J. A. URQUHART.

A B C Introduction to the HEALTH, PROFIT AND PLEASURE RESORTS of Bonnie Scotland.

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN has been graciously pleased to accept a copy, and commanded her Private Secretary to thank Mr Higgle.

Hamilton Advertiser: "A useful little book to holiday-makers with but short leisure time at their disposal. The clear though closely printed pages present in handy and accessible form a great deal of well-chosen and accurately-compiled historical, antiquarian, and topographical information regarding 450 towns and districts in Scotland, with notices of distances, fares, and travelling facilities. By its means one may easily select, with some degree of certainty, a suitably recreative spot for summer retreat, or wile away the tedium of a long railway journey."

South Africa: "For such a small one this bookie has a big name, but it is not top-heavy for all that. Priced at twopence it is an illustration of good gear going in a little book. For the hurrying traveller bent on "doing" Scotia in a short time it is a most desirable companion. It is not only crammed full of information, but it has a distinctly literary flavour."

The Bristol Observer: "The volume is of a handy size, and contains information about every place where the traveller could wish to go in Scotland."

The Piper o' Dundee: "This little book does not pretend to contain more than 'a series of rough and ready finger-posts indicating where health, profit, and pleasure will result from a personal acquaintance,' but there is nothing more prized on the road than a good finger post, and the introduction makes one restless to be free from the trammels of business, and away to the mountains and rivers and glens."

PREFACE.

We again have much pleasure in placing our annual reference-book before an appreciative public.

In the Lists of Householders we revert to the more popular Alphabetical Arrangement of the names—a style we will adhere to. When the generosity and number of our advertising friends and subscribers increases, we will insert the Wards Lists as an extra.

We tender our best thanks to all who in any way given us assistance, and regret to learn that again several persons have been induced to part with their money in the belief that they were patronising the local Directory.

COUNTY OF BUTE.

The County of Bute comprises the seven islands in the Firth of Clyde, viz:—BUTE, the most populous; ARRAN, the largest; the GREAT and LITTLE CUMBRAES, off the Ayrshire Coast; HOLY ISLE and PLADDA, off Arran; and INCHMARNOCK, off Bute.

The total Area of the County (land and water, exclusive of tidal water) is 140,307 acres, of which 53,423 are mountain and heath lands used for grazing. There are about 25,605 acres under all kinds of crops bare fallow and grass, which is a gradual inroad on the mountain heath and hitherto uncultivated land. There are about 1450 agricultural horses, 6000 cattle, 50,000 sheep, and 900 pigs in the county.

The principal Industries are agriculture, horticulture, and fishing. The islands possess great and varied natural attractions, and are in the front rank of watering-places.

The Population in 1891 was 18,404—8,211 males and 10,193 females.

ISLE OF BUTE

Is 16 miles long, with an average breadth of four miles. It is rocky in the north and south but fertile in the intervening districts. The climate is milder and more equable than on the mainland and islands; and the place is, in consequence, a favourite health resort. Through the kindness of the Marquess of Bute, numerous beautiful roads and walks have been added in recent years for the benefit of residents and visitors, and all around the botanist, geologist, florist, photographer, and the otherwise scientific or inquisitive, may roam at their sweet wills. Good views are obtained from its eminences, and permission to fish in the streams and lochs may be procured. The island is rich in historical relics. The antiquarian will find food for reflection in Druidical remains, ruins of old chapels, castles, vitrified and other forts, &c.

Lord of the Manor.—John Patrick Crichton Stuart, Marquess of Bute, K.T., Mountstuart House. Factor on Bute Estate, John Windsor Stuart, Rothesay. Baron Bailie of Mountstuart, A. R. C. Pitman, Edinburgh.

Bute Golf Club.—Links, Kingarth. President, John Windsor Stuart. Secretary, Rev. John Saunders.

Bute Homing Pigeon Society.—Instituted 1895. President, J. Rae. Secretary and treasurer, A. M'Tavish. Race secretaries, Messrs Rae and M'Tavish.

