PREFACE

As the occasion of this poem was real, not fictitious; so the method pursued in it, was rather imposed, by what spentaneously arose in the author's mind, on that occasion, than meditated, or designed. Which will appear very probable from the nature of it. For it differs from the common mode of poetry: which it, from long narrations to draw floort morals: Here, on the contrary, the narrative is short, and the morality arising from it makes the bulk of the poem. The reason of it is, that the sasti mentioned did naturally pour these moral restections on the thought of the writer.

NIGHT THE FIRST.

On LIFE, DEATH, and IMMORTALITY.

Humbly inscribed

To the Right Honourable ARTHUR ONSLOW, Esq; Speaker of the House of Commons.

Tir'd Nature's fweet reflorer, balmy Sleep!
He, like the world, his ready vifit pays,
Where fortune fmiles; the wretched he forfakes:
Swift on his downy pinion flies from wo,
And lights on lids unfully'd with a tear.

And lights on lids unfully'd with a tear. From fhort, (as uiual) and diffurb'd repole, I wake: how happy they who wake no more! Yet that were vain, if dreams infeft the grave. I wake, emerging from a fea of dreams Tumultuous; where my wreck'd, defponding thought, From wave to wave of fancy'd mifery, At random drove, her helm of reason loft: Though now reflor'd, 'its only change of pain, (A bitter change!) severe for sever: The Day too short for my dilrefs! and Night, Even in the zenith of her dark domain, I suffiline to the colour of my fate.

Night, fable goddefs! from her ebon throne, din rayles majefty, now firetches forth fire leaden feeptre o'er a flumb'ring world. Silence, how dead! and darknefs, how profound! Nor eye, nor lift'ning ear, an object finds: Creation fleeps. 'Tis as the general pulse

Of life stood still, and Nature made a pause; An awful paufe! prophetick of her end. And let her prophecy be foon fulfill'd ;

Fate! drop the curtain : I can lose no more. Silence, and Darknefs! folemn fifters ! twins From ancient Night, who nurse the tender thought To Reason, and on Reason build Resolve, (That column of true majesty in man), Affift me : I will thank you in the grave ; The grave, your kingdom: there this frame shall fall

A victim facred to your dreary shrine. But what are ye?

THOU! who didft put to flight Primæval Silence, when the morning-stars, Exulting, shouted o'er the rising ball; O THOU! whose word from folid Darkness ftruck That fpark, the fun : ftrike wifdom from my foul ; My foul which flies to thee, her truft, her treafure,

As mifers to their gold, while others reft. Through this opaque of nature, and of foul, This double night, transmit one pitying ray, To lighten, and to chear. O lead my mind. A mind that fain would wander from its wo),

Lead it through various scenes of life and death; And from each scene, the noblest truths inspire. Nor less inspire my conduct, than my song : Teach my best reason, reason; my best will, Teach rectitude: and fix my firm refolve Wisdom to wed, and pay her long arrear. Nor let the vial of thy vengeance, pour'd

On this devoted head, be pour'd in vain-The bell firikes one. We take no note of time,

But from its lofs. To give it then a tongue, Is wife in man. As if an angel fpoke, I feel the folemn found. If heard aright, It is the knell of my departed hours : Where are they? With the years beyond the flood. 3 It is the fignal that demands dispatch: How much is to be done? My hopes and fears Start up alarm'd, and o'er life's narrow verge Look down-on what? a fathomless abyse A dread eternity! how furely mine!

And can eternity belong to me, Poor pensioner on the bounties of an hour? How poor, how rich, how abject, how august, How complicate, how wonderful is man? How passing wonder HE, who made him such i How center'd in our make fuch strange extremes? From different natures, marvelloufly mix'd. Connection exquisite of distant worlds ! Diftinguish'd link in being's endless chain! Midway from nothing, to the Deity! A beam ethereal, fully'd and absorpt ! Though fully'd, and dishonour'd, still divine! Dim miniature of greatness absolute ! Anheir of glory I a frail child of duft ! Helplels immortal! infect infinite! A worm! a god!-1 tremble at myfelf. And in myself am lost ! At home a stranger, Thought wanders up and down, furpris'd, aghaft, And wond'ring at her own: how reason reels O what a miracle to man is man, Triumphantly distress'd! what joy, what dread! Alternately transported, and alarm'd ! What can preferve my life? or what destroy? An angel's arm can't fnatch me from the grave; Legions of angels can't confine me there. 'Tis past conjecture; all things rife in proof:

While o'er my limbs Sleep's foft dominion foread,
What, though my foul fantalick measures trod.
O'er fairy fields; or mourd'd along the gloom
Of pathlefs woods; or down the craggy fleep
Hur'd headlong, fwam with pain the mantled pool;
Or fcal'd the chif; or dane'd on hollow winds,
With antick flapes, wild natives of the brain!
Her ceafelets flight, though devious, freaks her nature
Of fublier effence than the trodden clod;
Adive, afereal, tow'ring, unconfin'd,
Ev'n filent night proclaims any foul immortal;
Ev'n filent night proclaims eternal day.
For human weal, heav'n hufbands all events,
Dull fleep infutuets, nor foper vain dreams in vain.

Why then their lofs deplore, that are not loft?
Why wanders wretched thought their tombs around;
In infided diffrefs? Are angeds there?
Slumbers, rak'd up in duff, ethereal fire?
They live! they greatly live a life on earth
Unkindled, unconceived; and from an eye
Of tendernefs, let heav'nly pity fall
On me, more juftly number'd with the dead.
This is the defert, this the folitude:

How populous! how vital, is the grave!
This is creation's melancholy vault,
The vale funereal, the fad cypress gloom;
The land of apparitions, empty shades!

All, all on earth is fhadow, all beyond Is fubfance; the reverfe is Folly's creed: How folid all, where change shall be no more?

This is the bud of being, the dim dawn,

The twilight of our day, the veftibule;

The twilight of our day, the weltibule; Life's thearte as yet is flut, and Death, Strong Death, alone can heave the maffy bar, This grofs impediment of clay remove, And make us embryose of existence free. From real life, but little more remote Is be, not yet a candidate for light, The future embryo, slumb'ring in his fire. Embryoes we must be, till we burst the shell, Yon ambient, azure shell, and spring to life, Yon ambient, azure shell, and spring to life, The life of reals Ottanfort, and of man.

The life of gods, O transport, and of man.
Yet man, fool man! here buries all his thoughts;
Inters celetial shopes without one fight:
Pris'ner of earth, and pent beneath the moon,

Here pinions all his wifnes; wing'd by heaven To fly at infinite; and reach it there, Where feraphs gather immortality, On life's fair tree, fast by the throng of God.

On life's fair tree, fast by the throne of God. What golden joys ambrofial clust'ring glow In H1S full beam, and ripen for the just,

Where momentary ages are no more!

Where Time, and Pain, and Chance, and Death expire!

And is it in the flight of threefcore years,

To push eternity from human thought, And smother souls immortal in the dust? A foul immortal, fpending all her fires, Wasting her strength in strenous idleness, Thrown into tumult, raptur'd, or alarm'd, At aught this scene can threaten, or indulge, Resembles occan into tempest wrought, To wast a feather, or to drown a fly.

Where falls the cenfure? It o'erwhelms myfelf. How was my heart encuthed by the world O how felf-fetter'd was my groveling foul! How, like a worm, was I wrapt round and round. In filken thought, which reptile Pane, fpun, Till darken'd Roofin lay quite clouded o'er With folt concett of endles comfort kere,

Nor vet put forth her wings to reach the fkies! Night-visions may befriend, (as fung above:) Our waking dreams are fatal: how I dream'd Of things impossible! (could sleep do more?), Of joys perpetual in perpetual change? Of stable pleasures on the tossing wave? Eternal funshine in the storms of life? How richly were my noontide trances hung With gorgeous tapestries of pictur'd joys? Joy behind joy, in endless perspective! Till, at Death's toll, whose restless iron tongue Calls daily for his millions at a meal, Starting, I woke, and found myfelf undone. Where now my frenzy's pompous furniture? The cobwebb'd cottage, with its ragged wall. Of mould'ring mud, is royalty to me! The fpider's most attenuated thread

Is cord, is cable, to man's tender tie
On earthly blifs; it breaks at ev'ry breeze.
O ye blefs'd fcenes of permanent delight!
Full, above measure! lafting, beyond bound to
A perpetuity of blifs is blifs.

A perpetuity of bilis is bilis. Could you, for thin is rapture, fear an end, That ghafily thought would drisk up all your joy,... And quite unparadife the realms of light. Safe are you lodge'd above these rolling spheres;. The baleful influence of whose giddy dance Sheds sad vicilitude on all beneath.

Here teems with revolutions every hour

And rarely for the better; or the beft,
More mortal than the common births of fate.
Each moment has its fickle, enulous
Of Time's enormous feythe, whofe ample fweep
Strikes empires from the root; each moment plays
His little weapon in the narrower fphere
Of fweet domeffick comfort, and cuts down
The faireth bloom of fubbunary blifs.

Blifs! fublunary blifs!—proud words, and vain!

A bold invalion of the rights of heav'n!
I class of the phantoms, and I found them air.
O had I weigh'd it ere my fond embrace!

What darts of agony had mis'd my heart ! Death! great proprietor of all! 'tis thine To tread out empire, and to quench the ftars. The Sun himself by thy permission shines, And, one day, thou shalt pluck him from his sphere-Amid fuch mighty plunder, why exhauft 'Thy partial quiver on a mark fo mean? Why thy peculiar rancour wreck'd on me? Infatiate archer! could not one fuffice? Thy shaft flew thrice; and thrice my peace was slain; And thrice, ere thrice you moon had fill'd her horn. O Cynthia! why fo pale? dost thou lament Thy wretched neighbour? grieve to fee thy wheel Of ceaseless change outwhirl'd in human life? How wanes my borrow'd blifs! From Fortune's smile, Precarious courtefy! not Virtue's, fure, Self-given, folar, ray of found delight.

In every vary'd poffure, place, and hour,
How widow'd every thought of every joy!
Thought, bufy thought! too bufy for my peace!
Through the dark poffern of Time long elaps'd,
'Led foitly, by the fillness of the night,
Led, like a murderer, (and fuch it proves!),
Strays (wertched rover!) o'er the pleasing pags.
In quest of wretched rose preversely strays;
And sinds all defert now; and meets the ghosts
Of my departed joys, a numerous train!
I rue the riches of my former fate;
Sweet Comfort's blasted clusters I lament;

I tremble at the bleffings once fo dear;
And every pleafure pains me to the heart.
Yet why complains? or why complain for one of Hangs out the fun his luftre but for me,
The fingle man? are angels all befide?
I mourn for millions: 'tis the common lot;
I mourn for, or in that, has fate entail'd.
The mother's throes on all of woman born,
Not more the children, than fure heirs of pain.

War, famine, peft, volcano, ftorm, and fire, Intestine broils, Oppression, with her heart Wrapt up in triple brass, besiege mankind : God's image, difinherited of day. Here plung'd in mines, forgets a fun was made; There, beings deathless as their haughty lord. Are hammer'd to the galling oar for life; And plough the winter's wave, and reap despair : Some, for hard mafters, broken under arms, In battle lopt away, with half their limbs, Beg bitter bread through realms their valour fav'd, If so the tyrant, or his minion, doom : Want, and incurable difeafe, (fell pair!), On hopeless multitudes remorfeless seize At once; and make a refuge of the grave; How groaning bospitals eject their dead? What numbers groan for fad admission there? What numbers, once in Fartune's lap high-fed. Solicit the cold hand of Charity? To shock us more, folicit it in vain? Ye filken fons of pleasure I fince in pains You rue more modish visits, visit bere, And breathe from your debauch : give, and reduce Surfeit's dominion o'er you: but so great Your impudence, you blush at what is right !

Happy! did forrow feize on fuck alone;
Not Prudence can defend, or Virtue fave;
Difease invades the chasfelt temperance;
And punishment the guiltles; and alarm
Thro' thickeft shades purfues the fond of peace;
Man's caution often into danger turns,
And his guard falling, crushes him to death.
Not Happiness itself makes good her name;

Our very wishes give us not our wish; How distant oft the thing we dote on most. From that for which we dote, felicity? The moothest course of nature has its pains. And truest friends, through error, wound our reft. Without misfortune, what calamities? And what hostilities, without a foe? Nor are foes wanting to the best on earth :

And fighs might fooner fail, than cause to figh. A part how small of the terraqueous globe Is tenanted by man? the rest a waste, Rocks, deferts, frozen feas, and burning fands; Wild-haunts of monsters, poifons, stings, and death. Such is earth's melancholy map! But far More fad ! this earth is a true map of man: So bounded are its haughty lord's delights To Wo's wide empire; where deep troubles tofs; Loud forrows howl; envenom'd passions bite ! Ravenous calamities our vitals feize. . And threat'ning Fate wide-opens to devour.

But endless is the lift of human ills,

What then am I, who forrow for myfelf? In age, in infancy, from others aid Is all our hope; to teach us to be kind; That, Nature's first, last leffon to mankind : The felfish heart deserves the pain it feels; More generous forrow, while it finks, exalts, And conscious virtue mitigates the pang. Nor Virtue, more than Prudence, bids me give Swoln thought a fecond channel; who divide, They weaken too, the torrent of their grief: Take then, O world! thy much-indebted tear. How fad a fight is human happiness. To those whose thought can pierce beyond an hour? O thou! whate'er thou art, whose heart exults! Wouldst thou I should congratulate thy fate? I know thou wouldft; thy pride demands it from me, Let thy pride pardon, what thy nature needs, The falutary centure of a friend. Thou happy wretch! by blindness art thou bless'd;

By dotage dandled to perpetual smiles. Know, fmiler ! at thy peril art thou pleas'd;

Thy pleafure is the promife of thy pain.

Misfortune, like a creditor fevere,
But rifes in demand for her delay;
She makes a feourge of past prosperity,
To sting thee more, and double thy distress.

LOBENZO, Fortune makes her court to thee; Thy fond heart dances, while the Siren fings. Dear is thy welfare; think me not unkind; I would not damp, but to fecure thy joys: Think not that fear is facred to the ftorm: Stand on thy guard against the fmiles of fate. Is heav'n tremendous in its frown! most fure; And in its favours formidable too: Its favours here are trials, not rewards: A call to duty, not discharge from care: And should alarm us, full as much as woes; Awake us to their cause, and consequence, O'er our scann'd conduct give a jealous eye, And make us tremble, weigh'd with our defert; Awe Nature's tumult, and chaftife her joys, Lest while we clasp, we kill them; nay invert, To worse than simple misery, their charms: Revolted joys, like foes in civil war, Like bosom friendships to refentment four'd. With rage envenom'd rife against our peace. Beware what earth calls happiness; beware All joys, but joys that never can expire: Who builds on less than an immortal base, Fond as he feems, condemns his joys to death.

Mine dy'd with thee, Philaspina! thy last fight Dissolved the charm; the disendanted earth Lost all her lustre. Where, her glittering towers? Her golden mountains, where? all darken'd down To naked waste; a dreary vale of tears; The great magician's dead! Thou poor, pale piece of outcast earth, in darkensis! what a change From yesterday! thy darling hope so near, (Long-labour'd prize!) O how Ambition sush'd ally glowing check? Ambition truly great, of virtuous praise: Death's fubble seed within, (Sly, treacherous miner!), working in the dark, Smill'd at thy well-opnerted scheme, and beckon'd

The worm to riot on that rose so red, Unfaded ere it fell; one moment's prey!

Untaded ere it self; one moment's prey:
Man's foreight is conditionally wife;
Lorright is wife into folly turns
Oft, the first instant its idea fair
To labouring thought is born. How dim our eye?
The prefew moment terminates our fight;
Clouds thick as those on doomsday, drown the next;
We penetrace; we prophely in vain.
Time is dealt out by particles; and each,
Ere mingled with the streaming sands of life,
By Fate's inviolable oath is sworn
Deep slence, "Where eternity begins."
Zy Nature's law, what may be may be now;

There's no prerogative in human hours. In human hearts what bolder thought can rife, Than man's prefumption on to-morrow's dawn? Where is to-morrow? In another world. For numbers this is certain; the reverfe Is fure to none; and yet on this perhaps, This peradventure, infamous for lies, As on a rock of adamant we build. Our mountain-hopes; Ipin out eternal fchemes, As we the fatal fifters could out-fpin,

And, big with life's futurities, expire. Not even PHILANDER had bespoke his shroud; Nor had he cause, a warning was deny'd; How many fall as fudden, not as fafe? As fudden, though for years admonish'd, home? Of human ills the last extreme beware, Beware, LORENZO! a flow fudden death. How dreadful that deliberate furprise? Be wife to-day, 'tis madness to defer : Next day the fatal precedent will plead ; Thus on, till wisdom is push'd out of life: Procrastination is the thief of time;" Year after year it steals, till all are fled, And to the mercies of a moment leaves The vaft concerns of an eternal scene." If not fo frequent, would not this be strange? That 'tis fo frequent, this is stranger still.

Of man's miraculous mistakes, this bears

The palm, " That all men are about to live," For ever on the brink of being born. All pay themselves the compliment to think They, one day, shall not drivel; and their pride On this reversion takes up ready praise; At least, their own ; their future selves applauds ; How excellent that life they neer will lead? Time lodg'd in their own hands, is Folly's vales ; That lodg'd in Fate's, to wifdom they confign ; The thing they can't but purpole, they postpone: 'Tis not in Felly, not to fcorn a fool: And scarce in human wisdom to do more All promise is poor dilatory man, And that thro' every stage : when young, indeed, In full content, we fometimes nobly reft, Unanxious for ourselves; and only wish, As duteous fons, our fathers were more wife : At thirty man suspects himself a fool; Knows it at forty, and reforms his plan; At fifty chides his infamous delay. Pushes his prudent purpose to resolve ; In all the magnanimity of thought Resolves; and re-resolves: then dies the same. And why? because he thinks himself immortal: All men think all men mortal, but themselves : Themselves, when some alarming shock of fate Strikes thro' their wounded hearts the fudden dread a But their hearts wounded, like the wounded sir, Soon close; where pass'd the shaft, no trace is found : As from the wing no fcar the fky retains; The parted wave no furrow from the keel ;

Soon clofe; where passed the shaft, no trace is four As from the swing no sear the sky retains; The parted wave no furrows from the ked; So dies in human hearts the thought of deaths. Even with the tender tear which Nature sheds. O'er those we love, we drop it in their grave. Can I forget Prilanges? That were frange; O my full heart!—but should I give it vent, The longest night, though longer six, would fail, And the lark litten to my whitesets from.

The sprightly lark's shrill matin wakes the morn; Grief's sharpest thorn hard-pressing on my breast, I strive, with wakeful melody, to chear

The fullen gloom, fweet Philomel! like thee. And call the ftars to liften : every ftar Is deaf to mine, enamour'd of thy lav. Yet be not vain: there are who thine excel-And charm through diftant ages : wrapt in shade, Prisoner of darkness! to the filent hours. How often I repeat their rage divine, To lull my griefs, and steal my heart from wo? I roll their raptures, but not catch their flame, Dark, though not blind, like thee, Maonides! Or Milton! thee: ah cou'd I reach your ftrain! Or his, who made Maonides our own. Man too he fung : immortal man I fing ; Oft burfts my fong beyond the bounds of life; What, now, but immortality can please? O had he press'd his theme, pursu'd the track, Which opens out of darkness into day ! O had he mounted on his wing of fire, Soar'd, where I fink, and fung immortal man! How had it blefs'd mankind? and rescu'd me?

NIGHT THE SECOND.

TIME, DEATH, FRIENDSHIP

Humbly Inscribed

To the RIGHT HONOURABLE

The Earl of WILMINGTON.

TATHEN the cock crew, he wept,"-fmote by that eye Which looks on me, on all: that pow'r, who bids This midnight-centinel with clarion shrill, Emblem of that which shall awake the deed. Rouse fouls from flumber, into thoughts of beau'n. Shall I too weep? where then is fortitude? And fortitude abandon'd, where is man? I know the terms on which he fees the light : He that is born, is lifted: life is war : Eternal war with wo : who bears it best, Deferves it leaft .- On other themes I'll dwell. LORENZO! let me turn my thoughts on thee, And thine, on themes may profit; profit there. Where most thy need : themes, too, the genuine growth Of dear PHILANDER's dust. He thus, tho' dead, May still befriend .- What themes? Time's wondrous Death, Friendship, and PHILANDER's final scene : [price. Themes meet for man ! and meet at ev'ry hour. But most at this, at midnight, ever clad In Death's own fables ; filent as his realms : And prone to weep; profuse of dewy tears O'er Nature, in her temporary tomb.

So could I touch these themes, as might obtain Thine ear, nor leave thy heart quite dilengag'd, The good deed would delight me; half impress On my dark cloud an Irin; and from grief

Call

Call glary.—Doft thou mourn PRILARDER'S fate? I know thou fay'ft it: fays thy life the fame? He mourns the dead, who lives as they defire. Where is that thrift, that avarice of Time, (O glorious avarice), thought of death infpires, As rumour'd robberies endear our gold? O Yime? than gold more faceed; more a load Than lead, to fools; and fools reputed wife. What moment granted man without account? What years are fiquander'd, wifdom's debt unpaid? Our wealth in days all due to that difcharge. Hafte, hafte, he lies in wait, he's at the door, Infidious Death! flould his firong hand arreft, No composition fets the prioner free;

Fast binds; and vengeance claims the full arrears. How late I shudder'd on the brink? how late Life call'd for her last refuge in despair? That time is mine, O MEAD! to thee I owe;

Eternity's inexorable chain

Fain would I pay thee with eteroity:
But ill my genius aniwers my defire,
My fickly fong is mortal, palt thy cure.
Accept the will; it dies not with my firain.
For what calls thy difficale, LORNAG not
For Bifelalapian, but for moral aid.
Thou think'fi it folly to be wife too foon.
Youth is not rich in time; it may be, poor:
Part with it as with money, fparing; pay
No moment, but in purchale of its worth:
And what its worth, afk death-beds, they can tell.
Part with it as with life, rluckant; big
With holy hope of nobler time to come:
Time higher-aim'd, fill learer the great mark

Is this our duty, wisdom, glory, gain?
(These heaven benign in vital union binds),
And sport we like the natives of the bough,
When veroal suns inspire! Anuspenent seegns
Man's great demand: to trifle is to live:

Of men and angels; virtue more divine.

Man's great demand: to trifle is to live: And is it then a trifle, too, to die? Thou fay'st, I preach; Lorenzo! 'tis confes'd. What if, for once, I preach thee quite asuake? Who wants amufement in the flame of battle? Is it not treaton, to the foul immortal, there for in arms, eternity the prize? Will toys amule, when medicines cannot cure? When fipitis ebb, when life's enchanting feenes Their luftre lofe, and leffen in our fight, (As lands, and cities with their glitt'ring fpires, To the poor flatter'd bark, by fudden florm Thrown off to fea, and floon to perift there), Will toys amufe?—No: thrones will then be toys, And earth and fkies feen dult upon the feale.

Redeem we time ?- its loss we dearly buy. What pleads LORENZO for his high-priz'd sports? He pleads Time's numerous blanks; he loudly pleads-The straw-like trifles on life's common stream. From whom those blanks and trifles, but from thee ? No blank or trifle, Nature made or meant. Virtue, or purpos'd virtue, flill be thine : This cancels thy complaint at once; this leaves In act no trifle, and no blank in time : This greatens, fills, immortalizes all; This, the blefs'd art of turning all to gold; This, the good heart's prerogative to raise A royal tribute from the poorest hours : Immense revenue! every moment pays. If nothing more than purpose in thy power, Thy purpose firm, is equal to the deed : Who does the best his circumstance allows, Does well, acts nobly; angels could no more. Our outward act, indeed, admits reftraint;

Does well, acts nobity; angels could no more.

Our outward ach, indeed, admits reftraint;

This not in things o'er thought to domineer: [heaven Guard well thy thoughts; our thoughts are heard in On all-important Time, through every age,
Though much, and warm, the wife have urg'd; the man Is yet unborn, who duly weighs an hour.

"I've loft a day,"—the prince who nobly cry'd, I'd been an emperor without his crown; I'd Rome? faye rather, lord of human race; I'le fpoke, as if deputed by mankind. So flound all fpeak: fo Reafon fpeaks in all. From the foft whifpers of that god in man, Why Ry to, folly, why to frenzy Ry,

B. 2.

For rescue from the blessing we posses?

Time, the supreme!—Time is eternity;

Pregnant with all eternity can give;

Pregnant with all that makes archangels smile:

Who murders Time, he crushes in the birth

A pow'r ethereal, only not ador'd.

Ah! how unjust to Nature, and himself, Is thoughtlefs, thanklefs, inconfiftent Man? Like children babbling nonfenfe in their fports, We cenfure Nature for a span too short; That fpan too fhort, we tax as tedious too, Torture invention, all expedients tire, To lash the ling'ring moments into speed, And whirl us (happy riddance!) from ourfelves. Art. brainless Art! our furious charioteer (For Nature's voice unstifled would recal) Drives headlong towards the precipice of death; Death, most our dread; death thus more dreadful made. O what a riddle of abfurdity! Leifure is pain ; takes off our chariot-wheels ; How heavily we drag the load of life! Bles'd leifure is our curse; like that of Cain, It makes us wander; wander earth around To fly that tyrant, Thought. As Atlas groan'd

It makes us wander; wander earth around To fly that tyrant, Thought. As Alias groan' The world beneath, we groan beneath an hour: We cry for mexey to the next amufement; The next amufement mortgages our fields; Slight inconvenience! prilons hardly frown, From hateful Time, if prisons here us free. Yet, when Death kindly tenders us relief; We call him cruel; years to moments shrink, Ages to years. The telescope is turn'd. To man's fasse opicies, from his folly falle, Time, in advance, behind him luides his wings, And seems to creep, decrept with his age: Behold him, when pass'd by; what then is seen But his broad pinions switter, than the winds?

Leave to thy foes these errors, and these ills, To Nature just, their cause and cure explore. Not short heaven's bounty, boundless our expence:

And all mankind, in contradiction firong, Rueful, aghaft I cry out at his career. No niggard, Nature : men are prodigals. As bold Alphonfus threaten'd in his pride, We throw away our funs, as made for fport, And not to light us, on our way to scenes Whose luftre turns their luftre into shade. We waste, not use our time : we breathe, not live, Time wasted is existence, us'd is life : And bare existence, man, to live ordain'd, Wrings, and oppreffes with enormous weight. And why ? fince Time was given for use, not waste, Injoin'd to fly ; with tempeft, tide, and ftars, To keep his speed, nor ever wait for man ; Time's use was doom'd-a pleasure; waste, a pain; That man might feel his error, if unforn; And, feeling, fly to labour for his cure : Not, blundering, fplit on idleness, for eafe. Life's cares are comforts : fuch by heaven defign'd :: He that has none, must make them, or be wretched. Cares are employments; and, without employ, The foul is on a rack : the rack of reft ; To fouls most adverse; action all their joy.

Here, then, the riddle, mark'd above, unfolds j. Then time turns torment, when man turns a fool. We rave, we weelle with great Nature's plan; We thwart the Deity; and 'tis decreed, Who thwart this will, fitall contradict their own. Hence our unnatural quarred with ourfelves; Our thoughts at enmity; our bofom-broil; We publ time from us, and we with him back, Lavih of Jultrums, and yet fond of life; Life we think long, and flort; Jeath feek, and flun; Body and foul, like peerlin man and wife.

United jar, and yet are loath to part.

Oh the dark days of vanity! while here; How.talleleis' and how terrible, when gone? Gone? they ne'er go; when paß, they haunt us flill; The fpirit walks of ev'ry day deceas'd, And fmiles an angel; or a fury frowns. Nor death, not life delights us. If time paß, And 'me poffer'd, both pain uts, what can pleafe?. That which the Deity to pleafe ordain'd, Time u's'. The man who confectates his hours

18 By vig'rous effort, and an honest aim,

At once he draws the sting of life and death : He walks with Nature ; and her paths are peace. Our error's cause and cure are seen : see next

Time's nature, origin, importance, speed; And thy great gain from urging his career .-All-fenfual man, because untouch'd, unseen, He looks on Time, as nothing. Nothing elfe Is truly man's; 'tis Fortune's .- Time's a god. Thou hast ne'er heard of Time's omnipotence; For, or against, what wonders can he do? And will : to fland blank neuter he difdains. Not on those terms was Time (heaven's ftranger!) fent On his important embaffy to man. LORENZO! no : on the long destin'd hour, From everlasting ages growing ripe, That memorable hour of wondrons birth.

When the dread fire, on emanation bent, And big with Nature, rifing in his might, Call'd forth creation, (for then Time was born), By Godhead ftreaming through a thousand worlds, Not on those terms, from the great days of heaven, From old Eternity's mysterious orb,

Was Time cut off, and cast beneath the skies ; The skies, which watch him in his new abode. Measuring his motions by revolving spheres; That horologe machinery divine.

Hours, days, and months, and years, his children, play, Like numerous wings, around him, as he flies: Or, rather, as unequal plumes, they shape His ample pinions, swift as darted flame,

To gain his goal, to reach his ancient rest, And join a new Eternity his fire; In his immutability to nest,

When worlds, that count his circles now, unling'd, (Fate the loud fignal founding) headlong rush To timelest night, and chaos, whence they rose.

Why ipur the speedy? why with levities New-wing thy short, short day's too rapid flight? Know'st thou, or what thou dost, or what is done? Man flies from Time, and Time from man : too foon In fad divorce, this double flight must end;

And

And then, where are we? where, LORENZO! then. Thy sports? thy pomps ?- I grant thee, in a state Not unambitions : in the ruffled shroud. Thy Parian tomb's triumphant arch beneath. Has Death his fopperies? then well may Life

Put on her plume, and in her rainbow shine. Ye well array'd! ye lilies of our land!

Ve lilies male! who neither toil nor fpin. (As fifter lilies might), if not so wife As Solomon, more fumptuous to the fight ! Ye delicate! who nothing can support, Yourselves most insupportable! for whom The winter-rose must blow, the fun put on A brighter beam in Leo ; filky-foft Faronius breathe ftill fofter, or be chid : And other worlds fend odours, fauce, and fong, And robes, and notions, fram'd in foreign looms ! O ye LORENZOS of our age! who deem One moment unamus'd, a mifery Not made for feeble man! who call aloud For every bauble, drivel'd o'er by fense : For rattles, and conceits of every caft, For change of follies, and relays of joy, To drag you, patient, through the tedious length

Of a short winter's day ;- fay, fages! fay, Wit's oracles! fay, dreamers of gay dreams! How will you weather an eternal night,

Where such expedients fail? where wit's a fool,

Mirth mourns; dreams vanish; laughter drops a tear? O treach'rous Conscience! while she seems to sleep On role and myrtle, lull'd with firen fong ;

While she feems, nodding o'er her charge, to drop On headlong Appetite the flacken'd rein, And give us up to Licence, unrecall'd, Unmark'd :- fee, from behind her fecret ftand,

The fly informer minutes every fault, And her dread diary with horror fills : Not the gross all alone employs her pen;

She reconnoitres Fancy's airy band, A watchful foe! The formidable fpy,

List'ning, o'erhears the whispers of our camp; Our dawning purpoles of heart explores,

And fteals our embryoes of iniquity. As all-rapacious usurers conceal Their doomfday-book, from all-confuming heirs : Thus, with indulgence most fevere, she treats Us, spendthrifts of inestimable Time : Unnoted, notes each moment misapply'd: In leaves more durable than leaves of brafs, Writes our whole hiftory ; which Death shall read In every pale delinquent's private ear ; And Judgment publish: publish to more worlds Than this; and endless age in groans resound. LORENZO, fuch that fleeper in thy breaft ! Such is her flumber : and her vengeance fuch. For flighted counsel; fuch thy future peace! And think'ft thou still thou canst be wife too foon ? But why on Time fo lavish is my fong?

On this great theme kind Nature keeps a school, To teach her fons herfelf. Each night we die, Each morn are born anew: each day, a life ! And shall we kill each day? If trifling kills; Sure vice must butcher. O what heaps of slain Cry out for vengeance on us? Time destroy'd Is fuicide, where more than blood is spilt. Time flies, death urges, knells call, heaven invites Hell threatens; all exerts; in effort, all: More than creation labours !- Labours more? And is there in creation, what, amidit This tumult universal, wing'd dispatch. And ardent energy, supinely yawns ?-Man fleeps; and man alone; and man, whose fate, Fate irreverfible, entire, extreme, Endless, hair-hung, breeze-shaken, o'er the gulf A moment trembles; drops! and man, for whom. All elfe is in alarm : man, the fole caufe Of this furrounding ftorm ! and yet he fleeps, As the florm rock'd to reft. - Throw years away? Throw empires, and be blameless. Moments feize: Heaven's on their wing: a moment we may wish, When worlds want wealth to buy. Bid day ftand ftill, Bid him drive back his car, recal, retake Fate's hafty prey; implose him, reimport The period paft, regive the given hour-

LORENZOS

LORENZO, more than miracles we want:

LORENZO—O for yesterdays to come!

Such is the language of the man annale;
His ardour fuch, for what sperefer thee.
And is his ardour vain? LORENZO! No:
That more than miracle the gods indulge:
To-day is yelferday return'd;
Full: power'd to cancel, expiate, raile, adorn,
And reinflate us on the rock of peace.
Let it not fhare its predeceffor's fate;
Nor, like its elder fifters, die a fool.
Shall it evaporate in fume? fly off
Fullginous, and flain us deeper fliil?
Shall we be poorer for the plenty pour'd?
More wretched for the elemencies of heav'n?
Where flail I find him? angels! Itell me where:

You know him; he is near you : point him out. Shall I fee glories beaming from his brow? Or trace his footsteps by the rising flow'rs? Your golden wings, now hov'ring o'er him, shed Protection; now are waving in applaule To that blefs'd fon of forefight ! lord of fate! That awful independent on to-morrow! Whose work is done; who triumphs in the past; Whose yesterdays look backwards with a smile: Nor, like the Parthian, wound him as they fly; That common, but opprobrious lot ! Past hours, If not by guilt, yet wound us by their flight, If folly bounds our prospect by the grave; All feeling of suturity benumb'd; All God-like passion for eternals quench'd; All relish of realities expir'd : Renounc'd all correspondence with the skies: Our freedom chain'd; quite wingless our desire; In fense dark-prison'd all that ought to foar, Prone to the centre, crawling in the dust; Dismounted every great and glorious aim; Embruted every faculty divine; Heart-buried in the rubbish of the world: The world, that gulf of fouls, immortal fouls,.. Souls elevate, angelick, wing'd with fire To reach the distant skies, and triumph there

On thrones, which shall not mourn their masters chang'd, Though we from earth; ethereal, they that fell.

Such veneration due, O man, to man.

Who venerate themselves, the world despise. For what, gay friend! is this elcutcheon'd world, Which hangs out DEATH in one eternal night? A night, that glooms us in the noontide ray, And wraps our thought, at banquets, in the shroud. Life's little stage is a small eminence. Inch-high the grave above; that home of man, Where dwells the multitude : we gaze around ; We read their monuments; we figh; and while We figh, we fink; and are what we deplor'd; Lamenting, or lamented, all our lot!

