whose Image did thy soule adorne,
 who did infuse thy breath. 100
 Who, pittying thee to sin forlorne,
 Left heauens, was of an earthling borne,
 Liude loth'd, dyde with contempt and scorne,
 Emptyed the Cup of wrath.

Witnesse earth trembling at his paines, 105
 Dayes beame, which all in clouds detaines,
 The silver Moone, which pale remains,
 For horreur of the sight.
 Witnesse his hands, with bleeding veines,
 Of this great All which holds the raines, 110
 His side pierc't through to purge thy staines,
 Polluted sinfull wight.

Where shall thou then safe shelter finde
 Soule, than the sightlesse Mole more blinde,
 When with those straits extreame confynd, 115
 Faint, pale, confusde thou stands?
 By doome which cannot bee declinde,
 Adjudge for euer to be pinde,
 Where day nere dawnde, Sunne neuer shinde,
 Mongst the infernall bands. 120

Where tears no truce, playnts find no place,
 On either hand in desp'rate cace,
 Behinde thee, who thy pathes did trace,
 Attend thy woefull lote.
 Before thee, flamms Earth's frame deface, 125
 Aboue, an angrie Judge's face,
 Below, Thee gaping to embrace,
 Hell's sulphure-smoking throat.

Thy feares shall be with cryes encrest
 Of damned Soules, with anguish prest, 130
 With greife, with horrou vnexprest,
 Of due deserved ire.
 The fyre-brands of a conscios brest,
 Shall of thy terrours not be least,
 While worms, which on thy conscience feast, 135
 Thy ceaselesse paine conspire.

But when, (most like a thunder dart,)
 That separating doome, ^a*Depart*,
 Pronounc'd, shall pierce thy panting heart,
 With a most fearefull knell, 140
 Which shall thee from God's presence part,
 Exposde to torments that impart
 Nor end of time, nor ease of smart,
 While headlongs hurld in hell.

^a Mat. 25.
41.

Their shalt thou dive in depthes profound, 145
 Still sinke but never meete a ground,
 In waves still wrestling to bee drownd,
 Deluded still by death ;
 Crying, where comfort none is found,
 Pynde, where no pittie rage doth bound, 150
 Thy Cup with floods of vengeance crownde,
 Of the Almighty's wrath ;

Bathde in a bottomlesse abisse,
 Paine still encressing, ne're remisse,
 Where scorpion's sting, where serpent's hisse, 155
 Wormes, neuer satiate, gnaw ;
 Rackt, thinking what thou was, now is,
 Deprivde for aye from hope of blisse,
 For toyes, eternall joy didst misse,
 Nor crub't by love, nor aw, 160

Paine of Sense.

No torments doth it selfe extend
 Heere all the members to offend,
 Which Vniversall grieffe doth send,
 Doth every part entrinch :
 These paines, which reason's reach transcend, 165
 On Soule and body doth descend,
 No joynt, nerve, muscle, without end
 But sev'rall plagues doe pinch.

Lascivious Eye, with objects light
 Which earst did entertaine thy sight, 170
 Weepe, there exylde in endlesse night,
 Lockt vp in horride shads.
 Nyce Eare, whose Organ earst did spight
 All sounds, whence flowde no fals delight,
 There, horroure ever and affright, 175
 Thy curious sense vpbraids.

Smell, earst with rare perfumes acquent,
 Still interchangde to please thy sent,
 For incense, sulphure, (there) doth vent,
 Smoake for thy odoures sweet. 180

Taste, vnto which to breed content,
 Rob't were the Earth, Sea, Firmament,
 'Mongst soules which penurie torment,
 There, famine Thee doth meete.

Vile wormeling, Thou whose tender pride, 185
 The weakest sunshine scarce couldst byde,
 There, plungde in this impetuous tyde,
 Must feele the force of fire.

Where damned soules on every syde,
 Howling and roaring still abyde, 190
 Which finde no shelter them to hyde
 From this eternall ire.

There, the Ambitious, who in skies
 Did, (late,) on wax-joynde winges arise,
 Of base contempt is made the pryse, 195
 The Proudling pestred downe.

There Dives, who did earst despise
 Of famisht soules the piercing cries,
 Shall one cold drop of water pryse
 Aboue a Monarche's crowne. 200

Loe ! there the vile, licentious goate,
 Whom lawlesse lust did earst besotte,
 Enchainde in the embracements hotte
 Of furious raging flames.

There, to the drunkard's parched throate, 205
 Justice doth scrotching drought allote,
 In floods of fire, which judgde to floate,
 Still vaine refreshment claimes.

On covetous, on cruell wight,
 Shall equall weight of vengeance light 210
 With byting vsurie, with spight,
 The poore ones who did presse.

So, to the remnant that did fight
 'Gainst heauen's decrees, their conscience light,
 God's wrath shall bee proportionde right, 215
 By measure more or lesse.

Soule, which vnpittied ever playnes,
 Heere, suff'ring for thy sins' foule staynes,
 Flammes, lashing whips, rackes, fyrie chaynes,
 Tormenting outward sense. 220

Paine of Losse.

Of all, most terrible remaines,
 Losse of God's face while thou sustaines,
 O hell ó hell ! O paine of paines !
 Still to be banisht thence.

But when thou hast as many yeares 225
 Those tortures felt, as shyne in spears
 Lights, fixed and straying, eyes haue teares,
 Or waves the azure plaine,

No nearer are their end those feares,
 Ever beginning which thou beares, 230
 No change abates, no date outweares
 Thy euer pinching paine.

O dying life ! O living death !
 O stinging fyre, blowne by God's breath !
 O boyling lake no ground which hath, 235
 Destroying nought it burnes !

O overflowing flood of wrath,
 Which damned soules are drencht beneath !
 O pit profound ! O woefull path
 Whence Entrer ne're returnes ! 240

^a Rom. 5. 10. Sweet ^aReconciler, Prince of peace,
 Who pittying man's most wretched cace,
 Didst hellish agonies embrace
 In soule, in bodie shame,
 Let mee in those extreames finde grace, 245
 Illightned by thy glorious face,
 Rank't 'mongst thy Saints, the elect race,
 Whose wayes Thou didst proclaime !

O ! Let me safe protection plead
 Unto my soule, which full of dread, 250
 Hanges ouer Hell by life's fraile threed, Conservde but by thy might ;
 That when heauens, whence it did proceed,
 Its separation haue decreed,
^b Gen. 8. 8. With ^bNoah's Doue, Thou mayst it lead 255
 There, whence it first tooke flight.

Oh, how it longes on winges to rise,
 (Secure from sin's contagious dyes,)
 Endenizde citizen of skies
 With Thee for aye to rest ! 260
 O, how it doth the Jayle despise,
 In fleshes fetters it which tyes,
 And lets it to enjoy the pryse,
 With which thy Saints are blest !

For Thee I thirst, O living spring ! 265
 Pure source of life, who guides faith's wing,
 By flight to reach the hiest thing,
 To compasse things most hard.
 When shalt Thou mee from danger bring
 To Port of peace? my God ! my King ! 270
 Blest giver, and the gifted thing?
 Rewarder, and reward?

- When shall I, from exile set free,
 My native home, my country see?
 When one immortal pineons flie? 275
 That holy Citie reach,
 Whose streets pure gold, gold buildings bee,
 Apoc. 19. 21. Walls, stones most precious beautife,
 Ports, solide Pearles, Guests neuer die,
 Whose peace no paines empeach? 280
- Eternall spring, (shrill Winter gone,)
 This climate constant makes alone,
 Nor flamming heate, nor frozen Zone
 Distemper heere doe breed.
 From Lambe's sweet breath, on glorie's throne 285
 Enstalde, are balmie odours throwne,
 Time hath no turnes, heere change is none,
 No seasons doe succeed.
- Pale envy, emulation, spight,
 Nor death, nor danger heere affright, 290
 Heere hopes, nor feares, nor false delight,
 Apoc. 21. 23. In sublunarie toyes.
 No Lampe dartes foorth alternat light,
 The Lambe's sweet face here shines ay bright,
 Which of the Saints doth blesse the sight, 295
 Who doe in him rejoyse.
- Heere simple beautie scorneth Arte,
 Rose-cheeked youth, old age's dart,
 Joye's perpetuities impart,
 No warre disturbs this peace. 300
 O! this God's Palace royall arte,
 1 Pet. 1. 20. Preparde in these, with all desart,
 For all that vpright are in heart,
 Ere light did paynt heaven's face.

Thou, by whose pow're the spheares are rold, 305
 Earth's hanging orbe who dost vphold,
 Great Architect, King vncontrold,
 Lord of this Universe,
 Enstalde heere on a Throne of gold,
 Dost diamantine scepter hold, 310
 Givest Lawes to earth, hence dost behold
 How wights below converse !

If heere, such eye-enchauting sights,
 Amazing beauties, choise delights,
 This Mansion low, of dying wights, 315
 Earth's brittle orbe adorne,
 What wonders then, what glorious lights,
 Must beautifie those reachlesse hights,
 Thy blest aboade, which daye's, which night's Vicissitude doth scorne? 320

If these such admiration breed,
 What Thou, who did'st heauen's Curtain spread,
 Earth stayde midst aire, that it doth neede
 Its weight nought to sustaine,
 Who full of Majestie and dread, 325
 Of intellectuall pow'rs dost plead
 Attendance, on thy face which feede?
 O ever blessed traine !

Archangels, Angels, clothde with might,
 Thrones, Cherubs, Seraphins of light, 330
 Princes and Powers all shining bright,
 Dominions, vertues pure,
 With beames that sparkle from the sight,
 Inflamde, which flie no other flight,
 But satiat rest, rapt with delight, 335
 Which doth for aye endure !

No woefull earth-confined wight,
 With owlish eyes can view this light, 370
 The meake horizon of Man's sight,
 Farre, farre which doth outreach.

This vnexpressible delight,
 Doth reason's dazelde eye benight,
 What I cannot conceiue aright, 375
 Lord, let experience teach !

Give mee, that in some measure small
 (While fleshe's bands my sprite enthrall)
 J may, a farre, a glance let fall,
 At these contentments poynt, 380
 These termlesse Joyes which, (one day,) shall
 In honny turne Saints' bitter gall,
 From guilt, when flamms shall purge this Ball,
 This Engine hudge disjoynt.

1 Cor. 15. 52. When the Arch-angel's voice shall raise 385
 The graues pale guests, the World 'amaze,

1 Thes. 4. 16. Around all burning in a blaze,
 Suffring for man's offence,
 What Joyes, then, sleeping Saints shall seaze,
 How much this long-longde sight them please, 390
 This sight, death's fetters which shall ease,
 All passed cares compense ?

O what a happie houre ! how deare,
 How glorious shall this day appeare
 To thee my Soule, when fred from feare, 395
 Grimme death thou darst outface ?

Luke 21. 28. When, (thy redemption drawing neare,)
 Life's toyles shall trophees to Thee reare,
 Which cank'ring Tyme shall ne'er outweare,
 Nor foes' despight deface. 400

Though tyrants haue, by doome vnjust,
In furious flammes thy carcase thrust,
Not daigning It to earth to trust

With honour of a graue.

No Atome of thy scattered dust 405
But see this solemne Meeting must,
Purgde from corruption, from rust
Of sinne did It depraue ;

Thy shape renewde, more glorious made 410
Than when it entred deathes darke shade,
Raisde by his viuifying aide,

Death's powres who did controule ;
With flesh adorne, which ne're shall fade,
Nor rotte, in earthe's cold bosome laide,
But liue for aye, the Mansion glade 415
Of a Triumphant soule.

No beautie nature brought to light
Did ravish most amazed sight,
Which, as farre short from day as night
From This, shall not be found, 420
Which shall adorne each new-borne wight,
Co-partner of this hid delight,
The lame shall leape, proportionde right,
The dumbe God's praises sound,

Esay 35. 6.

Caught vp, when on immortall wings, 425
To aire this stage which ouerhings,
To meete thy Head, the Saints who brings
To judge the damned traine.

1 Thes. 14.
17.
1 Cor. 6. 2.

(Saints, earst accounted abject things,
Objects of scorne, weake underlings, 430
On thrones enstalde, now sceptred kings Eternally who reigne.)

Apoc. 10.

What bands enclustred thee around,
 Shall make the Heauens with hymnes rebound,
 That Thou, a stragglng sheepe, art found, 435

Luk. 15. 71.

 Their numbers to encrease?
 If they did such applauses sound
 At thy conversion, how profound
 Shall be their Joyes to see thee crownd,
 With them to acquiesse? 440

As pansiue Pilgrime, sore distrest,
 Wearie and weake, with famine prest,
 Whom feare of Robbers doth infest,
 Straying alone, in need,
 If Hee, while dreaming least of rest, 445
 Should in an instant bee address,
 Where hee might live for ever blest,
 How should his Joyes exceed?

Even so my Soule, (now on the way,)
 Too easily seduc't astray, 450
 When Thou shalt find this solide stay,
 This Center of repose,
 How shall the pleasures of this day,
 Adorning Thee with rich array,
 Thy suffred labours all delay, 455
 Afflictions all compose?

What boundlesse Ocean of delight
 Shall quench all paines, all passed plight,
 Endured wrongs, digested spight
 Of tyrannizing pride, 460
 By Angels, Messengers of light,
 Mat. 14. 3. When brought in thy Redeemer's sight,
 Set free from deathe's eternall night,
 Adjudg't, in blesse to byde?

- Mat. 25. 34.
35. 36. When large Memorials shall record 465
The meanest good thou didst afford,
To poore, to sicke : when deed, nor word,
Shall want the owne rewarde ?
- 1 Ioh. 2. 1. The Judge, thy Advocate, thy Lord,
Who now absolues, Thee, first restorde : 470
O bond ! O double-twisted cord !
O vnderdeserved regard !
- But O ! when Thou casts back thine eyes,
Thy voyage dangerous espyes,
Foes and ambushments, laide to surprise 475
Thy wayes, when thou dost vieu ;
The traines set fourth Thee to entise,
Base pleasures, which Thou didst despise,
What boundlesse joyes shall thence arise,
What Solace sweet ensue ? 480
- What strange applauses thence shall spring,
When Saints doe shout, when Angels sing,
When Heauen's hie vaults loud Ecchos ring,
Of that Absolving voyce ?
Come yee, whose faith did vpwads spring, 485
Contempt who on the World did fling,
Blest of that great Sky-ruling King,
Enter in endlesse Ioyes.
- O Joyes, with these as farre vn-even,
To Man which to conceiue are given, 490
As loftiest of the Planets seven
Earth's Center doth transcend !
Gen. 3. 24. (By wit, who prease to pry in heauen, Backe by a Cherubin is driven,)
Man's Reason is a vessell riven, 495
Can litle comprehend.

How more perspectiue, pure and free,
 (Sequestred from mortalitie,) 530
 The Understanding facultie,
 How prompter it perceiues!
 How more sublime the Object bee,
 The Union inward and more nie:
 Joyes of a more supreme degrie 535
 The Intellect conceaues!

Here charg'd with chains of flesh and bloode,
 We apprehend by Organs roode,
 The drossie mindes of Earth's weake broode
 Imaginde knowledge swells: 540
 There, bathing in a boundlesse floode
 Of blesse, we shall, (as sprites which stooed)
 Know, (vnpuft vp) our Soueraigne goode,
 In him, all creatures els.

What object can, in greatnesse, hight, 545
 In glorie, majestie, in might,
 This paralell, whence all delight,
 All pleasure only springs?
 With rayes of vncreated light
 Which cherish, not offend the sight, 550
 Who shines most blest, for euer bright,
 Eternall King of Kings.

What Union can so strict bee found,
 So firme, successionlesse, profound?
 Man's deepest speculation drown'd 555
 Is in this vast abisse.
 This gulfe, this Ocean without ground,
 The ravisht minde doth wholly bound,
 It drencht heerein, with glorie crownd,
 Bathes in a Sea of blesse. 560

If charming sounds, ensnaring sights,
 In mindes of wonder-strucken wights,
 Doe moue such violent delights
 As passe the bounds of speach,
 The Joyes then midst these reachlesse hights, 565
 Ay bright with euer-burning lights,
 Must farre transcend the loftiest flights,
 Wits most profound can reach.

The fluide Joyes which here entise,
 From things corruptible arise, 570
 No Union, but externall, ties
 The sense and object fraile.
 How should wee then these pleasures prise,
 Which euer laste about the skies?
 This Union strict all change defies, 575
 This bonde can neuer faile.

What superexcellent degrees
 Of Ioy, the Intellect shall seaze,
 When It, with cleare, vnsyled eyes,
 The speses, natures, strength, 580
 Of beastes, of birds, of stones, of trees,
 Of hearbes, the hid proprieties,
 Th' essentiall differences sees
 Of Creatures all at length?

Of Ioy, what ouerflowing spaite, 585
 Inunding this Theater great,
 Drench with delight shall euery state
 Here marshalled above?
 Till now, euen from the World's first date,
 When Saints secure from sin's deceate, 590
 Their Palmes, their Crownes receiue, who late Earth's vtmost spight did prove.

