PREFACE.

Manners with fortunes, humours turn with climes,
Tenets with books, and principles with times.—POPE.

IN introducing the following work to the Public, the Author would briefly observe, that he was, from practical experience in teaching for several years, led to furnish the DOUBLE GRAMMAR, as an attempt to supply an educational want which had too long existed in the Highlands of Scotland,—that of a Grammar from which the natives might learn the structure of both English and Gaelic, or either, through the medium of the Gaelic itself, their vernacular language. Such a work has been long and eagerly desired by many in the Highlands.

In teaching the structure of any language, it will be readily admitted by every person in the least acquainted with the principles of tuition, that the only rational and successful method of conveying a proper knowledge of it to the learner, is through the medium of the language which he already in some measure understands; and pursuant to this principle, our country has been abundantly supplied with elementary books, in which the principles of foreign languages are explicitly unfolded in English, for the benefit of such as are capable of studying them through that important language.

Seeing, then, such ample provision made for facilitating the attainment of foreign or dead languages, such as Greek and Latin, &c., which, though not spoken by us, are highly cultivated among us, and richly remunerate their being so : it certainly becomes equally imperative upon us to provide similar assistance for facilitating the acquirement of English or Gaelic Grammar to the people whose only language is the Gaelic,—a living and a spoken language of acknowledged excellence, by means of which alone, instruction can be communicated with profit to thousands of our fellow-countrymen.

It is a well known and an acknowledged fact, that many in the Highlands who can read and spell English fluently, can scarcely connect a single idea with the words read by them ; being taught only the art of reading the language or sounding its vocables,—an essential object, certainly ; but as the end of learning to read is to enable the reader to understand the meaning and purport of the subject perused, reading and meaning of words should go hand in hand ; that is, the one should be taught along with the other ; for a child is fully as capable of recollecting the meaning of a word as he is of recollecting its constituent letters and the sounds they produce. Therefore, as soon as he is able to enunciate a word or sentence properly, he should be next taught its meaning, otherwise his knowledge consists of (to him) a number of unmeaning sounds ; being left to chance or his own isolated exertions for an acquaintance with the ideas conveyed by them.

In schools where the analytic system, or rather the practice of translating from English into Gaelic, and from Gaelic into English, is pursued, the case is different, for under this system the pupil picks up the meaning of a number of English words: so far well ; but without a knowledge of their grammatical relations, he can never express his ideas by them with precision and confidence. For every one unacquainted with Grammar is, when he has a subject of importance to treat of, seized with fear of blundering, “whereas one who has an accurate knowledge of the structure and phraseology of the language he speaks, will seldom fail to utter his thoughts with superior confidence, energy, and effect.” Therefore, in pursuing the translative system, let the pupil, after being well initiated into the art of reading both languages, be actively employed in acquiring a grammatical knowledge, along with the meaning of their vocables, and the result will be doubly profitable.

Though the inhabitants of the Highlands do now, for the most part, acquire the art of reading English and Gaelic to a competent degree, only a limited number ever becomes acquainted with the Grammar of the former, while that of the latter is entirely neglected. This sad neglect is to be much regretted, as a grammatical knowledge of the Gaelic* would evidently conduce much to facilitate the art of reading and understanding it, and also English, perfectly; render the task more pleasant and valuable to the learner; at the same time preserve the purity of the language, and arm it against the inroads of numerous corruptions.

Among the few Gaelic Grammars hitherto published, we find none defining the principles of Grammar in both languages. In these the subject is generally treated of in a style of hard English, either too lofty or too prolix for the capacity of a Highland schoolboy, whose familiar language is the Gaelic, it being more suited to the capacity of the "learned." To place an English Grammar, defined in Latin or Gaelic, as a class-book in the hands of an Edinburgh boy understanding

* In regard to the Gaelic it may be remarked, that its character is often misrepresented by those, and only those, who are entirely ignorant of its genius and excellent qualities, or imperfectly acquainted with its structure. Some inveigh against an exuberance of silent vowels and consonants constituting many of its words, though these are in most cases indispensably necessary to distinguish one word from another; pronouncing the task of learning the language insurmountable, but perhaps omitting to observe that similar or greater anomalies occur in English also; take, for instance, the ugly words check, cough, knee, knight, phlegm, through, strength, &c.; and in the French there is scarcely a word without a silent letter. The fact is, as known from experience, that a person equally unacquainted with both languages will, under proper tuition, find it fully as easy, if not easier, to read Gaelic as English; for according to SHAW, "the English and French are infinitely more difficult to read and pronounce, and have many more silent and mute letters than the Gaelic." But though our venerable language may have suffered at the hands of its degenerate or prejudiced vilifiers, it delights us to see, it can rank among its warm admirers and zealous cultivators, many of the greatest philologists, and of the most distinguished men for learning and exalted station in almost every part of Europe, as well as in the unsophisticated valleys of Caledonia.—See SHAW'S Analysis of the Gaelic Language, and M'LEAN'S History of the Celtic, &c.

English only, could not be more absurd than to place an English or Gaelic Grammar defined in English, as a class-book in the hands of a Highland schoolboy understanding Gaelic only. With these views, and under these urgent circumstances, the Author has been induced and strongly encouraged by many of his countrymen to provide this system, which is, in every point, sufficiently scientific and practical for the purpose of teaching the Grammar of both languages.

The Author has, in common with other compilers of school books, unscrupulously availed himself of the suggestions of his predecessors. To Dr Stewart and Mr Munro's Gaelic Grammars, and Dr Armstrong's Gaelic Dictionary, the best and most learned works known to him upon the subject, he has most to acknowledge in the Celtic department. The English department is in many points based upon the plan adopted by Dr M'Culloch in his English Grammar, a gentleman to whom the country is highly indebted for his excellent series of school books. But from this eminent grammarian the Author of this system has, on account of the design of his work, found it necessary to differ in many respects; and while he does not arrogate originality to himself, he has certainly aimed at a higher character than that of a mere compiler, in having produced a Double System of Grammar defining the principles of two languages, by terms and rules couched in a language in which, consistent with his knowledge, they had never appeared before; but which will be found to be as descriptive of the sense intended to be expressed by them, as their correspondents in other languages.

The subject of Orthography is reduced to a compendious size. The different sounds of the vowels in both languages, and the aspirated sounds of the Gaelic consonants, are briefly exemplified in the keys. A verbose exposition of the powers of each letter is intentionally avoided, because it is seldom attended to, as the learner must be pretty well versed in the art of reading from other books, ere he commences to study grammar systematically.

The most approved authors, chiefly the Gaelic version of the Bible, are strictly followed in the spelling of the Celtic words and phraseologies composing the work. In a few instances a bristly consonant or vowel, contributing nothing to sound or distinguish a word, but rendering it clumsy, is thrown out; such as airis for aithris, earran for earrann, oïche for oidhche, &c. The improvement of the English language, by abridging many of its words in this manner, within the last two centuries, fully supports this innovation. "Who would expect to find chirurgeon in our modern surgeon, or eleemosynie in alms, or fantasy in fancy?"

Under the head of Etymology, the parts of Speech are classified and inflected in their proper order. The English verb is followed in all its variations by its proper Gaelic; and when the Gaelic verb assumes a form peculiar to itself, it is so inflected. Progressive exercises on Parsing are also provided in both languages, and of such varied character, as to call the pupils' discriminative faculties into action, at every stage.

To the General Rules of Syntax, are subjoined such Special Rules as pertain to them, both followed by exercises sufficient to test the pupils' knowledge in regard to their import.

Prosody is also treated of, in both languages, to an extent sufficiently great to initiate the learner into the principles of that part of Grammar. Several other improvements have been introduced, such as models of letters and accounts, Latin and French phrases, and a Grammatical Vocabulary. These and many others will be better seen and understood upon a perusal of the work.

In short, every definition and rule is concisely expressed in plain and simple words, but sufficiently perspicuous throughout to convey their import to the understanding. Useless discussions upon dubious points are studiously avoided, as being more calculated to perplex and bewilder, than assist the learner. Viewing language as one of the great productions of nature, from which all principles and rules are deduced, it has been the Author's special object to exhibit the usages of both languages, as they really are, and not to dictate what they ought to be.

That this work is entirely free from imperfections, is a thought which the Author does not presume to entertain. In sending it forth to the world, he anticipates it will, more or less, share in the commendations and obloquy incident to all literary works. But be it remembered, that a work, which often proves generally useful, is not such as would, in every point, satisfy the penetrative or presumptuous eye of criticism.

ART OF TEACHING GRAMMAR.

In respectfully submitting a few hints regarding the mode of teaching Grammar, it is not intended either to dictate or prescribe any plan to the efficient and experienced Teacher, who never fails to select, in the course of instruction, such passages of Grammar as are best suited to the capacity and circumstances of his pupils: the hints are offered for the benefit of those who may be tyroes in the art, as being necessary to direct in going over the following system.

The Definitions and Rules, in the larger type, are intended to be got thoroughly by heart, while the observations and notes, in the smaller characters, are to be made the subject of frequent reference and careful perusal. It will be of great service to the scholar, in advancing his knowledge of Grammar, to be made to apply the definitions and rules in course of reading in other books, and to be frequently called upon to give grammatical authority for his own expressions, as well as for those that pass before him in reading. Let him understand that his progress ought to consist in acquiring a well grounded knowledge of the contents of his book, and not in progressing from its beginning to its end.

Every lesson ought to be mastered by the pupil, and firmly fixed on his understanding before he proceeds to another; if this is not the case, the preceding lesson will afford but little light to his mind on the succeeding one; the consequence is that his steps are broken or obscured, and he himself becomes bewildered, and heartless.

Periodical repetitions of the Definitions and Rules are of vital importance, and these should be again so varied in the language of the pupil himself, as to warrant the conclusion that he has digested their import.

The Rules of Syntax are laid down in the order of the parts of Speech, beginning with the Article, and each followed by exercises to be corrected by the pupil, after he has perfectly committed the Rule to memory ; but as the exercises on English Construction are wholly confined to the Rule under which they stand, it is of little consequence with which Rule the pupil commences first.

The Rules of Gaelic Syntax are also placed in the order of the parts of speech, each followed by its own quota of exercises in Gaelic, to be constructed or arranged into classical Gaelic, answering in every point to the English in the left hand column, for which the learner is for the most part furnished on the right hand side with the Article (an) in its unchanged form ; Nouns and Adjectives in the nominative singular ; Pronouns in the 1st person singular ; and the root or second person singular imperative of the Verb ; except in cases where the exercises are given contrary to Rule, in correcting which, he is again to be guided by the Rule.

Here it will be necessary for the learner to commence with the first Rule of Syntax, studying each successively, for under each subsequent Rule he will often have occasion to apply a preceding one, in correcting the exercises ; but no Rule is anticipated till he comes to the exercises, headed with this mark P which he is not to touch till after he has mastered the Rules and exercises before the black P, when he may commence at the first section headed P and read the whole even on to the end : here he will have to bring the Rules which he had formerly learned into play again.

In going over the Rules and Exercises on Construction, it will be proper for the pupil to learn a corresponding Rule of arrangement to each of Construction.

GRAMAR BEURLA-GAELIG.

ENGLISH or GAELIC GRAMMAR is the art of speaking, reading, and writing the English or Gaelic language correctly.

Grammar is the art of reading, speaking, and writing any language according to general usage and established rules.

It is divided into four parts, namely, Orthography, Etymology, Syntax, and Prosody.

PART I.

ORTHOGRAPHY.

ORTHOGRAPHY treats of letters, syllables, and the just method of spelling words.

OF LETTERS.

A letter is a character representing an articulate sound of the voice.

An articulate sound is a distinct sound produced by the organs of speech.

Is e GRAMAR BEURLA no GAELIG alt labhairt, leughaidh, agus sgriobhaidh na cainnt Bheurla no Ghaelig gu ceart.

Is e fuaim pungail, fuaim soilleir deanta leis na buill-labhairt.

* Rialtachadh, Syntax, and rialt, rule, are contracted for riaghailteachadh and riaghailt, to save room and time.

The English consists of twenty-six letters, and the Gaelic of eighteen, both divided into Roman and Italic capitals and small :—

Rom. Cap. A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, J, K, L, M, N, O, P, Q, R, S, T, U, V, W, X, Y, Z.

Rom. Small a, b, c, d, e, f, g, h, i, j, k, l, m, n, o, p, q, r, s, t, u, v, w, x, y, z.

Ital. Cap. A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, J, K, L, M, N, O, P, Q, R, S, T, U, V, W, X, Y, Z.

Ital. Small a, b, c, d, e, f, g, h, i, j, k, l, m, n, o, p, q, r, s, t, u, v, w, x, y, z.

The Letters of the Gaelic are A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, L, M, N, O, P, R, S, T, U.

The first word of every sentence, of every line in poetry, the first letter of every proper name, and of every important word, begins with a capital.

CLASSES OF LETTERS.

Letters are divided into Vowels and Consonants.

A Vowel is a letter which makes a perfect sound of itself; as a, o.

A Consonant is a letter which cannot be sounded without a vowel along with it; as b, l, m.

The Vowels are a, e, i, o, u, and often w and y; but the other nineteen letters of the English Alphabet, and Tha na litrichean roinnte 'nam Fuaimragan agus 'nan Cònnragan.

Is i Fuaimrag litir a ni fuaim làn leatha féin; mar, a, o.

Is i Cònnrag litir nach dean fuaim gun fhuaimrag leatha; mar, b, l, m.

Is iad na Fuaimragan a, e, i, o, u, agus gu tric w 'us y; 'sa Bheurla ach tha na naoi litrichean deug eile the thirteen of the Gaelic, are always Consonants.

Observe.—W and y are Consonants only when they begin a word or syllable ; as a week, a yolk.

Obs.—The vowel sounds are produced by the opening, and the consonant sounds by the joining or shutting of the human organs of speech.

COUPLING OF VOWELS.

Diphthongs & Triphthongs.

A Diphthong is the union of two vowels in one word or syllable ; as, ou in out.

Obs.—When both vowels are sounded, the Diphthong is called Proper, as oi in voice ; when only one is heard, it is an Improper Diphthong, as o in boat.

A Triphthong is the union of three vowels, as, eau in beauty.*

The Diphthongs in both languages are numerous, but the Triphthongs in English are three, eau, ieu, iew, and in Gaelic five.

CLASSES OF CONSONANTS.

The consonants are divided into two classes, viz. mutes and semi-vowels.

de 'n Abideil Bheurla, agus na tri deug de 'n Ghaeilg, a ghna 'nan Cònnragan.

AONADH FUAIMRAGAN.

Is e Dà-ghuth aonadh dà fhuaimraig ann an aon fhocal no smid ; mar, ui'am muigh.

Faic.—'Nuair a sheinnear an dà fhuaimrag theirear Colionta ris an an Da-ghuth, mar ei 'an eidh ; 'nuair nach cluinnear ach aon a mhain theirear Mi-cholionta ris an Dà-ghuth ; mar, a 'an culaidh.

Is e Tri-ghuth aonadh thri fhuaimragan ; mar, iui ann a ciùin.<sup>n*</sup>

Tha na Dà-ghuthan lion-mhor 'san dà chainnt ach cha n'eil ach tri Tri-ghuthan 'sa Bheurla, eau, ieu, iew, agus cuig 'sa Ghaeilg. Faic. t. 25.

ROINNEAN CHONNRAGAN.

Tha na cònnragan iar an sgaradh 'nan dà roinn, eadh tosdaich agus leth-fhuaimragan.

* When the Gaelic example does not correspond in meaning to the English, it is marked with an n.

22 ORTHOGRAPHY.

The mutes are such as emit no sound without the help of a vowel; as, b, d, p, k, q, and c and g hard.

The semivowels, are such as emit an imperfect sound of themselves; as, f, l, m, n, r, s, v, x, z.

The consonants have received other names from the organs chiefly employed in uttering them, thus: d, t, s, z, are named Dentals, or letters of the teeth; b, f, m, p, Labials, or letters of the lips; l, n, r, Linguals, or letters of the tongue; and c, g, Palatials, or letters of the palate.

Obs.—As the letters of a language ought to correspond in number with its elementary sounds, the English Alphabet is both redundant and defective.

It is redundant, because i and y represent the same sound, and q is equivalent in sound to k, w to u, x to gs or ks, and every sound of c may be represented by k or s.

Defective, because it wants proper letters to represent the initial sounds of words beginning with ch, sh, th, and the final sounds of words ending in ng, and each of the five letters a, e, i, o, u, is employed to express a variety of sounds.

The sounds of the vowels in both English and Gaelic are determined in the following keys, by the terms, long, fad; short, grad; broad, lan; open, réidh; shut, fann.

ENGLISH SOUNDS.

1. Key.

- 1 a long, as in fate.
- 2 a long, as in fär.
- 3 a broad, as in fall.
- 4 a short, as in fat.
- 1 e long, as in me.
- 2 e short, as in met.
- 1 i long, as in pine.
- 2 i short, as in pin.
- 3 i like u before r, as in fir.

LITIREACHADH.

Is iad na tosdaich iadsan nach leig a mach fuaim air bith gun chomhnadh fuaimraig ; mar, b, d, p, k, q, agus c'usg cruidh.

Is iad na leth-fhuaimragan iadsan a leigeas a mach fuaimfann leò féin; mar, f, l, m, n, r, s, v, x, z.

Thugadh ainmean eile do na cònnragan gu sonruichte bho na buill-labhairt a ghnathaichear 'gan séinn. Mar so theirear fiaclaich nolitrichean nam fiaclan ri d, t, s, z; lipich no litrichean nam bilean ri b, f, m, p; teang-aich no litrichean na teanga ri l, n, r; agus càranaich, no litrichean nan càireanan ri c, g.

Obs.—As the letters of a language ought to correspond in number with its elementary sounds, the English Alphabet is both redundant and defective.

It is redundant, because i and y represent the same sound, and q is equivalent in sound to k, w to u, x to gs or ks, and every sound of c may be represented by k or s.

Defective, because it wants proper letters to represent the initial sounds of words beginning with ch, sh, th, and the final sounds of words ending in ng, and each of the five letters a, e, i, o, u, is employed to express a variety of sounds.

The fuaimean nam fuaimragan a raon'sa Bheurla agus'sa Ghaelig suidhichte anns na h-iuchraichean a leanas leis na h-ainmean,

FUAIMEAN BEURLA.

1. Iuchair.

- 1 o long open, as in note.
- 2 o long shut, as in move.
- 3 o broad, as in or, for.
- 4 o short, as in not, pot.
- 1 u long, as in tube, cube.
- 2 u short, as in cup, sup.
- 3 u broad, as in, bull, full.

GAELIC VOWELS.

The Gaelic vowels are divided into two classes, viz. broad and small; and hence the famous rule for spelling Gaelic, “Broad to broad, and small to small.” The broad are a, o, u, and the small e, i.

Each Gaelic vowel expresses long and short sounds of different qualities, as exemplified in the following key.

A vowel marked with the grave accent (‘) over it is always sounded long; as, bàrd, a poet.

A vowel without the grave over it is sounded short, as alt, a joint.

The vowel e, expressing the sound of ā in fāte, is marked with the acute accent (‘) as téum, a bite.

The dash (-) marks a long sound, and the breve (-) a short one in both languages, as dān, a poem, sōdān, joy.

The accented syllables of English words are uniformly marked in English Dictionaries with the acute accent, but such a mark of accentuation is scarcely necessary in Gaelic, when the pupil is told that almost every word in the language is accented on the first syllable.

In the following key, the different sounds of each of the Gaelic vowels are represented as nearly as possible by English words and one French word (eux), in which similar sounds occur; but some of them, especially 3, 4, and 5 a, and 6 o, and diph. ao, are to be acquired to advantage by the ear.

FUAIMRAGAN GAELIG.

Tha na fuaimragan Gae-lig roinnte 'nan dà sheòrsa, eadh. leathan agus caol: agus o so tha 'n rialt ainmeil gu cùbadh Gaelig, “Leathan ri leathan, is caol ri caol.” Tha a, o, u, leathan, agus e, i, caol.

Tha fuaimeach fad agus grad de ghnè eu-coltach, aig gach fuaimraig Ghaelig, mar chithear anns an iuchair a leanas.

Fuaimichear fad fuaimrag leis an t-stràe mhall thairis oirre; mar, bòrd; a table.

Fuaimichear grad fuaimrag gun an strac mall thairis oirre; mar, ros, seed.

Nuair a tha an fuaimrag e, a toirt fuaim a am fāte comh-arrachear i leis an t-strac bhrisg; mar, té, a she one.

Comharraichidh an sínean (-) fuaim fad, agus am brisgean (-) fuaim grad, 'san dà chainnt; mar, bān, white, cān say.

N.B.—A vowel is never doubled in the same syllable of a Gaelic word,* like double oo in English, nor is there any silent vowel like final e in English.

Diphthongs.—There are thirteen diphthongs in Gaelic, viz. ae, ai, ao, ea, ei, eo, eu, ia, io, iu, oi, ua, ui; of these ao, eu, ia, ua, are always long, the rest are both long and short.

* A Greek letter.

† F aspirated, becomes silent, or eclipsed.

* Litir Ghréugach.

† Tha f séidichte, samhach, no neul-aichte.

l, n, and r are always plain, and the only Gaelic consonants doubled in a syllable, as*

Toll, a hole; sànn, a desire; torr, a heap.

Obs. 1.—The aspirated sounds of eight of the consonants are represented in the foregoing key by the five single letters v, χ, y, f, and h, which, being evidently too few to prevent ambiguity, are never used to represent the secondary or aspirated sounds of any of the consonants in Gaelic orthography.

Obs. 2.—A consonant joined in the same syllable with a, o, or u has a broad sound, and a consonant with i or ei has a small sound.

Sc, sg, sm, sp, st are never aspirated in the beginning of a word.

SYLLABLES.

A syllable is a single sound, a word, or part of a word, as a, ant; mak in maker.

There must be at least one vowel in every syllable.

A word of one syllable is called a Monosyllable, as pen.

A word of two syllables, is called a Dissyllable; as, er-ror.

Tha l, n, agus r a ghna lom, agus is iad na h-aon chònnragan Gaelig asheasas dubailt ann an smid;* mar,

Faic. 2.—Tha fuaim leathan aig cònnraig naisgte 'san aon smid ri a, o, no u, agus fuaim caol aig cònnraig 'san aon smid ri i no ei.

Cha shéidichear sc, sg, sm, sp, st 'an tùs focail, uair air bith.

SMIDEAN.

Is i smid fuaim singilt, focal, no pairt a dh-fhocal; mar, a, balg, agus mead 'am meadar.<sup>n</sup>

Feumaidh an car a 's lugha aon fhuaimrag a bhi anns gach smid.

* For the secondary sounds of l, n, r, see list of irregular nouns of the first declension.

A word of three syllables is called a Trisyllable; as, mul-ti-ply.

SPELLING.

Spelling is the art of expressing words by their proper letters.

The spelling of the English and Gaelic languages is chiefly regulated by the prevailing mode of pronunciation.

The chief anomalies in the orthography of both languages arise from the number of silent letters used in many words, and the difficulty of describing their situations by general rules.

The following are instances of English words in which the letters b, c, d, g, and h are silent.

GAEILIC SPELLING.

Rule.—Broad to broad and small to small.

Thus explained:—In words of more than one syllable, the last vowel of each preceding syllable, and the first of each succeeding one, must be of the

LITIREACHADH.

It would be false orthography to write words thus :—

Bhitheadh e 'na fhocal-achadh bréugach focail a sgriobhadh mar so :—

cailag, feor-eag, cui-lag, lur-eag, cìr-adh, barreadh.

Obs.—The application of this rule, which is borrowed from the Irish, softens the harsh sounds of consonants, and gives a mellow sound to the language, but in many instances its use might be set aside, for it is by a strict observance of it that so many diphthongs are used in words where a single vowel is sufficient to express the vocal sound. And it interferes materially with the primitive simplicity and purity of the language. However, any material deviation from this mode of spelling in the system of orthography now established would introduce much confusion and inconvenience.

The following are instances of Gaelic words in which the letters a, e, i, o, f, gh, m, t, s are silent, or very faintly heard.

Is iad na samplairean a leanas focail Ghaelig anns a bheil na litrichean a, e, i, o, f, gh, m, t, s sàmhach, no iar an cluinnntinn gle fhann.

Rules for spelling English words.

E is the principal final vowel in English.

Rialtan gu Cùbadh fhocail Bheurla.

1. E final is always silent, except in a few words of foreign origin; as, epitomé, synecdoché, similé.

Is i e a phriomh fluaimrag dheiridh 'sa Bheurla.

2. E sounded at the end of a word is generally doubled; as,

1. Tha e deireannach a ghna samhach, ach ann am beagan fhocail o stoc coimheach; mar, see, tree, free, donee; except the, be, me, he, we, ye, she.

3. All the consonants, except i, q, v, and c and g soft, are used as final letters in English.

4. A word ends in silent e when its final vowel has its long or name sound ; as, fate, relate, mete, impede, pine, divine, note, remote, tube, refuse.

EXCEPTIONS.

1. Some words end in e silent when their preceding vowels have not their long sounds ; as, .

are, have, give, come, done; some, one, &c.

2. Words ending in two consonants seldom take a silent e after them ; as, bath, hath, such, rích, night, help, strong ; except such as horde, ache, bronze, change, niche, and h sometimes preceded by t, as bathe, clothe, tithe, and t preceded by s, as paste, taste.

3. Silent e is required after v, and c and g soft ; as,

live, save, perceive, face, peace, age, lodge.

4. Monosyllables double final f, l, or s, after a single vowel, but s used as the augment of a noun or verb, is single ; thus we write, chaff, staff, stiff, stuff, scoff, all, hall, bell, tell, ell, hill, rill, ass, pass, glass, class, less, loss, truss, puss, except if, of, as, gas, has, was, yes, is, his, this, wis, us, thus.

5. In words of more than one syllable final, f or s preceded by a single vowel, is generally double ; as, distaff, mastiff, rebuff, harass, surpass, oppress, &c.; except alas, atlas, chorus, &c.

LITIREACHADH.

3. Tha na cònnragan uile, ach i, q, v, agus c 'us g, bog iar an cleachdadhbh mar litrichean deireannach 'sa Bheurla.

4. Dunaidh focal le e sàmhach 'nuair tha fuaim fad aig 'fhuaimraig dhei'reannaich, mar, fate, relate, mete, impede, pine, divine, note, remote, tube, refuse.

OBAIDHEAN.

1. Tha beagan fhocail a dunadh le e 'sambach 'nuair nach eil am fuaimean fad aig am fuaimragan toisich ; mar, are, have, give, come, done; some, one, &c.

2. Is ainmig a ghabhas focal a dumadh le e sambach da chonrag 'nan deigh, mar, bath, hath, such, rích, night, help, strong ; except such as horde, ache, bronze, change, niche, and h sometimes preceded by t, as bathe, clothe, tithe, and t preceded by s, as paste, taste.

3. Feumar e sambach an déigh v agus c 'us g bog.

live, save, perceive, face, peace, age, lodge.

(4.) Dublaichidh aon-smidean f, l, no s deireannach an déigh aoin fhuaimraig, ach tha s gnath-aichte mar mheudan ainmeir, no gniomhair, singilt ; mar so sgriobhaidh sinn, chaff, staff, stiff, stuff, scoff, all, hall, bell, tell, ell, hill, rill, ass, pass, glass, class, less, loss, truss, puss, except if, of, as, gas, has, was, yes, is, his, this, wis, us, thus.

5. 'Am focail anns a bheil na's mò na aon smid tha f no s deireannach le aoin fhuaimraig a dol roimpe gu cumanta dubait, mar, distaff, mastiff, rebuff, harass, surpass, oppress, &c.; except alas, atlas, chorus, &c.

6. In monosyllables final consonants, except f, l, s, are generally single, as bud, rub, frog, hog, oh, ham, tin, son, map, fir, pet, fox, &c.; except add, odd, ebb, egg, inn, err, purr, butt.

7. No monosyllable ends in c hard without a k, as sick, stock, suck, lock, &c. except zinc.

8. C is used as a final letter after i, and the diphthong ia in words of more than one syllable, as, music, public, maniac, zodiac.

AFFIXES.

9. Words are materially changed in their final letters, by the addition of such terminations, as able, ible, ing, ish, y, ous, ed, er, eth, est, ment, ness.

10. Words ending in silent e, upon receiving an affix beginning with a vowel generally drop the e, but retain it before an affix beginning with a consonant, as, decline, declining, life, lifeless.

11. Silent e is retained after v and c or g soft before a vowel, but it is changed into i after c soft, before ous, as move, moveable, peace, peaceable, change, changeable; grace, gracious, price, precious.

12. Words ending in y, preceded by a vowel, generally retain the y; but y preceded by a consonant is changed into i upon assuming an affix: y is always retained before ing and ish, as boy, boys, boyish; holy, holier, holiest, fancy, fanciful, marry, marries, marrying, fly, flies, flying.

6. Tha cònnragan deireannach, ach, ach f, l, s, gu cumanta singilt 'an aon-smidean, mar,

7. Cha dhun aon-smid le c cruaidh gun k, mar,

(8.) Tha c gnathaichte mar litir dheireannach an deigh i agus an da-ghuth ia 'am focail anns a bheil na's mó na aon smid, mar,

ETYMOLOGY.

ETYMOLOGY treats of the different parts of speech into which words are divided, and their Classification, Inflection, and Derivation.

CLASSIFICATION OF WORDS.

The words of the English and of the Gaelic language may be divided into ten classes, or parts of speech.

The names of the parts of speech are, the Article, the Noun, the Adjective, the Pronoun, the Verb, the Participle, the Adverb, the Preposition, the Conjunction, and the Interjection.

1. The Article.—An Article is a word placed before a noun, to point out its meaning; as, a man, the apple.

There are two articles in English, viz. a or an and the; and one in Gaelic, viz. an, the.

A or an is one and the same article in English, but an is used instead of a before a vowel or silent h; as, an ox, an hour.

A or an is called the indefinite article, and is used

EARRAN II.
FOCLACHADH.

Tha Foclachadh a teagasg mu gach seòrsa focail air leth gus am beil focail na cainnt air an roinn, an Seorsachadh, an Tearnadh, agus am Freumhachadh.

SEORSACHADH FHOCALAN.

Faodar focail na cainnt
Bheurla 'us Ghaelig a roinn gu deich seorsan, no pairtean cainnt.

Is iad ainmean nam pairtean cainnt: am Pungar, an t-Ainmear, am Buadhar, an Riochdar, an Gniomhar, am Pairtear, an Co-ghniomhar, an Roimhear, an Clisgear, agus an Naisgear.

1. Am Pungar.—Is e
Pungar focal a chuirear roimh ainmear gu'sheadh a chomharrachadh a mach;
mar, duine, an t-ubhal.

Tha dà phungar 'sa Bheurla eadhon a no an agus the; agus aon 'sa
Ghaelig, eadh. an (the).

Is aon phungar a no an
'sa Bheurla ach gnathaichear an an ait a, roimh fhocal a toiseachadh le fuaimraig no h samhach, (damh, uair.)

Theirear am pungar neochinnteach ri a no an agus to denote one of a kind, but not any particular one ; as, a man ; an apple.

The is called the definite article, and is used to point out a particular person or thing ; as, the man, the king, the apples.

2. The Noun.—A Noun is a word which is either the name of a person, animal, place, thing, or idea ; as, John, ox, London, pen, truth.

The noun is the only part of speech which expresses a distinct idea without the help of another word.

There are two kinds of nouns, proper and common.

Proper nouns are the names given to persons, places, or things, to distinguish such from the rest of the species ; as, James, London, Nile.

A common noun denotes any one of a whole kind or species ; as, man, city, river.

3. The Adjective.—An Adjective is a word which expresses quality or degree, and it is joined to a noun or pronoun ; as, a good boy, a new book, a fat ox ; you are diligent.

gabhar e gu aon air bith de ghnè a nochdadh a mach, ach ni h-eadh aon air leth,
(duine, ubhal.)

Theirear am pungar
cinn teach ri the, agus gabhar e gu neach, no ni air leth a nochdadh a mach ; mar,
an duine, an righ, na hubhlan.

2. An t-Ainmear.—Is e
Ainmear focal a ta 'na
ainm pearsa, ainmhidh,
aite, ni, no smuain ; mar,
Iain, damh, Lunuinn, peann,
firinn.

Tha dà sheòrsa ainmearan ann, eadhon ceart
agus cumanta.

Is iad ainmeanan ceart
na h-ainmean a bhùineas do chrèutairibh, aitibh, agus nithibh, gu'n eadar-dhealachadh o'n leithid eile ; mar,
Séumas, Lunuinn, Nìlus.

Tha ainmear cumanta a nochdadh aoin air bith de 'n t-seòrs' uile ; mar, duine,
baile, abhainn.