Is Death at distance? No: he has been on thee; And given fure earnest of his final blow. Those hours, which lately fmil'd, where are they now? Pallid to thought, and ghaftly ! drown'd, all drown'd In that great deep, which nothing difembogues; And, dying, they bequeath'd thee small renown. The rest are on the wing : how fleet their flight ! Already has the fatal train took fire ;

A moment, and the world's blown up to thee;

The fun is darkness, and the stars are dust. Time paffes like a post : we nothing fend But poor Bellerophon's express; our doom. 'Tis greatly wife to talk with our past hours; And ask them, what report they bore to heaven; And how they might have borne more welcome news.

Their answers form what men Experience call; If Wildom's friend, her best; if not, worst foe, O reconcile them; kind Experience cries,

" There's nothing here, but what as nothing weighs ; "The more our joy, the more we know it vain;

" And by success are tutor'd to despair." Nor is it only thus, but must be so.

Who knows not this, though grey, is still a child. Loofe then from earth the grasp of fond defire, Weigh anchor, and some happier clime explore-

Art thou fo moor'd thou canft not difengage, Nor give thy thoughts a ply to future scenes Since, by life's paffing breath, blown up from earth,

Light,

A moment's giddy flight, and fall again; Join the dull mass, increase the trodden soil, And fleen till earth herfelf shall be no more: Since then (as emmets their small world o'erthrown) We, fore amaz'd, from out earth's ruins crawl, And rife to fate extreme, of foul or fair, As man's own choice, (controller of the skies !), As man's despotic will, perhaps one hour, (O how omnipotent is Time!) decrees; Should not each warning give a flrong alarm? Warning, far less than that of bosom torn From bosom, bleeding o'er the facred dead? Should not each dial strike us as we pals. Portentous, as the written wall, which fruck. O'er midnight-bowls, the proud Affyrian pale, Erewhile high-flush'd with insolence and wine? Like that, the dial speaks; and points to thee, LORENZO ! loath to break the banquet up: " O man, thy kingdom is departing from thee; 46 And, while it lasts, is emptier than my shade." Its filent language fuch : nor need'it thou call Thy Magi, to decypher what it means. Know, like the Median, fate is in thy walls: Doft afk, how? whence? Belshazzar-like, amaz'd? Man's make incloses the fure feeds of death; Life feeds the murderer : ingrate ! he thrives On her own meal : and then his ourse devours. But here, LORENZO, the delufion lies : That folar shadow, as it measures life, It life refembles too : life speeds away From point to point, though feeming to fland fill? The cunning fugitive is swift by stealth; Too fubtle is the movement to be feen, Yet foon man's hour is up, and we are gone. Warnings point out our danger; gnomons, time: As these are useless when the fun is set; So those, but when more glorious Reason shines, Reason should judge in all; in Reason's eye,

That fedentary fladow travels hard: But fuch our gravitation to the wrong, So prone our hearts to whifper what we wish, Tis later with the wife; than he's aware; A Wilmington goes flower than the fin; And all mankind mittake their time of day; Even age itfelf: fresh hopes are hourly fown In furrow'd brows. So gentle life's defcent, We that our eyes, and think it is a plain: We take fair days in winter, for the fpring: And turn our bleffings into bane. Since of Man mult compute that age he cannot feel; He fearce believes he's older for his years. Thus, at life's latest eve, we keep in store One disappointment fure, to crown the rest; The disappointment of a promis'd hour.

On this, or fimilar, Perlander I thou Whofe mind was moral, as the preacher's tongue; And Itrong, to wield all Icience, worth the name; How often we talk'd down the fummer's fun, And cool'd our paffions by the breezy fream! How often thaw'd, and fhorten'd winter's eve, By conflick kind, that flruck out latent truth; Bell found, fo fought; to the rechife more coy? Thoughts difentangle paffing o'er the lip; Clean runs the thread; if not, 'its thrown away, Or kept to tie up nonfenfe for a fong; Soog, fashionably fruitlefs! fuch as flains The funcy, and unhallow'd paffion fires; Chiming her faints to Cuthera's a func.

Know'tt thou, Lork'201 what a friend contains? As bees mix'd nectar draw from fragrant flow'rs, So men from Friennship, suifform and delight; Twins ty'd by nature, if they part, they die. Hait thou no friend to fet thy mind abroach? Good longe will diagnate: thoughts thut up, want air, And fpoil, like bales unopen'd to the fun. Had thought been all, fweet 'fpeech had been deny'd: Speech, thought's canal! fpeech, thought's criterion too. Thought in the mine, may come forth gold or drofs; When coin'd in word, we know its read worth. If therling, flore it for thy future ufe; 'Twill buy thee benefit; perhaps, renown. Thought, too, deliver'd, is the more politie'd; 'Feeching, we learn; and, giving, we retain

The births of intellect : when dumb, forgot, Sheech ventilates our intellectual fire: Speech burnishes our mental magazines Brightens for ornament; and whets for ufe. What numbers sheath'd in erudition lie, Plung'd to the hilts in venerable tomes. And rufted in ; who might have borne an edge, And play'd a sprightly beam if born to speech; If born blefs'd heirs of half their mother's tongue? 'Tis thought's exchange, which, like th' alternate push Of waves conflicting, breaks the learned fours, And defecates the fludent's flanding pool.

In contemplation is his proud resource? "Tis poor, as proud, by converse unsustain'd; Rude thought runs wild in contemplation's field : Converse, the menage, breaks it to the bit Of due restraint; and emulation's spur Gives graceful energy, by rivals aw'd. 'Tis converse qualifies for solitude; As exercise, for falutary rest.

By that untutor'd, Contemplation taves

A lunar prince, or famish'd beggar dies ; And Nature's fool, by Wildom's is outdone. Wildom, though richer than Peruvian mines.

And sweeter than the sweet ambrofial hive, What is flie, but the means of habbinels? That unobtain'd, than folly more a fool ; A melancholy fool, without her bells : Friendship the means, and friendship richly gives

The precious end, which makes our wifdom wife, Nature, in zeal for human amity, Denies, or damps an undivided iov. Joy is an import; joy is an exchange;

Joy flies monopolists: it calls for two: Rich fruit! heav'n-planted! never pluck'd by one. Needful auxiliars are our friends, to give

To focial man true relish of himself. Full on ourselves descending in a line Pleasure's bright beam, is feeble in delight : Delight intense, is taken by rebound;

Reverberated pleasures fire the breast.

Celedial Happiness, whene'er the stoops
To visit earth, one shrine the goddes finds,
And one alone, to make her sweet amends
For absent heaven—the bolom of a friend;
Where heart meets heart, reciprocally fost,
Each other's pillow to repose divine.
Beware the counterfeit: in Passow's same
Hearts melt; but melt like ice, soon harder froze,
True love strikes root in Ressow; Passow's five;
Writze alone entenders us for life:

I wrong her much—entenders us for ever.

Of Friendship's fairest fruits, the fruit most fair
Is Virtue kindling at a rival fire,

And, enulous, rapid in her race.

And, emuloufly, rapid in her race.

O the foft enmity! endearing firife

This carries Friendship to her noontide point,

And gives the rivet of eternity.

From Friendship, which outlives my former themes.

Prom Prientlying, which outless my former them Glorious furrivor of old Time, and Death!
From friendflip, thus, that flow'r of heavenly feed,
The wife extract earth's month Hybban bilis,
Superior wildom, crown'd with fmiling joy;
For joy, from friendflip born, abounds in fmiles.
Office it in the foul's most golden cell;

But for whom bloffoms this Elvhan flower?

Abroad they find, who cherish it at home. LORENZO! pardon what my love extorts, An honest love, and not afraid to frown. Though choice of follies fasten on the great, None olings more obstinate, than fancy fond That facred friendship is their easy prey ; Caught by the wafture of a golden lure ; Or fascination of a high born smile. Their fmiles the great and the coquet throw out For others hearts, tenacious of their own: And we no less of ours, when fuch the bait. Ye Fortune's cofferers! ye powers of wealth! You do your rent-rolls most felonious wrong, By taking our attachment to yourselves. Can gold gain friendship? impudence of hope! As well mere man an angel might beget. Love, and love only, is the loan for love.

LORENZO!

Lokenzo! pride represe; nor hope to find A friend, but what has found a friend in thee. All like the purchase, few the price will pay; And this makes friends such miracles below.

What if (fince daring on so nice a theme) I show the friendship delicate, as dear, Of tender violations up to die?

Referve will wound it; and diffrigh, destroy. Deliberate on all things with thy friend:
But since friends grow not thick on ev'ry bough, Nor ev'ry friend unrotten at the core;
First, on thy friend, delib'rate with thyfelf:
Pause, ponder, sift; not eager in the choice,
Nor jealous of the chosen: fixing, fix;
Judge before friendship; then conside till death.
Well, for thy friend; but nobler far for thee;
How gallant danger for earth's highest prize!

"Poor is the friendless master of a world:
"A world in purchase for a friend is gain."
So sung he (angels hear that angel sing!
Angels from friendship gather half their joy;)

So lung PHILANDER, as his friend went round In the rich ichor, in the gen'rous blond Of Bacchus, purple god of joyous wit, A brow (olute, and ever-laughing eye. He drank long health and virtue to his friend;

A torow tointe, and ever-sugning eye.

He drank long health and virtue to his friend;

His friend, who warm'd him more, who more infpir'deFriend/hip's the wine of life; but friendfhip new

(Not fuch was his) is neither firong nor pure.

O! for the bright complexion, cordial warmth,

And elevating fipirit, of a friend,

For twenty lummers ripening by my fide;

For twenty numbers ripening by my noe; All feculence of fallhood long thrown down; All focial virtues rifing in his foul; As cryfal clear; and fimiling, as they rife! Here nectar flows; it fparkles in our fight; Rich to the taffe, and genuine from the heart. High-flavour'd blifs for gods! on earth how rare! On earth how left!—PRIANDER is no more.

Think'st thou the theme intoxicates my fong?
Am I too warm?—Too warm I cannot be.

I lov'd him much; but now I love him more. Like birds, whose beauties languish, half conceal'd, Till mounted on the wing, their gloffy plumes Expanded shine with azure, green, and gold: How bleffings brighten as they take their flight! His flight PHILANDER took; his upward flight, If ever foul ascended. Had he dropt, (That eagle genius!), O had he let fall One feather as he flew : I, then, had wrote What friends might flatter; prudent foes forbear Rivals fearce damn : and Zoilus reprieve. Yet, what I can, I must: it were profane To quench a glory lighted at the skies, And cast in shadows his illustrious close. Strange! the theme most affecting, most sublime, Momentous most to man, shou'd sleep unfung! And yet it fleeps, by genius unawak'd, Painim or Christian: to the blush of wit. Man's highest triumph! man's profoundest fa The deathbed of the just ! is yet undrawn By mortal hand : it merits a divine : Angels should paint it, angels ever there; There, on a post of honour, and of joy. Dare I prefume, then? But PHILANDER bids;

Dare I pretume, then? BUT PHILANDER DIGS; And glory tempts, and inclination calls—Yet am I fireck; as firuck the foul, beneath. Ačreak groves impenetrable gloom; Or, in fome mighty rain's foleam shade; Or, gazing by pale lamps on bigk-born dass, I have been to be the same of the waste; this courts of poor unstatter'd kings! Or, at the midnight-assar's hallow'd flame. It is religion to proceed: I pause. And enter, aw'd, the temple of my theme. Is it his death-bed? No: it is his shrine: Behold him, there; just riling to a god.

The chamber where the good man meets his fate, Is privilege'd beyond the common walk of the fate of th

Wa

For, here, refiftless demonstration dwells : A deathhed's a detector of the heart. Here tir'd Distinulation drops her mask. Through life's grimace, that miftrefs of the fcene ! Here real, and apparent, are the fame. You fee the man; you fee his hold on heav'n; If found his virtue; as PHILANDER'S found. Heav'n waits not the last moment, owns her friends On this fide death; and points them out to men, A lecture, filent, but of fovereign pow'r!

To vice, confusion : and to virtue, peace, Whatever farce the boaftful hero plays, Virtue alone has majesty in death; And greater still, the more the tyrant frowns. PHILANDER! he feverely frown'd on thee. " No warning given! unceremonious fate!

" A fudden rush from life's meridian joys!

" A wrench from all we love! from all we are! " A reftless bed of pain! a plunge opaque

" Beyond conjecture! feeble Nature's dread!

" Strong Reason's shudder at the dark unknown! " A fun extinguish'd! a just opening grave!

" And oh! the laft, laft; what? (can words express?

"Thought reach it?) the last-filence of a friend!" Where are those horrors, that amazement, where,

This hideous group of ills, which fingly shock, Demand from man ?- I thought him man till now.

Through nature's wreck, through vanquish'd agonies. (Like the stars struggling through this midnight gloom), What gleams of joy? what more than human peace? Where the frail mortal? the poor abject worm? No, not in death, the mortal to be found. His conduct is a legacy for all, Richer than Mammon's for his fingle heir. His comforters he comforts ; great in ruin, With unreluctant grandeur, gives, not yields

His foul fublime : and closes with his fate. How our hearts burnt within us at the fcene ! Whence, this brave bound o'er limits fix'd to man? His God fustains him in his final hour!

His final hour brings glory to his God! Man's glory heav'n vouchfafes to call her own. We gaze; we weep; mix'd tears of grief and joy t Amazement firikes! devotion burits to flame! Christians adore t and Intidels believe.

As fome tall tow'r, or lofty mountain's brow. Detains the fun, illustrious from its height : While rifing vapours, and descending shades, With damps, and darkness, drown the spacious vale : Undamp'd by doubt, undarken'd by despair. PHILANDER, thus, augustly rears his head, At that black hour, which gen'ral horror sheds On the low level of th' inglorious throng : Sweet Peace, and heav'nly Hope, and humble Yoy, Divinely beam on his exalted foul: Destruction gild, and crown him for the skies.

With incommunicable luftre, bright,

LORENZO! fuch the good man's mifery! How dim the ray, the luftre, now, how pale Of tarnish'd pageantries, of wither'd joy, Of beggar'd opulence, difgrac'd renown, Deep-darken'd empire, conquest overcome? Envy's bright buts! the pant of every breaft ! Envy! the greatest idiot of all crimes! Who pains herfelf for that, wou'd pain her more a Is there on earth what can absolve her? Yes: One radiant mark; the deathbed of the just : That gaze of angels! that glad fame of heav'n! That joy to joy celestial !- O my foul! Bles'd, ravish'd with this providential scene! Heaven plans her gracious stratagems for all. A scene so strong to strike, so sweet to charm, So great to raife, fo heavenly to inspire, So folid to Support fair Virtue's throne. What transport thine, to fee? what zeal to fing? Sing first, and fend it through the fouls of men? And fend through theirs with eafe, if from our own Nor haft thou fung in vain : PHILANDER hears, LORENZO feels, thy fong. LORENZO feels, Or he, and not PHILANDER, is the dead. Life, take thy chance : but oh for fuch an end ! There point, my wishes! center there; and burg. Smile you, ye poor dependents on a pulse!

A pulle, your falient god! as that decrees,

Pleafur'd.

Pleafurd, or pain'd; exalted, or forlorn— Smile on; and prove your mifery by your finitles. As fimiles mifaken, what tear half fo fad? Is it your pride? wou'd you be prais'd for this? Scorn'd be the man who thinks himfel? a brute; Affronts his fpecies; and his God blafphemes; Vile laugher! at whom pity cannot laugh; Scorner of all, but what delerves his fcon! Who thinks it is ingenious to be mad, And is quite fool enough to be a wit. Wits spare not heaven, O Wilmington!—nor these

FROM dreams, where thought in fancy's maze runs To Resfon, that heav'n-lighted lamp in man, [mad, Once more I wake; and at the deftind hour; Punetual as lowers to the moment fiworn, I keep my affignation with my wo.

I keep my affignation with my wo.
O! loft to virtue, loft to manly thought,
Loft to the noble fallies of the foul!
Who think it follitude to be alone.
Communion fweet! communion large, and high!
Our Reafon, guardian a-gel, and our Ged!
Then neareft thefe, when others most remote;
And all, erclong, shall be remote, but thefe.
How dreadful then, to meet them all alone,
A stranger! unacknowledg'd! unapprov'd!
Now woo them; wed them; bind them to thy breast;
To win thy wish, creation has no more.
Or if we wish a fourth, it is a friend—
But friends, how mortal! dang' cous the desire.

Alone indeed, the banish'd from himself,
By day's intrulions load, and rude assaults,
A tide of tumult, and a shorm of tongues.
Take Pêzbur to yourselves, ye bashing bards !
Inchriate at fair Fortune's fountain-head,
And recling through the wilderness of joy;
Where Sorgle runs savage, broke from Resson's chain,
And sings false peace, till smother'd by the pall.

My

Her

My fortune is unlike; unlike, my fong; Unlike the Deity my fong invokes. I to Day's fost-ey'd fifter pay my court, (Endymion's rival!), and her aid implore; Now first implor'd in succour to the Muse.

Thou, who didft lately borrow * CYNTHIA'S form, And modeftly forego thine own! O thou, Who didft thyfelf, at midnight-hours, infpire! Say, why not CYNTHIA patroness of fong? As thou her crefeen, the thy characteristics.

As thou her creicent, the thy character Assumes; still more a goddess by the change.

Are there demurring wits, who dare dispute This revolution in the world infbir'd? Ye train Pierian! to the lunar fphere, In filent hour, address your ardent call For aid immortal; less her brother's right. She, with the fpheres harmonious, nightly leads The mazy dance, and hears their matchless frain : A strain for gods! deny'd to mortal ear. Transmit it heard, thou filver queen of heav'n! What title, or what name endears thee most? CYNTHIA! CYLLENE! PHOEBE !- or doft hear With higher guft, fair P- D of the Ries ? Is that the foft inchantment calls thee down. More pow'rful than of old Circean charm? Come; but from heav'nly banquets with thee bring The foul of fong; and whifper in mine ear The theft divine; or in propitious dreams ( For dreams are thine) transfuse it through the breast Of thy first votary-but not thy last; If, like thy namefake, thou art ever kind.

And kind thou wilt be; kind on fuch a theme;
A theme fo like thee, a quite lunar theme,
Soft, models, melancholy, female, fair!
A theme that rofe all pale, and told my foul,
'Twas night; on her fond hopes perpetual night;
A night which fluck a damp, a deadlier damp,
Than that which fmote me from PHILANDER's tomb.
NARCIESA follows, ere his tomb is clos'd.

They love a train, they tread each other's heel:

At the Duke of Norfolk's masquerade.

Her death invades his mournful right, and claims The grief that flarted from my lide for him; Seizes the faithless, alienated tear, Or shares it, ere it falls. So frequent death, Sorrow, he more than causes, he confounds; For human fights his rival strokes contend, And make diffress, diffraction. Oh PHILANDER! What was thy fate? a double fate to me; Portent, and pain! a menace, and a blow! Like the black raven hov'ring o'er my peace, Not less a bird of omen than of prev. It call'd NARCISSA long before her hour; It call'd her tender foul, by break of blifs, From the first blossom, from the buds of joy: Those few our noxious fate unblasted leaves In this inclement clime of human life.

Sweet harmonift! and beautiful as fweet!

And young as beautiful! and foft as young!

And gay as foft! and innocent as gay! And happy (if aught happy here) as good! For Fortune fond had built her neft on high : Like birds quite exquifite of note and plume, Transfix'd by Fate, (who loves a lofty mark), How from the summit of the grove she fell, And left it unharmonious? All its charm Extinguish'd in the wonders of her fong ! Her fong still vibrates in my ravish'd ear, Still melting there, and with voluptuous pain (O to forget her!) thrilling through my heart! Song, beauty, youth, love, virtue, joy! this group Of bright ideas, flow'rs of paradife As yet unforfeit! in one blaze we bind, Kneel, and prefent it to the fkies ; as all We guess of heav'n : and thefe were all her own : And the was mine; and I was-was most bless'd,-Gay title of the deepest misery ! As bodies grow more pond'rous, robb'd of life; Good loft weighs more in grief, than gain'd, in joy. Like bloffom'd trees o'erturn'd by vernal ftorm,

Lovely in death the beauteous ruin lay;
And if in death still lovely, lovelier there;
Far lovelier! pity swells the tide of love.

And will not the fevere excuse a figh?

Scorn the proud man that is asham'd to weep;

Our tears indulg'd indeed deserve our shame.

Ye that e'er lost an angel! pity me.

Soon as the lustre languish'd in her eye,

Dawning a dimmer day on human fight; And on her cheek, the refidence of firing. Pale omen fat; and featter'd fears around On all that faw, (and who could ceafe to gaze, That once had feen?); with hafte, parental hafte, I fiew, I finatch'd her from the rigid north, Her native bed, on which bleak Boreas blew, And bore her nearer to the fun. The fun (As if the fun could envy) check'd his beam, Deny'd his wonted fuccour, nor with more Regert beheld her drooping, than the bells

And anguift after rapture, how fevere!
Rapture? bold man! who tempts the wrath divine,

While finful fiesh relented, spirit nurs'd In blind Infallibility's embrace, 'The fainted fpirit, petrify'd the breaft; Deny'd the charity of duft, to spread O'er dust ! a charity their dogs enjoy. What could I do? what fuccour? what refource? With pious facrilege, a grave I stole; With impious piety, that grave I wrong'd; Short in my duty! coward in my grief! More like her murderer, than friend, I crept, With foft-fulpended step ; and muffled deep In midnight-darkness, whifper'd my last figh. I whilper'd what should echo through their realms; Nor writ her name, whose tomb shou'd pierce the skies, Prefumptuous fear! how durft I dread her foes. While Nature's loudest dictates I obey'd? Pardon necessity, bles'd shade! Of grief And indignation rival burfts I pour'd; Half-execration mingled with my prayer : Kindled at man, while I his God ador'd : Sore-grudg'd the favage land her facred duft; Stamp'd the curs'd foil; and with humanity (Deny'd NARCISSA) wish'd them all a grave.

Glows my refeatment into guilt? What guilt 'Can equal violations of the dead? The dead how facred! facred is the duft. Of this heav-a-labour'd form, erech, divine! This harvest reap from thy Nancissa's grave.
As poets feign from Ajax' areaming blood
Arose, with grief inscrib'd, a mournful flow'r:

Let wifdom bloffom from my mortal wound. And firft, of dying friends; what finit from these? Rich fruit thin tempet in our boson throws, Few minds will gather in our bife ference: It brings us more than triple aid; an aid To chale our thoughtlefiness, fear, pride, and guilt.

Our dying friends come o'er us like a cloud. To damp our brainless ardors; and abate That glare of life, which often blinds the wife. Our dying friends are pioneers, to fmooth Our rugged pass to death : to break those bars Of terror and abhorrence Nature throws Crofs our obstructed way; and, thus, to make Welcome, as fafe, our port from ev'ry ftorm. Each friend by Fate fratch'd from us, is a plume Pluck'd from the wing of human vanity, Which makes us floop from our aerial heights, And, damp'd with omen of our own decease, On drooping pinions of ambition lower'd, Just skim earth's surface, ere we break it up, O'er putrid pride to feratch a little duft. And fave the world a nuisance. Smitten friends Are angels fent on errands full of love . For us they languish, and for us they die: And shall they languish, shall they die in vain? Ungrateful shall we grieve their hov'ring shades, Which wait the revolution in our hearts? Shall we disdain their filent, foft address : Their posthumous advice, and pious prayer? Senfelefs, as herds that graze their hallow'd graves. Tread under foot their agonies and groans; Frustrate their anguish, and destroy their deaths?

LORENZO! no the thought of death indulge; Cive it its wholefome empire, let it reign, That kind challifer of the foul to joy! Its reign will fipread thy glorious conquests far, And fill the thumlus of thy ruffled breast; Auspicious zera! golden days begin! The thought of death, fall, like n god, inspire. And why not think on death? is life the theme off every thought? and wish of every hour? And long of every joy? forerising truth!

In that, for which they long; for which they live Their glorious efforts wing'd with learenty hope, Each riling morning fees hill higher rife; Each bounteous dawn its towelty prefents To worth maturing, new frength, lufter, fame; While Nature's circle, like a chariot wheel Rolling beneath their elevated sams, Makes their lair prospect, fairer every hour; Advancing virtue in a line to billy:

Virtue, which Christian motives best inspire!

And blift, which Christian schemes alone ensure!

And shall we then, for virtue's fake, commence Apostates? and turn insidels for joy? A truth it is, few doubt, but fewer truft, " He fins against this life, who flights the next." What is this life ? how few their fav'rite know ? Fond in the dark, and blind is our embrace. By paffionately loving Life, we make Lov'd life unlovely ; hugging her to death. We give to Time Eternity's regard ; And dreaming take our paffage for our port. Life has no value as an end, but means : An end deplorable ! a means divine ! When 'tis our all; 'tis nothing; worfe than nought a A neft of pains : when held as nothing, much : Like some fair humourists, life is most enjoy'd. When courted leaft : most worth, when disesteem'd : Then 'tis the feat of comfort, rich in peace ; In prospect, richer far : important ! awful ! Not to be mention'd but with shouts of praise ! Not to be thought on, but with tides of joy ! The mighty basis of eternal bliss!

Where now the horren rock? the painted firews? Where now, Lorenzol hife's dermal round? Have I not made my triple promife good? Vain is the world, but only to the vain. To what compare we then this varying feene, Whofe worth ambiguous rifes, and declines? Waxes, and wanes? { In all propitious, Mighe Affifts me here}. Compare it to the moon; Dark in herfelf, and indigent; but rich In horrow'd luttre from a higher fiphere: When grofs guilt interpoles, labouring earth O'erfhadow'd mourns a deep celiple of joy; Her joys, at brighteft, pallid to that font of full effigient glory, whence they flow.

CHRISTIAN TRIUMPH

Our only Cure for the FEAR of DEATH,

And proper SENTIMENTS of HEART on that inclimable BLESSING.

Humbly inscribed

To the Honourable Mr. YORKE.

A MUCH indebted mule, O Yorke! intrudes. Amid the finiles of fortune and of youth, Thine car is patient of a ferious fong. How deep implanted in the breaft of man The dread of death? I fing its for/reign cure. Why flart at death? Where is he? Death arriv'd.

Why flart at death? Where is he? Death arriv'd, is palt; not come, or gone: he's never here. Pre Hippe, Sonfation fails; black-boding man Receiver, not fuffers Death's tremendous blow. The knell, the furoud, the mattock, and the grave; The deep damp wall, the darknefs and the worm; Thefe are the bugbers of a Winter's evertei, The terrors of the living, not the dead. Imagination's fool, and Error's wretch, Man makes a death, which Nature never made; Then on the point of his own fancy falls, And feels a thousand each, which, in fearing one.

But were Death frightful, what has Age to fear ? A If prudent, 'Age flowed meet the feiendly foe, at Wil And shelter in his hospitable ploomed in it divides I feavee can meet a monament, but kolds My younger t every date cries-" Come away." And what recals me ? Look the world around sinhal And tell me what I The wifeft rapport tell me is a W Should any born of woman give his thought hot saiw? Vivacious Ill; Good dying immature, (How immature, Narcissa's marble tells), And at its death bequeathing endless pain; His heart, though bold, would ficken at the fight,

And spend itself in sighs for future scenes. But grant to life (and just it is to grant and

To lucky life) fome perquifites of joy: A time there is, when, like a thrice told tale, And that of no great moment, or delight, Long-rifled Life of fweet can yield no more, But, from our comment on the comedy, and the vil Pleafing neflections on parts well-fuffain'd, law of Or purpos'd emendations where we fail'd, Or hopes of plaudits from our candid judge, and Andi When, on their exit, fouls are bid unrobe. Tofs Fortune back her tinfel, and her plume, And drop this mafe of flesh behind the scene. With me, that time is come ; my world is dead ;

A new world rifes, and new manners reign : Foreign comedians, a fprace band i arrive, To push me from the fcene, or hifs me there. What a pert race starts up? the frangers gaze, And I at them; my neighbour is unknown; Nor that the worft; ah me ! the dire effect Of loit'ring here, of death defrauded long; Of old lo gracious, (and let that fuffice), My very mafter knows me not -

I've been fo long remember'd, I'm forgot. I'll a drasil An object ever preffing dims the fight, And bide behind its ardour to be feen:

Then in his courtiers ears I pour my plaint,
They drink it as the mectar of the great;
And fqueeze my hand, and beg me come to-morrow:

Indulge me, nor conceive I drop my theme a Who cheapens life, abates the fast of death:
Twice-told the period frent on flushorn Troy,
Court-favour, yet untaken, I befinges.
Ambition's ill-judg'd-effort to be rich.
Alas I Ambition makes my little, keis:
Embitt'ring the poffield. Why with for more?
Wijhing, of all employments, is the worlt.
Philolophy's reverfe! and health's decay!
Were I as plump as fall'd Theology,
Wijhing would wafte me to this flade again.
Were I as wealthy as a South-for dream,
Wijhing, in an expedient to be poor:
Wijhing, that conflant hecited of a fool;
Caught at a court; purg'd off by purer air,

And simpler diet; gifts of rural life! Blefs'd be that hand divine, which gently laid My heart at reft, beneath this humble shade. The world's a flately bark, on dang'rous feas, With pleasure seeu, but boarded at our peril : Here, on a fingle plank, thrown fafe ashore, I hear the tunult of the diftant throng, As that of feas remote, or dying storms; And meditate on scenes, more filent still; Purfue my theme, and fight the fear of death. Here, like a shepherd gazing from his hut, Touching his reed, or leaning on his staff, Eager Ambition's fiery chace I fee ; I fee the circling hunt, of noisy men, Burit law's inclosure, leap the mounds of right, Purfuing and purfu'd, each other's prey; As wolves, for rapine; as the fox, for wiles;

Till Death, that mighty hunter, earths them all. Why all this toil for triumphs of an hour? What, though we wade in wealth, or foar in fame? Earth's higheft flation ends in, "Here he lies," And "Dutt to duft" concludes her nobleft fong.

If this fong lives, pofterity shall know One, though in Britain born, with courtiers bred, Who thought even gold might come a day too late; Nor on his subtle deathbed pland his scheme For future vecancies in church or state; Some avocation deeming it—to die; Likhi he retres section of define this;

Unbit by rage canine of dying rich;
Guilt's blunder! and the loudest laugh of hell.
O my coevals! remnants of yourselves!

Poor human ruins, tott'ring o'er the grave! Shall we, final aged men, like aged trees, Strike deeper their vile root, and clofer cling, Still more enamourd' of this wretched foil? Shall our pale, wither'd hands be fill firetch'd out, Trembling, at once, with eagerness and age? With av'rice, and convultions grafping hard? Grafping at air! for what has earth befide? Man wants but little; nor that little, long; How foon must he refign his very duft, Which frugal Nature lent him for an hour? Years unexperient'd ruih on num'rous ille; And foon as man, expert from time, has found The ky of life, it opes the gates of death.

When in this vale of years I backward look, And mifs fuch numbers, numbers too of fuch, Firmer in health, and greener in their age, And thrêter on their guard, and fitter far To play life's fibtle game, I fearce believe I fill furvive: and am I fond of life, Who fearce can think it poffible I live? Alive by miracle! or, what is next, Alive by Mean! If I am fill alive, Who long have bury'd what gives life to live, Firmness of nerve, and energy of thought. Life's lee is not more fhallow, than impure, And vapid; Sense and Reason flow the door, Call for my bier, and point me to the duft.

O thou great Arbiter of life and death ! Nature's immortal, immaterial fun! Whose all-prolifick beam late call'd me forth From darkness, teeming darkness, where I lay The worm's inferior, and, in rank, beneath The duft I tread on, high to bear my brow, To drink the spirit of the golden day. And triumph in existence; and couldf know No motive, but my bless; and hash ordain'd Arife in blessing; with the patriarch's joy, Thy call I follow to the land unknown; I trust in thee, and know in whom I trust; Or life, or death, is equal; neither weigher, all weight in this—Ole the life to thee;

Though Watere's terrors, thur, may be reprefi'd; Still froms grim Death; guilt points the tyrant's fpear, And whence all human guilt? From death forgot. Ah me! too long I fet at nought the fwarm Of friendly warnings, which around me flew, And fmil'd unfanitten: finall my caufe to fmile! Death's admonitions, like flinfis upwards fliot, More dreadful by delay, the longer ere They firske our hearts, the deeper is their wound. O think how deep, LORENZO! here it flings: Who can appeale its anguilt? how it burns! What hand the barb'd, invenom'd thought can draw? What hand and can pour the balm of peace? And turn my fight undaunted on the tomb?

With joy, -with grief, that healing hand I fee; Ah! too conspicuous! it is fix'd on high! On high ?-What means my frenzy ? I blafpheme : Alas I how low? how far beneath the skies? The skies it form'd; and now it bleeds for me-But bleeds the balm I want -yet still it bleeds ; Draw the dire fleel-ah no !--- the dreadful bleffing What heart, or can fustain, or dares forego? There hangs all human hope: that nail supports Our falling universe: that gone, we drop Horror receives us, and the difmal wish Creation had been fmother'd in her birth-Darkness his curtain, and his bed the dust : When stars and fun are dust beneath his throne ! In heav'n itself can fuch indulgence dwell? O what a groan was there! A groan not his, He feiz'd our dreadful right; the load fuftain'd; And heav'd the mountain from a guilty world.

A thousand worlds be bought, were bought too dear. Senfations new in angels botoms rife;
Suspend their song; and make a pause in blifs.
Of or their song to reach my lofty theme!
Inspire me, Night! with all thy tuneful spheres!
Much rather Theu! who dost those spheres inspire;
Much rather Theu! who dost those spheres inspire;
Mush graph share feraphick themes,
And show to men the dignity of man;
Lest! bladspheme my subject with my song.
Shall Pagan pages glow celestial flame,
And Christian languist? On our hearts, not heads,
Falls the foul infamy. My heart 1 awake;
What can awake thee, unawak'd by this;
Expended Deity on human weal?"

"Expended Dety on human weal?" Feel the great truth, which burft the tenfold night of Of Heathen error, with a golden flood Of endless day: to feel, is to be fir'd; And to believe, Lorenzo! is to feel.

And to believe, LORENZO! is to feel.

Thou most indulgent, most tremendous Power!

Still more tremendous, for thy wondrous love I
That arms, with awe more awful, thy commands;
And foul transfgression dips in sevensfold guilt;
How our hearts tremble at thy love immense?
In love immense, inviolably just !

Thou, rather than thy juffice shou'd be stain'd, Didst stain the cross; and work of wonders far The greatest, that thy dearest far might bleed.

Inc greatest, that thy dearest far might bleed.
Bold thought! shall I dare speak it, or repres?
Should man more execute, or beaff, the guilt,
Which rous'd such sengeance? which fuch love inflam'd?
O'er guilt, (how mountainous?) with outstretch'd arms,
Stern Juflice, and soft-smiling Love, embrace,
Supporting, in full majetly, thy throne,

When feem'd its majefly to need fupport, Or that, or man, inevitably loft; What, but the fathomlefs of thought divine, Could labour fuch expedient from defpair, end refeue both? Both refeue! both exalt! O how are both exalted by the deed? The wondroox deed! or final! I call it more?

A wonder in Omnipotence itself! A mystery, no less to gods than men!

Not thu our infidels th' Eternal draw, A God all o'er, confummate, abfolute, Full orb'd in his whole round of rays complete: They fet at odds heavin's jarring attributes; And, with one excellence, another wound; Maim heav'n's perfection, break its equal beams, Bid Mercy trumph over—God himfelf, Undeify'd by their opprobrious praife; A God all mercy, is a God unfull.

Ye brainlefs wits 1 ye baptiz'd infidels 1 Ye work for mending 1 want'd to fouler flains 1 The ranfom was paid down; the fund of heav'n, Heav'n's inexhaultible, exhaulted fund, Amazing, and amaz'd, pour'd forth the price, All price beyond: though curious to compute, Archangels fail'd to eaft the mighty fun Its value valt ungraff'd by minds create, For ever hides, and glows, in the Supreme.