PARISH OF ROTHESAY.

ROTHESAY, the capital of Buteshire, was originally a village in connection with the Castle. It became a place of considerable importance in fishing, coopering, and cotton spinning and weaving, and now it is noted as the most popular summer resort in Scotland. The Castle was built at different times, but is believed to have been begun about 1098 by the Norwegians. On 12th January, 1400, the town was created a royal burgh by Robert III., and in 1584 its privileges were confirmed and extended by James VI. It contains 10,000 inhabitants and has never lacked enterprise. The first cotton mill in Scotland was opened here. The manufacturing industries, however, have gravitated to more convenient and larger commercial centres, but the public spirit of its inhabitants has remained, and found scope in developing and making known its attractions, and it is now famous as a first-class watering-place. During "the season" art is enlisted to supplement nature, and the esplanades and shores teem with delighted holiday-makers, quiet strolls are had further afield, and entertainments of all kinds are provided for the delectation of its visitors. The first Aquarium in Scotland, and large adjoining pleasure grounds, are favourite rendezvous for grave and gay all day and evening, the Brescian Family give high-class costume concerts in the Public Halls (known during the season as "The Palace"); and besides the natural facilities for bathing, through the generosity of a worthy son, complete swimming baths have been provided. Rothesay is 40 miles south-west from Glasgow, and four steamboat routes with railway connection, vie with each other in keeping up a most complete communication. There are numerous daily excursions by steamers to the surrounding coasts, and by vehicles throughout the island, so that those who like retirement better than gaiety can have their tastes gratified also. The old Castle has been preserved and kept in order by the hereditary keeper, the Marquess of Bute. His Lordship's residence at Mountstuart is the most costly private residence in the world. Besides walks and drives, and steamboat sailings, there are fleets of small boats, golf links, bowling greens, tennis courts, and billiard saloons—in short, there is no lack of opportunities for recreation. Hotels, hydropathics (Rothesay, here again, took the lead in pioneering these popular establishments in Scotland), boarding-houses and private dwellings offer ample and comfortable accommodation at reasonable rates to all comers.

Two years ago the landward portion of the parish of Rothesay being amalgamated with North Bute, henceforth, for secular purposes, the boundary of the parish will be the same as that of the burgh.

ISLE OF ARRAN.

This island, the largest in the group, is famous for the grandeur of its scenery and the variety of its geological deposits. Its highest mountain, Goatfell, is of three distinct formations, and is an epitome of the geology of the world. The loneliness and solemnity of its mountains and glens impress the visitor with wonder that such scenes can be enjoyed "so near and yet so far" "far from the madding crowd." The island is divided into two parishes—Kilbride on the east and Kilmory on the west. There is not yet proper house accommodation for all the summer visitors, so that strangers contemplating a sojourn in this picturesque spot had better secure, by correspondence, quarters in advance.

(For Courts and Court Officials, Justices of the Peace and County Boards see County Lists.)

PARISH OF CUMBRAE.

The Parish of Cumbrae comprises the islands of Great and Little Cumbrae off the Ayrshire Coast. The Burgh of Millport, on the larger isle, is a popular watering-place. The larger isle is about 12 miles in circumference, with a well-made road round it. Cumbrae affords good scope for the botanist; and on the 15th May a new marine biological station was formally opened by Dr John Murray, F.R.S., of the "Challenger" expedition. The building is a short distance from Keppel Pier, on a site gifted by Lord Bute, and cost £1000. This permanent building is a development of the "Ark" of the late Dr Robertson, the "Cumbrae naturalist."

GEORGE HIGGIE, SHORTHAND TEACHER,
Bridge Street, Rothesay.

The Resorts of Bonnie Scotland.

THE First Edition of this new publication is off and away. Hear a few echoes of the spontaneous opinions its appearance evoked!