3. Am Buadhar.—Is e buadhar focal a tha nochdadh buaidh no céum, agus buinidh e do dh-ainmear no riochdar ; mar, balachan
math, leabhar ur, damh.
reamhar; tha sibh dichioll-ach.

Thus when we use the noun "day," the term is indefinite, because we do not express what sort of a day it is; but when we say cold day, hot day, dry day, wet day, &c. we express four qualities of the noun day, by the adjectives cold, hot, dry, wet.

Adjectives, in English, are turned into nouns, by adding ness, as, coldness, hotness, dryness, wetness, and the like. Such nouns as these are called Adjectival or Abstract nouns.

Some nouns are used as adjectives, as gold-ring, silver-box, peat-moss, coal-pit.*

Some nouns are used both as nouns and adjectives, as Christian, divine, good, evil, cold, original.

4. The Pronoun.—A Pronoun is a word used instead of a noun, to repeat the idea, as John reads his book, but he abuses it not.

5. The Verb.—A Verb is a word which affirms what is said of persons and things; as, I am, he folded, we are struck.

The subject or nominative is either a noun or pronoun of which the verb speaks. The verb may justly be called the life or essence of the sentence, for without it nothing can be affirmed or said of any person or thing. For instance: The horse a noble animal, he      on grass,      a coach or cart,      no reason, and his body      to the earth. Nothing is here affirmed of the horse, (the subject); but use, in the blanks, the verbs is, lives, draws, has, returns, in their order, and see what the sense will be then.

* Such nouns as these are commonly called compound nouns in both languages.

Tha buadharan 'sa Bheurla iar an deanamh 'nan ainmearan, le ness, a chur riu, (fuairead, teothad, tiormachd, fluichead) agus an leithid sin. Theirear ainmearan Buadhal no Sgairte riu so.

4. An Riochdar.—Is e Riochdar focal a chuirear an ait ainmeir, a riochdachadh an ainm; mar, léughaidh Iain a leabhar, ach cha mhill se i.

GENDER.

GIN.

There are three Genders in English, the Masculine, the Feminine, and the Neuter.

Tha tri Ginean 'sa Bheurla, am Fearanta, am Boireanta, agus an Neòtair.

* Spiorad-lodan.

There are only two Genders in Gaelic, the Masculine and Feminine.*

The masculine denotes the male sex, or the hee ones; as, man, bull.

The feminine denotes the female sex, or shee ones; as, woman, cow.

The neuter denotes any object without animal life, or the itt ones, as stone, pot.

As there are only two sexes, there ought to be but two genders, the Masculine and the Feminine. But it has been found convenient to add a third, the Neuter, in English. This word signifies neither, and therefore intimates that the objects to which it is applied are neither of the masculine nor of the feminine gender.

The English is almost the only language which, in the distribution of gender, follows the order of nature.

A noun, which is applicable to both sexes, is said to be of the common gender, as parent, grandchild.

Highlanders, who possess but scanty knowledge of English, often apply he and she to objects destitute of sex. We hear some say, "That is a bad pipe, she does not draw well," instead of it does not draw well. "Keep from the fire, for he is very hot," instead of it is, &c. This misapplication arises from the Gaelic (their native language) having but the masculine and feminine gender, and want of acquaintance with the neuter in English.

There are three modes of distinguishing sex in English; 1, by different words; 2, by a change of termination; and, 3, by prefixing or affixing a separate word to indicate the gender.

* So in French and Italian; as, Fr. vent, m. wind, gaoth, pierre, f. a stone, clach.

Chan 'eil ach a mhain da ghin 'sa Ghaelig, am Fearanta agus am Boireanta.*

Tha 'm fearanta a ciall-achadh a ghineil fhirionn, no eh; mar, duine, tarbh.

Tha 'm boireanta a ciall-achadh a ghineil bhoirionn, no ise ; mar, bean, bò.

Tha 'n neòtar a ciall-achadh cuspair sam bith gun bheath ainmhidh; mar, table, tree.

Theirear gu 'm beil ainmear a ta freagarrach do 'n dà ghineal de 'n ghin chumanta; mar, parant, ogha.

Tha tri doighean eadar-dhealaichaidh ghineil 'sa Bheurla; 1, le caochla focail; 2, le muth deiridhean; and, 3, le roimh-iceadh, no ri-iceadh focail air leth a nochdadh a' ghin.

* Mar sin 'san Fhraingis agus 'san Eadailteach. Ita. fuóco, m. fire, teine, camera, f. a room, seomar.

There are also three modes of distinguishing sex in Gaelic; 1, by different words; 2, by prefixing the term *ban** or bain, she, or fear, he; 3, by affixing firionn, male, or boirionn, female.

* This is a German title of sovereignty, and signifies literally a march or border keeper; hence criochair in Gaelic.

Obs. 1.—In English, things remarkable for power, greatness, or sublimity, are spoken of as masculine; as,

the sun, time, death, sleep, fear, anger, winter, war.

Obs. 2.—Things beautiful, amiable, or prolific, are spoken of as feminine; as,

the moon, earth, nature, fortune, knowledge, hope, spring, peace.

Obs. 3.—Creatures whose sex is unknown, or unnecessary to be regarded, are generally spoken of as neuter; thus, “He fired at the deer, and wounded it.” “If a man shall steal an ox, or a sheep, and kill it, or sell it.”—Ex. xxii. 1.

GENDER OF GAELIC NOUNS.

1. Nouns denoting male animals are always masculine; as, duine, each.

2. Nouns denoting female animals are always feminine; as, bean, bo.

As there are only two sexes, the male and the female, it has been already said that there ought to be only two genders. This is the case in Gaelic, for it personifies every object, whether animate or inanimate; thus, tigh, house, and uisge, water, are masculine; cas, foot, and clach, stone, are feminine.

In a grammatical sense, the words boirionnach, or bainionnach, a female, mart, a cow, capull, a mare, are masculine; and sgalag, a farm-servant, is feminine;* cailin, a damsel, is sometimes used as a mas. noun.

FOCLACHADH.

Seall. 2.—Tha nithe maiseach, taitneach, agus siolmhor, ainmichte mar gu’m bitheadh iad boirionn; mar,

GIN AINMEARAN GAELIG.

1. Tha ainmearan a ciallachadh beo-chreutair-ean firionn, a ghnà fearanta; mar, duine, each.

2. Tha ainmearan a ciallachadh beo-chreutair-ean boirionn, a ghnà boireanta; mar, bean, bo.

A chionn nach ’eil ann ach a mhain dà ghineal, am firionn agus am boirionn, bha e iar a radh cheana nach bu chòir a bhith ann ach a mhain dà ghin. Tha ’chuis mar so ’sa Ghaelig, oir pearsaichidh i gach cuspair co aca tha e beò, no neo-bheò; mar sin tha, tigh agus uisge, fearanta; cas agus clach, boireanta.

* Here nature and grammar are diametrically opposed.

3. Nouns ending in a broad vowel, and nouns, whose final vowel is broad, and diminutives in an, are generally masculine ; as ceò, mist, cath, a battle, bròn, sorrow, sùrd, alacrity, clagan, a little bell.

4. Derivatives in ach, iche, as, ear, or air, are for the most part masculine ; as, marcach, a rider, sgeulaiche, a tale-teller, ceartas, justice, sgoilear, a scholar, piobair, a piper.

5. Nouns whose last vowel is i, derivatives in achd, and diminutives in ag, are mostly feminine ; as,

di-luain, Monday, iarunn, wheat, càl, kail,

7. Names of diseases, countries, and of heavenly bodies, &c. are, for the most part feminine ; as, a' bhuidheach, the jaundice, an Olaind, Holland, a' ghrian, the sun.

Obs.—A few nouns are used as masculine by some speakers, and as feminine by others ; as aireamh, leabhar, tim, tobar, salm, &c.

Cruinne, fasach, talamh, and tonn,* are masc. in the nominative, but fem. in the genitive, singular ; thus

Nom. “An cruinne-cé,” the globe of the earth.

“An talamh tioram,” the dry land.

“Fasach falamh,” an empty wilderness.

“An tonn garbh,” the raging billow.

Gen. “Gu crich na cruinne,” to the end of the world.

“Aghaidh na talmhainn,” the face of the earth.

“Féidh na fasaich,” the forest-deer.

CASE.

There are three Cases in English, the Nominative, the Possessive, and the Objective.

A noun or pronoun is in the nominative case when it is the name of the person or thing which acts, or is spoken of.

A noun or pronoun is in the possessive case when it expresses ownership or possession ; as, Peter's pen, his gun.

A noun or pronoun is in the objective case when it is the name of the person or thing which is the ob-

CAR.

Tha tri cárán'sa Bheurla, an t-Ainmeach, an Ginteach, agus an Cusparach.

Tha ainmear no riochdar 'anns a char ainmeach 'nuair is e ainm pearsa, no ni a ta spreigeadh, no ainmichte.

Tha ainmear, no riochdar 'sa char Ghinteach 'nuair a tha e nochdadh séilbh no coir ; mar, peann Pheadair, ð għunna.

Tha ainmear no riochdar 'sa char chusparach 'nuair is e ainm a pearsa no 'ni a tha 'na chuspair a ject suffering from an action or movement.

* The Gender of all Gaelic Nouns denoting inanimate objects is established by custom, and, once fixed, it should certainly remain unchanged in every case.

fulang fo ghniomh, no fo ghluaasad.

Thus in the sentence, "Peter struck John's dog, but he did not hurt him." Peter or he, as the agent or doer, is in the nominative case; John's, as expressing the relation of ownership, is in the possessive; and dog or him, being the name of the object, is in the objective.

The Nominative and Objective cases of nouns are alike.

The Possessive of a noun singular is formed by adding s with an apostrophe before it ('s) to the nominative; thus, father, father's.

The Possessive of a noun plural ending in s is formed by adding an apostrophe (') only; as, father, fathers'.

An English noun is thus declined :—

* Proper names want the plural, except when they are used to describe more than one individual of a family or clan; as, the Howards, the Stewarts, the Fasers, the Macdonalds.

Tha caran Ainmeach agus Cusparach ainmearan, co-ionann.

Tha Ginteach ainmeir aonar deanta le s 'us ascair ('s) roimpe a chur ris an ainmeach; mar, pen, pen's.

Tha Ginteach ainmeir 'san aireimh iomadh a dùnadh le s deanta a-mhain le ascair (') a chur ris an aonar; mar, pen, pens'.

Tha ainmear Beurla iar a thearnadh mar so :—

* Cuirear ainmearan ceart 'san aireimh iomadh 'nuair a ghnathaicheadh iad a dh'ainmeachadh na's mò na h-aon neach a' teaghlaich no cinneadh; mar, na Hobhardaich, na Stiùardich, † na Friseilich, na Donnullich.†

† Here the rule "broad to broad" is disregarded, otherwise we should write, Stiùardach, Donullaich.

COLLECTIVE NOUNS.

A Collective Noun is one which signifies many in the singular; as people, multitude, crowd.

CASE IN GAELIC.

There are four Cases in the Gaelic, the Nominative, the Genitive, the Dative, and the Vocative.

FORMATION OF CASES.

General Rules.

1. The nominative and dative singular of nouns masculine are alike.

2. The genitive and dative singular of nouns feminine are alike.

3. The genitive and vocative singular of nouns masculine are alike.

4. The nominative and vocative singular of nouns feminine are alike.

DEANAMH NO CUMADH CHARAN.

Rialtan Cumanta.

1. Tha ainmeach agus doirteach aonar ainmearan fearanta co-ionan.

2. Tha ginteach agus doirteach aonar ainmearan boireanta co-ionann.

3. Tha ginteach agus gairmeachaonar ainmearan fearanta co-ionann.

4. Tha ainmeach agus gairmeach aonar ainmearan fearanta co-ionann.

FOCLACHADH.

AINMEARAN LODACH.

Is e Ainmear Lòdach aon a ta ciallachadh iomadh 'san aonar; mar, sluagh, moran, lòd.

CAR 'SA GHAELIG.

Tha ceithir Charan 'sa Ghælig, an t-Ainmeach, an Ginteach, an Doirteach, agus an Gairmeach.

Tha 'm Pungar Gaelig iar a theàrnadh mar so,—

* See elision of the Gaelic Article.

Plural.

5. The nominative plural is often like the genitive singular, or it is formed by adding a, an, or ean, to the nominative singular.

6. The genitive plural is either like the nominative singular, or nominative plural.

7. The dative plural is either like the nominative plural, or it ends in ibh or aibh.

8. The vocative plural is often the nominative plural aspirated, ending in a or an.

The termination ibh, something like ibus of the Latin declension, is not much used in the spoken Gaelic.

DECLENSION.

There are three Declensions in Gaelic, the First, the Second, and the Third.

The Declension of Gaelic nouns and adjectives is chiefly carried on by aspirating an initial consonant, inserting the letter i, or changing a final diphthong in the nominative singular.

FIRST DECLENSION.

Nouns beginning with a consonant, and their last vowel broad, are of the first declension.

5. Tha 'n t-ainmeach iomadh gu tric mar an ginteach aonar, no iar a chumadh le a, an, no ean, a chur ris an ainmeach aonar.

6. Tha 'n ginteach iomadh an dara cuid ionann ris an ainmeach aonar, no ris an ainmeach iomadh.

7. Tha 'n doirteach iomadh an dara cuid ionann ris an ainmeach iomadh, no dunadh le ibh no aibh.

8. Tha 'n gairmeach iomadh gu tric mar an t-ainmeach iomadh séidichte agus a dunadh le a no an.

TEARNADH.

Tha tri Teàrnaidhean 'sa Ghælig, A Chéud, an Dara, agus an Treas.

Tha teàrnadh ainmean agus bhuadharan Gaelig ach beag, iar a dheanamh le séideadh cònnraig thoisich, le cur a stigh na litir i, no atharrachadh dà-ghuth deireannach anns an ainmeach aonar.

A CHEUD TEARNADH.

Tha ainmean a toiseachadh le cònnraig agus am fuaimrag dheireannach leathan de'n cheud teàrnadh.

A noun of the first declension forms its genitive singular by inserting i after the last vowel in the nominative, as bàrd, bàird.

Rule 9. A definite noun* masculine aspirates the genitive and dative singular.

A definite noun feminine aspirates the nominative and dative singular.

Obs. 1.—A noun whose initial consonant is not aspirated is in its plain form.

Obs. 2.—A definite noun beginning with d, l, n, r, s, or t, aspirates no case.

PLURALS.

Several Gaelic nouns are very irregular in the formation of their plural.

Some make their plural by adding ichean or chan; as, ăd, a hat, adachan or adan; bata, a boat, bataichean; còta, a coat, cotaichean; uisge, water, uisgeachan; fairge, sea, fairgeachan or fairgeannan; clobha, a pair of tongs, clobbachan.

Some, forming their genitive singular according to Rule 13, make their plural in nnan; as, àm, time, amannan; lagh, law, laghannan; cleòc, a cloak, cleòccannan; céum, a degree, céuman or céumannan; taom, a torrent, taoman or taomannan; la, a day, has laithean, lathachan.

Obs. 1.—It is chiefly nouns whose nominative or genitive singular ends in a vowel that make their plural in the above order.

Obs. 2.—Though this order of the plural may appear tedious and unpleasant, yet it carries a degree of importance, serving to prevent ambiguity. For instance, did we write the plural of bata in the short way, batan, the word might be taken to signify a little boat, and not boats; therefore, to avoid the doubt, we soften and lengthen bata into bataichean in the plural; and so of other words.

Obs.—Though l, n, and r, have never got an aspirated form, yet, when placed in cases in which the other consonants are aspirated, they become aspirated, accordingly, in their pronunciation, and, to distinguish them in their invisible aspirated state, Mr Munro recommends the spiritus asper(‘) of the Greek, which is here adopted.

The plain and aspirated sounds of l, n, r, are distinctly heard in pronouncing the following phrases correctly :—

Tha'n t-eun air à 'nead—air à chòs.
 Tha 'chearc air à nead—air à còs.
 Tha'n cù air à 'lorg—air à cheum.
 Tha e air à lorg—air à ceum.
 Chual' iad à 'ràn—à bhéuc.
 Chual' iad à ràn—à béuc.

Leòn e, wound him; doirt e, spill it; naisg e, tie him; paisg e, fold him. 'Leòn mi e, I wounded him; dhoirt mi e, I spilt it; 'naisg mi e, I tied him; phaisg mi e, I folded him.

Ruisg e, peel it; dùisg e, awaken him; 'ruisg mi e, I peeled it; dhuisg mi e, I awakened him.

Now if nead, and the other words in the above examples with the mark (‘) prefixed, be pronounced as they are devoid of it, or devoid of it as they are with it, the sense is the same, or entirely changed.

INFLECTION OF ADJECTIVES.

An Adjective is a word which qualifies a noun, as, good, tall, sweet.

Adjectives denoting qualities that can be increased, admit of inflection to express comparison.

There are three degrees of comparison, the Positive, the Comparative, and the Superlative.

TEARNADH BHUADHARAN.

Is e buadhar focal a tha 'g innseadh buaidh no naduir ainmeir; mar, math, ard, milis.

Gabhaidh buadharan a ta nochdadhbh bhudhan, no fheartan a 's urrainnear a mheudachadh teàrnadh gu coimeasachadh a chur an céill.

Tha tri céuman coimeasachaidh ann, an Seasmhach, an Coimeasach, agus an t-Anardach.

* Frangach, a Frenchman, and all other gentiles and patronymics, are declined like Ex. 1 or 10 of the First Declension.

The Positive is expressed by the adjective in its simple form ; as, hard, soft.

The Comparative expresses a greater degree of the quality expressed by the Positive ; as, harder, softer.

The Superlative expresses the greatest degree of the quality expressed by the Positive ; as, hardest, softest.

1. The Comparative is generally formed by adding r or er to the Positive ; as, fine, finer ; soft, softer.

2. The Superlative is generally formed by adding st or est to the Positive ; as, fine, finest ; soft, softest.

3. Adjectives of more than one syllable are commonly compared by prefixing the adverbs more and most to the Positive ; as, dutiful, more dutiful, most dutiful.

4. Adjectives of two syllables ending in y, when compared like monosyllables, change y into i before er and est ; as,

Pos.

Happy, Lofty,

Com.

happier,
loftier,

FOCLACHADH.

Tha 'n Seasmhach foillsichte leis a bhudadhar 'na staid loim ; mar, teann, bog.

Tha 'n Coimeasach a nochdadhl céum na's mò de 'n bhuaidh a ta iar a h-airis leis an t-Seasmhach ; mar, teinne, buige.

Tha 'n t-Anardach a nochdadhl a chèum a's ro-mhò de 'n bhuaidh a ta iar a h-airis leis an t-Seasmhach.

1. Tha an Coimeasach iar a dheanamh gu cumanta le cur r no er ris an t-Seasmhach.

2. Tha 'n t-Anardach iar dheanamh gu cumanta le cur st no est, ris an t-Seasmhach.

3. Tha buadharan anns am beil na's mò na aonsmid iar an coimeasachadh gu cumanta le cur nan coghniomharan more agus most roimh an t-Seasmhach.

4. Tha buadharan dhasmid a dunadh le y, 'nuair a choimeasar iad mar aonsmidean, a tionndadh na y gu i roimh er 'us est ; mar,

loftiest.

5. A diminutive Adjective is formed by adding the affix ish, which expresses a shade of comparison, and lessens the signification of the Positive ; as, black, blackish ; white, whitish.

Obs. 1.—The degrees of diminution are also expressed by prefixing the adverbs less and least ; as, hot, less hot, least hot ; beautiful, less beautiful, least beautiful.

Obs. 2.—An Adjective is regularly compared when the Comparative is formed by adding r or er, and the Superlative by adding st or est.

Adjectives of one syllable, or Dissyllables ending in y or e pure, are chiefly compared in this way ; as, coy, coyer, coyest ; ample, ampler, amplest.

Obs. 3.—Compound Adjectives are formed at pleasure by joining different words together with a hyphen (-) ; thus, come-at-able, would-be-high, two-footed.

GAELIC ADJECTIVES.

Adjectives in Gaelic are of the first or second declension, or of the third only.

Adjectives are declined by number, gender, case, and form, and their oblique cases are formed from the nominative, according to the rules already given for the formation of the cases of nouns.

27. The nominative singular, masculine, and feminine end alike, but the feminine is aspirated.

28. The genitive singular feminine is formed from the genitive singular masculine, by dropping the aspirated form ; and, if a monosyllable, it generally ends in e, and sometimes in a.

BUADHARAN GAELIG.

Tha Buadharan 'sa
Ghaelig de 'n chéud no'n dara teàrnadh, no de'n treas a mhain.

Tha Buadharan iar an

COMPARISON.

There are only two degrees of comparison in Gaelic, the Positive and the Comparative, and a Superlative, of extent.

The Comparative has three forms expressive of comparison, the first, the second, and the third.

The first form is like the genitive singular feminine; the second is formed from the first by changing e into id, and the third from the second, by changing id into ad; as,

COIMEASACHADH.

Tha 'mhain da chéum coimeasachaidh 'sa Ghaeilig, an Seasmhach agus an Coimeasach, agus Anardach, meudachaидh.

which want the second comparison, want the third also.

Obs. 2. The three forms of comparison, take the aspirated form, but no final change whatever.

Both the comparative and superlative in English are expressed in Gaelic by the first comparative, preceded by the relative a and the verb is; thus:—

James is taller than John.

Gold is the most precious of all the metals.

"He began at the eldest (son,) and left at the youngest."*

36. When the positive ends in ach or each, the comparative is formed by adding e to the genitive; as,

Seas.

Banail, modest,
Gramail, strong,

Coim.

banaile, more modest.
gramaile, stronger.

Some adjectives of one syllable ending in two or more consonants, and a few in a vowel, add a or e for the comparative; as,

Beurr, keen, beurra; cearr, awkward, cearra; leamh, impudent, easachadh, tha buadharan aig nach 'eil an dara coimeasachadh, gun an treas mar an ceudna.

Faic. 2. Gabhaidh na tri staid-ean coimeasachaидh an staid shéideach, ach cha ghabh iad mùth deireannach air bith.

Cuirear araon an coimeasach agus an t-anardach 'sa Bheurla ann a Gaelig leis a chéud choimeasach agus an daimheach a, 'san gniomhar is, a seasamh roimhe; mar so:—

Is e Séumas a 's airde 'na Ian.

Cunntaich Lòdach.

Dithis, triuir, ceathrar, cuignear, seathnar, ochdnar, naoinear, deichnear.

These are applied to person only ; as, dithis, two persons ; triuir, three persons. They require the genitive plural indefinite of the noun following them ; thus, ceathrar mhac, four sons ; cuignear dhaoine, five men, &c.

Dithis is often used for dà, or dhà, in its absolute sense ; as, Am buail mi ach aon sguab ? Buailidh tu dithis.

INFLECTION OF PRONOUNS.

A Pronoun is a word used instead of a noun ; as, James is here, he came an hour ago.

TEARNADH RIOCHDARAN.

Is e Riochdar focal a ghnathaichear an ait ainm-eir ; mar, tha Seumas an so, thainig e bho chionn uair.

There are nine sorts of pronouns in both Gaelic and English, viz. Personal, Relative, Interrogative, Possessive, Distributive, Demonstrative, Indefinite, Reciprocal, and Compound.

1. The Personal pronouns are thus declined ; as

| 3as, Iad,    | they, them,      | iadsan.            |

* The Gaelic pronouns have no other cases differing in form from the nominative.

* Cha n-eil caran eile eu coltach an staid ris an ainmeach, aig na riochdaran Gaelic.

Obs.—The Gaelic pronouns are put into the emphatic form, by annexing the affixes se, sa, san, ne to them, in order to express the subject or object of a sentence with greater force.

And, to make the sense still more pointed, the term féin (the same as self, plural selves, in English, met in Latin, and meme, in French, is often used in both numbers; thus,

|             |                       |                                |
|-------------|-----------------------|--------------------------------|
| Mi-féin     | no mi-fhéin,   | myself.                 |
| Thu-féin    | no thu-fhéin,  | thyself.                |
| E-féin      | no I-féin,     | himself, herself.       |
| Mise        | mi-féin, mise féin,   | my own self, &amp;c.    |
| Sinn-féin   | no sinn-fhéin, | ourselves.              |
| Sibh-féin*  | no sibh-fhéin, | yourselves.             |
| Iad-féin,   | iadsan-féin,          | themselves.             |
| Sinne-féin, |                       | our own selves, &amp;c. |

Obs. 1. The English pronoun thou is very seldom applied either in writing or familiar conversation, even in addressing a single individual, except by the Quakers or Friends. Its plural ye or you is always used in addressing one individual of any rank or age. This practice, which confounds one of the most important distinctions of the language, affords a striking instance of the power of fashion, here springing from courtesy and complimentary speech. In Gaelic this personal compliment is more limited, for the second person singular, thu or thusa, is commonly used in addressing an inferior or an equal; and sibh or sibhse in addressing a parent, an aged person, or a superior. The pronoun of the second person singular, in both languages, is universally employed in addressing the Supreme Being.

Obs. 2. E, i, and iad, are often written and spoken se, si, siad, and, in that state, used only in the nominative; as, bhuail se e, he struck him.

Esan and iadsan are sometimes contracted esa, iadsa, and these, again, generally become es' or eis', iads', before a vowel; thus retaining only the letter s of the emphatic syllable san.

2. RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

A Relative Pronoun is a word which relates to a noun or pronoun going before it in a sentence; as, “The master who taught us.”

2. RIOCHDARAN DAIMHEACH.

Is e Riochdar Dàimheach focal a bhuineas do dh-ainmear, no do riochdar a dol roimhe ann an ciallairt; mar, “Am maighstear a theagaisg sinn.”

* Féin is pronounced fé, hé, héin, in Perthshire, &c., and hìn, héin, in the North Highlands. Some say sib-péin.

The word or subject to which the relative refers, is called its Antecedent or Correlative.

The simple relatives in English are, who, which, that, and as; who and which are thus declined; they are alike in both numbers :

| Sing.       | Plur. |
|--------------------|--------------|
| Nom. Who,   | who.         |
| Pos. Whose, | whose.       |
| Obj. Whom,  | whom.        |

Who is applied only to persons ; as, the boy who reads.

Which is applied to the lower animals and inanimate objects ; as, the dog which barks ; the knife which cuts.

That is often used instead of who or which ; as, the boy that reads ; the book that was lost.

The Gaelic Relatives are,

Obs. 1. Which was formerly applied to persons, and is so still in the Scriptures ; as, “ Thou, Lord, which knowest the hearts of all men.”

Obs. 2. As is classed with the relative pronouns, it being obvious that it is, in some instances, used as a relative, and applied to persons and things in both numbers ; as, “ The Lord added to the church daily such (persons) as should be saved.” “ His words were as follow ;” that is, His words were these which follow ; or, His words were the words which follow.

Theirear an roimhean no co-dhàimhear ris an fhocal, no 'n cùisear d' am buin an Dàimheach.

Is iad who, which, that agus as ; na Dàimhich shingilt 'sa Bheurla, tha who'us which iar an teàrnadh ; mar so ; is co-ionann 'san dà aireimh :

| Sing.       | Plur. |
|--------------------|--------------|
| Nom. Which, | which.       |
| Pos. Whose, | whose.       |
| Obj. Which  | which.       |

Gabhar who (a) do phearsaibh a-mhaìn ; mar, am balachan a léughas.

Gabhar which (a) do na creutairibh a's ilse agus do chuspairibh neo-bheò ; an cù a ni tathunn ; an sgian a ghearras.

Gnàthaicheadh that (a) gu tric an aite who 'us which ; mar, am balachan a léughas ; an leabhar a chailleadh.

Is iad na Daimhich

a, nach, na, they are alike in both numbers, | Ghaelig a, nach, na, tha iad co-ionann 'san dà aireimh,

A, who, whom, that; as,

Nach, who not, whom not, which not, that not, as not.

Obs.—A is written am and an after a preposition, for the sake of euphony ; as, an la air am bi thu ait, the day on which thou wilt be glad ; am fear air an tilg mi so, the man at whom I will throw this.

Na is a compound Relative, used without an antecedent ; it is equal to, those who, the thing or things which, or, all that ; as,

Those that (or the number which) were in the battle were slain.

I have not what or the thing which will pay you.

3. INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.

Who, which, and what, when used to ask a question, are called Interrogative Pronouns ; as,

Who ? co ? as, Who is he ? co e ? Who are they ? co iad ?
Which ? co ? cia ? as, Which of them ? co dhiubh ?
*What ? ciód ? creud ? as, What is this ? ciód e so ?**

3. COMPOUND RELATIVES.

| What,        |   |                        |

3. DAIMHICH MHEASHTA.

|   |                             |
|---|-----------------------------|
| { | Co air bith ?        |
|   | Co sam bith ?        |
| { | Ciod air bith ?      |
|   | Ciod sam bith.       |
| { | Ge be air bith.      |
|   | Co aca ? Co dhiubh ? |
|   | Na, ni a.            |

* In conversation, ciód e is often corrupted into gu dé and Dé; as, gu dé do bharail ? Dé tha sibh e deanamh ?

OBS.—What is sometimes used as an adjective; as, “What money we had was taken away.” It is also taken sometimes in the sense of an interjection; as, “What! am I a dog?”

4. POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

Sing.

|      |      |      |       |      |
|------|------|------|-------|------|
| 1    | 2    | 3    | 3     | 3    |
| My,  | thy, | his, | hers, | its, |
| Mo,* | do,  | a,   | a,    | a,   |

* These are rendered emphatic, like the personal pronouns, by the affixes se, sa, san, ne, placed after the nouns with which they are combined, but se of the first person is changed into sa; thus,

|                  |                    |
|------------------|--------------------|
| My fist,  | mo dhòrn-sa |
| Thy fist, | do dhòrn-sa |
| His fist, | a dhòrn-san |
| Her fist, | a dòrn-sa   |
| Her comb, | a cìr-se    |

When the noun is qualified by one or more adjectives, the emphatic term follows the adjective; thus,

|                             |                                       |
|-----------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| My fair head,        | Mo cheam ban-sa, &c.           |
| Our fair head,       | Ar ceann, ban-ne, &c.          |
| My pretty fair head, | Mo chean boidheach ban-sa, &c. |

Féin is also used in both ways; as,

|                            |                                |
|----------------------------|--------------------------------|
| My own purse,       | Mo sporan fein.         |
| My own black purse, | Mo sporan dubh-sa fein. |

7. INDEFINITE PRONOUNS. 7. RIOCHDARAN NEO-CHINNTEACH.

Any, all, both, none, one, other, some, such, whole.
— uile, araon, — aon, éile, cuid, — —

The English words with the dash under them, have no single Gaelic terms to express their meaning.

Indefinite Pronouns in Gaelic are generally short phrases made up of Nouns and Adjectives ; thus,

Fear eile, another man. Cuid-éigin, some one.

Te’ éile, another woman. Rud-éigin, something.

Sometimes a Noun only ; as,

Dad, any thing ; dad air bith, any thing whatever.

Feadhain, some ; fear, m. one ; té, f. one.

OBS.—Fear, one, is applied to all nouns mas. whether persons or things ; and also té, one, to all nouns fem.

OBS.—None (not one) is used in both numbers ; as, “ None visits him ; ” “ None of their productions are extant.” One has a possessive case, and a plural ; as, One’s duty ; “ The great ones of the world.” Other and another, are declined as a noun.

8. RECIPROCAL PRONOUN.

The word self, plural selves, is added to the personal pronouns in English, to show that the agent and object of the action are the

ELISION AND CONTRACTION.

Elision is leaving out a letter of a word ; as, a' or 'n for an.

Contraction is shortening a word, or running two words or syllables into one; as,

M' ad, for mo ad, my hat; 'na bhéul, for ann a bhéul,
in his mouth; 'nar tir, for ann ar tir.

ELISION OF THE GAELIC ARTICLE.

An elides the a after prepositions ending in a vowel; as,

Fo'n talamh, under the ground; de 'n t-siùcar, of the sugar ;
o'n am sin, from that time; mu'n ghréin, about the sun.

An elides the n after prepositions ending in a consonant, before words beginning with b, c, g, m, p; as,

Aig a' bhaile, at the town; anns a' ghealaich in the moon ;
air a' charn, on the cart; ris a' mlin, at the meal.

ELISION OF PRONOUNS.

The possessives mo, do, elide the o before a vowel or f aspirated, and a, his or its, is cut out entirely before a vowel; as,

M'obair, for mo obair, my work; d'ad*, for do ad, your hat ;
m' shocal, for mo shocal, my word; 'ord, for a ord, his hammer.

This elision may be conveniently avoided by varying the construction thus :—

An obair agam, an ad, agad; an t-òrd aige, na h-uird aige no à chuid ord. An t-uan aice, her lamb; na h-uain aice, no à cuid uain, her lambs.

GEARRADH AGUS GIORRACHADH.