And was the ranfom paid? It was: and paid (What can exalt the bounty more?) for you. The fun beheld it-No! the shocking scene Drove back his chariot ; Midnight veil'd his face ; Not fuch as this : not fuch as Nature makes : A midnight, Nature shudder'd to behold ; A midnight new ! a dread eclipse (without Opposing spheres) from her Creator's frown! Sun! didft thou fly thy Maker's pain? or ftart At that enormous load of human guilt, Which bow'd his bleffed head; o'erwhelm'd his cross; Made groan the centre ; burft earth's marble womb, With pangs, strange pangs! 'deliver'd of her dead? Hell howl'd; and heav'n that hour let fall a tear; Heav'n wept, that men might fmile! heav'n bled, that Might never die !--[man

Änd is devotion virtue? The compelled:
What heart of flone, but glows at thoughts like these?
Such contemplations mount us; and should mount.
The mind fill higher; nor ever glance on man,
Unraptur(A, uninflam'd.—Where roll my thoughts;
To reft from wonders? Other wonders rife,
And strike where'er they roll: my foul is canght:

Heav'n's

Heav'n's fovereign bleffings cluft'ring from the crofs Rush on her, in a throng, and close her round, The pris'ner of amaze !- In his blefs'd life. I fee the path, and in his death, the price, And in his great afcent, the proof supreme Of immortality .- And did he rife? Hear, O ye nations! hear it, O ve dead! He rose! he rose! he burst the bars of death. Lift up your heads, ye everlasting gates ! And give the King of Glory to come in : Who is the King of Glory? He who left His throne of glory, for the pang of death, Lift up your heads, ye everlasting gates ! And give the King of Glory to come in : Who is the King of Glory? He who flew The rav'nous foe, that gorg'd all human race ! The King of Glory, he, whose glory fill'd Heav'n with amazement at his love to man : And with divine complacency beheld Pow'rs most illumin'd wilder'd in the theme.

The theme, the joy, how then shall man sustain?
Oh the burst gates! crush'd fing! demolish'd drione!
Last gasto! or vanquish'd Death. Shout earth and heav'n!
This fum of good to man: whose nature, then,
Took wing, and mounted with him from the tomb.
Then, then, I rose; then sirst humanity
Triumphant pass'd the crystal ports of light,
Stupendous guest!), and seize'd eternal youth,
Seize'd in our name. E'er since, 'tis blasphemous
To call man mortal. Man's mortality

Was, then, transferr'd to death; and heavin's duration Unalienably feal'd to this frail frame, This, child of duft.—Man, all-immortal! hail; Hail, Heavin! all lavifh of firange gifts to man I Thine all the glory; man's the boundles blifs.

Where am I rapt by this triumphant theme, On Christian joy's exulting wing, above Th' Aontan mount?—Alas, small cause for joy I What if to pain immortal? if extent Of being, to preclude a close of wo?

Where, then, my boast of immortality?

I boast it still, though cover'd o'er with guilt;

For guilt, not innocence, his life he pour'd;
Tis guilt alone can juilify his death;
Nor that, unlefs his death can juilify
Relenting guilt in Heav'n's indulgent fight.
If, fick of folly, I relent; he writes
My name in heav'n, with that inverted fpear
(A fpear deep-dipt in blood!) which pierc'd his fide,
And open'd there a font for all mankind

Who fire, who combat crimes, to drink, and live: This, only this, subdues the fear of death.

And what is this?—Survey the wond'rous cure:

And at each step, let higher wonder rise! "Pardon for infinite offence! and pardon

54

"Through means that speak its value infinite!
"A pardon bought with blood! with blood divine!

"A pardon bought with blood! with blood divine!
"With blood divine of him I made my foe!

"Perfifted to provoke! though woo'd, and aw'd, Bless'd, and chassis'd, a stagrant rebel still!

"A rebel 'midft the thunders of his throne!
"Nor I alone! a rebel universe!

" Nor I alone! a rebel universe!
" My species up in arms! not one exempt!

"Yet for the foulest of the foul, he dies:

" Most joy'd, for the redeem'd from deepest guilt!"
" As if our race were held of highest rank;

"And Godhead dearer, as more kind to man !"
Bound, every heart! and, every bosom, burn!

Oh what a scale of miracles is here!

Its lowest round, high-planted on the skies;
Its tow'ring summit lost beyond the thought
Of man or angel: Oh that I could climb
The wonderfol ascent, with equal praise!

Praise! flow for ever, (if assonishment
Will give thee leave), my praise! for ever flow $\times$.

Praise ardent, cordial, constant, to high heav'n
More fragrant, than Arabia sacrifie'd;
And all her fusey mountains in a flame.

So dear, fo due to heavin, shall Praise descend With her fast plume, (from plansfee angels wing First pluck'd by man), to tickle mortal ears, Thus diving in the pockets of the great?

Is Praise the perquisite of ev'ry pawe.

Though black as hell, that grapples well for gold?

Oh love of gold! thou meanest of amours! Shall Praise her odours waite on VIRTUE's dead. Embalm the base, perfume the stench of guilt, Earn dirty bread by washing Ethiops fair, Removing filth, or finking it from fight, A scavenger in feenes, where vacant posts, Like gibbets vet untenanted, expect Their future ornaments? From courts and thrones. Return, apostate Praise! thou vagabond! Thou profitate! to thy first love return. Thy first, thy greatest, once unrival'd theme. There flow redundant : like Meander flow, Back to thy fountain; to that parent Pow'r, Who gives the tongue to found, the thought to foar. The foul to be. Men homage pay to men, Thoughtless beneath whose dreadful eve they how In mutual awe profound, of clay to clay, Of guilt to guilt, and turn their backs on thee, Great Sire! whom thrones celeftial ceaseless fing a To proftrate angels, an amazing feene! O the prefumption of man's awe for man! Man's author ! end ! reftorer ! law! and judge! Thine, all; Day thine, and thine this gloom of Night; With all her wealth, with all her radiant worlde ; What, night eternal, but a frown from thee? What, heav'n's meridian glory, but thy fmile? And shall not Praise be thine? not human praise? While heav'n's high hoft on Hallelujahs live? Oh may I breathe no longer than I breathe My foul in praise to him who gave my foul,

My foul in praise to him who gave my foul,
And all her infinite of prospect fair,
Cut through the shades of hell, great Love! by thee,
Oh most adorable! most unador'd!
Where shall that praise begin, which we'er should end?
Where e'er I turn, what plaim on all applause!
How is Night's sable mantle labour'd o'er?
How richly wrought with attributes divine?

What enifelon faines? what love ? this midnight pomp, This gorgeous arch, with golden worlds inlaid; Built with divine ambition! nought to thee; For others this probafion: thou, apart, Above, beyond! oh tell me, might Wind!

Where

Where art thou? Shall I dive into the deep? Call to the fun, or alk the roaring awinds, For their Creator? final! Juetition loud The thunder, if in that th' Almighty dwells? Or holds HE furious florms in fireighten'd reins, And bids ferce whirkwinds wheel his rapid car?

What mean these questions?—Trembling I retract;
My profilter foul adores the present God:
Praise I a dislant Deity? He tunes
My voice (if ton'd); the nerve that writes, suffains;
Wrappd'a in his being. I resound his praise.
But though past all dissa'd, without a shore,
His effence; local is his throne, (as meet),
To gather the disperd'd, (as standards call
The littled from afar), to six a point,
A central point, collective of his sons,
Since sinite every nature but his own.

The nameles He, whose nod is Nature's hirth:

And Nature's fileld, the fladow of his hand; Her diffillution, his fufpended finile; The great First-Less'l pavilion'd high he fits In darknets, from excellive splendor, borne By gods undeen, unlest through luttle loss. Fit glory, to created glory, bright, As that to central horrors; he looks down On all that loss; and spans immensity.

Though Night unnumber'd worlds unfolds to view-Boundless creation! what art thou? A beam, A mere effluvium of his majesty : And shall an atom of this atom-world. Mutter, in dust and fin, the theme of heaven? Down to the centre should I fend my thought Through beds of glittring ore, and glowing gems; Their beggar'd blaze wants luftre for my lay ; Goes out in darkness. If, on tow'ring wing, I fend it through the boundless vault of stars; The stars, though rich, what dross their gold to thee, Great! good! wife! wonderful! eternal King? If to those conscious stars thy throne around, Praise ever-pouring, and imbibing bliss, And ask their strain; they want it, more they want; Poor their abundance, humble their fublime, Languid Languid their energy, their ardour cold, Indebted fill, their highest rapture burns; Short of its mark, defective, though divine.

Still more. This theme is man's, and man's alone ; Their vast appointments reach it not; they fee On earth a bounty not indulg'd on high; And downward look for heav'n's superior praise! First-born of æther! high in fields of light! View man, to fee the glory of your God! Could angels envy, they had envy'd here; And fome did envy ; and the reft, though gods, Yet still gods unredeem'd (there triumphs man, Tempted to weigh the dust against the skies) They less would feel, though more adorn, my theme. They fung Creation, (for in that they shar'd); How rose in melody that child of love? Creation's great superior, man! is thine: Thine is redemption; they just gave the key, 'Tis thine to raife, and eternize, the fong; Though human, vet divine; for should not this Raife man o'er man, and kindle feraphs here? Redemption! 'twas creation more fublime;

Redemption! 'twas the labour of the skies; Far more than labour—It was death in heav'n. A truth fo strange! 'twere bold to think it true, If not far bolder still, to disbelieve.

Here paufe, and ponder: Was there death in heav'n

What then on earth? on earth which flruck the blow? Who flruck it? who?—O how is man enlarg'd Seen through this medium? how the pigmy tow'rs! How counterpois'd his origin from duit! How counterpois'd, to duit his fad return!

How voided his valt diffance from the fixes? How near he preffes on the feraph's wing? Which is the feraph? which the born of clay? How this demonstrates, through the thicked cloud Of guilt and clay condens'd, the fon of Heav's! The double fon; the made, and the re-made! And shall heav's should property be lost?

Man's double madness only can destroy.

To man the bleeding cross has promis'd all;
The bleeding cross has sworn eternal grace;

Who gave his life, what grace shall he deny? O ye! who from this rack of ages, sleap Apostates, plunging beadlong in the deep! What cordial joy, what consolation strong, Whatever winds arrie, or billows roll, Our int'rell in the malter of the storm?

Our int'rest in the master of the storm?

Cling there, and in wreck'd Nature's ruins finile;

While vile apostates tremble is a calm.

While vile apostates tremble is a calm.

Man! know thyself. All wisdom centres there.

Man! know thyiell. All wildom centres tner? To none man feems ignoble, but to man; angels that grandeur, men o'erlook, admire: How long finall human nature be their book, Degen'rate mortal! and nuread by thee? The beam dim Reafon fitted shows wonders there; What high contents? illufrious faculties? But the grand Comment, which diplays at fall Our human height, fearce fever'd from divine, By Heav'n compos'd, was publish'd on the crof! Who looks on that, and fees not in himfelf

An awful stranger, a terrestrial god? A glorious partner with the Deity In that high attribute, immortal life ! If a god bleeds, he bleeds not for a worm : I gaze, and, as I gaze, my mounting foul Catches strange fire, Eternity! at thee, And drops the world :- or rather, more enjoys : How chang'd the face of Nature! how improv'd ! What feem'd a chaos, fhines a glorious world, Or, what a world, an Eden: beighten'd all ! It is another fcene ! another felf! And still another, as Time rolls along; And that a felf far more illustrious still. Beyond long ages, yet roll'd up in shades, Unpierc'd by bold Conjecture's keenest ray, What evolutions of furprifing fate ! How Nature opens, and receives my foul In boundless walks of raptur'd thought ! where gods Encounter, and embrace me! what new births

Of strange adventure, foreign to the sun,
Where what now charms, perhaps, whate'er exists,
Old Time, and fair Greation, are forgot!
Is this extravagant? Of man we form

Extravagant

Extravagant conception, to be just:
Conception unconfin'd wants wings to reach him:
Beyond its reach, the Godhead only, more.
He, the great Father! kindled at one fiame.
The world of rationals; one fpirit pour'd From Spirit's awful fountain; pour'd himfelf
Through all their fouls; but not in equal thream,
Profule, or frugal, of th' infpiring God,
As his wife plan demanded; and when pat.
Their various trials, in their various fpheres,
If they continue rational, as made,
Reforbs them all into himfelf again;
His throne their centre, and his fimile their crown.

Why doubt we, then, the glorious truth to fing, Though yet unfung, as deem'd perhaps too bold? Angels are men of a fuperior kind; Angels are men in liother liabit elad.

Angels are men in lighter habit clad, High o'er celestial mountains wing'd in flight And men are angels, loaded for an hour, Who wade this miry vale, and climb with pain, And flipp'ry flep, the bottom of the fleep : Angels their failings, mortals have their praife ; While here, of corps ethereal, fuch inroll'd, And fummon'd to the glorious flandard foon, Which flames eternal crimfon through the skies. Nor are our brothers thoughtless of their kin, Yet ablent : but not ablent from their love. Michael has fought our battles; Raphael fung Our triumphs; Gabriel on our errands flown, Sent by the Sovereign : and are thefe. O man ! Thy friends, thy warm allies? and thou (fhame burn The check to cinder) rival to the brute?

By me unrivalled; thousands more sublime, None half so dear, as that, which though unspoke, Still glows at heart: O how Omnipotence Is loft in love! Thou great PHILANTHROPIST!

Father of angels! but the friend of man! Like Facob, fondeft of the younger born ! Thou, who didft fave him, fnatch the fmoking brand From out the flames, and quench it in thy blood! How art thou pleas'd, by bounty to diffress ! To make us groan beneath our gratitude, Too big for birth! to favour, and confound: To challenge, and to diftance all return ! Of lavish love stupendous heights to foar, And leave praise panting in the distant vale? Thy right too great defrauds thee of thy due : And facrilegious our fublimest fong. But fince the naked will obtains thy fmile. Beneath this monument of praise unpaid. And future life fymphonious to my strain. Recumbent

F

Recumbent Virtue's downy doctors preach. That profe of piety, a lukewarm praise? Rife odours sweet from incense uninflam'd? Devotion, when lukewarm, is undevout ; But when it glows, its heat is ftruck to heav'n: To human hearts her golden harps are ftrung ; High heavn's orchestra chaunts Amen to man.

Hear I, or dream I hear, their diftant strain, Sweet to the foul, and tafting strong of heav'n, Soft-wafted on celeftial Pity's plume, Through the vast spaces of the universe, To chear me in this melancholy gloom? Oh when will Death (now stingless), like a friend, Admit me of their choir? Oh when will Death, This mould'ring, old partition-wall throw down? Give beings, one in nature, one abode ? Oh Death divine! that giv'ft us to the skies! Great future! glorious patron of the past, And prefent! when shall I thy shrine adore? From Nature's continent, immensely wide, Immenselv blefs'd, this little ifte of life, This dark, incarcerating colony, Divides us. Happy day! that breaks our chain; That manumits; that calls from exile home; That leads to Nature's great metropolis, And re-admits us, through the guardian hand Of elder brothers, to our Father's throne : Who hears our Advocate, and, through his wounds Beholding man, allows that tender name. 'Tis this makes Christian triumph a command : 'Tis this makes joy a duty, to the wife; 'Tis impious, in a good man, to be fad.

Seeft thou, LORENZO! where hangs all our hope? Touch'd by the crofs, we live; or more than die : That touch which touch'd not angels; more divine Than that which touch'd confusion into form, And darkness into glory; partial touch! Ineffably pre-eminent regard! Sacred to man, and fov'reign through the whole Long golden chain of miracles, which hangs From heav'n through all duration, and supports In one illustrious, and amazing plan,

Thy welfare, Nature 1 and thy God's renown: That touch, with charm celefilal, heals the foul Difeat'd, drives pain from guilt, lights life in death, Turns earth to heav'n, to heav'nly thrones transforms The ghaffly ruins of the mould'ring tomb.

Dôt alk me when 2—When HE who dy'd returns; Returns, how chang'd! where then the man of wo? In glory's terrors all the Godhead burns; And all his courts, exhaulted by the tide Of deities triumphant in his train, Leave a flupendous folitude in heaven; Replenifit'd foon, replenifit'd with increase Of pomp, and multitude; a radiant band Of angels new; of angels from the tomb.

Is this by fancy thrown remote? and rife
Dark doubts between the promife, and event?
I fend thee not to volumes for thy cure;
Read Nature: Nature is a friend to truth;
Nature is Chriftian; preaches to mankind;
And bids dead matter aid us in our creed.
Haft thou ne'er feen the comet's flaming flight?
The' illustrious Rranger passing, terror sheds
On gazing nations, from his shery train
Of length enormous, takes his ample round
Through deeps of zuther; coasts unumber'd worlds;
Of more than folar glory; doubles wide
Heav'n's mighty cape; and then revists earth,
From the long travel of a thousand years.
Thus, at the definid period, shall return

And, with him, all our triumph o'er the tomb.

Nature is dumb on this impertant point;

Or Hope precarious in low whifper breathes;

Eaith speaks aloud, diffinct; ev'n adders hear,

But turn, and dart into the dark again.

Eaith builds a bridge across the gulf of death,

To break the shock blind Nature cannot shun,

And lands Thought smoothly on the farther shore.

Death's terror is the mountain Faith removes;

That mountain-barrier between man and peace.

"Tis Faith sdiarms defluttion; and absolves

HE, once on earth, who bids the comet blaze :

From ev'ry clam'rous charge the guiltless tomb.

Why disbelieve ? LORENZO !- " Reason bids, " All-facred Reason."-Hold her facred flilt; Nor shalt thou want a rival in thy flame : All-facred Reafon! fource, and foul, of all Demanding praise, on earth, or earth above ! My heart is thine : deep in its inmost folds, Live thou with life : live dearer of the two. Wear I the bleffed crofs, by fortune stamp'd On paffive Nature, before Thought was born ? My birth's blind bigot ! fir'd with local zeal! No: Reason rebaptiz'd me when adult : Weigh'd true and false in her impartial scale; My heart became the convert of my head : And made that choice, which once was but my fate. " On argument alone my faith is built :" Reason pursu'd is Faith; and, unpursu'd Where proof invites, 'tis reason, then, no more : And fuch our proof, that, or our Faith is right, Or Reason lies, and heav'n design'd it wrong : Absolve we this? what, then, is blasphemy?

Fond as we are, and justly fond of Faith, Reason, we grant, demands our first regard; The mother honour'd, as the daughter dear; Reason the root, fair Faith is but the flower; The fading flow'r shall die; but Reason lives Immortal, as her Father in the fkies. When Faith is virtue, Reason makes it so. Wrong not the Christian; think not reason yours; 'Tis Reason our great Master holds so dear; 'Tis Real n's injur'd rights his wrath refents ; "Tis Reason's voice obev'd his glory's crown; To give loft Reason life, he pour'd his own : Believe, and show the reason of a man; Believe, and tafte the pleasure of a God ; Believe, and look with triumph on the tomb a Through Reason's wounds alone thy Faith can die; Which dying, tenfold terror gives to Death, And dips in venom his twice mortal sting.

Learn hence what honours, what loud Peans, due To those who push our antidote afide; Those boasted friends to Reason, and to man, Whose fatal love stabs every joy, and leaves Death's terror heighten'd, gnawing on his heart. Thefe pompous fons of Reafon idoliz'd, And williy'd at once; of reafon dead, Then deity'd, as monarchs were of old; What conduct plants proud laurels on their brow? While love of truth through all their camp refounds. They draw Pride's curtain o'er the noontide ray, Spike up their inch of reason, on the point Of philosophick wit, call'd argument; And then, exulting in their taper, cry,

" Behold the fun;" and, Indian-like, adore.
Talk they of morals? O thou bleeding Love!

Thou Maker of new morals to mankind!
The grand morality is love of Thee.
As wife as SOCKATES, if fuch they were,

As wife as SOCKATES, might jultly stand

The definition of a modern fool.

A CHRISTIAN is the highest flyle of man.
And is there, who the blelfed crofs wipes off,
As a foul blot, from his dishonour'd brow?
If angels tremble, 'tis at fuch a fight:
The wretch they quit, desponding of their charge,
More fluck with orife or wooder, who can tell?

More struck with grief or wonder, who can tell?

Ye fold to fense! ye citizens of earth!

(For such alone the Christian banner fly).

(For such alone the Christian banner sty), Know ye how wife your choice, how great your gain? Behold the picture of earth's happiest man:

Behold the picture of earth's happiest man:
"He calls his wish, it comes; he fends it back,

"And fays, he call'd another; that arrives,
"Meets the same welcome; yet he still calls on;
"Till one calls him, who varies not his call,

But holds him faft, in chains of darkness bound,
Till Nature dies, and Judgment sets him free;
A freedom far less welcome than his chain."

But grant man happy; grant him happy long; Add to life's highest prize her latest hour; That hour, so late, is nimble in approach,

That, like a post, comes on in full career:
How swift the shuttle slies, that weaves thy shroud!

Where is the fable of thy former years?

Thrown down the gulf of Time; as far from thee

As they had ne'er been thine: the day in hand, Like a bird struggling to get loofe, is going; Scarce now poffes'd, fo fuddenly 'tis gone : And each swift moment fled, is death advanc'd By firides as fwift : Eternity is all : And whose eternity? who triumphs there? Bathing for ever in the font of blifs ! For ever basking in the Deity ! LORENZO! who ?- Thy confcience shall reply. O give it leave to fpeak; 'twill fpeak erelong, Thy leave unafk'd: LORENZO! hear it now. While useful its advice, its accent mild, By the great edict, the divine decree. Truth is deposited with man's last bour : An honest hour, and faithful to her trust : Truth, eldest daughter of the Deity; Truth, of his council, when he made the worlds ; Nor lefs, when he shall judge the worlds he made; Though filent long, and fleeping ne'er fo found, Smother'd with errors, and oppress'd with toys, That heav'n-commission'd hour no sooner calls, But from her cavern in the foul's abyls. Like him they fable under Ætna whelm'd, The goddess burfts in thunder, and in flame: Loudly convinces, and feverely pains. Dark demons I discharge, and bydra-stings; The keen vibration of bright Truth-is hell: Just definition! though by schools untaught. Ye deaf to truth! peruse this parson'd page, And trult, for once, a prophet, and a priest; Men may live fools, but fools they cannot die.

NIGHT THE FIFTH.

THE

RELAPSE.

Humbly Infcribed

To the RIGHT HONOURABLE

The Earl of LITCHFIELD.

ORENZO! to recriminate is just.

I Fondness for some is avarice of air.

I grant the man is vain who writes for praise.

Praise no man e'er deserv'd, who sought no more.

As just they feeend charge. I grant the Mule Has often blush'd at her degen'rate fons, Retain'd by Sense to plead her filthy cause; To raise the low, to magnify the mean, And fubthize the gross into refin'd: As if to magick numbers pow'rful charm 'I'was giv'n, to make a civet of their fong Obscene, and sweeten ordure to perfume. Wit, a true Pagan, desses the brute, And lists our swine-response from the mire.

The fact notorious, nor obscure the cause. We wear the chains of Pleafure, and of Pride. These lines the man; and the distract him too; Draw distret ways, and clash in their commands. Pride, like an eagle, builds among the stars; But Pleafure, lark-like, nests upon the ground. Joys shard by brute-creation, Pride resents; Pleafure cmbraces: man would both enjoy, And both at once: A point now hard to gain! But what can't Wit, when stungs desire? Wit days attempt this arduous caterprise.

Since joys of Sense can't rise to Reason's taste,

In fubtle Sabhilley's laborious forge. Wit hammers out a reason new, that stoops To fordid fcenes, and meets them with applaufe. Wit calls the Graces the chafte zone to loofe : Nor less than a plump god to fill the bowl : A thousand phantoms, and a thousand spells, A thousand opiates scatters, to delude, To fascinate, inebriate, lay afleen, And the fool'd mind delightfully confound. Thus that which shock'd the judgment, shocks no more; That which gave Pride offence, no more offends. Pleasure and Pride, by nature mortal foes, At war eternal, which in man shall reign. By Wit's address, patch up a fatal peace, And hand in hand lead on the rank debauch. From rank refin'd to delicate and gay. Art, curfed art! wipes off th' indebted blush From Nature's cheek, and bronzes ev'ry shame. Man fmiles in ruin, glories in his guilt, And Infamy flands candidate for praife.

All writ by man in favour of the foul, Thefe fonfual ethicks far, in bulk, transcend. The flow'rs of eloquence, profuely pour'd O'er spotted vice, fill half the letter'd world. Can pow'rs of genius exorcite their page, And conferrate enormities with son?

But let not these inexpiable strains

Condemn the Mufe that knows her dignity;
Nor meanly stops at Time, but holds the world.
As 'tis, in Nature's ample field, a point,
A point in her esteem; from whence to start,
And run the round of universal space,
To visit being universal there,
And being's fource, that utmost flight of mind!
Yet, spite of this so vast circumference,
Well knows, but what is moral, nought is great.
Sing firem only? do not angels sing?
There is in Peess a decent pride,
Which well becomes her when she speaks to Prose.

Herryounger fifter; haply, not more wife.
Think'lt thou, LORENZO! to find passimes here?

Think'lt thou, Lorenzo! to find passimes here?
No guilty passion blown into a same,

No foible flatter'd, dignity difgrac'd,
No fairy field of fiction, all on flow't,
No rainbow colours, bers, or filken tale;
But folenm counfels; images of awe,
Truth; which eternity lets fall on man
With double weight, through thefe revolving fpheres,
This death-fleep filence, and incumbent flade;
Thought, fuch as fhall revifit your laft hour;
Vifit uncall'd, and live when life expires;
And thy dark pencil, Midnight I darker still
I melaucholy dint, embrowns the whole.

Yet this, e'n bhir, my laughter-loving friends l LORENZO! and thy brothers of the fmile! If what imports you moß, can moß engage, Shall fleal your ear, and chain you to my fong. Or if you fail me, know, the wife fhall talte The truths I fing; the truths I fing shall feel; And, seeling, give affent; and their affect;

And, feeling, give affent; and their affent Is ample recompense; is more than praise,

But chiefly thine, O LITCHFIELD's nor mistake; Think not unintroduc'd I force my way; ARCISSA, not unknown, not unally'd, By virtue, or by blood, illustrious youth! To thee, from blooming Amaranthine bow'rs, Where all the language Harmony, descends Uncall'd, and asks admittance for the Muse: A Muse that will not pain thee with thy praise;

Thy praise she drops, by nobler still inspir'd.
O thou! bless'd Spirit! whether the supreme.

Great antemundane Father! in whose breast Embryo-creation, unborn being, dwelt, And all its various revolutions roll?d Present, though suture; prior to themselves; Whose breath can blow it into nought again: Orr, from his throne some delegated power, Who, studies of our peace, dost turn the thought From vain and wile, to folid and sublime! Unseen, thou lead'st me to delicious draughts Of isspiration, from a purer stream,

And fuller of the God, than that which burit From fam'd Lafialia: nor is yet allay'd My facted thirst; though long my foul has rang'd

Through

Through pleasing paths of moral, and divine,
By thee sustain'd, and lighted by the STARS.

By they hell lighted are the paths of Though

By them bell lighted are the paths of Thought;

By them bell lighted are the paths of Thought;

Nights are their days; their most illumin'd hours.

By day, the foul, o'erborne by life's career,

Stunn'd by the din, and giddy with the glare,
Reels far from reason; jostled by the throug.

By day the foul is passive, all her thoughts

Impos'd, precarious, broken ere mature.

By night, from objects free, from passion cool,

Thoughts uncontroll'd, and unimpress'd, the births

Of pure election, arbitrary range,

Not to the limits of one world confin'd;

But from ethercal travels light on earth,

As voyagers drop anchor, for repose.

As voyagers drop anchor, for repote.

Let Indians, and the gay, like Indians, fond
Of feather'd fopperies, the fun adore:
Darknef has more divinity for me;
It firlices thought inward; it dives back the foul
To fettle on herfelf, our point fupreme!
There lies our theatre; there fits our judge.
Darknef the curtain drops o'er life's dull feene;
'I's the kind hand of Providence fletch'd out
'Twitt man and vanity; 'tis Reafor's reign,
And Virtua's too: thefe tuctairy flades

Are man's afilum from the tainted throng. Night is the good man's friend, and guardian too; It no less rescues virtue, than inspires.

Findue for ever frail, as fair, below,
Her tender nature fuffers in the croud,
Nor touches on the world, without a stain:
The world's infectious; few bring back at eve,
Immaculate, the manners of the more.
Something we thought, is blotted; we refold'd,
Is shaken; we renound'd, returns again.
Each falutation may flide in a sin
Unthought before, or fix a former saw.
Nor is it strange: light, motion, concourse, noise,
All, featter us abroad; thought, outward-bound,
Neglectful of our home affairs, sites off
In sume and disspation, quits her charge,

And leaves the breast unguarded to the foe.

Prefent example gets within our guard. And acts with double force, by few repell'd. Ambition fires ambition ; Love of gain Strikes, like a pestilence, from breast to breast Riot, Pride, Perfidy, blue vapours breathe : And Inhumanity is caught from man : From smiling man. A flight, a single glance, And thot at random, often has brought home A fudden fever, to the throbbing heart, Of envy, rancour, or impure defire.

We fee, we hear, with peril; Safety dwells Remote from multitude: the world's a school Of wrong, and what proficients fwarm around ! We must or imitate, or disapprove;

Must list as their accomplices, or foes:

That flains our innocence : this wounds our peace. From Nature's birth, hence, Wildom has been fmit With fweet recess, and languish'd for the shade, This facred shade, and solitude, what is it?

'Tis the felt presence of the Deity. Few are the faults we flatter when alone.

Vice finks in her allurements, is ungilt, And looks, like other objects, black by night.

By night an Atheist half-believes a God. Night is fair Virtue's immemorial friend;

The confcious moon, through every diftant age, Has held a lamp to Wisdom, and let fall, On Contemplation's eye, her purging ray.

The fam'd Athenian, he who woo'd from heav'n Philosophy the fair, to dwell with men, And form their manners, not inflame their pride,

While o'er his head, as fearful to molest His lab'ring mind, the flars in filence slide, And feem all gazing on their future gueft,

See him foliciting his ardent fuit

In private audience : all the live-long night, Rigidin thought, and motionless, he stands; Nor quits his theme, or posture, till the fun (Rude drunkard rifing rofy from the main l)

Difturbs his nobler intellectual beam,

And gives him to the tumult of the world. Hail, precious moments ! stolen from the black waste

Of murder'd time! auspicious Midnight! hail! The world excluded, ev'ry passion hush'd. And open'd a calm intercourse with heav'n. Here the foul fits in council; ponders paft, Predestines future action; fees, not feels, Tumultuous life, and reasons with the storm : All her lies answers, and thinks down her charms

What awful joy! what mental liberty! I am not pent in darkness; rather say (If not too bold) in darkness I'm embower'd. Delightful gloom! the cluft'ring thoughts around Spontaneous rife, and bloffom in the shade : But droop by day, and ficken in the fun. Thought borrows light elfewhere; from that first fires Fountain of animation! whence descends URANSA, my celestial guest! who deigns Nightly to vifit me, fo mean; and now Confcious how needful discipline to man, From pleasing dalliance with the charms of night, My wand'ring thought recals, to what excites Far other beat of heart 1 NARCISSA's tomb! Or is it feeble Nature calls me back.

And breaks my spirit into grief again ? Is it a Stygian vapour in my blood? A cold, flow puddle, creeping through my veins ? Or is it thus with all men?-Thus with all. What are we? how unequal! Now we foar, And now we fink ; to be the fame, transcends Our present prowels. Dearly pays the foul For lodging ill; too dearly rents her clay. Reafon, a baffled counfellor | but adds : The blush of weakness to the bane of wo. The noblest spirit fighting her hard fate, In this damp, dufky region, charg'd with florms, But feebly flutters, yet untaught to fly; Or, flying, fhort her flight, and fure her fall, Our utmost strength, when down, to rife again ; And not to yield, though beaten, all our praise.

'Tis vain to feek in men for more than man. Though proud in promife, big in previous thought, Experience damps our triumph. I, who late, Emerging from the shadows of the grave,

Where

Threw wide the gates of everlafting day, And call'd mankind to glory, shook off pain, Mortality shook off, in æther pure, And ftruck the ftars . now feel my fpirits fail : They drop me from the zenith; down I rush, Like him whom fable fledg'd with waxen wings, In forrow drown'd-but not in forrow loft. How wretched is the man, who never mourn'd! I dive for precious pearl, in Sorrow's stream : Not fo the thoughtless man that only grieves . Takes all the torment, and rejects the gain, (Inestimable gain!), and gives Heav'n leave

To make him but more wretched, not more wife. If wisdom is our lesson, (and what else Ennobles man? what elfe have angels learn'd?). Grief! more proficients in thy school are made, Than Genius, or proud Learning, e'er could boaft. Voracious Learning, often over-fed, Digefts not into fense her motley meal. This book-cafe, with dark booty almost burst,

This forager on others wifdom, leaves Her native farm, her reason, quite untill'd. With mix'd manure the furfeits the rank foil, Dung'd, but not drefs'd; and rich to beggary. A pomp untameable of weeds prevails.

Her fervant's wealth incumbered Wifdom mourns. And what fays Genius? " Let the dull be wife." Genius, too hard for right, can prove it wrong; And loves to boaft, where bluft men less inspir'd. It pleads exemption from the laws of Sonfe ;

Confiders Reason as a leveller:

And feores to share a blefling with the croud. That wife it could be, thinks an ample claim To glory and to pleasure gives the reft. Craffus but fleeps, Ardelio is undone.

Wildom less shudders at a fool, than wit.

But Wifdom finiles when humbled mortals weep, When Sorrow wounds the breaft, as ploughs the glebe, And hearts obdurate feel her foft ning shower Her feed celestial, then, glad Wifdom fows; Her golden harvest triumphs in the foil,

74

If fo. NARCISSA! welcome my Relapse : I'll raise a tax on my calamity, And reap rich compensation from my pain. I'll range the plenteous intellectual field : And gather ev'ry thought of fov'reign bower To chase the moral maladies of man: Thoughts, which may bear transplanting to the skies, Though natives of this coarse penurious foil; Nor wholly wither there, where feraphs fing, Refin'd, exalted, not annull'd, in heav'n, Reason, the fun that gives them birth, the same In either clime, though more illustrious there. These choicely cull'd, and elegantly rang'd, Shall form a garland for NARCISSA's tomb : And, peradventure, of no fading flowers.

Say, on what themes shall puzzled Choice descend?

" Th' importance of contemplating the tomb; at Why men decline it ; Suicide's foul birth ;

The various kinds of grief; the faults of age;

" And Death's dread character, -invite my long." And, first, th' importance of our end survey'd. Friends counsel quick dismission of our grief a Miftaken kindness! our hearts heal too foon. Are they more kind than be, who ftruck the blow? Who bid it do his errand in our hearts.