The Rothsay Chronicle:—"A wide circulation of it in England and further afield would undoubtedly help the tourist traffic."

The Paisley Express:—"Valuable booklet. Every city, town and village of any importance is included—short historical references of each being made, attractions noted, and railway communications mentioned."

The Evening Citizen:—"An extremely handy little holiday guide. 'The holiday-maker's Companion' gives, in the A B C form, tit-bits of information regarding almost every holiday resort and place of interest throughout the length and breadth of Scotland. In it also are to be found miscellaneous hints, which add to its usefulness."

The Dundee Advertiser:—"Neat booklet. The various notes are correctly written, and supply plentiful information such as intending holiday-makers may be in search of."

The Cambuslang Advertiser:—"The letterpress has Mr Higgle's hall mark for conciseness and general usefulness. The sale of the little book among the public should be large."

The Glasgow Evening News echoes the publishers' own statement:—"We intend our little fiery cross to be seen, at least wherever Scots are found."

Stirling Observer:—"The bulk of the hundred odd pages of which it is made up consists of tit-bits of information relative to something like 450 places. The items present a concise epitome of the various attractions in and around each of the places enumerated, together with the advantages to be had in the way of golfing, fishing, driving, &c., and the health or pleasure-seeker has here 'a cluster of resorts which, taken all in all, cannot be met with in any other part of the world.' It furnishes a good deal of information calculated to be very serviceable in determining a holiday, and on that account is much to be commended."

Oban Express:—"This little booklet is well written, terse, comprehensive, with a flash of the genuine dry humour of the Scotch, as different as can be from the usual dry compilation of facts in the ordinary guide book. The places we have tested are up-to-date, necessarily brief in description, yet noticing the chief points of interest in the locality, and written in a manner that cannot fail to charm. A list of fares and distances from the great centres of population to the leading health resorts is appended, enabling one at a glance to see how many hours' distance from the great cities any of the health resorts lie, and the return fare there. Thoroughly deserves the extended and hearty support of the travelling public."

People's Journal:—"It is a unique and original production, containing a great deal of invaluable information in small compass."

Greenock Herald:—"Tourists will find this guide-book very useful. In addition to a brief description of the various resorts, several pages are devoted to miscellaneous hints on fishing, golfing, swimming &c."

Leith Herald:—"Is a pocket compendium of tit-bits connected with every place of note in Scotland, and parties in search of such resorts will find in it information which they ought to know."

Stirling Journal and Advertiser:—"For grave at gaw, old and young, male and female, rich and poor &c. The publishers of this little book have evidently an eye to business in this complication of 112 pages of information which is on the whole accurate and clearly given. The little book will make a capital companion for holiday makers, and contains a good deal of useful hints and facts about Scotland. It would be invaluable to those who come from the South to visit the upper end of the Island"

Arbroath Guide:—"Not bulky, it yet contains a deal of information, which is arranged on the A B C plan, and is thus of easy reference. The 'A B C Introduction' is a capital little book."

St Ronan's Standard:—"For the price of two pence, holiday makers can be supplied with a Scottish guide that cannot be beat." We say that without fear of contradiction. The little work embraces all the towns in Bonnie Scotland in alphabetical style, and its pages are as crammed with historical and geographical information as "an egg is full of meat." Messrs Higgle & Co., Glasgow and Rothsay, are the publishers, and in issuing the travelling public this handiwork, have supplied a want which, we have no doubt in saying, will find its way into nearly every home—both in England and Scotland."

Irvine Herald:—"Somewhat formidable title: a small tourists' vade mecum. It contains a good deal of useful information."

The British and Colonial Printer and Stationer:—"A handy little book. It forms a complete pocket gazetteer to every town of any importance, and the information appertaining to each place is given in a condensed but concise and clear form. For those travelling in the northern portion of our island either for pleasure or profit, it should form an indispensable handbook."