Nor shall the knowledge of the paine,
 The torments which the damn'd sustain,
 The cryms which earst their soules did staine, 595
 Impare these joyes divine !

These blacke Characters show most plaine
 God's justice, their deserved bane,
 The brightnesse of the blessed traine
 Opposde, now cleare doth shine. 600

Their Vengeance shall the Just rejoyse,
 (Heaven's blesse comparde with hel's annoyes,)
 As earst by regal Prophet's voice,
 Divinely was fore-told.

Psalm 58. 10. Saintes should, incompassed with Joys, 605
 Bathe in their blood, whom death destroyes,
 Happie, who so his life employes
 'Mongst Saints to bee enrold.

Heere oft, (with wonder rapt) wee find,
 The punishment with vertuous minde, 610
 The fault with the rewarde combinde,
 At which the Just repines.

There, fault with punishment confinde,
 Rewarde, to vertuously inclinde,
 Eternal justice vndeclinde, 615
 Impartially assignes.

As these and more joyes vnexpress,
 The Understanding doe invest,
 As in the Center of its rest,
 So heere, the Will doth pause 620
 In peace, which cannot bee encrest,
 Not wrestling passions to digest ;
 O calme tranquillitie ! how blest
 They whom this loadstone draws.

Hence spring such ardent flammes of loue 625
 To God, to all the Saints aboue,
 That not one ioy these hoasts do proue
 Which It doe not delight.

Hence It no fewer joyes doe moue,
 Then God, Co-partners doth approue, 630
 Joyes infinite, which ne're remoue,
 Nor weakned are by slight.

As soules, which horride shads enchaine,
 This doe not feele their meanest paine,
 With mates most hated to remaine 635

 For ay, by just decreite :
 How happie then, this glorious traine,
 With these eternally to raigne,
 Who mutuall loue doe entertaine,
 Insep'nable vnite ! 640

From thence a quiet, calme Content,
 A sympathizing sweet concent,
 Satiety, which vnacquaint
 With loathing, doth arise.
 Man heere in earth's ignoble tent, 645
 Desires vnbounded still torment,
 The more hee hath, the more is bent,
 Things fading to comprise.

O soule ! which life doth heere expose
 To inward feares, to outward foes, 650
 Deluded by deceaving shows,
 With shads of seeming blesse,
 When with content thy Cup oreflows,
 When hopes nor vast desires thou knowes,
 How deare shall bee this sweet repose 655
 Which aye beginning is !

O Peace ! on which all hap depends,
 Man's vnderstanding which transcends,
 To Thee alone our labour tends,
 Our Pilgrimage aspires. 660
 Happie in Thee his life who spends,
 In Joy, in peace which never ends,
 To present Toyles which solace sends,
 Encentring our desires.

By perfect Justice, what excesse 665
 Of Joy shall to the Will accesse,
 Out-shining Adam's righteousnesse
 In innocent estate ?
 (But O ! this Joy who can expresse?
 Not tongues of angels, Man's much lesse, 670
 O ravisht Soule ! heere acquiesse, Drencht in this Ocean great.)

His Reason, Adam's sense and will
 Did serve this God ; but changeable
 Was this submission ; now, but still 675
 All doe themselves subject
 To God ; by bonde most durable,
 Fearing no fall, secure from ill,
 Rendring the soule most am'able
 To God, selfe, Saints elect. 680

O soule dejected, plungde in feare,
 Which stinging thoughts, mind's horrors teare,
 Thy wounded sprite who canst not beare,
 With inward terrours torne !
 O how invaluable, how deare, 685
 Would this integritie sincere
 To Thee, (in conscience rackt) appeare,
 Which doth the saints adorne !

This innocence which doth exclude
 All spots, polluting earth's fraile broode, 690
 Pure, vndistainde, perfectly good,
 Free from least sinfull thought :
 Saintes aye refreshing with that food
 Of God's wingde messengers, which stood
 Confirnde in grace by purple floode, 695
 Which Man's redemption wrought.

Nor shall lesse measure of content
 To Memory of Saints present,
 How life's small period heere was spent,
 Encompassed with cares. 700
 From warres most pittifull event
 If settled, sweetest peace is spent,
 The Soule, which earst did most lament,
 Joyes most, now fred of teares.

Of passed fight the doubtosome [fate] 705
 The souldier doth with joye relate.
 The sea-tosde wight, in dangers great,
 If gone, most pleasure finds.
 Past miseris inunding spaite
 Most sweetens Saint's triumphing state, 710
 Foes spoyles, which no invasion threat,
 Lesse ravish noble Minds.

From passions fred, for happiest lote
 Their purest parts which did bespote,
 Strugling, as exhalations hote 715
 In humide clouds inclosde ;
 From flight of dartes, the World fourth shot,
 (Entisements which the best besotte,)
 While these in their remembrance float,
 How much are they rejoysde? 720

- Mat. 12. 43. Nor shall the Bodie, now all bright,
 The fellow souldier of the spright,
 Bee frustrat of these Joyes, by right 755
 Of its redemption due.
 Of all, the noblest sense, the sight
 Impassible, not harmde by light,
 Aboue all measure shall delight,
 Amazde with wonders new. 760
- Mat. 13. 43. How shall the ravisht Eye admire
 When Suns past number doe appeare?
 Dark'ning that sparke, our hemisphære,
 Which cleeres with chearefull rayes?
 On all hands, Nought, when farre and neare, 765
 Encounters sight but objects cleare,
 Blest Empyrean bands, which weare
 Crowns, Palmes, immortall bayes?
- How shall this Beautie vs amaze?
 How on this glorie shall wee gaze? 770
 How on our bodies, which doe blaze
 With brightest beames of light?
 Our bodies, which ere death did seaze,
 (Death, which no prayers can appease)
 Most loathsome burthens were to these 775
 Whom most they now delight.
- What breast can bound this joye's full spaite,
 To see falne Angels' chayrs of state
 Filde with our friends, familiars late,
 Love long dissolvde, renewde? 780
 To see, to know, (O wonder great !)
 Saints all, all times did heere relate,
 Since Abel's blood, (a long long date,)
 Gen. 4. 8. His brother's hands imbrued?

- By force of flammes which all subdue, 785
 When broght to nought this world's false shew,
 2 Pet. 3. 13. Of Heauen, of earth, the fabricke new
 What wonders shall afford?
- Rev. 19. 2. Things which before wee never knew,
 Charming our euer-gazing view, 790
 With pleasures endlesse, perfect, true,
 Which tongue cannot record.
- But none of all these objects rare,
 Can with thy sight, O Christ, compare.
Fulnesse of Joy reflecteth there 795
 On these at thy right hand.
- Psal. 17. 15. In Righteousnesse thy face preclare
 Who viewing satisfied are,
 For which a place Thou didst prepare
 Before Thy throne to stand. 800
- If that great Herauld of Heaun's King,
 Record of Thee sent foorth to bring,
 For Joy, did in thy presence spring,
 An Embrion yet vnborne.
 If yet a babe, thy sight benigne 805
 So Simeon's soule with joy did sting,
 That hee his Obsequies did sing,
 With age and weaknesse worne.
- If Easterne Sages spar'de no paine,
 By Pilgrims' toyles, thy sight to gaine, 810
 An infant, borne but to bee slaine,
 In manger meanlie laide ;
 What soule then can these joyes containe
 Which shall arise to see Thy raigne,
 The glory of thy heauenlie traine, 815
 Whose pompe shall never fade ?

But O! (Mee thinkes) of heavenly layes
 A consort sweet my sense betrayes,
 By organs of mine Eare, allayes
 All mind-remording cares. 820
 Aboue time, motion, place, which raise
 My ravisht thoughts, to heare his praise
 Proclaimde which heauen's blest hosts amaze,
 By notes of Angels' ayres.

O harmony transcending Arte! 825
 Of which the hopes ease present smart;
 Thrise happie they who beare a part
 In this coelestiall Quire.
 O blest Musitians most expert,
 Whose Ditties all delight impart, 830
 Whose hymnes exhilarate the heart,
 And entertaine the Eare!

Of Ambrosie, of Nectar, streames,
 (Heaven's dainties hid in heathnish names,)
 An endlesse feast the Lambe proclaimes, 835
 To all the Saints above.
 The Saints refresht more with his beames
 Then worldlings with vaine pleasures dreams,
 O how desiderable seemes
 To Thine, this feast of Love! 840

If beggars vile themselves hold grac't,
 At tables of great Kings to feast,
 With curious cates to please their taste,
 With choise of rarest things:
 O! what a heavenly sweet repast 845
 Doe Saints enjoy, which aye shall last,
 Who at immortall Tables plac't,
 Feast with the King of Kings.

Of all these Millions which frequent
 This Paradise of sweet content, 850
 Perfumes most rare refresh the sent,
 From a perpetuall spring.

Comforting oynments odours vent,
 Sweet'ning the heauens' transparent tent,
 Which flow from him his blood who spent 855
 His to blesse to bring.

Which, (as in smell, taste, hearing, sight,)
 In feeling als enjoy delight,
 The Body changde, spirituall light,
 Apt euery way to moue ; 860
 Nimble, as thought, to reach by flight,
 (Unwearied,) heauen's supremest hight,
 The Center low, from Zenith bright,
 As It the Minde doth move.

By Motion swift, heere, Bodies tost, 865
 If thus endangered to bee lost,
 The feeling sense, affected most Participats most paine :
 What Joyes (to view this numbrous host)
 The Elementar regions crost, 870
 When both vnarm'd throug heauen's way post,
 Shall then this sense sustaine?

If Spasmes, if Palsies pincing throes,
 If Colick paines invade, (health's foes,)
 These torments Feeling vndergoes, 875
 Most sensible of grieffe,
 Now when sequestred from those woes,
 Which marre lifes vnsecure repose,
 How shall this sense, set free, rejoyse,
 Exult at its reliefe? 880

But euen as one, (more bold than wise,)
 A Pilgrimage doth enterpryse,
 O're Atlas' tops, which hid in skies,
 Crownde are with Winter glasse :
 Hudge Mountains past while hee espyes, 885
 Impenetrable Rockes arise,
 Forc't to retire, his course applyes
 By smoother paths to passe.

So, while aboue the Spheares I prease,
 Steps not by Nature reacht, to trace, 890
 The clouds to climbe with halting pace
 Lets infinite impeach.
 Those reachlesse Ioyes, this boundlesse peace,
 In number, measure, weight, encrease :
 That scarce begunne, my song must cease, 895
 These hights transcend my reach.

FANCIES FAREWELL

SON. 1.

Too long, my Muse, (ah) thou too long didst toile,
 An Æthiopian striving to make white ;
 Lost seede on furrowes of a fruitlesse soile,
 Which doth thy trauells but with Tares acquite.
 Hence-foorth fare-well all counterfeit delyte, 5
 Blinde Dwarfing, I disclaime thy deitie,
 My Pen thy Trophees neuer more shall write :
 Nor after shall thine arts enveigle mee.
 With sacred straines, reaching a higher key,
 My Thoughts about thy fictions farre aspire : 10
 Mounted on wings of immortalitie,
 I feele my brest warmde with a wountless fire.
 My Muse a strange enthusiasme inspires,
 And peece and peece thy flamme in smoake expires.

SON. 2.

Houres mis-employed, evanisht as a dreame,
 My lapse from Vertue and recourse to Ill,
 I should, I would, I dare not say I will,
 By due repentance and remorse redeeme.
 Love's false delight and beautees blazing beame 5
 Too long benighted haue my dazled eyes.
 By Youth misled, I too too much did prise
 Deceaving shads, toyes worthy no esteame.
 Plungde in the tyde of that impetuous streame,
 Where fynest wits haue frequent naufrage made. 10
 O heavenly Pilote, I implore thine aide !
 Rescue my Soule, in danger most extreame :
 Conduct mee to thy Mercyes Port, I pray,
 Save Lord ; oh let mee not bee cast away !

SONNET 3.

Looke home my Soule, deferre not to repent,
 Time euer runnes : in sloath great dangers ly :
 Impostumde soares the patient most torment,
 While wounds are greene the salve with speed apply,
 Workes once adjourn'd good successe seldome try, 5
 Delay's attended still with discontent :
 Thrise happie hee takes time ere time slyde by
 And doth by fore-sight after-wit prevent.
 Look on thy labours : timouslie lament :
 Trees are hewde down vnwholesome fruits bring foorth. 10
 Thy younger yeares, youthes sweet Aprile mispent,
 Strive to redeeme with works of greater worth.
 Looke home, I say, make haste : O shunne delay :
 Hoyse sayle while tyde doth last : Time posts away.

TO THE READER.

CHRISTIAN READER,—

Looke rather to what is intended, than what I have attained. My principall aime and purpose is to show that who soever doth love to see the true purtrate of IESUS CHRIST our LORD, must verse Himselfe in holy Scripture except Hee will chuisse to ly open to delusion. If it please Thee to read and seriously perpend what is said to this purpose, I have enough for my paines. I haue contriv'd it in a measured stile, that thou mayst read with lesser wearying. Looke not for elaborat words, for not only the weightinesse of the subject made mee shunne whatsoever might breed obscuritie, but I ever held the whorish ornaments of affected eloquence an vnsutable ornament to garnish pure Truth. If it seeme to Thee I haue extended the worke to more than a competent length, some few moments shall serue Thee to runne thorow the margents, Howrs thou mayst reserue to what further it shall please [Thee] to make search for in the work. If my stile seeme any where sharpe against the abuse and abusers of the Artificiall Crucifixe, weigh my reasons without prejudice, and I hope I shall not neede, to stand in feare of thy condemning censure. If the maner of handling of this Subject seeme to thee more proper for a Preacher than a Gentleman of my place, refuse it not for this, for a worthy Preacher, of my neere and deare acquaintance, out of His loue to CHRIST and thy Salvation, did not only stirre mee vp to build this peece of work, but both by Conference and Counsell, (as my weaknesse stood in neede of advise) did forwardly concurre to furnish helpe to the materials. Thou shall doe well therefore to passe by the insufficiencie of the Instrument ; that, likeing the purpose neither the better nor the worse for this respect, but looking (chiefly) to the Truth of that which is spoken, by occasion thereof Thou mayst bee stirred vp to a further study of the knowledge of IESUS CHRIST, and Riches of grace and truth in Him, and so to a greater love of Him, and communion with Him, for which end I pray the Spirit of IESUS be with Thee.

THE TRVE CRVCIFIXE

FOR TRVE CATHOLIQVES.

^a 2 Thes. 11. 12. I F sacred ^aTruth did not conciliate trust,
 My doubt remoue by satisfaction just,
 But muse I could not, how from time to time,
^b Gen. 2. Man, (^bbut a masse of animated slime,
 A cloud of dust, tos'd by vncertaine breath, 5
 A wormeling weake, soone to stoupe downe to death,)
 Durst bee so bold, his pow'r as to enlarge ;
^c 2 Command, And ^c(proudly vilipending God's discharge)
 Levit. 26. 2. A frantick freedome to himselfe durst take,
 Psal. 97. 7. An Image for religious vse to make. 10

And now I can not halfe enough admire,
 How fondlings (^ddaring offer vncouth fire)
 The naughtie issue of a noysome seed.
 Like errorr yet should to lyke madnesse lead,
 CHRIST of his honour due induc't to reauē 15
 Vnto their owne inventions, it to giue
 A peece of abject waxe, clos'd in a clout,
 For GOD's lamb, blushing not to beare about :
 Nor (sense distracted) CHRIST's owne proper stile,
 The Crucifixe, forbearing to defile, 20
 It attributing to their Christs of drosse,
 (A man's faind shape, fix'd on a fancied crosse)

It is strange that mā should call the worke of their owne hands.

^d Levit. 10. 1.

Agnus Dei and Crucifixus, Christ his proper stiles, and ascrihe such vertue as flows from CHRIST his person to them, and trust and leave and giue religious worship to thē, and yet plead to passe free of Idolatrie.

Agnus Dei, is as much as the lambe of God.

Crucifixus, as Christ nailed on the Crosse.

With honours, stiles, and titles, not a few,
To crucified CHRIST JESUS, only due.