And banish peace, till nobler guests arrive, And bring it back, a true, and endless peace? Calamities are friends : as glaring day Of these unnumber'd luttres robs our fight : Profperity puts out unnumber'd thoughts

Of import high, and light divine, to man. The man how blefs'd, who, fick of gaudy scenes,

(Scenes apt to thrust between us and ourselves 1), Is led by choice to take his fav'rite walk, Beneath Death's gloomy, filent, cypress shades Unpierc'd by Vanity's fantastick ray ; To read his monuments, to weigh his duft, Visit his vaults, and dwell among the tombs ! LORENZO! read with me NARCISSA's flone : (NARCISSA was thy fav'rite), let us read Her moral stone; few doctors preach so well; Few orators fo tenderly can touch

The feeling heart. What pathos in the date ? Apt words can flrike; and yet in them we fee Faint images of what we, here, enjoy. What cause have we to build on length of life? Temptations feize, when Fear is laid asleep: And ill foreboded is our ffrongest quard.

See from her tomb, as from an humble shrine, Truth, radiant goddess ! fallies on my foul, And puts Delufion's dufky train to flight ; Difpels the milts our fultry Paffions raife, From objects low, terrestrial, and obscene; And shows the real estimate of things : Which no man, unafflicted, ever faw; Pulls off the veil from Virtue's rifing charms: Detects Temptation in a thousand lies. Truth bids me look on men, as autumn-leaves, And all they bleed for, as the Summer's duft. Driven by the whirlwind : lighted by her beams, I widen my horizon, gain new powers, See things invisible, feel things remote, Am preient with futurities; think nought To man fo foreign, as the joys poffefs'd;

No folly keeps its colour in her fight; Pale worldly Wifdow lofes all her charms; In pompous promife from her schemes profound. If future fate the plans, 'tis all in leaves, Like Sibyl, unfubstantial, fleeting blifs! At the first blaft it vanishes in air. Not fo, celestial. Wouldst thou know, LORENZO t. How differ worldly Wisdom, and divine? Just as the waning, and the waxing moon. More empty worldly Wisdom ev'ry day: And ev'ry day more fair her rival shines. When later, there's less time to play the fool.

Nought fo much his, as those beyond the grave.

(Thou know'ft fhe calls no council in the grave) : And everlasting fool is writ in fire, Or real Wisdom wasts us to the skies. As worldly schemes resemble Sibyl's leaves, The good man's days to Sibyl's books compare,

Soon our whole term for wifdom is expir'd.

(In ancient flory read, thou know!ft the tale),

In price fill rifing, as in number lefs,
Ingfimable quite his final hour.
For that who thrones can offer, offer thrones;

Tology by worlds the purchase cannot nav.

Infolvent worlds the purchase cannot pay.

"Oh let me die his death!" all Nature eries.

"Then live his hise"—all Nature faulters there.

Our great physician daily to consult,

To commine with the grave, our only cure.

What grave preferibes the belt?—A friend's; and yet, Form a friend's grave, bow foon we difengage! Ev'n to the dearell, as his marble, cold. Why are friends ravifild from w? 'Trs to bind, By foft Affection's ties, on human hearts, The thought of death, which Reafon, too supine, Or misemploy'd, to rarely fallens there. Nor reason, nor affection, no, nor both Combin'd, can break the witchcrafts of the world. Behold th' inexorable hour at hand! Behold th' inexorable hour at hand! Behold th' inexorable hour forgot! And to forget it, the chief aim of hise. Though well to ponder it, in life's chief end.

Is deeth, that ever threat sing, ne'er remote, That all important, and that only fure, (Come when he will), an unexpected gueft? Nay, though invited by the loudett calls of blind importance, unexpected full? Though num'rous mellengers are fent before, To warn his great arrival. What the caufe, The wondrous caufe, of this mylterious ill? All Heavi'n looks down allominifed at the fight.

Is it, that Life has fown her joys to thick,

Is it, that Life has fuch a fwarm of cares,

Is it, that Life has fuch a fwarm of cares,

The thought of death can't enter for the throng?

Is it, that Time itals on with downy feet,

Nor wakes Indulgence from her golden dream?

Today is fo like pylerday, it cleasts;

We take the lying fifter for the fame.

Life glides away, Locassao! like a brook;

For ever changing, unperceived the change.

In the fame brook some ever bath'd him twice.

We call the brook the fame; the fame we think Our life, though fill more rapid in its flow; Nor mark the much irrevocably laps'd, And mingled with the fea. Of thall we fay (Retaining fill the brook to bear us on) That life is like a well-d on the ftream? In life imbark'd, we imnoully down the tide Of Time defeend, but not on Time intent; Amus'd, unconfocious of the gliding wave; Till on a fudden we perceive a shock; We flart, awake, look out; what fee we there? Our brittle bark is burf on Charson's shore.

Is this the caufe Death flies all human thought? Or is it "Jaugment, by the Will flruck blind," That domineering mittrefi of the foul! Like time fol through by Delihat the fair? Or is it Fear turns flartled Reafor back, From looking down a precipice for fleep? "I'is dreadful; and the dread is wifely plac'd By Nature, confeious of the make of man. A dreadful friend it is, a terror kind, A flaming fword to guard the tree of life. By that unaw'd, in life's most fimiling hour, The good max would repine; would juffer joys, And burn impatient for his promise'd fixes. The bed, on each punctilious pique of pride, Or gloom of humour, would give rage the rein.

Bound o'er the barrier, rush into the dark,

And mar the fehemes of Providence below.

What groan was that, Lokerzo?—Puries! rife;
And drown, in your lefs excerable yell,
Britannia's fhame. There took her gloomy flight,
On wing impetueus, a black fullen foul,
Blafted from hell, with horrid full of death.
Thy friend, the brave, the gallant Allannant,
So call'd, fo thought—And then he fled the field.

Lefs bafé the fear of death, than fear of Life. O Britain, infamous for fuicide! An ifland in thy manners! far disjoin'd From the whole world of rationals befide! In ambient waves plunge thy polluted head, Walls the dire flain, nor mock the continent.

But thou be shock'd, while I detect the cause Of felf-allault, expose the monster's birth. And bid Abhorrence his it round the world. Blame not thy clime, nor chide the distant fun; The fun is innocent, thy clime abfolv'd: Immoral climes kind Nature never made. The cause I sing, in Eden might prevail,

And proves, it is thy folly, not thy fate. The foul of man, (let man in homage bow, Who names his foul), a native of the skies! High born, and free, her freedom should maintain. Unfold, unmottgag'd for Earth's little bribes. Th' illustrious stranger, in this foreign land, Like strangers, jealous of her dignity, Studious of home, and ardent to return, Of Earth suspicious, Earth's inchanted cup With cool referve light touching, should indulge,

On immortality, her godlike tafte; There take large draughts; make her chief banquet

But some reject this sustenance divine : To beggarly vile appetites descend : Ask alms of Earth, for guests that came from Heav'ng Sink into flaves; and fell, for prefent hire, Their rich reversion, and (what shares its fate) Their native freedom, to the prince who fways This nether world. And when his payments fail, When his foul basket gorges them no more, Or their pall'd palates loathe the basket full ; Are inflantly, with wild demoniack rage, For breaking all the chains of providence, And burfting their confinement; though fast barr'd By laws divine and human ; guarded ftrong With horrors doubled to defend the pass, The blackeft Nature, or dire Guilt, can raife ; And moated round, with fathomless destruction, Sure to receive, and whelm them in their fall.

Such, Britons! is the cause, to you unknown, Or worfe, o'erlook'd; o'erlook'd by magistrates, Thus, criminals themselves. I grant the deed Is madness: but the madness of the heart. And what is that ? Our utmost bound of guilt.

A fenfual,

A fenfual, unreflecting life is big. With montrous births, and Susciete, to crown The black infernal brood. The bold to break Fleav'n's law fupreme, and defeperately runh Through facred Nature's murder, on their own, Because they never think of death, they die. Tis equally man's duty, glory, gain,

"Tis equally man's duty, glory, gain,.
At once to flun, and meditate, his end.
When by the Bed of languifment we fit,
(The feat of Wijdom! if our choice, not fate),.
Or, o'er our dying friends, in anguift hang,
Wine the cold deer, or flay the folking head

Or, o'er our dying friends, in anguish hang, Wipe the cold dew, or flay the finking head, Number their moments, and, in ev'ry clock, Start at the voice of an Eternity; See the dim lamp of Life in feebly life.

See the dim lamp of Life just feebly lift. An agonizing beam, at us to gaze,

Then fink again, and quiver into Death, That most pathetick herald of our own;

How read we such sad seenes? as sent to man In perfect vengeance? No; in pity sent,

To melt him down, like wax, and then imprefs, Indelible, Death's image on his heart;

Indefible, Dealt's image on his heart;
Bleeding for others, trembling for himself.
We bleed, we tremble, we forget, we smile.
The mind turns fool, before the check is dry.

Our quick returning Folly cancels all; As the tide rushing razes what is writ

In yielding fands, and fmooths the letter'd shore.

LORENZO! hast thou ever weigh'd a figh?

Or study'd the philosophy of tears?

Or intoly a the plantolphy of zeal? (A science yet unlectured in our schools!)
Hast thou descended deep into the breast,
And seen their source? If not, descend with me,
And trace these briny rivelets to their springs.
Our spurval tears from different causes rite,

As if from leparate cifleras-in the foul, Of various hinds, they flow. From tender hearts, By foft contagion call'ds, fome burst at once, And stream obsequious to the leading eye. Some six more time, by curious art distill'd. Some hearts in secret hard, unapt to melt, Struck by the magick of the publick eye,

Like Mofes' fmitten rock, gush out amain. Some weep to share the fame of the deceas'd. So high in merit, and to them fo dear. They dwell on praifes, which they think they share : And thus, without a bluft, commend themselves, Some mourn in proof, that fomething they could love. They weep not to relieve their grief, but flow. Some weep in perfect justice to the dead, As conscious all their love is in arrear. Some mischievously weep, not unappris'd, Tears fometimes aid the conquest of an eve. With what address the foft Ephesians draw Their fable net-work o'er entangled hearts? As feen through crystal, how their roses glow, While liquid pearl runs trickling down their check? Of hers not prouder Egypt's wanton queen, Caroufing gems, herfelf diffoly'd in love. Some weep at Death, abstracted from the Dead. And celebrate, like CHARLES, their own deceafe. By kind construction some are deem'd to weep, Because a decent veil conceals their joy. Some weep in earnest, and yet weep in vain;

As deep in indifcretion, as in wo. Passion, blind passion! impotently pours Tears, that deferve more tears; while Reafon fleeps; Or gazes, like an idiot unconcerned: Nor comprehends the meaning of the fform: Knows not it fpeaks to her, and her alone. Irrationals all fortow are beneath. That noble gift! that privilege of man! From Sorrow's pang, the birth of endless lov. But thefe are barren of that birth divine ; They weep impetuous, as the fummer-florm. And full as fhort ! The cruel grief foon tam'd. They make a pastime of the stingless tale; Far as the deep-resounding knell, they spread The dreadful news, and hardly feel it more,

Half round the globe, the tears pumpt up by Death Are spent in wat'ring vanities of Life;

In making Folly flourish ftill more fair.

No grain of wildow pays them for their was

When the fick foul, her wonted flay withdrawn.

Reclines

Reclines on earth, and forrows in the dust : Instead of learning, there, her true supports Though there thrown down her true support to learn, Without heav'n's aid, impatient to be blefs'd. She crawls to the next shrub, or bramble vile, Though from the flately cedar's arm she fell, With stale, forsworn embraces, clings anew. The stranger weds, and blossoms, as before, In all the fruitless fopperies of life : Prefents her weed, well fancy'd at the ball, And raffles for the death's-head on the ring. So went AURELIA, till the deftin'd vouth Stept in, with his receipt for making fmiles, And blanching fables into bridal bloom. So wept LORENZO fair CLARISSA's fate ; Who gave that angel-boy, on whom he doats; And dy'd to give him, orphan'd in his birth! Not fuch, Naucissa, my diffress for thee. ['ll make an altar of thy facred tomb. To facrifice to Wildom .- What wast thou? Young, Gay, and Fortunate!" Each yields a theme. I'll dwell on each, to fhun thought more fevere; Heav'n knows I labour with feverer ftill !) 'll dwell on each, and quite exhauft thy death. A foul without reflection, like a pile

A foul without reflection, like a pile Without inhabitant, to ruin runs.

And, first, the Youth. What fays it to grey hairs?

Naccissal, I'm become thy pupil now—
Larly, bright, transfient, chaffe, as morning dew bite figarlied, was exhalfd, and went to heav'n.
Time on this head has snow'd; yet shill vis borne
Aloft; nor thinks but on another's grave.
Lover'd with shains I speak it, Age severe
Did worn-out Vice fets down for Virtue sair;
With graceless gravity, challising youth,
That youth challid durpessing it a fault;
Father of all, forgetsulmess of Death:
As if, like objects pressing on the sight;
Death shaid advanced too near us to be feen:
Dr, that Life's loan Time ripen'd into right;
And men might plead prescription from the grave;

Deathless, from repetition of reprieve.

Deathlefs ?

Deathless? far from it! fuch are dead already;
Their hearts are bury'd, and the world their grave.
Tell me, fome God! my guardian Ange!! tell,
Whet the infrared who are the plants.

What thus infatuates? what inchantment plants The phantom of an age 'twixt us, and death Already at the door? He knocks, we hear him, And yet we will not hear. What mail defends Our untouch'd hearts? what miracle turns off The pointed thought, which from a thousand quivers Is daily darted, and is daily fhunn'd ? We stand as in a battle, throngs on throngs Around us falling; wounded oft ourselves; Though bleeding with our wounds, immortal fill We fee Time's furrows on another's brow. And Death intrench'd, preparing his affault; How few themselves, in that just mirror, see ! Or, feeing, draw their inference as ftrong! There Death is certain : doubtful bere : he muft. And foon; we may, within an age, expire. Though grey our heads, our thoughts and aims are green

And foon; we may, within an age, expire.
Though grey our heads, our thoughts and aims are gr
Like damag'd clocks, whole hand and bell diffient;
Folly fings its, while Nature points at twelve.
Abfurd Longevity! More, more, it cries:

More lifes more wealth, more trash of ev'ry kind, And wherefore mad for more, when relish fails? Object, and Appetite, must club for joy. Shall Folly labour hard to mend the bow, Baubles, I mean, that ftrike us from without, While Nature is relaxing ev'ry ftring? Alk Thought for joy; grow rich, and hoard within. Think you the foul, when this life's rattles cease, Ifas nothing of more manly to fucceed? Contract the tafte immortal; learn ev'n now To relish what alone subsists hereafter. Divine, or none, henceforth your joys for ever. Of age the glory is, to wish to die. That wish is praise and promise; it applauds. Past life, and promises our future bliss. What weakness see not children in their fires?

Grand-climacterical abfurdities!

Grey-hair'd authority, to faults of youth,

How shocking! It makes Folly thrice a fool:

And

And our first childhood might our last despite. Peace and esteem is all that age can hope. Nothing but Wisdom gives the first; the last, Nothing, but the repute of being wife. Folly bars both ; our age is twice undone.

What folly can be ranker? like our shadows. Our wishes lengthen, as our fun declines, No wish should loiter, then, this fide the grave. Dur hearts should leave the world, before the knell Calls for our carcales to mend the foil. Enough to live in tempeft, die in port : Age should fly concourse, cover in retreat Defects of Judgment; and the Will's fubdue; Walk thoughtful on the filent, folemn shore

Of that valt ocean it must fail so soon; And put good-works on board; and wait the wind That shortly blows us into worlds unknown : If unconsider'd too, a dreadful scene! All should be prophets to themselves; foresee

Their future fate : their future fate foretafte : This art would wafte the bitterness of death, The thought of death alone, the fear destroys, A disaffection to that precious thought Is more than midnight-darkness on the foul, Which fleeps beneath it on a precipice, Puff'd off by the first blast, and lost for ever-Doft ask, LORENZO, why so warmly pres'd.

By repetition hammer'd on thine ear. The thought of death? That thought is the machine, I'he grand machine I that heaves us from the duft, And rears us into men. That thought ply'd home Will foon reduce the ghaftly precipice D'er hanging hell, will foften the descent. And gently slope our passage to the grave; How warmly to be wish'd! What heart of flesh

Would trifle with tremendous? dare extremes? Yawn o'ar the fate of infinite? what hand, Beyond the blackest brand of censure bold, To speak a language too well known to thee), Would at a moment give its all to chance,

And flamp the dye for an eternity ?

Aid me. NARCISSA! aid me to keep pace With Destiny; and ere her scissars cut My thread of life, to break this tougher thread Of moral death, that ties me to the world, Sting thou my flumbering Reason to fend forth A thought of observation on the foe: To fally, and furvey the rapid march Of his ten thousand messengers to man; Who, Yehu-like, behind him turns them all. All accident apart, by Nature fign'd. My warrant is gone out, though dormant yet t Perhaps behind one moment lurks my fate.

Must I then forward only look for death? Backward I turn mine eye, and find him there. Man is a felf-furvivor every year. Man like a stream, is in perpetual flow. Death's a destroyer of quotidian prey. My youth, my noon-tide, his ; my yesterday! The bold invader shares the present hour. Each moment on the former shuts the grave. While man is growing, life is in decrease s And cradles rock us nearer to the tomb. Our birth is nothing but our death begun ; As tapers wafte, that inflant they take fire.

Which comes to pass each moment of our lives? If fear we must, let that Death turn us pale. Which murders strength and ardour; what remains Should rather call on Death, than dread his call. Ye partners of my fault, and my decline! Thoughtless of death, but when your neighbour's knell (Rude vifitant!) knocks hard at your dull fense, And with its thunder scarce obtains your ear ! Be death your theme, in ev'ry place and hour ; Nor longer want, ye monumental fires! A brother-tomb to tell you, you shall die. That death you dread, (fo great is Nature's skill !) Know, you shall court, before you shall enjoy.

Shall we then fear, left that should come to pals,

But you are learn'd; in volumes deep you-lit; In wifdom shallow: pompous ignorance! Would you be still more learned than the learn'd ! Learn well to know how much need not be known, And what that knowledge, which impairs your fenfe. Our needful knowledge, like our needful food, Unhedg'd, lies open in life's common field : And bids all welcome to the vital feaft. You fcorn what lies before you in the page Of Nature, and Experience, moral truth ; Of indispensable, eternal fruit : Fruit, on which mortals feeding turn to Gods : And dive in science for diffinguish'd names, Dishonest fomentation of your pride; Sinking in virtue, as you rife in fame. Your learning, like the lunar beam, affords Light, but not heat; it leaves you undevout. Frozen at heart, while speculation shines. Awake, ye curious indagators! fond Of knowing all, but what avails you, known. If you would learn Death's charafter, attend. All casts of conduct, all degrees of health, All dyes of fortune, and all dates of age, Together shook in his impartial urn, Come forth at random: or if choice is made. The choice is quite fareastick, and infults All bold conjecture, and fond hopes of man. What countless multitudes, not only leave, But deeply disappoint us, by their deaths ! Though great our forrow, greater our furprife. Like other tyrants, Death delights to fmite. What, fmitten, most proclaims the pride of pow'r, And arbitrary nod. His joy supreme, To bid the wretch furvive the fortunate : The feeble wrap th' athletick in his shroud; And weeping fathers build their children's tomb : Me thine, NARCISSA !- What though short thy date? Virtue, not rolling funs, the mind matures. That life is long, which answers life's great end. The time that bears no fruit, deserves no name : The man of wifdom is the man of years. In hoary youth Methufalems may die; I how middated on their flatt'ring tombs !

NARCISSA's youth has lectur'd me thus far. And can her Gaiety give counsel too? That, like the Yews fam'd oracle of gems,

Sparkles instruction: such as throws new light. And opens more the character of death ; Ill known to thee, LORENZO! This thy vaunt ! 46 Give Death his due, the wretched and the old to " Ev'n let him sweep his rubbish to the grave : " Let him not violate kind Nature's laws. " But own man born to live, as well as die." Wretched and old thou giv'ft him ; young and gay He takes : and plunder is a tyrant's joy. What if I prove, " The farthest from the fear, " Are often nearest to the firoke of fate?"

All, more than common, menaces an end. A blaze betokens brevity of life ; As if bright embers should emit a same. Glad spirits sparkled from NARCISSA's eye, And made youth younger, and taught Life to live. As Nature's opposites wage endless war, For this offence, as treason to the deep. Inviolable stupor of his reign, Where Luft, and turbulent Ambition, fleep, Death took swift vengeance. As he life detells, More life is still more odious; and, reduc'd By conquells, aggrandizes more his pow'r. But wherefore aggrandiz'd? By heav'n's decree, To plant the foul on her eternal guard. In awful expectation of our end. Thus runs Death's dread commission : " Strike, but for " As most alarms the living by the dead." Hence fratagem delights him, and furprife, And cruel fport with man's fecurities. Not simple conquest, triumph is his aim ;

And, where least fear'd, there conquest triumphs most. This proves my bold affertion not too bold. What are his arts to lay our fears afleep ?

Tiberian arts his purposes wrap up In deep Diffimulation's darkelt night. Like princes unconfes'd in foreign courts, Who travel under cover, Death affumes The name and look of Life, and dwells among us. He takes all shapes that serve his black designs : Though master of a wider empire far Than that o'er which the Roman cagle flew ;

Liko Nero, he's a fiddler, charioteer, Or drives his Phaeton, in female guife; Quite unfuspected, till, the wheel beneath, His difarray'd oblation he devours.

He most affects the forms least like himself, His slender self. Hence burly corpulence Is his familiar wear, and sleek disguise. Rehind the rose bloom be loves to burk

Is his familiar wear, and fleek difguife. Behind the rofy bloom he loves to lurk, Or ambuth in a fmile; or, wanton, dive In dimples deep; love's eddies, which draw in Unwary hearts, and fink them in defipair.

Unwary hearts, and fink them in despair. Such, on Narcissa's couch, he loiter'd long, Unknown; and, when detecled, still was seen To smile; such peace has innocence in death!

Most happy they I whom least his arts deceive. One eye on Deasts, and one full fix'd on Heav'n, Becomes a mortal, and immortal man. Long on his wiles a piqu'd and Jealous fpy, Tve Icen, or dream'd I law, the tyrant dreft; Lay by his horrors, and put on his fmiles. Say, Mufe, for thou remember fft, call it back,

And show LORENZO the surprising scene; If 'twas a dream, his genius can explain. 'Twas in a cirle of the gay I stood.

Death would have enter'd; Nature push'd him back; Supported by a doctor of renown,

His point he gained. Then artfully difmis'd The lage; for Death defign'd to be conceal'd. He gave an old vivacious ufwer

His meagre afpech, and his naked bones; In gratitude for plumping up his prey, A pamper'd frendthrift; whose fantaftick air, Well-fathion'd figure, and cockade brow, He took in change, and underneath the pride of coftly linen, tuck'd his fifthy fhroud. His crooked bowh fertratten'd to a cane;

And hid his deadly finafts in Myra's eye.

The dreadful maiquerader, thus equipp'd,
Out-fallies, on adventures. Alk you where?
Where is he not? For his peculiar haunts,
Let this fuffice: Sure as night follows day,
Death treads in Pleafare's footfleps round the world,

H 2 When

When Pleasure treads the paths, which Reason shuns. When, against Reason, Riot shuts the door, And Gaiety Supplies the place of Sense, Then, foremost at the banquet, and the ball, Death leads the dance, or stamps the deadly dye ; Nor ever fails the midnight bowl to crown. Gaily caroufing to his gay compeers, Inly he laughs, to fee them laugh at him, As absent far : and when the revel burns, When Fear is banish'd, and triumphant Thought, Calling for all the joys beneath the moon, Against him turns the key; and bids him sup With their progenitors - He drops his mask; Frowns out at full: they flart, despair, expire, Scarce with more fudden terror and furprife,

From his black mask of nitre, touch'd by fire, He burits, expends, roars, blazes, and devours And is not this triumphant treachery,

And more than simple conquest, in the fiend?

And now, LORENZO, doft thou wrap thy foul In fost fecurity, because unknown

Which moment is commission'd to destroy ? In Death's uncertainty thy danger lies, Is Death uncertain? therefore thou be fix'd; Fix'd as a centinel, all eye, all ear, All expectation of the coming foe. Roufe, fland in arms, nor lean against thy spear ; Left flumber feal one moment o'er thy foul, And Fate surprise thee nodding. Watch, be strong; Thus give each day the merit, and renown, Of dying well; though doom'd but once to die. Nor let life's period hidden (as from most) Hide too from thee the precious use of life.

Early, not fudden, was NARCISSA's fate. Soon, not furprifing, Death his vifit paid. Her thought went forth to meet him on his way, Nor Gaiety forgot it was to die: Though Fortune too, (our third and final theme), As an accomplice, play'd her gaudy plumes, And ev'ry glitt'ring gewgaw, on her fight, To dazzle, and debauch it from its mark. Death's dreadful advent is the mark of man;

And evry thought that miffes it, is blind. Portune, with Touth and Galety, configir'd. To weave a triple wreath of happinels, (If happinels on earth), to crown her brow. And could Death charge through fuch a thining field?

That shining shield invites the tyrant's spear.

As if to damp our elevated aims,

As it to damp our elevated aims,
And firongly preach humility to man,
O how portentous is prosperity!

How, comet-like, it threatens, while it shines! Few years but yield us proof of Death's ambition, To cull his victims from the fairest fold,

And sheath his shafts in all the pride of life. When slooded with abundance, purpled o'er

When flooded with abundance, purpled o'er With recent honours, bloom'd with ev'ry blifs, Set up in oftentation, made the gaze,

The gaudy centre of the publick eye,

When Fortune thus has tols'd her child in air, Snatch'd from the covert of an humble flate, How often have I feen him dropt at once,

Our morning's envy! and our evining's figh! As if her bounties were the fignal given,

The flow'ry weeth to mark the foreigne.

The flow'ry wreath to mark the facrifice, And call Death's arrows on the defin'd prey.

High-Fortune feems in cruel league with Fate.

Alk you, for what? To give his war on man
The deeper dread, and more illustrious spoil;

The deeper dread, and more illustrious for Thus to keep daring mortals more in awe. And burns LORENZO fill for the sublime Of life? to hang his airy nest on high,

Of life? to hang his airy ned on high, On the flight timber of the topmost bough, Rock'd at each breeze, and menacing a fall? Granting grim Deate at equal distance there; Yet Peace begins just where Ambition ends.

What makes man wretched? Happiness den? d? LORENZO! no: 'tis happiness diffain'd. She comes too meanly dress'd to win our finile; And calls herfelf Content, a homely name!

Our flame is transport, and content our feorn.

Ambition turns, and shuts the door against her,
And weds a toil, a tempest, in her stead;

A tempest to warm transport near of kin.
H 2

Unknowing what our mortal state admits, Lise's modest joys we ruin, while we raise; And all our ecstasses are wounds to peace; Peace, the full portion of mankind below.

And fince thy peace is dear, ambitious youth !

Of Fortune fond! as thoughtefs of thy fate!
As late I drew Death's picture, to fir up
Thy wholefome fears; now, drawn in contraft, fee
Gay Fortune's, thy vain hopes to reprint on the contraft, fee
Gay Fortune's, thy vain hopes to reprint on the contraft of the contract of the contract

Gold glitters most, where Virtue shines no more As flars from abfent funs have leave to thine. O what a precious pack of votaries Unkennell'd from the prisons, and the stews, Pour in, all opining in their idol's praise ! All, ardent, eye each wafture of her hand, And, wide-expanding their voracious jaws, Morfel on morfel fwallow down unchew'd, Untaked, through mad appetite for more; Gorg'd to the throat, yet lean and rav'nous still. Sagacious all, to trace the smallest game, And bold to feize the greatest, If (blefs'd chance !) Court-zephyrs fweetly breathe, they launch, they fly, O'er just, o'er facred, all forbidden ground, Drunk with the burning fcent of place or pow'r, Stanch to the foot of lucre, till they die.

Or, if for men you take them, as I mark Them amners, thou their various fates furvey. With aim mifmeafurd, and impetuous speed, Some, darking, strike their ardent wish far off Through fury to possess, if some succeed, But stumble, and let fall the taken prize. From some, by sudden blashs, 'its whirl'draway, And lodg' in bosoms that ne'er dream'd of gain. To some it slicks so close, that, when torn off, forn is the man, and mortal is the wound. lome, o'er-enamour'd of their bags, run mad, Froan under gold, yet weep for want of bread. Pogether fome (unhappy rivals!) feize. And rend abundance into poverty : and croaks the raven of the law, and fmiles : miles too the goddels : but fmiles most at those, Infl. victims of exorbitant defire ! ). Who perish at their own request, and, whelm'd

Torn

Beneath her load of lavish grants, expire. Fortune is famous for her numbers flain. he number fmall, which happiness can bear. Though various for a while their fates, at last ne curfe involves them all : at Death's approach.

All read their riches backward into loss, And mourn, in just proportion to their store.

And Death's approach (if orthodox my fong)

s hasten'd by the lure of Fortune's smiles. And art thou fill a glutton of bright gold? And art thou ftill rapacious of thy ruin? Death loves a fhining mark, a figual blow : A blow, which, while it executes, alarms: And frartles thousands with a fingle fall. As when some stately growth of oak, or pine,

Which nods aloft, and proudly spreads her shade, 'he fun's defiance, and the flock's defence; by the ftrong trokes of lab'ring hinds fubdu'd. oud groans her laft, and, rushing from her heights n cumbrous ruin, thunders to the ground ; The conscious forest trembles at the shock.

And hill, and ftream, and diftant dale, refound. These high-aim'd darts of Death, and these alone, hould I collect, my quiver would be full.

A quiver, which, fuspended in mid air, Or near heav'n's Archer, in the zodiack, hung, So could it be), should draw the publick eye, 'he gaze and contemplation of mankind ! constellation awful, yet benign, o guide the gay through life's tempestuous wave : for fuffer them to ftrike the common rock,

From greater danger to grow more secure, And, wrapt in happiness, forget their fate."

LYSANDERA

LYSANDER, happy past the common lot. Was warn'd of danger, but too gay to fear. He woo'd the fair Aspassa: she was kind: In youth, form, fortune, fame, they both were blefs'd. All who knew, envy'd; vet in envy lov'd: Can fancy form more finish'd happiness? Fix'd was the nuptial bour. Her stately dome Rose on the founding beach. The glitt'ring spires Float in the wave, and break against the shore : So break those glitt'ring shaddows, human joys. The faithless morning smil'd: he takes his leave. To re-embrace in celtafies, at eve. The rifing florm forbids. The news arrives : Untold, the faw it in her fervant's eve. She felt it feen ; (her heart was apt to feel) ; And, drown'd, without the furious ocean's aid. In fuffocating forrows, shares his tomb. Now round the fumptuous bridal monument, The guilty billows innocently roar; And the rough failor passing drops a tear-A tear ?- can tears fuffice ?- but not for me. How vain our efforts ! and our arts, how vain ! The distant train of thought I took, to shun, Has thrown me on my fate --- Thefe dy'd together : Happy in ruin! undivorc'd by death! Or ne'er to meet, or ne'er to part, is peace-NARCISSA! pity bleeds at thought of thee. Yet thou wast only near me; not myself. Survive myfelf? That cures all other wo. NARCISSA lives; PHILANDER is forgot. O the foft commerce! O the tender ties. Close twisted with the fibres of the heart ! Which, broken, break them; and drain off the foul Of human joy; and make it pain to live.-And is it then to live? When fuch friends part, 2 Tis the furvivor dies-My heart! no more.

INFIDEL RECLAIMED.

IN TWO PARTS.

CONTAINING

The NATURE, PROOF, and IMPORTANCE of IMMORTALITY.

PART THE FIRST.

Where, among other things,

GLORY and RICHES are particularly considered.

Humbly inscribed to the Right Honourable

HENRY PELHAM,

FIRST LORD COMMISSIONER of the TREASURY, and

PREFACE.

F.E.W ages have been deeper in dispute about religion, than thit. The dispute about religion, and the practice of it, fellow go together. The shorter, therefore, the dispute, the better. I think it may be reduced to this single question. Is man immortal, or is he not? If he is not, all our dispute, are mere amusements, or trials of shell. In this case, Truth, Reason, Religion, which is givenur discourses sinch pomp and solemnity, are las will be shown) more empty sounds, without any meaning in them. But if man is immortal, it wall before him to be.

94 very ferious about eternal confequences on, in other words, to be truly religious. And this great fundamental truth, unestablished, or unawakened in the minds of men, is, I conceive, the real fource and support of all our infidelity;

how remote foever the particular objections advanced may feom to be from it. Sensible appearances affect most men much more than abstract reasonings; and we daily see bodies drop around us, but the foul is invisible. The power which inclination has over the judgment, is greater than can be well conceived by those that have not had an experience of it : and of what numbers is it the sad interest, that souls should not Survive ! The Heathen world confessed, that they rather hoped than firmly believed immortality; and how many Heathens have we still among it us! The facred page affures us, that life and immortality is brought to light by the gofpel: but by how many is the gospel rejected or overlooked! From these considerations, and from my being, accidentally, privy to the fentiments of some particular persons, I have been long persuaded, that most, if not all, our insidels (whatever name they take, and whatever scheme, for argument's fake, and to keep themselves in countenance, they patronize) are supported in their deplorable error, by some doubt of their immortality, at the bottom. And I am fatisfied, that men, once thoroughly convinced of their immortality, are not far from being Christians. For it is hard to conceive, that a man fully conscious, eternal pain or happiness will certai by be his lot, should not earnestly, and impartially, inquire after the furest means of escaping the one, and securing the other. And of such an earnest and impartial inquiry, I well know the confequence.

Here, therefore, in proof of this most fundamental truth, some plain arguments are offered; arguments derived from principles which infidels admit in common with believers : arguments which appear to me altogether irrefistible; and fuch as, I am satisfied, will have great weight with all who give themselves the small trouble of looking seriously into their own bosoms, and of observing, with any tolerable degree of attention, what daily passes round about them in the world. If some argument shall here occur, which others have declined, they are submitted, with all deference, to better judgments in this, of all points, the most important. For, as to the being of a God, that is no longer disputed; but it is undisputed, for this reason only, viz. Because, where the least pretence to reason is admitted, it must for ever be indisputable, and, of consequence, no man can be betrayed into a dispute of that nature by vanity, which has a principal share in animating our modern combatants against other articles of our belief.

CHE * (for I know not yet her name in heaven) Not early, like Nancissa, left the scene Nor fudden, like PHILANDER. What avail? This feeming mitigation but inflames This fancied med'cine Heightens the disease. The longer known, the closer ftill fhe grew: And gradual parting is a gradual death. Tis the grim tyrant's engine, which extorts By tardy preffure's ftill-increasing weight, -

From hardest hearts, confession of distress. O the long, dark approach through years of pain. Death's gall'ry ! (might I dare to call it fo) With difmal Doubt, and fable Terror hung ; Sick Hope's pale lamp, its only glimm'ring ray : There, Fate my melancholy walk ordain'd,

Forbid Self love itself to flatter, there. How oft I gaz'd, prophetically fad ! How oft I saw her dead, while yet in smiles! In smiles she funk her grief, to lessen mine. She spoke me comfort, and increas'd my pain. Like pow'rfal armies trenching at a town, By flow, and filent, but refiftles fap, In his pale progress gently gaining ground,

Death urg'd his deadly fiege; in spite of art, Of all the balmy bleffings Nature lends To fuccour frail humanity. Ye stars! (Not now first made familiar to my fight) And thou, O Moon! bear witness; many a night He tore the pillow from beneath my head,

"Ty'd down my fore attention to the shock, By ceaseless depredations on a life Dearer than that he left me. Dreadful post Of observation! darker ev'ry hour! Less dread the day that drove me to the brink, And pointed at eternity below : When my foul shudder'd at futurity; When, on a moment's point, th' important dye Of life and death spun doubtful, ere it fell, And turn'd up life; my title to more wo.