Is e Gearradh tilgeadh a mach litir á focal; mar, a' no 'n an ait an.

Is e Giorrachadh crupadh focail, no ruith dà fhocail, no dà smid gu aon; mar,

M' ad, for mo ad, my hat; 'na bhéul, for ann a bhéul,
in his mouth; 'nar tir, for ann ar tir.

GEARRADH A' PHUNGAIR GHAEILIG.

Tilgidh an an a an déigh roimhearan a dùnadh le fuaimraig; mar,

Tilgidh an an n an deigh roimhearan a dunadh le cònnraig, roimh fhocail a toiseachadh le b, c, g, m, p; mar,

Aig a' bhaile, at the town; anns a' ghealaich in the moon ;
air a' charn, on the cart; ris a' mlin, at the meal.

GEARRADH RIOCHDARAN.

Tilgidh na seilbhich mo, do, an o roimh fhuaimraig no f séidichte, agus gearrar as a, his no its, gu léir roimh fhuaimraig; mar,

Faodar an gearradh so a sheachnad gu goireasach le muth a cho-rianachaidd; mar so :—

* We find this d' often changed into t'; as, t'anail for d'anail, thy breath; but this change is certainly very improper; may we not write "to bhéul," as well as "t'anail?"

INFLECTION OF VERBS.

A Verb is a word which signifies to be, to do, or to suffer; as, I am, he strikes, he is struck.

A Verb is declined by Voices, Moods, Tenses or Times, Numbers, Persons, and Simple, Compound, and Emphatic Forms.

Verbs are divided into five classes, viz. Regular, Irregular, Auxiliary or Helping, Defective, and Impersonal.

Verbs are of two kinds, Transitive and Intransitive.

A Transitive Verb expresses action, passing from the *agent** or doer to some object; as, I strike the table; Wellington conquered Bonaparte.

An Intransitive Verb expresses being or action, which has no person or thing for its object; as, I am; the tree stands; he slept.

Transitive Verbs have two Voices, the Active and the Passive.

The Active Voice is the form which the Verb takes when its subject or nominative is the agent or doer; as, I struck the horse; the sportsman shot a deer.

The Passive Voice is the form which the Verb takes when its subject or nominative is the object of the verbal action; as, the table was struck; Bonaparte was conquered by Wellington.

Moods.—Moods or Modes are forms showing the manner in which the verbal action is represented.

There are eight Moods; the Imperative, the Indicative, the Potential, the Infinitive, the Conditional, in English; and, with these, the Interrogative, the Negative, and the Subjunctive, used in Gaelic.

1. The Imperative expresses a command or request in the second person, and a wish or desire in the first, and permission in the third of both numbers; as, let me go; let us sing;

Gniomharan Asadolach, an Spreigeach, agus am Fulanngach.

Is e an Guth Spreigeach an staid a ghabhas an gniomhar 'nuair is e 'chuisear no 'ainmeach dean-adair a gniomha; mar, bhuaile mi an t-each; thilg an sealgair fiadh.

Is e an Guth Fulanngach an staid a ghabhas an gniomhar 'nuair is e 'chuisear no 'ainmeach cuspair no fulangair a ghniomha ghniomharail; mar, bhuail-eadh am bord; cheannsaich-eadh Bonaparte le Wellington.

MODHAN.—Is iad Modhan, staidean a ta feuchainn na doigh anns am beil an gniomh gniomharail iar fhioillseachadh.

Tha ochd modhan ann, an t-Aineach, an Taisbe-anach, an Comasach, am Feartach, an Teagmhach, 'sa Bheurla; agus maille riù sin, an Ceisteach, an Diùltach agus an Leantach gnàthaichte 'sa Ghælig.

1. Tha 'n t-Aineach a toirt ordugh no iarrtais 'san dara pearsa, agus miann no toil 'sa cheud agus cead 'san treas pearsa anns an da aireimh; mar, racham seinneamaid; labhair thusa; speak thou ; hear ye ; let her cut the cheese ; let them drink milk.

The second person singular of this mood is the root or theme of the Verb.

2. The Indicative Mood simply asserts or declares a thing ; as, I write ; he reads ; the sun rose.

3. The Potential Mood implies liberty, ability, or necessity ; as, I may fold ; I can read ; we must die.

4. The Infinitive Mood shows the verb in its simple form, without number or person ; as, fold ; to fold.

The preposition “to” (a or gu, &c. in Gaelic) is usually prefixed to the verb in this form, and in that position it is called the Sign of the Infinitive.

5. The Conditional is used to express conditional, or contingent existence ; as,

“ If the whole body were an eye, where were the hearing ? ”

6. The Interrogative simply asks a question ; as, Are you there ? Did you see the king ?

FOCLACHADH.

3. Tha ’n Comasach a, nochdadh, saorsa, comais no éigin ; mar, faodaidh mi pasgadh ; is urrainn mi leughadh ; feumaidh sinn bàsachadh.

4. Tha ’m modh Feartach a nochdadh gniomhair ’na staid shingilt, gun air-eimh no pearsa ; mar, paisg ; a phasgadh.

Tha ’n roimhear “to” (a no gu, &c. ’sa Ghaelig) iar a chur gu cumanta roimh ’n gniomhar ’san staid so, agus theirear Comhar an Fheartaich ris ’san t-seasamh sin.*

5. Gnàthaichear an Teagmhach gu bith teagmhach, no tuiteamach a nochdadh ; mar,

6. Tha ’n Céisteach a-mhain a faighnachd céiste ; mar, Am beil thu an sin ? Am fac thu an righ ?

* See Gaelic Con. Rule 31.

7. The Negative is used to deny a thing ; as, I am not lazy ; I did not see the king.

8. The *Subjunctive** is used to represent an action as conditional, doubtful, or contingent. It is usually joined to another verb, either going before or coming after it in the same sentence ; as,

“ If ye walk in my statutes, and (if ye) keep my commandments, and (if ye) do them, then I will give you rain in due season.”

TENSES OR TIMES.

Verbs have three simple tenses, the Present, the Past, and the Future; and two compound tenses, the Perfect, and Pluperfect.

The future in English is always a compound, but often elliptical.

There are only two verbs in Gaelic, viz. bi, to be, and is, that have a present tense; but this seeming defect is nicely supplied by the future, or the present tense of the verb bi combined with an imperfect or

7. Gnàthaichear an Dìultach a dh-obadh ni ; mar, Cha n'eil mi léisg. Cha n-fhaca mi 'n righ.

8. Gnàthaichear an Leantach a nochdadhbh gu 'm beil an gniomh ann an staid theagmhach, ḡail, no thuiteamaich. Tha e gu tric fuaighe ri gniomhar éile, a dol roimhe, no 'teachd na dhéigh 'san aon chiallairt ; mar,

“ Ma ghluaiseas sibh a' m' reachdaibh, agus ma ghleidheas sibh m' aitheantan, agus ma ni sibh iad ; an sin bheir mise dhùibh uisge 'na àm fén.”

TIMEAN NO TRATHIAN.

Tha tri timean singilt aig gniomharan, an Làthaireil, an Seachadail, agus an Teacail. Agus dà thim mheasgta, an Làn agus an Roilàn.

Tha'n teacail 'sa Bheurla 'ghnà measgta, ach gu tric beàrnach.

Chan-'eil ach a mhain dà ghniomhar, eadh. bi agus is, anns a Ghælig, aig am beil tim lathaireil, ach tha 'ghaoid bheag so, iar a deanamh suas gu grinn leis an teacail, no le tim lathaireil a' gniomhair bi, naisgte ri páirt-

* The Subjunctive in English is now almost universally rejected, it being evident that the form of the verb so called does not arise from the fact of its being subjoined to the conjunctions if, though, lest, &c. but from the nature of the idea intended to be expressed. What is called the present of the Subjunctive in some English Grammars, is obviously an elliptical form of the Fut. of the Indicative.—For a more conclusive illustration, vide Eng. Con. R. 21, Note.

perfect participle. This want of a present tense is not peculiar to the Gaelic language only; the Hebrew and other Oriental languages want it also.

The Present Tense signifies that the verbal action or state is going on just now, or in present time; as, I write; you speak; they stand.

The Past Tense signifies that the verbal action or state is past and gone, or in past time; as, I wrote; they stood.

The Future Tense intimates that the verbal action or state is to take place, or was* to take place in time to come; as,

I shall see you to-morrow.
I would see you yesterday
(if you were at home.)

ear neo-cholionta no colionta.
Cha n-i Ghælig 'na h-aonar a ta gun an tim làthaireil so; tha an Eabhra, agus cànainean éile a bhuineas do 'n airde an ear as easbhuidh mar an céudna.

Tha 'n tim Lathaireil a nochdadhl gu'm beil an gniomh, no staid gniomharail dol air aghaidh aig an àm so, no anns an tim a ta làthair; mar, tha mi 'sgriobhadh; tha sibh a labhairt; tha iad a seasamh.

Tha 'n tim Seachadail a nochdadhl gu 'm beil an gniomh, no'n staid gniomharail iar dol seachad, no ann an tim a dh-fhalbh; mar, sgriobh mi; sheas iad.

Tha 'n tim Teacail a foillseachadh gu 'm beil, no gun robh an gniomh, no'n staid gniomharail gu tachairt ann an tim ri teachd; mar,

Chithinn thu an dé (na'n robh thu aig an tigh.)

* The above definition of the future, may not, at first sight, coincide with every opinion, but upon due consideration, it will be found to be correct; close attention to the uses of the auxiliary verbs, Shall and Will, and their past Should and Would, as explained in the text, will illustrate the point.

Shall expresses present duty; but as all duties though present in point of obligation, must be future in their performance, the verb shall has come to be used as a sign of future time.

Will, in like manner, expresses present intention, but as all present intentions must also be future in their performance, the word has come to signify future time. But when a duty, or intention, or future action, is spoken of as referring to past time, or to some circumstance or event, connected with past time, we find shall and will assuming their past forms or tenses accordingly; and though the idea expressed by them in this subtle form be of a conditional or contingent nature, yet they even, in expressing such an idea, still retain, in most cases, an expression of futurity; and hence arises the definition in question, or the Past Future.

He will write to-morrow.

Verbs, like nouns, have two numbers, the Singular and Plural, and three Persons; the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd.

The first person speaks, the second is spoken to, and the third is spoken of.

AUXILIARY OR HELPING VERBS.

The Auxiliary verbs are those by the help of which Specific verbs are conjugated in their compound tenses.

There are nine auxiliaries, viz. be, do, have, let, may, can, must, shall, will.

The first four are also used as specific verbs; and the other five want the perfect participle.

Obs.—May conveys the idea of liberty or permission, and, by inference, contingency; as, he may go if he will; he may have written, or not.

Can has the sense of is able, and denotes power or ability in general; as, I can write, though you cannot.

Shall denotes duty or obligation in general, and, by inference, futurity; as, he shall obey me. I shall write to-morrow.

Will denotes volition or intention, and, by inference, futurity; as, I will, be thou whole. He will write to-morrow.

The present and past tenses of the auxiliary verbs are thus expressed,

Pres. am, do, have, let, may,

Past. was, did, had, let, might, could, (no past) should, would.

The idea expressed by a compound tense is in present time, when its auxiliary or help is present; and in past time, when its auxiliary or help is past; thus,

Sgriobhaidh e am màir-each.

Tha dà àireamh aig gniomharan, mar tha aig ainmeanan; an Aonar, agus an Iomadh; agus tri Pearsan, a' lud; 2ra, agus 3as.

Tha cheud phearsa labhairt, labhrar ris an dara, agus labhrar mu 'n treas.

GNIOMHARAN TAICEIL NO COBH-AIREIL.

Is iad na gniomharan Taiceil, iad sin leis am beil gniomharan Araid iar an Sgéadachadh 'nan timean Measgta.

Tha naoi Taicearan ann, eadh.

be, do, have, let, may, can, must, shall, will.

Gnàthaicheadh a cheud cheithir; mar, ghniomharan araid; agus tha na cuig éile dh-easbhuidh a' phairteir cholionta.

Tha timean làthaireil agus seachadail nan taicearan, iar an nochdadh; mar so,

can, must, shall, will.

pres. am, do, have, let, may,

Past. was, did, had, let, might, could, (no past) should, would.

Tha 'n smuan, no 'n rùn a ta tim measgta ag cur an cíeil anns an tim làthaireil, 'nuair tha 'thaicear làthaireil, agus 'san tim seachadail, 'nuair tha 'thaicear seachadail; mar so,

I have folded, I shall fold, I may have folded, express present time, because have, shall, and may, are in the present tense. I had folded, I should fold, I might have folded, express past time, because had, should, and might, are in the past tense.

CONJUGATION OF VERBS.*

There are two Conjugations in Gaelic, the First and the Second.

Verbs beginning with a consonant, except f pure, are of the first conjugation; and verbs beginning with a vowel, or with f pure, are of the second.

The verb, to BE, (bi) by whose help other verbs are inflected, is conjugated in both English and Gaelic in the following order:—

SGEADACHADH GHNIOMHARAN.

Tha dà Sgéadachadh 'sa Ghaelig, a Chéud agus an Dara.

Tha gniomharan a toiseachadh le connraig, ach f glan, de 'n chéud sgéadachadh ; agus gniomharan a toiseachadh le fuaimraig, no le f glan, de'n dara.

Tha 'n gniomhar bi, trid am beil gniomharan éile iar an teàrnadh, sgéadaichte araon 'am Beurla 'san Gaelig, anns an òrdugh a leanas :—

* The preposition “air,” on, at, for, is very improperly used by Gaelic writers in compound tenses, or before the infinitive, instead of “iar,” after, which is used in the text, upon the authority of eminent grammarians; therefore the following, and like sentences, should be written thus:—

Tha e air posadh, (denoting that) he is at or on a marriage, or present at the ceremony.

Tha e iar posadh, (— —) he has married, or is after performing the marriage ceremony.

Bha Séumas air trusadh nan caorach, (denoting that) James was at the gathering of the sheep, or assisting at it.

Bha Séumas iar trusadh nan caorach, (— —) James had gathered the sheep.

From these, and many similar instances that may be adduced, it is perfectly clear that iar is the proper term for Compound Tenses, or the Infinitive, and that air, when applied to time, signifies not after, but on or at.—See Stewart's Grammar, p. 89, and Munro's, p. 236. Iar is generally pronounced air or ear.

I were, thou wert, he were, we were, ye were, they were.

Obs.—“The verb to be is the only one in the English language which has a conditional form, and that in the past tense alone. In the case of all other verbs, the form, when it occurs, is purely elliptical; thus, “If he say so, it is well,” is an ellipsis of the Pres. Fut. of the Ind. used for “If he shall say so,” or “should say so.”

“Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him,” is an ellipsis of the Past Fut. Ind. used for If he should slay me.

Obs.—Be was formerly used in the present of the indicative; as, “If thou beest he,” Milton. “We be twelve brethren,” GEN. xlvi. 32. “What be these two olive-branches?” ZECH. iv. 12. But this usage is now obsolete.

* The Imperfect Participle, taken alone, is always a noun, expressive of the verbal action or effect. It is regularly declined in the singular, and sometimes admits of a plural ; as,

- |              |                                            |

|              | Voc. A phasgaidh, O folding. |

Obs.—The a' before the Imp. Part. is often written without the apostrophe ; as, a pasgadh.

STAID AGHARTACH A' GHNIOMH-AIR.

Neo-chol. A' pasgadh, * ag pasgadh
Lan. Paisgte [adh]
Measg. Iar pasgadh.

Cuir Pàirtéar Neo-cholionta gniombhair Asdolaich no Anasdolaich an déigh a Gniomhair Gu Bhi, 'na 'uile lùban, agus gheibh thu an Gniomhar 'san Staid Aghartaich a ta taisbeanadh gu'm beil, no gu'n robh an gniomh, no'n staid gniomharail air ghluasad, no dol air aghaidh ; mar so, tha mi pasgadh ; bha sinn a sgriobhadh.

EMPHATIC FORM OF THE VERB.

The Present and Past Indicative, and the Imperative, are put into the Emphatic Form, by the help of the verb do, to express the verbal action with greater precision; thus,

STAID NEARTAIL A' GHNIOMH-AIR.

Tha Làthaireil agus Seachadail an Taisbeanaich, agus an Ainich iar an cur anns an Staid Neartail, le taic a gniomhair do (dean) gus an gniomh, no staid gniomharail airis na 's pungaile; mar so,

I do fold; I do write, is a much stronger mode of expression than I fold, I write.

OBSERVATIONS ON THE GAELIC
VERB "BI."

Am bheil, of the interrogative of bi, is oftener used than am beil, but the latter seems to be the correct form, because the conjunctive am does not aspirate b in any other part of this, or in any part whatever of any other verb beginning with b; as,

Am bi, am bitheadh, am buail, am briseadh, &c.

Cha'n 'eil is used for cha bheil; bh is thrown out for euphony's sake, and n is inserted between cha and 'eil, to prevent a hiatus. In that case an apostrophe before the n, thus cha 'n 'eil is improper, because n is evidently here an euphonic letter, and should be written n- (hyphen) thus, cha n-'eil.

BEACHDACHADH AIR A GHNIOMH-AR GHAEILIG "BI."

Gnàthaicheadh, am bheil 'sa chéisteach aig bi ni's trice na, am bheil, ach tha e coltach gur i an staid dheirreannach a ta ceart; do bhrigh nach séidich an co-naisgean am b, 'an lùib air bith eile de 'n ghniomhar so, no ann an lùib sam bith de ghniomhar éile, a' toiseachadh le b; mar, Tha cha n-'eil gnàthaichte 'an aite cha bheil agus air sgà fuaim-glan tilgear a-mach bh, agus cuirear a stigh n eadar cha agus 'eil gu spléuc a sheachnad. Uime sin tha ascair roimh n; mar so, cha 'n 'eil, mi-cheart, do bhrigh gu'm beil n gu soilleir 'na litir bhinn an so bu chòir a sgriobhadh le - (tàthan), mar so, cha n-'eil.

PASSIVE VOICE.

A Verb is said to be in the Passive Voice when the noun or pronoun, instead

AN GUTH FULANGACH.

Theirear gu'm beil Gníomhar anns a' Ghuth Fhulangach, 'nuair tha 'n t-ainof being the agent, is the object of the action.

mear, no 'n riochdar, an ait' a bhith 'na dheanadair, 'na chuspair do'n ghnìomh.

Thus, "John loves" is in the active voice, and the subject of the verb loves is John, the agent; but "John is loved" is in the passive voice, and therefore the subject John is the object of the verbal action, or the patient.

An *Active** Verb is put into the Passive form in English by putting its perfect participle after the verb to be in all its parts.—The Passive Voice in Gaelic is often formed in the same way.

Cuirear Gniomhar Spreig-each anns an staid Fhulan-gaich 'sa Bheurla le cur a phàirteir cholionta an déigh a' ghniomhair gu bhi, 'na 'uile lùban. Tha 'n Gùth Fulangach 'sa Ghaeilig iar a chumadh gu tric air an dòigh chéudna.

OF PARTICIPLES.

English and Gaelic Verbs have three Participles, the Imperfect,* the Perfect,* and the Compound Participle; or they may be called, the First, the Second, and the Third.

FORMATION OF PARTICIPLES.

The Imperfect Participle of every English verb is formed by adding ing to the root of the verb; as,

Fold, folding ; write, writing ; carry, carrying.

MU PHAIRTEARAIBH.

Tha tri Pàirtorean aig gniomharan Beurla 'us Gaelig, an Neo-cholionta, an Colionta, no Làn agus am Measgta; no faodar a Chéud, an Dara, agus an Treas a radh riù.

DEANAMH PHAIRTEARAN.

Tha Pairtear Neo-cholionta gach gniomhair Beurla deanta, le ing a chur ri stéigh a gniomhair ; mar,

Tha Pàirtpear Colionta agus Tim Seachadail gach uile gniomharan rialtach

* The two first participles are commonly called the present and past participles; but as these contain in themselves no expression of time, but simply specify whether the verbal action or state be unfinished, or complete, they are more properly named, as above, the imperfect and perfect. The time is expressed only by the verb Be, with which the participle stands connected, as the following examples will clearly show:—I am writing; I was writing; to-morrow I will be writing. The glass is filled; it was filled; next day it will be filled. Here the time is expressed by am, was, will be.

by adding d or ed to the root of the verb ; as,

Love, loved ; fold, folded.

The Compound Participle is formed by prefixing having to the perfect ; as,

Having loved ; having been.

In Gaelic.

The Imperfect Participle or Infinitive of Gaelic verbs is generally formed by adding adh to the root of the verb ; as,

The Infinitive of Gaelic verbs is variously formed ; some are like the root of the verb, some are contracted before adding adh, and others add a different termination from adh. The Gaelic verbs corresponding to the irregular English verbs in the subjoined list, will give a fair idea of the anomalous formation of the Infinitive.

The Perfect Participle of active verbs is formed by adding ta or te to their roots ; as,

SIGNIFICATION OF PARTICIPLES.

The Imperfect Participle expresses the continuance of an action.

The Perfect Participle expresses the completion of an action.

IRREGULAR ENGLISH
VERBS.

An Irregular Verb is one which does not form its Past Tense and Perfect Participle by adding d or ed to its root; as,

Write

wrote

GNIOMHARAN NEO-RIALTACH
BEURLA.

Is e Gniomhar Neo-rialtach aon nach dean a Thim Seachad, agus a Phàirtear Lán, a chumadh le cur d no ed ri 'steigh ; mar, written.

There are nearly two hundred Irregular Verbs in English, and such of them as are Regular as well as Irregular, have the letter R annexed to them in the following list.

RULE 1.—The Past Tense of a Gaelic verb of the first conjugation is formed by aspirating the initial consonant of its root ; as,

Paisg, Phaisg ;

OBS.—Verbs beginning with l, n, r, sc, sg, sm, st, &c. do not take the aspirate form.—(v. p. 27.)

RULE 2.—The Past of a verb of the second conjugation is formed by prefixing dh'- to its root ; as,

Ol, dh'-ol ;

IRREGULAR GAELIC VERBS.

There are ten Irregular Gaelic Verbs, and so called

GNIOMHARAN NEO-RIALTACH
GAELIG.

Tha deich Gniomharan Neo-rialtach Gaelig ann,

* Shall and will are not translatable into Gaelic when used to express future action; the Gaelic verb itself assumes a form suited to that purpose.

* Cha ghabh shall 'us will eadar-theangachadh gu Gaelig, 'nuair a ghuinéidhean iad a dh-airis gniomha theacail; tha staid aig a ghuinéar Ghaelig lein, freagarrach ris a chuis so.

because they differ in some of their tenses from their roots; seven of them are of the first conjugation, and three of the second.

agus thugadh an t-ainm sin dhoibh, do bhrigh gu'm beil cuid de'n lùban éu-coltach ri'n stéighean; tha seachd dhiù de'n cheud sgéadachadh, agus tri de'n dara.

* The t here should be doubled, as teadh and te are mere tensal terminations to be annexed to the root of the verb, but I have followed the prevailing orthography.

† The i is inserted in loiteadh and loite, to correspond with its class-vowel e of the next syllable; but this practice is not generally followed in forming the perf. part. by adding te, nor is there any valid reason that it should.

Their aspirated positions may be distinguished by the mark (').—(See p. 75, Obs.)

In the Second Conjugation, the expletive do is aspirated before a vowel, but when the verb begins with f pure, both do and f are aspirated; but f is always silent in its aspirated position.—See p. 26, last note.

AUXILIARY OR HELPING VERBS.

GNIOMHARAN TAICEIL.

An Auxiliary Verb in Gaelic, as well as in English, is prefixed to the Infinitive of a Specific Verb, to express power, duty, or ability of its subject.

Tha Gniomhar Taiceil 'an Gaelig, cho math 'sam Beurla, iar a roimh-chur ri Feartach Gniomhair araid, a dh-airis cumhachd, dleasannais, no comais a' chùiseir.

† The Passive Form here is Impersonal.

Tha, is, faod, no féud, is còir, is urrainn,* is éudar, is éigin, féumaidh, no fimiridh, dean, agus rach.

Làthair.

Ta mi 'g innseadh,
Faodaidh mi an t-each a réic,
Is còir dhomh éiridh,
Is urrainn dhuinn clach a bhriseadh,
Is éudar dha posadh,
Is éigin dhut falbh,
Féumaidh tu litir a sgriobhadh,

Tha na gniomharan neo-rialtach agus taiceil a leanas gnàth-achte gu h-àraid mar thaicearan, eadh.

Present.

I tell, do tell, or am telling
I may sell the horse
I ought to rise
We can break a stone
He must marry
You must depart, you must go
You must write a letter

Seachad.

Bha mi 'g innseadh,
Dh-fhaodainn an t-each a réic,
Bu chòir dhomh éiridh, &c.

I was telling
I might have sold the horse
I ought to rise, &c.

The simple tenses of dean prefixed to the Infinitive of a verb, correspond to the English verb do, or make; as,

Tha timean singilt dean, iar an roimh-chur ri Feartach, a freagairt do'n gniomhar Bheurla do, no make; mar,

Dean seasamh (=Seas) Make a standing, i.e. stand or do stand.
Rinn e seasamh (=Sheas e) He made a standing, i.e. he stood or did stand.

Ni mi seasamh (=Seasaidh mi) I will make a standing, i.e. I will stand.

Dheanainn cuir agus buain (=Chuirinn agus bhuaininn) I would make sowing and reaping, i.e. I would sow and reap.

Dean combined with a noun is equal to a verb, active or neuter, formed from that noun; thus,

Tha dean, naisgte ri ainmear ionann ri gniomhar spreigeach no neotair deanta o'n ainmear sin; mar so,

Dean bròn, Make weeping, i.e. weep
Na dean goid, Do not make stealing, i.e. steal not Rinn e cabhag, He made haste, or hastened

The Infinitive of a transitive verb, when combined with dean or rach, requires

'Nuair a ta Feartach gniomhair asdolaich naisgte ri dean, no rach, gabhaidh * Urrainn is sometimes, but improperly, spoken and written urra and urradh.

a pronoun or a noun before it, to point out what person or thing is meant ; thus,

Dean mo bhualadh (-buail mi)

Rinn e mis' a bhualadh (-bhuail e)

Chaidh a bhean sin a bhualadh,

Ni e 'n leanabh 'bhualadh,

Theid mo bhualadh,

ing will go, or take place, or happen.

The Passive simple tenses of dean, and the active tenses of rach, combined with the Infinitive of a transitive verb, correspond to the Passive Voice of that verb ; thus,

Rinneadh mo chiùrradh (-chiùrradh mi) My hurting was made, i.e.

I was hurt

Chaidh à chiùrradh (-chiùrradh e)

His hurting went or happened, i.e. he was hurt

An d' rinneadh mo chiùrradh ?

Was I hurt ? &c.

An deach à chiùrradh ?

Was he hurt ? &c.

" Théid am buachaill a bhualadh, agus antréud a sgapadh ; " The shepherd shall be smitten, and the flock shall be scattered.

IMPERSONAL VERBS IN GAELIC.

1. A Transitive, or an Intransitive Verb is said to be impersonal, when it is used in the Passive Form, without any nominative expressed ; thus,

GNIOMHARAN NEO-PHEARSANT-AIL 'SA GHAEILIG.

1. Theirear gu 'm beil gniomhar Asdolach, no Anasdolach, neo-phearsantail 'nuair a ghnàthaicheadh e 'san Staid Fhulangaich gun ainmeach leis ; mar so,

(one) Hears, or may hear

(one) Might hear

(one) Sees, or may see

(one) Might see

2. Verbs used in this way, may be declined in both numbers with the Compound Pronoun leam; thus,

|                             |                                                               |
|-----------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------|
| Buailear* leam ,     | It shall be struck by me, or I strike, or shall strike        |
| Buailear leat ,      | It shall be struck by thee, or thou strikest, or shalt strike |
| Buailear leis ,      | It shall be struck by him, or he strikes, or shall strike     |
| Buailear leinn , &c. | It shall be struck by us, or we strike, or shall strike       |

But it is reckoned more elegant to use the verb in this form without the pronoun.

3. To the class of Impersonals is to be referred a certain part of the verb, which, in form, is like the Future of the Indicative Passive, and has an active present and affirmative signification.

Obs.—In the course of a narration, when the speaker wishes to enliven his style by representing the occurrences narrated as present, and passing actually in view—instead of using the past tense, he adopts the part of the verb now described, employing it impersonally. A few examples are annexed, to exhibit the use and effect of this anomalous tense.

“The young woman sat on a rock, and her eye on the sea; she spied a ship coming on the tops of the waves; she perceived the likeness of her lover, and her heart bounded in her breast. Without delay or stop, she has-

Some adverbs are compared like Adjectives ; as, often, oftener, oftenest ; soon, sooner, sooner.

Adjectives in English are changed into Adverbs by adding ly to them ; as, sweet, sweetly; glad, gladly.

Adjectives in Gaelic are used adverbially by prefixing gu to them ; as,

Nithear Co-ghniomharan de Bhuadharan'sa Bheurla le ly chur riù ; mar, bad, badly ; nice, nicely.

| Already                   |
| A little while ago        |
| Soon, quickly             |
| Immediately, on the spot  |
| The day before yesterday  |
| The night before last     |
| Last, hindermost          |
| This moment, immediately  |
| Presently, instantly      |
| First, at first, foremost |
| Occasionally, sometimes   |
| While, whilst, as long    |
| For ever                  |
| To-morrow                 |
| Always, continually       |
| Yesterday                 |
| Just now, this very hour  |
| To-day                    |
| Now, at this time         |
| The day after to-morrow   |
| To-night                  |
| Last night                |
| Then, thereupon           |
| Commonly, generally       |
| Here, hereupon            |
| When, the time            |
| Last year                 |
| Henceforward              |
| Anew, afresh              |
| For a time                |
| Incessantly, continually  |
| How many                  |
| How often                 |
| As soon as, whenever      |
| What time                 |
| By day, daily             |
| By night                  |

PREPOSITIONS.

A Preposition is a word put before nouns and pronouns, to show the relation that subsists between them; as,

“ I went from Edinburgh to Glasgow, in two hours, by the railroad.”

To be got perfectly by heart,— to be conned.

ROIMHEARAN.

‘ Is e Roimhear focal a chuirear roimh ainmearan agus riochdaran a nochdadh an t-seasaimh anns am beil iad ; mar,

“ Chaidh mi bho Dhun-éidin do Ghlaschu, ann an dà uair, air an rathad-iarnuinn.”

Gu bhi sàr-ionnsuichte air an inn-tinn, no 'n teangaidh.

* Ann denotes being or existence, corresponding, in many cases, to the English word there; as, Tha 'n t-uisc ann, It rains. Am beil thu ann? Are you there? Cha n-eil samhairean ann a nis, There are no giants now. From ignorance of the distinction between this ann and the prepositional pronoun ann, in it, or in him, nou-grammarians who think in Gaelic, frequently err in such expressions as, There was high wind in it last night, for, There was high wind last night. Bha gaoth mhór ann an raoir, There is hard frost in't to-day. Tha röethadh cruaidh ann 'an diuigh, There is no room in it for you. Cha n-eil 'rum ann dut-sa, so, in it, is improper in each of these sentences; but if the speaker refers to a noun of the masculine gender, it is right to use in it; as, Cha n-eil 'rum ann ('san tigh) dhuit, There is no room (in the house) for you.

OBSERVATIONS ON THE ENGLISH PARTS OF SPEECH.

Some words are sometimes used as one part of speech, and sometimes as another.

BEACHDACHADH AIR NA PAIRTEAN CAINNT BEURLA.

Gnàthaicheadh cuid a dhfhocail, air uairibh, mar aon phàirt cainnt, agus air uairibh, mar phàirt cainnt éile.

The chief words of this kind are,—as, but, either, neither, enough, for, much, more, most, since, that ; thus—

As is used both as a *relative** pronoun and as an adverb. As is a relative when preceded by the indefinite pronoun such, and an adverb when expressive of comparison or equality ; thus—The master gives such advices as delight me ; i.e. advices which delight me. He is as bold as a lion ; i.e. equally bold.

Some think that as, in such phrases as As bold as, As great as, &c. is a conjunction ; but when it is considered that as expresses a degree of equality in these and in similar instances, there is no ground for entertaining such a notion, because the office of a conjunction is to connect words, and not to express degree of the quality denoted by them.

But is used as a conjunction when it connects words, as an adverb when it implies only, and as a preposition when it denotes except. Thus, John reads, but Peter writes. We are but of yesterday. Nothing but true piety can give you true peace.

Either and neither, without their correlatives or and nor, are used as distributive pronouns, but, coupled with or and nor, as conjunctions; thus, I will take either of these two apples. Neither of my friends was there. Either go or stay. Some can neither read nor write.

Enough, when denoting a sufficiency, is an independent noun, but when joined to an adjective, it is an adverb; thus, We have enough of rain. This rope is long enough; or to another adverb; as, well enough.