- To ^a Paule no Crucifixe besids was knowne, 25
 Saue CHRIST. ^b Sonne of the living GOD alone :
 This crucifixe of His, our ^c God, our ^d Lord,
 By all should be obey'd, serv'd, lov'd, ador'd.
 Our harts for Him, whose heart for vs did bleed,
 A rowme should bee to rest in, and reside. 30
- Hee should our glorie, ^e our rejoycing bee,
 Wee ^f liue to Him, who chusd for vs to die.
 His image in our lyfe we all should beare,
 Walking as Hee, ^g pure, innocent, sincere,
 Our ^h flesh, our soule affections mortifying 35
 Heere, to be His for ay, ⁱ our selues denying.
- As ^k to the world, as crucified to sinne
 Readie ^l for Him, with each thing els to twinne
 Wee labour should, while heere wee borrow breath,
 In bleeding hearts ^m to beare about his death. 40
- To this intent, in pure Truth's sacred booke,
 Our dayly task should bee on Him to looke ;
 To ⁿ search the Scripturs, which of Him record,
 And crucified before our eyes afford.
- We should those holy ordinances haunt, 45
 His Sacraments, means which Himselfe did grant,
 And Registred left in His latter will,
 His death to keepe in fresh remembrance still :
 And with a longing soule and listening eare,
 The Gospell's joyfull tidings bent to heare, 50
- Such wee should bee, ^o as knowledge all hold vaine
 Saue CHRIST to know, and for our sinnes Him slaine.
- Thus ^p Paul him suffering to all eyes exposd,
 Which ^q misbeliefe and ignorance not clos'd,
 Thus may wee all Him by faith's piercing eye 55
 In Glasse of his owne institutions see ;
 Thus bee preseru'd from following Christ-lings vaine
 Shewd in the juggling trickes of wits prophane,

 In God's Word and ordinances CHRIST
 may be seene as in a mirrour.

Which Numbers lead astray ; amongst which crew
 No doubt but chosen soules are not a few ; 60
 To whom cleare eyes GOD once to see will giue,
 As others, who did in like error liue,
 That meanes none els, CHRIST'S knowledge can afford,

But such, himselfe hath stablisht in his word.

Thou knowst (sweete CHRIST) the pitifull respect,
 Those simple soules I beare which thee affect, 66
 And faine would find thee, but astray are ledde,
 With vaine inventions in man's fancie bredde,
 Who searching thee, cast in a curious mold
 Of baser mettle, or of purest gold, 70
 Worship to thee, vnwarranted allow,
 And basely to a lying idole bow,
 Intending thus to impetrat thy peace
 Doe loade themselues with sin, thee with disgrace

With pittie mov'd, with indignation just, 75
 To such, a better pourtrate wish I must ;
 Which to draw foorth, LORD furnish me with airt,
 Bee thou my Patrone, who my patterne art ;
 My hand, my pinsell, let thy Spirit guide,
 That (all humane respects farre laide aside) 80
 Free from presumption curiously to trace
 Each subtile line of thy Immortall face.
 Thee shadding foorth, my draughts may not debord

From sacred mirror of thy sauing word.

Teach Thou my straines to flie no other flight, 85
 Still leade mee with the Lanterne of thy light,
 That with thy loue enflam'd, I may with feare,
 Thee in that Glorious mirror still admire :
 Where, to our measure, Thee abridg't we haue,
 Of Thee at least sufficient truth to saue. 90
 Yet so that what thou to reueale hast dain'd,
 A part can bee but of that part attain'd

Which as Man's Soule thy Spirit doth empire,
Some more, some lesse, none fully can acquire :
The soberest measure, euen the least of all 95
If thou vouchsafe, LORD serue my purpose shall.

1.
Man's happinesse stands in his cō-munlon with GOD.

MAN'S prime felicitie and soveraigne blisse,
His onely chieftest good, which most doe
misse,

By combination of eternall bands,
In his Communion with his Maker stands.

2.
This communion in this world is Spiritu-
all only.

This Vnion first spirituall must bee found : 5
The Soule our better halfe to GOD bee bound,
To him conjoynd, before our Bodie's loade
Can bee admitted to his blest aboade.

3.
The way to make it vp & keepe it the right knowledge of GOD.

This band to make, of GOD the knowledge true
So needfull is, to man ere sinne hee knewe, 10
That life it was his GOD to know aright :
Now life eternall is, since put to flight
By disobedience, truly GOD to knowe,
And CHRIST his Sonne, the source whence life doth flowe.

Ihon 17. 3.

^a 1 Pet. 5. 8.
Sathan therefore hath ever labored to mar man's knowledge of God that he might marre man's communion with GOD.

^b Apoc. 12. 9.
Jude 5. 6.

God's Rebell ^aSathan, man's malicious foe, 15
Debard from grace, since first by pride brought low ;
Depriud of happinesse, ^bexild from Heaven,
Hopelesse to be restor'd, to darkenesse driven,
In malice set, by subiltie and slight
Man's happinesse to marre with all his might, 20
Him from his GOD, and Soveraigne good to part,
Striues, of his GOD the knowledge to pervert.

^c Gen. 1. 26.
Man at his first makeing had sufficient knowledge of GOD given him hy meanes appointed of God to moue him
to keepe cōmunlon
with his Maker.

^d Rom. 1. 19.

In man (his ^cMaker's image) GOD infus'd
A light too glorious to haue beene abus'd,
A ^dHeavenly knowledge (forefault by his fall) 25
Both of himselfe and things created all ;
In which faire volume Man might dayly looke,
And exercise his witts, as in a Booke,

Which him to reade, to studie did invite,
 GOD's boundlesse pow'r, his wisdome infinite. 30

^a Gen. 3. 5.

¹ But Satan by an vnlawfull meane offering to augment his knowledge bereft him of the benefite of that which he had.

The ^aSerpent offering to augment this light,
 By greater knowledge to vnsile His sight ;
 (For yet his eyes had still beene closde to ill,
 No wicked thoughts perverted had his will) ;
 Did vnawarres thus worke his ouerthrow, 35
 Sinne making him at once commit and know.

Thus not alone by treason did seclude
 Himselfe from grace, lost GOD, his chiefest good,

^b Rom. 5. 12.

^b But guiltie made his offspring by his fall,
 Which puld in him the fruit which poysond all : 40
 Thus (Errour ruling Reason's sacred raigne)
 False GODS, Imaginarie Good did faine
 Iustly of skill, of will, of strength denude,
 To know, loue, follow, what was truely good.

GOD after the fall brake vp the light of the restoring and saving knowledge of CHRIST in the promise of the incarnation of his word and wisdome.

But O the bountie ! O the boundles loue 45
 Of GOD, whom mercie no desert did move,
 Hee of his goodnesse willing to reclaime
 Those Rebels, objects vile of wrath and shame,
 Did with himselfe determine to bringe backe,
 And His, wretcht Man, by double title, make, 50
 Restoring him to more since his offence,
 Than he enjoyd in state of innocence :

Gen. 3. 15.

So bound himselfe by promise to this end
A Woman's Sonne vnto the world to send,
A Man in Wisdome, Majestie and Might, 55
 Equall with GOD, to frustrate Sathan's slight :
 The Serpent's heade to breake, his works destroy,
 Lost happynesse that man might re-enjoy.

But Sathan stroue by misbeliefe to debarre man from seeing this light.

The father of deceitt, That lyar bold,
 Now blinded Man in darknesse striues to hold, 60

Iohn 8. 44.

And, with his owne prevailling did pervert,
 And harden cursed Cain's cruell heart,

Gen. 4.

And such as hee, his misbeliving seede,
 God's faithfull word and promise to disside.

God appointed sacrifices and oblations as spectacles to helpe man's dimme sight to see Christ the Lambe
slaine from the beginning of the world.
But Satban stroue
to make men gaze
on the spectacles
only, and not looke through them to
CHRIST.

To help man's weaknesse, GOD in offerings shew 65
His holy Lambe set forth to publicke viewe,
Him outward figures shadowing beneath :
To manifest the vertue of his death.

The Devill of all their types the trueths did hide :
Man made vpon the outward worke abide : 70
To set all labor'd (whom his sugred hooke,
To swallow over he could moue to looke),
Beyond the signes to their appointments end,
That so for trueths men might on shads depend.

After the flood God made it yet more manifest that his Sonne should be a man incarnat by apparitions, and personall types.

GOD yet this mysterie to make more plaine, 75
His Sonne for Man's redemption to bee slaine
More clearly in the flesh to manifest,
Good hopes to Man did giue, on which to rest,
To ^amortall eyes presenting now and than,
The World's Redeemer in the shape of man. 80

to destroy this light images in Sen's pos-teritie where the visible kirk was.

Now Sathan seeing hee did moyen lacke,
CHRIST'S comming in man's Nature to keepe backe,
New slights assayde, and so his purpose wrought,
That he, in Heber's house, (Sen's offspring) brought of Him. Not ceassing his intent to follow, mixd

 With GOD's pure Truth traditions, not a few,
 Which lasted till our LORD did all make new ;
 And 'mongst GOD's people, and peculiar race,
 For outward idols finding now no place, 120
 Wholly his slight extending, did neglect
 No meanes in minds an idole to erect :
 Of many, whom his subiltie did make

 To dreame that CHRIST should bee an earthly king,
 To earthlings earthly dignities to bring, 126

 And boldly dares renew the auncient warre, 165
 With envy swolne, this glorious worke to marre ;
 He streight did stoppe Man's vnattentiu eare,
 That man should not His heavenly doctrine heare.

With foggie mists, with sinne's thick clouds He blinds,
 The mirror darke of world-distracted minds, 170
 That they no further than his outside pierce,
 The glorious beames His Godhead did disperse,

- In all his actions dazling so their sight,
 That with weake eyes they might no view this light ;

 Ly taken in the craftie hunter's snaire.
- But CHRIST who came, lost mankind to reclame,
 Least this humilitie should marre his ayme, 190
 GOD in himselfe invisible to show,
 And manifest to Earthlings heere below,
 That Essence Infinit, Omnipotent,
 Most Good, most Glorious, most Excellent,
 Did wonderfully in His Heavenly brest, 195
 (Tho never but in motion) ever rest,
- To remed this error,
 Christ remoueth his bodily presence & causeth write His Natures, Offices,
 Wordes, Workes,
 life, death, and all that serued to sal-
 uation.
- Hee, his Apostles, Messengers diuine,
 Pen-men, in whom pure Trueth vnstain'd did shine,
 Inspyrd, as Hee did by His Spreit endite,
 His birth, lyfe, death and testament to write, 200
 So that (tho Atheists this wovne coate would rend, GOD'S WORD by heavenly inspiration pend,)
 What These, what His Evangelists record,
 Sweet straines, in sweetest harmony accord ;
 Which holy ditements as a mirrour meete, 205
 Ioynd with the Prophetes in Him compleet,
 Might serue His Glorious Image to present,
 To such as sought Him with a pure intent,

To make Him truely to salvation knowne,
 To all that loue Him, ev'n to all His owne. 210

Onely the outward shape & lineaments of His face and bodie, He will haue conceilld and not written in scriptur.

In These His Pen-men whose skild pencill drew,
 Not His adulterat, but his pourtrait true,
 In mirror of the Scriptures He imprents,
 Vntouched to leave His outward Lineaments,
 His bodies frame, the featur of His face 215
 To Him but common with fraile Adam's race,
 Giues charge his person, properties to paint
 The world with His life, doctrine, death, acquaint,
 His Nature's offices, His wonders wrought,
 His sufferings, sayings; not omitting ought 220
 That to His praise, Man's profite might redound
 In all whats needefull to Saluation found,
 Which might our Faith confirme, our Loue inflame,
 Or paterne proue to which our Life to frame.

And this our LORD did wiselie: for the sight, 225
 Of man's base shape, in Him, but dim'd the light
 Of GOD's perfection, and did onely show,
 The fraile infirmities from flesh that flow.

The bodily sight of the lineaments of our Lord his face and bodie was a stumbling block to many that saw him: the rehearsall whereof in Scripture hee thought
 not expedient.

And what of These, could the record haue wrought?
 What good His bodie's just proportion brought, 230
 Since, face to face injoyd, His living sight,
 As heere he did present an earthly wight,
 So little helpt the world in Him to view,
 Of God Invisible The Image true?

At These the world did stumble: These espyde
 With nature's twilight, millions made to slide. 236
 These were the barke, through which (with pleasing strife,)

Illlightned eyes did view the Tree of life:
 These were the Caske, which peirc'd, sweet balme
 did yeeld

That to an angrie GOD wretcht man conceild. 240

These were the vaile the Godhead's beames did hide,
 In Him did dwell and bodily abide,

Which cloud to peirce, this Sunne which did withhold,
Did all behouue, who view His Godhead would.

These but the superfice, which cover did 245
The richer substance of the Treasures hidde
Of knowledge deepe, of wisdomes most profound,
Of vnseene graces, which in Him were found.

Christ's bodily shape did not show what a one Hee was, much lesse is the faind shaddow
of that shape, fitt
to show to vs what a one he either was or is.

Thus what of CHRIST was set to outward sight
(While seene on Earth of Heaven to make vs right)
His bodie's shape, His lineaments of face, 251
The featur's choice, which Him did chieffie grace,
Him to point foorth were equall in no sort,
And what a one Hee was, to show came short :

Againe, of what the Eye a-lyfe espyde, 255
A lifelesse picture can no be denyed
Yet short to come : for Painters doe not ayme
The soule of Him, whose shape the hand doth frame
To set in sight : They striue alone to leaue
His Bodie's figure, whom they paint or graue, 260
And that but for the present day or houre
They did the Paterne see, but having pow'r,
Time, wrinkled age still hastning by degrees,
Their arte to mock, which mock mistaken Eyes.

The Scripture onely is a fitt mirror wherein we may gott a right sight of Iesus, and of whatsoeuer is to hee
knowne of him for confort and salvation.

But these viue draughts whose Heavenly luster shine,
By arte most exquisite, in write divine 266
Not superficially his shape doe show,
But solidly make vs our Saviour know ;
Not as our Image, but as God's He bare,
In our fraile Nature, Man as men wee are ; 270
Not in one Nature, but in both vnite,
God-man conjoynd, a Sauour compleet,
Not in one act, one case, or one estate,
But from his birth, even to His life's last date,
From his descending to Earth's lower parts, 275
The Virgin's wombe, this mirror bright imparts
Him fully, till He suffering did ascend,
At God's right hand to raigne, world without end.

He must therefore verse himselfe in Scripture who desires to see Christ
and not to be deluded with conceits
of a false CHRIST.

If CHRIST's true pourtrait truely then to see,
Thou longest, the Scripture must thy mirror bee, 280
The Spirit (heere) thy LORD, then yeeres more old,

What one He should bee, ere Hee came, foretold,
And, ere humanitie did Him invest,
His purtrait wonderfully (heere) exprest,
For vs not onely serving on the stage, 285
But all the Elect, since the world's first age.

The auncient Church did all in substance see,
Know, loue, beleeeve, enjoy, of Him what wee.

Heere, as the Spirit in this mirror cleare,
Him singled foorth, His sight, by faith sinceere, 290
Did patriarchs all and Prophets so enflame,
That in His day they joyd before Hee came.

In short, no age did revelatioun lacke,
 CHRIST the Messiah manifest to make 350
 From time to time, who by degrees of light,
 By Types or Prophecies was set in sight,
 Till from the Arke, the outward covering drawne,
 This glorious Day-starre in the flesh did dawne.

In the new Testament you shall see more clearly Christ revealed than the Prophets sawe
 Him vnder the Law.

 his miracles and passion.

His Glorÿ's beames obscurd, His Might allayed,
 His Courage seeming quaild, His Strength decayed ;
 Crusht downe with weight of GOD's incumbering wrath,
 His guiltlesse soule made heavy to the death,
 Thy Crimes the cause, thy sinnes inunding speate,
 The meanes from Him which drew this bloudie
 sweate, 566

Mat. 26. 38.

Whom (notwithstanding) Hee did (so) esteeme,
 That all His sufferings did most pleasant seeme
 Thee, wretched wormeling, to redeeme from death,
 Perdition's heyre, sinne's slaue, the child of wrath ;
 To thee the Father's favour to acquire, 571
 Not shrinking to drinke off the dregs of ire.

The Popish cruci-
 fixe doth but mocke & not expresse the sufferings of Christ.

These bee the sufferings, counterfits which scorne,
 Which lyfelesse draughts deface, but not adorne.
 These be the sufferings which perplexed soules 575
 Most sensibly conceiue, sunk deep in scrouls
 Of tender bleeding hearts, The only way,
 Most liuelie felt which make his Torments may ;
 Who (heere) the dolors of his death engrosse,
 Best feele the fruicts and comforts of his crosse. 580

O wonderfull respect ! O loue vnheard !
 O deare affection matcht with misregard !
 Loe, Hee who bought Man at so deare a rate,
 By Man is ^asold, betrayd by Man vngrate,
 The traitor's mouth, which flowd with fraud, with hate, 585

 With this soft speech, this gracious checke alone,
 Doth wound, not wonne, the traytor's heart of stone.

Mat. 26. 52.

See how Hee doth His forwardnesse represses,
 Who preas'd, by arms, this offred wrong redresses,

And healing instantlie the harme receav'd, 595
 Yet did not mease the causelesse spight, conceau'd
 In hardned hearts so farre from grace, from loue,
 That miracle, nor favour them can move.

O see Him in a most opprobrious forme
 Led hence, transported with this raging storme, 600
 Left by His owne, yeelding His conqur'ing hands,
 Thee to set free, to ignominious bands.

With lamps, with lanterns led, they apprehend
 The Sonne of truth, incarnate to this end.
 That glorious Beame of vncreated light, 605
 By flesh and bloode invaild, hid from their sight,
 Thus all foretold gainst actors of this Ill,
 Against themselves do perfitly fullfill.