But why more wo? more comfort let it be-Nothing is dead, but that which wish'd to die : Nothing is dead, but wretchedness and pain : Nothing is dead, but what incumber'd, gall'd, Block'd up the pass, and barr'd from real life. Too dark the fun to fee it ; highest stars Too low to reach it; Death, great Death alone,

Where dwells that wish most ardent of the wise? O'er stars and fun, triumphant, lands us there. Nor dreadful our transition ; though the mind, An artist at creating felf-alarms,

Rich in expedients for inquietude, Is prone to paint it dreadful. Who can take Death's portrait true? the tyrant never fat. Our sketch all random strokes, conjecture all; Close shuts the grave, nor tells one single tale. Death, and his image rifing in the brain, Bear faint resemblance; never are alike : Fear shakes the pencil, Fancy loves excess, Dark Ignorance is lavish of her shades : And these the formidable picture draw.

But grant the worft ; 'tis past ; new prospects rife ; And drop a veil eternal o'er her tomb. Far other views our contemplation claim, Views that o'erpay the rigours of our life; Views that suspend our agonies in death.

Wrapt in the thought of immortality, Wrapt in the fingle, the triumphant thought ! Long life might lapfe, age unperceiv'd come on ; And find the foul unfated with her theme. Its nature, proof, importance, fire my fong. O that my fong could emulate my foul!

Like her, immortal. No!——the foul disclains A mark so mean; far nobler hope inflames; If endless ages can outweigh an hour, Let not the laweel, but the palm, inspire.

Thy nature. Immortality! who knows? And yet who knows it not? It is but life In stronger thread of brighter colour fpun, And fpun for ever; dipt by cruel fate In Stygian dye, how black, how brittle bere! How thort our correspondence with the fun! And while it lasts, inglorious! Our best deeds, How wanting in their weight! Our highest joys Small cordials to support us in our pain, And give us ftrength to fuffer. But how great To mingle int'refts, converfe, amities, With all the fons of Reason, scatter'd wide Through habitable space, where-ever born-Howe'er endow'd ! to live free citizens Of universal nature! to lay hold By more than feeble faith on the Supreme ! To call heav'n's rich unfathomable mines (Mines, which support archangels in their state) Our own ! to rife in science, us in blifs, Imitiate in the fecrets of the fkies ! To read creation; read its mighty plan In the bare bosom of the Deity!

The plan, and execution, to collate!
To fee, before each glance of piercing thought,
All cloud, all fladow, blown remote; and leave
No mylery—but that of love divine,
Which lifts us on the feraph's flaming wing,
From earth's *feeldama, this field of blood,

Of inward anguish, and of outward ill, From darkness, and from dust, to fuch a scene! Love's element! true joy's illustrious home!

From earth's sad contrast (now deplor'd) more fair ! What exquisite vicissitude of sate! Bless'd absolution of our blackest hour!

LORENZO! these are thoughts that make man man, The wise illumine, aggrandize the great. How great, (while yet we tread the kindred clode

And ev'ry moment fear to fink beneath

The clod ase tread; foon trodden by our fons), How great, in the wild whirl of Time's purfuits, To flop, and paule, involv'd in high prefage, Through the long wilts of a thouland years, To fland contemplating our distant felves, As in a magnifying mirror feen, Enlarg'd, encoubled, devete, divine! To prophely our own futurities!

To talk, with fellow-candidates, of joys
As far beyond conception, as defert,
Ourselves th' assonish'd talkers, and the tale!

08:0

LORENZO! fwells thy bofom at the thought?
The Well becomes thee: 'tis an honeft pride.
Revere thyfelf;—and yet thyfelf defpite.
His nature no man can o'er-rate; and none
Can under-rate his merit. Take good heed,
Nor there be modell, where thou houldit be proud;
That almost universal error flum.

That almost universal error shun.

How just our pride, when we behold those heights !

Not those Ambition paints in air, but those

Reason points out, and ardent Virtus gains;

And angels camulate; our pride how just!

When mount we ? when these shackles cast? when quit.

This cell of the creation? this simal nest.

Stuck in a corner of the univerle, from air? Wrapt up in fleecy cloud, and from air? Fine-fpun to fenfe; but grofs and feculent To fouls celefital; fouls ordain? to breath Ambrofial gales, and drink a purer fky; Greatly triumphant on Time's farther flore, Where Virtue reigns, enrich'd with full arrears;

While Pomp Imperial begs an alms of peace. In empire high, or in proud science deep,

Ye born of earth! on what can you confer, With half the dignity, with half the gain, The gud; the glow of rational delight, As on this theme, which angels praise, and share? Man's feats and favours are a theme in heaven.

What wretched repetition cloys us here!
What periodick potions for the fick!

Distemper'd bodies, and distemper'd minds !

In an eternity, what scenes shall strike ! Adventures thicken ! novelties furprise ! What webs of wonder shall unravel, there! What full day pour on all the paths of heav'n, And light th' Almighty's footsteps in the deep! How shall the bleffed day of our discharge Unwind, at once, the labyrinths of fate, And fraighten its inextricable maze !

If inextinguishable thirst in man To know; how rich, how full our banquet, there.! There, not the moral world alone unfolds : The world material, lately fren in shades, And, in those shades, by fragments only seen, And feen those fragments by the lab'ring eye, Unbroken, then, illustrious, and entire, Its ample fphere, its univerfal frame, In full dimensions, swells to the furvey; And enters, at one glance, the ravish'd fight. From fome superior point (where, who can tell? Suffice it, 'tis a point where gods refide) How shall the stranger man's illumin'd eve-In the valt ocean of upbounded space, Behold an infinite of floating worlds Divide the crystal waves of æther pure, In endless voyage, without port? The least Of these disseminated orbs, how great ! Great as they are, what numbers these surpass, Huge, as Leviathan, to that small race, Those twinkling multitudes of little life, He swallows unperceiv'd! Stupendous these! Yet what are these stupendous to the whole? As particles, as atoms ill-perceiv'd : As circulating globules in our veins; So vast the plan : fecundity divine !

Exub'rant fource! perhaps I wrong thee still. If admiration is a fource of joy, What transport hence! Yet this the least in heav'n. What this to that illustrious robe be wears, Who tofs'd this mass of wonders from his hand. A specimen, an earnest of his pow'r? 'Tis, to that glory, whence all glory flows on

As the mead's meanest flow'ret to the fun,

Which gave it birth. But what, this Sun of heav'n? This blifs fupreme of the fupremely blefs'd? Death, only death, the question can resolve. By death, cheap-bought th' ideas of our joy; The bare ideas! folid happiness.

So distant from its shadow chas'd below. And chase we still the phantom through the fire, O'er bog, and brake, and precipice, till death? And toil we still for fublunary pay ? Defy the dangers of the field and flood, Or, fpider-like, fpin out our precious all, Our more than vitals fpin (if no regard To great futurity) in curious webs

Of fubtile thought, and exquisite defign, 'Fine net-work of the brain !) to catch a fly ; The momentary buz of vain renown !

A name, a mortal immortality!

Or (meaner still !) instead of grasping air, For fordid lucre plunge we in the mire? Drudge, fweat, through ev'ry shame, for cv'ry gain, For vile contaminating trash; throw up Our hope in heav'n, our dignity with man? And deify the dirt, matur'd to gold? Ambition, Av'rice! the two damons thefe, Which goad through ev'ry flough our human herd, Hard travell'd from the cradle to the grave. How low the wretches stoop! how steep they climb! These damons burn mankind; but most possess LORENZO's bosom, and turn out the skies,

Is it in Time to hide Eternity? And why not in an atom on the shore, To cover ocean? or a mote, the fun? Glory and Wealth! have they this blinding pow'r? What if to them I prove LORENZO blind? Would it furprise thee? Be thou then surpris'd; Thou neither know'st: their nature learn from me.

Mark well as foreign as thefe subjects feem, What close connection ties them to my theme. First, what is true Ambition? The purfuit Of glory, nothing less than man can share. Were they as vain as gaudy-minded man, As flatulent with fumes of felf-applaufe,

Their arts and conquelts animal, might boatl,
And claim their lawel crowns, as well as we;
But not celefiad. Here we fland alone;
As in our form, dittinct, pre-eminent;
I prone in thought, our flature is the flame;
And man flould bluth, his forehead meets the fisies.
The wifile and prefent are for brutes,
A flender portion I and a narrow bound!
Their Readjons, with an energy divine,
O'erleaps; and claims the future and unfeen;
The valt unfeen! the fluture fathomlefs!
When the great foul buoys up to this high point,
Leaving groß Nature's fediment below,
Then, and then only, Alam's offspring quits.
The face and hero of the fields and woods.

Afferts his rank, and rifes into man.

This is ambition: this is human fire.

Can parts or place (two bold pretenders!) make LORENZO great, and pluck him from the throng & Geniur and Art, ambition's boafted wings, Our boaft but ill deferve. A feeble aid!

Dedalian engin'ry! If these alone
Assist our hights, Fame's slight is Glory's fall.
Heart-merit wanting, mount we ne'er so high,
Our height is but the gibbet of our name.
A celebrated wretch when I behold,
When I behold a genius bright, and base,

When I behold a genius bright, and bafe, Of tow'ring talents, and terreflirial aims; thethinks I fee, as thrown from the rhigh fiphere, The glorious fragments of a foul immortal, With rubbith mix'd, and glitt'ring in the duff. Struck at the fiplendid, melancholy fight, At-once Compaffin foft, and Emp rite—But wherefore envy? Talents angel-bright,

But wherefore envy? Talents angel-bright, If wanting worth, are shining instruments In false Ambition's hand, to finish faults Illustrious, and give infamy renown.

Great ill is an achievement of great poors.
Plain fense but warely leads us far ailray,
Reason the means, as affections choose our end;
Means have no merit, if our end amis.
If wrong our hearts, our heads are right in valu;

MAL 1/2 3

What is a Pelham's head to Pelham's heart? Hearts are proprietors of all applause.

Right ends, and means, make wisdom: worldly-wise-Is but half-witted, at his highest praise.

Let Genius then despair to make thee great ; Nor flatter Station. What is flation high? 'Tis a proud mendicant ; it boalts, and begs: It begs an alms of homage from the throng, And oft the throng denies its charity. Monarchs and ministers are awful names: Whoever wear them challenge our devoir. Religion, publick Order, both exact External homage, and a supple knee, To beings pompoufly fet up, to ferve The meanest flave : all more is Merit's duc, Her facred and inviolable right : Nor ever paid the monarch, but the man. Our hearts ne'er bow but to superior worth : Nor ever fail of their allegiance there. Fools, indeed, drop the man in their account. And vote the mantle into Majefly. Let the fmall favage boaft his filver fur; His royal robe unborrow'd, and unbought, His own, descending fairly from his sires. Shall man be proud to wear his livery, And fouls in ermin fcorn a foul without? Can place or leffen us or aggrandize? Pygmies are pygmies ftill, though perch'd on Alps ; And pyramids are pyramids in vales. Each man makes his own stature, builds himself ; Virtue alone out-builds the pyramids; Her monuments shall last, when Egypt's fall.

Her monuments shall last, when Egypt's fall.

Of these sure truths dost thou demand the cause?
The cause is lodg'd in immortality.
Hear, and assent. Thy bosom burns for pow'r;

Hear, and allent. Thy bolom burns for pow's; what flation charms the? I'll infall thee there; 'Tis thine. And art thou greater than before? Then thou before walk fomething left than man. Has thy new polt betray? d the into pride? That treach'rous pride betrays thy dignity; That pride defames humanity, and calls The being mean, which flaffs or firings can raife.

From blindness bold, and tow'ring to the skies. "Tis born of Ignorance, which knows not man: An angel's fecond: nor his fecond, long, A Nero quitting his Imperial throne, And courting glory from the tinkling ftring. But faintly shadows an immortal foul. With empire's felf, to pride, or rapture, fir'd, If nobley motives minister no cure, Ev'n Vanity forbids thee to be vain. High worth is elevated place : 'tis more ;

It makes the post stand candidate for thee; Makes more than monarchs, makes an honest man : Though no exchequer it commands, 'tis wealth : And though it wears no riband, 'tis renown; Renown, that would not quit thee, though diferac'd. Nor leave thee pendent on a mafter's fmile. Other ambition Nature interdicts ;

Nature proclaims it most absurd in man,

By pointing at his origin, and end; Milk, and a swathe, at first, his whole demand :

His whole domain, at last, a turf, or stone; To whom, between, a world may feem too small. Souls truly great dart forward on the wing

Of just Ambition, to the grand refult, The curtain's fall ; there, fee the bufkin'd chief Unshod behind this momentary scene : Reduc'd to his own flature, low or high, As vice, or virtue, finks him, or fublimes ; And laugh at this fantaflick mummery, This antick prelude of grotefque events, Where dwarfs are often thilted, and betray A littlenefs of foul by worlds o'er-run,

And nations laid in blood. Dread facrifice To Ghristian pride! which had with horror shock'd The darkelt Pagans, offer'd to their gods. O thou Nioft Christian enemy to peace!

Again in arms? again provoking fate? That prince, and that alone, is truly great, Who draws the fword reluctant, gladly fheaths; On empire builds what empire far outweighs, And makes his throne a scaffold to the skies. "

Why this fo rare? Because forgot of all.
The day of death; that venerable day,
Which fits as judge; that day, which shall pronounce
On all our days, abfolve them, or condemn.
LORENZO, never shut thy thought against it;
Be lrees, me'er so full, afford it room,
And give it audience in the cabinet.
That friend consulted, stateries apart,

Will tell thee fair, if thou art great, or mean To dote on aught may leave us, or be left, Is that Ambition? Then let flames descend. Point to the centre their inverted fpires, And learn humiliation from a foul-Which boafts her lineage from celestial fire. Yet these are they the world pronounces wise; The world, which cancels Nature's right and wrong, And casts new wistom : ev'n the grave man lends His folemn face, to countenance the coin. Wisdom for parts is madness for the whole; This stamps the paradox, and gives us leave To call the wifest weak, the rishest poor, The most ambitious, unambitious, mean : In triumph, mean; and abject, on a throne. Nothing can make it less than mad is man, To put forth all his ardour, all his art, And give his foul her full unbounded flight, But reaching him, who gave her wings to fly. When blind Ambition quite mistakes her road, And downwards pores, for that which shines above Substantial happiness, and true renown; Then, like an idiot gazing on the brook, We leap at flars, and fasten in the mud : At glory grasp, and fink in infamy.

Ambition! pow'rdu fource of good and ill!

Mittength in man, like length-of wing in birds,
When diengag'd from earth, with greater cafe,
And fwifter flight, transports us to the fixes;
By toys entangled, or in guilt bemir'd,
It turns a curle; it is our chain, and foourge,
In this dark dungeon, where confin'd we lie,
Clofe-grated by the fordid bars of ferife;

All prospect of eternity shut out : And, but for execution, ne'er fet free. With error in Ambition jully charg'd, Find we LORENZO wifer in his Wealth? What if thy rental I reform? and draw An inventory new to fet thee right? Where, thy true treasure? Gold fays, " Not in me;" And, "Not in me," the di'mond, Gold is poor; India's infolvent : feek it in thyfelf. Seek in thy naked felf, and find it there: In Being fo descended, form'd, endow'd: Sky-born, fky-guided, fky-returning race! Erect, immortal, rational, divine! In Senses, which inherit earth, and heavins: Enjoy the various riches Nature yields : Far nobler! give the riches they enjoy a Give tafte to fruits; and harmony to groves; Their radiant beams to gold, and gold's bright fire ; Take in, at once, the landscape of the world, At a fmall inlet, which a grain might close,

And half create the wondrous world they fee. Our Senses, as our Reason, are divine. But for the magick organ's-pow'rful charm, Earth were a rude, uncolour'd chaos ftill.

Objects are but th' occasion; ours th' exploit; Ours is the cloth, the pencil, and the paint, Which Nature's admirable pictures draws; And beautifies creation's ample dome. Like MILTON's Eve, when gazing on the lake,

Man makes the matchless image, man admires. Say then, Shall man, his thoughts all fent abroad, Superior wonders in himself forgot, His admiration waste on objects round,

When Heav'n makes him the foul of all he fees? Absurd! not rare! so great, so mean, is man.

What wealth in Senses such as these! what wealth In Fancy, fir'd to form a fairer scene Than Sense furveys ! in Men'ry's firm record, Which, should it perish, could this world recal, From the dark shadows of o'erwhelming years! In colours fresh, originally bright Preserve its portrait, and report its fate!

What wealth in Intellets, that fov'reign power! Which Senfe, and Fanoy, fummons to the bar; Interrogatel, approves, or reprehend; And from the mass those underlings import, From their materials lifted, and refind, And in Truth's balance accurately weight d, Forms Art and Science, Government, and Law; The folid balis, and the beauteous frame, The vitals, and the grace of civil life! And Manners (fad exception!) fet aside, Strikes out, with master-hand, a copy fair. Of bir idea, whose indulgent thought Long, long, ere chaos teem'd, plann'd human blis.

Long, long, ere chaos teemd, plant'd human bills. What wasth's in fouls that foar, dive, range aroun Dildaining limit, or from place, or time; And hear at once, in thought extensive, hear Th' almighty Fiat, and the trumpet's found! Bold, on creation's outfide-walk, and view What was, and is, and more than eler shall be; Commanding, with omnipotence of thought, Creations new in Fancy's field to rife! Souls, that can grass whate'er th' Almighty made, And wander wild through things impossible! What wealth, in faculties of endless growth, In quenchless passions violent to crave, In liberty to choole, in power to reach, And in duration (how thy riches rife!) Duration to erreptuate—boundlefs blis!

Ask you, what power resides in seeble man bills to gain? Is Virtue's, then, unknown? Virtue, our present peace, our future prize. Man's unprecarious, natural estate, Improveable at will, in virtue lies; Its tenure sure; its income is divine.

High-built abundance, heap on heap! for what? To breed new wants, and beggar us the more; Then, make a richer feramble for the throng? Soon as this feeble pulle, which leaps to long Almost by miracle, is tird with play, Like rubbish from disploding engines thrown, Our magazines of hogrede trifles By; Fly diverse; By to foreigners, to foce; ew masters court, and call the former fool, low juftly !) for dependence on their stay. ide featter, first, our play-things; then, our dust, Doft court abundance for the fake of peace? earn, and lament thy felf-defeated scheme ; iches enable to be richer still : nd, richer fill, what mortal can refift? hus wealth (a cruel task-master!) injoins ew toils, fucceeding toils, an endless train ! and murders peace, which taught it first to shine. he poor are half as wretched as the rich : hose proud and painful privilege it is, t once, to bear a double load of wo: o feel the flings of Envy, and of Want, utrageous Want ! both Indies cannot cure. A competence is vital to content. such wealth is corpulence, if not difease; ck, or incumber'd, is our happiness. competence is all we can enjoy. be content, where Heav'n can give no more ! ore, like a flash of water from a lock. uickens our fpirit's movement for an hour : it foon its force is fpent, nor rife our joys bove our native temper's common ftream. ence Disappointment lurks in ev'ry prize, s bees in flow'rs; and ftings us with fuccefs. The rich man, who denies it, proudly feigns ; or knows the wife are privy to the liesuch learning shows how little mortals know ; uch wealth, how little worldlings can enjoy : t best, it babies us with endless toys, nd keeps us children till we drop to duft. s monkeys at a mirror fland amae'd. hey fail to find, what they fo plainly fee; haus men, in thining riches, fee the face f Happiness, nor know it is a shade : at gaze, and touch, and peep, and peep again, md wish, and wonder it is absent still. How few can refeue opulence from want! The lives to Nature, rarely can be poor ; ho lives to Fancy, never can be tich.

por is the man in debt; the man of gold,

In debt to Fortune, trembles at her pow'r. The man of Reason smiles at her, and death. O what a patrimony this! A being Of fuch inherent strength and majesty, Not worlds poffes'd can raise it : worlds destroy'd Can't injure: which holds on its glorious course, When thine, O Nature! ends: too bless'd to mourn Creation's obsequies. What treasure, this! The monarch is a beggar to the man.

Immortal! Ages past, yet nothing gone! Morn without eve! A race without a goal! Unshorten'd by progression infinite ! Futurity for ever future! Life Beginning still, where computation ends ! Tis the description of a Deity! "Tis the description of the meanest flave: The meanest flave dares then LORENZO fcorn The meanest flave thy fov'reign glory shares. Proud youth ! fastidious of the lower world ! Man's lawful pride includes humility :

Stoops to the lowest; is too great to find Inferiors; all immortal! brothers all! Proprietors eternal of thy love.

Immortal! what can strike the fense so strong,

As this the foul? It thunders to the thought; Reason amazes ; Gratitude o'erwhelms ; No more we flumber on the brink of fate: Rous'd at the found, th' exulting foul afcends, And breathes her native air; an air that feeds Ambitions high, and fans ethereal fires : Quick kindles all that is divine within us : Nor leaves one loit'ring thought beneath the ftars,

Has not LORENZO's bosom caught the flame? Immortal! Were but one immortal, how Would others envy! how would thrones adore! Because 'tis common, is the bleffing loft ? How this ties up the bounteous hand of Heav'n ! O vain, vain, vain, all else! Eternity! A glorious, and a needful refuge, that, From vile imprisonment in abject views. 'Tis Immortality, 'tis that alone, Amid Life's pains, abasements, emptines,

The foul can comfort, elevate, and fill.

That only, and that amply, this performs; Lifts us above Life's pains, her joys above ; Their terror thole : and thele their luftre lofe : Eternity depending covers all : Eternity depending all achieves; Sets earth at distance : casts her into shades ? Blends her distinctions : abrogates her pow'rs : The low, the lofty, joyous, and fevere, Fortune's dread frowns, and fascinating smiles, Make one promiscuous and neglected heap, The man beneath : if I may call him man. Whom Immortality's full force inspires. Nothing terrestrial touches his high thought : Suns shine unseen, and thunders roll unheard, By minds quite conscious of their high descent, Their present province, and their future prize. Divinely darting upward ev'ry wish, Warm on the wing, in glorious absence loft. Doubt you this truth? Why labours your belief?

If Earth's whole orb, by some due-distanc'd eye.

Were feen at once, her tow'ring Alps would fink. And levell'd Atlas leave an even fphere. Thus Earth, and all that earthly minds admire, Is fwallow'd in Eternity's vaft round.

To that stupendous view, when fouls awake, So large of late, fo mountainous to man,

Time's toys subside; and equal all below. Enthufiastick, this? Then all are weak.

But rank enthusiafts. To this godlike height Some fouls have foar'd; or martyrs ne'er had bled. And all may do, what has by man been done. Who, beaten by there fublunary ftorms, Boundless, interminable joys can weigh, Unraptur'd, unexalted, uninflam'd?

What flave unblefs'd, who from to-morrow's dawn Expects an empire? he forgets his chain, And, thron'd in thought, his absent sceptre waves.

And what a sceptre waits us! what a throne! Her own immense appointments to compute. Or comprehend her high prerogatives,

In this her dark minority, how toils,

Hop

How vainly pants, the human foul divine? Too great the bounty feems for earthly joy; What heart but trembles at fo strange a blifs !

In fpite of all the truths the Mule has fung. Truths touching! marvellous! and full of heav'n ! Ne'er to be priz'd enough ! enough revolv'd! Are there, who wrap the world fo close about them, They fee no farther than the clouds; and dance On heedless Vanity's fantastick toe, Till, flumbling at a flraw, in their career, Headlong they plunge, where end both dance and fong ! Are there, LORENZO? is it possible? Are there on earth (let me not call them men) Who lodge a foul immortal in their breafts : Unconscious as the mountain of its ore: Or rock, of its ineftimable gem?

When rocks stall melt, and mountains vanish, these Shall know their treasure; treasure, then, no more.

Are there (ftill more amazing !) who refift The rifing thought? who fmother, in its birth, The glorious truth? who ftruggle to be brutes? Who through this bosom-barrier burft their way ? And, with revers'd ambition, firive to fink ? Who labour downwards through th' opposing powr's Of inftinct, reason, and the world against them. To difmal hopes, and shelter in the shock Of endless night; night darker than the grave's? Who fight the proofs of immortality? With horrid zeal, and execrable arts, Work all their engines, level their black fires,

To blot from man this attribute divine. (Than vital blood far dearer to the wife), Blasphemers, and rank Atheists to themselves?

To contradict them, fee all Nature rife! What object, what event, the moon beneath, But argues, or endears, an after scene ? To Reason proves, or weds it to Defire? All things proclaim it needful; fome advance One precious step beyond, and prove it Jure. A thousand arguments swarm round my pen,

From heav'n, and earth, and man. Indulge a few, By Nature, as her common habit, worn;

So pressing Providence a truth to teach, Which truth untaught, all other truths were vain. Thou! whose all-providential eye surveys,

Whose hand directs, whose spirit fills and warms Creation, and holds empire far beyond!

Eternity's Inhabitant august!

Of two Eternities amazing Lord!

Of two Eternities amazing Lord!
One pail, ere man's or angel's had begun;
Aid! while I refeue from the foe's affault
Thy glorious immortality in man.

A theme for ever, and for all, of weight, Of moment infinite! but relish'd most

By those who love thee most, who most adore.

Nature, thy daughter, ever-changing birth Of thee the great Immutable, to man Speaks wisdom; is his oracle supreme; And he who most consults her, is most wise.

LORENZO, to this heav'nly Delphos hafte; And come back all-immortal; all-divine:

Look Nature through, 'tis revolution all;
All change, no death. Day follows night; and night

The dying day; stars rife, and fet, and rife; Earth takes th' example. See, the Summer gay, With her green chaplet, and ambrofial flowers.

Droops into pallid Autumn: Winter grey,

Horrid with frost, and turbulent with storm,
Blows Autumn, and his golden fruits, away a

Blows Autumn, and his golden fruits, away; Then melts into the Spring: foft Spring, with

Then melts into the Spring: foft Spring, with breath Favonian, from warm chambers of the South,

Recals the first. All, to reflourish, fades.
As in a wheel, all finks, to re-ascend.
Emblems of man, who passes, not expires.

With this minute diffication, emblems just, Nature revolves, but man advancer; both Eternal, that a circle, this a line. That gravitates, this foars. Th' alpring foul dridmi, and tremulous, like flame, afcenda; Zeal, and Humility, her wings to heaven. The world of matter, with its various forms, All dies into new life. Life born from death Soils the valt mafs, and Mall for ever roll.

No fingle atom, once in being, loft,

With change of counsel charges the Most High. What hence infers LORENZO? Can it be?

Matter immortal? and shall Spirit die? Above the nobler, shall less noble rife? Shall man alone, for whom all effe revives, No refurrection know ? fhall man alone, Imperial man ! be fown in barren ground, Less privileg'd than grain, on which he feeds ? Is man, in whom alone is pow'r to prize The blifs of being, or with previous pain Deplore its period, by the spleen of fate.

Severely doom'd Death's fingle unredeem'd?

If Nature's revolution fpeaks aloud. In her gradation, hear her louder fill.

Look Nature through, 'tis neat gradation all. By what minute degrees her scale ascends ! Each middle nature join'd at each extreme, To that above it join'd, to that beneath. Parts, into parts reciprocally shot, Abhor divorce : what love of union reigns ! Here, dormant matter waits a call to life; Half-life, balf-death, join there; here, life and fense; There, fense from reason steals a glimm'ring ray; Reason shines out in man. But how preserv'd The chain unbroken upward, to the realms Of incorporeal life? those realms of blifs, Where death hath no dominion? Grant a make Half-mortal, half-immortal; earthly, part; And part ethereal; grant the foul of man Eternal; or in man the feries ends: Wide yawns the gap; connection is no more; Check'd Reason halts: her next step wants support ;

Striving to climb, the tumbles from her scheme! A scheme, Analogy pronounc'd so true; Analogy, man's furest guide below.

Thus far, all Nature calls on thy belief. And will LORENZO, careless of the call, Falfe atteftation on all Nature charge, Rather than violate his league with Death? Renounce his reason, rather than renounce The dust belov'd, and run the rifk of heav'n ?

O what

O what indignity to deathless fouls ! What treason to the majesty of man!

Of man immortal ! hear the lofty ftyle : If so decreed, th' almighty will be done.

Let earth diffolve, you pond'rous orbs descend, And grind us into duft : the foul is fafe ;

" The man emerges; mounts above the wreck,

" As tow'ring flame from Nature's fun'ral pyre; " O'er devastation, as a gainer, smiles:

" His charter, his inviolable rights,

Well-pleas'd to learn from Thunder's impotence, "Death's pointless darts, and Hell's defeated ftorms,

But these chimeras touch not thee. LORENZO ! The glories of the world, thy fev'nfold shield-Other ambition than of crowns in air.

And superlunary felicities.

Thy bosom warm. I'll cool it, if I can: And turn those glories that inchant, against thee. What ties thee to this life, proclaims the next. If wife, the cause that wounds thee is thy cure.

Come, my ambitious ! let us mount together, (To mount LORENZO never can refuse) : And from the clouds, where pride delights to dwell,

Look down on earth.-What feeft thou? wondrous Terrestrial wonders, that eclipse the skies. Tthings ! What lengths of labour'd lands ! what loaded feas ! Loaded by man, for pleafure, wealth, or war! Seas, winds, and planets, into fervice brought, His art acknowledge, and promote his ends. Nor can th' eternal rocks his will withstand :

What levell'd mountains ! and what lifted vales ! O'er vales and mountains fumptuous cities swell, And gild our landscape with their glitt'ring spires. Some 'mid the wond'ring waves majestick rise; And Neptune holds a mirror to their charnis. Far greater still! (what cannot mortal might?) See, wide dominions ravish'd from the deep!

The narrow'd deep with indignation foams. Or fouthwardsturn : to delicate, and grand. The finer arts there ripen in the fun. How the tall temples, as to meet their gods, Ascend the skies! the proud triumphal arch

Shows

Shows us half-heav'n beneath its ample bend. High through mid-air, here, flreams are taught to flow & Whole rivers, there, laid by in basons, sleep. Here, plains turn oceans : there, vaft oceans join Through kingdoms channel'd deep from shore to shore ; And chang'd creation takes its face from man. Beats thy brave breaft for formidable scenes. Where fame and empire wait upon the fword I See fields in blood : here naval thunders rife : BRATANNIA's voice ! that awes the world to peace. How you enormous mole projecting breaks The mid-fea, furious waves! their roar amidft. Out-speaks the Deity, and says, " O main! " Thus far, nor farther: new restraints obey." Earth's difembowel'd! measur'd are the skies! Stars are detected in their deep recess ! Creation widens | vanquish'd Nature yields ! Her fecrets are extorted! Art prevails ! What monuments of genius, fpirit, pow'r !

And now, LORENZO! raptur'd at this fcene, Whose glories render heav'n superfluous! fay, Whose footsteps these? - Immortals have been here. Could less than souls immortal this have done? Earth's cover'd o'er with proofs of fouls immortal;

And proofs of immortality forgot.

To flatter thy grand foible, I confess, These are Ambition's works: and these are great: But this, the least immortal fouls can do: Transcend them all .- But what can these transcend? Doft ask me, what ?- One figh for the distress'de What then for infidels? A deeper figh. "Tis moral grandeur makes the mighty man: How little they, who think anght great below? All our ambitions Death defeats, but one; And that it crowns .- Hear ceafe we : but, erelong, More pow'rful proof shall take the field against thee, Stronger than death, and fmiling at the tomb.

CONTAINING.

The Nature, Proof, and Importance of IMMORTALITY.

PREFACE.

AS we are at war with the power, it were well if we were at war with the manners of France. A land of levity is a land of guilt. A ferious mind is the nar tive foil of every virtue; and the fingle character that does true honour to mankind. The foul's immortality has been the favourite theme with the serious of all ages. Nor is it strange; it is a subject by far the most interesting and important, that can enter the mind of man. Of highest moment this subject always was, and always will Yet this its highest moment seems to admit of increase, at this day; a fort of occasional importance is Superadded to the natural weight of it; if that opinion which is advanced in the preface to the preceding Night, e just. It is there supposed, that all our infidels, whatwer scheme, for argument's sake, and to keep themselves in countenance, they patronize, are betrayed into their deplorable error, by some doubt of their immortality, at the ottom. And the more I consider this point, the more I m persuaded of the truth of that opinion. Though the istrust of a futurity is a strange error; yet it is an erar into which bad men may naturally be distressed. For it is impossible to bid defiance to final ruin, without some refuge in imagination, some presumption of escape. And what presumption is there? There are but two in nature: but two, within the compass of human thought. And these are .- That either God will not, or can not punish. Confidering the divine attributes, the first is too gross to be digested by our strongest wishes. And, since omnipotence is as much a divine attribute as holinels, that God cannot punish, is as abfurd a supposition, as the former. God sertainly can punish, as long as the wicked man exists. In non-existence, therefore, is their only refuge; and, confequently, non-existence is their strongest wish. And strong muistos have a strange influence on our opinions; they bials the judgment in a manner, almost incredible. And since, on this member of their alternative, there are some very finall appearances in their favour, and none at all on the other, they catch at this reed, they law hold on this chimera, to fave themselves from the shock, and horror, of an immediate, and absolute despair.

On reviewing my fuired, by the light which this argument, and others of like tendency, threw upon it, I was more inclined, than ever, to purfue it, as it appeared to me to firste directly at the main root of all our infidility. In the following pages; it is, accordingly, purfued at large a and fome arguments for immortality, new, (at leaft to me) are wentured on in them. There ally the waiver has made an attempt to fet the grofs abjundities and horrors of nanibilation in a fuller and more affecting view, than is, I think, to be met with elfewhere.

The continuous for winds fake this attempt was chiefly made, profif great admiration for the wislow of Heather antiquity: what pity it is they are not sincere it if they were slucere, how would it mortify them to consider, with what contempt and abborreace their notion; would have been received, by those whom they so much admire? What degree of contempt and abborreace would fall to their stranger, may be conjectured by the following matter of sal, in my opinion, extremely memorable. Of all their Heather worthier, Socrates, it is well known, was the most granded, dispassionate, and composed; yet this great master of al, dispassionate, and composed; yet this great master of all their Heather worthists, was anyry; and anyry at his list hour; and anyry with his friend; and anyry for what deserved activities.

knowledgment; angry, for a right and tender instance of true friendship towards bim. Is not this surprising? What could be the cause? The cause was for his honour: it was a truly noble, though, perhaps, a too punctilious, regard for immortality : for his friend asking him, with fuch an affectionate concern as became a friend, " Where be should deposite his remains ?" it was resented by Socrates, as implying a dishonourable supposition, that he could be so mean, as to have regard for any thing, even in himself, that was not IMMORTAL.

This fact well confidered, would make our infidels withdraw their admiration from Socrates; or make them endeavour, by their imitation of this illustrious example, to Thare his glory : and, confequently, it would incline them to peruse the following pages with candour and impartiality: which is all I delire; and that, for their fakes: for I am perfuaded, that an unprejudiced infidel, must, neseffarily, receive some advantageous impressions from them.

Pref.

NIGHT THE SEVENTH.

Eav'n gives the needful, but neglected call. What day, what hour, but knocks at human To wake the foul to fenfe of future fcenes? Thearts. Deaths fland, like Mercurys, in ev'ry way ; And kindly point us to our journey's end. POPE, who could't make immortals! art thou dead? give thee joy: nor will I take my leave: So foon to follow. Man but dives in death; Dives from the fun, in fairer day to rife : The grave, his fubterranean road to blifs. Mes, infinite indulgence plann'd it fo;

Through various parts our glorious flory runs Time gives the preface, endless Age unrols The volume (ne'er unroll'd !) of human fate. This, earth and skies * already have proclaim'd.