For, when it signifies because, or on account of, is a conjunction, and a preposition when it signifies to or in favour of; thus, I yielded, for it was vain to resist. A pen for me.

Much, more, and most are adjectives when they qualify nouns, but in every other case they are adverbs; thus, In most Highland districts much wool is reared annually, but more would be acceptable to the farmer, who has often a heavy rent to pay. I was most certainly much delighted with the present you sent me, the more so, as I did not expect it.

The noun is often suppressed after much an adjective; thus, To whom much is given, of him much shall be required, i.e. much favour and much gratitude.

Since, when it signifies because, is a conjunction; when it signifies from, a preposition; and when it signifies ago, an adverb; thus, Since you have come, I may go. Since that day. We have been acquainted with each other long since.

That is used as a demonstrative, a relative pronoun, and a conjunction; thus, Give me that book, the book that is in your hand, that I may read it.

As it is often difficult for the young learner to distinguish whether that is a demonstrative, a relative, or a conjunction, in many cases, the following simple directions are given to assist him.

That is a demonstrative when it stands directly before a noun, or when a noun is pointed out by it ; as, That pen is mine ; speak to that man.

That is a relative when it refers to a noun or pronoun, or a clause going before it, or when it can be turned into who or which without destroying the sense ; as, The days that or which are past will never return.

That is a conjunction when it marks a consequence, an end, or cause ; as, I read, that I may learn. My wish is that you may be happy.

DIFFERENCE BETWEEN SHALL AND WILL EXPLAINED.

Shall, in the first person of both numbers, only foretells or denotes future action ; as,

I or we shall write to-morrow.

Shall, in the second and third person of both numbers, denotes duty, or obligation, or what one ought to do ; as,

Thou shalt love thy neighbour.

Ye shall keep my statutes.

He or they shall do justice.

Will, in the first person, denotes volition or intention, or

EADAR-DHEALACHADH SHALL AGUS WILL MINICHTÉ.

Tha shall 'sa cheud phearsa de 'n dà àireimh a roimh-inns-eadh no 'nochdadh gniomha gu teac ; mar,

Sgriobhaidh mi, no sinn am màireach.

Tha shall anns an dara, agus anns an treas pearsa a ciallachadh dleasannais, no ceangail, no na's còir do neach a dheanamh ; mar,

Ni esan, no iadsan ceartas, i.e. Is còir dha-san, no dhoibh-san ceartas a dheanamh.

Tha Will 'sa cheud phearsa a ciallachadh teile, no rùin, no what one resolves to do, of his own accord ; as,

I will take a drink.

We will sell the horse.

Will, in the second and third person, commonly foretells or denotes future action ; as,

You will write to-morrow.

From the foregoing explanation, the following arrangement of shall and will is deduced.

To express future action or event :—

I shall write, sgriobhaidh mi,
Thou wilt write, sgriobhaidh tu,
He will write, sgriobhaidh e,

To express volition or duty,
&c.

I will write,
Thou shalt write,
He shall write,
We will write,
You shall write,
They shall write,

The import of shall and will, as explained above, is reversed when the sentence is interrogative ; as,

Shall I write ? that is, Will you allow me to write ?

Will Peter come to-morrow ? i.e. Is it Peter's intention to come ?

The same explanation applies to shall and will in their past tenses, where they are generally na tha neach a' rùnachadh a dheanamh le thoil féin ; mar, Gabhaidh mi deòch, i.e. Is àill leam deòch a ghabhail.

Reicidh sinn an t-each, i.e. Is àill leinn an t-each a réic.

Tha Will anns an dara, agus anns an treas pearsa gu cumanta 'roimh-innseadh, no a ciallachadh gniomha gu teac ; mar,

Sgriobhaidh tu, no sibh am màireach.

O'n mhineachadh roimh so, cuirear shall agus will anns an t-suidheachadh a leanas.

A nochdadhbh gniomha gu teac :—

We shall write, sgriobhaidh sinn
You will write, sgriobhaidh sibh
They will write, sgriobhaidh iad

A nochdadhbh rùin, no dleasannais, &c.

Is àill leam sgriobhadh
Is còir dhut sgriobhadh
Is còir dha sgriobhadh
Is àill leinn sgriobhadh
Is còir dhuibh sgriobhadh
Is còir dhoibh sgriobhadh.

Cul-athairraichear seadh shall agus will o'n mhineachadh roimh so, ann a ciallairt ceisteach ; mar,

An sgriobh mi ? is e sin,
An leig thu dhomh sgriobhadh.

An tig Peadar am màireach ? i.e. An e rùn Pheadair tighinn ?

Gabhaidh shall agus will am mineachadh céudnà 'nan timean seachadail far am bheil iad gu dependent upon some circumstance.

Were I in London, I should soon see the Tower.

Thou shouldst love thy neighbour.

I would take a drink.

Had I time, I would write.

cumanta co-chrochte ri cùis àraig.

Na'n robh mi 'an Lunuinn, chithinn an Tùr gu luath.

Bu chòir dhut do choimhearnach a ghràdhachadh.

Ghabhainn deòch, i.e. Bha rùn orm deòch a ghabhail.

Na'n robh tim agam sgriobhainn.

Should is often used instead of ought, to denote duty or obligation; as, “We should remember the poor.” “We ought to obey God rather than men.”

It is to be observed, that will, and its past would, are frequently found in explicative sentences, to denote volition or intention in the second and third person, equally strong as they do in the first person:—Thus, “Ye will not come to me that ye may have life.” “He says he will bring ten apples for me to-morrow.” “And he was angry and would not go in.”

DERIVATION.

Derivation is that part of Etymology which treats of the origin and primary signification of words.

The words of a language are either Primitive or Derivative.

A Primitive word is not derived from any simpler word than itself in the language ; as, man, just.

A Derivative word is derived or formed from some word simpler than itself ; as, manhood, unjust.

FREUMHACHADH.

Is e Freumhachadh an earran sin a dh-Fhoclahadh a ta 'teagasc mu stoc agus mu phriomh-sheadh fhocalan.

Tha focail cainnt, an dara cuid Priomhach no Freumhach.

Chaf fhreumhaichead focal Priomhach o fhocal sam bith a 's lugha na e-féin 'sa chainnt ; mar, duine, ceart.

Freumhaichead, no bheir-ear focal Freumhach bho fhocal àraidi éile, a's lugha na e-féin ; mar, duinealas, mi-cheart.

Primitive words are materially changed, both in their structure and signification, by being united with certain particles, called Prefixes and Affixes.

A Prefix is a particle placed before a word or root, to vary its sense ; as, rebuild, subscribe.

An Affix is a particle added to a root to vary its meaning ; as, manly.

OF ENGLISH OR SAXON ORIGIN.

A, air ; be, mu ; en, ann, dean (ich) ; for, neo ; fore, roimh ; mis, droch, mi ; out, thair, seach ; over, os-cionn, thar, ro ; un, neo, mi, eu, an, ana ; under, fò ; up, 'naird, suis ; with, o, á, ri, an aghaidh.

The import of the Saxon Prefixes is exemplified by their union with English roots ; thus :

A signifies on or in ; as, a-foot, that is, on foot ; a-bed, in bed.
BE—**about* ; as, besprinkle, to sprinkle about ; also, for or before, as, bespeak, to speak for or before.

EN—in or on ; as, encircle, to circle in. Also make ; as, enfeeble, to make feeble. En is changed into em before b or p ; as, embark, empower.

FOR—not ; as, forbid, not to bid.

FORE—before ; as, foresee, to see before hand.

MIS denotes error or defect ; as, misdeed, a wrong or evil deed ; mistake, to take wrong.

OUT—excess or getting before ; as, outrun, to run before, or surpass in running.

OVER—height or excess ; as, overcharge, to charge too much.

UN, prefixed, to an adjective or adverb, signifies not ; as, unkind, not kind. Un, prefixed to a verb, signifies the undoing of the verbal act ; as, unfetter, to pull off the fetters.

UNDER implies below ; as, undervalue, to value below the real worth.

Atharraichead focail Phriomh-ach gu mòr araon 'nan cumadh, agus 'nan seadh, le bhi iar an aonadh ri lidean àraig ris an canar, Tùsicean agus Risicean.

Is i Tùsic lid a chuirear roimh fhocal, no freumh a mhùth a sheadh ; mar, ath-thog, fo-sgriobh.

Is i Risic lid a chuirear ri freumh a mhùth a sheadh ; mar, duineil.

| gilead,     | whiteness |
| cruadhas,   | hardness  |
| ceartas,    | justice   |
| laigse,     | weakness  |

* Ear is a contracted form of fear or shear: it is written air and sometimes oir to put, “Leathan ri leathan.” Observance of this rule requires a broad before an affix beginning with a small, when the final vowel of the radical word is a broad.

† When the radical word ends in ich, it takes e only to form the derivative noun.

Diminutives are formed from other nouns by adding an for the masculine, and ag for the feminine.

|-------|----------|------------|-------------------------|
| Ceòl, | music,   | ceòlraidh, | the muses               |
| Càs,  | foot,    | càsraidh,  | foot-soldiers, infantry |
| Og,   | young,   | òigridh,   | youth, young people     |
| Each, | a horse, | eachraidh, | horse-soldiers, cavalry |

Cumar Ainmeanan Tireil agus Fineachail le cur ach ris na ainmibh ceart; mar,

|                                  |           |            |               |
|----------------------------------|-----------|------------|---------------|
| Albainn,                         | Scotland, | Albanuach, | a Scotchman   |
| Eirinn,                          | Ireland,  | Eirineach, | an Irishman   |
| Sasun,                           | England,  | Sasunach,  | an Englishman |

BUADHARAN.

Cumar mòran buadharan o ainmeanan agus o ghniomharan, le cur, ach, ail,* eil, da, idh, mhor, ra, no rra.

* The affix ail or eil is a contraction of amhuil, like; thus, for searamhuil, duinamhuil, we say fearail, duineil, like a man, manly. Amhuil is generally written at full length in the Irish; as, banamhuil, like a female, modest. From the Celtic affix, amhuil, ail, or eil, is derived the Latin alis; as in fatalis, mortalis, and the English al and ly, &c.; as in final, manly.

VERBS.

Many verbs denoting to make, are formed from nouns and adjectives, by adding ich; as,

Neart, strength, neartaich,
Min, plain, soft, minich,

GNIOMHARAN.

Cumar mòran ghniomh-aran a ciallachadh gu dean-amh, o ainmearan agus o bhuadharan le cur ich; mar, make strong, strengthen.

make plain, explain.

DOUBLE OR COMPOUND WORDS.

A double word is composed of two other words, either incorporated into one, or linked together with a hyphen; as,

Banarach (ban àrach), a dairymaid; òigear (òg fear), a youth; fear-ciùil, a musician; géur-fhocal, a gibe.

1. Double nouns whose parts are linked together with a hyphen, and having an adjective or an inseparable prefix for their first term, are declined in both numbers as in their single state, but their first terms remain unchanged; as,

Nom. S.

Dubh-fhocal, a riddle,

Mi-bhUIL, abuse,

Ard-bhuachaill, great shepherd,

2. A double noun whose first term governs the second in the genitive, has the first term declined in both numbers according to its own declension; but the second keeps the genitive form in every case, and is treated like an adjective agreeing with the first; thus,

Nom. S.

Cearc-thomain, b. a partridge,

Clach-chinn, fr. a copestone,

Fear-cuairt, fr. a sojourner,

Muc-mhara, b. a whale,

FOCAIL DHUBHAILT NO MHEASGTA.

Tha focal dubhailt deanta o dhà fhocal, éile an dara cuid aon-aichte, no naisgte ri 'cheile lé tèthan; mar,

1. Teàrnar focail dhùbhailt aig am beil an lùban iar an nasg-adh ri 'chéile le tèthan, agus buadhar no roi-ic neo-sgarach aca 'nan ceud lùb 'san dà àireimh mar 'nan staid shingilt, ach fanaidh a' cheud lùb gun mhùth; mar,

dubh-fhocail dubh-fhocalan

mi-bhuile mi-bhuilean

àrd-bhuachaillie àrd-bhuachaillean

2. Téàrnar 'san dà àireimh a réir a' theàrnaidh féin, ceud lùb focail dhuhailt aig am beil a cheud lùb a' spreigeadh na dara lùib 'sa ghinteach, ach cumaidh an dara lùb, an staid ghinteach anns gach căr, agus gabhar i mar bhuadhar a' còrdadh ris a' cheud lùib; mar so, circ-e-tomain cearcan-tomain

Gen. S.

cloiche-cinn clachan-cinn fir-chuait fir-chuaire

muice-mara mucan-mara

OBS.—The initial consonant of the second term of a double word of class first is commonly aspirated in every case; but in class second, only where an adjective qualifying the prepositive term should be aspirated.

SYNTAX is that part of Grammar which treats of the construction and arrangement of words in a sentence.

A Sentence is a series of words, so arranged as to make complete sense ; as, John is happy.

Sentences are either Simple or Complex.

A Simple sentence expresses only a simple proposition, or contains but one verb, either simple or compound ; as, Virtue exalts a man.

A Complex sentence consists of two or more simple sentences connected by one or more conjunctions, to express a complete proposition ; as, Virtue exalts a man, BUT vice debases him.

In every sentence there must be a Subject, or thing spoken of, and a Predicate, or what is affirmed of the subject.

The Subject or Nominative of a verb is always, either one or more nouns, one or more pronouns, a sentence, or part of a sentence ; as, I write. He and she were married. John writes. Peter, James, and Charles write. Minister, elders, and people agree. Hearing him read well is pleasant.

The Predicate is always a verb, and a sentence must uniformly contain at least one verb, but it may contain more than one, besides other parts of speech ; as, John reads books. John reads good books, and writes sensible letters.

Is e RIALTACHADH an earran sin de Ghràmar a ta teagasg mu cho-rianachadh, agus suidheachadh fhocalan ann a' ciallairt.

Is e Ciallairt sreath fhocalan, suidhichte air achd is gu'n dean iad ciall làn ; mar, tha Iain sona.

Tha ciallairtean Singilt no Fillteach.

Airisidh ciallairt Singilt aon smuanoirt singilt, no cha ghabh e ach a-mhàin aon ghniomhar singilt no measgta ; mar, Ardaichidh subhailc duine.

Gabhaidh ciallairt Fillteach dà chiallairt singilt no ni's mò na dhà, co-naisgte le h-aon no iomadh naisgear gusmuanoirt làn airis ; mar, Ardaichidh subhailc duine, ACH ìslividh dubhailc e.

Féumaidh Cùisear, no ni mu 'n labhrar, agus Feart (abairt), no na theirear uime, a bhi anns gach ciallairt.

The name of the person or thing upon which a transitive verb acts in a sentence is the object of the verb; as, John loves James. James struck the desk.

Here observe, James is the object of the verb loves, and desk is the object of the verb struck.

From what has been explained, let the student notice carefully that a sentence consists of three principal parts, viz. the subject or nominative, the predicate or verb, and the object or person or thing affected by the verbal action.

The Subject is known by putting the interrogative Who? before the verb; as, I read. Who reads? Answer I.

The Predicate is known by asking what the nominative does with the interrogative what and the verb do? thus, John writes. What does John do? Ans. writes.

The Object is known by annexing the interrogative what or whom to the verb; as, I cut pens. Cut what? Ans. pens. He loves me. Loves whom? Ans. me.

Syntax is divided into two parts, viz. Concord and Government.

Concord is the agreeing or corresponding of one word with another in number, gender, case, or person.

Government is the power which one part of speech has over a certain case or form of another, to determine the idea which the words are intended to express.

RULES OF SYNTAX.

The Rules of Syntax treat either of the construction or the arrangement of words in sentences.

Construction is the form which words assume in order

RIALTACHADH.

Is e ainm a' pheara, no 'ni air am beil gniomhar asdolach a' gniomhachadh ann a ciallairt, cuspair a' ghniomhair; mar, Tha Iain a' gràdhachadh Shéumais. Bhual Séumas an dasg.

Is e Còrdadh co-aonadh, no co-fhreagairt aoin fhocail ri focal éile 'an àireimh, 'an gin, 'an car, no ann am pearsa.

Is e Spreigeadh an ceannas a ta aig aon fhocal thairis air car, no staid àraid aoin éile, gu suidheachadh na beachd a dh-iarrar airis leis na focail.

RIALTAN 'RIALTACHAIDH.

Tha Rialtan Rialtachaидh a' teagastg mu cho-rianachadh, no suidheachadh fhocal ann a ciallairtibh.

Is e Co-rianachadh an staid anns an cuirear focail to combine grammatically with other words in the same sentence.

Arrangement is the order or position in which words stand in a sentence.

A Phrase is a few words used to express some relation between ideas, but no entire proposition; as, "In short," "To be sure."

A Clause is a part of a sentence.

gu co-nasgadh gu gràmarail ri focail éile 'san aon chiallairt.

Is e Suidheachadh an t-òrdugh no an seasamh anns am beil focail ann a ciallairt.

Is e Seòllairt beagan fhocal a ghnàthaicheadh gu seòrsa dàimh eadar beachdan a nochdadh, ach cha nochd e smuanoirt làn; mar, "Gu gearr," "Gu bhi cinnteach."

Is e Ball, no earran páirt, de chiallairt.

All the Rules and Exercises of English Syntax are in English only, designed to be converted into the other Language as good exercises for the Gaelic Student. All the terms of the rules are already anticipated, and for the Gaelic of such words as the text does not furnish, he is to ply his Dictionary.

ARTICLE AND NOUN.

RULE I.*—A or an is used before a Noun Singular only; as, a pen, an egg.

The is used before Nouns in both Numbers; as, the king, the lords.

1. A is used before words beginning with a consonant, the long sound of u, and before vowels sounding like w. An is used before a vowel or a silent h, and before h sounded but accented on the second syllable; as,

A book.   A unit.   Such a one.

An owl.   An hour.   An heróic action.

2. A is used before the numeral adjectives few and many; as, A few pence.   A great many people.

3. When two or more nouns or adjectives are used to describe the same object, the article is prefixed only to the first of them;

* If the Pupil is not very young, the corresponding rule of Arrangement should be taught along with each rule of Construction.—See 1st Rule of Arrangement, page 260.

but if different objects are described, it is prefixed to each separately ; as,

I bought a black and white cow which cost £6.

I bought a black and a white cow which cost each £6.

4. The article is omitted in English before the names of persons, places, virtues, vices, metals, arts, and sciences, &c. and before a word that stands for a whole species.

EXERCISES.

Correct—A apple. A otter. A orderly house. An union. A historical account. An European settlement. An ewe. The John reads well. An Scotland is my native country. The fire, the air, the earth, and the water, are four elements of the philosophers. The patience and diligence overcome all the difficulties. The reason was given to man to control his passions. The arithmetic has led to many important discoveries. The gold is corrupting. A man is the noblest work of creation. The virtues like his are not easily acquired. The profligate man is seldom or never found to be the good husband, the good father, or the beneficent neighbour.

ADJECTIVE AND NOUN.

RULE II.—Every Adjective belongs to a Noun, expressed or understood ; as, a vigorous man ; the young should obey the old, i.e. the young people, &c.

1. The Comparative degree of adjectives requires than after it, and the Superlative requires of ; as,

James is taller than John.

Solomon was the wisest of all men.

RULE III.—It is improper to use double comparatives and superlatives ; thus,

Mine is a more better pen than yours, but John's is the most best; should be, Mine is a better pen than yours, but John's is the best.

1. The Adjectives chief, perfect, true, universal, right, &c. imply the superlative degree without est or most. Superior and inferior imply comparison, and take to after them.

2. When two objects are compared, the comparative is generally used ; as, Peter is the wiser of the two. But when more than two, the superlative ; as, Jane is the prettiest of the three, or of them all.

This rule is not strictly followed ; the superlative is often used instead of the comparative, by respectable speakers and writers ; as, this is the weakest of the two, or the weaker of the two.

EXERCISES.

Correct—He sings better nor I. James is wiser nor John. Wisdom is more precious nor gold. Nothing is sweeter nor the light of truth. Samson was stronger besides any other man. To obey our superiors is no greater duty but the law of nature requires. He gained no further merit by his eloquence but a little popular applause. A worser conduct. The most straitest sect. A more kinder friend. Tray is the most swiftest dog. Peter is more older than John. Absalom was the most beautifullest man. The most sweetest voice.

He is the chiefest among ten thousands. Virtue confers the supremest dignity on man, He gave most universal satisfaction. Wisdom is more superior than wealth.

James is the wisest of the two. He is the weakest of the two. This day is hottest than yesterday. Eliza is the prettier of the three, but not the elder.

NOUNS AND PRONOUNS.

RULE IV.—When two nouns, or a noun and a pronoun are used to denote the possessor, and the thing possessed, the name of the owner is put in the possessive case ; as,

In my father's house. On eagle's wings.

Thine is the kingdom. The man whose heart is glad.

1. When several nouns denoting possession follow each other, the last mentioned only receives the sign of the possessive ; as, John and Eliza's books. But when any words intervene, the sign of the possessive should be annexed to each ; as, He got his father's as well as his mother's permission.

2. When the name of the thing possessed is obvious, it is often omitted ; as, I was at St George's, i.e. at St George's Church. I am going to the minister's, i.e. the minister's house.

3. The preposition of, often becomes the sign of the possessive in English ; as, The reward of virtue, or virtue's reward. The wisdom of Socrates, rather than Socrates' wisdom.

4. When the word put in the possessive ends in s, ss, or ce, in order to avoid too much of a hissing sound, the possessive is often formed by simply annexing the apostrophe (') without the letter s to the nominative ; as, for righteousness' sake, for conscience' sake.

RULE V.—Nouns signifying the same person, place, or thing, agree in case ; as,

Cicero the orator. The city Edinburgh.

EXERCISES.

Correct—A ladys fan. The mans hat. Thy fathers virtue is not thine. A mans manner's frequently influence his fortune. Moses rod was turned into a serpent. Asa his heart was perfect with the Lord. Helen her beauty was the cause of Troy its destruction. A mothers tenderness and a fathers care are natures gift for man his advantage.

1. It was the men's, women's, and children's lot to suffer much affliction.

Peter's, John's, and Andrew's occupation was that of fishermen.

I called at the bookseller. I was at St Peter.

For Herodias's sake. Jesus's feet. For conscience's sake. (5.) The river of Nile.

RULE VI.—Pronouns agree with their correlatives, or the nouns for which they stand, in number, gender, and person ; as,

Every tree is known by its fruit.

The lady who has lost her fan.

The boys are learning their lesson.

The post has arrived, but he has brought me no letters.

RULE VII.—In expressing the existence of a person or thing, the pronoun it as the nominative to a verb, is often used indefinitely, and in that case applied to persons as well as to things in both numbers ; as,

It is the duke.

It is time to go.

It is I, be not afraid.

It was you that told me.

It is these fetters that vex me.

It was he who broke it.

RULE VIII.—The Demonstrative Pronouns, this, that, and numerals, agree in number with the nouns which they describe ; as, This book, that pen, these books, those pens, one horse, two pounds, six feet.

1. The distributives each, every, either, neither, agree with verbs and pronouns in the singular number ; as,

Each of your companions is doing well.

Every man is accountable for himself.

Either of them is fit to walk two miles an hour.

Neither of these girls is able to speak for herself.

2. When a pronoun refers to two or more nouns or pronouns of different persons coupled with AND, it takes the first person plural rather than the second, and the second rather than the third ; as,

John and I shared it between us.

You and John are here now, I am glad to see you both.

He and you and I have our tasks well.

3. All, when it refers to quantity, is joined to a singular noun, and to a plural when it refers to number ; as,

Six days shalt thou labour and do all thy work.

All men are mortal.

Whole is joined to collective nouns in the plural ; as,

“ Whole cities were swallowed up by the earthquake.”

4. The word conveying the answer to a question must be in the same case with the interrogative word : as,

Who said that ? he (said it)    Whose knife is this ? Peter's (knife.)

Whom did he strike ? me ; that is, he struck me.

5. A relative pronoun is always of the same number, gender, and person, with the word to which it refers, but not always of the same case ; as, Thou who readest. He who writes. I, whom the master has praised, am happy.

EXERCISES.

Correct—The queen put on his royal apparel. John is here, she came an hour ago. The book whom I read. He smokes his pipe, but she does not draw well. The mind of man cannot be long without food to nourish the activity of his thoughts. Can a woman forget his sucking child, that he should not have compassion on the son of her womb ? yea, they may forget ; yet I will not forget thee. The trees have lost its foliage. Take handfulls of the ashes of the furnace, and let Moses sprinkle it toward heaven in the sight of Pharaoh, and it shall become small dust. This boys reads well. That men work hard. These kind of people sticks at nothing. Those sort of favours did real injury. Give me them books. Them are fine maps. I have not seen him this ten days. I have no interests but that of truth and virtue. The well is six foot deep and two foot broad..

Each of them paid their share. Every imagination of the thoughts of the heart of man are evil continually. Are either of these men your friend ?

Thou and he shared it between them. You and John have lost their pens. You and I must attend to your duty.

Who wrote this letter ? me. Whose knife is this ? mine's.

SUBJECT AND VERB.

RULE IX.—A verb must be always of the same number and person with its subject or nominative ; as,

I love. Thou provest. John writes letters.

I am. He is. Boys are here.

1. Singular nouns or pronouns coupled with AND require a verb or pronoun in the plural ; as,

Socrates and Plato were wise.

He and she are happy, for they are good.

2. Singular nouns or pronouns separated by OR or NOR require a verb or pronoun in the singular number ; as,

James or John is dux.

3. A Collective noun conveying an idea of plurality, requires a verb and pronoun in the plural ; as,

My people do not consider, they have not known me.

A noun or pronoun is always the subject to a verb, and a noun is always of the third person, except when it is used to name the person addressed, in which case it is of the second ; as,

“ Our Father who art in heaven.”

4. The infinitive mood, or part of a sentence, is often a nominative to a verb, and always of the third person ; as,

To be afraid to do evil is true courage.

His being absent was the cause of his loss.

5. It is improper to use both a noun and its pronoun as a nominative to the same verb ; as,

The king he is just ; should be, The king is just.

Many words they darken speech ; should be, Many words darken speech.

EXERCISES.

Correct—I loves. I hatest. Thou desires. He covet. We abhors. You rejects. We sings. They calls. I goes. They was. He have. We has. You reads well. Men judges partially. We was from home.

Many men is deceived by false appearances. The days of man is but as grass. Great pains has been taken to reconcile the parties. There is in fact no servants in the house. A variety of charming objects please the eye. Not one of those whom thou sees clothed in purple are happy. The support of so many of his relations were a heavy tax upon his industry, but thou knows he paid it cheerfully. The variety of the productions of genius, like that of the operations of nature, are without limits. Disappointments sinks the heart of men, but the renewal of hope give consolation.

In vain our flocks and fields increase our store,
When our abundance make us wish for more.

1. Your book and pen is on the desk. Newton and Locke was learned men. James and I has been very busy. The rich and the poor meets together. Time and tide waits for no man. Wisdom, virtue, and happiness dwells with the golden mediocrity. Out of the same mouth proceedeth blessing and cursing.

2. Peter or his brother are to go. Either the boy or the girl were present. There are in many minds neither knowledge nor understanding. Neither John nor Richard have come. The modest virgin, the prudent wife, or the careful matron, are much more serviceable in life than petticoated philosophers. It must be confessed that a lampoon or a satire do not carry in them robbery or murder. Man is not such a machine as a clock or a watch, which move merely as they are moved.

3. The council were not unanimous. The committee has agreed upon that. The Parliament are composed of king or queen, lords, and commons. The multitude eagerly pursues pleasures as its chief good. Some people is busy, and yet does very little. When the nation complain, the rulers should listen to their voice.

4. To be carnally minded are death, but to be spiritually minded are life and peace. To do unto others as we would they should do unto us, constitute the principle of virtue. To be temperate in eating and drinking, to use exercise in the open air, and to preserve the mind from tumultuous emotions, is the best preservative of health.

That it is our duty to promote the purity of our minds and bodies, to be just and kind to our fellow creatures, and to be pious and faithful to Him who made us, admit not of any doubt in a rational and well informed mind.

VERB AND ITS OBJECT.

RULE X.—A transitive verb governs its object in the objective case; as,

We love them. They hate us. John struck the desk.

Neuter or Intransitive verbs govern a word of like signification with themselves in the objective; as,

I live a pleasant life. You run a race.

Correct—I admire she. He taught I. Vice ruins they who obey its commands. Who did they entertain so freely? Whosoever the court favours, they will I espouse. He and they we know, but who art thou? These are the persons who we ought to respect. She that is idle and mischievous reprove sharply. We should fear and obey the Author of our being, even He who hath power to reward or punish we for ever. He who committed the offence thou shouldest correct, not I who am innocent. They who opulence has made rich, and who luxury has corrupted, are not happy.

VERB AND TWO OBJECTS.

RULE XI.—Some transitive verbs, such as bring, give, tell, send, promise, allow, &c. admit two objective cases after them,—the one case denoting the object, and the other the person ; as,

*He gave it me.* He sent us a present.*

Such verbs as admit two objective cases in the active voice, retain one in the passive, especially in colloquial discourses ; as,

I was allowed great liberty. She was offered them by her mother.

RULE XII.—The verb TO BE has the same case after it as before it ; as,

It is I, be not afraid. It was he. I took it to be him.

RULE XIII.—One verb governs another in the Infinitive mood ; as, Strive to learn.

To, the sign of the Infinitive, is not used after the verbs bid, dare, feel, hear, let, need, make, see, or the auxiliary verbs may, can, must, shall, and will.

1. The Infinitive mood is often governed by nouns and adjectives ; as,

A desire to speak. Keen to learn.

For before this mood is very vulgar.

The Infinitive is often an independent clause of a sentence ; as,

To proceed. To confess the truth, I was in fault.

* The preposition to or for is understood before the person ; as, he gave it to me.

2. To is generally used after the first class of these verbs in the passive form, except let; as,

He was heard to speak. He was let go.

PARTICIPLES.

RULE XIV.—Participles retaining the sense of a verb, govern the same case or mood as the verbs to which they belong; as,

Loving me. Having seen them.

RULE XV.—When the Imperfect Participle is used as a noun, it is often preceded by an article, and followed by of; as,

By the observing of the truth, thou wilt command esteem.

RULE XVI.—When the Imperfect Participle is used as a noun, or part of a complex noun, it is frequently preceded by a noun or pronoun in the possessive case.

Much depends on the pupil's composing frequently.

His attending school regularly enables him to be dux.

1. A noun or pronoun joined with the Imperfect or Perfect participle, not depending upon any other word in the sentence, is put in the nominative case; as,

We being exceedingly tossed, they lighted the ship.

They having finished their work, departed.

This construction is commonly called the nominative absolute.

2. The Perfect Participle is always joined to the verb BE in compound tenses Passive,* and to the verb HAVE when used as a help; as,

He is smitten. Books are lent.

I have written. They had chosen.

EXERCISES.

Correct—He gave I a penny. Ye gave I meat. Son, give I thine heart. Tell we your news. Fetch I a candle. Get he a pen. Offer they meat. He taught I grammar. The master promised we a holiday. I will send ye money. Who gave thou this authority? Did they tell he his fault? If thy brother trespass against thee, go and tell he his fault between thee and he alone. He denied I the favour. I was first refused apples, then promised they, and at last I was offered they.

* See formation of the Passive Voice,—page 129, &c.

12. It was me. It was her. It was me that brought these tidings. Was it them that told you? It was him who got the first prize. I would not do it again if I were him. Who do they represent I to be? Search the Scriptures, for in them ye have eternal life, and they are them which testify of me. I believe it to have been they. I am certain it was not him. Let him be whom he may. I saw a person whom I took to be she. It was not us. It might have been him. It was either her or her sister that told me.

13. Learn do well. Strive improve. He ordered me go home. Christians ought love one another. It is better live on a little than outlive a great deal. I did not wish obtrude my opinions upon others. He cannot be said have intruded himself on the parish.

I bade him to come. I dare not to do it. Let him to do his duty. I need not to solicit him to do a kind office. I feel his pulse to beat. Hear Ann to read her lesson. Let reason and religion to guide you. We heard the thunder to roll. It is the difference of their conduct which makes us to approve the one and to reject the other. It is a great support to virtue when we see a good mind to maintain its patience and tranquillity under injuries and afflictions, and to cordially forgive its oppressors.

14. Trying speak. Wishing learn. Endeavouring persuade. Esteeming themselves wise they became fools. The master is teaching we read distinctly. He was advising they avoid evil company. Our uncle, after having paid we a visit of three days, departed. Having exposed hisself too much to the inclemency of the weather, he contracted a severe cold.