The Banffshire Advertiser:—"Such a handy little volume should be in the hands of all tourists, as the main features of Scotland's resorts are chronicled in its pages. The publishers make the issue of these publications a speciality, and their efforts should be crowned with success."

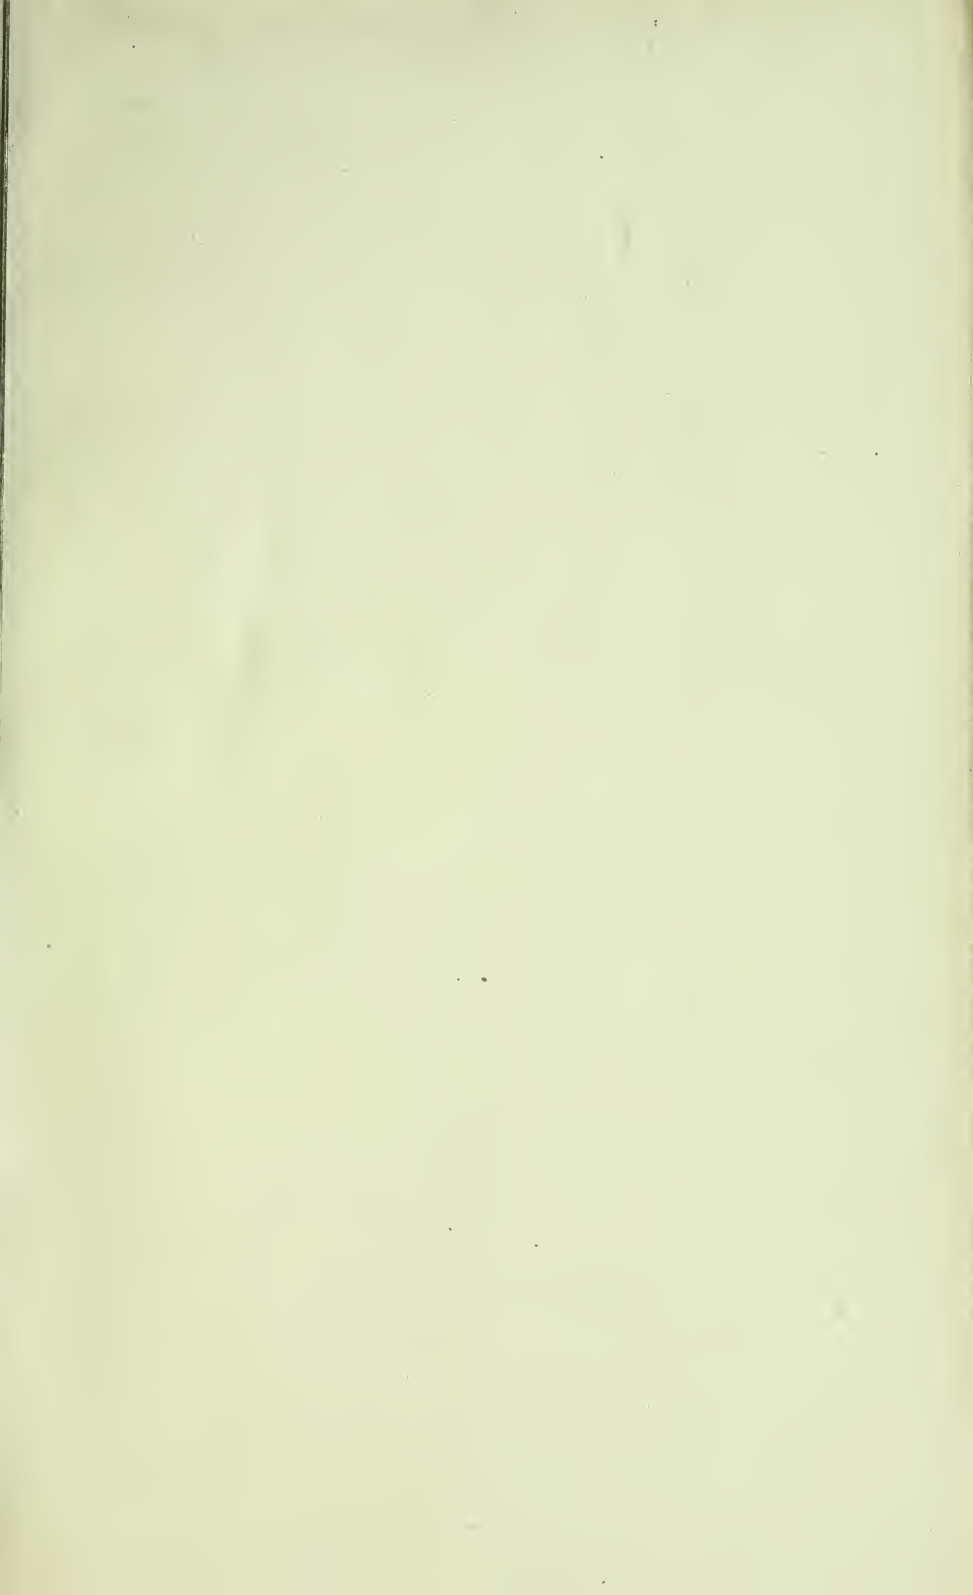

John O'Groat Journal:—"It is a well conceived and nicely got up little book, which will be extremely handy for the pocket in these days of cycling and holiday-making generally. . . . There is also plenty of other entertaining reading in the booklet which as presented to the public is a happy idea admirably put into practical shape. We are quite sure it will be greatly appreciated."