The world's a prophecy of worlds to come;

. Night the fixth.

And who what God foretels (who speaks in things, Still louder than in werds) shall dare deny? It Nature's arguments appear too weak, Turn a new leaf, and stronger read in man. If man sleeps on, untaught by what he seus, Can he prove insided to what he stell? He, whose blind thought sturrity denies, Unconscious, bears, Ballenophon's like thee, His own indictment; he condemns himself: Who reads his bostom, reads immortal life; Or, Nature, there, imposing on her sons, Has written fables: man was made a lie.

Why discontent for ever harbour'd there? Incurable confumption of our peace! Resolve me, why the cattager and king, He whom sea-sever'd realms obey, and he Who steals his whole dominion from the waste, Repelling winter-blatta with mud and straw, Disquieted alike, draw sigh for sigh, In fate to distant, in composint to near?

Is it, that things terrestrial can't content? Deep in rich pasture, will thy flocks complain? Not fo : but to their mafter is denv'd To there their fweet ferene. Man, ill at eafe, In this, not his own place, this foreign field, Where Nature fodders him with other food Than was ordain'd his cravings to fuffice, Poor in abundance, famish'd at a feast, Sighs on for fomething mare, when most enjoy'd. Is Heav'n then kinder to thy flocks, than thee? Not fo: thy pasture richer, but remote; In part, remote; for that remoter part Man bleats from instinct, though, perhaps, debauch'd By fense, his reason sleeps, nor dreams the cause. The cause how obvious, when his reason wakes? His grief is but his grandeur in difguile; And discontent is immortality.

Shall fons of mether, shall the blood of heav'n, Set up their hopes on earth, and stable here, With brutal acquiescence in the mire?

LORENZO! no! they shall be nobly pain'd;
The glorious foreigners, distress d, shall sigh

On thrones; and thou congratulate the figh. Man's mifery declares him born for blifs; His anxious heart afferts the truth I fing, And gives the fceptick in his head the he.

Our heads, our hearts, our passions, and our powers, Speak the same language; call us to the skies: Unripen'd these in this inclement clime,

Unripend 1696 in this inclement clime, Scarce rife above conjecture, and missake; And for this land of trifles 1646 too strong Tumultubus rife, and tempeth human life. What prize on earth can pay us for the florm? Meet objects for our passion. Heav'n ordain'd, Objects that challenge all their fire, and leave. No fault, but in defect. Blefs'd Heav'n 'ave

Objects that challenge all their fire, and leave No fault, but in defect. Blefa'd Heav'n! avert A bounded ardour for unbounded blifs. O for a blifs unbounded! far beneath

O for a blifs unbounded! far beneath A foul immortal, is a mortal joy. Nor are our pow'rs to perish immature;

Nor are our forwer to perish immature But, after feeble effort kere, beneath A brighter fun, and in a nobler foil, Transplanted from this sublunary bed,

Shall flourish fair, and put forth all their bloom.
Reason progressive, Institute is complete;

Swift Inflind leaps; flow Reafon Leebly climbs.
Bruter foon their zenith reach; Their little all
Flows in at once; in ages they no more
Lould know, or do, or covet, or enjoy.
Were man to live coveal with the fun,
the patriarch-pupil would be learning fill;

The patriarch-pupil would be learning fill; det, dying, leave his leffon half-unlearn'd. Mein perifh in advance, as if the fun should fet ere noon, in eaftern oceans drown'd;

If fit, with dim, illuffrieur to compare,
The fun's meridiam, with the found or man.
To man, why, stepdame Nature! so severe?
Why thrown asset thy masterpiece half-wrought,
While meaner efforts thy lash and enjoy?
Dr, if abortively poor man shuff die,
London whith meridian with the die in de-

Jor reach what reach he might, why die in dread? Why curs'd with forelight? wife to mifery? Why of his proud prerogative the prey?

Why less pre-eminent in rank, than pain

His immortality alone can tell; Full ample fund to balance all amis, And turn the scale in favour of the just !

His immortality alone can folve That darkeft of enigmas, human hope; Of all the darkeft, if at death we die. Hope, eager Hope, th' affaffin of our joy, All prefent belfings treading under foot, Is fearce a milder tyrant than Defpair. With no paft toils content, fill planting new, Hope turns us o'er to Death slone for eafe. Polifion, why more taftelefs than purfuit? Why is a wifth far dearer than a crown? That wifth accomplished, why the grave of blist? Becaufe, in the great future bury'd deep, Beyond our plans of empire and renown, Lies all that man with ardour thould purfue; And HE who made him, bent him to the right.

Man's heart th' ALMIGNEY to the future lets, By fecret and inviolable fprings;
And makes his hope his fublunary joy.
Man's heart eats all things, and is hungry fill;
"More, more P" the glutton cries: for fomething near
So rages appetite, if man can't mount,
He will defenced. He flarese on the puffof'd.
Hence, the world's mafter, from Ambition's spire,
In Caprea plung'd; and divid beneath the brute.
In that rank sty why wallow'd empire's son
Supreme? Because he could no higher sty;
His rist was ambitise in despair.

Old Rome confulted birds; LORENZO! thou, With more fuccefs, the flight of Hope furvey; Of reftlefs Hope, for ever on the wing. High-perch'd o'er ev'ry thought that falcon fits, To fly at all that rifes in her fight; And, never flooping, but to mount again Next moment, the betrays her aim's niftlake, And owns her quarry lodg'd beyond the grave.

There should it fail us, (it must fail us there, If being fails), more mournful riddles rife, And Virtue vies with Hope in mystery.
Why Virtue? Where its praise, its being, sted?

irtue

Virtue is true felf-interest pursu'd e
What true self-interest of quite mortal man?
To close with all that makes him happy bere,
If Vice (as sometimes) is our friend on earth,
Then Vice is Virtue; 'tis our fov'reign good.
In jelf-applause is Virtue's golden prize;
No self-applause attends it on thy scheme.
Whence self-applause Trom conscience of the right.
And what is right, but means of happiness?
No means of happiness when Virtue yields;
That basis failing, falls the building too,

And lays in ruin ev'ry virtuous joy.

The rigid quardian of a blamelefs heart,
So long rever'd, fo long reputed wife,
Is weak; with rank knight-errantries o'er-run.
Why beats thy bofom with illustrious decams
Of leif-exposure, laudable, and great?
Of gallant enterprife, and glorious death?
Of leif or thy country?—Thou romantick fool!
Seize, feize the plank thyfelf, and let her sink;
Thy country! what to the?—the Godbead, what?
(I speak with awe!) though he should bid thee bleed;
If, with thy blood, thy famil hope is fplit,
Nor can Oranipotence reward the blow,
Be deaf: preferre thy being; dislobey.

Nor is it difobedience. Know, LORENZO!
Whate'er th' ALMICHTY'S fubfequent command,
His first command is this:—" Man, love thyfelf."
In this alone, free agents are not free.
Existence is the basis, bills the prize;
If virtus costs existence, 'tis a crime;
Bold violation of our law fubrence,

Bold violation of our law fupreme, Black fuicide; though nations, which confult Their gain at thy expence, refound applaufe. Since virtue's recompence is doubtful here,

If man dies wholly, well may we demand, why is man night of to be good in vain? Why to be good in vain is wan injein d? Why to be good in vain is wan injein d? Why to be good in vain is wan injein d? Betray'd by traitors lodged in his own breaft, By fiveet complacencies from virtue felt? Why whilepers Nature lies on Virtue's part?

Or if blind Ingina (which affumes the name Of facred conscience) plays the fool in man. Why Reason made accomplice in the cheat it Why are the wifelt loudest in her praise? Can man by Reafon's beam be led aftray ? Or, at his peril, imitate his God? Since Virtue fametimes ruins us on earth. Or both are true, or man furvives the grave.

Or man furvives the grave, or own, LORENZO, Thy boast supreme a wild absurdity. Dauntless thy spirit : cowards are thy scorn. Grant man immortal, and thy fcorn is just, The man immortal, rationally brave. Dares rush on death,-because he cannot die-But if man loses all, when life is loft, He lives a coward, or a fool expires. A daring infidel, (and fuch there are, From pride, example, lucre, rage, revenge, Or pure heroical defect of thought),

Of all earth's madmen, most deserves a chain. When to the grave we follow the renown'd

For valour, virtue, science, all we love, And all we praise; for worth, whose noontide beam, Enabling us to think in higher ftyle, Mends our ideas of ethereal pow'rs ; Dream we, that luftre of the moral world Goes out in stench, and rottenness the close? Why was he wife to know, and warm to praife, And strenuous to transcribe, in human life, The mind ALMIGHTY? Could it be, that fate, Just when the lineaments began to shine, And dawn the DEITY, should fnatch the draught, With night eternal blot it out, and give The skies alarm, lest angels too might die?

If human fouls, why not angelick too Extinguish'd? and a folitary God, O'er ghantly ruin, frowning from his throne? Shall we, this moment, gaze on God in man ! The next, lose man for ever in the dust? From dust we disengage, or man mistakes; And there, where leaft his judgment fears a flaw.

Wildom and worth how boldly he commends ! Wifdom

Willow and courth are facred names; rever'd,
Where not embrac'd; applauded! defiy'd!
Why not compefford too? If fiprint die,
Both are calamaties, inflicted both
To make us but more wretched. Wiftlom's eye
Acute, for what? to fipy more miferies;
And worth, for ecompens'd, new-points their flings.
Or man furmounts the grave, or gain is lofs,
And worth exalted tumbles us the more.
Thou will not patronize a feheme that makes
Weekurfy and vice the refuge of mankind.

"Has Virtue, then, no joys?"—Yes, joys dear Falk ne'er fo long, in this imperfect state, [boughts. Virtue and Vice are at eternal war.

Virtue's a combat; and who fights for nought? Or for precarious, or for small reward? Who Virtue's Jest reward so loud resound, Would take degrees angelick here below; And Virtue, while they compliment, betray,

By feeble motives, and unfaithful guards. The crown, th' unfading crown, her foul infpires to 'Tis that, and that alone, can countervail The body's treach'ries, and the world's affaults:

The body's treach'ries, and the world's affaults:
On earth's poor pay our famish'd virtue dies.
Truth incontestible! in spite of all

A BAYLE has preach'd, or a V-E believ'd.
In man the more we dive, the more we fee

Heav'u's fignet flamping an immortal make. Dive to the bottom of his foul, the base Sustaining all; what find we? Knowledge, love. As light and heat effential to the sun,

As hight and heat effectial to the fan, Thefe to the foul. And wife, if fouls expire? How little lovely here! how little known! Small knowledge we dig up with endlefs toil: And love unsegn'd may purchase perfect hate. Why starv'd, on earth, our ampel-appetites; While brutal are indulg'd their fulloon fill?

Were then capacities Avine conferr'd, As a mock diadem, in favage sport, Rank insult of our pompous poverty,

Which reaps but pain, from feeming claims to fair !In future age lies no redrefs? and thuta

Eternitz

Elernity the door on our complaint?

If so, for what strange ends were mortals made!

The worst to worstow, and the best to wore:

The man who merits most, must most complain.

Can we conceive a difregard in Heav'n,

What the worst perpetente, or best endure? This cannot be. To love, and know, in man Is boundlest appetite, and boundlest pow'r; And these demonstrate boundlest objects too. Objects, pow'rs, appetites, Heav'n list in all; Nor, Nature through, e'er violates this sweet; Eternal concord, on her tuneful string. Is nam the fole exception from her laws? Eternity struck off from human hope, (1 speak with truth, but weneration too), Man is a monster, the reproach of heav'n, A stain, a dark impenetrable cloud On Nature's beauteous aspect; and deforms, (Amazing blot!), deforms her with her Lord, fush in any's ullotment, sobat is heav'n?

Or own the foul immortal, or blasheme.
Or own the foul immortal, or invert
All order. Go, mock-majefty! go, man!

And bow to thy fuperiors of the fall ; Through ev'ry scene of sense superior far. They graze the turf untill'd : they drink the fream, Unbrew'd, and ever full, and unimbitter'd With doubts, fears, fruitless hopes, regrets, despairs Mankind's peculiar! Reason's precious dower! No foreign clime they ranfack for their robes; Nor brothers cite to the litigious bar : Their good is good entire, unmix'd, unmarr'd; They find a paradife in ev'ry field, On boughs forbidden where no curses hang : Their ill, no more than strikes the sense; unstretch'd By previous dread, or murmur in the rear : When the worst comes, it comes unfear'd; one ftroke Begins, and ends, their wo: they die but once; Blefs'd, incommunicable privilege! for which Proud man, who rules the globe, and reads the stars, Philespher, or bere, fighs in vain.

Accoun

Account for this prerogative in brutes. No day, no glimple of day, to solve the knot, But what beams on it from eternity. O fole and (weet folution! that unties The difficult, and foftens the fevere :

The cloud on Nature's beauteous face dispels ; Restores bright order; casts the brute beneath; And reinthrones us in fupremacy

Of joy, ey'n here, Admit immortal life,

And Virtue is knight-errantry no more: Each virtue brings in hand a golden dower, Far richer in reversion : Hope exults ; And though much bitter in our cup is thrown, Predominates, and gives the taste of beaven. O wherefore is the DEITY fo kind? Aftonishing beyond aftonishment !

Heav'n our reward-for heav'n enjoy'd below.

Still unfubdu'd thy flubborn heart ?- for there The traiter lurks, who doubts the truth I fing.

Reason is guiltless; Will alone rebels. What, in that stubborn heart, if I should find New, unexpected witnesses against thee? Ambition, Pleasure, and the Love of Gain! Canst thou suspect, that these, which make the foul

The flave of earth, should own her heir of heaven? Canft thou fuspect what makes us difbelieve Our immortality, should prove it fure?

First, then, Ambition summon to the bar. Ambition's shame, extravagance, difguft,

And inextinguishable nature, fpeak. Each much deposes; hear them in their turn.

Thy foul, how passionately fond of same! How anxious that fond passion to conceal! We blush, detected in defigns on praise, Though for best deeds, and from the best of men; And why? Because immortal. Art divine Has made the body tutor to the foul; Heav'n kindly gives our blood a moral flow; Bids it afcend the glowing cheek, and there Upbraid that little heart's inglorious aim. Which floops to court a character from man;

While o'er us, in tremendous judgment, fit Far more than man, with endless praise, and blame.

Ambition's boundless appetite outspeaks The verdict of its shame. When fouls take fire At high prefumptions of their own defert, One age is poor applanfe; the mighty shout, The thunder by the living few begun, Late time must echo; worlds unborn, resound. We wish our names eternally to live : Wild dream! which ne'er had haunted human thoughts Had not our natures been eternal too. Instinct points out an int'rell in hereafter : But our blind Reafon fees not where it lies :

Or, feeing, gives the fubiliance for the shade. Fame is the shade of immortality, And in itself a shadow. Soon as caught. Contemn'd; it fhrinks to nothing in the grafps Confult th' ambitious, 'tis Ambition's cure, " And is this all?" cried CESAR at his height. Difgusted. This third proof Ambition brings Of immortality. The first in fame, Observe him near, your envy will abate : Sham'd at the disproportion vast, between The passion and the purchase, he will sigh At fuch success, and blush at his renown. And why? Because far richer prize invites His heart : far more illustrious glory calls ; It calls in whifpers, yet the deafest hear.

And can Ambition a fourth proof supply? It can : and ftronger than the former three ; Yet quite o'erlook'd by some reputed wise. Though disappointments in Ambition pain, And though success diffusts; yet still, LORENZO ! In vain we firive to pluck it from our hearts : By Nature planted for the noblest ends. Abfurd the fam'd advice to PYRRHUS giv'n, More prais'd than ponder'd; specious, but unfound a Sooner that hero's fword the world had quell'd, Than Reafon his ambition. Man mult foar. An obstinate activity within, An insuppreffive spring will toss him up, In spite of Fortune's load. Not kings alone,

Each villager has his ambition too;

No Sultan prouder than his fetter'd flave:
Slaves build their little Balybon of firaw,
Echo the proud Afforian, in their heatts,
And cry,—— Behold the wonders of my might!
And why? Becaufe immertal as their lord;
And folis immortal mail for ever heave
At fomething great; the gitter, or the gold;
The praife of mortals, or the praife of heavin.
Nor abfoliutely vain is bunan praife.

When buman is supported by divine. I'll introduce LORENZO to himfelf : Pleasure and Pride (bad masters!) share our hearts. As love of pleafire is ordain'd to guard And feed our bodies, and extend our race; The love of praise is planted to protect And propagate the glories of the mind. What is it but the love of praise inspires, Matures, refines, embellishes, exalts. Earth's happiness? From that, the delicate, The grand, the marvellous, of civil life, Want and Convenience, under-workers, lay The basis, on which Love of Glory builds. Nor is thy life, O Virtue ! less in debt To praife, thy fecret flimulating friend. Were man not proud, what merit should we miss? Pride made the virtues of the Pagan world.

Were man not preud, what merit fhould we miss?

Pride made the virtues of the Pagan world.

Pride made the virtues of the Pagan world.

Pride is the failt that facions Bight to man,

And whets his appetite for moral good.

Thirft of applaule is Virtue? fecond guard;

Reafon, her first; but Reason wants an aid:

Our private Reason is a flatterer;

Thirft of applause calls publicly judgment in,

To posse our own, to keep an even scales.

And give endanger'd Virtue fairer play.
Here a fifth proof arifes, fitnonger fill;
Why this so nice construction of our hearts?
These delicate moralities of finse;
This constitutional reserve of aid

To succour Virtue, when our reason fails; If Virtue, kept alive by care and toil, And oft the mark of injuries on earth,

When labour'd to maturity, (its bill Of disciplines and pains unpaid), must die? Why freighted rich, to dash against a rock? Were man to perish when most fix to live, O how mif-spent were all these shrangems, By kill divine inwowen in our frame! Where are Heav'a's holines and mercy fled? Laughs Heav'n at once at virtue and at man? If not, why that discouraged, this detroy'd?

Thus far Ambition What favs Avarice? This her chief maxim, which has long been thine, "The wife and wealthy are the fame."- I grant it. To flore up treasure, with incessant toil, This is man's province, this his highest praise. To this great end keen Instinct Rings him on. To guide that inftinct, Reason ! is thy charge ; "Tis thine to tell us where true treasure lies : But, Reason failing to discharge her truft, Or to the deaf discharging it in vain, A blunder follows; and blind Industry, Gall'd by the fpur, but franger to the course, (The course where stakes of more than gold are won) O'erloading, with the cares of distant age, The jaded spirits of the present hour, Provides for an eternity below. "Thou fealt not covet," is a wife command : But bounded to the wealth the fun furveys :

Look farther, the command stoods quite revers'd, And Adrice is a virtue most divine.

Is faith a retuge for our bappings?

Most fure: and is it not for reason too?

Mothing this word unriddles, but the next.

Whence inextinguishable life in man:

From inextinguishable life in man:

From inextinguishable life in man:

Sun grapts, I grant, Ambition, Avanice:

Yet fall their root is immortality.

These its wild growth so bitter, and to base,

(Pain and reproach!), Religion can rectain,

Refine, exait, throw down their pois nous lee,

And make them sparkle in the bowl of biffs.

See, the third witness laughs at bliss remote,
And fallely promites an Eden here:
Truth the shall speak for once, though prone to lie,
A common cheat, and Pleasure is her name.
To Pleasure never was LORENZO deaf;

Then hear her now, now first thy real friend.

Since Nature made us not more fond than proud
Of happiness, (whence hypecrites in joy!

Of happinels, (whence hypocrites in joy! Makers of mirth! artificers of finiles!), Why flould the joy most poigmant Senfe affords, Burn'as with blushes, and rebuke our pride?—Those heav'n-born blushes tell us man defcends, Etch, in the again to the secution blushes.

Ev'n in the zenith of his earthly blifs. Should Reason take her infidel repose, This honest Instinct speaks our lineage high ;

Our rapturous relation to the stalls.

Our rapturous relation to the stalls.

Our glory covers us with noble floame,
And he that's unconfounded, is unmann'd.
The man that blushes, is not quite a brute.

Thus far with thee, Lorenzo 1 will I close;

Pleasure is good, and man for pleasure made;

But pleasure full of glory, as of joy;

Pleasure, which neither blushes nor expires.

The witnesses are heard; the cause is o'er;

Let Conscience file the sentence in her court,

Dearer than deeds that half a realm convey:
Thus, feal'd by Truth, th' authentick record runs.

"Know, all; know, infidels,—unapt to know to "Tis immortality your nature folves:

"Tis immortality decyphers man,

"And opens all the mystries of his make.
"Without it, half his instincts are a riddle;

Without it, all his virtues are a dream.
His very crimes attest his dignity;

"His sateless thirst of pleasure, gold, and same, Declares him born for bleffings infinite:

What less than infinite, makes unabfurd
Pallions, which all on earth but more inflames?

"Fierce paffions, fo mifmeafur'd to this feene,
"Stretch'd out, like eagles wings, beyond our neft,
"Far, far beyond the worth of all below.

es For

" For earth too large, presage a nobler slight,
" And evidence our title to the sies."

" And evidence our title to the /kies." Ye gentle Theologues, of calmer kind! Whose constitution dictates to your pen, Who, cold yourselves, think ardour comes from hell ! Think not our passions from Corruption sprung, Though to corruption now they lend their wings : That is their miftrefs, not their mother. All (And juftly) Reason deem divine : I fee. I feel a grandeur in the Pallions too. Which speaks their high descent, and glorious end; Which speaks them rays of an eternal Fire. In paradife itself they burnt as strong, Ere ADAM fell; though wifer in their aim. Like the proud Eastern, struck by Providence, What though our Passions are run mad, and stoop, With low, terrestrial appetite, to graze On trash, on toys, dethron'd from high defire? Yet still, through their difgrace, no feeble ray Of greatness thines, and tells us whence they fell : But thefe, (like that fall'n monarch when reclaim'd). When Reason moderates the rein aright, Shall reascend, remount their former sphere, Where once they foar'd illustrious; ere feduc'd By wanton Eve's debauch, to firoll on earth, And fet the fublunary world on fire.

But grant their frenzy lafts; their frenzy fails
To disappoint one providential end,
For which Heavin blew up ardour in our hearts:
Were Reafon filent, boundleis Paifon fpeake.
A future (seen of boundleis object too,
And brings glad tidings of eternal day.

Eternal day! 't's that enlightens all;
And all, by that enlighten'd, proves it fure.
Confider man as an insunctat being,
Intelligible all; and all is great;
A crytialline transparency prevails,
And thrikes full lutre through the human fpherg;
Confider man as mortal, all is dark,
And wretched; Reafon weeps at the furvey.

The learn'd LORENZO cries, "And let her weep, "Weak, modern Reason: ancient times were wife.

"Authority, that venerable guide,
"Stands on my part; the fam'd Athenian porch
(And who for wisdom so renown'd as they?)

" Deny'd this immortality to man."

I grant it; but affirm, they prov'd it too.
A riddle this!—Have patience, I'll explain.
What poble venities what moral flights

What noble vanities, what moral flights, Glittring through their romantick wildom's page, Make us, at once, delpife them, and admire? Fable is flat to thefe high-feafon'd fires; They leave th' extravagance of fong below.

"Flefi fhall not feel; or, feeling, fhall enjoy "The dagger, or the rack; to them alike "A held of offes, or the huminix hull."

" A bed of roses, or the burning bull."
In men exploding all beyond the grave,
Strange doctrine this! As dostrine it was strange,

Strange doctrine this! As destrine it was strange But not as prophecy; for such it prov'd, And, to their own amazement, was fulfill'd. They seign'd a firmness Christians need not seign.

The Christian truly triumph'd in the slame: The Stoick saw, in double wonder lost; Wonder at them, and wonder at himself,

Wonder at them, and wonder at himfelf, To find the bold adventures of his thought Not bold, and that he frove to lie in vain.

Whence, then, those thoughts? those tow'ring thoughts, that flew

Such monthrous heights?——From Inflint, and from The glorious Inflint of a deathlefs foul, [Pride. Confus'dly conficious of her dignity, Suggefled truths they could not underfland. In Luft's dominion, and in Patfint's florm, Truth's vffem broken, Catter'd fragments lay,

As light in chaos, glimm'ring through the gloom: Smit with the pomp of lofty fentiments, Pleas'd Pride proclaim'd, what Reafon difbeliev'd. Pride, like the Delphick prieftels, with a fwell, Rav'd nonfense, dettin'd to be future sense, When life immortal, insfull day, should shine; And Death's dark shadows sty the gospel-sun.

And Death's dark shadow fly the gospel-sun.

Can

Can then absurdities, as well as crimes, Speak man immortal? All things speak him fo. Much has been urg'd; and doft thou call for more Call: and with endless questions be distress'd, All unresolveable, if earth is all.

" Why life, a moment ; infinite, defire?

Our wish, eternity ; our home, the grave ? " Heav'n's promise dormant lies in human bobes Who wishes life immortal, proves it too.

Why happiness pursu'd, though never found !

Man's thirst of happiness declares, It is; (For Nature never gravitates to nought);

That thirst unquench'd declares, It is not here.

My Lucia, Thy CLARISSA, call to thought:

Why cordial friendship rivetted so deep, As hearts to pierce at first, at parting rend,

If friend and friendship vanish in an hour ?

Is not this torment in the mask of joy? Why by reflection marr'd the Joys of fense?

Why past and future preying on our hearts,

And putting all our prefent joys to death ? Why labours Reason? Instinct were as well ;

Inflinct, far better; what can choose, can err ; " O how infallible the thoughtless brute !

"Twere well his Holiness were half as fure. « Reason with Inclination, why at war?

Why fense of guilt? why Conscience up in arms ?" Conscience of guilt, is prophecy of pain,

And bofom-counfel to decline the blow. Reason with Inclination ne'er had jarr'd, If nothing future paid forbearance here. Thus on-Thefe, and a thousand pleas uncall'd, All promise, some ensure, a second scene; Which, were it doubtful, would be dearer far Than all things else most certain: were it falle, What truth on earth fo precious as the lie? This world it gives us, let what will enfue; This world it gives, in that high cordial, hope: The future of the present is the foul : How this life groans, when fever'd from the next! Poor, mutilated wretch, that difbelieves ! By dark diftrust his being cut in two,

Sad prelude of eternity in pain!

Couldft thou perfuade me, the next life could fail

Our ardent wishes; how should I pour out My bleeding heart in anguish, new, as deep !

Oh! with what thoughts, thy hope, and my despair, Abhorr'd Annihilation! blafts the foul,

And wide extends the bounds of human wo !

Could I believe LORENZO's fystem true, In this black channel would my ravings run.

" Grief from the future borrow'd peace erewhile. "The future vanish'd! and the present pain'd! Strange import of unprecedented ill !

" Fall, how profound! like LUCIFER's, the fall !

" Unequal fate! his fall, without his guilt! From where fond Hope built her pavilion high,

The gods among, hurl'd headlong, hurl'd at once

To night! to nothing! darker still than night. If 'twas a dream, why wake me, my worst foe,

LORENZO! boaffful of the name of friend!

O for delution ! O for error still ! Could vengeance strike much stronger, than to plant

A thinking being in a world like this,

Not over-rich before, now beggar'd quite;

" More curs'd than at the fall? - The fun goes out ! " The thorn shoots up! What thorns in ev'ry thought?

Why sense of better? it imbitters worse. Why fense? why life? if but to figh, then fink

LORENZO.

Vain, vain ambitions trouble me no more.

Why travel far in quest of fure defeat? As bounded as my being, be my wish.

All is inverted. Wildom is a fool. Sense! take the rein : blind Passion! drive us on :

And, Ignarance ! befriend us on our way : Ye new, but truest patrons of our peace!

Yes; give the pulse full empire; live the brute,

Since, as the brute, we die. The fum of man,

Of godlike man! to revel, and to rot. " But not on equal terms with other brutes :

Their revels a more poignant relifit yield, And fafer too; they never poisons choose.

Instinct, than Reason, makes more wholesome meals. And fends all-marring murmur far away.

For fenfual life they best philosophize ;

Theirs, that ferene, the fages fought in vain :

'Tis man alone expostulates with Heav'n; His all the pow'r, and all the cause to mourn.

Shall human eyes alone dissolve in tears?

And bleed, in anguish, none but human hearts The wide-stretch'd realm of intellectual woe.

Surpassing fenfual far, is all our own. In life to fatally diftinguish'd, why

Caft in one lot, confounded, lump'd, in Death? " Ere yet in being, was mankind in guilt?

Why thunder'd this peculiar claufe against us, All mortal, and all wretched !- Have the fices

" Reasons of state, their subjects may not scan, Nor kumbly reason, when they forely figh ? All-mortal, and all-wretched! - 'tis too much :.

"Unparallel'd in nature: 'tis too much " On being unrequested at thy hands,

" OMNIPOTENT! for I fee nought but pow'r.

" And why fee that? why thought? To toil, and eat, Then make our bed in darkness, needs no thought, " What superfluities are reas'ning souls!

" Oh give eternity! or thought destroy.

" But without thought our curse were half unfelt ; " Its blunted edge would spare the throbbing heart,

" And, therefore, 'tis bestow'd. I thank thee, Region! " For aiding life's too fmall calamities,

LORENZO! hear, panie, ponder, and pronounce.

Juft is this hiftory? If fuch is man, Mankind's hiftorian, though divine, might weep. And dares Lorenzo fmile?—I know thee proud; For once let pride befriend thee: Pride looks pale At fuch a fecne, and fighs for fomething more.

Amid thy hoafts, prefumptions, and displays, And art thou then a fladow Lefs than finde? A nothing? Lefs than nothing? To bare been, And ont to be, is lower than unborn.

Ant thou ambitious? why then make the worm Thine equal? Runs thy tafte of pleasure high? Why patronize fure death of evry joy? Charm ricker? why choose beggy in the grave, off evry hope a bankrupt! and for ever?

Life's joy fo rich, thou cand not with for more Ambition. Pleasure, Mourice, perfuade thee

Ambition, Pleajure, Avarice, persuade thee
'To make that world of glory, rapture, wealth,
'liey * lately prov'd, thy foul's supreme desire.

What art thou made of? rather, how unmade?

Great Nature's mafter-appetite deftroy'd!

Is endleß life, and happines, despir'd?

Or both wilh'd, tere, where neither can be found?

Such man's perverse, eternal war with Heav'n!

Dar'ft thou persis? And is there nought on earth,

But a long train of transitory forms,

Rising, and breaking, millions in an hour?

Bubbles of a fantastick deity, blown up

In sport, and then in cruelty destroy'd?

Oh! For what crime, unmerciful Lorenzo!

Kind is fell Luciers, compar'd to the:

Oh! Spare this supset of being half divine;

Heav'n is all love; all joy in giving joy; It never had created, but to bless. And shall it, then, strike off the list of life, A being bless'd, or worthy 6 to be?

A being blefs'd, or worthy fo to be?
Heav'n starts at an annihilating Gop.

And vindicate th' aconomy of Heav'n.

Is that, all Nature flarts at, thy defire?
Art fuch a clod to wish thyfelf all clay?
What is that dreadful wish?—The dying groan
Of Nature, murder'd by the blackest guilt.
What deadly possion has thy nature drank?
To Nature undehauch'd no shock so great;
Nature's first wish is endiss happiness;
Amirilation is an after-thought,

A monstrous

A montrous with, unborn till Virtue dies. And oh! what depth of horror lies inclos'd! For non-existence no man ever wish'd, But first be wish'd the DEITY destroy'd.

If fo, what words are dark enough to draw Thy picture true? The darkest are too fair. Beneath what baleful planet, in what hour Of desperation, by what fury's aid, In what infernal posture of the foul, All hell invited, and all hell in joy
At fuch a birth, a birth fo near of kin, Of hopes abortive, faculties half-blown,

Did thy foul fancy whelp so black a scheme And deities begun, reduc'd to dust? There's nought (thou fayft) but one eternal flux

Of feeble effences, tumultuous driven Through Time's rough billows into Night's abyls. Say, in this rapid tide of human ruin, Is there no rock, on which man's toffing thought Can reit from terror, dare his fate furvey, And holdly think it fomething to be born? Amid fuch hourly wrecks of being fair, Is there no central, all-futtaining bafe, All-realizing, all-connecting pow'r, Which, as it call'd forth all things, can recal, And force Destruction to refund her spoil? Command the grave restore her taken prey? Bid Death's dark vale its human harvest vield. And Earth, and Ocean, pay their debt of man, True to the grand depolite trufted there? Is there no potentate, whose out-fretch'd arm, When rip'ning Time calls forth th' appointed hour, Pluck'd from foul Devastation's family'd maw. Binds prefent, paft, and future, to his throne? His throne, how glorious, thus divinely grac'd,

By germinating beings cluff'ring round! A garland worthy the divinity! A throne, by Heav'n's Omnipotence in finiles, Built (like a Phares tow'ring in the waves)

Amidit immense effusions of his love!

An ocean of cominunicated blifs!

An all-prolifick, all-preferving Gon!

This were a Gon indeed.—And fuch it man,
As here prefund 'c' be rifes from his fall.

Think'ft thou Omnipotence a maked root,
Each bloffom fair of Derry deftroy'd?
Nothing is dead; ray, nothing fleeps; each foul
That ever animated human clay,
Now wakes; is on the wing: and where, O where,
Will the fwarm fettle?—When the tramper's call,
As founding brafs, collects us, round Hear'n's throne
Conglob'd, we bufk in everlatting day,
(Paternal fplendour!) and adhere for ever.
Had not the foul this outlet to the fixes,

Had not the foul this outlet to the skies, In this vast vessel of the universe, How should we gasp, as in an empty voi

How should we gasp, as in an empty void! How in the pangs of famish'd Hope expire!

How bright my prospect shines ! how gloomy, thine ! A trembling world! and a devouring Gop! Earth, but the shambles of Omnipotence! Heav'n's face all flain'd with causeless massacres Of countless millions, born to feel the pang Of being loft. LORENZO! can it be? This bids us shudder at the thoughts of life. Who would be born to fuch a phantom world, Where nought fubftantial, but our mifery? Where joy (if joy) but heightens our diffress, So foon to perifh, and revive no more? The greater fuch a joy, the more it pains. A world, where dark, mysterious vanity, Of good and ill the diffant colours blends, Confounds all reason, and all hope deftroys; Reason, and hope, our sole asylum bere! A world, fo far from great, (and yet how great It shines to thee !), there's nothing real in it :

Being, a shadow! emscionsines, a dream! A dream, how dreadfu!! univerfal blank Before it, and behind! poor man, a spark From non-exiltence struck by wrath divine, Giltt'ring a moment, nor that moment fure, 'Midd upper, nether, and surrounding night, His fad, sure, sudden, and eternal tomb!

LORENZO!

LORENGO I doft thou feet these arguments?
Or is there nought but vangeauer can be fil?
How haft thou dar'd the DEITY dethrone?
How dar'd indith lim of a world like this?
If just the world, ereation was a crime;
For what is crime, but cause of misery?
Retract, blashpemer! and uartidle this,
Of endels arguments above, before,
Without us, and waithin, the four trefult—

Without us, and within, the short result—

"If man's immortal, there's a God in heav'n."

But wherefore such redundancy? such waste

Of argument? one sets my soul at rest; One obvious, and at hand, and, oh!—at beart. So just the skies, Philander's life so pain'd, His heart so pure; that, or succeeding scenes Have palms to give, or ne'er had he been born.

Have palms to give, or ne'er had he been born.