O Earth! O ashes who thyselſe turmoylst,
 And with vindictiue flams of furie boylst, 610
 Tormenting others, darst revenge avouch,
 Vpon thy reputation's slendrest touch,
 See, with what patience, with what silence deepe,
 While Jews disgrace vpon disgrace doe heape,

Thy Sauour to the Smiters giues his backe, 615
 Doth from the Nippers not his cheeks keepe backe.
 To shame, to spitting, doth expose his face,
 The path not only pointing thou shouldst trace,
 But treading euerie steppe, hath taught the way,
 From which t'is shame, yea dangerous to stray. 620

Loe in this hight of scorne, depth of disgrace,
 With cheare vnchang'de he dares his foes outface,
 Yet from his lips not one intemperat word,
 His mercillesse tormenters doth remord.

CHRIST'S Testament which these and all contains,
 That Hee did suffer, shame or outward paines, 626
 Needfull for Thee to know in one small Booke
 Is found, on this in steade of pictures looke :

Each loue-sicke soule to Him betroathd by fayth,
His loue thus showne, to kindle loue againe, 635
That mutually love wee might intertaine;

Nor let by wrong nor violence be reft,
But striue to know what written for thy well,

 The vine-presse of the Father's Ire doth treade,
 Fixt to the crosse, his hands, his feete transpierced,
 Exposd to paine, to horrors vnrehearsed, 670
 His gracious armes forth stretching all the day,
 To rebells walking in an evill way.

 In short their is no- THIS, and what more to search for, thou aspires, thing thou needst
 to know of Christ
 but all is in His testament. What faith can wish or what thy soule desires,
 The Spirit in this mirrour shall disclose,
 And to thy sight of Him as much expose,
 As may thy soule heereafter serue to saue, 695
 And guide thee (heere) with comfort to the graue,
 Except His inward vertues thou neglect,
 And but his outside carnally affect.
This, GOD hath thought vnnecessare to show,
This farre vnnecessare for thee to knowe ; 700
 Sufficient that, which These who knew Him best,
 And best did know to make him knowne, exprest

Haue left, enregistred in holy write,
Which They did penne, GOD's Spirite did endite.

Luke 16. 29.

These who saw Christ with their bodilie eyes knew him not to be that Christ till hee
opned their eyes to behold him in the scriptures.

Thus hath the Lord his will most clearelie showne,
By other means refusing to bee knowne 706
Then by his word alone, where faith's bright eye,
His hidden graces may most liuelie see,
So that (except this way) no knowledge true,
Accrest of Him, vnto the outward viewe 710
Of These, admitted in his humane state,
To touch Him, ev'n with Him to drinke, to eate.

THIS being then the course by God prescriv'd
To Man, of other means of grace depriv'd,
To know the Sonne, and in the Sonne the Sire, 715
The Sonne, concealler of the Father's Ire,

Col. 1. 19, 26.

Christ to make men know him hath set foorth the Scriptures and hidden
his hodilie shape.
But Sathan strives
by meās of the Roman Clergie to expresse his hodilie shape which can not show Him and suppresse the scriptures which might make Him knowne.

O judge what Spirit this great worke to marre,
This course to crosse, the Scriptures would debarre
And hide this Mirror from the longing sight
Of Soules, which faine would see this Sunne of light, 720
Enjoyning such, this knowledge to attaine,
By pictures false, or some resemblance vaine
Of that externall shape, which GOD did hide,
Least any in this fruitlesse search should slide?

No Spirit doubtlesse els, but Hee, whose slight
Seeks GOD and Man, to seuer day and night, 726
With envy boyling, at man's good who griev'd,
Hath ay a lyer and a Murtherer liv'd ;

Gen. 3. 6.

Heaven ;
For Moloch, Milcom, Baal, Ashtaroth, 735
Who made the nations God's true worship loath ;

Who Images of GOD, hath oft devysd,
 And Men's deluded fantasies entysd
 A furtherance in GOD'S seruice to conceat,
 By means engendring his eternall hate ; 740
 Thus Aaron did the golden calf erect ;
 These vain surmises Micah did infect.
 A house of GODS, a Levite to his Priest
 Who having This of blessings held no least ;
 Of the Messias who possesst Man's braine 745
 With fond conceats, Imaginations vaine
 Before Hee came, that when in humble state,
 Not seconding their expectation great,
 Hee did a servant's shape assume, whom they Conceiv'd, the scepter of the world should sway, 750
 An earthly Monarch, a triumphing King,
 Who by resistlesse force should freedome bring
 To their subjected state, Himselfe oppose
 To tyranizing pride of conqu'ring foes,
 Whom finding Other then they did surmise, 755
 With strong delusions led, the world agrees,
 The true Messias cruellie to kill,
 Expecting their fore-fancied Saviour still :
 Although our LORD, inviting oft there view,
 In Scriptures to behold his paterne true, 760
 Which, holy Prophets livelie had exprest,
 Ere fleshe's vaile His God-head did invest,
 Yet He, this Glasse who hid, their eyes did sile :
 His guiltlesse blood must needs their hands defile.
 The same is Hee who trauells in excesse, 765
 Yet from the world the Scriptures to suppressse,
 And from the knowledge true of CHRIST, therein,
 The world debarring keeps the world in sinne :
 Cous'ning poore people by deceitfull slight,
 Of paynters arte, affording false delight, 770
 Filling their hands, robt of GOD's sacred word,
 With pictures, from their paterns which debord,

Exod. 32.

The error of Christ
 his earthly Kingdome was so com-monlie receiued

 livered of it till tioun. Act. 1.

2 Thes. 2. 11.

Which bold blasphemers, destitute of shame,
 Now CHRIST, the holy Crucifixe now name.

What Spirit els, except GOD'S auncient Foe, 775
 Would striue to hide what God hath meant to show?
 Or who, except alone that Spirit bold,
 That dare raikē vp, which GOD ly buried would?
 What Spirit els the world to looke would let
 In that pure Mirror, whence faint soules might get Refreshment, by the sight of Him alone, 781
 Who in His word is seene, is rightlie knowne?
 Who els would sweate the multitude to leade,
 By lying Images, GOD'S peace to pleade,
 By which the world is rather led astray 785
 After dumb Idols in damnation's way?

Judge then whom These, who willfull Agents bee,
 Patrons prophane of this impietie
 Doe serue, who superstitiouslie maintaine
 This forg'rie, Man in darknesse to detaine, 790
 The Romane Clergie, who of pow're too weake,
 The words pure light to make the world forsake
 By craft doe cast about another way
 To dimme the luster of this Lamps cleare Raye,
 The holy Scripture branding with disgrace, 795
 Which to traditions they but second place,
 Making the world It, with a just neglect,
 Corrupt and poysond in the source suspect,
 Imperfyte, and in vulgare tongues to bee
 Translated, needlesse, not from danger free. 800
 Thus from foule mouths maliciouslie they spew,
 Against the Scriptures not aspersions few,
 Furthering the world (so farre as in them lyes),
 GOD'S word as hard, yea hurtfull, to despyse,
 Yet CHRIST'S pretended Image on the Crosse,
 Their leaden braines with superstition grosse 806
 Doth so distract, that This, they madly seeme,
 To honour more than Him did them redeeme,

Antichristian hatred & the Spirit of Sathan may beo seene in these who blaspheme the scripture, for if any man at Rome should say but the same of all the popes writtings and the writtings of popish doctors which they say of the holie Scripture, hee should beo streight way declared anemie to the kirk of Rome, and put to death for a deuilish heretick.

The suppressing of the common reading of the Scripture makes such way to all errors, that the Romane clergie rules secure lie and rainges over all kingdoms, countries, and commonwealths, while they get place over King's crowns, men's consciences, their soules, bodies, lands, rents, and movables, and all at their pleasure.

To which they teach, as CHRIST's Resemblance true,
Religious worship, yea divyne is due, 810
Yea that same worship, which to CHRIST they owe,
If Hee Himselfe did personally showe.

The Scripture thus defended from the Lay,
Traditions vncontrold fynd patent way,
Their canons, constitutions, Popes' decrees, 815
False definitions, legends stuff with lyes,
Doctrines deboarding from the written Word
With Scripture equall credite thus afford,
Yea of the Scripture thou mayst nought beleue,
But in what sense the Pope is pleasd to giue : 820
Thus, to the blinded world's astonishment,
Their Lying wonders with beleife they went,
Thus from the People they their Errors hyde,
Which, by the sharper sighted if espyd,
The word withdrawne, their labour lighter is, 825
To make them thinke they did decerne a-misse.
Thus must the People found their faith on trust,
For as their Church-men, so beleue they must.

This fyner threed doth to their arts-men giue,
A net of merits, of good works to weave, 830
By which they fish, (from such as may be brought,
To apprehend that Heaven may thus bee bought,
With excesse to maintayne Those who have charge,
Of convents, cloisters) Rents, dotations large,
And if this fully doth no worke their end, 835
A larger Net of Pennance they extend,
From which to bee exem'd, they waird, they watch,
The Rich-ones by Indulgences to catch,
Who by their purse chuisse rather to bee purgt,
Then fast from flesh, then suffer to bee scourgt. 840

But if some Fish, free from the danger leape,
And both the one and other doe escape,
To bee assur'de then both of poore and rich,
A Hose-nett they of Purgatorie pitch,

By which they seaze a-like on each degree ; 845
 Heere Great ones stick, yea not the Frie go free ;
 All, by the doctrine which these Clerks do found,
 Vngratious, yea vnnat'rall must be found,
 (At death at least) except with minds devote,
 Allowance, in some measure, they allote, 850
 Some kynd remembrance, Masses to maintaine,
 Soules to set free, from purgatorie's paine.

Thus do those Glow-wormes which but shine by night,

The substance of the world suck vp by slight,
 By shows of holynesse, by secreet stealth, 855
 Congesting mountaines of entysing wealth,
 To which, as Ravens which doe a Carion see,
 Trowps of Church-orders, swarms of Shavelings flie,
 Of which none idle, all on worke are set :
 By Cous'ning miracles, some doe credite get, 860
 To Cristen bells, tosse beads they some appoint,
 Some crosse, some creepe, some sprinkle, some anynt,

Some hallow candles, palmes, crisme, ashes, wax,
 Some penitents admitt to Kisse the Pax ;
 And while this crew in these imployment wants, 865
 They multiply both male and female Saints ;
 A severall Church they to each Saint allote ;
 By raysing Altars they must seme devote,
 In one Church diverse, to a diverse end,
 Which men enabled with new meanes must tend. 870

No wonder then they vrge a strict restraynt,
 Of Scripture, Seene, which would the World acquynt
 With these Imposturs, damnable deceats,
 Indang'ring vnder trust, so great Estates,
 Which if they licenc't were GOD'S Word to view, 875
 Should doubtlesse bide those forg'ries all adiew.

Act. 19. 24.

For Images looke what did set on fire
 What earst did kindle the Ignoble Ire

Popish crucifixes
 bring more gaines
 to the Popish craftesmen and Clergie, than the Images of Diana,
 or any idoll to the craftsmen of Ephesus.

Of that EPHESIAN confused crew,
 All in a Mutinous concurse which flew, 880
 While of this Monster the seditious Head,
Demetrius for Diana's shrines did plead.
 What motives then did these incense, the same,
 Place now for their Imagery doe clayme,
 Them stirring vp more turbulent, how much 885
 Their trade doth breed them greater gayne, then such.
 For but the mettel's worth and craftsmen's paynes,
 Did breed Ephesians answerable gaynes,
 But of their Picturs what the eye espyes, 889
 'Tis nought ; their worth in forme nor matter lyes,
 These valued are, on these the world doth doate,
 As Church-men holinesse to them alloate,
 As sacred vertue Men in them conceave,
 Which Pope or Prelate, at their pleasure gave,
 Thus by conceit, the Simple to entyse, 895
 These by opinion, not by worth who prise.
 Thus doe they farre those Silver-smiths out-flee,
 In witty traffiquing, in policy,
 Masking their avarice with greater slight,
 Than these who sold but what they set in sight, 900
 Their consecrated Crucifixes be
 Most prisd for their supposed sanctitie.

It is strange that their being so many pretended Crucifixes, and sensible differences betuixt
 everie one of them,
 yet men will beare
 it out that every one of them ar pur-traits of Christ.

But this in mee moves greatest admiration,
 Tho every day bring foorth a new creation
 Of these false pictures, an adulterat brood, 905
 So that in number, number they exclude,
 Yet all of them, though of a diverse frame,
 Each differing from another, boldly clame,
 CHRIST vively to exhibite to the eye,
 Stretcht foorth to death vpon an abject tree ; 910
 So that, it seems more CHRISTS they either make,
 Or CHRIST doe for the damned thiefe mistake,
 Sith neither Graver's toole, nor Paynter's arte,
 Doe other difference, saue in thoght impairt,

Yet howsoever, whether This or that 915
 They doe resemble, all of them they rate,
 And doe in as high estimation hold,
 (Though infinite in number) as of old,
Ephesians did their One Palladium prise, 919
 Which they did fancie Iove sent downe from skyes.

The Bible serues not for Poperie as fained Crucifixes doe and therefore sell the worse, yea are thrust out of the Market.

CHRIST'S purtrate thus in Scripture is supprest,
 Lest their abuses It should manifest,
 And lying Pictures in its place are thrust,
 Yet vnder colour of a reason just,
 Since Images (say they) by silent speach, 925
 As bookes, the rude, the ignorant doe teach,
 Since Scripture to the vse of all, least free,
 Oft misconceiud doth lead to heresie.

The pretense of Images serving for books to the Laicks answered.

But who but poore deluded soules can trust,
 That Images, inventions but of dust, 930
 In teaching truth GOD'S sacred word doe match,
 That Scriptures serue but heresies to hatch?

Shall Idols dumbe, be speaking Teachers prisd?
 Shall speaking scriptures be dumbe rules despisd?
 By Craftsman's arte on mettle, woode, or stone, 935
 Shall CHRIST more lively to the world bee showne,
 Then by Their dytments who did him behold,
 And left His words, deeds, life, & death enrold?

If holy write some impiously abuse,
 This to maintaine lewd heresies who chuse, 940
 Must guiltlesse soules, must people innocent,
 Of their offence endure the punishment?
 Thus should wee shunne the Sunne's conforthing light,
 Which (happily) hath hurt some stairing sight,
 Thus losse the comfort of GOD'S creatures goode,
 Since some that poysons which is others' foode. 946
 If heresies (by which are most misled)
 In learned, but vnhallowed brayns are bred,
 Since hatcht, nor nurst by the simplicitie,
 Of vulgar braynes these deepe delusions bee, 950

Why then doe holy harmesse people smart,
For heady Churchmen's fault, without desert?

The 4 answeare.

Mat. 21. 16 & 42.

Mat. 22. 29.

If Error (which wee should as death despyse),
Doth from not reading of the word aryse,
As CHRIST doth teach, why then (in Christ's de-spight), 955

To keepe from erring smother they this light?

But all that to their minds doth disagree,
Is repute Error, held for heresie ;
Though Peter, Paul, or Prophet did perswade,
Though CHRIST Himself affirmd the contrare
hade,

Their words must either not bee hard at all, 961

Or vnder Popish dispensation fall

To passe for Scripture, so a sense receive,

In other meaning than the Spirit gave,

A glosse the Text confounding quyte ; because 965

For Error all they hold that hurts their cause.

The Scripture such a mirror to shew
Christ that it changes the student into the liknesse of Christ whille there he beholdeth him
by sayth.

The Mirror pure, in which Christ's face doth shine

The Scripture is, that register divyne

Of holy write, that sacred, saving Booke,

In which our LORD hath licenct vs to looke, 970

Where, if wee labour earn'stly for His sight,

The skales of darknesse which our eyes be-night,

He doth remove, and maks vs clearly see

With open face, the beames of Majestie,

2 Cor. 3. 18.

And true Beholders by a manner strange, 975

Doth peece and peece in His owne liknesse

change,

And in this study as wee progresse make,

Wee of the Glory which wee see partake,

Exod. 34. 29.

Changt in our soules by CHRIST's renuing grace,

As on the mount was changed Moses' face. 980

The impletie of suppressing the scripture.

Why doe they syle poore mocked peoples' sight,
CHRIST's face from viewing in this mirror bright?

Why hinder they faynt sin-chargt soules to see,
CHRIST whom they search for, where hee found may bee?

The Spirit's working which doth men renew, 985
By means of this true sight, this inward view,
The change of soules from sinne why do they marre,
Why saving knowledge from the world debarre?

What helpe can all their pow'rlesse purtraits make,
From forger's fancie which doe fashion take, 990
Truely to teach CHRIST'S Naturs, Essence, Will,
Or in CHRIST'S Image men to change from ill?

Popish Crucifixes
doe marre the true knowledge of Christ and teach the people lies.

Shall Their false picturs, Crucifixes faynd,
CHRIST'S Mirror bee (that sacred fountaine staind),
In these or shall the Spirit men make see, 995
Or what CHRIST is, or what themselves should bee.