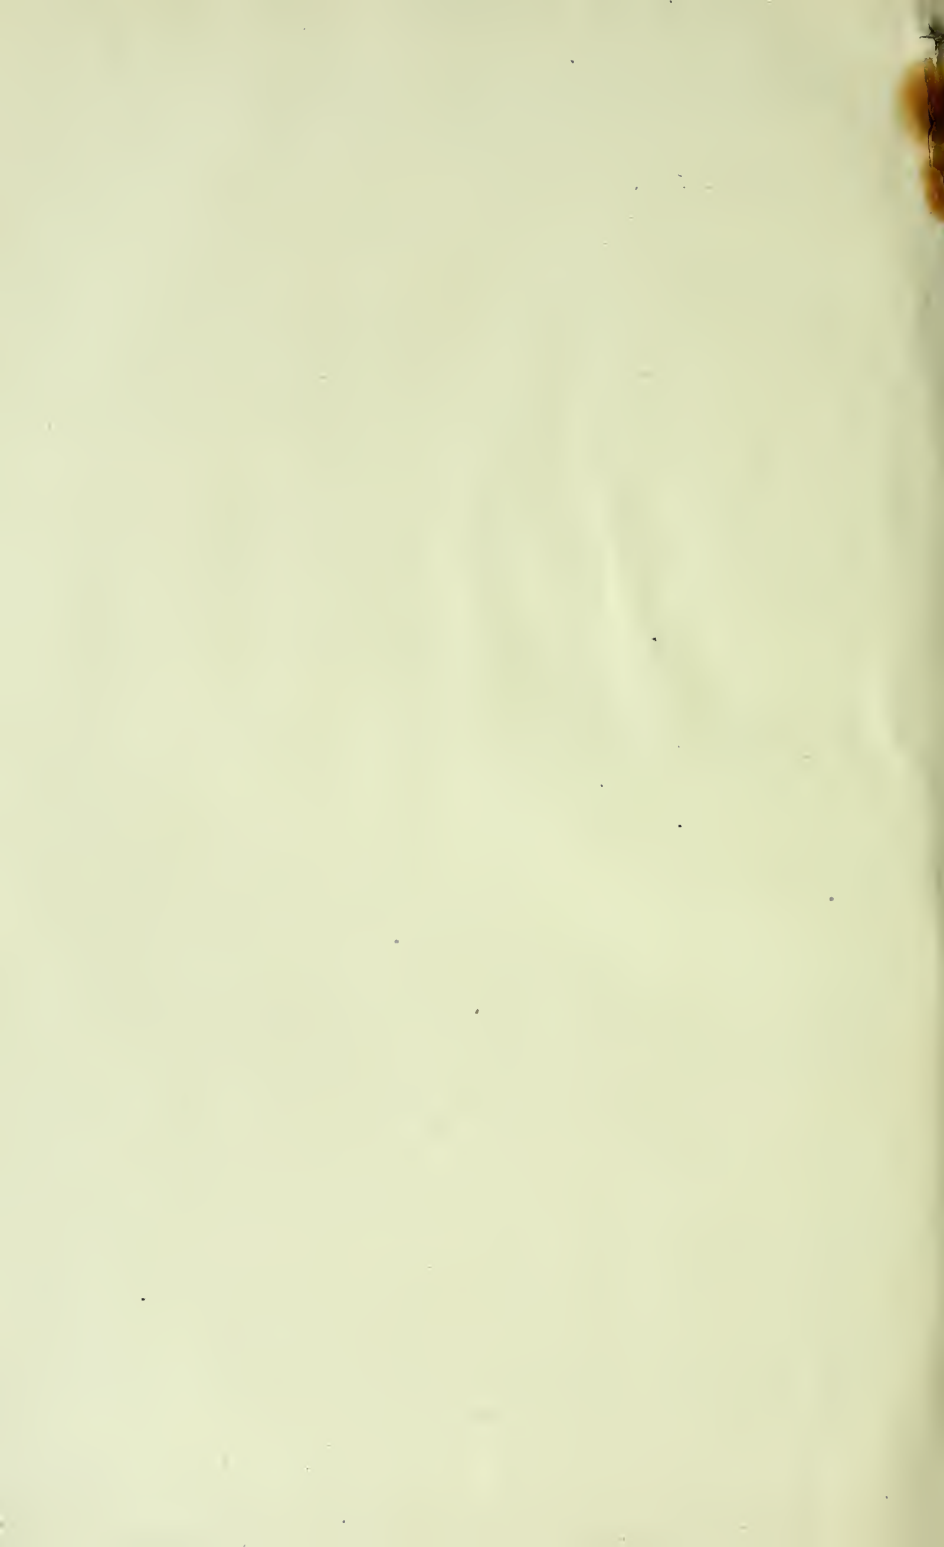

Glasgow Weekly Herald:—"Gives brief notes regarding the towns and villages of Scotland which lay claim to being healthy, or of having historical or picturesque attractions."