"What an old tale is this!" LORENZO cries.—
I grant this argument is old; but truth

No years impair; and, had not this been true, Thou never hadft despised it for its age.

Truth is immortal as thy soul; and fable

As fleeting as thy joys: be wife, nor make Heav'n's highest blessing, vengeance; O be wise! Nor make a curse of immortality.

Say, know'st thou what it is? or what thou art? Know'st thou th' importance of a foul immortal? Behold this midnight glory; worlds on worlds?

Amazing pomp! redouble this amaze;

T'en thousand add; add twice ten thousand more; Then weigh the whole; one soul outweighs them all; And calls th' astonishing magnificence

Of unintelligent creation poor.

For this, believe not me; no man believe; Trust not in words, but deeds; and deeds no less Than those of the Suprame; nor his, a few; Confult them all; confulted, all proclaim Thy foul's importance: tremble at thyself; For whom Omnipotence has wak'd fo long; Has wak'd, and work'd, for ages; from the birth

Of Nature, to this unbelieving hour.

In this small province of his vast domain.

(All Nature bow, while I pronounce his name!) What has Gop done, and not for this fole end, To refene fouls from death? The fours high price Is writ in all the conduct of the skies. The foul's high price is the creation's key, Unlocks its mytteries, and naked lays The genuine cause of ev'ry deed divine : That is the chain of ages, which maintains Their obvious-correspondence, and unites Most distant periods in one blefs'd defien : That is the mighty binge, on which have turn'd All revolutions, whether we regard The nafral, civil, or religious world; The former two, but fervants to the third : To that their duty done, they both expire, Their mass new-calt, forgot their deeds renown'd; And angels afk, " Where once they shone fo fair?" To lift us from this abject, to fublime ;

This flux, to permanent; this dark, to day; This foul, to pure; this turbid, to ferene; This mean, to mighty -- for this glorious end Th' ALMIGHTY, riling, his long labbath broke: The world was made; was ruin'd; was reftor'd; Laws from the fies were publish'd; were repeal'd; On tarth kings, kingdoms, rofe; kings, kingdoms, fell; Fam'd fages lighted up the Pagan world; Propliets from Sion darted a keen glance Through distant age; faints travell'd; martyrs bled; By wonders facred Nature flood controll'd ; The living were translated; dead were rais'd Angels, and more than angels, came from heav'n; And, oh! for this, descended lower still; Gilt was hell's gloom; aftonish'd at his guest, For one fhort moment Lucifer ador'd: Lorenzo! and wilt thou do less?-For this, That hallow'd page, fools fcoff at, was inspired, Of all these truths thrice-venerable code ! Deifts ! perform your quarentine ; and then Fall prograte, ere you touch it, left you die.

Nor less intensely bent infernal powers to To mar, than those of light, this end to gain.

what a scene is here! -- Lorenzo! wake ; Rife to the thought; exert, expand thy foul, To take the vast idea : it denies All elfe the name of great. Two warring worlds! Not Europe against Afric; waring worlds, Of more than mortal! mounted on the wing! On ardent wings of energy, and zeal, High hov'ring o'er this little brand of ftrife ! This fublunary ball-But strife, for what? In their own cause conflicting? No; in thine, In man's. His fingle int'rest blows the flame : His the fole flake; his fate the trumpet founds, Which kindles war immortal. How it burns ! l'umultuous swarms of deities in arms! Force force opposing, till the waves run high, And tempest Nature's universal sphere. Buch opposites eternal, stedfast, flern, such foes implacable, are good, and ill;

Fet man, vain man, would mediate peace between them. Think not this fiction. "If There was var in head?" From heav'n's high cryftal mountain, where it hung, "It' ALMIGHTY's outflerech'd arm took down his bow; And fhot his indignation at the dep? Rethander'd fell, and darted all her fires.—And feems the flake of little moment fill? And flumbers man, who fingly caus'd the florm? He fleens.—And at thou flook'd at mifferies?

The greatest, thou. How dreadful to reslect, What ardour, care, and counsel, mortals cause in breast divine! how little in their own!

Wheree'er I turn, how new proofs pour upon mel w. Tow happily this wondrous view fupports. My former argument! how ftrongly firites. **

Because

Because IMMORTAL, therefore is indulged This strange regard of delities to dust. Hence, heavy looks down on earth with all her eyes: Hence, the foul's mighty moment in her sight: Hence, evry foul has partisans above, And evry thought a critick in the sites: Hence, clay, vile clay: has angels for its guard, And evry guard a passion for its charge: Hence, from all age, the cabinet divine

Has held high counsel o'er the fate of man. Nor have the clouds those gracious counsels hid. Angels undrew the curtain of the throne. And PROVIDENCE came forth to meet mankind ; In various modes of emphasis and awe. He spoke his will, and trembling Nature heard; He fpoke it loud, in thunder, and in florm-Witness, thou Sinai! whose cloud-cover'd height, And shaken basis, own'd the present GoD : Witness, ye billows! whose returning tide, Breaking the chain that fasten'd it in air, Swept Egypt, and her menaces, to hell : Witness, ye flames! th' Affyrian tyrant blew To fev'nfold rage, as impotent, as ftrong: And thou, Earth! witness, whose expanding jaws Clos'd o'er * Presumption's facrilegious sons. Has not each element, in turn subscrib'd The foul's high price, and fworn it to the wife? Has not flame, ocean, æther, earthquake, strove To firike this truth, through adamantine man? If not all-adamant, LORENZO! hear : All is delufion ; Nature is wrapt up, In tenfold night, from Reason's keenest eye; There's no confishence, meaning, plan, or end, In all beneath the fun, in all above, (As far as man can penetrate), or heaven Is an immenfe, an estimable prize; Or all is nothing, or that prize is all .-And shall each toy be still a match for Heav'n ? And full equivalent for groans below? Who would not give a trifle to prevent What he would give a thousand worlds to cure?

LORENZO!

LORENZO! thou haft feen (if thine, to fee) All Nature and her God (by Nature's courfe, And Nature's course controll'd), declare for me : The skies above proclaim, " Immortal man!" And, " Man immortal!" all below refounds, The world's a fystem of theology, Read by the greatest strangers to the schools: If honest, learn'd; and sages o'er a plough. Is not, LORENZO! then, impos'd on thee This hard alternative; or to renounce Thy reason and thy sense; or, to believe? What then is unbelief? 'Tis an exploit: A strenuous enterprise. To gain it, man Must burst through ev'ry bar of common sense, Of common shame, magnanimously wrong : And what rewards the flurdy combatant

His prize, repentance; infamy, his crown. But wherefore infamy?-For want of faith. Down the fleep precipice of wrong he slides ; There's nothing to support him in the right. Faith in the future wanting, is, at least In embryo, ev'ry weakness, ev'ry guilt ; And strong temptation ripens it to birth. If this life's gain invites him to the deed, Why not his country fold, his father flain? 'Tis virtue to purfue our good supreme; And his fupreme, his only good is here. Ambition, Av'rice, by the wife difdain'd. Is perfect wifdom, while mankind are fools, And think a turf or tomb-stone covers all : These find employment, and provide for Sense A richer pasture, and a larger range; And Sense by right divine ascends the throne, When Virtue's prize and prospect are no more : Virtue no more we think the will of heav'n.

Would heav'n quite beggar Virtue, if belov'd?

"Has Virtue charms!"—I grant her heav'nly fair s
But if unportion'd, all will Int'reft med;
Though that our admitation, this our choice.
The virtue grow on immortality.
That root delivoy'd, they wither and expire.

A DEITY, believ'd, will nought avail;

146

Rewards and punishments make Gon ador'd : And hopes and fears give tonscience all her pow'r. As in the dying parent dies the child, Virtue, with immortality, expires. Who tells me he denies his foul immortal. Whate'er his boaft, has told me, he's a knave. His duty tis, to love himself alone : Nor care though mankind perifh, if he fmiles.

Who thinks erelong the man shall wholly die, Is dead already; nought but brate furvives. And are there fuch ?- Such candidates there are

For more than death; for utter loss of being, Being, the basis of the DEITY ! Ask you the cause ?- The cause they will not tell : Nor need they : Oh the forceries of Sense ! They work this transformation on the foul. Dismount her like the ferpent at the fall, Difmount her from her native wing, (which foar'd Erewhile athereal heights), and throw her down, To like the dust, and crawl in fuch a thought.

Is it in words to paint you? O ye fall'n't Fall'n from the wings of Reason, and of Hope! Erect in stature, prone in appetite ! Patrons of pleafure, pofting into pain ! Lovers of argument, averfe to fense ! Boafters of liberty, faft bound in chains ! Lords of the wide creation, and the shame! More senseless than th' irrationals you fcorn ! More base than those you rule! than those you pity. Far more undone! O ye most infamous Of beings, from fuperior dignity! Deepeft in wo, from means of bonndles blifs!

Ye curs'd by bleffings infinite! because Most highly favour'd, most profoundly lost ! Ye motley mais of contradiction ftrong! And are you, too, convinc'd, your fouls fly off In exhalation foft, and die in air,

From the full flood of evidence against you? In the coarse drudgeries and find of Sense, Your fouls have quite worn out the make of Heav'n, By Vice new-caft, and creatures of your own :

But though you can deform, you can't destroy; To curse, not uncreate, is all your pow'r.

LORENZO! this black brotherhood renounce : Renounce St. EVREMONT, and read St. PAUL. Ere rapt by Miracle, by Reason wing'd His mounting mind made long abode in heav's. This is freethinking, unconfin'd to parts, To fend the foul, on curious travel bent, Through all the provinces of human thought, From first to last, (but last there none shall be!), To dart her flight through the whole sphere of man; Of this vast universe to make the tour : In each recess of space, and time, at home ; Familiar with their wonders ; diving deep ; And, like a prince of boundless int'rests there, Still most ambitious of the most remote : To look on truth unbroken, and entire : Truth in the fystem, the full orb; where truths By truths enlighten'd, and fuftain'd, afford An arch-like, strong foundation, to support Th' incumbent weight of absolute, complete Conviction: here, the more we prefs, we fland More firm; who most examine, most believe. Parts, like half-fentences, confound; the whole Conveys the fense, and Gop is understood : Who not in fragments writes to human race: Read his whole volume, Sceptick! then reply.

This, this, is thinking free, a thought that graffs Eeyond a grain, and looks beyond an hour. Turn up thine eye, furrey this midnight scene; What are earth's kingdoms, to yon boundless ouls, of human souls, and day, the delin'd range? And what yon boundless orbs, to godike man? Those num roots worlds that throng the sirmament, And ask more space in heavin, can roll at large in man's capacious thought, and still leave coom. For ampler orbs; so new creations, there. Can such a soul contract itself, to gripe A point of no dimension, of no weight? It can, it does the world is such a point, And, of that point, how small a part endages?

N

How small a part-of nothing, shall I say? Why not ?- Friends, our chief treasure! how they drop! Lucia, NARCISSA fair, PHILANDER, gone! The grave, like fabled Cerberus, has op'd A triple mouth; and, in an awful voice, Loud calls my foul, and utters all I fing. How the world falls to pieces round about us. And leaves us in a ruin of our joy! What fays this transportation of my friends? It bids me love the place where now they dwell, And fcorn this wretched fpot, they leave fo poor. Eternity's vast ocean lies before thee : There, there, LORENZO! thy CLARISSA fails. Give thy mind fea-room; keep it wide of earth, That rock of fouls immortal; cut thy cord; Weigh anchor; fpread thy fails; call ev'ry wind; Eye thy great pole-ftar; make the land of life. Two kinds of life has double-natur'd man

148

And two of death; the last far more severe.
Life animal is naturally by the fun;
Thrives on his bounties, triumphs in his beams.
Life rational substites on higher food,
Triumphant in His beams, who made the day.
When we leave that fun, and are left by this,
(The fate of all who die in subborn guilt).
This atter darknefs; strictly, deable death.
We fink by no judicial froke of Heavin,
But Nature's courfe; as sure as plummets fall.
Since Goo, or man, must alter, ere they meet,
(For light and darknefs blend not in one sphere),
'Ys manifels, Losekned: who must change.

If, then, that double death should prove thy lot, Blame not the bowels of the Darry:
Man shall be blesi'd, as far as man permits,
Man shall be blesi'd, as far as man permits,
With an illustrious, but tremendous pow's,
To counteract its own most gracious ends;
An't this, of strict necessity, not choice:
T'at pow'r deny'd, men, angels, were no more,
But passive engines, word of praise, or blame.
A nature rational implies the pow'r
Of being blesi'd, or wreched, as we please;

Elfe idle Reafin would have nought to do; And he that would be barrd empacity Of pain, courts incapacity of blifs. Heav'n will, our happiness, allow our doom; Inviter us adently, but not compel; Heav'n but perfuder, almighty man decreet; Man is the maker of immortal fates. Man falls by man, if finally he falls; And fall he maft, who learns from death alone,

The dreadful secret,—that he lives for ever.

Why this to thee? thee yet, perhaps, in doubt
Of second life? But wherefore doubtful still?

Eternal life is Nature's ardent with;

What ardently we with, we foon believe:

Thy tardy faith declares that with deltroy'd:

What has deftroy'd it?—Shall I tell thee, what it

What has deftroy'd it?—Shall I tell thee, what it

And, when unwith'd, we firror to diffective.

"Thu infidelity our guilf betray."

Nor they the fiel declaring these

"Thus infidelity our guilt betrays."

Nor that the fole detection? bluth, LORENZO?

Bluth for hypocrify, if not for guilt.

The future fear d?—an infidel, and fear?

Fear what? a dream? a fable?—How thy dread,

Unwilling evidence, and therefore ffrong,

Affords my canfe an undeflow?d (upport?)

Affords my cause an undeligod support?
How dishelies affirms, what it denies?
"It, unawarer, afferts immortal Lise?"—
Surprising! Insidelity turns out
A creed, and a consession of our jins:

Apostates, thus, are orthodox divines.

LORENZO! with LORENZO class no more;
Nor longer a transparent vizor wear.

Think'st thou, RELICION only has her mask?
Our insidels are Satan's hypocrites,

Pretend the worth, and, at the bottom, fail. When vifited by thought, (thought suff intude), Like him they lerve, they tremble, and believe. Is there hypocrify for foul as this? So fatal to the welfare of the worth? What designation, what contempt, their due! And, if unpaid, be thank't for their escape

That Christian candour they strive hard to fcorn.

N 3

If not for that afylum, they might find

A hell on earth; nor 'scape a worse below.

With insolence, and impotence of thought,
Instead or racking fancy, to refuse,
Reform thy manners, and the truth enjoy.

But shall I dare consess the dire refult?

Can thy proud Reason brook so black a brand?

Can thy proud Reason brook so black a branc From purer manners, to sublimar faith, Is Nature's unavoidable ascent; An bonest Deist, where the gospel shines,

An donest Deift, where the gospel shines, Matur'd to nobler, in the Christian ends. When that blefs'd change arrives, e'en cast aside This fong superstuous; life immortal strikes

This fong superfluous; life immortal strikes Conviction, in a stood of light divine.

A Christian dwells, like "URELL, in the sun. Meridian evidence puts Doubt to slight;

And and the Experiments the offer.

And ardent Hope anticipates the skies.

Of that bright fun, LORENZO! scale the sphere;

'Tis easy; it invites thee; it descends

From heavin to woo, and wat thee whence it came:
Read and revere the facred page; a page

Where triumphs immortality; a page
Which not the whole ereation could produce;
Which not the conflagration shall destroy;
In Nature's ruins not one letter lost:

'Tis printed in the mind of gods for ever.

In Dature's ruins not one letter loft:

'Tis printed in the mind of gods for ever.

In proud difdain of what e'en gods adore,

In proud diffain of what c'en gods adore,
Dolf fmile \( \)—Poor wretch \( ^1\) thy guardian-angel weeps.
Angel and men aflent to what \( ^1\) ing:
\( '' \) if \( '' \) in \(

To grace the brazeu brow that braves the skies, by lofi of being, dreadfully secure. LORENZO! if the doctrine wins the day, And drives my dreams, descated, from the field; If this is all, if earth a final seene, Take heed: stand fill; be sure to be a knape;

A knave in grain! ne'er deviate to the right: Shouldft thou be good—how infinite thy loss! Gailt only makes availablation gain.

Blefa'd fehume! which life deprives of comfort, death.

Of lape; and which wree only recommends.

If 6; adors, inddeds! your bait thrown out.

To catch weak converts? eabers your brity boaft.

Of zeal for wirtue, and of love to man?

ANNIHILATION!! I confess, in these.

What can reclaim you? dare I hope profound Philosophers the converts of a song? Yet know, its + title flatters you, not me; Yours be the praise to make my title good : Mine, to bless Heav'n, and triumph in your praise. But fince fo peffilential your difease, Though fov'reign is the med'cine I prescribe. As yet, I'll neither triumph, nor despair; But hope, erelong, my midnight-dream will wake Your hearts, and teach your wisdom-to be wife : For why should souls immortal, made for blifs, E'er wish (and wish in vain !) that souls could die ? What ne'er can die, oh ! grant to live ; and crown The wish, and aim, and labour of the skies : Increase, and enter on the joys of heavin ; Thus shall my title pass a facred seal, Receive an imprimatur from above,

Receive an impermatur from above.
While angels frout—An infuled reclaim d.l.
To clofe, Loarnot fpire of all my pains,
Still feems it drange, that thou fhouldt live for ever?
Is it left frange, that thou fhouldt live at all?
This is a miracle; and that no more.
Who gave beginning, can exclude an end.

Deny thou art: then, doubt if thou finit be, A miyacle with miracles inclosed, Is man: and flarts his fath at what is firange? What lefs than wiracles, from the Wonderful? What lefs than miracles, from Cop., can flow! Admir a Gon—that myflery fupreme! That cause uncaused! all other wonders cease; Nothing is marvellous for Him to do; Denn Him—all; is myflery beides;

Millions of mysteries I each darker far,
Than that thy wildom would, unwifely, hun.
† The Infidel Reclaimed.

If weak thy faith, why choose the harder fide? We nothing know, but what is marvellous : Yet what is marvellous, we can't believe. So weak our reason, and so great our God, What most surprises in the facred page, Or full as strange, or stranger, must be true.

Faith is not Reason's labour, but repose.

To Faith, and Virtue, why fo backward, man ? From hence :- The prefent strongly strikes us all; The future, faintly. Can we, then, be men? If men, LORENZO! the reverse is right. Reason is man's peculiar; Sense, the brute's. The present is the scanty realm of Sense; The future, Reason's empire unconfin'd: On that expending all her godlike pow'r, She plans, provides, expatiates, triumphs, there; There builds her bleffings; there expects her praise; And nothing asks of fortune, or of men. And what is Reafon? Be she thus defin'd: Reason is upright stature in the foul. Oh! be a man ; - and strive to be a god.

" For what? (thou fayst;) to damp the joys of life ?" No; to give heart and fubflance to thy joys. That tyrant, Hope! mark, how the domineers : She bids us quit realities, for dreams; Safety and peace, for hazard and alarm; That tyrant o'er the tyrants of the foul ! She bids Ambition quit its taken prize, Spurn the luxuriant branch on which it fits, Though bearing crowns, to fpring at diffant game And plunge in toils, and dangers-for repose. If Hope precarious, and of things, when gain'd, Of little moment, and as little flay, Can fweeten toils and dangers into joys; What then that hope, which nothing can defeat, Our leave unask'd? Rich hope of boundless blifs!

Blifs, past Man's pow'r to paint it ; Time's to closé ! This hope is earth's most estimable prize ; This is man's portion, while no more than man : Hope, of all passions, most befriends us here ; Passions of prouder name befriend us less. Joy has her tears; and Transport has her death;

Hobe, like a cordial, innocent, though ftrong, Man's heart at once inspirits and ferenes, Nor makes him pay his wisdom for his joys : 'Tis all our present state can safely bear, Health to the frame ! and vigour to the mind! A joy attemper'd ! a chastis'd delight ! Like the fair fummer ev'ning, mild, and fweet ! 'Tis man's full cup; his paradife below ! A bless'd hereafter, then, or hop'd, or gain'd, Is all g-our whole of happiness: full proof, I chose no trivial or inglorious theme. And know, ye foes to fong! (well-meaning men, Though quite forgotten + half your Bible's praise!) Important truths, in spite of verse, may please: Grave minds you praise : nor can you praise too much : If there is weight in an ETERNITY,

Let the grave liften; -and be graver fill.

THE MAN OF THE WORLI ANSWERED.

In which are confidered.

The Love of this Life; the American and Pleasure, with the Wit and Wisdom of the World.

AND has all nature, then, efpous'd my part?
Have I brib'd heav'n, and earth, to plead again!
And is thy foul immertal?—What remains?
[the All, all, LORENZO I—Make immortal, blefs'd.
All, all, LORENZO I—Make immortal, blefs'd.
There flows his treafure; thence his title draws;
Dlan of the world! (for fuch wouldf! thou be call'd)
And art thou proud of that inglorious flyle?
Proud of reproach? for a reproach it war,
In ancient days; and CRRISTIAN,—in an age,
When men were men, and not afham'd of heav'n,
Fir'd their ambition, as it crown'd their joy.
Sprinkled with dews from the Cafalian foat,
Fain would I rebaptize thee, and confer
A purer fipirit, and a nobler mame.

Thy fond attachments, fatal, and infiam'd, Point out my path, and dictate to my fong. To thee, the world how fair! how ftrougly firikes Ambition! and gay Pleafure ftrouger ftill! Thy triple bane! the triple bolt, that lave 'hy virtue dead ! be thefe my triple theme; or shall thy wit, or wisdom, be forgot. Common the theme; not so the fong, if she ly fong invokes, URANIA, deigns to fmile. f unttain'd our bigbol?* O Lorenzo I
Vhat lofty thoughts, these elements above,
Vhat tow'ring hopes, what sallies from the surface of destiny divine,
and pompous presage of unstathom'd fate,
should roll in bosoms, where a spirit burns, sound for eternity! in bosoms read
by Him, who foibles in archangels sees!
On human hearts He bends a jealous eye,
And marks, and in heavin's regulier inrole,

The rife and progress of each option there; acred to doomlday! That the page unfolds, And spreads us to the gaze of gods and men.

And what an option, O Losswao! thine? This world! and this, unrivall?d by the fixies! A world, where luft of Pleafare, Grandeur, Gold, Three demons that divide its realms between them, With flrokes alternate buffet to and fro Man's refiles heart, their fport, their flying ball; Till, with the giddy circle, fick, and tird, t pants for peace, and drops into despair. Such is the world Lonewao sets above That glorious promise appeals were esteem'd Too mean to bring; a promise, their Ador'd Descended to communicate, and press,

By counsel, miracle, life, death, on man. Such is the world Lorswzo's wisdom woocs, And on its thorny pillow seeks repose a Apillow, which, like opiates ill prepar'd, Intoxicates, but not compose; fills The visionary mind with gay chimeras, All the wild trash of seep without the rest:

What unfeign'd travel, and what dreams of joy!

How frail, men, things! how momentary, both!

Pantaflick chace, of fladows hunting flades!

The gay, the bufy, equal, though unlike;

Equal in widdom, differently wife!

Through flow'ry meadows, and through dreary waftes,

One bulling, and one danning, into death.

There's not a day, but, to the man of thought,

Betrays fome fecret, that throws new reproach

On life, and makes him fick of feeing more.

The feenes of platafare—"What is all befide:"

There, others we despite; and here, ourselves.

Amid diffuel eternal, dwells desight?

Stuns with the din, and choaks us with the duft,
On life's gay flage, one inch above the grave?
The proud run up and down in queft of eyes;
The froil of good the position, of good the properties,
The grave, of gold 1 the politicit, of power;
And all, of other butterflies, as vain!
As eddies draw things frivolous, and light,
How is man's heart by vanity drawn in;
On the fwift circle of returning toys,
Whit'd, flaw-like, round and round, and then ingulf'd.

Where gay delusion darkens to despair!

"This is a beaten track."——Is this a track

"Tis approbation strikes the string of joy.
What wondrous prize has kindled this career.

Should not be beaten? Never beat enough, Till enough learn'd the truths it would infpire. Shall truth be filent, because Folly frouns? Turn the world's hiltory; what find we there, But Fortune's sports, or Nature's cruel claims, Or woman's artifice, or man's revenge, And endles inhumanities on man?

Fame's trumpet feldom founds, but, like the knell, It brings bad tidings. How it hourly blows Man's mifadventures round the lid'ning world!

Man is the tale of narrative old Time;
Sad tale! which high as paradify begins;
As if, the toil of travel to delude,
From flage to flage, in his eternal round,
The Days, his daughters, as they foin our hours
On Fortune's wheel, where accident unthought
Oft, in a moment, finaps life's frongelt thread,
Each, in her turn, fome tragick flory tells,
With, now and then, a wretched farce between;
And folls his chronicle with human wose.

Time's daughters, true as those of men, deceive us; Not one but puts some cheat on all mankind: While in their father's bosom, not yet surs, They slatter our sond hopes, and promise much

They flatter our fond hopes, and promite much Of amiable; but hold him not o'er-wife,
Who dares to truft them; and laugh round the year,
At fill-confiding, fill-confounded, man,

Confiding, though confounded; hoping on, Untaught by trial, unconvinced by proof, And ever looking for the never-feen. Life to the last, like harden'd felons, lies; Nor owns itself a cheat, till it expires.

Its little joys go out by one and one,
And leave poor man, at length, in perfect night;
Night darker than what, now, involves the pole.

O Thou, who doft permit these ills to fall, For gracious ends, and wouldful that man should mourn! O Thou, whose hand this goodly fabrick fram'd, Who know'st it best, and wouldst that man should know! What is this sublunary world? A vapour; A vapour all it holds; itself a vapour;

From the damp bed of chaos, by thy beam Exhal'd, ordan'd to few in its defined hour In ambient air, then melt, and difuppear. In ambient air, then melt, and difuppear the down; As mortal, though lefs transient, than her fons; Yet they dote on her, as the world and they Were both eternal, folid, 7 moy a dream.

They

They dote, on what? Immortal views apart, A region of outfides ! a land of shadows ! A fruitful field of flow'ry promifes ! A wilderness of joys! perplex'd with doubts. And tharp with thorns! a troubled ocean, foread With bold adventurers, their all on board : No fecond hope, if here their fortune frowns ; Frown foon it mult. Of various rates they fail, Of enfigns various; all alike in this, All reftless, anxious; tofs'd with hopes and fears, In calmest skies a obnoxious all to storm ! And stormy the most gen'ral blast of life ; All bound for happinels; yet few provide The chart of knowledge, pointing where it lies; Or Virtue's helm, to shape the course design'd : All, more or less, capricious fate lament, Now lifted by the tide, and now reforb'd, And farther from their wishes than before: All, more or less, against each other dash. To mutual hurt, by gusts of passion driven, And fuff'ring more from folly, than from fate.

148

Of dangers, at eternal war with man! Death's capital, where most he domineers, With all his chosen tereors frowing round, (Though lately featled high at * Albion's cost), Wide-op'ning, and loud-roaring fills for more! Too faithful mirror! how dost thou resent The melancholy face of human life! The fittong resemblance tempts me farther still! And, haply, Britain may be deeper struck By moral truth, in such a mirror seen, Which Nature holds for ever at her eye.

Ocean! thou dreadful and tumultuous home

Self-flatter'd, unexperienc'd, high in hope, When young, with fanguine cheer, and flreamers gay, We cut our cable, launch into the world, And fondly dream each wind and flar our friend; All in fome darling enterprize embark'd.

But where is he can fathom its event?
Amid a multitude gf artlefs haads,

Ruin's fure perquifite ! her lawful prize ! Some steer aright; but the black blast blows hard, And puffs them wide of hope : with hearts of proof, Full against wind, and tide, fome win their way; And when flrong effort has deferv'd the port, And tugg'd it into view, 'tis won ! 'tis loft ! Though strong their oar, still stronger is their fate : They strike ; and, while they triumph, they expire. In stress of weather, most ; some fink outright ; O'er them, and o'er their names, the billows close; To-morrow knows not they were ever born. Others a short memorial leave behind, Like a flag floating, when the bark's ingulf'd; It floats a moment, and is feen no more : One CESAR lives : a thousand are forgot. How few, beneath auspicious planets born, (Darlings of providence ! fond Fate's elect !). With swelling fails make good the promis'd port, With all their wishes freighted! Yet even these, Freighted with all their wifhes, foon complain ; Free from misfortune, not from Nature free, They still are men : and when is man secure? As fatal time, as florm! the rush of years Beats down their firength; their numberless escapes In ruin end: and, now, their proud fuccess But plants new terrors on the victor's brow : What pain to quit the world, just made their own, Their nest so deeply down'd, and built so high ! Too low they build, who build beneath the stars. Wo then apart, (if wo apart can be

Wo then apart, (if wo apart can be From mortal man), and Fortune at our nod, The gay! rich! great! triumphant! and august! What are they?—The myst happy (strage to fay!) Convince me most of human milery.
What are they? Smiling wretches of to-morrow! More wretched, then, than e'er their slave can be; Their treach'rous blessings, at the day of need, Like other faithless friends, unmask, and sing: Them, what provoking indigence in wealth! What aggravated impotence in pong?!
High titless, them, what inful of their pain!

If that fole anchor, equal to the waven.

Look on life's flages: they fpeak plainer fill!;
The plainer they, the deeper wilt thou figh.
Look on thy lovely boy; in him behold
The beft that can befal the beft on earth;
The boy has virtue by his mather's fide:

The boy has virtue by his mather's fide: Yes, on Florallo look: a father's heart Is tender, though the man's is made of flone: The truth, through fuch a medium feen, may make Imprellion deep, and fondneis prove thy friend. Florallo lately call on this rude coalt, A helplefs infant, now a heedlefs child;

To poor CLANISAS throes, thy care fucceeds; Care full of love, and yet fevere as late! Ore thy foul's joy how oft thy fondaes froms! Needful autherities his will reftrain; As thorns fence in the tender plant from harm. As yet, his reafen cannot go alone; But alks a fterner aurie to lead it on. His little heart is often terrify'd; The bluth of morning, in his check, turns pale; It peaks dead on the plant of the plant o

The bluft of morning, in his check, turns pale; Its pearly dewedron trembles in his eye; Its harmlefs eye! and drowns an angel there. Ah! what avails his innocence? The tafk lajoird, must difcipline his early pow'rs; He learns to fight, ere he is known to fis; Guillefe, and fad! a wretch before the fall! How cruel this! more cruel to forbear. Our nature fuch, with necessary pains, We purchase prospects of precarious peace: Though not a father, this might Real a figh.

Suppose him disciplin'd aright, (if not, 'Twill fink our poor account to poorer fill); Ripe from the tutor, proud of liberty, the leaps inclosure, bounds into the world; The world is taken, after ten years toil,

Like ancient Troy ; and all its joys his own. Alas! the world's a tutor more fevere: Its leffons hard, and ill deferve his pains; Unteaching all his virtuous nature taught. Or books (fair virtue's advocates!) infoir'd.

For who receives him into publick life? Men of the world, the terra-filial breed, Welcome the modest stranger to their sphere, (Which glitter'd long, at distance, in his fight), And in their hospitable arms inclose : Men, who think nought fo ftrong of the romance. So rank knight-errant, as a real friend: Men that act up to reason's golden rule, All weakness of affection quite subdu'd: Men that would blush at being thought fincere,

And feign, for glory, the few faults they want ; That love a lie, where truth would pay as well: As if, to them, Vice shone her own reward. LORENZO! canft thou bear a shocking fight?

Such, for FLORELLO's fake, 'twill now appear : See, the steel'd files of feafon'd veterans, Train'd to the world, in burnish'd falshood bright; Deep in the fatal stratagems of peace; All fost sensation, in the throng, rubb'd off: All their keen purpose, in politeness, sheath'd: His friends eternal-during intereft; His foes implacable-when worth their while : At war with ev'ry welfare, but their own; As wife as Lucifer; and half as good; And by whom, none, but Lucifer, can gain-Naked, through thefe, (fo common fate ordains). Naked of heart, his cruel course he runs, Stung out of all, most amiable in life,

Prompt truth, and open thought, and fmiles unfeign'd ; Affection, as his species, wide diffus'd; Noble prefumptions to mankind's renown: Ingenuous truft, and confidence of love.

Will cost him many a figh; till time, and pains, From the flow miltress of this school, Experience, And her affiftant, pauling, pale Diftruft, Purchase a dear-bought clue to lead his youth

Through ferpentine obliquities of life, And the dark labvrinth of human hearts. And happy I if the clue shall come so cheap : For, while we learn to fence with publick guilt. Full oft we feel its foul contagion too, If less than heav'nly virtue is our guard. Thus, a strange kind of curs'd necessity Brings down the sterling temper of his foul, By base alloy, to bear the current stamp, Below call'd wifdom : finks him into fafety . And brands him into credit with the world : Where specious titles dignify disgrace, And Nature's injuries are arts of life; Where brighter reason prompts to bolder crimes ; And heav'nly talents make infernal hearts ; That unfurmountable extreme of guilt!

Poor Machiavel! who labour'd hard his plan, Forgot, that genius needs not go to school ; Forgot, that man, without a tutor wife, His plan had practis'd, long before 'twas writ. The world's all title-page, there's no contents; The world's all face ; the man who shows his heart. Is hooted for his nudities, and fcorn'd. A man I knew, who liv'd upon a fmile: And well it fed him; he look'd plump and fair; While rankest venom foam'd through ev'ry vein. LORENZO 1 what I tell thee, take not ill ! Living, he fawn'd on ev'ry fool alive ; And, dying, curs'd the friend on whom he liv'd. To fuch proficients thou art half a faint. In foreign realms, (for thou hast travell'd far), How curious to contemplate two flate-rooks, Studious their nefts to feather in a trice. With all the necromanticks of their art. Playing the game of faces on each other, Making court fweatmeats of their latent gall, In foolish hope to steal each other's trust ; Both cheating, both exulting, both deceiv'd : And, fometimes, both (let earth rejoice) undone ! Their parts we doubt not, but be that their flame :

Shall men of talents, fir to rule mankind, Stoop to mean wiles, that would difference a fool ? And lose the thanks of those few friends they ferve? For who can thank the man he cannot fee?

Why fo much cover? it defeats itself. Ye that know all things! know ye not, mens hearts Are therefore known, because they are conceal'd? For why conceal'd ?- The cause they need not tell. I give him joy, that's awkward at a lie : Whose feeble nature truth keeps still in awe;

His incapacity is his renown. 'Tis great, 'tis manly, to disdain disquise'; It shows our spirit, or it proves our strength. Thou fay'ft, 'tis needful: Is it therefore right? Howe'er, I grant it some small sign of grace, To ftrain at an excuse : And wouldst thou then Escape that cruel need? thou may'st, with ease : Think no post needful that demands a knave. When late our civil helm was shifting hands, So P -- thought: think better, if you can.

But this, how rare! The publick path of life Is dirty :- yet allow that dirt its due. It makes the noble mind more noble ftill: The world's no neuter; it will wound or fave: Our virtue quench, or indignation fire. You fay, the world, well known, will make a man :-The world, well known, will give our hearts to heav'n, Or make us damons, long before we die.

To show how fair the World, thy mistress, shines, Take either part : fure ills attend the choice 1 Sure, though not equal, detriment enfues, Not Virtue's felf is deify'd on earth :

Virtue has her relapses, conflicts, foes : Foes that ne'er fail to make her feel their hate.

Virtue has, her peculiar fet of pains. True; friends to virtue, last, and least, complain But if they figh, can others hope to fmile?