O three times impious! O blasphemous speach!
These nought to lookers on but lyes do teach,
And like themselves, their favourits they make,

Psal. 115. 8.
Ibid. 5, 6, 7, &
Psal. 135. 15.

As heads they have, but understanding lake, 1000
As mouthes which speike no, feete which never move,

As eyes that see no, yet doe set on love,
And justly doe of wit, of sense bereave,
Disciples all, such Teachers as beleave,
Suffering themselues to bee debard the sight, 1005
Of holy write, which truely teach them might.

Ephe. 4. 18.

Great is the miserie of man by Sinne,
The Ignorance of GOD Man binds therin.
The way to freedome from these heavy bands,
In GOD'S true knowledge principally stands; 1010
GOD truely's knowne but in his Christ to none,
And GOD in CHRIST who know fynd life alone.
Now CHRIST, who onely GOD Himselfe who so,
That man may GOD, Man must Himselfe make kno.
The fittest meanes Himselfe to manifest, 1015
To His owne searchelesse Wisdome knowne are best.

able love of man's salvation hath set his wisdom (Luke
10. 22; Mat. 11. 27;
John 17. 3) on worke
to devyse the fittest means to make himselife knowne to the world, and what his wisdom thought fittest for that end, his love hath mad him cairefully set

downe in his testament, but no word of the lineaments
of his face or shape of his bodie or pictures to expresse it.

Hee knows what neede wee of this knowledge have,

And how without it nothing vs can save,
And how the losse of Mankynd he doth beare,
Doth by His Death, to bring vs life appeare. 1020

His loue to saue vs, Him who did despise,
Did set on worke His wisdome to devise,
All Meanes which of Himselfe the knowledge pure
And so of GOD, might to our soules procure,
And so in him bee reconceild, so fred 1025
From wrath, so to eternall life bee led :

And what His Wisedome for our well devisd,
His constant care, in holy write comprisd
Hath left, the Meanes thus setting in our sight,
Which of Himselfe the saving knowledge might 1030
Sufficiently disclose ; Meanes onely meet
To make Him knowne, Meanes in themselues com-pleet,

Without the forg'ry hatcht in humane braine
Of lying pictures, Crucifixes vaine, 1034
Which for His knowledge Hee hath thought vnfit,
Since mongst His Meanes these He doth not admit.

Thus hath Hee not the Means alone prescriv'd, Which point Him foorth (Means in His Word contriv'd).

But All doth charge, who warm'd are with His loue,
And Means to make Him rightly knowne would proue, 1040

To search the Scriptures, if for life they looke ;
In all men's hand CHRIST puts this saving Booke :
This, Hee doth warrant, to eternitie,
A constant witsse of Himselfe to bee.

But Picture-mongers, mad Demetrius' heires, 1045
Vnlawfull gayne to make of worthles wares,
By other Means then CHRIST, to lead to Heaven,
New bookes haue fayned, new directions given.

Therefore the skar-ring of people from the Scripture, and putting in their hands Images & pictures vnder whatsoever pretence, is a chalenging of Christ, either as witlesse or lovelesse or carelesse who did not recommend in his testament such a meane
as they aledge the artificiall crucifixe
to be.

Poor simple Laikes (they in substance say),
By searching of the Scriptures erre yee may, 1050
Pictures are plaine, these harmelesse bookes doe show

What needfull is for you of Christ to know,
In Scripture darke 'tis dangerous to pry,
Such curious search concernes not you to trye.

Thus impudently teach the world they dare, 1055
That both vnfit and vnsufficient are CHRIST'S Means; their owne devices more import
The well and safety of the weaker sort.

Thus argue they of Ignorance our LORD,
The Means most fitting, who could not afford; 1060
Of Envie, means who would not recommend,
Which choysen, most might to our safetie tend;
Of Carelesnesse, sith He forgot to give Charge, in his Latter-Will these meanes to leave.

For peoples Well thus will they seame to be 1065
More Wise, more Loving, Carefuller than Hee.
What else is this, by a pretence to teach CHRIST'S knowledge, but Christ's knowledge to empeach,

By faining a false Christ, to barre the way
By which the True attayne wee only may, 1070
Who, not attaind, GOD neither can wee know,
Since GOD in Him alone Himselfe doth show?
Thus are the bonds of Man's most wretcht estate
By Nature, straitned by the Devil's deceate.

Let civile Images, for civile vse 1075
Haue place, we challenge only the abuse.
That paynter's Pencil pleasure doe impart
Wee hinder no, let craftsmen vse their arte :
But howsoever humane wit debord,

Exod. 19. 18. GOD in Religion must alone bee LORD. 1080

The 2 commād of the first Table which is the Law for
While from Mount Sinai Hee the Moral Law
Promulgate did, (where Him no mortall saw) religion expressly forbids religious Images of man's device.

Incompast all about with flames of fire,
As Royall Roabs which Majestie attire,
Hee, onely as His owne Prerogatiue, 1085
Did, of Religion, plead the Rule to giue,
And Man, (with vaine presumption swolne), at large
Madly with This to meddle doth discharge,
Binding His hands, by words expresse and plaine,
Of Him, no foolish Counterfit to faine, 1090
No Image, for Religious vse, to make,
Of ought, in Heaven or earth did being take ;
Nor made, to honour, with the least respect,
Save They with Him their Covenant would breake,
Kindling gainst them His iealousie most just, 1095
Rankt as Adult'ers, (from His service thrust)
Who, worship with Him, or besyde Him, gave,
To others, due for Him alone to have.

Deut. 4. 15.

Exod. 20. 22.
We may make a
Image which re-semblesSomething,
but not an Idole which resembles Nothing sayes the Papist: No sayes the Lord, you shall not make the liknesse
of any thing in Heaven &c. Deut.
4. 23.

Exod. 23. 24, &
34. 13.

Thus GOD hath banisht, from Religion's bounds
This worship vaine, His worship which confounds,
All vse of Images, by Man devysd, 1101
To GOD Man hatefull rendring and despysd.

2 Thes. 2. 3. 4.

Why may not the people and the Church apoint
Images sayes the papist. I am the Lord says God, that is it is God's Royall prerogatiue to apoint the meanes
of his owne Honour.

But Hee who doth exalt Himselfe to raigne,
Of Princes all Monarchick Sovereaigne,
That Man of Sinne, perdition's Sonne, the slave
Of Sathan, yet pretends CHRIST's place to have, 1106
Dare gainst this Law most impudently stand,
And GOD's great VETO boldly counter-mand.
Of GOD, of Man, he images dare make,

Why may wee not give some Religious worship & honour to Images sayeth
the papist. I am a Ielous God sayes
the Lord, that is,
Religious worship is due only to God
the husband of the Church, whatsoever is given to another is adulterie, that is Idolatrie & provoks
God's Ielousie.

Thus Mocketh CHRIST, even suffering for our sake :
To these, Religious worship Hee allowes, 1111
And This their Due most shamelessly avowes.

Whyle of this Rav'ry wee a reason crave,
O how themselves they willfully deceave !
The custome of their Fathers They pretend, 1115
The love of GOD, of CHRIST, this is the end
Why they Their purtraits reverently respect,
Whose persons They so dearely did affect,

Our forefathers
vsed Images sayes
the papist. I will visit the sinnes of the fathers vpon
the children sayes
the LORD.

We make and honour Images out of loue to God, sayes
the papist. They hate mee that keepe not my com-mandemēt sayes
the Lord.

When the Church of Rome scrapt out
the 2 command out of the vulgare books & made two of the 10 command, they saw that their Images could not abyd the assise of God's law.

To elude God's Law
Image lovers haue vsed as (they yet
vse) many pretences, but notwithstanding of them all, God relects this invention, refuts
it, condemnes and curses both it and the maintainers of it.

Ierem. 10. 3.

Ier. 10. 8.

v. 5.

v. 8.

v. 11.

But O weake shifts! pretences worthy tears!
Evasions serving more to mocke the eares, 1120
Of simple Hearers, than this Error vaine
With meanest show of reason to maintaine.
God's Law most clearely these detects: the same
Excuses for this foolishnesse they frame
Which clearely are condemnd (shifts farre amisse),
In that Command which Rankt the Second is: 1126
Which, GOD of purpose, gainst this Sinne did place,
This wickednesse so staring in the face,
That when heereof, they can not stand in sight,
Accusd, conuinct by their owne conscience light,
To burie it from vulgare eyes they striue, 1131
And this of place amongst the Ten depriue,
Braunching the Tent in twaine; to hide the thift,
Vsing a shamelesse sacrilegious shift,
Least seene the people should these *snare*s forsake,
Layde (doubtlesse by the devill) their soules to take.
Thus, though our LORD, as a religious Meane, 1137
Condemned hath to Images to leane,
Yet still doe Image-doatars GOD's decreit
Striue to make Irrite, as vnjust, vnmeet, 1140
Thus pleading profite to the Simpler sort,
Who come of knowledge by thè Scripture short
But by the Eye inform'd, are brought in mynd,
Of what by These they represented fynd.
But harke O fondling, who thy GOD dost faine,
Ierem. 10. 3. GOD by his Spirit cals this custome vaine. 1146
Those creatures of thine owne, nor care, nor feare
Thou needst, which Thee can neither see nor heare.
Ier. 10. 8. How foolish they who doe on such depend,
v. 5. Which neither Friend can help nor Foe offend? 1150
v. 8. The Stocke which GOD they to resemble frame, Doth doctrines but of vanity proclame.
v. 11. These perish shall from Earth, from vnder Heaven,
Their Founders to confusion shall bee driuen,

- v. 14. Whose arte but Error serves to vnderproppe, 1155
 Whose worke is falshoode, forgt in Sathan's shoppe.
 This foolish Toy, this hell-devised slight,
 Men charming with a naturall delight,
 Loe, GOD doth scorne, the workman's fruitlesse
 paynes, 1159
 The zeale poore people which hood-winkt detaynes,
 Him seeking whose pure worship they professe,
 Is. 40. 18, 19, 20. By some Resemblance fondly to expresse.
 Isa. 4. 20. GOD to a dispute challengeth in end,
 Such as dare graven Images defend,
 Deluded soules and blinded by deceate 1165
 GOD proves them, who transported with this spaite
 Of madnesse, basely doe crouch downe before
 The crafts-man's worke ; which ought to have no more
 Respect, then as much mettell, timber, stone,
 Is. 44. 9, 10. Appointed for the basest vse, or none. 1170
 Hee laughs to heading their conceats, to see,
 What lavish chaarges spent in Making bee,
 In Consecrating, what obsequious care,
 What Superstition, straitning Sathan's snaire,
 What base Devotion madly they bequeath 1175
 Vnto their Idoles, which (tho voyde of breath),
 On shoulders mounted they on high doe reare,
 Isa. 46. 5, 6, 7. And in ridiculous Procession beare.
 Let blind Idolaters with errors streame
 Transported headlong, vse and profite dreame, 1180
 Isa. 44. 9. By these devices ; GOD professeth plaine,
 Hee knows no profite by these Meanes profaine,
Meanes to bee made vnworthy, Meanes to trust
 Intolerable ; teaching lyes to Dust,
 Whence beeing they did take. The Curse of Woe,
 Of Vengeance, thundred foorth they vndergoe, 1186
 Hab. 2. 18, 19, 20. Who Prayer's sweete perfume to such present,
 Whom words nor vows can with or wants acquent.

Deut. 27. 15.

Cursd by the Law, is Hee, who toole doth take
 Or grav'ne, or molten Image for to make, 1190
 GOD thus abhominably to disgrace.
Cursd, for devotion, who in secret place,
 The Crafts-man's worke, GOD'S worship to confound
 Set vp, the People all Amen resound.

Psal. 97. 7.

Harke, how the Prophet doth confusion threat,
 A Curse denunceth both to Meane and Great, 1196
 That boast of Idols, Images doe serue.
 The reason why Such do this curse deserue,

Rom. 1. 23.

Saint Paule expresseth. For, from GOD estraingt
 His Glory Incorruptible, transchangt 1200
 By them into an Image, made in all,
 Like Man corruptible, proclive to fall,

Rom. 1. 25.

They even GOD'S Trueth, have turned in a Lie,
 Ascribing worship, in more high degrie,
 Vnto the Creature subject to decay, 1205
 Than the CREATOR, who is blest for ay.

Obiection.

But O sayeth the papist I find my affection stirred & my devotion helped by Images & namelle the arti-ficieall Crucifixe.
 This pretence answered.

Yet notwithstanding all, Some dare avouch,
 That while before a Crucifixe they crouch,
 Or on a well done Image fixe their eye,
 Their frozen Zeale they fynd enflamt to bee, 1210
 Their half-dead Faith reviv'd, their faynting Loue
 To CHRIST, incitements wonderfull to prove,
 Passions of joy, of feare, of grieffe increst,
 Fitting to further their devotion best,
 So, though the world, (they openly avow), 1215
 Though all authoritie these disallow,
 Which in their brests such strange effects doe bread,
 And whence such motions of the Sp'rit, proceed,
 They can not bee induc't, so much as doubt,
 But GOD aproves, even to be borne about, 1220
 Sollicitously kept, devoutely kist,
 To bee falne downe before, these Means most blest,
Means, of that worship worthy held to bee
 Even due to CHRIST; though not in like degree.

Affections and motions accompanying Image worshiping are but the whorish allurments of the spirit of idolatrie.

- But O Blind soules these folyes which frequent,
 If with GOD'S will yee truely were acquent, 1226
 In holy write reveald, and did believe,
 These Means suspection should not faile to give ;
 Thus narrowly yee should that Serpent's slight
 Examine, in an Angel changt of light, 1230
 GOD'S Spirit counterfitting, whose deceat,
 Vnder pretence of peace procuring hate,
 By bastard Motions of the minde doth make,
 Deluded soules grosse Lyes for Truths mistake.
 'Tis most absurd, even in the least degree, 1235
 To thinke GOD'S Word and Spirit disagree,
This, striving to restraine and stop the way,
That, grounds to this impiety to lay.
 GOD'S holy Spirit by no other Meanes
 Doth worke, but such as GOD Himselfe ordaines,
 Whatever superstitious potards dreame, 1241
 Forbidden Meanes He hates ; and these by name.
 A contrair Spirit then This hold wee must,
 Insinuating Himselfe to settell trust
 In the deluded soules of such, as find 1245
 Such seeming-sacred-Motions of the mind,
 Warming with woontlesse flames their frozen hearts,
 Enveigling man's conceit with wondrous arts.
 These (doubtlesse) must the whoorish Motions bee,
 Even of the Spirite of Idolatrie ; 1250
 The fire of worship false ; entysing traines
 Layd by that crafty Foe, who spairs no paines
 Wretcht Man to make vnlawfully delite
 In what GOD most condemns, in sacred write.
 Exod. 32. 19. Such were the Motions Jewes made daunce for joy
 Deut. 9. 21 ; Before the Calfe, which Moses did destroy. 1256
 Exod. 32. 20. Such, made the Prophet by those Tribs contemnd,
 1 King 13. In Dan and Bethell, who their calues contemnd.
 Such earst (wee reade) was the deluding dreame,
 Iudg. 17. 13. Made Micah happy in his owne esteeme. 1260

Such vncouth flames made men the Temple leauē
 Worship to ^a*Images* in groaues to giue.
 Such zeale made Israelits of sense denude,
 Bathe ^b*Molech's* Image with their children's blood.
 The Deuill, who Them did to this madnesse driue
 As subtile now as earst, is yet a-liue : 1266
 And still goth on, by all the craft hee can,
 From service of the Living GOD, fond man
 To tempt, Spirituall Whordome to commit
 With Idols dombe : who, destitute of wit 1270
 With the inchaunting Motions of the minde
 Is charmd, in Scripture which no warrant finde.

Though Motions follow not Means vsd in Faith
 Which for His service GOD appointed hath
 As men would haue, or in their hearts project, 1275
 Yet such (wee find) haue ever good effect.
 But Motions which without GOD's Meanes doe worke
 Are still to be suspect : the Snaike doth lurk
 Beneath the blooming flowre : the deadliest blow
 Is to bee fear'd from a disguised foe. 1280
 Who so, come by such Motions, can not flee
 By Sathan's snares but must entangled be.

By GOD'S Prophetick Spirit when inspird
Isaiah CHRIST made (long ere seene) admir'd,
 Nor Forme, nor Comlinesse hee did foretell 1285
 Should make His outward feature to excell,
 No beauty admiration to moue,
 For which, wee should Him or desire, or loue.
 And so it did succeed : for, who by sight
 Of His externall shape, Him knew a-right 1290
 To bee the CHRIST, who Man to GOD conceald,
Such thing of Him, nor flesh, nor blood reveald.

Since CHRIST'S true lineaments set to the eye
 (Which any Painter could haue wisht to see)
 The bodily beholding of our LORD, 1295
 So little force, or furtherance did afforde,

^a Deut. 7. 5; &
12. 3.

^b Isa. 57. 5;
Deut. 12. 31;
Levit. 20. 1, &
18. 21.