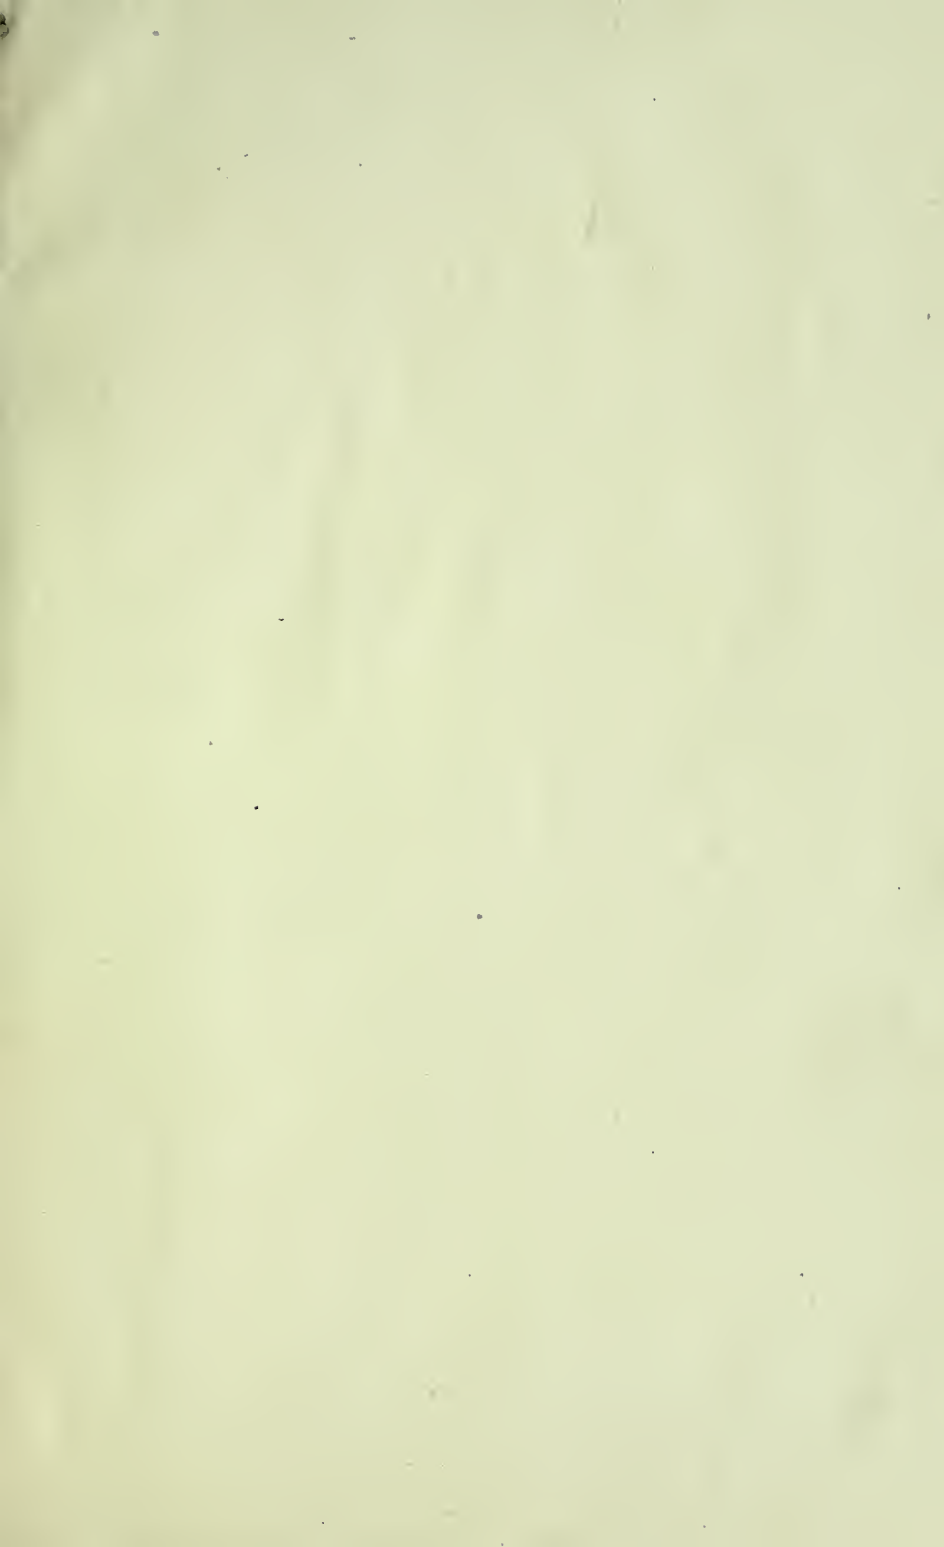

Campbeltown Courier:—"Taken altogether, the book is a most invaluable one for tourists and travellers, and should be especially popular with the class as well as the public generally, containing as it does a perfect mine of information."

The Rev. David Macrae, Dundee, writes:—"I have been looking through your admirable Guide with great interest. Page 100 is a guide also on a point of national honour, which it would be well if all guide-books followed."

Another edition is in the Press, and will shortly follow its predecessor to the ends of the earth.