15. The learning languages requires a close and persevering application. Learning of any subject requires great attention. I have heard of thee by the hearing the ear. The sum of the moral law consists in the obeying God, and loving of our neighbours as ourselves. This was a betraying the trust reposed in him. You are favourably situated for the gaining wisdom. By reading of good books we are sure to improve both our mind and our morals.

PREPOSITIONS.

RULE XVII.—Prepositions govern their objects in the objective case ; as,

Before me, behind us, between you and me, on a table.

The preposition To is often omitted after the adverbs nigh, near, like, and before a personal pronoun, after a verb of giving, &c. ; as,

He came near the city, i.e. near to the city.

He sent me a newspaper, i.e. to me.

RULE XVIII.—The Prepositions at, in, to, are used before names of places ; thus,

At, is used after the verb to be ; as, I was at Edinburgh.

At, is used also before the names of villages, towns, and foreign cities ; as, he resides at Beauly, at York, at Rome.

In, is used before names of streets, of countries, and large cities ; as, he stays in George Street. I live in Scotland, in London.

To, is used after a verb of motion ; as, he went to Paris.

Correct—I was with he. To who did you give my pen. Give each of they a penny. Send the frock to she. Great friendship subsists between he and I. For who do you work. The master often spoke to we upon that subject. He laid the suspicion upon somebody, I know not who, in the company.

* Who do you speak to. Who did she sing with. Who did you stand before. I hope it is not I you are displeased with. It is not I thou art engaged with. Who didst thou receive that intelligence from? Does that boy know who he speaks to? What concord can subsist between those who commit crimes and they who abhor them. Associate not with those who none speak well of.

* The Preposition commonly precedes the relative which it governs ; as, To whom do you speak. (See Eng. Ar. R. 14.)

CONJUNCTIONS.

RULE XIX.—Conjunctions connect nouns and pronouns in the same case, and verbs in the same mood and tense ; as,

|                                    |                            |
|------------------------------------|----------------------------|
| Peter and John are good boys.      | You and I were at school.  |
| The sailor struck him, and not me. | You are older than I.      |
| She loved him more than me.        | You can sing as well as I. |
| Watch and pray.                    | He reads and writes well.  |

RULE XX.—Some Conjunctions are used as correlatives to each other ; thus,

|                 |                                                                                      |
|-----------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Either   | requires or after it ; as, I will either come or send.                               |
| Neither  | " nor ; as, neither he nor his brother was there.                                    |
| Though   | { yet ; as, though he was rich, yet for our sakes he                                 |
| Although | became poor.                                                                         |
| As       | " as, in expressing comparison of equality ; as, sheis as amiable as her sister. |

1. Some Conjunctions, Adverbs, and Pronouns go in couples ; thus,

Both couples with and ; as, both you and I are well.

|           |                                                                                         |
|-----------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| As | " so, expressive of comparison of equality ; as,as the stars, so shall thy seed be. |
|-----------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|

|           |                                                                           |
|-----------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| So | " as, expressive of comparison ; as, he is not sowise as his brother. |
|-----------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------|

|           |                                                                             |
|-----------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| So | " that, expressive of consequence ; as, I am soweak that I cannot move. |
|-----------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------|

|                |                                          |
|----------------|------------------------------------------|
| Whether | " or ; as, whether he will do it or not. |
|----------------|------------------------------------------|

|             |                             |
|-------------|-----------------------------|
| Such | " as ; as, such as do well. |
|-------------|-----------------------------|

|              |                                |
|--------------|--------------------------------|
| Other | " than ; as, no other than he. |
|--------------|--------------------------------|

Such, when denoting so great, requires that ; as,

Her conduct was such, that I ordered her to leave the room.

Such is the influence of money, that few can resist it.

EXERCISES.

Correct—The master taught him and I to write. John is as tall as me. He retains his learning better than her. You and me enjoy many privileges. Professing regard and to act differently mark a base mind. If he understands the subject and attend to it, he can scarcely fail of success. If a man have a hundred sheep, and one of them go astray, does he not leave the ninety and nine, and goeth* into the mountains and seeketh* that which is gone astray ?

It is neither high or low. Though he slay me, so will I trust in him. He must go himself, or send his servant. Neither despise or oppose what thou dost not understand. Neither despise the poor or envy the rich, for the one dieth so the other. I gained a son, and such a son as all men hailed me happy. I must, however, be so candid as to own as I have been mistaken. As far as I am able to judge, the book is well written. His raiment was so white as now. I must be so plain that to tell you that you have misapprehended it altogether. This is no other but the gate of heaven. Such men that act treacherously ought to be avoided.

RULE XXI.—The auxiliary verbs Shall and Will, and their past, should and would, are often omitted before specific verbs when preceded by the conjunctions if, though, lest, unless, &c. ; as,

“ If thy presence go not with us, carry us not up hence ; ” i.e. if thy presence will not go with us, &c.

“ Though he slay me ; ” i.e. though he should slay me. †

• Continue the Emphatic Form of the Verb here.

† “ In such phraseologies as ‘ he slay,’ ‘ thy presence go,’ some grammarians see what they call a Subjunctive Mood of the Verb,—that is, a form of the verb peculiar to clauses which are subjoined to others by means of the conjunctions if, though, &c. ; but it is plain that these conjunctions exercise no influence over the verb. The reason of the peculiar form is, that the idea of contingency is present to the mind of the speaker or writer, and is meant to be expressed,—(the same reason, indeed, that gives rise to the use of the conjunctions themselves in these cases.) Accordingly, the form of the verb is the same when contingency is expressed, whether the conjunctions be used or not. ‘ Be you present or be you absent, I will speak,’ is as grammatical as, ‘ Whether you be present or absent.’ Besides, it is to be observed that, when certainty and not contingency is expressed, the verb does not take this elliptical form, though preceded by if, though, &c.”—Dr McCulloch.

doubtedly be trusted. Take care that you communicate not the secret to any person.

RULE XXII.—Interjections are joined to the objective case of the first personal pronoun, and to the nominative of the second ; as, Ah me ! O thou ! *

EXERCISES.

Correct—Ah ! unhappy thee, who art indifferent about thine eternal peace. O ! you hypocrites. Oh ! I, for I am a man of sorrow. Woe's I, for I am a man of unclean lips.

RULES OF ARRANGEMENT.

The words of a sentence may be arranged either in Conventional or Rhetorical order.

The Conventional order is the arrangement in which the words of a sentence are usually placed in speaking and writing.

The Rhetorical order is that arrangement of the words in which the emphatical word or part of a sentence is placed first.

II.

RIALTAN SUIDHEACHAIDH.

Faodar focail ciallairte a shuidheachadh an dara cuid 'an òrdugh Còrdail, no Or-chainn teach.

Is e 'n t-òrdugh Còrdail an suidheachadh anns an cuirear focail ciallairte gu cumanta ann a labhairt agus ann a sgriobhadh.

Is e 'n t-òrdugh Or-chainn teach suidheachadh sin nam focal, anns an cuirear am focal, no an earran neartail de chiallairt air toiseach.

The Conventional or grammatical arrangement seems chiefly adapted to simple explanation and narration.

* Interjections, owing to the rapidity of feeling, simply express the emotions of the mind, without waiting to state the circumstances which produced such emotions ; therefore the phrases in which they occur are usually elliptical ; for instance, Ah me ! Here, me is governed by befallen, or come upon, understood ; thus filled up,—Ah, what misfortune has befallen me, or come upon me ! Woes me ! i.e. Woe is to me.

O ! is used to express the emotion of desire, exclamation, or direct address.

Oh ! is used to express pain, sorrow, surprise, or admiration.

POSITION OF THE ARTICLE.

RULE I.—The article is always placed before the noun whose signification it limits ; as, A pen, an eye, the Bible.

1. When the noun limited by the article is qualified by an adjective, the article is placed before the adjective ; as, A cold day, an amiable woman, the holy Bible.

2. A is placed between the noun and the adjectives many and such, and also between the noun and all adjectives preceded by as, so, too, and how ; as,

Many a flower is born to blush unseen.

Such a system is sure to work well.

As fine a lady as one can see.

So fair a maid was never seen.

3. The is placed between the noun and the word all ; as, All the judges assembled.

4. The is placed before the comparative degree of adverbs ; as, the older he grows the wiser he gets ; the sooner the better.

A nice distinction is sometimes made by the use or omission of the indefinite article. Thus, if I say, the farmer showed me a little kindness, I commend him ; but if I say, he showed me little kindness, I commend him not.

ARRANGEMENT OF WORDS.

EXERCISES.

Place the article right in the following sentences—

Lofty a tree is more exposed to the violence of high the winds than low a one.

A many poor creature suffers under screwing poverty, while others abound in wealth to a such high degree as excludes every thought of want.

A so able and pious man we seldom meet. The all men that wear a fair outside are not sound within.

A so bold breach of order called for little severity in punishing the offender. He has been much censured for paying a little attention to his business.

* The Rhetorical seems to be the more natural of the two kinds of arrangement described above, as it is more calculated to operate on the mind of the speaker and fix the attention of the hearer, and also more lively and attractive in animated speech. It is the same in all languages, whereas the conventional mode of arrangement is different in different languages.

The principal laws of arrangement and position of words in a sentence, both conventional and rhetorical, are exemplified under the following rules :—

POSITION OF ADJECTIVES.

RULE II.—In sentences conventionally arranged, the adjective is placed immediately before the noun which it qualifies ; as,

A beautiful tree. A rapid stream.

There are four cases in which this order is inverted.

1. When the adjective is used as a title, it is placed after its noun with the before it ; as,

Alexander the Great.

2. When there are two or more adjectives combined with the same noun, they are generally placed after it ; as,

A man wise, just, and good.

3. When the adjective is itself qualified by some other word or words, and forming a complex adjective therewith, it is placed after the noun ; as.

A servant faithful to his master.

Here the adjective qualifying the noun servant is not faithful alone, but the complex adjective, “faithful-to-his-master.”

4. An adjective denoting extent is put after the word which expresses the measure of extent ; as,

A pillar sixty feet high.

An adjective qualifying the action of a verb is separated from its noun, and forms along with the verb the predicate of the noun ; as, Silenus drinks deep. It looks strange.

RULE III.—In sentences rhetorically arranged, the adjective, when emphatic, begins the sentence, and is often far distant from its noun ; as,

Great is the Lord.

Glorious on earth will be the day of his coming.

EXERCISES ON ARRANGEMENT.

Point out which of the following sentences are Conventionally arranged, and which Rhetorically—applying the Rules at the same time—

The spacious firmament is studded with brilliant stars. Sweet is the time of spring. Lorenzo the magnificent was kind to the poor. The verdant bank is covered with beautiful flowers. Cesar was magnanimous, eloquent, and brave. A son dutiful to his parents shall prosper. Auspicious to our country is the birth of a prince. Noah's ark was three hundred cubits long, fifty cubits broad, and thirty cubits high.

POSITION OF PRONOUNS.

RULE IV.—The relative pronouns should, to prevent ambiguity, be placed as close as possible to their correlatives.

Thus, The master dismissed his servant, whom none believed to be capable of doing an unjust act; should be, The master, whom none believed to be capable of doing an unjust act, dismissed his servant.

Here, the justness of the master's character, and not the servant's, is intended to be expressed; therefore, the first order of the above sentence is incorrect.

1. The Compound Relatives, whichsoever and whatsoever, are often separated by the interposition of a noun; as, On which side soever the king cast his eyes, instead of, On whichsoever side the king cast his eyes. The latter mode is certainly more beautiful and proper.

THIS and THAT. FORMER and LATTER.

RULE V.—When two objects follow each other in contrast, that refers to the first mentioned, and this to the last; as, Virtue and vice are as opposite to each other as light and darkness; that ennobles the mind, this debases it.

1. Former and Latter are often used instead of this and that. The former [two] are applied to persons and things indiscriminately, the latter [two] are seldom applied to persons. In most cases, however, the repetition of the noun is preferable to either.

EXERCISES.

Arrange the following sentences right, by putting the Pronouns and Clauses in their proper places—

The teacher reproved the boy who is ever faithful in discharging his duty, for his negligence. The king dismissed his minister without any inquiry, who had never before committed so unjust an action.

Religion raises men above themselves, irreligion sinks them beneath the brutes; that binds them down to a poor pitiable speck of earth, this exalts them to the skies. Body and soul must part; the former wings its way to its Almighty source, the latter drops into the dark and noisome grave.

SUBJECT AND VERB.

RULE VI.—In conventional sentences, the subject or nominative always precedes the verb ; as,

The clouds gather. To obey is better than sacrifice.

There are four cases in which the nominative follows the verb, or its help, in English.

- When the sentence is interrogative ; as,

Do riches make men happy ?

- When the sentence is imperative ; as,

Go thou. Seek ye.

- When a supposition is elliptically expressed ; as,

Had I known it. Were it true.

- When the sentence begins with here, there, where, wherein, hence, thence, whence, then, therein, herein, neither, nor, so, thus, yet, &c. ; as,

There was a man sent from God.

Hence arise strife and dissensions.

OBS.—The few deviations from this rule are such phrases as, Said I, quoth he, replied they.

RULE VII.—In rhetorical sentences, the predicate or verb is often, for the sake of emphasis and vivacity, made to precede its subject ; as,

Shines forth the cheerful sun.

Great is Diana of the Ephesians.

Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.

VERB AND ITS OBJECT.

RULE VIII.—In conventional sentences, a transitive verb precedes the word which it governs ; as,

Solomon built the temple. Samson expounded the riddle.

- When the object is expressed by a relative, or preceded by a compound relative used as its adjective, the verb follows its object ; as,

Whom do men say that I am. Whatsoever blessing he bestows.

RULE IX.—In rhetorical sentences, the object, when it is an emphatic word, precedes its verb ; as,

Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have, give I to thee.
Me ye have bereaved of my son.

In poetry, a wide latitude of transposition is often allowed in this rule, as in many other respects.

EXERCISES.

Point out, first the Conventional, and then the Rhetorical sentences in the following Exercises, applying the Rule in each case—

The warblers of the grove sing sweetly.

Sweetly sing the warblers of the grove.

Have you seen the queen? Fallen is thy throne, O Israel.

Train up a child in the way he should go.

Happy are the young who obtain sound knowledge.

Had he asked me, I would have lent him a shilling.

Agreeable to me is the company of wise and learned men.

There is no wisdom nor device in the grave.

Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God.

Whence came those strangers? Were I at home, I would have entertained them freely.

She loves me. Him she hates vehemently.

My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not.

Me he restored unto mine office, and him he hanged on a tree.

James invited my brother and me to see his library.

My excursion to the country I greatly enjoyed.

POSITION OF THE INFINITIVE.

RULE X.—In Conventional sentences, the Infinitive is placed after the verb which governs it, but other words often intervene between it and the governing verb; as,

I desire to learn.

Faithful teachers admonish their pupils daily to appreciate the advantages of education.

RULE XI.—In Rhetorical sentences, the Infinitive is sometimes used without its sign (To), and for the sake of emphasis stands first in a sentence; as,

Go I must, whatever may ensue.

Avoid it he could not by any means.

POSITION OF ADVERBS.

RULE XII.—Adverbs are generally placed before adjectives, and usually after verbs, but in compound verbs they are frequently placed between the auxiliary and the verb, or participle; as,

Eminently pious. Ann sings sweetly.

I was kindly treated. We have not been heard.

Obs. 1.—Adverbs should be placed as close as possible to the words which they are intended to modify, but whether they should precede or follow them, seems to be chiefly regulated by euphony or the taste of the ear.

Obs. 2.—Adverbs, when emphatic, may begin a sentence; as,

How sweetly she sings.

Down goes the weighty stone.

1. It is improper to use adverbs as adjectives, or adjectives as adverbs; as,

Often infirmities, instead of, frequent infirmities.

Remarkable kind, instead of, remarkably kind.

2.—From should not be used before the adverbs hence, thence, whence; as, Whence came ye? and not, From whence came ye? In many instances, however, the omission of from would render the expression stiff and disagreeable.

3.—Hither, thither, and whither, are often used after a verb of motion, instead of here, there, and where; as,

Come hither, James, instead of, come here.

4.—Enough is always placed after its adjective; and never, for the most part, is placed before a simple verb, except the verb to be; as,

The house is large enough.

He never sings. We are never absent.

5.—Ever and never, though directly opposite in sense, are often confounded and misapplied; thus, If I make my hands never so clean, should be, ever so clean.

6.—Not, when it modifies the imperfect participle, comes before it; as, Not knowing.

The adverbs yes, and yea, expressing a simple affirmation, and no and nay, expressing a simple negation, are always independent. They are generally used in answering a question, and are equivalent to a sentence; thus, Will you teach me grammar? yes; i.e. I will teach you, &c.

RULE XIII.—A negative sentence in English admits but one negative word; as,

I cannot wait no longer, should be, I cannot wait any longer. I cannot by no means do it, should be, I can by no means do it, or I cannot by any means do it.

1.—Two negatives in English sometimes destroy the negation, and render the meaning affirmative; as, “Nor did they not perceive their evil plight.” That is, they did perceive it.

EXERCISES.

Place the adverbs in the following sentences in their proper position.

That rope is not strong sufficiently. The boy distinctly reads and beautifully writes ; he is qualified well for the office of a clerk. The heavenly bodies are in motion perpetually. To be ignorant totally of the principles of grammar certainly is a great disadvantage. Great talents are found seldom in a man without great defects, and the most culpable errors have been often the production of the greatest geniuses. Not only he found her employed, but pleased and tranquil.

The women contributed all their rings and jewels voluntarily, to assist the government.

1.—They are miserable poor. Peter acted the noblest. I am exceeding sorry for the offence. Live agreeable to the dictates of reason and religion. The house is near full of people. This day is extreme cold. Act conformable to reason and justice, and nobody can condemn your conduct. The boy reads very distinct—addresses his master fluent, but he does not think very coherent. Agreeable to your request I send you the money. Such events are of seldom* occurrence. Return him a soon* and decisive answer.

2 and 3.—From whence came ye ? Where are you going ? He departed from thence into a desert place. Come here instantly. I shall go there again in a few days. Whither have they been since they left the city ?

4.—James was enough kind to lend me his penknife. I saw never such a flock of sheep. Faithful watchmen never are off their guard.

5 and 6.—They could not persuade him, though they were never so eloquent. Let some persons' advantages be never so favourable, they are too indolent to improve them. Having not known, or having not considered the subject, he was unprepared to explain it.

R. 13.—I cannot drink no more. He could not speak neither good or bad. We have not done nothing to-day. I have not got no money. There cannot be nothing more insignificant than vanity. That young man shall never be no taller. Precept nor discipline is not so forcible as example. Covet neither riches nor honours, nor no such perishing things.

* For seldom and soon, use rare and speedy.

POSITION OF PREPOSITIONS.

RULE XIV.—Prepositions are generally placed before the words which they govern ; as,

With me. To them. Over us.

Prepositions are often placed after the words which they govern, and even at a considerable distance from them. We may either say, Whom do you lodge with ? or, With whom do you lodge ? (See Cons. Rule 17.)

The latter form is more relished by some critics, as being the more elegant of the two, but it is not practicable in every instance ; for example, the relative “THAT” does not admit of a preposition before it, but it admits of one at some distance after it ; thus, though we cannot say, He is the same man with that you are acquainted, we can say, He is the same man that you are acquainted with.

POSITION OF CONJUNCTIONS.

RULE XV.—Conjunctions are placed between the words and clauses which they connect ; as,

Come and see. Be cautious, but speak the truth.

1.—Monosyllabic conjunctions, with the exception of then, are always placed first in the clauses or sentences which they connect ; as, Our journey through this world will be very short, but a glorious prospect lies beyond the grave for the good. See, then, that you endeavour to be good.

2.—Conjunctions of more than one syllable, may be transferred to the place in a sentence where they are most agreeable to the ear in reading, except whereas, which must always stand first in the clause or sentence ; as, A good conscience and a mild temper will make a man happy ; whereas, guilty thoughts and a fretful mind will produce sorrow and confusion. Let us, therefore, cherish the former, while we dread the latter.

RULE XVI.—The Prepositions at, to, in, for, from, of, on, upon, by, under, with, &c. are appropriately used after certain words ; such as,

Accuse of; acquit of; adapted to; agreeable to; averse to. Bestow upon; boast or brag of. Call on or for; change for; confide in; conformable to; comply with; consonant to; convergent with, in. Depend upon; derogate from; die of or by; differ from; difficulty in; disapprove of: disappointed in or of; dissent from. Eager in; engaged in; expert in or at. Fall under; free from. Glad of or at. Independent of; insist upon. Join to. Made of; marry to; martyr for. Need of. Observance of. Prejudice against; profit by; provide with. Reconcile to; reduce to; regard to or for; replete with; resemblance to; resolve on. Swerve from. Taste<sup>2</sup> for or of; think of or on; true to. Upwards of. Wait on or for; worthy<sup>3</sup> of.

OBS.—The above words are followed by these prepositions only in particular cases; they often take other prepositions after them, and sometimes none at all, in different expressions; thus, for example, Fall in, to concur, to comply. Fall out, to happen. Fall upon, to attack. Fall to, to begin, or apply eagerly. Bestow thy goods to feed the poor.

1. The same preposition that follows the adjective or verb, &c. generally follows the word which is derived from it; as, Agreeable to, agreeably to, comply with, compliance with.

2. Taste for—is a liking for a thing; and Taste of—is a due sense of what a thing is; as, He has a taste for music. She has had no real taste of the beauties of literature.

3. Worthy is used with or without of; as, worthy of observation, or worthy observation.

Correct the following sentences by Rule 16th.

He accused the ministers for betraying the Dutch. Agreeable with the sacred text. A freeholder is bred with an aversion from subjection. It was well adapted for his capacity. He acquitted me from any imputation. They boast in their great wealth. He has bestowed his favours to the most deserving persons. I called<sup>1</sup> for our minister. In compliance to your request. Is it consonant with our nature? Conformable with the rules of our society. I cannot freely confide on such a wavering person. It is impossible to comply to such extravagant measures. He is conversant<sup>2</sup> with that science. He has undergone a change to the better. Call at Peter to go with us. He is very averse<sup>3</sup> from ever.

1. Call for, is to demand, to require. Call on, is to pay a short visit; as,
While you call on him, I will call for a drink.

2. We say, conversant with men in things.

3. Averse and aversion require to after them rather than from, but both are sometimes used.

He was totally dependent of the papal crown. He died of the sword. That is no discouragement for the author. I differ entirely to your opinion. He died by a fever. Your relying on my counsel will not derogate in the least to your reputation. He finds a difficulty of making the two ends meet. I dissent with that descision. I have been sadly disappointed<sup>1</sup> of the pleasure which I had expected from his company. He was eager of pursuing that course. I am engaged with writing. Expert for counting. Such circumstances as fell into our observation. He is free out of censure. I am very glad<sup>2</sup> at your company. He is quite independent on your assistance. We must insist for our rights and liberty. Join this piece on that.

She was married on a pensioner. That candlestick is made with brass. Stephen died a martyr to the Christian religion. We have need for solid wisdom. A strict observance after times and manners. Thy prejudice to my method. You can profit very little with that. I provided them by money. Is he now reconciled with his master? Reduce one pound in pence. He had a great regard after his father's advice. The boy has a striking resemblance with his uncle. That book is replete in errors. He is resolved of going to the Persian court. Never swerve out of the path of virtue. He seems to have a taste of drawing. I never thought for that. I cannot wait of you. It is worthy for observation.

1. We are disappointed of a thing when we do not get it; and disappointed in it when we have it, and find that it does not come up to our expectations.

2. Glad at when something befalls another, is perhaps more proper, and glad of when something which is the cause of gladness, is obtained.

RULE XVII.—An ellipsis or omission of some words in a sentence is frequently admitted ; thus,

Instead of saying, He was a learned man, he was a wise man, and he was a good man, we say, He was a learned, wise, and good man.

Complex sentences are frequently more or less elliptical, and it is a profitable exercise for the pupil to supply the words understood in elliptical expressions in reading, parsing, or construing.

RULE XVIII.—An ellipses is not allowable when it would obscure the sentence, weaken its force, or be attended with an impropriety of speech ; for example,

There is a time to be born, to die, to plant, and to pluck up that is planted ; should be, There is a time to be born and a time to die, a time to plant and a time to pluck up that which is planted.

1. The auxiliary verbs are frequently omitted and frequently used alone in compound tenses ; as, I can read and write ; that is, I can read and I can write. I have dined, but you have not, i.e. you have not dined.

Correct—(17)—A house and a garden. My pen and my ink. The light of the sun and the light of the moon. The laws of God and the laws of man. These counsels are the dictates of virtue and the dictates of true honour. He has an affectionate brother and an affectionate sister. Avarice and cunning may acquire an estate, but avarice and cunning cannot gain friends. His crimes had brought him into extreme distress and extreme perplexity. By presumption and by vanity we provoke enmity and we incur contempt. Benevolence is strengthened by virtue and is confirmed by principle. The diligent scholar deserves to be encouraged, to be assisted, and to be applauded. We often commend imprudently as well as censure imprudently. I was often in Edinburgh and in Glasgow.

1. He should come at the proper hour and should meet me at the office. She tells the truth, but thou dost not tell it. The temper of him who is always in the bustle of the world will be often ruffled and will be often disturbed. We answered but they did not answer.

☞ The pupil being thus far advanced should be able to parse and construe at sight. The following verse is construed by way of example, before he proceeds to correct the Promiscuous Exercises on the Rules of Syntax.

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herd winds slowly o'er the lea,
The ploughman homeward plods his weary way,
And leaves the world to darkness and to me.—Gray.

The curfew, - The is used before nouns in both numbers.

Curfew tolls, - A verb must be always of the same number and person with its subject or nominative.

Tolls knell, - A transitive verb governs its object in the objective case.

The knell, - The is used before nouns in both numbers.

Of days, - Prepositions govern their object in the obj. case.

Parting day, - Every adjective belongs to a noun expressed or understood.

The lowing herd, When the noun, limited by the article, is qualified by an adjective, the article is placed before the adjective.

Herd winds, - A verb must be always of the, &c.

- Winds slowly,* Adverbs are generally placed before adjectives, and usually after verbs, &c.
- Over lea,* - Prepositions govern their objects in, &c.
- The ploughman,* The is used before nouns in, &c.
- Homeward plods,* The adverb is here, as is often the case, placed before the verb.
- Ploughman plods,* A verb must be always of the, &c.
- Plods way, or* A transitive verb governs its, &c.
- on* way,* - Prepositions govern their object in the obj., on being understood after plods.
- His way,* - When two nouns, or a noun and a pronoun, are used to denote the possessor and the thing possessed, the name of the owner is put in the possessive case.
- Weary way,* - Every adjective belongs to a noun, &c.
- Plods and leaves,* Conjunctions connect verbs in the same mood and tense.
- Leaves world,* A transitive verb governs, &c.
- The world,* - The is used before nouns in both, &c.
- To darkness,* - Prep. govern their object in the, &c.
- Darkness and me,* Conjunctions connect nouns and pronouns in the same case.

The possessive pronouns my, thy, his, her, our, &c. stand for nouns in the possessive case, and must be construed as such. His is equal to John's, and her to Ann's, and their to the men's, in the following sentences:—John lost his hat; i.e. John lost John's hat. Ann hurt her foot; i.e. Ann hurt Ann's foot. The men bowed their heads; i.e. the men bowed the men's heads. The tree is lofty, and its branches are beautiful; i.e. the tree's branches.

PROMISCUOUS EXERCISES ON THE RULES OF SYNTAX.

The pupil should quote the rule for each correction.

These bees is very busy. That boy reads admirable.
The dog knows her master. Thou can write well.
Will thou not give me an orange? I saw eight ox in a waggon.
My father bade me to go home. The word Caledonia† signify nation of the woods. Him and I

I found a wren nest and eight eggs in her. Neither man nor woman were present. Where are you going ? From whence come these strangers ?

That boy he is indolent. The master taught him and I to read. It was her that gave me the apple. This pear is more sweeter than that one. I rejoice hear of your welfare. After leaving me, he went to see they. Our committee was unanimous upon that point. The shepherds and the nymphs was seen.

Honour and shame from no condition rise,

Act well your part, there all the honour lie.

Fortune in men have some small difference made,

One flaunt in rags, one flutter in brocade.

Who broke the glass ? Me. Whose pen is that ? Mine's. Who told you that ? Them. This pair of snuffers are too large. I saw them persons yesterday. The amount of the debt are a million of pounds sterling.

Every person who instruct others should be properly taught themselves. Neither flatter or contemn the rich. There is in this seminary many diligent pupils. If you would engage more cheerful in your task, you might perform it the easier. My knife is so sharp as yours. As the stars as thy seed shall be. Was it him that told you of the accident ? No, it was her. A prudent wife she shall be blessed. This picture of the king's does not resemble him much. They that honour me I will honour. Modesty seldom resides in a breast not enriched with more nobler virtues. Prudence and moderation is productive of peace, and confers great comfort upon him who possess it. Whom did he strike ? I. The winter has not been as severe as we expected it to be. There is principles in man who ever incline him to feel that he is a dependant creature. We always should prefer our duty to our pleasure. There cannot be nothing more hurtful to youth than bad example.

Two principles in human nature reigns,—
Self-love to urge, and Reason to restrain ;
Nor that a good, nor this a bad we call,
Each works its end, to move or govern all.

A lampoon or a satire does not carry in them robbery or murder.

For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man has, and not according to that he has not.

Having thus began to throw off the restraint of reason, he soon was hurried into deplorable excesses.

Power and superiority is so flattering and delightful, that scarcely any virtue is so cautious, or any prudence so timorous, as to decline it.

To be wise in our own eyes, to be wise in the opinion of the world, and to be wise in the sight of our Creator, is three different things.

Each has their own faults, and every one should endeavour to correct their own failings.

I am a man who approves of wholesome discipline, and who recommend it to others, but I am not a person who promotes severity, or who object to mild treatment.

Many would exchange gladly their honours and riches for that more quieter and humbler station which thou art dissatisfied with.

Mrs Solo always behaved with great severity to her maids, and if any one of them were negligent of their duty, or made a slip in their conduct, nothing would satisfy her but bury the poor girls alive.

Christ applauded the liberality of the poor widow who he had seen casting her two mites into the treasury. Who could be happier than her which merited such applause ?

Be solicitous to aid such deserving persons who appear to be destitute of friends.

If we consult the improvement of mind, or the health of body, it is well known exercise is the great instrument for promoting both.

There is not a creature that moves, nor a vegetable that grow, but what, when minutely examined, furnish materials of pious admiration.

As soon as the sense of a Supreme Being is lost, so soon the great check is taken off which keep under restraint the passions of men. Mean desires, low pleasures takes place of the greater and the nobler sentiments which reason and religion inspires.

The most ignorant and the most savage tribes of men when they have looked round on the earth and on the heavens, could not avoid ascribing His origin to some invisible designing cause, and felt a desire to adore their Creator.

STYLE.

Grammatical Style is the peculiar mode of expressing our thoughts or ideas by language.

The essential qualities of Style are, Perspicuity, Purity, Propriety, and Precision.

Perspicuity is the fundamental quality of Style ; it signifies a clear and connected view of the subject spoken or written, so as to become at once easily understood by the hearer or reader.

Purity of Style, demands the use of classical words,*

STAIL.

Tha Snasorachd Stàile, ag iarraidh fhocal ùghdarail,

* Ancient and modern speakers and writers of high literary attainments and rank, whose works form the Classics, or "learned books," are our authority for classical or elegant words ; but such authority, although it is the best we can produce, ought not to extend so far as to preclude improvement. Seeing the English language now so much enlarged and improved, by drawing copiously on sound construction, and a proper application of the idiom of the language spoken or written.

Propriety of Style, demands the selection of such words as are best adapted to convey the idea which the speaker or writer intends to express.

Precision of Style, demands that neither more nor less words be used than the sense requires.

As the limits of this work will not admit of a very extensive exercise on Style, the following instances of improper expressions, which are of daily occurrence, are given to be corrected by the learner.

other languages, there can be no just reason to spurn at the borrowing of a word from one language to enrich another, when circumstances require it. The French words, depôt, etiquette, eclat, soiree, &c. and the Latin words, aqua, dux, genus, idem, &c. are now used by our literati as popular English words; however, we are not warranted in encouraging the use of foreign words in public speaking or writing till they are thoroughly naturalized.

* The word or words following the dash (—) are the proper ones.

R I A L T A C H A D H   G A E L I G.

CONSTRUCTION.

CONCORD.—Article and Noun.

RULE 1. — The article agrees with its noun in number, gender, case, and form; as,

The house,      an tigh
 The girl,        a' chaileag
 The dogs,        na cōin

1. The article is generally pre-fixed in Gaelic, (but not in English) to the names of continental countries, to the names of virtues, vices, metals, and to a word which stands for a whole species; as,

Italy,      an Eadait.
Truth is better than gold.
Sin brought death into the world.
Man he is mortal.