Isa. 53. 2.

Before Christ came Isaiah prophesied that Christ should neither haue forme
nor comlines for which we should loue him. Therefore the lying resemblance of our Lord's form in the artificiall Crucifixe must haue lesser force.

Math. 16. 17.

To kindle Men's affections, or to draw
 Whom even the Princ'pall, not the Purtrait saw
 To His obedience ; O what madnesse then
 What fury strange doth fill the braines of Men, 1300
 With dreams deluded, fondly to conceate,
 That lying Pictures are of powre more great ?
 That counterfites of His exterior frame,
Zeale can make fervent, or with loue enflame ?
 As greater vertue did from Picturs flow 1305
 Then Person's presence they are set to show ?

Since of a Servant's shape, the outward sight,
 Which in the flesh did clowde CHRIST's Heavenly
 light

Did, nor with Motions nat'rall, nor divine,
 Make men to loue, or seeke to Him, incline, 1310
 Shall Motions by this Shap's vaine picture wrought
 Iustly, or nat'rall, or divine be thought ?
 No certaine : else the Crafts-man's toole should proue
 On wood, or stone more forcible to moue
 Then GOD's owne hand, CHRIST's frame, and featur true 1315

On superficie of humane flesh which drew.

Faith in Christ is necessar, the seing of Christ bodily is not necessar, far lesse is the false counterfitting of his shape necessar.

However Men conceate that Faith, by sight
 Is fostred ; thus that loues decaying might
 Is quickned, yet CHRIST doth the blessing giue
 To such as haue not seene and doe beleue. 1320

The artificiall Cru-cifixe is a fleshly
 meane to know
 Christ after the flesh which the Apostle doth relect.

After the flesh Paul CHRIST refusd to know
 Resolv'd Him thus no more, if ever so :
 How should these Means of knowledge then content
 After the flesh CHRIST made to represent ?

Naturall considerations of the art of painting, or grav-ing, may show the artificiall Crucifixe
 to be but the mock-age of the World.

BVT, of these Pictures poysning not a few 1325
 With Error, yet to take a nearer view,
 Each Image should bee like its Patterne made,
 From imitating which, it name doth pleade,
 And if heereof it no resemblance leaue,
 Beholders' Eyes it serues but to deceaue. 1330

The Painter then the Prototype must see,
 Which in his brest must first engraved bee
 Before his Pensill, with deserved praise,
 Can with its semblance ravisht Eyes amaze.
 The Shape, the Lineaments, the Features right 1335
 His fantasie must apprehend by sight,
 His hand directing, as hee did conceaue,
 A viue impression to the Eye to leaue,
 Els both deluded is His simple braine
 And Men but mocked with an Idole vaine. 1340

For, of the Patterne if through Ignorance,
 A bleare-eyed Leah hee should draw by chaunce,
 A traytrous Iudas, being of intent
Rachel's, or Peter's purtrait to present,
 Needs force the picture (yet) of that must bee 1345
 Which it most liuely sets before the Eye.

Though Hee His work should cristen with the Name
 Proper to that to make which was His aime,
 Yet must it bee that which it truely is,
 Not what proposd it was, though nam'd amisse. 1350

Tho with Apelles' skill, Men now should striue
 Pictures, procuring wonder, to contriue,
 If from the Patterne diffring, wrought by guesse,
 What serue they, fruitlesly but to expresse
 And (valued though with vndeserved worth) 1355
 Conceptions but fantastick to set forth?
 Since these (however by opinion great)
 Yet births abortiue of some vaine conceate,
 What can they els bee but resemble thought,
 The fond Imagination them which wrought? 1360
 Though Popish Church should authorize the Dead
 Church, Painter, picture, all to Error lead.

For, as the braine the Patterne doth conceaue
 So doth the Image-Maker paint or graue:
 The Patterns faynd Idea, in his braine 1365
 First must bee forg't, next the impression vaine

Not of the Patterne, but of His conceate,
 (A fantasie, hatcht in his head of late)
 Finds on the Table, or the mettall, place,
 As arte can his Imagination trace; 1370

Thus, hold wee must each Image of this kinde,

The definition of an Image made by arte.

The first Resemblance of the craftsman's minde.

How falsly then doth a mis-shapen masse
 Of mettall for our SAVIOUR'S Image passe?
 How fondlie men perplexe themselues to mixe 1375
 Colours most fit to frame a crucifixe?

Which when perfited by the best of arte
 The most accomplitht Crafts-men can imparte,
 In no respect with CHRIST resemblance hath,
 Triumphant on the Crosse o're Hell, o're death, 1380
 No not so much as in His outward frame
 By lines which they to counterfit doe clame.

The artificiall Cru-cifixe hath no ground but the Craftsman's guesse, seing never one that drew Christ's purtrait saw the true Paterne.

For, nor the Paterne blesd the Crafts-man's Eye
 CHRIST'S living face who did no living see,
 Nor saw He Any who could show by speach 1385

And of our LORD the features truely teach,
 But as conceate him ledde, hee boldly gues't,
 And, as the Blind-man casts his staffe, exprest
 Vpon his table: meerly ignorant
 Whether in shape, this new-created Saint 1390
 Lookt liker CHRIST, or either of those twaine
 Like shamefull death who did with CHRIST sustaine.

But (to giue place to trueth) it lookes like neither,
 But, as the Child resemble doth the father,
 This new-borne issue of the crafts-man's braine, 1395
 Got by imagination, hatcht for gaine,
 Like to the fancie of his fond conceate
 Who brought it forth, with paine, with labour great,
 Must only be supposd; An IDOL right
 By Romish definition; (else but slight) 1400

*The Semblance of a thing but faind to bee,
 Which no subsistence hath essentially.*

Put case, a Painter, for a prooffe of arte,
 Three pictures did most exquisite imparte,
 Of Men, stretchd fourth vpon the crosse to death,

When the Crafts-Man hath made the portrate of a crucified man, it is at his pleasure to appoint it for a picture of one of the thieues crucified with CHRIST, or of Christ, with the change of some draughts as he thinketh meete.

This Master-peece while he accomplit hath 1406
 Is't not to his arbitrimēt left free

By CHRIST to cristen any of the three?

Or, at his pleasure, all three theeues to make,
 Resolving (least they company should lake) 1410

Three other Christs to forge? or, to affixe

The Superscription of CHRIST'S Crucifixe

About the purtrait of a Thiefe of late,
 (Adjudged so at least in his conceate)

It calling Christ? or, if hee rather please 1415

The superscription new affixt to raise

So make his Christ a Thiefe, for some wrong draught

Which nearer observation him hath taught,

Can Pope, Priest, Prelate, alter his decree?

Which hee thinks fit, that Picture Christ's must be.

His Word must for a sentence stable stand, 1421

What Hee determins, none can countermand,

None can His worke controule. For, if the sight,

The Iudge which onely can decerne aright

Of Picturs, never hath the Patterne spyed 1425

How can in such the grossest faults be tryed?

Sense, lacking thus a rule to censure by

In vaine, but in the Painter's arte doth pry.

Thus foulest Errors in this kind goe free,

Thus Painters boldly take them leaue to lie 1430

Audaciously, with liberty vnraind,

Coosning the world with Crucifixes faind,

Them giving fourth CHRIST'S semblances to
 bee,

Which but (at most) His Superfice belie.

Christ Iesus when Hee was crucified was glorious in the meane time to the astonishment of His adversaries: But
the Popish Cruci-
fixe faineth a Christ
as base as any Malefactor, in nothing glorious.

While, compted with^c Transgressors, lift'd on hie,
(The^d Innocent the Guiltie setting free) 1440
Loe! While enduring even the worst of spight, Strength, Glory, Greatnesse, Majestie, and Might.
Brake forth so brightlie through contempt's dark cloud,

So (cleare) His Godhead did in death, vnshrowd,
That, the Centurion, overcome with wonder, 1445 (While HEAVENS their face vaild vp, Earth sobt
a-sunder,

Math. 27. 46.
Ibid. v. 51.

These glorious Lanterns, as their lights were spent,
To shine forbearing, while their LORD was shent,
This, to the GOD of Strength, while seeming weake,
Its strength resigning, whence it strength did take).
Forc't was, convinc't in conscience, to confesse 1451
That suffer did the SONNE of Righteousnesse.
But where's that Splendor darkning Day's bright
beame,

Math. 27. 54.

These Rayes of Glory, shying even in shame?
What doe their Popish Crucifixes show 1455
Of CHRIST, but shame, death, nakednesse, and woe?
What greater Glory set they to our view
Then to the basest Malefactor's due,
That on a gibbet, e're depriv'd of breath,
Endurd like shanefull execrable death? 1460

Christ crucified was quickning and converting soules, & conquering principalities and powers.
The artificiall crucifixo faines a Christ
as dead as the drosse of which it doth subsist.

True CHRIST, to death while yeelding on the crosse,
(Life to giue life content ev'n life to losse)
Though dead for vs, at all who could no die,
Ceast never living LORD of life to bee,
Quickning, converting, strengthening Soules, even then
When seeming most contemptible to Men, 1466

While Bodies long agoe consumd in graue
 Raisd by His pow'r, of Him twice life receau.

How doe their Crucifixes this expresse
 Than a Triumphant CHRIST like nothing lesse? 1470
 Of their owne Patterns (yet) true shads they are,
 Viue Idols of a lifelesse Corps, as farre
 From any force in working, by their view,
 Or bodyes to raise vp, or soules renew
 As is the basest Earth, or fondest braine, 1475
 Which first gave birth to these Inventions vaine.

Christ's bodie was ioined in personall
 vnion with the Godhead. The Popish crucifixe faines a Christ whose body is separate from the Godhead.

Christ's Bodie (farre above our sin-tost Masse)
 Not of an onely Man the Body was,
 But of that peerlesse Lord, true God, true Man,
 Whose neare conjunction sunder nothing can, 1480
 Whose humane soule, though from its mansion
 forc'd,

Vpon the crosse by painefull death divorc'd,
 Yet in the God-head, even o'recome by death
 The Body Being had, while robt of breath,
 Which, lying even in graue, His soule possest 1485
 In highest Heavens, that Paradise of rest,
 Inviolable yet the Vnion stooode ;
 Nor Heaven, nor Earth (one minute) could seclude
 The God-head from the Man-hood ; life, nor death,
 Nor hellish horror, nor the sense of wrath 1490
 Could hinder, still (yet so as none can tell)

Col. 2. 9.

The Godhead bodily in Christ to dwell :
 Which caus'd, (though buried hee behov'd to bee)

Psal. 16. 8, 9 ;
 Acts 2. 27.

God's Holy-One, corruption not to see,
 Preserving thus (while dead, in coffin layde, 1495
 By putrefaction, as all flesh, to fade)
 More pow'rfully the Body of our LORD
 Than all the means the world could els afford.

What madnesse then to thinke, (though painter's
 arte

Some shadow of Man's Body can impart, 1500

Which from its soule may sev'ed bee by death,
 And turnd in dust, while banished from breath,)
 That by the pensill, may resembled bee
 The Sonne of Man, the GOD of Majestie?
 Who, having once a mortall shape assum'd, 1505
 Can, (without danger) never bee presum'd,
 That from his Manhood (not in any cace)
 His Godhead to dis-union can give place.

If this wee hould (of this as who may doubt?)
 How madde are Men, who fondly goe about 1510
 Their Crucifixes false, means to appoint,
 CHRIST'S Body blest, without the Godhead joynt,
 To represent; and set before the Eye

The artificall Cru-cifixe teacheth a Christ who is only man, or whose two naturs are not vnite, or who hath two Persons, as the old heritickes did.

CHRIST-Man, cut short of divine Majestie;
 The Word made flesh denying, or in death 1515
 Loosing that Vnion, lasting but with breath;
 Or, faining such a CHRIST, a Onely Man
 Even by it selfe subsist whose Body can;
 Or, of one Nature, or of Persons twaine,
 A CHRIST Imaginary, therefore vaine; 1520
 Injuring thus those ever-blessed Three,
 That Trinall One, which was, is, ay shall bee,
 Thus venting blasphemies against our Lord,
 Whose soule abhorreth thus to be ador'd,

Is. 42. 8; 48. 11.

And whom His Glory and His Praise to giue 1525
 To grauen Images, doth highly grieue.

Christ's Image stands in righteous-nesse and holinesse,
 and can not be seen
 with bodilie eyes.

CHRIST'S Image mockt thus by audacious hands,
 In Righteousnesse and Holinesse which stands,
 The object of the soule's spirituall eye
 By Carnall sight can not discerned bee : 1530

If it be a filthy dishonor to liken the worke of man's hands to God the father, it is no les disgrace to liken
 the work of man's hands to God the
 Son.

And, as no meane presumption 'tis in Man
 To liken ought his weake invention can Produce, to GOD, Beginner, Vnbeginne,
 So to set foorth his ever-procreat Sonne,
 In nothing to his great Begetter lesse, 1535
 By ought or toole or pensil can expresse,

No lesser madnesse : if wee GOD esteeme,
 That Holy One who did the world redeeme,
 Who, though for vs, His Glory layde asyde,
 Did meanly in mortalitie abyde, 1540
 Should wee, Himselfe cause humbling, more neglect,
 Or should his Man-hood, breed him lesse respect?

Christ's abaising of himselfe giues not libertie to man to abase him more,
 but obligeth rather to honour Him the more.

Though painter's lines might possible present
 His Counterfite as Hee with shame was shent,
 And of his Servant's-shape some shadow leaue, 1545
 (Or ayming so, at least the world deceaue)
 Doth possibilitie a warrant plead,
 Or to excuse or Iustifie this deed,
 Since every Sinne hath possibilitie,
 But none for this as lawfull held may bee? 1550

Put case it were possible to find out Christ's Lineaments, and to ex-
 presse them by art,
 yet still the glorie
 of His person discharges to doe Him such disgrace as to liken Him to the worke of man's hands.

In humane Shape, if GOD the Fathers saw
 Yet no Resemblance durst presume to draw,
 Why rather now, since Flesh the Word assumd,
 May GOD by Man to bee drawne fourth presumd?
 Sith that the Law, this madnesse to restraine, 1555
 Midst flames of fire was not given fourth in vaine,
 Nor now is made lesse valide, than before
 A Mortall vaile the King of Glory wore.

1 Cor. 2. 8.

If not Apostles durst transgresse this law,
 Nor cause draw fourth or grave the Shape they saw ;
 If none of all Our Lord's obsequious Trayne, 1561
 His Will durst write, but whom Hee did ordaine ;

The Apostles durst not, nor would not draw his purtrait much lese should a profane Craftsman.

Beyond commission ev'n if none of Those
 That wrote, His Shape might to the World expose ;
 If none may, by Himselfe, this honour reach 1565
 Except by CHRIST thrust fourth CHRIST yet to preach,
 Shall it to painters only bee left free,
 CHRIST'S shape and Lineaments to falsifie,
 Even though no warrant doth their worke invite,
 Nor having seene what to set fourth they sweate. 1570

None may preach
 Christ without a calling from Christ, much lese make fained pictures of Christ.

'Tis like those dreamers, who poore soules deceaue,
 CHRIST crucifi'd n'ere right considred haue,

Whyle once for all, and Once for ay our Lord,
Ne're more to bee repeated, did afford

Christ would not hee seene to suffer hut once, but will bee heard to have suffred ever. His suffrings He will have set before the eye of the minde
by His owne ordinances of Word and Sacrament, hut not to the bodilie eye
by man's invention,

Himselfe a living Sacrifice for Sinne, 1575

Vpon the Crosse, lost Man from hell to winne,

Himselfe Hee did expose to suffer death,
Shame, paine, and dolour, ev'n the Father's wrath,

No more to bee the object of the Eye,
Though by the Eare oft crucified to bee. 1580

As death's tormenting throws, as sense of payne,
Hee for a season was but to sustaine,
So was the Shame which Nakednesse did give,
Not all his other suffrings to sur-vive.

When therefore having (mortalls to reclame), 1585

Sufficientlie now suffred open shame,

Even at mid-day Hee drew the vaile of night,

About His naked Bodie, so the sight

Of gazing eyes (with clouds eclipsd) did stay, 1589

Enlightning Some, who midst those mists did stray,

Them making see, while weakest made, His Might,
Sinne's clouds dispel'd, which did their soules benight.

Christ darkned the Sunne and made it as Night at Mid-
Day while He was suffring, to show that hee would not have men to gaze
vpon his naked hodie after hee had suffred sufficient shame. The Popish Crucifixes doe crosse Christ's purpose.

But (loe) their antichristian Crucifixe

With vaine Inventions who God's worship mixe,

Serves to no other end, but as it may, 1595

CHRIST'S Body naked to the eye to lay.

And to expose His long-past Shame to sight,

Hiding the Glorious vaile of darkned light,

By which more honord was that Prince of Peace

Than Nakednesse, or Iews did Him disgrace. 1600

CHRIST, of the Cover Hee drew on, they striue

(Though all in vaine) thus boldly to deprive,

Preassing presumptuously, in CHRIST'S despight,

To prorogate the shortned shame of Sight. 1604

But such their CHRIST, such Crucifixe they faine,

Such Paterne, such the Purtraite : both most vaine.