2. The article follows the interrogatives, co, cia, ciod; thus, Co an taobh? which side? Cia 'n rathad a ghabhas mi? which road shall I take? Ciod an tàirbhe? what profit?

3. The article is used before a noun pointed out by a Demonstrative pronoun; as, An tigh so. Na fir ud.

4. The article is uniformly used before patronymics; as, An Dònullach (the) Macdonald. Am Frisealach (the) Fraser. Na Càimbeulaich, The Campbells.

5. The article is also used before Numerals; as, a' h-aon, a' dhà; a' cheud, an dara.—See Gaelic Ar. R. 1 and 2. Also comp. Gael. Adverbs, p. 185.

CO-RIANACHADH.

CORDADH. — Pùngar agus Ainmear.

RIALT. 1.—Còrdaidh am pùngar ri 'ainmear féin, 'an àireimh, 'an gin, 'an car 'us ann an staid; mar,

The man,      am fear
 The wife's,     na mnà
 Of the tables, nam bòrd

1. Cuirear am pùngar gu cumanta 'sa Ghaelig, (ach ni h-eadh 'sa Bheurla) roimh ainmibh dhùchan mòr-thireil; bhéusan, dhubailcean, mhiotailtean, 'us roimh fhocal a ta ag ainmeachadh na gnè uile; mar,

France,      an Fhràing
 Is fearr an fhirinn na 'n t-òr.
 Thug am peacadh am bàs air an t-saoghal.
An duine tha e bàsmhor.

The pens, an peann.* The wife, an bean. The witness, an fianuis. The oxen, an damh. The branches, an géug. The air, an athar. The rod, an slat. The clock, an uaireadar. The lambs, an uan. The nests, an nead. The trees, an craobh. The wives, an bean. The hammers, an òrd. The speeches, an òraid.

The land of hills, of glens, and of heroes.

The hen's wing. The virgin's head. The raven's beak.

Vines grow in France, in Spain, and in Italy.

Jesus was born in Bethlehem.

The Israelites were led out of Egypt by the hand of the Lord.

Gold is more precious than silver.

Sin is the foe of man.

NOUNS IN APPosition.

RULE 2.—Two or more nouns, signifying the same person or thing, agree in case ; as, King James.

OBS.—Mac (son) is prefixed to a masculine proper name, Nic (daughter) to a feminine ; as, Iain Mac Thomais, John Thomson ; Anna Nic Uilleim, Ann Williamson.—The English wants this nice distinction, for in it both men and women are sons ; as, Peter Johnson, Ann Williamson.

Tír an beann, an gleann, agus an gaisgeach.

Sgiath an cearc. Ceann an òigh. Gob am fitheach.

Tha fionan a' fàs anns Fràing, anns Spàinn, agus anns Eadailt.

'Rugadh Iosa ann Betlehem.

Threòraicheadhan Israelach a-mach ás Eiphit le làimh an Tighearn.

Is e òr is luachmhoire na airgid.

Is e peacadh eascaraid duine.

AINMEARAN A' CO-CHORDADH.

RIALT. 2.—Cordaидh dà ainmear no na's mò na dha a' ciallachadh an aoin phearsa no 'Ni, ann a căr ; mar, Righ Séumas.

* Co-rianaich a' Ghælig gu freagairt do 'n Bheurla anns gach car.

Note.—A simple appellative joined with a proper name takes no article in Gaelic, but a compound does ; as,

Alexander (the) Carpenter.

Hugh (the) Tailor.

Alexander (the) Coppersmith.

RULE 3.—A term describing a person's trade or profession takes the article before it after the full name of the person ; as,

James Grant the Tailor.

Duncan Campbell the Shepherd.

Nòd.—Cha ghabh gairm shin-gilt co-naisgte ri ainmear ceart, pùngar 'sa Ghaelig, ach gabhaidh gairm mlieashta e ; mar, Alastair Saor.

Huistean Taillear.

Alastair an Ceard-umha.

RIALT. 3.—Gabhaidh focal ag ainmeachadh ceàird, no oifig neach, am pùngar roimhe, an déigh ainme làin an neach ; mar, Séumas Grannd an Taillear.

Donnachadh Caimbeul an Cibear.

Note.—An adjective often intervenes between two nouns in apposition ; thus, Séumas ban cibear, Fair James the shepherd ; Anna bheag dhonn a' bhanarach, Little brown Ann the dairymaid.

RULE 4.—A noun in apposition, having the article or a possessive pronoun before it, is put in the nominative, though its correlative noun be in the genitive ; as,

The house of John Macdonald the merchant.

The son of Joseph the carpenter.

The purse of Donald Bain, my partner.

RIALT. 4.—Cuir earain-mear a' co-chòrdadh, leis a phùngar, no riochdar séilbh-each roimhe, anns an ainmeach, ged robh 'ainmear co-dhàimheach anns a' ghinteach ; mar,

Tigh Iain Dhònnullaich an ceannnaiche, (not a' cheannnaiche.)

Mac Ioseiph an saor, (not an t-saoir.)

Sporan Dhònuill Bhàin mo chòmpanach, (not mo chompan-aich.)

Note.—When the former of two plural nouns is governed in the dative, and when the nouns are singular and of the feminine gender, the latter is put in the nominative ; as, “ D'a bhràithribh uile, mic an righ,” (not macaibh.) “ Ri Sàrai a bhean.”

OBS. 1.—Such expressions as, Tigh Iain Dhònnullaich an Ceannnaiche, under Rule 4th, are to be viewed as elliptical, and the ellipsis may be conveniently filled up ; thus, Tigh Iain Dhon- ullaich (neach is e) an ceannaire, or (is e sin ri radh) an ceannaire.

OBS. 2.—The necessity of deviating from the general rule in this part of Gaelic Syntax, to prevent ambiguity, will become at once obvious from the following expression :—Captain Thomas's horse, rendered according to Rule 2d, Each Chaitpein Thomais, which may either signify the horse of the captain of Thomas, (taking Thomais in the genitive, as the captain's place or property, not his name,) or the horse of Thomas's captain. Therefore the more proper mode is, Each Chaitpein Tomas.

Daimh dhonna.
Na daimh dhonna.
Oglach dhileas.
Eòin bheaga.
Do na h-eunaibh* beaga.*

Note 1.—An adjective beginning with d, preceded by a noun ending in n, is not aspirated in either number ; as, Nighean donn, a brown girl, (brunette) ; Coin dubha, black dogs.

Note 2.—An adjective referring to two or more nouns, takes the gender of the noun next it ; as,

A white mare, and a white horse,    Làr agus each bànn.
A white horse, and a white mare,    Each agus làr bhànn.

- Ochd* fir dhéug
- Ceithir* pùinnd thar fhichead†

* The nouns la or latha, bliadhna, bolla, sgillinn, ceud, and mile, &c. are commonly used in the singular, with numerals requiring the plural ; as, seachd là, eig bliadhna, sea sgillinn, ochd ceud, deich mile ; but the plural of la is joined with tri, naoi, and deich.

† Sometimes ceithir pùinnd fhichead.

OBS.—That the noun must be always placed before déug or dhéug, and also before thar in compound numbers.

RULE 8.—Dà, fichead, céud, mile, muillion, alone or combined with other numerals, do not admit of plural nouns ; as,

Two heads, dà cheann

A hundred cows, ceud bò

Sixty lambs, tri fichead uan

RIALT. 8.—Cha ghabh dà, fichead, céud, mile, muillion, ainnear iomadh leò féin, no co-naisgte ri cùnntaich éile ; mar,

Twenty shillings, fichead tasdan

A thousand men, mile fear

Eighty cups, ceithir fichead còrn

Note 1.—Though “da” takes its noun in the singular, it takes its adjective in the plural ; as, “Dà iasg bheaga,” two small fishes.

Note 2.—In describing measure or extent, the word denoting dimension is followed by air; as,

The house is ten feet high, twelve feet broad, and forty feet long.

Translate—Five pins ; thirteen sheaves ; sixteen pounds ; the eighth mile stone ; the twenty-sixth chapter ; forty herrings ; two wives ; twelve otters ; twenty-two salmon ; two hundred birds ; fifty-nine trees ; a thousand years ; sixty days ; the field is 24 yards long, and 16 broad.

PRONOUNS.

RULE 9.—Personal and possessive pronouns agree in number, gender, and person, with their correlatives, or the nouns for which they stand ; as,

Jane made money, and she put it in the bank.

James wrote three letters, and he sent them to Edinburgh.

John hurt his foot.

RULE 10.—When a pro-

RIOCHDARAN.

Chiùrr Iain a chas.

RIALT. 10.—’Nuair a noun stands for a sentence, or clause of a sentence, it is put in the third person singular, masculine ; as,

Tho' my purse was empty, others did not know of it.

Note.—A collective noun requires a pronoun in the third person plural ; as, “Chuala Iosua toirm an t-sluaigh, an uair a rinn iad gàir,” Joshua heard the noise of the people as they shouted.

RULE 11.—Interrogatives are used before nouns and personal pronouns without the verb bi or is ; and before prepositions which govern them ; as,

Who (is) he ?
Who (are) those fellows ?
Which (is) the first commandment ?
Of whom do you speak ?

RULE 12.—The Demonstratives so and sin, &c. require the article before their nouns in both numbers ; as,

This is the heir
This day is cold
These flies
Yon large ship
Yonder is the new steamer

SUBJECT AND VERB.

RULE 13. A verb is placed before its subject or nominative, and agrees with it in number and person ; as,

I am
He loved
John struck
Did they not prove ?

RULE 14. The nominative is not expressed after a personal termination of a verb ; as,

Let me be Seek ye or you
I would prove
We would not go

1. A question is always answered in Gaelic by the verb and tense which asks it ; as, Am beil d' athair a stigh ? Tha or tha e.* Is your father within ? He is. Yes. An robh sibh 'san eaglais ? Eha, or bha sinn. Were you in church ? We were. Yes. Am bi sibh aig an tigh am màireach ? Bithidh (sinn) or cha bhi (sinn.) Will you be at home to-morrow ? We will be. Yes ; or, We will not. No.

2. When a question is asked by the subjunctive mood, the answer is commonly returned by the speaker in the 2nd or 3rd person of the verb ; as, An óladh tu déoch ? Would you take a drink ? Dh'-óladhb, or cha n-óladhb, instead of, Dh'-ólainn, or cha n-ólainn. Am bitheadh sibh deònach ? Would you be willing ? Bhitheadh, or cha bhitheadh, instead of, Bhitheamaid, or cha bhitheamaid.

And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up ; that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have eternal life.

The mariner's compass is one of the most important discoveries that have ever been made. Before the properties of the loadstone had been developed, sailors had no means of steering their ships from country to country over the wide ocean ;— they were always obliged to keep in sight of land, for fear of going astray, or falling upon rocks or shallows.

We are chiefly indebted to the compass, and the art of printing, for the amount of useful knowledge which has been opened up and cultivated among us.

GOVERNMENT OF NOUNS.

RULE 16. When two or more nouns are used to denote the possessor and the thing possessed, the name of the possessor is governed in the genitive ; as,

A man's head.

Agus mar tog Maois suas an nathair, anns an fàsach is ann mar sin is éigin do Mac an duine bi air a tog suas; chum 'us ge b'e neach a creid ann e, nach sgrios e, ach gu'm bi an beatha siorrhuidh aige.

Tir nam beann.

Note 1. The owner is always put last, except in expressions like the following, Fear Chùillodair, The Laird or Taxman of Culloden, Bean Bhailaneilich, The Lady or Rentrix of Balanéilich.

Note 2. When two definite nouns in English are turned into Gaelic, the article is prefixed only to the noun governed in the genitive; as, The side of the sea, Taobh na mara, (not an taobh.)

RULE 17. When three nouns are combined, of which the second and third are in the genitive, in English, the last only is generally put in the genitive in Gaelic; as,

The fruit of the trees of the garden.

The sister of the clergyman's wife.

RULE 18. Masculine proper names, governed by a noun, are for the most part aspirated,* but feminine ones, and a noun representing one of a species, are usually plain; as,

James's knife.

Janet's gown.

RIALT. 17. 'Nuair tha tri ainmearan co-naisgte, de am beil an dara 'san treas 'sa ghinteach 'am Beurla cha tric a chuirear, ach am fear deireannach 'na aonar 'sa ghinteach 'sa Ghælig; mar,

CUNNTAICH.

* Hence the common imprecation, “ Marbhaisg ort,” thy death-shroud on thee; death to you; used among the Scotch and Irish Celts.

After aon, a noun beginning with d, s, or t, is plain ; as, aon dòrn, aon sùil, aon tòll.

2. *Dà** governs its noun in the dative singular, and if its noun be followed by an adjective, the adjective is put in the nominative singular feminine ; as, dà chruaich, two stacks ; dà mhnaoi, two wives ; dà fhearr, two men. Dà bhonnach bheag, two small cakes. Dà chraoibh chianail, two solitary trees.—OSSIAN.

3. The adjective after a simple preposition is put in the dative singular ; as, Do dhà mhnaoi òig, for two young wives. Anns an dà chuaich bhig, in the two small cups. Air dà phùnn Shasunach, for two pounds sterling.

RULE 21.—An adjective of plenty governs the genitive, and an adjective of scarcity requires de after it ; as,

Full of seed.

Scarce of money.

RIALT. 21.—Spreigidh buadhar pailieis an ginteach, agus gabhaidh buadhar gainneid de 'na dhéigh ; mar, Làn sìl.

Gànn de'n airgid.

Both require de before the article ; as, làn de'n or, full of (the) gold ; falamh de'n tì, void of (the) tea.

Adjectives of Plenty—such as, làn, buidheach, mòran, paitl, sgith, sàsaichte, sultmhor, lionmhor, tuille, &c.

Of Scarcity—such as, gànn, falamh, lom, fànn, bochd.

RULE 22.—Adjectives signifying affection of the mind, profit, likeness, proximity, or kindness, &c. and their opposites, require air, aig, ri, or do ; as,

Desirous of honour.

Expert at the pen.

Of Profit—math, féumail, buannachail, tàrbhach, coromach, sgileil, eòlach, teoma, seòlta, tapaidh, bàigheil, buailteach.

Of Likeness—amhuil, coslach, cosmhàil, ionann, co-ionann, &c.

Of Proximity—fagus, fogus, dlùth.

Of Kindness—bàigheil, blàth, càirdeil, caomh, caomhail, caoin-eil, dàimheil, fàbharach, fiùghantach, math, tlusail, &c.

RULE 23.—Adjectives signifying volition or readiness, and their opposites, govern the infinitive ; as,

Willing to learn.

Ready to strike thee.

RULE 24.—The Comparative degree of adjectives, with the Verb Bi, requires na's or ni's* immediately before it, and na after it when objects are compared; as,

My knife is sharper than your knife.

They are sweeter than the honey.

1. The Comparative, with the Verb Is, takes only na after the first object; as, Is fearr gliocas na 'n t-òr, wisdom is better than gold. Bu luaithe iad na iolairean, they were swifter than eagles.

2. The English Comparative preceded by the definite article, is rendered in Gaelic by mar, is, and ann; thus, mar is luaithe 's ann is fearr, the sooner the better; mar is sine 's ann is miosa.

Na's and ni's drop the 's before bu or b'; as, Bha iad na bu ghile, they were whiter. Bha e ni b' eòlaiche, he was more skilful; hence there is reason to conclude that 's after na and ni is from the verb is, seeing bu, its past rejects it.

Peter is the elder of the two.
Solomon was the wisest of the sons of men.

Sarah is the prettiest of them all.

POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

RULE 26.—The possessives mo, do, and a,* (his or its,) aspirate their nouns ; as,

My eye, Mo shùil. Thy foot, Do chas. His pen, A pheann.

Mo and do drop the o before a vowel, and a before a vowel or f aspirated, or, between two vowels, is cut out altogether and an apostrophe (') inserted in its place ; as, M' ūbh, my egg ; d' àm, thy time; 'athair, his father, (not, a athair) ; 'fhuil, his blood, (not, a fhuil) ; fo 'òrdaig, under his thumb.

1. After ar, bhur or 'ur, a, (her or its,) and an or am (their), the noun or word combined with them is plain ; as,

Our friend, Ar caraid.

Her eye, A sùil.

Her zeal, A dealas.

1. An déigh ar, bhur no 'ur, a, agus an no am, tha an tainmear, no 'm focal a ta naisgte riù lòm ; mar,

Your house, Bhur tigh.

Their love, An gaol.

Their pride, Am mòr-chùis.

2. Ar, bhur or 'ur, take n- (hyphen) between them and a word beginning with a vowel, and a (her or its) takes h- ; as, Ar n-athair, our father ; bhur or 'ur n-onoir, your honour ; a h-éideadh her dress.

3. A possessive pronoun joined with the name of the owner, excludes the article from the name of the object possessed ; as, obair mo làimhe, (the) work of my hand, (not an obair) ; falt a chinn, (the) hair of his head, (not am falt.)

EXERCISES.

My finger, my toe, our children, thy tongue, his shoes, her gown, your faith, their (m.) ears, their (f.) hope, my hat, his horse, my father, his ring, thy pipe, your country, her shop.

CLEACHDADH.

Mo meur, mo ordag, ar chlann, do teanga, a bròg, a ghùn, bhur chreidimh, an chluas, an dhochas, mo ad, a each, mo athair, a fàine, do piob-sa, bhur thir-se, a bhùth-sa.

* These possessives aspirate adjectives and infinitives also.—See Rule 32—1.

3. The point of thy finger.
The days of their trial.

P Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth, and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, and walk in the ways of thine heart and the sight of thine eyes; but know that for all these things thy Creator will bring thee into judgment.

VERB AND ITS OBJECT.

RULE 27.—A transitive verb governs its object after it in the nominative* or objective case ; as,

I wrote a letter.
He struck the door.
They did not lift the stones.

Many active and neuter verbs require a preposition after them to make their sense complete ; such as, Abair ri, buail air, cuir air, dean do, éisd ri, feith ri, gairm air, iarr air, leig le, labhair ri, tagair ri, thoir do, tog air, &c.

RULE 28.—Verbs of giving and telling, or such as affect two objects, require a preposition, either simple or compounded, before the object of the benefit ; as,

Give James a drink.
He told me a story.

RULE 29.—Verbs re-

3. An ceann do meur.
An là an deuchainn.

P Dean gairdeachas duine òg ann do òige, agus dean do cridhe subhach thu ann an là do òige, agus siubhail ann an slighe do cridhe agus ann an sealladh do sùil ; ach bi fios agam gu'n thoir do Chruidhear chum breitheanas thu, airson an ni so uile.

GNIOMHAR 'SA CHUSPAIR.

RIALT. 27.—Spreigidh gniomhar asdolach a' chuspair 'na dhéigh, anns a' char ainmeach, no chusparrach ; mar,
Scriobh mi litir.
Bhuail e an dorus.
Cha do thog iad na clachan.

RIALT. 28.—Gabhaidh gniomharan toirte agus innsidh, no 'leithid 'sa bheanas ri dà chuspair, roimhear singilt, no measgta roimh chuspair na buannachd ; mar,

Thoir deòch do Shéumas.

RIALT. 29.—Gabhaidh

* We say nominative case, because the Gaelic noun has no objective form differing from the nominative.

quiring a preposition after them in the active voice, require it also in the passive ; as,

Drink was given to James.

Note.—The passive form of active and neuter verbs is often followed by le, either simple or compounded, expressive of the agent or instrument, as,

The world (globe) is established by Him.

Shocruicheadh leis an cruinne-cé.

RULE 30.—Bu (was) the past of the defective verb Is, aspirates a consonant next it, except d and t, and u in bu is elided before a vowel or f aspirated ; as,

Great was his praise.
Intense was his zeal.
His desire was bad.
Cold was the day.

RULE 31.—One verb governs another in the infinitive mood ; as,

We shall go to learn.
They are going to strike.

1. Auxiliary Verbs and Verbs requiring a preposition after them, govern the infinitive in its plain form ; as,

Féumaidh sinn pasgadh,      We must fold.
Abair ri Tomas bualadh,      Tell Thomas to strike.

2. When its object, whether a noun or a pronoun, precedes the infinitive, it is aspirated, and the object is followed by a (do) ; as,

Féumar an t-aodach a phasgadh,      The clothes must be folded.
Is urrainn e mis' a chiùrradh,      He can hurt me.

* The a or a dh- before the infinitive is a euphonic form of the preposition do. A is elided after a vowel, and an ascair (') put in its place ; as, thainig mi 'phaigeadh. Chaidh ise 'dh-innseadh.

gniomharan a dh-fheumas roimhear 'nan déigh 'sa ghuth spreigeach, e anns a ghuth fhulangach mar an céudna ; mar, Thugadh deòch do Shéumas.

RIALT. 30.—Séidichidh bu, seachadail a' ghniomhair ghaoideich Is, cònnrag dlú dha, ach d, 'us t; agus tilgear an litir u 'mach á bu, roimh fhuaimraig, no f seidichte ; mar,

Bu mhòr a chliù.
Bu dian 'éud.
B' ole a mhiann.
B'fhuair an là.

RIALT. 31.—Spreigidh aon ghniomhar, gniomhar éile 'sa mhodh fheartach ; mar,

Théid sinn a dh'-ionnsachadh.*
Tha iad a dol a bhualadh.*

OBS.—A Possessive pronoun before the infinitive must be translated into English by a personal; as, Theab e mo bhualadh. He almost struck ME.

3.—Verbs of motion govern a regular infinitive; as, “ Chaidh iad sios a cheannach sìl.” “ Thainig mise as a dh-innseadh dhuit.”

4. The infinitive sometimes takes the preposition chum, gu, gus, or ri between it and the governing verb; as, Thainig mi *chum d'*fhaicinn, I came to see thee, or, in order to see thee. Tha iad gu falbh, they are to depart. Chaidh e g 'am pilleadh. Gus an siol a chur, to sow the seed. Bha agam ri dol suas, I had to go up.

RULE 32.—The infinitive governs its object placed before it in the nominative case, and after it in the genitive; as,

To fold the clothes,      {
Breaking bread,

RIALT 32.—Spreigidh am feartach a chuspair roimhe 'sa char ainmeach agus 'na dhéigh 'sa ghainteach ; mar,

An t-aodach a phasgadh.

1. When the object is expressed by a possessive pronoun, it is always placed before the infinitive, and Englished by a corresponding personal; as, Is urrainn mi do phraigheadh, I can pay you. Faodar ar ciùrradh, we may be hurt. And emphatically; Is urrainn mi do phraigheadh-sa.

2. When it is necessary to express the object pointedly and with emphasis, the emphatic form of the personal pronoun is generally used; as, Féumaidh tu mise 'phraigheadh, you must pay me. Faodar thusa 'us mise 'chiùrradh le sin, You and I may be hurt by that.

IMPERFECT PARTICIPLE OR INFINITIVE.*

The infinitive, preceded by the preposition AG, forms the imperfect participle in Gaelic.

RULE 1. The Imperfect Participle governs its object placed after it in the genitive; as, Ag iarraidh bidh,

* The part of the Gaelic verb commonly called the infinitive, such as bualadh, briseadh, togail, &c. is a noun expressive of the verbal action or state; but as the corresponding English, striking, breaking, lifting, &c. are also nouns in many respects, and yet retain the name participle, because they partake of the nature and effect of strike, break, and lift, from which they are derived. We may, on the same principle, and on the score of convenience, without the least injury, apply the name participle to bualadh, briseadh, togail, and the like, without the sign ag, just as we call the root of the English verb strike, &c. the infinitive without its sign To. See Eng. Cons. Rule 14 and 15.

seeking food. A' casgadh féirge, restraining anger. A' rusgadh nan craobh, peeling the trees.

2. The Imperfect Participle, or infinitive,* governs its noun in the nominative, when that noun governs another in the genitive; as, A' bualadh clag na h-eaglais, ringing the church bell, (not cluig.)

The infinitive, used as a noun, governs and is governed like a noun.

VARIATIONS OF " AG."

3. Ag, of the Imperfect Participle, drops the g between two consonants; as, Tha iad a' cosgadh.

Ag, drops the a between two vowels; as, Tha mi 'g iarraigdh.

Ag, with a consonant before it and a vowel after it, remains entire; as, Tha na fir ag iarraigdh, the men are seeking.

Ag, with a vowel before it and a consonant after it, is suppressed altogether, and its place supplied with an ascair, ('); as, Tha mi 'casgadh.

4. Ag drops the a before the possessives mo, do, a, ar, and am or an, placed between it and the infinitive; and in this position mo and do become am and ad; as, Tha e 'g am iarraigdh, he is seeking me. Tha iad 'g am mholadh, they are praising me. Tha sinn 'g ad iarraigdh. Bha sinn 'g ad mholadh. Am beil sibh 'g a iarraigdh? 'g a mholadh, 'g ar n-iarraigdh, 'g ar moladh, 'g an iarraigdh, 'g am moladh, &c. The preposition ag, or its representative 'g and the pronoun are often, but improperly united in the written language; thus, 'gam 'gad'ga 'gar 'gur 'gam 'gan.

5. A of ag is often transposed before mo, do, and bhur, in which case mo and do are unchanged; as, Tha e ga mo threòrachadh, he is leading me. Tha mi ga do phàisteadh, I baptise, or am baptising thee. *Bha iad ga bhur** seòladh, they were directing you.

OF ADVERBS.

RULE 33.—The simple Adverbs, cha, do, fior or fir, gle, ro, and ni, nior or nar, precede and aspirate the words which they modify ; as,

Cha bhual mi ; do bhriseadh leis ; fior cheart ; gle bheag ; ro mhòr ; nior thuig ar sinnsear.

1. Cha seldom aspirates d or t ; as, cha dean e ; cha tig mi.
2. Cha requires n- before a vowel or f aspirated, and ni requires h- before a vowel, and m- before a labial ; as, Cha n-òl mi, I shall not drink ; cha n-fhiach e, it is not worth ; ni h-eagal leam, I do not fear ; ni m-faigheam.

OF PREPOSITIONS.

RULE 34. The simple Prepositions, aig, air, ann, &c. govern the dative ; as,

At the house (at home)

At my foot

On green pastures

Cha fhuilear* duit dà tasdan 'san (anns an) là.

'ROIMHEARAN.

RIALT 34. Spreigidh na Roimhearan aig, air, ann, &c. an doirteach ; mar,

Aig an tigh

Aig mo chois

Air cluainibh glasa.

Air sometimes aspirates its noun ; as, air bharraibh nan tonn, on the tops of the waves. Air thalamh, on earth.

1. Bhàrr and chum, govern the genitive ; as, Bharr an rathaid, off the way. Chum bàis, unto death.

2. Gus and mar govern a noun definite in the nominative ; as, Gus a' chrioch, to the end. Mar a' ghrian, like the sun.

3. Eadar and seach, govern a noun definite, or indefinite in the nominative ; as,

Between the mouth and the dish

Between a man and a wife

Do not go past the knoll

4. Eadar signifying both, aspirates its noun or adjective ; as,

Both lads and lasses

Both great and small

5. The prepositions de, do, fo, mar, mu, o, roimh, tre, troi, or troimh, aspirate a noun singular, definite or indefinite, ex-

3. Spreigidh eadar agus seach, ainmear cinnteach, no neo-chinn-teach anns an ainmeach ; mar,

Eadar am béal 's an gogan •

Eadar fear agus bean

4. Séidichidh eadar, a' ciall-achadh araon, ainmear no 'bhua-dhar ; mar,

Edar ghillean agus chaileagan

Eadar bheag 'us mhòr.

5. Séidichidh na roimhearan de, do, fo, mar, mu, o, roimh, tre, troi, no troimh, ainmear aonar, cinnteach no neo-chinn-teach,

* Fuilear or uilear (uile leòr) signifies too much or too many, enough, sufficiency; as, Cha n-fhuilear dhuit dà thasdan 'san là. Two shillings a-day will not be too much for you; that is, You will need two shillings a day. Fhuair mi m' fhuilear, I got enough, I got my sufficiency.

Fuilear is used to express necessity, need, or obligation, and forms a composite verb, which is Englished by must, need, or require ; as, Cha n-fhuilear dhuibh a bhi cinnteach 's sin, you MUST be sure of that. Cha n-fhuilear dha pùnn d' éile, he will NEED another pound. Cha b' fhuilear dhoibh tighinn aig aoin uair, they would REQUIRE to come at one o'clock. Cha n-fhuilear, is rendered affirmatively, and Is uilear, negatively in English ; thus, Cha n-fhuilear dha tasdan air an tunnaig, he will require a shilling for the duck. Is uilear dha, he does not; or, it (that price) is too much for him. Sarcastically ; as, Cha b' fhuilear leam, gu dearbh, ach brògan sioda dhut sa !

cept a definite beginning with d, s, or t; as,

De cheò, of mist,
Do chibear, to a shepherd,

Fo bhòrd, under a table,
Mar chraoibh, like a tree,
Mu phàirt, about a part,
O mhòd, from a court,
Roimh phéilleir, before a bullet,

Troimh an téine, through the fire,

Fa and gun aspirate a noun without the article only; as, Fa dheireadh, at last; gun cheann, without a head.

De and do take dh- between them and a vowel or f aspirated; as,

A piece of bread,
To John,
A pound of powder,

7. *De** and do are often converted into a; as,

A pound of fresh butter,
I am going to America,

A or dh- is sometimes elided, and often in rapid speaking, no trace of the prepositions is expressed before the aspirated noun; as,

Chaidh e dh-Inbhernis,
Théid e 'Dhunédin,

8. The Preposition ann, combined with a possessive pronoun, is always contracted and united therewith, and Englished by the indefinite article; thus, ach cinnteach a toiseachadh le d, s, no t; mar,

De 'n cheò, of the mist.
Do 'n chibear, to the shepherd.

Fo 'n bhòrd, under the table.
Mar a' chraobh, like the tree.
Mu'n phàirt, about the part.
O 'n mhòd, from the court.
Roimh an phéilleir, before the bullet.

Do 'n duine, to the man.

6. Gabhaidh de agus do, dh-eadar iad agus fuaimrag, no f seidichte; mar,

Mir de dh-aran.
Do dh-Iain.
Pùnn de dh-fhùdair.

Pùnn a dh-ìm ùr.
Tha mi dol a dh-America.

He went to Inverness.
He will go to Edinburgh.

8. Tha an Roimhear ann, naisgte ri riochdar séilbheach a ghnà giorraichte, agus iar aonadh ris, 'us iar a chur 'am Beurla leis a' phùngar neo-chinnteach; mar so,

* De, of, is often confounded with do, to or for, and it is strange to see how tenacious some Gaelic writers are of using do instead of de, when it is perfectly evident that the meaning of the one is quite the contrary of the other; as, Thoir mir do Sheumas, give a piece to James. An gabh thu roinn dhe sin? will you take a share of that? Bheir mi a' ghlas de 'n dorus, I will take the lock OFF the door. Thug mi a'n ceann de m' òrdaig, I took the head OFF my thumb. Chuir e dheth a bhreacan, he put off(him) his plaid. Now, if do be used in these expressions instead of de, the sense is reversed or destroyed.

13. *A,* gu, le, ri,†* are used before consonants, and by ascribing s to each, they become as, gus,‡ leis, ris, which are used before the article and relatives; as, á Tuath, from (the) North; gu bás, unto death; le peann, with a pen; ri bualadh, thrashing. As an rathad, out of the way; gus an t-sräid, to the street. An taobh leis am beil mi, the side with which I am; sin duine ris nach do labhair mi riamh, that is a man to whom I never spoke.

EXERCISES.

At the window. To a wife. On my right ear. To the men. Without bread. At times. Under the hen. In a big stack. Before your eyes. With a smart breeze.

About my wig. From thy kind hand.

Though I am scarce of wealth, my mind is always happy with the little things which have been bestowed on me.

The heart of the wicked (man) is like a troubled fountain.

A wise and pious man is like a streaming star, imparting a portion of light to the dark world.

1. She weaned the child, (put it off the breast.)

Come ye to the feast.

1. Cuir i an leanabh bhàrr an cioch.

Thig chum an féisd.

* Gu used before an adjective to change it into a compound adverb, requires h before an initial vowel; as, gu h-ealaithn, quickly; gu h-òrdail, orderly.

† Ri, to prevent a hiatus, commonly drops the i before the possessives a, ar, ur, am, or an, &c. and in this state it is harshly pronounced ra by some speakers, running the fragment of the preposition into the pronoun, and pronouncing them as one word. Thus, r'a cheann, to his head; r'a guth, to her voice; r' ar ceannu, r' am bùinn, to their soles; for, ri a cheann, ri a guth, &c.

‡ As and gus are used before the possessive pronouns; as, as mo shealleadh, out of my sight; gus ar milleadh, to destroy us.

2. The fair nymph came to the well, she stood on its brink, she sung like the mavis on a tree, her garment shining as the moon on the heath.

5. To the master. To a town. In sorrow. Under the table. About the maiden's head. There is a halo round the moon. He gave me a part of the straw.