The Painter's fantasie the patterne is :

The Purtrait only must resemble this,

The Genealogie or Pedegrie of the Popish Crucifixe.

That lying Spirit; Father of deceate,
That Man true CHRIST should know, who boyles
with hate, 1610

And studies still to forme in man's fond braine,
False Christs; or of the True, conceats prophane,
Doth Parent to this purtrat's Patterne proue,
Hatcht in the Crafts-man's head as hee doth moue.
The Crucifixe, Child of the Paynter's Thought, 1615
Oye to this Lying Spirit, thus forth brought
By arte, as carefull Midwif's helping hand,
Is from the painfull wretch receiued; who fand,
And did more labour in this Birth sustaine,
As hee opinion did conceiue of gaine. 1620

This new-borne Saint thus being brought to light,

See how the wretch doth in his Worke delight,
Hee gazeth, wondreth, narrowly doth pry,
Striues if hee can the least escape espy,
Proport'oning by due esteeme its worth, 1625
As longsome paines, and labour brought it forth,
Which in each feature, finding now compleat,
As to adorne some Temple only meet,
Hee to the Preist presents't, who streight doth giue
It Name; yea, Holinesse, as some beleue. 1630

The profaine and wicked christning-
of the artificiall
Crucifixe.

By Charmes, by Exorcisme of Magick art,
With Salt, and Water Christned thus a part,
With Pardons priuiledg't, with Odors sweet
Perfumd, with Altars honord, Head and Feet
Anoynted, Torches lighted, Gifts presented, 1635
Made fitt for Pilgrimes now to bee frequented, Erected last, in place most eminent,
The Newer-Erring-Clergie giue consent,
That it shall stand to bee admir'd, ador'd,
Kiss'd, reuerenc'd, crouch'd before, embrac'd, implor'd,
The Holy Crucifixe from hence forth cald, 1641
Or, On His Crosse the KING OF GLORIE nail'd.

The Blinded people's foolishe superstition,
 The base credulitie of their condition,
 Approues the Error, ratifies the Deed, 1645
 With them this Crucifixe doth credit plead,
 Which in affinity or Shape more neare
 As they conceiue, the Holier doth appeare.

The ^fdeuillish ^ddeify-ing of the Popish
 Crucifixe.

Loe now the Crafts-man, Priest and vulgar Crew,
 Ioyntly fall down, and with devotion due, 1650
 As many Pater-nosters doe repeat
 By number of their beads, as they finde meet,
 To this New-Christned-CHRIST; and, as acquent
 With Tongues their sutes in Latin must bee sent,
 To This not sparing, with blasphemous breath, 1655
 The Honour of Latria to bequeath,
 Preferring it to all the Heauenly Quire,
 Or Crownde aboue, or Militating heere,
 Of Angels, Saints; euen to that Mother-Maide,
 The Queene of Heauen, (of Her if truth be said). 1660

But when for foule Idolatrie arraing'd,
 Some shift in place of Reason must bee fain'd:
 These subtile Sophists, wittie in invention,
 Doe pleade by vertue of their good intention,
 The honour to the Crucifixe ascriv'd, 1665
 The Purtrate first, by Crafts-man hand contriu'd,
 Doth hit, but streight sent back, is vpwards driven,
 And by Reflexe doth sklent hie way to Heauen,
 Possessing such as see with others' eyes,
 This By-way worship CHRIST no lesse doth please,
 Than on these Tables earst by God's owne hand 1671
 Engrav'd, it had beene left th'eleauenth Command.

The pretense of good intention doth no more excuse the popish Idolaters, than if a woman should abuse her hodie with every one that she thought
 like her husband,
 and then say shee
 did so of good intention willing to loue all that were
 like her husband.

But let those Doctors licence me demand,
 Who in Intention make Devotion stand,
 If simple Women in their Husbands' places, 1675
 May warrantably yeeld to strange embraces,
 And if it passe may for a just excuse,
 That their Intention Them did not abuse,

Supposing, they did by obedience due
 Themselues subject, vnto their Husbands true, 1680
 And, if those Husbands, wrong'd in such a sort,
 Thus to bee mockt and cousind, ought comport,
 And over-looke this as a light offence,
 Which Ignorance doth challenge in defence?
 This, without shame, these Clerks can not approue,
 Except some Intrest having in this Loue. 1686

How easily it selfe doth Error roote,
 In such as on God's Light their eyes doe shoote,
 That on all hazard will goe on Their way,
 With them or walke, or stumble, stand, or stray?

The profane of-spring and broodie generation of little Crucifixes.

NOW, this great Idole, set to publick view, 1691
 Yet can not serve; all of this numbrous Crew,
 For private vse One must peculiar haue,
 To beare about Him, even vnto His graue.
 Enricht with gold and Iewels, These are borne 1695
 The breasts of Dames of Honor to adorne,
 Which not beseeming Vulgars (as too deare),
 The Poorer sort doe Poorer Christlings wear
 Of polisht Ivorie, of gilded Glasse,
 Of glistring Horne, of Copper, Tinne, or Brasse, 1700
 Which by the Priest if hallow'd, so much more Held worthie are of Worship, than before.

A Holy man is more like Christ than all the artificiall pictures in the earth,
 & more worthie of honour for His cause; yet if any man for holinesse
 were so worshiped
 as the popish cru-cifixe, a honest hearted papist would scouder at that Idolatrie, and why not now, but because he beliveth
 the Romish Church cannot erre.

If any living Saint, heere sucking breath,
 Who with our LORD more neare resemblance hath,
 To Him more deare, and held of greater worth, 1705
 Than all the Images art can bring foorth,
 In whom this Spirit, Life, and Grace doth shine,
 Whom a most neere conjunction doth combine,
 And whom CHRIST (one day) though despised now,
 Shall not think shame His^a Brother to avow, 1710
 Yet if this Saint of God, adored were,
 Cald on, as senselesse Crucifixes are,
 The World anone the sacriledge should see,
 Cry out against this vile Idolatrie,

^a Heb. 2. 11.

- Abhorre, to any Mortall vnder Heaven 1715
Worship, or divine Honour should bee given,
 But now when greater measure they bequeath,
 To Stockes, to Stones, to Idoles voyde of breath,
 They neither can, nor will their Error spy,

 Or, to damnation boasting on amaine,
 Rom. 1. 18. Dare in vnrighteousnesse the truth detain.
- Since then those Wares so slender are in worth,
 To mocked sight lyes only setting forth, 1724
Bookes which pervsd, leaue Ignorants more rude,
 Gulling the World but with imagin'd goode,
 To CHRIST disgracefull, breeding in man's braine
Conceats of Him but carnall, and prophaine,
 What Hee left buried preassing to proclame,
 His Glory darkning with disgrace and shame, 1730
 Loosing these bands inseparably vnite,
 By which both Natures in one Person meete,
 Men's Faith diverting from that solide stay
 John 14. 6. The only Rocke, the Life, the Truth, the Way,
 Vpon a Shadow fondly to rely 1735
 Which CHRIST shall (one day) to bee His deny,
 As being only the Resemblance vaine
 And Birth fantastick of the Painter's braine,
 Who, though hee boldly playde the cunning Ape,
 Did never see, nor could set forth His shape, 1740
 The Honour then to This bequeathd, must even Neids-force, bee to a filthie Idole given.
- All the worship and respect that is given to the artificiall crucifixe is given to a filthie Idole.
- The way to get a right sight of Christ shining in the mirror of the scripture, and to be changt in the likenesse of Christ seene there.
- BVT leaving more to stirre this noysome Sinke,
 Poysning pure Soules with a pestifrous stinke,
 To bee abhor'd, and held in just neglect, 1745
 Of all, true CHRIST who truly doe affect,
 And on that Purtrate long to fixe their eye,
 Drawne by his Spirit, which the soule must see,
 In Holie Write, that Mirror most divine,
 In which His Image Gloriously doth shine, 1750

- By preaching of His Word which set to view
 By Faith is seene, and doth by Sight renew,
 So working on the Soule which doth behold,
 That thus it lookes as from another mold,
 Both to the selfe and Others seeming strange, 1755
 1 Cor. 15. 49. Turnd in its liknesse by a gracious change ;
 So by the Spirit quickned is this Meane,
 That heere if CHRIST thy Faith hath truly seene,
 Thou shalt His Shape take on, bee like Him made,
 Adorn'd with Glorie which shall never fade, 1760
 In Thee this Image, whence all Grace doth flow,
 From Glorie shall to further Glorie grow,
 Each faithfull Looke on This, of force shall bee
 Some gracious effect to worke in Thee. 1764
 Come then, draw neere, Thou who to see aspires
 Sweete IESVS CHRIST, the Crowne of thy desires ;
 Come, Thou who loues on Him to looke aright
 (Abhorring Counterfits which mock the sight)
 Whose face alone doth true content afford, 1769
 Come, heere behold thy Loue, thy Life, thy LORD.
 BVT if thou Him wouldst to Salvation see,
 Thy Soule must glas'd in this same Mirror bee,
 Thy breast's most inward Cabins must bee sought,
 Thy selfe made Center of thy Circling thought :

Stretch forth thy necke, thy hands, thy feete, thy heart,

That Hee may bind it on : that, (hence) for ay 2245
 None, saue thy LORD, thy service challenge may.

Loe! that thy yoke may light and easie bee
 Hee goes before Himselfe and drawes with thee,
 Yea both thy yoke and thee Hee drawes ; and beares
Thee, wrestling with thy burthen who appears. 2250

Goe on : O never, never leave thy LORD
 Where ere Hee leads thee ; Hee will strength afford.
 Hee no where els Thee shall invite to goe
 But where before, the way Himselfe did show. 2254

How a man under tentation may looke vpon Christ in the mirror of His word.

BVT NOW doth Sathan rage with greater spight
 Then when secure thou layst in sinne's dark night,
 Redoubling his assaults, Thee vexing more,
 Presenting bayts more frequent then before?

Behold thy LORD, whom HEAVEN, whom Earth
 obeys,

^b Mat. 4 ;

In ^b Wildernesse, alone, twice twentie dayes 2260
 With apparitions visible frequented,
 Not from that Ill-One's frie darts exempted.

If CHRIST hee durst attempt to make his Thrall,
 Whom gainst his dints Hee knew a brazen wall,
 What wonder thee a weakling hee entyse, 2265
 To his persute whose soule oft guardlesse lyes?

But seest thou CHRIST prevaile? His powre confine?

Him streight dis-arme? The Victorie is thine.

^a Ex. 14. 13. O stand! O heere behold^a the LORD'S Salvation!
 This Combate to thy safety hath relation, 2270
 Heere Sathan also made before thee flee,
 Thy selfe in CHRIST victorious thou mayst see.

Sathan is not afraid though sometimes hee false
 feare, for holy water or crossing. But holie water in the Ayre to tosse,
 And with the finger heere and there to crosse, 2274
 Scorne thou, as fruitlesse freets, least Sathan slight
 And scorne such weapons should resist his might.

 Or madde, or foolish, or precise to bee?
Behold thy LORD, exposd to like despight,

How a man in sick-nesse may get a helpfull sight of Christ.

If sense of payne, if soares of any sort
 Thee so assaile, as hard is to comport,
 Looke on thy LORD, how torturd for thy sake, Scourg'd backe and sides, GOD's wrath, thy paynes to slake,
See how his pretious bloode for thee is shed, 2415
 To Calvary with shame, along while led,
 With which the senselesse streets all red, seem'd
 blushing,
 While bath'd with Rivers from his woundes foorth gushing.

Behold the Nailles, driven both through foote and hand,
 Not in a masse of mettell which doth stand 2420
Him suffering to set foorth: a living Man
 Thy object is; what spight, what malice can Enduring on the Crosse; a publicke wonder,
 Whose Legs and Armes streatchd foorth, neere rackt
 asunder,

Not suffered were to stand, as to His grieffe 2425
 The least-least meanes afford might of reliefe,
 But as most obvious to the Souldiers' minde
 They might bee found, His Bones to breake combinde.

Behold, by burthen of His Body blest, 2429
 His flesh doth yeeld (while being down-ward prest)
 Gaping and growing Wounds, still made more large,
 As more His Weight His tender Hands doth charge.

^a Iohn 19. 28.

^a Iohn 17. 29.

O see, how He His weary ^a Neck extends
And languishing, with ready mouth attends
To drink the offred Vinegar and Gall, vpon CHRIST.

If healthy, sound, and strong, from trouble free,
Looke on the Price that purchast All to thee,

^c 1 Pet. 2. 24.

^d Esa. 53. 4.

His ^c Stripes did make thee whole : thy ^d LORD did

Thy Health to thee a Blessing thus to make,
And that thy sicklie Soule might whole bee found,
Whose stat's oft worst, thy Body while most sound.

“ O that I may LORD whollie heere imploy 2455

“ My selfe, while health, while strength I doe
enjoy,

“ In serving Thee ; and, to my dayes as length

“ Thou addst, I loue Thee may with greater strength,

“ That so, while health and strength, as shads shall flee, 2459

“ Both sound and strong I may bee found in Thee.”

How a Noble or base borne person, may behold Christ
for their instruction.

Doth long discent, vn-discontinued race
Of hon'rabl Ancestors, make thee place,
Worldly Preheminance to thee beget
About the Simpler Sort, below thee set ?
Art thou a Noble, or some speciall Peere 2465
So Great as thy Inferiors thee admire ?

Or, (tho Enobled not by Place) doth blood.
 From the Ignoble Vulgar thee seclude ?
 In this forbear to glorie ; but behold
 Thy LORD of Royall Linage, Race most Old, 2470
 A BRAUNCH whose blood deriv'd from David's stemme

Did make Him right to weare a Diademe,
 A KING, respecting even His Manhoode, borne ;
 Yet, all proud thoughts of Pedegries to scorne,
 Himselfe abasd, in Grace to make vs Great, 2475
 And (though a Personage of High estate)
 Became most low, vs *Hon'rabl*e to make Even our Dishonour on Himselfe did take.

“ O seeke Nobilitie, which nè'er shall fade,
 “ Honour from which thee no man can degrade,
 “ By seeking right in Him, a Child to bee 2481
 Of GOD ; true Honour's most supreme degree.

Art thou by birth Ignoble, Base, Obscure ?
 Behold thy Glorious KING in state as poore,
 As meane as thou, descended, thee to raise, 2485
 Even with Himselfe thee to possesse and sease,
 Not in a State but lasting for a day,
 But of a Kingdome made secure for ay,
 Vpon a Throne thee freely to set downe
 To sweya a Scepter, and to weare a crowne. 2490

If Base thou bee, yet still to climbe assayes
 The bruckle braunches of vaineglorious wayes,
 If Noble, yet to swell with Pride doth chuse,
 And seekst ambitiouslie all meanes to vse
 To proppe thy worldlie Credite, with profane 2495
 And worthlesse wretches, who no Course disdain
 May further their base Ends, affecting Praise
 Of Men, their Names upon Fame's wings to raise,
 Blind to behold that Glorie, to bee found
 With GOD, which seene, all such Desires doth bound ; 2500

O study then more steadfastly to stare,
 And on thy LORD to looke with greater Care ;
 Yea, neede thou hast to Touch, from Him that so
Vertue to heale this ^a Vanitie may flow.

The Greatest teaching who His Schollers are,

For Him their Pride to mortifie so far 2530

That to His Least-ones, though despisd they lye,

The meanest charge in loue they not deny.

Wilt thou, to be His Servant who makes show,

Lodge in a haughtie heart soule-poysning Pride,

Who glory canst, as thine, of nought beside 2536

Sinne, Miseric and Shame? Thy Pride disclame,

In brutish lusts, still wallowing in the myre
Of fylth, no limits set to thy desire. 2650*

O! See his veynes their pretious Treasures spending,

*His heart yet hot, a double streame foorth sending
Of blood and water. Quicklie, quicklie haste
With mournefull soule, which truely doth detaste
Thy vile licentious life: most humbly craue 2655
Those guiltlesse streames in thee no guilt may leaue,
That (hence) by vertue of this Ransome fred,
Tears thou to Him, who bloode for thee, mayst shed.
Soft ease exile, till, by vnfaïnd confession,
Thy pittying LORD for thee make Intercession. 2660
Those pois'nable delights, disgorg'd now having,
Once greedilie drunke in, thy soule deceaving;
Resolving (hence) by action, nor consent
More to licke vp thy sins' loathd excrement,
To sense though seeming sweete, which now turnd
sowre, 2665*

*A flood of bitterness on thee doth powre,
Thee, stinging with soule-wringing sad remorse,
The more repress repining with more force.*

But, gainst this Tyrant having now prevaild,
By time, this hundreth-headed Monster quaild, 2670
Beware, once foyl'd, thou never set it free,

 As if, they weakned, hee could not bee Great;
Behould, how Hee All such as dare injure,
 The hurt or Prejudice of His procure, 3066
Foes to Himselfe professing: no pretence
 Of fayned friendship, show of Innocence
 Admittance finding to abuse His Eare,
 All Flatt'ners false defended to draw neare, 3070
 Whom Hee will, (on day,) to their endlessse shame,
 (As if He them had never known,) disclame.