Like a round goblet. Give us a tune from the big bagpipe. From the top of thy head to the sole of thy foot.

To the man. Under the oak tree. From wave to wave. As a high tower. Through the little door. Like a hero. From the earth. A grain of mustard seed. Without beauty.

6. Give Ann a piece. A lump of gold. A pound of flesh.

7. When the priests blew the seven trumpets of ram's horns, the city of Jericho fell flat to the ground.

I am going to Fort William. They went to Ireland.

8. I am a shepherd with Mr Ross. Wast thou long a farmer? He was a miller for The Chisholm. We

2. Thig an ainnir bà, gus an tobar, seas i air a bruach, séinn i mar an smeòraich air crann, a trusgan dealraig mar an gheallaich air an fraoch.

5. Do am maighstear. Do baile. Fo bròn. Fo am bòrd. Mu ceann an òigh. Bi roth mu an gealach. Thoir do mi pàirt de an fodar.

Mar cuach cruinn. Thoir do mi ceòl o an piob mòr. O mullach do ceann gu bhonn do cas.

Do an dhuine. Fo an dharag. O tonn gu thonn. Mar tùr àrd. Troimh an dhorus beag. Mar sònna. O an thalamh. Grainne de siol-mustard. Gun maise.

6. Thoir mir do Anna. Meall de òr. Pùnnnd de feòil.

7. 'Nuair a séid an sagart an seachd trompaid do adharc reithe, tuit baile Iericho sios gus an làr.

Bi dol do Ionarlòchaidh. Rach e do Eirinn.

8. Bi ann mo cibear aig Mr Rös. Bi tu fad ann do tuathanach. Bi e ann a muillear aig an t-Siosalach.

shall be servants for the king. Are you good scholars? These men are not hypocrites.

9. The blessing of God is often in a small cottage. English is generally spoken in large towns, and Gaelic in Highland counties and glens.

10. There are small and large fishes in the sea. Seed was sown in the fields.

This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

RULE 35. — Compound prepositions govern the genitive; as,

Against the pricks.

Without knowledge.

EXERCISES.

Throughout the land.
According to the truth.
Towards the sea.

Above the house. Opposite to the church. Among the long bushes.

For the honest wife.
Against the wind. Without sweet drink.

She went in pursuit of the cow. The fox is among the birds.

Bi sinn ann ar seirbhiseach aig an righ. Bi sibh ann bhur sgoilear math. Cha bi an duine so ann an cealgadair.

9. Bi beannachd Dia gu tric ann tigh beag. Labhair an Beurla gu cumanta ann baile mòr, agus an Gaelig ann dùthaich agus ann gleann Gaélach.

10. Bi iasg beag agus mòr ann an cuan. Cuir siol ann an raon.

Is e so mo Mac gràdhach ann am bi mo mòr-tlachd.

RIALT 35. — Spreigidh roimhearan measgta an gin-teach; mar,

An aghaidh nan dealg.*

A dh-easbhaidh eòlais.*

CLEACHDADH.

Air feadh an tìr. A réir an firinn. A dh-ionnsuidh an muir.

Os ceann an tigh. Mu choinneamh an eaglais. Am measg am preas fad.

Air son a' bhean chòir. An aghaidh an gaoth. A dh-easbhaidh deòch milis.

Rach i air tòir a' bhó. Bi an sionnach am measg an eun.

* The genitive is governed here and in similar cases by the nouns aghaidh and easbhaidh, according to Rule 16th. The compound preposition in Gaelic is commonly made up of a simple one and a noun; as, air-son, for the sake of, on account of, i.e. for.

OF CONJUNCTIONS.

RULE 36.—The Conjunctions agus, 'us* or 's, ach, no, neo, &c. connect like cases and forms of nouns, and like moods and tenses of verbs ; as,

Wine and milk.

Ascending the knolls and heathy hills.

On the seas, or on the fields.

Threaten, but strike not.

I will neither eat nor drink.

1. Cho or co, expressing a comparison, is followed by ri or ris, and sometimes by agus ; or Cho signifying as, requires ri or ris.

Cho signifying so, requires agus ; as,

As dead as a herring.

As black as the raven.

Be so good as to give me a drink.

2. The Adjective after co is aspirated, but after cho† it is plain ; as, Co bhinn ris an uiseig, as sweet as the lark ; cho geal ris an t-sneachd, as white as the snow.

EXERCISES.

36. A cow and a sheep.
The horses and the riders.
The side of the burn and of the bank. Fellow-men

NAISGEARAN.

RIALT 36.—Naisgidh na Naisgearan agus, 'us* no 's, ach, no, neo, caran agus staidean ionann ainmearan, agus modhan 'us timean ionann ghniomharan ; mar, Fion agus bainne.

A' direadh nan cnoc 'us nan sliabh.

Air na cuaintibh, no air na cluaintibh.

Bagair ach na buail.

Cha n-ith 's cha n-òl mi.

1. Gabhaidh cho no co a' nochdadh coimeis ri no ris 'na dhéigh 'us air uairibh agus ; no Féumaidh cho, a' ciallachadh as, ri, no ris.

Féumaidh cho, a ciallachadh so, agus ; mar,

Cho marbh ri sgadan.

Cho dubh ris an flitheach.

Bith cho math agus deòch a thoirt dhomh.

CLEACHDADH.

36. Bó agus chaora. An t-each agus na marcaich. Taobh an ùillt agus an bruach. Fheara agus a

* The proper contractions of agus are 'us or 's, but a's, is, and as, are frequently used ; the latter, however, are scarcely allowable, because they are other three different parts of speech—a relative pronoun, a verb, and a preposition ; as, Is e Séumas a's òige de'n triùir, James is the youngest of the three; as a' bhùth, out of, or from the shop.—For a's, see p. 90.

† This is not a positive rule, for the adjective is sometimes aspirated after cho, and plain after co ; as, “cho chinnteueh ;” “co tréun.” But cho with the adjective plain is certainly preferable, it being fully as agreeable to the ear as the other form, and, moreover, serving to distinguish cho, as, from the interrogative co, who? and the prefix co or comb, together, in many cases.

and brethren. With the thrush or the linnet.

The child was born and baptised last week.

His blood pours, (is pouring) and (it) surrounds the hero's side. His shield is split and broken in the field.—Oss.

1. As old as the hills and the smoke.

Truth is as independent as the ocean, and as pure as gold.

ARRANGEMENT.

POSITION OF THE GAELIC ARTICLE.

RULE 1.—The Article* is always placed before its noun ; as,

An téine. A' ghlas. Na glaise.

1. When the noun limited by the article, is qualified by an antecedent adjective, the article is placed before that adjective ; as,

The old man.

The great shepherd.

2. The article is placed before ordinal numerals ; as,

The first commandment.

The eighth day.

The sixteenth man.

The thirtieth psalm.

bràithribh. Aig an smeòr-aich no aig an buidheag.

Rugadh agus baist an leanabh air an seachdain so 'chaidh.

Tha a fuil a' taomadh agus iadh mu taobh an laoch. Thu a sgiath sgoilte 'us bris air an raon.—Oss.

1. Cho sean mar an cnoc 'us mar an ceò.

Tha an firinn cho saor mar an cuan, 'us cho glan ri an òr.

SUIDHEACHADH.

AIT A' PHUNGAIR GHAEILIG.

RIALT 1.—Cuirear am Pùngar a ghnà roimh 'ainmear fèin ; mar,

Am bàile. Na cinn. Nan tonn.

1. 'Nuair a dheasaichear an t-ainmear, comharrachte a-mach leis a' phungar, le buadhar roïeach, cuirear am pùngar roi'n bhuadhar sin ; mar,

An seann duine.

An t-àrd bhuachaill.

2. Cuirear am pùngar roimh chùnntaich òrdail ; mar,

A' chéud aithn.

An t-ochdamh là.

An seathamh fear déug.

An deicheadamh sàlm thar fhichead.

POSITION OF THE GAELIC
ADJECTIVE.

RULE 2.—The Adjective is generally placed after the noun which it qualifies; as,

Craobh boidheach. Gillean òga. Clachan beaga.

RULE 3.—The Adjective, when it qualifies the action or state expressed by the verb, is separated from its noun, and so forms, along with the verb, the predicate of the noun; as,

Fair is thy countenance,
Thy countenance is fair,
Small are these stones,
These stones are small,
Cold is the wind from the north,
The wind from the north is cold,
Make this knife sharp, or Sharpen this knife.

AIT A' BHUADHAIR GHAEILIG.

RIALT 2.—Cuirear am Buadhar gu cumanta, an déigh an ainmeir a dheasaichear leis ; mar,

Craobh boidheach. Gillean òga. Clachan beaga.

RIALT 3.—'Nuair tha am Buadhar a' deasachadh a' ghniomha no na staide, a dh-airisear leis a' ghniomhar, tha e dealaichte bho 'ainmear, agus mar sin leis a' ghniomhar, a deanamh feirt anainmear ; mar,

Is boidheach do ghnùis.

Tha do ghnùis boidheach.

Is beag na clachan iad so.

Tha na clachan so beag.

Is fuar a' ghaoth á tuath.

Tha a' ghaoth á tuath fuar.

Dean an sgian so géur=géur-aich an sgian so.

Obs. 1.—Here the adjective and noun are in different parts of the same sentence, and in that case the adjective is always indeclinable.

Obs. 2.—Some Adjectives of one syllable are placed immediately before the nouns which they qualify, and so remain indeclinable; as, Deadh dhuine, a good man; caol shràidean, narrow streets.

Adjectives placed before their nouns, as above, may be called antecedent adjectives; such as,—àrd, bànn, binn, bog, buan, beò, blàth, caol, ciùin, caomh, eas, ciar, cian, deadh, dearg, droch, dubh, daor, dàll, dlùth, flìuch, frith, feall, fuar, fad, fàs, fionn, fior, fir, garg, gasd, géur, glas, górm, geal, grinn, lag, làn, las, leisg, liath, lòm, mear, mion, mean, mòr, òg, tràm, tlàth, teann, ùr, &c.

Obs. 3.—Antecedent Adjectives often combine with their nouns, both forming a compound word; and such compounds are usually written with a hyphen between the adjective and the noun ; thus, Mòr-roinn, a province ; géur-fhocal, a sharp word ; a gibe.

Obs. 4 — In other compound words of this description, the adjective or noun is often contracted, and both unite into one word without a hyphen at all ; thus, morair, contracted for mòr fhearr ; seanair, for sean athair ; òigear, for òg fhearr, &c.

POSITION OF PRONOUNS.

RULE 4. The Relatives a, na, nach, whether used as the subject or object of a verb, are always placed before their verbs ; as,

The man who spoke to me
They paid what they bought
The thing which you did not hear

The men who departed
The girl who refused me
The horse which struck me

1. The demonstratives so and sin are sometimes placed before, and sometimes after their nouns, and, in either case, require the article before the noun ; thus,

This (is) the way, so an rathad. There (is) the town, sin am baile. This place, an t-aite so. That man, an duine sin.

2. Sid or sud is always placed before, and ud after their nouns ; as, Sid an t-àite, Yonder is the place. A' bhéinn ud, Yon mountain.

* Such sentences as the above last two, standing unconnected with other passages, are often ambiguous, and the ambiguity arises from the want of inflection in the relatives, a circumstance which renders it difficult at times to determine whether the relative refers to the subject or object of the verb ; thus, a' chailin a dhìult mi, may either signify the girl who refused me, or the girl whom I refused. And an t each a bhual mi, may also signify the horse which I struck, or the horse which struck me ; however, the sentence may be made quite clear, and the reference determined by using the auxiliary verb dean, after the relative and before the infinitive of the transitive verb ; thus, A' chailin a rinn mi dhìultadh, The girl whom I refused. A' chailin a rinn mo dhìultadh, The girl who refused me.

The meaning is invariably ambiguous when both the antecedent and the object are rational beings ; but the scope of the sentence usually determines the meaning, when the subject is a rational being and the object an inferior animal, or thing without life.

AITE 'RIOCHDARAN.

RIALT 4. Cuirear na Dàimhich a, na, nach, a ghàroimh an ghniomharan, co dhiùbh a ghnàthaichead iad marchùisear, no mar chuspais air d'an gniomharan ; mar,

Am fear a labhair rium
Phaigh iad na cheannaich iad
An ni nach cuala sibh

Na fir a dh-fhalbh
A' chainlin a dbiùlt mi*
An t-each a bhual mi.*

1. Cùirear na Dearbhaich so agus sin, air uairibh roimh, agus air uairibh an déigh an ainmearan, agus 'an seasamh air bith dhiù sin féumaidh iad am pùngar roimh an ainmear ; mar so,

SUBJECT AND VERB.

RULE 5. In conventional sentences the subject or nominative is placed immediately after the verb ; as,

Tha mi. Dh' -òl sinn. Chunnaic iad. Brisidh e. Phaisg Anna. Thog, Iain. Buailidh na fir, The men will strike.

RULE 6. In compound verbs the nominative is placed between the auxiliary and the participle ; as,

I am folding,
We can write,
The work is finished,
The doors were shut,

RULE 7. In poetry, or rhetorical sentences, the subject is sometimes placed before the verb ; as,

In his hand is the depth of the earth,

No virgin with harp will come to meet them,

When the subject is an interrogative pronoun, it is placed before the verb ; as, “Co a bheir glan á neo-ghlan ?” Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean ?

1. The verb Is stands always before its subject ; as, Is tus’ an duine,—Thou art the man. Is sibhse mo chàirdean,—Ye are my friends. Is còir a’ bhean i,—She is a just wife.

APPLICATION OF IS AND BI.

2. As there is a peculiar distinction in the application of these two verbs, the following rules are given as an attempt to direct and assist the learner in applying them idiomatically.

3. Is,* is used in describing the name, profession, state, or condition, under which objects definitely exist or did exist ; as,

CUISEAR ’US GNIOMHAR.

RIALT 5. ’An ciallairtibh còrdail, cuirear an cuisear no an t-ainmeach air bàll an déigh a’ ghniomhair ; mar, Tha mi. Dh' -òl sinn. Chunnaic iad. Brisidh e. Phaisg Anna. Thog, Iain. Buailidh na fir, The men will strike.

RIALT 6. Ann a gniomharan measgta, cuirear an t-ainmeach eadar an taicear agus am páirtear ; mar, Tha mi ’pasgadh.

Is urrainn sinn sgriobhadh.
Tha an obair criochnaichte.
Bha na dorsan dùinte.

RIALT 7. Ann am bàrdachd, no ann a ciallairtibh òr-chainnteach, cuirear an cuisear air uairibh roimh an ghniomhar ; mar,

Dòmhneachd na talmhain ta ’na làimh.

Oigh cha tig le clàr ’nan comhdhail.

* When the subject is pointedly and emphatically expressed or addressed, the verb IS, is used ; as, when Nathan said to David, “Is tusa an duine,” Thou art the man.

|                                |                         |
|--------------------------------|-------------------------|
| Is mise Peadar,         | I am Peter              |
| Is tu mo bhràthair,     | Thou art my brother     |
| Is caiptean am fear ud, | Yon fellow is a captain |
| Is iarunn so,           | This is iron            |
| Bu chlachair e,         | He was a mason          |
| Bu nàmhaid e,           | He was a foe            |
| Cha bu robairean, iad,  | They were not robbers   |

4. Bi,* when used in expressing the name or profession pertaining to objects, must be followed by the preposition ann, joined with a possessive pronoun of the same number and person, as the person or thing whose name, trade, or condition is mentioned ; as, Tha mi an mo shaor, or 'nam shaor,—I am a carpenter. Bha sinn 'nar (ann ar) coigrich 'san tir,—We were strangers in the land. Tha Ceit 'na (ann a) banaltrum,—Catherine is a nurse. Bithidh Séumas 'na (ann a) dheadh sgoilear,—James will be a good scholar.—See Gael. Cons. R. 34—8.

5. Ann, is not admitted when an adjective is in the predicate, in which case either Bi or Is may be used ; as,

|----------------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| Tha a' chlach so mòr ,          | This stone is large.             |
| Is mòr a' chlach i so,          | Large is this stone.             |
| Tha do chéum màll ,             | Thy step is slow.                |
| Is màll do chéum,               | Slow is thy step.                |
| Tha a sùil boidheach ,          | Her eye is pretty.               |
| Is boidheach a sùil,            | Pretty is her eye.               |
| Tha thusa na 's tréise na mise. | Is tréise thusa, na mise. |
| Bha an oïche dorch ,            | The night was dark.              |
| Bu dorch an oïche,              | Dark was the night.              |

VERB AND ITS OBJECT.

RULE 8. In conventional sentences the object is placed next after the nominative of a transitive verb; as,

I saw thee,
He struck the table,
Ye folded the clothes,
The huntsman shot a deer,

GNIOMHAR 'S A CHUSPAIR.

RIALT 8. Ann a ciallairt-ibh còrdail, cuirear an cuspair, dlù an déigh ainmeach gniomhair asdolaich ; mar, Chunnaic mi thu.

Bhuail e am bòrd.
Phaisg sibh an t-aodach.
Thilg an sealgair fiodh.

* Bi cannot be used alone, or with ann, in many cases, in place of Is. We cannot say, Tha thusa an duine. Tha thu mo rùn. Tha so umha. Tha thu Séumas. Tha thu mo mhac. Tha so do chòta. We must say, Is thusa an duine. Is tù mo rùn. Is umha so. Is tù Seumas. Is tù mo mhac. Is e so do chòta.

RULE 9.—When the object is expressed by a relative or an interrogative pronoun, it is placed before the verb ; as,

The trees which I did cut,
Whom didst thou see ?

Let us hear what the Prince said to thee,

1. The object, when expressed by a noun preceded by a compound relative used as its adjective, precedes the verb ; as, Ge b'e ni a their e ribh deanaibh e, whatsoever he saith unto you, do it. John ii. 5.

RULE 10.—In rhetorical sentences, the object, when an emphatic word, is placed before the verb ; as,

Advice accept from me at this hour,

The horse and his rider hath he cast into the sea.

RULE 11.—The object is often placed before the infinitive ; as,

To shut the door,
Tell Thomas to break the stone.

POSITION OF THE INFINITIVE.

RULE 12.—In conventional sentences, the infinitive is placed after the verb which governs it, though often separated from it by other words ; as,

The men went to pull heath.

POSITION OF ADVERBS.

RULE 13.—Compound adverbs are generally placed

RIALT 9.—'Nuair a dh'-ainmichear an cuspair le riochdar dàimheach, no céisteach cuirear e roimh an ghniomhar ; mar, Na craobhan a ghearr mi.
Co a chunnaic thu ?
Cluinneamaid ciod a thuit am Prionnsa ruit.

RIALT 10.—'An ciallairt-ibh òr-chainnteach cuirear an cuspair, 'nuair is focal neartail e roimh an gniomhar ; mar,

Comhairle gabh uam 'san uair so.
An t-each agus a mharcach thilg e 'san fhàirge.

RIALT 11.—Is minig a chuirear an cuspair roimh an fheartach ; mar,

An dorus a dhùnadh.
Abair ri Tomas a' chlach a bhriseadh.

AIT AN FHEARTAICH.

RIALT 12.—'An ciallairt-ibh còrdail cuirearam feartach an déigh a ghniomhair a spreigeas e, ach tha e gu tric dealaithe uaithe le focail éile ; mar,

Chaidh na fir a bhuan fraoich.

AITE CHO-GHNIOMHARAN.

RIALT 13.—Cuirear cogniomharan measgta gu

after the subject, or between the subject and object of the verbs which they modify; thus,

He spoke well.

The thrush sings sweetly.

You did it well.

cumant' an déigh cùiseir, no eadar cùisear agus cuspair nan gniomharan a taid a' mùth ; mar so,

'Labhair e gu math.

Séinnidh an smeòrach gu binn.

Rinn thu gu math e.

Gu, in forming compound adverbs, is expressed only before the first of two or more adjectives, except when a conjunction intervenes; as, understood by the reader or hearer.

Gu banail, béisach, modestly, virtuously. Gu h-àral, minbhallach, àluinn, Gu math no gu dona, well or badly. Gu slàn's gu fallain.

The points or marks chiefly used to denote pauses in sentences are, the Comma, (,) the Semicolon, (;) the Colon, (:) and the Period. (.)

The Comma denotes the shortest pause, and is inserted between those parts of a sentence which are closely connected in sense.

The Semicolon marks a pause longer than the comma, and is inserted between clauses somewhat different in sense, but dependent on one another.

The Colon marks a pause longer than the semicolon, and is inserted between clauses differing in sense.

The Period, or full stop, is inserted at the end of a sentence, to show that it is completed.

The following rule is to enable the young student to distinguish in reading the different lengths of pauses indicated by each of the foregoing points :—

The Comma requires the time occupied in uttering one; the Semicolon, one, one; the Colon, one, one, one; and the Period,

RULES for inserting the Pausing Points in Sentences.

THE COMMA.

1. In general, a simple sentence takes only a period at the end of it ; as,

God governs the world.

2. When a simple sentence is long, the subject and predicate consisting of a number of words, a comma may be placed between them ; as,

To be constantly doing good, is the pious man's desire.

3. The name of a person or object addressed is separated from the rest of the sentence by a comma ; as,

Lord, Lord, open to us.

4. Absolute and relative clauses are in general separated from the other parts of a sentence by commas ; as,

The candle being lighted, darkness left the room.

The little house, which we saw on the mountain's brow, is a shepherd's cot.

5. The simple members of a compound sentence are often separated by a comma ; as,

Prosperity gains friends, and adversity tries them.

6. When two or more words —whether nouns, adjectives, pronouns, verbs, participles, or adverbs,—are connected by another word not expressed, a

AN SNAGAN.

1. An cumantas gabhaidh ciallairt singilt, a-mhain cuairtean 'na dheigh ; mar, Tha DIA a' riaghlaigh an t-saoghail.

2. 'Nuair tha ciallairt singilt fad, an cuisear 's an abairt a' cosheasamh ann an aireimh fhocal, faodar snagan a chur eatorra ; mar,

Is e miann an duine dhiadhaidh, a bhi sior-dheanamh maith.

3. Dealaicheadh ainm neach no cuspair ris an labhrar bho 'n a' chuid éile de 'n chiallairt le snagan ; mar,

A Thighearn, a Thighearn, fosgail dhuinne.

4. Dealaicheadh earranan Féineil agus dàimheach gu tric o na páirtibh éile de chiallairt le snagan ; mar, Iar do 'n choinneal a bhi laiste, dh'-fhàg dorchadas an seòmar.

Is tigh cìbeir, am bòthan beag, a chunnaic sinn air aodainn an t-sléibh.

5. Dealaicheadh bùill shingilt ciallairte mheasgte gu tric le snagan ; mar, Gheibh sonas càirdean, agus dearbhaidh an-shocair iad.

6. 'Nuair a naisgear dà fhocal no tuille—co dhiùbh is ainmearan, buadharan, riochdaran, gniomharan, páirtearan, no co-ghniomharan iad,—le focal neo-ainmichte, comma is inserted where the connecting word is understood; as,

Books, ink, pens, and paper, are sold here.

The night was dark, dreary, wet and cold.

Give nuts to him, her and to me.

The lady reads, writes and speaks well.

By reading, writing and studying books we become learned.

We should peruse the Scriptures frequently, carefully and heartily.

7. Such words and phrases as the following are usually separated from the other members of sentences by a comma :—besides, doubtless, indeed, finally, hence, however, nay, at least, in fine, in short, &c.

A bhàrr air, gun teagamh, gu dearbh, fa dheòigh, á so, gidheadh, ni h-eadh, an car a's lugha, 'an aon fhocal, &c.

THE SEMICOLON.

8. When a sentence consists of two members, the one making complete sense of itself, and the other following as a consequence or explanation, the two members are separated by a semicolon ; as,

The rich and the poor meet together ; the Lord is the maker of them all.

9. When a sentence consists of several members, each of which is complete in sense and dependent upon each other, they are separated by a semicolon ; as,

Wisdom hath builded her house ; she hath hewn out her seven pillars ; she hath killed

PUNGACHADH.

cuirear snagan far an tuigear am focal nasgaidh ; mar,

Reicear rolan, ìng, pìnn agus páipeir an so.

AN LESGOILTEAN.

8. 'Nuair a tha ciallairt a' co-sheasamh 'an dà earrain 'us aon a' toirt seadh iomlain dhi-fein agus an aon éile ag éiridh mar cho-dhùnadhbh, no mar mhineachadh, dealaichear iad le les-goiltean ; mar,

Coinnichidh am beartach agus am bochd a chéile ; 'us e'n Tighearn a rinn iad gu léir.

9. 'Nuair tha ciallairt a' co-sheasamh 'an iomadh earrain, 'us gach aon iomlan 'an seadh 'us co-chrochte ri 'chéile, dealaichear iad le lesgoiltean ; mar,

Thog gliocas a tigh ; ghearr i mach a seachd puist ; mharbh i a feòil ; mheasg i a fion ;

her beasts ; she hath mingled her wine ; she hath also furnished her table.

THE COLON.

10. When the preceding clause of a sentence is so complete in sense as to admit of a full stop, but is followed by some additional remark or illustration depending in sense upon the former ; the junction of the remark, &c. with the preceding part, is indicated by a colon ; as,

Consider the work of God : for who can make that straight which he hath made crooked ?

11. When a sentence consists of a number of clauses, of which each is separated from the other by a semicolon, and the sense concluding in the last clause, that last clause is separated from the preceding by a colon ; as,

" If he has not been unfaithful to his king ; if he has not proved a traitor to his country ; if he has never given cause for such charges as have been preferred against him : why then is he afraid to confront his accusers."

THE PERIOD, OR FULL STOP.

12. The period, or full stop, is always placed at the end of a complete or independent sentence, and after initials and abbreviations of words when used alone ; as,

Jesus wept.

D.M. for Doctor of Medicine.
Viz. for videlicet.

AN SGOLTEAN.

10. 'Nuair tha 'chéud earran de chiallairt cho iomlan 'an seadh 'us gu'n gabhadh i pùng làn, ach leante le beachd no soilleurachd éigin éile, a bhuineas a thaobh brìghe do'n chéud earrain ; nochdar aonadh na beachd, &c. ris a' chéud earrain le sgoiltean ; mar,

Smuainich air obair Dhé : oir co is urrainn an ni sin a dheanamh direach a rinn esan càm ?

11. 'Nuair tha ciallairt a' co-sheasamh 'an àireimh de dh-earranaibh, agus gach aon dealichte bho 'n aon éile, le lesgoiltean, 's an seadh a' co-dhùnadh leis an earrain dheireannaich, dealaichear an earran sin uatha-san roimpe le sgoiltean ; mar,

AN CUAIRTEAN, NO LAN PHUNG.

12. Cuirear an cuairtean no làn phùng a ghnà an déigh ciallairete iomlainn no shaoir, agus an déigh thùsagan 'us ghiorrhachaidhean fhocal 'nuair a ghnàthaichead iad 'nan aonar ; mar, Ghuiil Iosa.

i.e. the fourth and eighth day of this month. As they have no corresponding single words of this sense in Gaelic, we say, An ceathramh là de'n mhios so, or, An 4-mh de'n mhios so, the 4th day, or the 4th of this month.

The Gaelic and English names of the months of the year run thus :—Cheud mhios, January; Daramios, February; Màrt, March; Giblin, April; Màigh, May; Og-mhios, June; Iul, July; Liùnasd, August; Naoimios, September; Deichea-mhios, October; Aon-mhios-deug, November; Dara-mhios-deug, December.

March was originally the first month of the Roman year, so called, according to tradition, by Romulus, in honour of his father Mars. Hence the names September, October, November, December, meaning according to their derivation, the 7th, 8th, 9th, and 10th month from March.

In Gaelic dating, the numerical month of the year or season is commonly used ; as, An 6-mh Mios de'n bliliadlna, the sixth month of the year, June. Mios mheadhonach an t-sàmhraidh, or Dara Mios an t-Sàmhraidh, the middle or second month of summer, June. This is a very ancient mode of computing time by months. It is followed by the Chinese, and other nations.

* Or Bàll; as, Bàll Urramach, no Onarach, Honorary Member.

LATIN PHRASES.

SEOLLAIRTEAN LAIDINN.

 Tha na Seollairtean Laidinn agus Fràngach a leanas, a chleachdar gu tric ann a comhradh 'us ann a co-sghriobhadh Béurla, iar àn suidheachadh an so, agus iar àn cur ann am Béurla 'san Gaelig, chum goireis na muinntir nach 'eil eòlach air Laidinn agus Fráingis.

Every letter in a Latin word is sounded,—e final sounds like ā in ale.

Ab initio; from the beginning
Ab urbe condita; from the building of the city,—thus abbreviated, A.U.C.

Fuaimichear gach litir ann am focal Laidinn,—bheir e deir-annach fuaim coltach ri ā 'an ale.

Bho thoiseach; o thùs
O thogail a' bhaile; o am togail a' bhaile

* In a Gaelic garb, used for aidmheilear.

NOTION OF BUSINESS.

After the pupil has learned to read, spell, and speak the words of both, or either language, with a degree of propriety; the next subject to which he should direct his careful attention is, the mode of applying words in business; and, in order to assist him in doing so, a few directions and models are subjoined.

BEACHD GNOTHAICH.

'Nuair a dh-ionnsaicheas an sgoilear focail na dà, no na h-aoin chainnt a léughadh, a chùbadh agus a labhairt mar nach olc, is e 'n ath cheann-teagaisg d' an còir dha 'aire chùramach a thoirt, alt cleachdaidh fhocalan ann an gnothachaibh; agus a chum a chònadh gu sin a dheanamh, cuirear sios beagan sheòlaidhean agus shamhultean.

LETTER-WRITING, OR EPISTOLARY CORRESPONDENCE.

Letter-writing, or the art of conveying our ideas to one another through the medium of ink and paper, forms a most important part of one's education; and without a competent knowledge of this noble art, no person is fit to transact his business with advantage.

The learner, as soon as he is taught the use of the pen, should be made to write the names of the objects around him on his slate, or on paper; and then a short description of the utility or beauty of each of them, in the form of a letter to the Master, to be corrected and improved by him. The pupil will be thus, by degrees, led to the art of composition.

DIRECTIONS, &amp;c.

In writing to relations, some endearing epithet is always put before the kindred title in English, and after it in Gaelic; as, Dear, Beloved, Revered, or Honour'd Father, or Mother. Conclude a letter to either thus,—Your very affectionate, dutiful, or loving Son or Daughter,—as the case may be.

Children should adopt the most respectful, as well as the most endearing mode of address towards their parents.

LITIR-SGRIOBHADH, NO CON-
ALTRADH LITIREIL.

Tha Litir-sgriobhadh, no alt giùlain ar smuaintean gu càch a chéile tre chònadh ìnge agus páipeir, a' deanamh suas roinn ro-fhéumail de ionnsachadh neach agus gun eòlas cuimseach air an innleachd òrail so, cha n-eil neach sam bith freagarrach airson a ghnothaich a chur air aghaidh gu coromach.

Cho luath 's a dh-ionnsaicheas am foghlumach féum a' phìnn, is còir a thoirt air, ainmean nan nithe a ta mu 'n cuairt da a sgriobhadh air a sgleit, no air páipeir; 'an déigh sin, cunntas gearr mu mhaith, no mhaise gach aoin diùbh ann an uidheam litire do 'n Mhaighstear gu bhi ceartaichte agus leasaichte leisan. Mar so stiùirear an sgoilear a chuid 's a chuid gu alt co-sgriobhaidh.

SEOLAIDHEAN, &amp;c.

'An sgriobhadh gu càirdibh, cuirear focal-gràidh eigin roimh an-ainm dhàimheil 'sa Bheurla agus 'na dhéigh 'sa Ghælig; mar, Athar, no A Mhathair *Ion-mhuinn, Ghaol,* Urramach, no Onarach;* co-dhùinlitir gu h-aon diubh mar so,—Bhur Mac no Nighean Ghràdhach, Ghaolach, no Dhleasannach,—mar thachras do 'n chùis a bhi.

Is còir do chloinn co-labhairt fior mhodhail cho math 'us fior ghaolach a ghnàthachadh do 'm párrantaibh.

* The gender and case of the noun addressed must be attended to,—We say, Athar Ghaol, A Mhathair Ghaol; in the vocative case.

Parents and guardians, &c. address their children, and those under their care, by using their christian name, along with the endearing term, instead of the kindred title; thus, Dear John, My dear Ann,—concluding with —Your affectionate or loving Father or Mother, &c.

In writing to a familiar acquaintance, to a friend, or to a person of equal rank with the writer, or a grade below him, the common form of address is, Dear Sir, — concluding with —Yours truly, or sincerely, or some other familiar phrase.

In writing on general business, to a person of higher rank than the writer, or to one with whom he is not familiarly acquainted, the ordinary address is, Sir, — concluding with,—Your Most Obedient Servant.