As DAVID than, to whom GOD'S *Counsell*s deepe Revealed were, of this true KING the Type,
 Looking vpon the Prototype, His LORD, 3075
 His Kinglie Carriage did to His accord;

Psal. 101. v. 1. Learnd GOD His Joy to make; GOD'S Law alone
 v. 2. His Rule, in life, and in Relligion;
 v. 3. Apostasie and Apostats to hate,
 v. 4. And every wicked man, or Meane or Great: 3080
 v. 6. All such to curbe: the Godlie in their place
 As Favourits, Friends, Counsellers to grace,
 Raysd to preferment, in his Eyes to stand;
 v. 8. GOD'S foes degraded, rooted from the Land;
 So let all Kings, anoynted from aboue, 3085
 GOD for their Portion, David's Lote who loue,
 Him who doth both vnscceptor and eninstall
 Beholding, learne to do the like in all.

Every estate may profite by looking on Christ in the Scripture.

Let every Soule in end, of what condition
 Of mind or case of present disposition 3090
 Of Body, goods, or name, of what degree,
Sexe, age, estate or Ranke so-ere they bee,
 Seeke by the eye of liuelie Fayth to looke
 On CHRIST, described in the sacred Booke
 Of GOD'S two Testaments, the Mirror true 3095
 From whence alone reflects His perfitte view,

And All in Him, (if rightlie seene,) shall find
 For each defect of Bodie or of minde
 Some seasonable good, some soveraine cure
 To doe away in them sinne's spots impure. 3100

No looke on Him shall bee bestou'd in vaine,
 For Hee in Mercie shall looke backe againe,
 And from each looke shall liuelie vertue flow,
 Which difference sufficient shall show
 Twix CHRIST (aright) thus by His owne Means sought, 3105

And that deceaving, shamefull Idole, brought
 In place of CHRIST, as CHRIST to bee adord,
 And (now) is by deluded soules implord
 For Christ, and cald, (what blasphemie more vile?)
 By Christ's owne personall and proper stile. 3110

The particulare vses of Christ's description in the Scripture left to preachers.

Which things, as more than equall to my strength,
 I leave to Preachers to informe at length,
 Whose Calling is, (not in the Bed of slouth Reposing), from the Chayre of sacred Truth
 That LAMBE of GOD, by Scriptures, to point forth, 3115

Mat. 13. 44.

That Treasure of vnestimable worth
 Hid in the Gospels' field in sight to set,
 Whence needie soules may lasting riches get,
 CHRIST, sacrifizde for *sinner*s, to present,
 (By preaching of His death and Testament,) 3120
 Vnto their peoples' eyes, by uses due Quickning dead soules vnto obedience new.

1 Cor. 3. 12.

O, that not Pastors may a few bee found,
Gold, pretious stones, who building on this GROVND,
 With hearts right set, their Maister's will to know,
 Him to their flocks may chieflie strive to show,
His Honour, and safetie of his Sheepe 3127
 Preferring to what els the world doth keepe.

Christ a pattern to preachers in a speciall maner.

As CHRIST to All Himselfe a patterne gaue,
 To These so chieflie Charge of soules who haue, 3130

- Hee, not Himselfe Intruding, sent from HEAVEN,
 Heh. 5. 4. As Aaron cald vnto the Iews was given,
 To Them the Gospell's joyfull news to preach :
 Thus in God's House no charge at all to teach
Place ought to haue, but such, (by GOD designd,)
 As warrant doe from His apointment find, 3136
- Iohn 10. 1, 2. And that in such None ought themselves to thrust,
 But whom alone GOD daind hath to entrust
 With His Commission, in His worke to sweate,
 Found Messingers for His Embassage meet, 3140
 Who, scorning Means which worthlesse men doe make,
 By doore of lawfull calling Entrie take.
 The charge to beare of GOD'S peculiar flock
 Thus when thrust forth, the Truth of God Hee spoke,
- Iohn 12. 29. Him in Commission given, and still did care 3145
 Of all His words, God's word to make the square.
 No sinne Hee spard, Him No man's face did fear ;
 Hee neither whipt in spleene, nor did forbear
 For favour ; so their safte might bee wrought,
 Men's well and not to please their will he sought.
- Iohn 7. 18. Glory of men Hee gloried not to get, 3151
 Nor Honour to Himselfe Himselfe did set
 To purchase, (though to Him was due by right
 All Glory, Honour, Majestie and might),
 To seeke GOD'S honour was his maine intent
 Him who to Labour in His Harvest sent. 3156
 No curious Phrase, applause of men to breed,
 (To Ignorants one with an vncouth leid,)
 No Eloquence of words, no swelling stile
 Did from His mouth His flock of foode beguile ;
 In all Simplicitie, in termes most plaine, 3161
 His minde He vttred, to the vulgar braine
 And Iudgement weake of All Himselfe applying
Eares had to heare, vpon His charge relying.

- To further man's Salvation Hee did spare 3165
Paynes, nor by night nor day, nor late nor ayre.
 Iohn 4. 34. His meate, his drink it was, soules home to bring,
His Father's will to doe in everie thing.
 Wordlie Preferment, Honours, Titles, Place,
 Hee did not with ambitious wordlings chace, 3170
 But vtterlie refusde, and lookt afarre
 On what so ere his maine Intent might marre.
 With things His Presence which did not exact,
 Or from a better worke Him might destract,
 Hee did no meddle, would no lay aside 3175
 His Calling, matters civill to decide,
 Luk. 12. 13, 14. Though in pretence twixt Brothers peace to make Vrg'd, Hee the Iudge's office did forsake.
 His Preaching while Impugnd by sinner's bold,
 Heb. 12. 3. Hee suffred patientlie to bee controld, 3180
 Mat. 22. 15. Not with the obstinate by Iangling vaine
 Mark 12. 13. To tempt Him set, and of his words to gaine
 Luke 20. 20. To tempt Him set, and of his words to gaine Advantage, Hee by dispute did contend :
 Or peace Hee kept, or some few words did spend
 Sufficient to convince, the Conscience check 3185
 Of such as thus their Envy durst detect.
 Luke 23. 2. When as not loyall scandalizd, hee pleads
Fidelitie, in suffring, doctrine, deeds,
 I Tim. 6. 13. Though KING of Kings, repining not to bee,
 Heere subject to Supreme Authoritie. 3190
 When to the Romane Governour accusd
 As on whose doctrins false the world abusd,
 I Tim. 6. 13. A good Confession witnessing, Hee stooode
 Fast for the Truth, and seald it with His bloode.
 To this His Patterne, perfitlie espyd, 3195
 If true conformitie had beene applyd,
 His Vicar, Him at least who steales this stile,
 But from His life and doctrine doth resile,
 Mat. 4. 8, 9. Those Evill offers never had entisd,
 Nor bad condition, by our LORD despisd. 3200

Nor should ambitious Men, puft vp with pride,
 With loue of worldlie Glory led aside,
 Haue turnd, their Earthlie pompe to entertaine,
 CHRIST'S Heavenly Kingdome in a temp'rall Raigne.

Apoc. 2. 4.

Nor should the Dragon's taile haue drawne from Heaven, 3205

(By greed of gaine, and filthie lucre driven,)
 So many Stars to Earth, and earthlie wayes,
 Depriving both of light and heat their Rayes.

Nor should vaine Men, in damnable pretence
 Of Pietie, with windie Eloquence 3210
 And falsely cald Philosophy, haue dard Themselues to Preach, of GOD the Truth haue mard.

Nor should such Errors, breeding onlie gaine
 To blinded Guids of a deluded Traine,
 Haue Scriptures made despisd, so farre suspect,
 And Toyes and Trifles cary such respect. 3216

Strengthen, LORD IESUS, and stretch foorth thine
hand

To ayde thy Servants, for thy cause who stand,
 And reddy are to suffer fyre and sword
 For Thee, thy Truth, and credite of thy Word.
Sufficient Workmen in thy Harv'st thrust foorth,
Fitted for those pernitious Times in worth: 3220

Come clense thy Kirk, discover by degrees
 The Man of Sinne, to All whose darkned eyes,
Blind to discerne, yet can not truelie see 3225
Midst such a glorious Sunne-shine, who is Hee.

Thine owne deare Lambs set free, who captives lye,
 Which chains of Ignorance and Error tye;

Iohn 14. 6.

That hence, (no more in by-paths led astray)
 In seeking Thee, the Truth, the Life, the Way,
 Their Crucifixes faind they may disclame, 3231
 And of their Idols and false Christs thinke shame.

*Amongst their hands, their hearts lift vp to Heaven,
Where Truelie Thee to see by Faith is given,
To All, that in the Means ordaind by Thee, 3235
With Souls right set, seeke in SINCERITIE.*

Μονω δοξα θεω.

GAL. 6. 14.

*GOD forbid that I should rejoyce, but in the Crosse of our LORD
IESUS CHRIST,
Whereby the World is crucified vnto mee, and I

SONET 1.

While (mine owne glasse), vpon myself I looke,
 Examining how (heere) my part is plaid,
 Reading in conscience's accusing Booke,
 Of pretious Time how meane account I made,
 What hideous Formes my frighted Eyes vpbrade,
 Reflecting from the Mirror of my mynd :
 Abortiue Flowrs which in the blossome fade,
 Most of my labours past, alone I find.
 Eternall Ivstice, Thou who (vndeclynd)
 To everie Worke proportions the Reward,
 Pittie my folyes past : with Sprite refynd
 So shall I praise Thee, who my paths repaired ;
 So from Egyptian Brick and Clay set free,
 My Songs shall only, only bee of THEE.

SONET 2.

Bvt while my Sprite about the spheares aspyres,
 And from the World would separation make,
 Myne Eyes repyning at my Soules desyres,
 With Lot's fond Wife, relenting looks cast backe.
 Thou, whose consuming breath her soyle did sacke,
 All Lets, my flight which doe impeach, remove :
 Wing my affection that in word, in act,
 From Earth sequestred I may vpwards move,
 There, where around Thee, Wisdome, Iustice, Loue.
 Truth, Mercie with extended wings, abide,
 With numbrous hostes all number farre aboute,
 Of Sprites which in eternity them hyde :
 O lead me thither, thither make mee runne :
 Perfite thy worke, (Good Lord), in mee begunne.

SONET 3.

My wayes, my wandrings all to Thee are knowne,
 No strength to stand (Lord) of my selfe I haue ;
 I breath in bondage, so am not mine owne,
 Emancipat to Sinne, so Sathan's slave.
 No stinking carion, halfe consumd in graue,
 My leprous soule in loathsomenesse exceeds.
 Thy glorious Image how defacd I haue
 While I record, my heart for horror bleeds.
 Sweete Reconcealer, Thou who pardon pleads
 To sin-chargd soules, which, faynting, groane for grace,
 Thy Mercie measure not with my misdeeds ;
 Thy wandering chyld, turnd home at length, embrace,
 Who brutishly mongst beasts, (with ackorns fed),
 Too long, a shamefull, swynish life haue led.

SONET 4.

O Three times happie, if the day of grace
 In my dark soule did, (though but dimly), dawne ;
 If to my strugling thoughts proclaimd were peace ;
 If from mine eyes the vaile of darknesse drawne ;
 If once the seed of true Repentance sawne
 Made gushing streames leave furrowes on my face ;
 Sinne's menstruous rags in pure transparent laune
 Were chang't ; O then how happie were my cace !
 So darknesse paths no more my feete should trace,
 So ever on a quyet conscience feast.
 Repentance planted so should vice displace,
 So clenst from sinne, sinne's filth I should detest,
 Grace, Light, Repentance, inward peace I crave,
 Grant these, good Lord, for mee thy selfe who gave.

SONET 5.

Awake mee, (Lord,) from fancie's charming dreame,
 My Sprit rowze vp from lethargie of sloath :
 With doubled pace, O give mee to redeeme
 My time mispent, the errors of my youth.
 Hence let my taske bee thy eternall Truth,
 Free from vaine fictions of distempred brains :
 Grant what Thou addst vnto my years of growth
 Good seed may prove, cast on more fertile plains.
 Set to the key of grace, tune all my straines
 From lawlesse stryfe, fred from conceits prophaine,
 Which poyson doe with gall the sweetest veines,
 And, with the Sprit of lyes, most sprits enchaine.
 My sprit with thine inspire ; on wings mee raise.
 Lord, henceforth let my tongue sound fourth thy praise.

SONET 6.

Since that vast orbe, which doth the rest embrace,
 More swift than thoght still whirls about times wheele ;
 Since years' serpentine course, with speedy pace,
 Doth a continuall revolution feele ;
 Since houres still slyde, still life away doth steale,
 Why then, my soule, heere art thou luld asleepe ?
 As if on Earth's low stage were placd thy Well,
 In streams of slyding pleasurs drencht too deepe :
 Breake off thy dreame : from world's basse fetters creepe,
 Thy souveraine Good with eyes vnsyld to view :
 Ryse from earth's vaile to climbe that Mountaine steepe,
 The only station of contentment true.
 Sooth no thy selfe, my soule ; shake of delay :
 Life's Flowre both spreidth and fadeth in a day.

SONET 7.

As waue doth waue, so day doth day displace ;
 Time's clock goes quickly : Moments swiftly slyde :
 The longest Age scare doth a minut's space,
 If with eternity compaird, abyde.
 Yet Mortals, charg'd with madnesse, fraught with pryde,
 Day-livers, dreame to see the world's last date :
 Guyle held no guilt, craft they with craft doe hyde,
 Sinne heap on sinne, deceat vpon deceat ;
 No paine is spair'd to gaine the name of GREAT,
 Prizde with contempt, aym'd at by few, is GOOD
 But Ah ! and buildst thou vp a slipry state
 With pressing vsury, with bribes, with bloode,
 Madde Man, yet dost not, neither wilt take heede,
 Thy Life ore hell hings by a slender threed.

SONET 8.

If Lines which Sphears in equall shares diuylde,
 But once the Center, twice the Circle touch,
 Like slow-pac'd snails, why then still doe wee crouch,
 Still craule on earth, on earth still grov'ling bide ?
 Let fayth our flight aboue Heaven's circuits guide
 Where wee should dwell, redoubling our desires.
 The Doue, no rest heere finding, streight retyres,
 But in our Prison plac'd is all our pride.
 As all the vast inferiour orbs of Heaven,
 By proper pace, vnsensibly are rold,
 But hurld about, with motion vncontrold,
 Are by the Highest violently driven,
 O Mover first, let mee thy motion proue
 In grace, who rather retrograde than moue.

SONET 9.

A constant course, heere, Lord each creature keeps,
 Not swarving from thine ordinance their ends :
 Earth vnsustained stands, in showrs ayre weeps,
 Fyre vpward, water to the Center tends.
 The Sunne in his Ecliptick, mounts, descends,
 Oblicklie runnes, with Tropics two confynd,
 Whose course the years alternat seasons sends ;
 Seas ne're transgresse the Limits thou assing'd.
 But Man, in whom thy vive Character shynd,
 That lytle World, of all thy works a Breefe,
 Made Lord of All, of all hath most declynd
 From thy obedience. O tears ! O grieffe !
 Man to the Angels whom Thou didst preferre,
 From his Creation's end doth only erre.

SONET 10.

My lif's fraile Barge, with an impetuous tyde,
 Is on this world's tempestuous Ocean tost :
 For me, as for our second Sire, provyde
 A saving Ark, O Lord, or I am lost.
 Or as thy people, (while proud Pharaoh's hoast Seas overwhelmd,) through floods firme passage fand.
 A Vessell weake, Mee save, at too much cost
 Redeem't to bee depriv'd of promis'd Land.
 As earst to Peter, Lord, streach foorth thine hand,
 On liquid floare while as his fayth did faynt :
 Let not betwixt mee and thy mercie stand
 That I a sinner vile, hee liv'd a Saint.
 Thy Glorie greater, greater is thy praise,
 Mee a dead Lazare, from sinne's grave to raise.

SONET.

TO THE BLESSED TRINITIE.

Essence vnmov'd, whose Word made all things move,
 Earth's pondrous Orbe midst Ayre who ballanst even,
 By Discords sweete, who tun'd the ten-stringt Heaven,
 God rich in Mercie, infinite in Love,
 Light out of Light, O life who death didst prove,
 Lost Earthlings to redeeme, depriv'd of grace ;
 Child full of wonder, glorious Prince of Peace,
 Begotten, from Eternitie, aboue ;
 O Holy Ghost, sweete sanctifying Sprit
 From both proceeding : All, in essence One,
 Most sacred Triade : first and last alone,
 Three vndividuall, Trinally vnite,
 Father, Sonne, Holy Ghost, God, One in Three
 And three in One ! for ever blessed bee.

Amen.

END OF THE FIRST VOLUME.