From a son to his parents, on leaving home.

MY DEAR FATHER,

I arrived here in safety, on Saturday last. My passage was indeed very favourable all along. The steamer was not in the least retarded by contrary winds. Captain T. and all the hands on board were very kind to me all the way. I was particularly delighted with the fresh and beautiful scenery opening to my view on every side, as we were sailing up the Frith of Clyde: But O, father! I was completely lost in admiration and amazement, when I entered this great city, seeing its numerous and splendid

PART IV.

PROSODY.

PROSODY* is that part of grammar which treats of Quantity, Accent, Versification, and Figures of Speech.

The Composition of words in any language is either Prose or Poetry.

Prose is language not confined to a measured number of syllables or harmonic sounds.

Poetry or Verse is language confined to a measured number of long and short syllables to produce harmonic sounds.

QUANTITY.—The quantity of a syllable is the time occupied in pronouncing it. Quantity is either long or short; as, tūbe, tūb.

RANNACHADH.

Is e RANNACHADH* an earran sin de ghràmar a ta 'teagascg mu Thomhas, Stràc, Ranndachd, agus mu Fhigearan Cainnt.

Tha Co-Shuidheachadh f hocalan ann an cainnt air bith 'na Rosg, no 'na Bhàrdachd.

Is e Rosg, cainnt nach 'eil iar a cur 'an àireimh shuidhichte de smidean no fhuaimean ceòlmhor.

Is e Bàrdachd no Rànn, cainnt iar a cur 'an àireimh shuidhichte de smidean fad agus grad a' dheanamh fhuaimean ceòlmhor.

TOMHAS. — Is e tomhas smide an tim a ghabhar 'g a fuaimeachadh. Tha tomhas aon chuid fad no grad; mar, cās, cās.<sup>n</sup>

STRAC. — Is e Stràc, toirt buille na 's mò dè 'n ghuth do dh-aon smid na do smid éile; mar, Eal'amh, buil-ich.

* Prosody strictly denotes only that agreeable tone or melody which is in speech, but grammarians attach a wider signification to the term. Also its correspondent, Rannachadh, meaning the art of making verses, is here adopted, in the absence of a more comprehensive word, to embrace all the points treated of in the fourth part of grammar.

VERSIFICATION.

Versification is the art of arranging words into lines of corresponding length, so as to produce harmony by the regular recurrence at fixed intervals of syllables differing in quantity.

In poetry, every syllable is either long or short, from its position in a foot, and not from the peculiar sound of its vowel.

Verse is of two kinds, viz. Rhyme and Blank Verse.

Rhyme is the name by which we distinguish verses or lines, whose final words or syllables end by a similar sound ; as,

“ Listen for dear honour’s sake,
Goddess of the silver lake.”

Blank Verse is poetry without Rhyme.

POETIC FEET.

Every line* of poetry consists of successive combinations of syllables called feet.

A poetic foot generally consists of two, and sometimes of three syllables, one of which is always accented.

It is called foot, from the tongue stepping along by measured pace in reading verse, as the feet in walking.

There are eight kinds of feet used in English and Gaelic poetry, named and exemplified in the following order :—

DISSYLLABIC FEET.

- Iāmbus, ~ - as, ādōre.
- Trochēe, - ~ as, nōblě,
- Phyrric, ~ ~ as, ḥn thē (sea.)
- Spondee, - - as, lōng pōle.

TRISSYLLABIC FEET.

- Anapaest, --- īntērcēde.
- Amphibrach, --- dōmēstīc.
- Tribrach, --- (mis)ērāblē
- Dactyl, --- pōssiblē.

The Iambus, Trohee, and Anapaest, are the feet most commonly used.

An Iambus is a poetic foot consisting of two syllables, of which the first is short, and the second long ; as, ēplōre.

SCANNING.—To scan a verse, is to divide it into its component feet.

IAMBIC MEASURE.

Verse of this measure is the most common, and also the most dignified, being adapted to serious and lofty subjects. It is of various lengths ; thus,

| 3. Of four feet, or eight syllables ; as,                 | 3. De cheithir chasaibh no ochd smidean ; mar,Thě jöys   ābōve   áre ūn   dērstōod,And rel'   ish'd on'   ly by'   the good'.                                                                                                                                                                 |
| 4. Of five feet or ten syllables, called Pentameter ; as, | 4. De chuig chasaibh no deich smidean, ris an canar Pentameter ;* mar,Lět nōt   āmbī   tiōn mōck   their ūse   fūl tōil,Their home'   ly joys'   and des'   tiny' obscure',Nōr grān   deür bear   wíth ā   dīsdāin   fūl smileThe short'   and sim'   ple an'   nals of'   the poor'. |

This is English heroic measure, so called from its having a majestic march, well suited to heroic argument. It is the most suitable measure for blank verse, and admits of variety, especially at the beginning and end of a line. The first foot is often a Trochee instead of an Iambus, and the last has often a short supernumerary syllable added to it ; thus,

Adām, | well may' we la'bour still' to dress'
This gar'den, still' to tend' plant, herb', and flow' | ēr.

5. Of six feet or twelve syllables—Hexameter, also called Alexandrine verse ; as,

Thy rēalm | för ēv | ēr lāsts, | thy ūn | Mēssī | āh rēigns.

6. Of seven feet or fourteen syllables, called Heptameter ; as,

Thě Lōrd | dēscēnd | ēd frōm | ābōve, | ānd bōw'd | thě heav- | ēns hīgh.

Is e so an tomhas Mor Beurla, ainmichte mar sin o'n tha céum àrd aige fior fhreagarrach air son argumaid moire. 'S e tomhas a's freagarraiche air son Du-Rainn, agus gabhaidh e mùth, gu h-ar-aidh aig tùs 'us deireadh liné. 'Si Trocé tha gu tric 'sa cheud chois an aite na h-Iambuis, agus tha smid chòrr' ghrad gu tric ris a' chois dhèireannaich ; mar so,

5. De shea chasaibh no dā smid dheug—Hexameter,† ris an canar fös Rānn Alastair; mar,

6. De sheachd chasaibh no ceithir smidean deug, ris an canar Heptameter‡ ; mar, * Cuig-chasach. † Sea-chasach. ‡ Seachd-chasach.

Modern poets have divided this kind of verse into alternate lines of four and three feet, and that is the Measure commonly used in the psalms; thus,

Būt whō | ōf glō | rȳ īs | thē kīng ?
 Thē mīght | ȳ Lōrd | īs thīs,
 Ev'n thāt | sāme Lōrd | thāt grēat | īn mīght,
 And strōng | īn bāt | tlē īs.

 Iēhō | bhā nēārt | mhōr, crūāidh | ān cāth,
 Bhēir būaidh | ā māch | dhā fēin.

TROCHAIC MEASURE.

A Trochée is a poetic foot, consisting of two syllables, of which the first is long and the second short; as, nōblē.

This measure is brisk and animated. It is also of various lengths; thus,

1. Of one foot and a long syllable, called Single Rhyme; as,

Tūmūlts | cēase,
 Sink' to | pēace.

2. Of two feet or four syllables; as,

On thē | mōuntaīn,

Lay' a | shep'herd | swain', and | view'd the | rol'ling | bil'lōw.

ANAPAESTIC MEASURE.

An Anapaest is a poetic foot consisting of three syllables, of which the first and second are short, and the third long; as, cōnträ-vēne.

In this measure the vocal stress is laid on every third syllable.

Anapaestic verse is, in common with Iambic and Trochaic, of various lengths; thus,

1. Of two feet or six syllables; as,

Whēn I lōōk | ǒn my bōys,
They renew | all my joys.

Or of two feet and a short syllable; as,

Büt hīs cōur | āge 'gān fail | him,
For no arts | could avail | him.

2. Of three feet; as,

O yē wōōds | sprēad yōur brānch | ēs āpāce,
To your deep | est recess | es I fly.

The first foot of an Anapaestic line is sometimes an Iambus; thus,

Yē shēp | hērds sō chēēr | fūl ānd gāy,
Whose flock | never care | lessly roam.

3. Of four feet, as,

Māy I gōv | ērn my pās | siōn wīth āb | sōlūte swāy,
And grow wis | er and bet | ter as life | wears away.

TOMHAS ANAPESTIC.

Is cas bhàrdail an Anapest, a' co-sheasamh ann an tri smidean, de 'm beil a' cheud 's an dara grad agus an treas fad; mar, dō-mō-rūn.<sup>n</sup>

'San tomhas so leigear buille de 'n ghuth air gach treas smid.

Tha rānn Anapestic, mar tha Iāmbic agus Trochaic, a chaochla fad; mar so,

No 'dhà chois agus smid ghrad;

mar,

GAELIC VERSIFICATION.

The Gaelic, which is a branch of the primeval tongue, possesses poetical qualities of transcendent beauty. It is the language of nature herself, and has been, in all ages, distinguished for its power and success in descriptive poetry, and for effectually addressing and impressing the passions.

The ancient Gaelic Bards had peculiar facilities in composing their verses, and in describing their subjects, because they were not so much fettered by fixed laws of versification as modern poets. In pouring forth their poetical strains, their chief aim

In the foregoing examples, the same foot prevails throughout each line, but in the following there is an intermixture of feet.

* "The ancient Bards do not appear to have composed under any fixed laws of versification, yet the wildest effusions were not without a certain rule; their poems, although in blank verse, had a peculiar adjustment of cadence and feet, easily discoverable to a practical ear."

"Polymetra, or verses of different measures, employed according to the poet's taste or feeling,—a style capable of being rendered extremely effective,—is held to be the first form of composition, and has been frequently used by both the ancient and modern Gaél. It was adopted by other nations, and successfully practised by the French and Spaniards,—in England, it is first seen in the work of Ben Jonson."—Scottish Gael.—See Beauties of Gaelic Poetry, p. 48—54.

POETICAL LICENSE.

In poetry there are used several words and phrases differing in their grammatical construction from the common form, in order to fit them the better for regular numbers. This liberty is called poetical license.

1. Words may be transposed to a greater extent in poetry than in prose.

2. Some words are lengthened by a syllable, and others are curtailed, in order to fill up the poetic measure exactly.

3. In poetry, nouns are often used for adjectives, and adjectives for adverbs ; as,

RANNACHADH.

Tha iomadh roinn àluinn araon ann ar bàrdaihb Beurla 'us Gàelic, gu h-àraid 'sa Ghàelic, nach gabh sgaradh gun chaochla casan a ghnàthachadh ; mar,

SAORSA BHARDAIL.

Tha mòran fhocal agus sheòl-lairtean gnàthaichte 'am bàrdachd, a ta dealachadh 'nan suidheachadh gràmarail, o'n staid chumanta, chum an cur 'an òrdugh na's fearr air son àireamhan rialtach. Ris a' chomas so, theirear saorsa bhàrdail.

1. Faodar focail atharrachadh céum na's mò 'am bàrdachd no ann an rosg.

2. Sìnear cuid a dh-fhocail le smid agus giorraicheadar cuid eile, chum lionadh suas an tomhais bhàrdail, gu h-eagarra.

3. 'Am bàrdachd gnàthaichear gu tric ainmearan an aite bhudharan agus buadharan an aite cho-ghniomharan ; mar,

" Amid the greenwood shade
This boy was fed."
" And the god-like hero answer'd mild."

4. Of the conjunctions that go in pairs, nor is often used for neither, and or for either; as,

" To them nor stores nor granaries belong,
Nought but the woodland and the song."
" Not man alone, but all that roam the wood,
Or wing the sky, or roll along the flood."

5. There is a great variety of elliptical expressions to be found in poetry; thus,

Two words or syllables are often contracted into one; as, 'Tis for it is; ''twas for it was; ''twill for it will; 'we'll for we will.

6. Vowels, and sometimes consonants, are elided, to run two syllables into one.

DIFFERENT KINDS OF POETRY.

1. An Epic Poem is a fanciful discourse, invented, to give an exalted description of some great achievement or event.

2. A Dramatic Poem is one in which some action is represented, or some design unfolded, only by the plays and speeches of stage-actors.

3. A Lyric Poem is one that may be sung or set to music.

4. A Pastoral Poem is one which describes the loves and joys of shepherds, and pictures out rural life. Also called Bucolic or Eclogue.

4. De na naisgearan a théid 'nan cupuill gnàthaichead gu tric nor an aite neither, agus or an aite either; mar,

" To them nor stores nor granaries belong,
Nought but the woodland and the song."
" Not man alone, but all that roam the wood,
Or wing the sky, or roll along the flood."

5. Gheibhear moran sheòllairtean bearnach 'am bàrdachd; mar so,

Giorraichear gu tric dà shocal no dà smid gu aon; mar, *Is e, is i, is iad, gu 'se, * 'si, siad; bu gu b'*; is àill, bithidh, gu 'saill, bi'dh.

6. Tilgear fuaimragan, agus air uairibh cònnragan, gu dà smid a ruith gu aon.

CAOCHLA SEORSA BARDACHD.

1. Is e Dàn-Mòr còradh smuainteil iar a chur ri chéile, gu àrd chunntas a thoirt mu ghniomh tréun, no aobhar àraig.

2. Is e Dàn-Cluiche aon anns am beil gniomh àraig riochdaichte, no rùn àraig iar fhosg-ladh a-mhain le sealaidean 'us cainnt chleasaichean.

3. Is e Dàn-Cruite aon a dh-fhaodar a shéinn, no chur ri ceòl no fonn.

4. Is e Dàn-Aodhaireil aon anns am beil gaol 'us aiteas bhuachaillean iar an airis, agus àbhaistean dùchail foillsichte. Ris an canar fòs Bò-choilleag.

* These, and other Gaelic contractions, are much used, but with no propriety, in prose.—For bu, see Gaelic Construction, Rule 30.

5. An Elegy is a poem, in which the loss of deceased friends is affectingly lamented, and their virtues recounted and extolled.

6. An Epigram is a short poem of a few pointed lines, generally of a sarcastic or severe nature, to taunt or mock some particular person or act.

I.—FIGURES OF SPEECH.

A Figure in grammar is an intentional deviation from the ordinary form, construction, or application of words.

There are three classes of grammatical figures, viz. figures of Etymology, figures of Syntax, and figures of Rhetoric.

FIGURES OF ETYMOLOGY.

The principal figures of Etymology are seven, viz.

A-phaer-e-sis,* A-poc-o-pē, Di-aer-e-sis, Par-a-go-gē, Pros-the-sis, Syn-co-pē, and Syn-aer-e-sis.

1. Aphaeresis is the omission of some of the initial letters of a word ; as, 'gainst, 'gan, for against, began.

2. Apocopē is the omission of some of the final letters of a word ; as, th' for the, tho' for though.

5. Is e Cumha, no Marbh-ránn, dàn anns am beil càll chàirdean a dh'-éug iar a chaoidh gu trom agus an subhailcean aijnmichte 's iar an àrd-mholadh.

6. Is e Gearr-Dhuan dàn beag anns am beil beagan lineachan géur-fhoclach, gu tric de nàdur béumach a bhéumadh, no 'mhāgadh neach no gniomh' àraig.

I.—FIGEARAN CAINNT.

Is e Figear 'an gràmar clao纳dh deònach, o staid, o shuidheachadh, no bho cho-chur suidhichte fhocal-an.

Tha trì roinnean a dhfhigearan gràmarail ann ; eadh. figearan Foclachaidh, figearan Rialtachaidh, agus figearan Oir-chainnt.

FIGEARAN FOCLACHAIDH.

Is iad priomh fhigearan Foclachaidh seachd, eadh. Figearan Rialtachaidh, agus Figearan Oir-chainnt.

1. Ise Aphēresis* fagail amach cuid de litrichibh tùsail focail ; mar, 's, 'eil, airson is agus beil.<sup>n</sup>

2. Is e Apocopē, fágail a-mach cuid de litrichibh deireannach focail ; mar, ge, aithriche, airson ged, aithrichean.<sub>n</sub>

* If any should demur to the use of these and other words in both languages without a Gaelic version of each, let him observe, that these and several other technical terms, used in grammar, are not English words, but words derived chiefly from the Greek and Latin, put into an English dress, and that the Gaelic is, in the absence of a more suitable term, equally entitled to their use, and also to cast them in its own mould.—See Gram. voc.

3. Diaeresis.—See this figure on p. 329,—11.

4. Paragogè is the annexing of an expletive syllable to a word ; as,

Casten for cast.

5. Prosthetic is the prefixing of an expletive syllable to a word ; as,

Yclad, bestir, for clad, stir.

6. Syncope is the omission of some of the middle letters of a word ; as, o'er, lov'd, for over, loved.

7. Synaeresis, the opposite of Diaëresis, is the throwing of two syllables into one ; as,

Seest for seëst. Looked for look-ed.

II.—FIGURES OF SYNTAX.

The principal figures of Syntax are four, viz.—

El-lip-sis, Ple-o-nasm, En-al-la-gē, and Hy-per-ba-ton.

1. Ellipsis is the omission of some word or words, or clause of a sentence, which are necessary to complete the construction, but not necessary to convey the meaning.*

Such words as are omitted in a sentence are said to be understood.

In the following examples of the ellipsis of each of the parts of speech, the words placed within parenthesis need not be expressed to convey the sense.

3. Dàlid.—Faic am figear so air t. 329,—11.

4. Is e Paragogé iceadh smid lionaidh ri focal ; mar,

Deary for dear.

5. Is e Prosthetic roimh-iceadh smid lionaidh ri focal ; mar,

Yclad, bestir, for clad, stir.

6. Sincope fàgail a-mach cuid de litrichibh meadh-onach focail ; mar, fa'near, airson fainear.

7. Is e Sinaeresis no Aonlid fear aghaidh Dàlide, bualadh dhà smid gu aon ; mar,

Seest for seëst. Looked for look-ed.

II.—FIGEARAN RIALTACHAIDH.

Is iad priomh fhigearan Rialtachaidh ceithir, eadh.

Theirear gu'n tuigear-as, a leithid a dh-fhocail 's a dh'-fhàgar a-mach á ciallairt.

1. Is i Bearn, fàgail a-mach focail no cuid a dh-fhocail no páirt de chiallairt a ta féumail a lionadh suas a'cho-rianachaidh, ach nach iarrar a ghiùlan an t-seadh.*

* See English Ar. Rule 17 and 18.

1. A boy and (a) girl.
The wind, (the) rain, and (the) snow.
2. A dozen (bottles) of wine.
The upper (mill-stone) and nether mill-stone.
3. The times are favourable to me and (favourable) to you.
4. I advised the boy and (I) encouraged the girl.
5. Who broke the window ?
I (broke it.)
6. (Being) satisfied with my qualifications, the gentleman engaged me.
7. He acted (prudently) and spoke prudently.
8. (On) this week.
9. Alas ! our wicked hearts, and (alas!) the folly of men.
10. The king, (and) the queen, (and) the prince, and princess passed by, in noble state.
2. Pléonasm or redundancy, is the using of more words than are necessary to convey the meaning ; as,
I saw it with my own eyes.

This figure should be used only in animated discourse, where it is calculated to render the subject both elegant and impressive.

3. Enallagé is the substituting of one part of speech, or of some form of a word for another ; as,

*They fall successive (ly) and successive (ly) rise.—POPE.*
*Tuitidh iad (gu h-) òrdail 'us (gu h-) òrdail éiridh iad.*

1. () Giullan agus () caileag.
A' ghaoth (*an t-**) uisge agus (an) sneachd.
2. Dusan (searragan) fiona.
A' chlach mhuilinn uachdarach agus (a' chlach-mhuilinu) iochdarach.
3. Tha na timean fàbharach dhomh-sa agus (fàbharach) dhut-sa.
4. Thug mi earail do'n bhalachan agus (thug mi) misneachd do 'n chaileig.
5. Co 'bhris an uinneag ?
(bhris) mise (i.)
6. (Iar bhi) toilichte le m' ionnsachad ghabh an duin'- usal mi.
7. Rinn e (gu glic) agus labhair e gu glic.
8. (*Air**) an t-seachduin so.
9. Och ! ar cridheachan olc, agus (Och !) góraich dhaoine.
10. Chaidh an righ (agus) a' bhan-righ, (agus) am prionnsa agus a' bhana-phrionnsa seachad
'an àrd inbhe.

2. Is i Lànnachd gnàth-achadh na 's mò dh-fhocail na tha féumail gus an seadh a ghiùlan ; mar,
Chunnaic mi e le mo shùilibh féin.

3. Is e Ionadach cur aoin fhocail cainnt, no aoin staide focail 'an ionad aoin éile ; mar,

* In most cases, it is necessary to repeat the article, the preposition, or conjunction before words in Gaelic, in order to preserve and continue the construction."

4. Hyperbaton is the transposing of words ; such as placing its object before a verb ; as,

"The horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea."

This figure is much used in poetical composition, and a proper application of it adds great strength, vivacity, and harmony to the subject, but care should be taken lest it produce ambiguity or obscurity.

III. FIGURES OF RHETORIC.

A figure of Rhetoric is a mode of expression, in which a word or sentence is to be understood in a sense different from its ordinary and literal meaning.

There are fourteen principal figures of Rhetoric ; namely,—

Sim-i-lē, Met-a-phor, Al-le-gor-y, Per-son-i-fi-ca-tion, Me-ton-y-my, Sy-nec-do-chē, Hy-per-bo-lē, Vi-sion, A-pos-tro-phē, Ex-clam-a-tion, In-ter-ro-ga-tion, I-ro-ny, Cli-max, and An-tith-e-sis.

1. A Similé or Comparison is a figure by which we compare one object to another, and it is generally introduced by like, as, or so, &c. ; as,

"Thine eye is like the star of eve."

2. A Metaphor is a figure which substitutes the name of one object for another,

4. Is e Hiperbaton atharrachadh fhocal, mar tha cur a' cuspair roimh a ghniomhar féin ; mar,

"An t-each agus a mharcaich thilg e 'san fháirge."

This figure is much used in poetical composition, and a proper application of it adds great strength, vivacity, and harmony to the subject, but care should be taken lest it produce ambiguity or obscurity.

III. FIGEARAN OIR-CHAINNT.

Is e Figear Oir-chainnt dòigh labhairt anns am beil focal no ciallairt gu bhi air a thuiginn ann an seadh dealaichte o 'chiall cumant' agus litireil.

Tha ceithir priomh fhighearan déug Oir-chainnt ann ; eadhon,—

Sàmh-ladh, Cos-lachd, Seach-labh-airt, Pear-sachadh, Meton-i-mi, Si-nec-do-chē, Os-labh-airt, Sealladh, As-cair, Glaodh, Ceanach, Sgéig-each, As-nadh, agus Trasd-ach.

1. Is e Sàmhladh no Coimeasachadh, figear leis am beil sinn a' samhlachadh aoin chuspair ri cuspair éile, agus bheirear a stigh e gu tric le, coltach, mar, amhuil, &c.; mar, "Tha do shùil mar réult an fheasgair."

2. Is e Coslachd figear a chuireas ainm aoin chuspair 'an ionad aoin eile, a nochd-to express the resemblance the one bears to the other ; as,

“ Thy word is a lamp to my feet and a light to my path.”

3. An Allegory is a continuation of one or more metaphors, so connected in sense, as to form a kind of parable or fable ;

Thus the people of Israel are represented under the symbol of a vine.

“ Thou hast brought a vine out of Egypt, thou hast cast out the heathen, and planted it. Thou preparedst room before it, and didst cause it to take deep root, and it filled the land. The hills were covered with the shadow of it, and the boughs thereof were like the goodly cedars.”—Psalm lxxx. 8—10.

4. Metonymy, or change of names, is a figure by which we put the cause for the effect, or the effect for the cause, the container for the thing contained ; as,

He reads Salust, i.e. Salust's works.

The kettle boils, i.e. the water.

5. Synecdoché is the naming of a part for the whole, or the whole for a part ; as,

The head, for the whole body.

The waves, for the sea.

6. Hyperbolé is a figure, whereby the imagination indulges itself in represent-adh a' chòltais a ta aig an aon ris an aon eile ; mar,

“ Is lòchran d' fhocal do mo chois agus solus do mo chéum.”

3. Is e Seach-labhairt seasamh aoin no iomadh coslachd co-naisgte 'an seadh air mhodh 's gu 'n dealbhar leò gnè de chosamhlachd, no dh-ùr-sgéul ;

Mar so, tha clann Israel riocħdaichte fo shàmhladh fionain.

4. Is i Metonimi, no mùth ainmean, figear leis an cuir-ear an t-aobhar 'an ait a għniomha, no an gniomh 'an aite an aobhair, an ni, chumas an ait an ni a ta ann ; mar, Tha e 'léughadh Shàluist, i.e. obraighean Shàluist.

Tha an coire 'goil, i.e. an tuisge.

5. Is e Sinecdoché, ainm-eachadh pàirte, an ait an iomlain, no an iomlain an ait pàirte ; mar,

An ceann, an aite na coluinn uile.

Na tùinn, an aite na fàirge.

6. Is e Os-labhairt figear leis am beil an inntinn a ceadachadh dhi féin nithe ing objects as greater or less, better or worse, than they really are ; as,

"They were swifter than eagles, they were stronger than lions."

7. Personification or Proso-po-paë-ia, is a figure, by which we ascribe life and action to inanimate objects, and the use of reason to irrational creatures, speaking of them as if they were intelligent beings ; as,

The ground thirsts for rain.

The earth smiles with plenty.

8. Vision or Imagery is a figure, by which the speaker represents a past or future action or event as actually passing before his eyes, and present to his senses ; as,

"High sight it is and haughty while,
They dive into the deep defile,
Beneath the caverned cliff, they fall,
Beneath the castle's airy wall."

9. Apostrophé is a figure by which the orator turns abruptly from the subject to address some other person or object ; as,

"Death is swallowed up in a riochdachadh na 's mó, no na 's lugha, na 's fearr no na 's miosa, na tha iad gu fior ; mar,

"Bu luaithe iad na iolairean, bu tréise iad na leòmhain.

7. Is e Pearsachadh, figear leis am beil sinn a' cur beatha agus gluasaid as leth nithe neo-bheò agus réusain as leth chréutairean mi-réusanta, a' labhairt ùmpa mar gu'm bu chréutairean tuigseach iad ; mar, Tha 'n taladh ag iarraidh an uisge.

Tha 'n tir ri gaire le pailteas.

8. Is e Sealladh figear leis am beil am fear-labhairt a' nochdadhbh gniomha no cùis a thachair no tha gu tachairt, mar gu 'm biodh e direach a' dol fo 'shùilibh agus 'an làthair a chàilean ; mar,

"'S mi faicinn an t-seallaiddh àird,
Iad a tearnadh leis a' ghleann,
A' tuiteam sios fo chreig nan sgàr
Fo stuagh nan tùr àrda fann."

9. Is e Ascair figear leis am beil an t-òraidear a' tionndadh gu grad o'n cheann-teagaisg gu co-labhairt ri neach no cuspair éigin éile ; mar,

"Shluigeadh suas am bàs le victory. O Death, where is thy sting ?

10. Exclamation is a figure used to express some violent emotion of the mind ; as,

“ O that I had wings like a dove ! for then would I fly away and be at rest !”

11. Interrogation is a figure by which the speaker proposes questions, not to express a doubt, but to enliven his discourse ; as,

“ He that planted the ear, shall he not hear ? he that formed the eye, shall he not see ?

12. Irony is a figure in which a person sneeringly utters the very reverse of what he thinks ; as,

When we say to a boy who neglects his lesson—“ You are very attentive indeed !”

And when Elijah said to the foolish worshippers of Baal, mocking them,— “ Cry aloud, for he is a god ; either he is talking, or he is pursuing, or he is on a journey, or perhaps he sleepeth, and must be awaked.”

13. Climax is a figure in which every succeeding object rises a degree in importance above that which precedes it ; as,

“ Add to your faith virtue ;

buaidh. O Bhàis c'ait am bheil do ghath ?”

10. Is e Glaodh figear a ghnàthaichear gu gluasad géur na h-inntinn a nochadh ; mar, “ Och, nach robh agam sgiathan mar choluman ! (an sin) theichinn as air iteig agus gheibhinn fois !”

11. Is e Ceasnach, figear leis am beil am fear-labhairt a' cur cheistean, cha n-ann a radh teagaimh, ach a bheòthachadh a labhairt ; mar,

“ An ti a shuidhich a' chluas nach cluinn e ; an ti a dhealbh an t-sùil nach faic e ?”

12. Is e Sgéigeach, figear anns am beil neach ag radh gu sgéigeil, cha n-i a bheachd, ach a ceart-chaoch-lath ; mar,

Their sinn ri giùllan a dhi-chuimhnicheas a leasan—“ Gu dearbh is cùramach thu !”

Agus 'nuair a thuirt Elijah ri fàidhibh gòrach Bhàail, a' magadh orra,—

13. Is e Asnadh no Direadh figear anns am beil gach cuspair a leanas, ag éiridh céum ann an inbhe os-ceann an aoin roimhe ; mar,

“ Cuiribh ri bhur creidimh and to virtue knowledge ; and to knowledge temperance ; and to temperance patience ; and to patience godliness ; and to godliness brotherly kindness ; and to brotherly kindness charity."

14. Antithesis is the placing of objects in opposition, for the purpose of putting them in a stronger light, by contrasting or comparing the one with the other ; as,

" The wicked flee when no man pursueth ; but the righteous are bold as a lion."

Here, Solomon contrasts the timidity of the wicked with the courage of the righteous.

GRAMMATICAL VOCABULARY.

FOCLAIR GRAMARAIL.

The following lucid explanation of the Grammatical Terms used in both Languages will at once instruct and amuse the learner. A portion of them should be got by heart with every lesson, till they are all thoroughly mastered by the pupil.

Words formed from Greek roots are marked with an †.

The English is indebted to the Greek and Latin for its grammatical terms ; but it will be observed from this scheme, that the Gaelic, in most cases, draws upon itself for such terms.

ABSTRACT, a word or principle derived from another, (from abs, from, and tractus, drawn)

ADJECTIVE, a word added to a noun, (from adjectus, added to)

ADVERB, a word joined to another word, (from ad, to, and verbum, a word)

AFFIRMATIVE, yes, asserting, (from ad, to, and firmo, to strengthen)

SGARTA no SGARTACH, focal no bunachur freumhaichte o aon éile, (bho sgar, dealaich)

BUADHAR, fr. (bua-yar) focal a chuitear ri ainmear, (bho buaidh gnè agus fear, aon)

CO-GHNIOMHAR, fr. (co-yniow-ar) focal naisgte ri focal éile, (bho comh ri chéile agus gniomhar)

DEARBHACH, (dearv-ach) ag radh, a' dearbhadh, (bho dearbh, séuch)

- †ALLEGORY, changing one name into another, (from allegoria, a change)
- AMBIGUITY, uncertainty, having two or more meanings, (from ambigo, to doubt)
- †ANALYSIS, separating parts, (from análysis, loosing)
- †ANALOGY, likeness between words or objects, (from ana, through or like, and logos, a word)
- ANTECEDENT, a word going before, (from ante, before, and cedo, to go)
- †ANTITHESIS, comparing or opposing the qualities of objects together, (from anti, against, and tithēmi, to place)
- APPOSITION, placing two or more nouns or adjectives in the same case, (ad, to, and positus, placed)
- APOCOPE, cutting off, (apo, from, and kopto, to cut)
- †APHÆRESIS, taking from, (apo) and aireo, to draw)
- APOSTROPHE, cutting out, or turning away, (apo) and stepho, to turn)
- ARTICLE, the word which points out, (articulus, a point)
- ASPIRATE, to pronounce with full force or stress of the voice; to pronounce a Gaelic consonant with the letter h annexed to it, or with the mouth partly open, and the lips not touching one another, (ad, to, and spiro, to breathe or blow)
- AUXILIARY, a help, a helping verb to form compound tenses, (auxilium, help)
- CASE, the name given to any of
- SEACH-LABHAIRT, b. mùth aoin ainme gu aon éile, (bho seach, éile agus labhair, abair)
- DA-SHEADH, fr. dùbailteachd, teagamh, (bho dà, dithis agus seadh, ciall)
- SNASADH, fr. dealachadh phàirt-ean, (bho snas, gearr, sgath)
- CO-CHÒRDADH, fr. coslas, no freagairt ri chéile, (bho co ri chéile agus còrd, freagair)
- ROIMHAN, fr. (roi-y-an) roimh-fhocal, (bho roimh, air toiseach agus aon, fear)
- TRASDACHD, b. coimeasachadh, cur bhuadhan chuspairean ri aghaidh a chéile, (bho trasd, crois no crosg)
- CÒRDADH, fr. cur dhà no tuille ainmearan no bhuadharan anns an aon char, (faic co-chòrdadh)
- †APOCOPE, b. gearradh dheth, (apo, de, agus kopto, gearr)
- †AFERESIS, b. toirt deth, (apo agus aireo, tarring)