If Wildom has her miseries to mourn. How can poor Folly lead a happy life? And if both fuffer, what has earth to boaft,

Where he most happy, who the least laments? Where much, much patience, the most enw'd state, And fome forgivenels, needs the best of friends!

For friend, or happy life, who looks not higher,

Of neither shall he find the shadow bere. The world's fworn advocate, without a fee.

164

LORENZO finartly, with a fmile, replies : "Thus far thy fong is right; and all must own,

Virtue has her peculiar fet of pains .-

" And joys peculiar who to Vice denies?

If vice it is with Nature to comply;

" If pride and fense are so predominant,

"To check, not overcome them, makes a faint. " Can Nature in a plainer voice proclaim

" Pleasure and glory the chief good of man?"

Can pride and fenfuality rejoice ?

From parity of thought all pleasure springs ; And, from an humble fpirit, all our peace. Ambition! Pleasure! let us talk of these: Of thefe, the PORCH and ACABEMY talk'd: Of these, each following age had much to fay : Yet unexhausted, still, the needful theme. Who talks of thefe, to mankind all at once He talks; for where the faint from either free? Are these thy refuge ?- No; these rush upon thee; Thy vitals feize, and, vulture-like, devour ; Pil try if I can pluck thee from thy rock. Prometheus ! from this barren ball of earth ; If Reason can unchain thee, thou art free. And, first, thy Caucafus, Ambition ! calls ;

Mountaintof torments! eminence of woes! Of courted woes I and courted through miftake I 'Tis not ambition charms thec; 'tis a cheat Will make thee ftart, as H --- at his Moon. Doft grasp at greatness? First, know what it is. Thinkit thou thy greatness in distinction lies ? Not in the feather, wave it e'er fo high, By Fortune frick, to mark us from the throng, Is glory lodg'd: 'tis lodg'd in the reverse; In that which joins, in that which equals all, The monarch, and his flave ;- " A deathless foul, " Unbounded prospect, and immortal kin, "A father God, and brothers in the fkies;" Elder. indeed, in time; but less remote

In excellence, perhaps, than thought by man : Why greater what can fall, than what can rife? If still delirious, now, LORENZO! go:

And with thy full-blown brothers of the sworld, Throw forn around thee; caft it on thy flaves; Thy flaves, and equals : how fcorn cast on them Rebounds on thee! If man is mean, as man, Art thou a god? If Fortune makes him fo, Beware the confequence: a maxim that, Which draws a montrous picture of mankind, Where, in the drapery, the man is loft; Externals flutt'ring, and the foul forgot. Thy greatest glory, when dispos'd to boast, Boast that aloud, in which thy servants share.

We wisely strip the feed we mean to buy : Indge we, in their caparisons, of men?

It nought avails thee, where, but what thou art; All the diltinctions of this little life Are quite cutaneous, foreign to the man. [creep,

When, through Death's ftreights, Earth's fubtile ferpents Which wriggle into wealth, or climb renown, As crooked Satan the forbidden tree,

They leave their party-colour'd robe behind, All that now glitters, while they rear aloft Their brazen crefts, and his at us below. Of Fortune's fucus ftrip them, yet alive;

Strip them of body, too; nay, closer ftill, Away with all, but moral, in their minds; -And let, what then remains, impose their name, Pronounce them weak, or worthy; great, or mean. How mean that fouff of glory Fortune lights, And Death puts out ! Doft thou demand a telt,

A test at once infallible and short, Of real greatness? That man greatly lives, Whate'er his fate or frame, who greatly dies; High-flush'd with hope, where heroes shall despair. If this a true criterion, many courts,

Illustrious, might afford but few grandees. Th' Almighty, from his throne, on earth furveys Nought greater, than an boneft, humble heart;

An humble heart, His residence! pronounc'd His fecond feat : and rival to the fkies.

The private path, the fecret acts of enen,
If noble, far the nobleft of our lives!
How far above Lorenzo's glory fits
Th' illustrious mafter of a name unknown;
Whose worth unrivall'd, and unwitness'd, loves
Lise's facred shades, where gods-converse with men;
And Peace, beyond the World's conception, smiles!
As thou! (now dark), before we part, shall fee.

But thy great foul this foulking glory fcorns. LORENZO'S fick, but when LORENZO'S feen : And, when he shrugs at publick bus'ness, lies. Deny'd the publick eye, the publick voice, As if he liv'd on others' breath, he dies. Fain would be make the world his pedeftal: Mankind the gazers; the fole figure, he. Knows he, that mankind praise against their will. And mix as much detraction as they can? Knows he, that faithless Fame her whisper has, As well as trumpet? that his vanity Is fo much tickled from not hearing all? Knows this all-knower, that from itch of praife, Or from an itch more fordid, when he shines, Taking his country by five hundred ears, Senates at once admire him, and despife, With modelt laughter lining loud applaufe, Which makes the finile more mortal to his fame? His fame, which (like the mighty CESAR) crown'd With laurels, in full fenate, greatly falls, By feeming friends, that honour and destroy. We rife in glory, as we fink in pride: Where boatting ends, there dignity begins : And yet, mistaken beyond all mistake, The blind LORENZO's proud-of being proud : And dreams himfelf afcending in his fall.

And areams nimeter alcending in in its lait.

An eminence, though fancy'd, turns the brain;
All vice wants beliebor; but, of all vice,
Pride louded calls, and for the largeft bowl;
Becaule, all other vice unlike, it flies,
In fact, the point in fancy most purfud.

Who cqurt applaufe, oblige the world in this;
They grafify man's passion to refuse.

Superfor honours, when aligned, is left;

Ev'n good men turn handitti, and rejoice. Like Kouli-Kan, in plunder of the proud. Though fomewhat disconcerted, steady still

To the World's cause, with half a face of joy, LORENZO cries .- " Be, then. Ambition caft : " Ambition's dearer far flands unimpeach'd,

" Gay Pleasure! Proud Ambition is her flave; " For her, he foars at great, and hazards ill;

For her, he fights, and bleeds, or overcomes;

And paves his way, with crowns, to reach her smile : Who can refift her charms ?"-Or, fould? LORENZO!

What mortal shall refift, where angels yield?

Pleasure's the miltress of æthereal pow'rs; For her contend the rival gods above;

Pleasure's the mistress of the world below. And well it is for man, that Pleasure charms,

How would all stagnate, but for Pleafure's ray ! How would the frozen stream of action cease !

What is the pulse of this so busy world? The love of Pleasure: that, through every vein,

Throws motion, warmth; and shuts out death from Though various are the tempers of mankind, [life.

Pleasure's gay family holds all in chains. Some most affect the black; and some, the fair ; Some honest pleasure court; and some, obscene. Pleasures obscene are various, as the throng

Of paffions, that can err in human hearts; Mistake their objects, or transgress their bounds. Think you there's but one whoredom? Whoredom, all,

But when our reason licenses delight. Doft doubt, LORENZO? Thou shalt doubt no more,

Thy father chides thy gallantries; yet hugs An ugly, common harlot, in the dark;

A rank adulterer with others gold : And that hag, Vengeance, in a corner, charms. Hatred her brothel has, as well as Love,

Where horrid Epicures debauch in blood. Whate'er the motive, Pleasure is the mark : For her, the black affaffin draws his fword;

For her, dark statesmen trim their midnight-lamp, To which no fingle facrifice may fall;

For her, the faint abstains; the mifer starves;

The Stoick proud, for pleasure, pleasure scorn'd; For her, Affliction's daughters grief indulge, And find, or hope, a luxury in tears; For her, guilt, shame, toil, danger, we defy, And, with an aim volaptuous, rush on death. Thus univerfal her despotick power.

And as her empire wide, her praise is just. Patron of Pleasure ! doter on delight! I am thy rival ; Pleafure I profess ; Pleasure the purpose of my gloomy song. Pleasure is nought but Virtue's gayer name; I wrong her still, I rate her worth too low : Virtue the root, and Pleafure is the flower :

And honest Epicurus' foes were fools.

But this founds harsh, and gives the wife offence If o'erstrain'd wisdom still retains the name. How knits Austerity her cloudy brow, And blames, as bold and hazardous, the praise Of Pleasure, to mankind, unprais'd, too dear ! Ye modern Stoicks! hear my foft reply; Their fenses men will truft : we can't impose : Or, if we could, is imposition right? Own honey fweet; but, owning, add this fling; " When mix'd with poison, it is deadly too. Truth never was indebted to a lie. Is nought but Virtue to be prais'd, as good? Why then is health preferr'd before difease? What Nature loves, is good without our leave : And, where no future drawback cries, " Beware:" Pleasure, though not from virtue, should prevail. 'Tis balm to life, and gratitude to Heav'n : How cold our thanks for bounties unenjoy'd! The Love of Pleafure is man's eldeft born, Born in his cradle, living to his tomb; Wildom, her younger fifter, though more grave, Was meant to minister, and not to mar, Imperial Pleasure, queen of human hearts.

LORENZO ! thou, her Majesty's renown'd, Though uncoift, counsel, learned in the world ! Who think'ft thyfelf a MURRAY, with difdain May'ft look on me. Yet, my DEMOSTHENES! Canft thou pleat Pleasure's cause as well as I?

Know'ft thou her melare, purpoje, parentage?
Attend my fong, and thou shalt know them all;
And know thylelf; and know thylelf to be
(Strange truth!) the most abstemious man alive.
Tell not Calasara, if she will laugh thee dead;
Or fead thee to her hermitage with L—
Absturd prefumption! thou, who never knew'ft
A ferious thought! shalt thou dare dream of joy?
No man ever found a happ sife by chance,
Or yawn'd it into being, with a wish;
Or, with the snout of growling Appetites,
E'er sincht it out, and grubb'd it from the dirt.
An art it is, and must be learn'd; and learn'd.

E'er fmelt it out, and grubb'd it from the dirt. An art it is, and must be learn'd; and learn'd With unremitting effort, or be lost; And leaves us perfect blockheads, in our bliss.

The clouds may drop down titles and estates;

Wealth may seek us: but Wisdom must be sought;
Sought before all; but (how unlike all essentially).

We feek on earth!) 'tis never fought in vain. First, Pleasure's birth, rise, strength, and

First, Plaafure's birth, rife, strength, and grandeur Brought forth by Wifdom, nurs'd by Difcipline, [fee: By Patienes taught, by Perference crown'd, She rears her head majestick; round her throne, Erected in the bosom of the just, Each Virtue, listed, forms her manly guard. For what are Virtues? (formidable name!)

What, but the fountain, or defence, of joy? Why, then, commanded? need mankind commands, At once to merit, and to make their blifs? _____ Great legislator! scarce so great, as kind!

If men are rational, and love delight, Thy gracious law but flatters human choice: In the transgression lies the penalty;

And they the most indulge, who most obey.

Of Pleasure, next, the final cause explore;
Its mighty purpose, its important end.

Not to turn human brutal, but to build

Divine on human, Pleasure came from heav'r. In aid to Reason was the goddes sent, To call up all its strength by such a charm. Pleasure, first, succours Virtue; in return, Virtue gives Pleasure, an eternal reign.

Whate

What, but the pleasure of food, friendship, faith, Supports life nat'ral, civil, and divine? 'Tis from the pleasure of repast, we live ; 'Tis from the pleasure of applause, we please ; Tis from the pleasure of belief, we pray : (All pray'r would ceafe, if unbeliev'd the prize): It ferves ourfelves, our species, and our God: And to serve more, is past the sphere of man. Glide, then, for ever, Pleafure's facred ftream ! Through Eden as Euphrates ran, it runs, And fofters ev'ry growth of happy life ;

Makes a new Eden where it flows :- but fuch As must be loft, LORENZO! by thy fall.

" What mean I by thy fall?"-Thou'lt shortly fee, While Pleafure's nature is at large difplay'd; Already fung her origin, and ends.

Those glorious ends, by kind, or by degree, When Pleasure violates, 'tis then a vice, And vengeance too; it haltens into pain. From due refreshment, life, health, reason, joy; From wild excess, pain, grief, distraction, death; Heav'n's justice this proclaims, and that her love. What greater evil can I wish my foe,

Than his full draught of pleasure, from a cask Unbroach'd by just authority, ungaug'd By Temperance, by Reason unrefin'd? A thousand domons lurk within the lee.

Heav'n, others, and ourselves! uninjur'd these, Drink deep; the deeper, then, the more divine : Angels are angels from indulgence there; 'Tis unrepenting pleasure makes a god.

Dost think thyself a god from other joys ? A victim rather! shortly fure to bleed.

The wrong must mourn: can Heav'n's appointments Can man outwit Omnipotence ? ftrike out Γfail ₹ A felf-wrought happiness unmeant by Him Who made us, and the world we would enjoy ? Who forms an instrument, ordains from whence

Its diffonance, or harmony, shall rife. Heav'n bid the foul this mortal frame infoire : Bid Virtue's ray divine inspire the foul,

With unprecarious flows of vital joy :

And, without breathing, man as well might hope For life, as, without picty, for peace.

"Is Virtue, then, and Picty the fame?"
No; Picty is no more; 'tis Virtue's fource; Mother of evry worth, as that of joy.
Men of the world this doctrine ill diget!: They finile at Piety; yet boat aloud Good will to men; nor know, they firive to part What Nature; joins; and thus conflute themfelves. With Picty begins all good on earth; 'Tis the first-born of rationality.
Conficience, her first law broken, wounded lies; Enfechled, lifelefi, impotent to good; A feigu'd affection bounds her utmost pow'r.
Some we can't love, but for th' Almighty's fake; A foe to Goon was ne'er true friend to man;

Some we can't love, but for th' Almighty's fake;
A foe to God was ne'er true friend to man;
Some finifler intent taints all he does;
And, in his kindeft actions, he's unkind.
On piety, humanity is built;

And, on humanity, much happiness; And yet fill more on piety itless. A foul in commerce with her God, is heaven; Feels not the tumults and the shocks of life, The whirls of passions, and the strokes of heart.

A Deity believ'd, is joy begun; A Deity ador'd, is joy advanc'd; A Deity belov'd, is joy matur'd. Each branch of Piety delight inspires:

Faith builds a bridge from this world to the next, O'er death's dark gulf, and all its horror hides; Praife, the fweet exhalation of our joy, That joy exalts, and makes it fweeter fill;

That joy exalts, and makes it fweeter fill; Pray'r ardent opens heav'n, lets down'a fiream. Of glory on the confecrated hour Of man, in audience with the Deity.

Who worships the great God, that instant joins The first in heav'n, and sets his foot on hell.

LORENZO! When wast thou at church before?

Thou think'ft the fervice long: but is it just? Though just, unwelcome: Inou hadst rather treas Unhallow'd ground; the Muse, to win thine ear, Must take an air less solemn. She complies.

Good Conscience! at the found the gworld retires : Verle difaffects it, and LORENZO fmiles : Yet has she her feraglio full of charms ; And fuch as age shall heighten, not impair. Art thou dejected? is thy mind o'ercast? Amid her fair ones, thou the fairest choose,

To chace thy gloom-" Go, fix some weighty truth ; " Chain down fome paffion ; do fome gen' rous good ;

" Teach Ignorance to fee, or Grief to Smile : " Correct thy friend; befriend thy greatest foe; or, with warm heart, and confidence divine,

so Spring up, and lay strong hold on Him who made

Thy gloom is scatter'd, sprightly spirits flow; Tthee."-Though wither'd is thy vine, and harp unftrung.

Doft call the bowl, the viol, and the dance, Lond mirth, mad laughter? Wretched comforters.1 Physicians! more than half of thy difease. Laughter, though never cenfur'd yet as fin, (Pardon a thought that only feems fevere), Is half immoral. Is it much indulg'd ? By venting spleen, or diffipating thought, It shows a fcorner, or it makes a fool ; And fins, as hurting others, or ourselves. 'Tis pride, or emptiness, applies the straw, That tickles little minds to mirth effuse;

Of grief as impotent, portentous fign ! The house of laughter makes a house of wo. A man triumphant is a monftrous fight : A man dejefted is a fight as mean.

What cause for triumph, where such ills abound? What for dejection, where prefides a pow'r, Who call'd us into being to be bless'd?

So grieve, as conscious grief may rise to joy; So joy, as conscious grief to joy may fall. Most true, a wife man never will be fad; But neither will fonorous, bubbling mirth, A shallow stream of happiness betray :

Too happy to be sportive, he's serene. Yet wouldst thou laugh, (but at thy own expence); This counsel strange shoulded presume to give-" Retfre, and read thy Bible, to be gay."

There truths abound of fov'reign aid to peace;

Ah! do not prize them lefs, because inspired, As thou, and thine, art apt and proud to do. If not inspired, that pregnant page had shood, Time's treasure! and the wonder of the wise! Thou thine'st, perhaps, buy four alone at stake; Alas L—should men mistake thee for a fool; What man of taste for genius, wildom, truth, Though tender of thy same, could interpose? Believe me, Sense, kere, acts a double part, And the true critick is a Christian too.

And the true critick is a Uvrillian too.
But the/s, thou thinkfl, are gloomy paths to joy,—
True joy in fundhine ne'er was found at first;
They, first, themselves offend, who greatly please;
And travel only gives us found repose.
Heavn fells all pleasure; effort is the price:
The joys of conquest, are the joys of man;
And Glory the victorious laurel spreads

O'er Pleajure's pure, perpetual, 'placid fiream.
There is a time, when toil must be preferr'd,
Or joy, by mif-tim'd fondness, is undone.
A man of pleasure is a man of pains.
Thou wilt not take the trouble to be blefs'd.
Fals' joys, indeed, are born from want of thought s.
From Thought's full bent, and energy, the true;
And that demands a mind in equal poize,
Remote from gloomy grief, and glaring joy.
Much joy not only speaks small happiness,
But happiness that shortly must expire.
Can joy, unbottom'd in reflection, stand?
And, in a tempeth, can reflection live?
Can joy, unbottom'd in reflection five?
Can joy, unbottom'd in reflection, stand?

Can joy, like thine, meet accident unhock'd? Or ope the door to honed poverty? Or talk with threat ving Death, and not turn pale? In fuch a world, and fuch a nature, thoje Are needful fundamentals of dehight:
These fundamentals give delight indeed;
Delight, pure, delicate, and durable;
Delight, unshaken, masscaline, divine;
A constant, and a loand, but ferious joy.

Is Joy the daughter of Secrity?

It is — Yet far my doctrine from fevere.

Rejoice for ever;" it becomes a man;

Exalts, and fets him nearer to the gods.

174

" Rejoice for ever," Nature cries, " Rejoice :" And drinks to man, in her nectareous cup, Mix'd up of delicates for ev'ry fense;

To the great Founder of the bounteous fealt, Drinks glory, gratitude, eternal praife; And he that will not pledge ber, is a churl-

Ill firmly to support, good fully tafte,

Is the whole science of felicity. Yet sparing pledge: ber bowl is not the best

Mankind can boaft .- " A rational repast : " Exertion, vigilance, a mind in arms,

" A military discipline of thought, " To foil Temptation in the doubtful field :

" And ever-waking ardour for the right," Tis thefe first give, then guard, a chearful heart. Nought that is right, think little; well aware,

What Reason bids, Gop bids; by his command How aggrandiz'd the fmalleft thing we do ! Thus, nothing is infipid to the wife;

To thee, infipid all, but what is mad;

Toys feafon'd high, and talting ftrong of guilt. " Mad! (thou reply'ft, with indignation fir'd) " Of ancient fages proud to tread the steps,

I follow Nature."-Follow Nature Still, But look it be thine own. Is conscience, then, No part of Nature? is the not fupreme? Thou regicide! O raife her from the dead!

Then follow Nature; and refemble Gop. When, spite of Conscience, Pleasure is pursu'd,

Man's nature is unnaturally pleas'd; And what's unnatural, is painful too At intervals, and must disgust ev'n thee! The fact thou know'st; but not, perhaps, the cause. Virtue's foundations with the world's were laid; Heav'n mix'd her with our make, and twifted close Her facred int'refts with the ftrings of life. Who breaks her awful mandate, shocks himself, His better felf. And is it greater pain,

Our foul should murmur, or our dust repine? And one, in their eternal war, must bleed. If one must fusier, which should least be spar'd? The pains of mind furpals the pains of fense:

Aft, then, the goot, what torment is in guilt. The joys of first to mental joys are mean:
Sense on the present only feeds; the soul On past and stuture forages for joy.
This here, by retrospect, through time to range; And sorward time's great sequel to survey.
Could human courts take vengeance on the mind; Axes night ruft, and racks and gibbets fall; Cuard, then, thy mind, and leave the rest to Fate.

LORENZO! wilt thou never be a man? The man is dead, who for the body lives, Lur'd, by the beating of his pulse, to lift With ev'ry luft, that wars against his peace : And fets him quite at variance with himfelf. Thyfelf first know, then love. A felf there is Of virtue fond, that kindles at her charms, A felf there is, as fond of ev'ry vice, While ev'ry virtue wounds it to the heart ; Humility degrades it, Justice robs, Blefs'd Bounty beggars it, fair Truth betrays, And godlike Magnanimity destroys. This felf, when rival to the former, fcorn : When not in competition, kindly treat, Defend it, feed it .- But when Virtue bids, Tofs it, or to the fowls, or to the flames, And why? 'Tis love of Pleasure bids thee bleed; Comply, or own Self-love extinct or blind.

For what is Fice? Self-love in a mittake; A poor blind merchant buying joya too dear. And Firtus, what? 'Tis Self-love in her wits, Quite ficiful in the market of delight. Self-love's good fenfe is love of that dread pow'rs, From whom herfelf, and all the can enjoy. Other felf-love is but diignis'd felf-hate; More mortal than the malice of our fores; More mortal than the malice of our fores, A felf-hate, now, fearce felt; then felt full fore, When being, cur'd; extinction, loud implor'd; And ev'ry thing preferr'd to what we are Yet this felf-love LORENZO makes his choice; And, in this choice triumphant, boats of joy. How is his want of happiness betray'd, By disaffection to the present hour! Imagination wanders far afield:

E76 The future pleases: why? The present pains .-"But that's a fecret."-Yes, which all men know a And know from thee, discover'd unawares. Thy ceaseless agitation, reftless roll From cheat to cheat, impatient of a paule : What is it ?- 'Tis the cradle of the foul, From Inflinet fent, to rock her in difeafe.

Which her physician, Reason, will not cure. A poor expedient! yet thy best; and while It mitigates thy pain, it owns it too.

Such are LORENZO's wretched remedies ! The weak have remedies : the wife have joys, Superior wisdom is superior blifs. And what fure mark diftinguishes the wife? Confiftent wifdom ever wills the fame : Thy fickle wish is ever on the wing. Sick of herfelf, is Folly's character ; As Wildom's is, a modelt felf-applaule. A change of evils is thy good fupreme : Nor, but in motion, can't thou find thy rest. Man's greatest strength is shown in standing still. The first fure symptom of a mind in health, Is rest of heart, and pleasure felt at home. False Pleasure from abroad her joys imports ; Rich from within, and felf-fullain'd, the true, The true is fix'd, and folid as a rock : Slipp'ry the falfe, and toffing as the wave. This, a wild wanderer on earth, like CAIN: That, like the fabled, felf-enamour'd boy, Home-contemplation her supreme delight : She dreads an interruption from without,

No man is happy, till he thinks, on earth There breathes not a more happy than himself : Then envy dies, and love o'erflows on all; And love o'erflowing makes an angel here; Such angels all, intitled to repofe On him who governs fate. Though tempest frowns, Though nature shakes, how fost to lean on Heav'n L To lean on Him, on whom archangels lean ! With inward eyes, and filent as the grave,

Smit with her own condition: and the more Intense she gazes, still it charms the more.

They fland collecting ev'ry beam of thought,

Till their hearts kindle with divine delight : For all their thoughts, like angels feen of old In Ifrael's dream, come from and go to heav'n : Hence, are they studious of sequester'd scenes; While noise and distipation comfort thee.

Were all men happy, revellings would ceafe, That opiate for inquietude within. LORENZO! never man was truly blefs'd, But it compos'd, and gave him fuch a cast, As Folly might mistake for want of joy; A cast, unlike the triumph of the proud : A modest aspect, and a smile at heart. O for a joy from thy PHILANDER's fpring ! A fpring perennial, rifing in the breaft, And permanent, as pure! no turbid stream Of rapt'rous exultation swelling high; Which, like land-floods, impetuous pour a while, Then fink at once, and leave us in the mire. What does the man, who transient joy prefers?

What, but prefer the bubbles to the ffream? Vain are all fudden fallies of delight ; Convulsions of a weak, diftemper'd joy. Joy's a fix'd ftate; a tenour, not a start. Blis there is none, but unprecarious blis : That is the gem; fell all, and purchase that. Why go a-begging to contingencies,

Not gain'd with case, nor safely lov'd, if gain'd? At good fortuitous, draw back, and paule; Suspect it ; what thou canft enfure, enjoy : And nought but what thou giv'ft thyfelf, is fure. Reason perpetuates joy that reason gives, And makes it as immortal as herfelf:

To mortals, nought immortal, but their worth. Worth, confcious worth ! should absolutely reign ; And other joys ask leave for their approach ; Nor, unexamin'd, ever leave obtain. Thou art all anarchy; a mob of joys Wage war, and perish in intestine broils :

Not the least promise of internal peace! No bosom-comfort! or unborrow'd bliss! Thy thoughts are vagabonds; all outward-bound, fure: 'Mid fands, and rocks, and storms, to cruife for Plea-

If gain'd, dear bought; and better mis'd than gain'd. Much pain must expiate, what much pain procur'd. Fancy, and Sense, from an infected shore. Thy cargo bring; and peftilence, the prize: Then, fuch thy thirst, (infatiable thirst! By fond indulgence but inflam'd the more),

Fancy fill cruifes, when poor Sense is tir'd. Imagination is the Paphian shop, Where feeble happiness, like Vulcan, lame, Bids foul ideas, in their dark recess, And hot as bell, (which kindled the black fires), With wanton art, those fatal arrows form, Which murder all thy time, health, wealth, and fame Wouldst thou receive them, other thoughts there are, On angel-wing, descending from above, Which these with art divine, would counterwork,

And form celeftial armour for thy peace.

In this is feen Imagination's guilt; But who can count her follies? She betrays thee, To think in grandeur there is fomething great. For works of curious art and ancient fame, Thy genius hungers, elegantly pain'd ;. And toreign climes must cater for thy taste. Hence, what difafter !- Though the price was paid, That persecuting prieft, the Turk of Rome, Whose foot, (ye gods !), though cloven, must be kis'd, Detain'd thy dinner on the Latian shore; (Such is the fate of honest Protestants!) And poor Magnificence is flarv'd to death. Hence, just refentment, indignation, ire !--Be pacify'd; if outward things are great, 'Tis magnaminity great things to fcorn; Pompous expences, and parades august,

And courts; that infalubrious foil to peace. True happiness ne'er enter'd at an eye; True happiness resides in things unseen. No smiles of Fortune ever bles'd the bad, Nor can her frowns rob Innocence of joys; That jewel wanting, triple crowns are poor :

So tell his Holinsfs, and be reveng'd. Pleasure, we both agree, is man's chief good ; Our only contest, what deserves the name.

Cive Pleafure's name to nought, but what has pais'd Th' authentick feal of Reafon, (which, like Yorke, Demurs on what it paffes), and defies The tooth of Time; when pails, a pleafure fill; Dearer on trial, levelier for its age.

And doubly to be priz'd, as it promotes
Our future, while it forms our prefent joy.
Some joys the future overcaft; and fome

Throw all their beams that way, and gild the tomb. Some joys endear eternity; fome give Abhorr'd Annihilation dreadful charms. Are rival joys contending for thy choice? Confult thy whole existence, and be safe;

That oracle will put all doubt to flight.

Short is the lesson, though my lecture long,

Be good—and let Heav'n answer for the rest.

Be good—and let Heav'n answer for the rest.
Yet, with a sigh o'er all mankind, I grant,
In this our day of proof, our land of kope,

The good man has his clouds that intervene; Clouds, that objears his fublunary day, But never conquer. Ev'n the best mult own, Patience, and Resignation, are the pillars of human peace on earth. The pillars, these But those of Sets not more remote from thee, I'll this herewick lesson thou hast learn'd; To frown at Pleasure, and to find in pain. Fir'd at the prospect of unclouded bilis, Heav'n in reversion, like the sun as yet Beneath th' horizon, cheers us in this world;

It sheds, on souls susceptible of light, The glorious dawn of our eternal day.

"This (fays LORENZO) is a fair harangue:
"But can harangues blow back strong Nature's stream,
"Or stem the tide Heav'n pushes through our veins,

"Which fweeps away man's impotent refolves,
And lay his labour level with the world?"

Themfelves men make their comment on mankind 4.
Thus, weaknets to chimera turns the truth.
Nothing romantick has the mufe preferib'd.
*Above, Lorenzo faw the man of earth,

the state of the state of

The mortal man; and wretched was the fight. To balance that, to comfort, and exalt; Now fee the man immertal's him, I mean, Who lives as (uch; whose heart, full-bent on heav'n, Leans all that way, his bias to the stars. The world's dark shades, in contrast fet, shall raise His lustre more; though bright, without a foil; Observe his awful portrait, and admire; Nor ston at wonders; imitates, and live.

Some angel guide my pencil, while I draw,
What nothing lefs than angel can exceed,
A man on earth devoted to the skies,

Like ships in feas, while in, above the world.

With afpect mild, and elevated eye, Behold him feated on a mount ferene,
Above the fogs of fenfe, and pathon's florm;
All the black cares and timults of this life, Like harmlefs thunders, breaking at his feet,
Excite his pity, not impair his peace.
Earth's genuine fons, the feoptred, and the flave,
A mingled mob! a wand'ring herd! he fees
Bewilder'd in the vale; in all unlike!
His full reverfe in all! What higher praife?
What ftronger demonstration of the right?
The prefernt all their care: the future, bis.

When publick welfare calls, or private want, They give to fame; his bounty he conceals, Their virtues varnish Nature; hie exalt. Mankind's esteem they court; and he, his own. Theirs, the wild chace of fulfe felicities; His, the compos'd possession of state trees. Alike throughout is his consistent peace, All of one colour, and an even thread; While party-colour'd streds of happines, With hideous gaps between, patch up for them A madman's robe; each puff of Fortune blows The tatters by, and shows their nakedness.

He sees with other eyes than theirs: where they Behold a fun, he spies a Deity;

What makes them only smile, makes him adore. Where they see mountains, he but atoms sees; An empire, in his balance, weighs a grain.

They things terrestrial worship, as divine;

That dims his fight, and fhortens his furvey, Which longs, in infinite, to lofe all bound. Titles and honours (if they prove his fate) He lays afide, to find his dignity : No dignity they find in aught besides. They triumph in externals, (which conceal Man's real glory ), proud of an eclipfe. Himself too much he prizes to be proud, And nothing thinks fo great in man, as man Too dear he holds his int'reft, to neglect Another's welfare, or his right invade; Their int'reft, like a lion, lives on prev-They kindle at the shadow of a wrong; Wrong he fustains with temper, looks on heav'n, Nor stoops to think his injurer his foe; Nought, but what wounds his virtue, wounds his neace. A cover'd heart their character defends : A cover'd heart denies him half his praise. With nakedness bis innocence agrees ; While their broad foliage tellifies their fall. Their no-joys end, where his full feast begins ; His joys create, theirs murder, future blifs, To triumph in existence, his alone : And his alone, triumphantly to think His true existence is not yet begun.

Death, then, was welcome; yet life fill is freet.
But nothing charms LOAENZO, like the firm,
Undaunted breat.—And whose is that high praise?
They yield to pleasure, though they danger brave,
And show no fortitude, but in the field;
If there they show it, 'tis for glory shown;
Nor will that cordial always man their hearts.
A cordial his fustains, that cannot fail;
By pleasure unsubdu'd, unbroke by pain,
He shares in that Omnipotence he trulls;
All-bearing, all-attempting, till he falls;
And when he falls, writes vicro in his shield.
From magnanimity, all fear above;

His glorious course was, yesterday, complete :

From nobler recompense, above applause; Which owes to man's short out-look all its charms.

Backward to credit what he never felt,

LORENZO cries,-" Where thines this miracle?" From what root rifes this immortal man? A root that grows not in LORENZO's ground; The root diffect, nor wonder at the flower.

He follows Nature (not like * thee), and shows us

An uninverted system of a man. His Appetite wears Reason's golden chain, And finds, in due restraint, its luxury.

182

His Passion, like an eagle well-reclaim'd, Is taught to fly at nought but infinite. Patient his Hope, unanxious is his Care.

His Caution fearless, and his Grief (if grief The gods ordain) a stranger to despair. And why ?- Because affection, more than meet,

His wildom leaves not difengag'd from Heav'n. Those secondary goods that smile on earth. He, loving in proportion, loves in peace.

They most the world enjoy, who least admire-His understanding 'scapes the common cloud Of fumes, arifing from a boiling breaft. His head is clear, because his heart is cool,

By worldly competitions uninflam'd. The mod'rate movements of his foul admit

Distinct ideas, and matur'd debate, An eye impartial, and an even scale ;

Whence judgment found, and unrepenting choice. Thus, in a double fense, the good are wise :

On its own dunghill, wifer than the world. What, then, the world? It must be doubly weak t

Strange truth ! as foon would they believe their creeds Yet thus it is a nor otherwise can be:

So far from aught romantick, what I fing. Blifs has no being, Virtue has no strength, But from the prospect of immortal life. Who think earth all, or (what weighs just the same)

Who care no farther, must prize what it yields : Fond of its fancies, proud of its parades.

Who thinks earth nothing, can't its charms admire :

9 See page 174. line 25.

He can't a foe, though most malignant, hate, Because that hate would prove his greater foe. 'Tis hard for them (yet who fo loudly boaft Good-will to men?) to love their dearest friend; For may not he invade their good supreme, Where the least jealoufy turns love to gall? All shines to them, that for a season shines. Each act, each thought, be questions, " What its weight, " Its colour what, a thousand ages hence ?"-And what it there appears, he deems it now.

Hence, pure are the recesses of his foul. The God-like man has nothing to conceal. His virtue, constitutionally deen, Has Habit's firmness, and Affection's flame : Angels, ally'd, descend to feed the fire :

And Death, which others flays, makes him a god.

And now, LORENZO! bigot of this world! Wont to disdain poor bigots caught by heav'n! Stand by thy forn, and be reduc'd to nought : For what art thou ?- Thou boafter! while thy glare, Thy gaudy grandeur, and mere worldly worth, Like a broad mift, at diftance, firikes us most : And, like a mist, is nothing when at hand : His merit, like a mountain, on approach, Swells more, and rifes nearer to the fkies, By promise, now, and, by possession, soon, (Too foon, too much, it cannot be) his own.

From this thy just annihilation rife, LORENRO! rife to famething, by reply. The world, thy client, liftens, and expects; And longs to crown thee with immortal praife-Canft thou be filent ? No ; for Wit is thine ; And Wit talks most, when least she has to fay, And Reason interrupts not her career. She'll fay - That mists above the mountains rife : And, with a thousand pleasantries, amuse; She'll sparkle, puzzle, flutter, raife a dust, And fly conviction, in the dust she rais'd.

Wit, how delicious to man's dainty tafte ! 'Tis precious, as the vehicle of Senfe; But, as its substitute, a dire difease, Pernicious talent! flatter'd by the world,

By the blind world, which thinks the talent rare, Wifdom is rare, LORENZO! Wit abounds: Pallion can give it : fometimes wine infpires The lucky flash; and madness rarely fails. Whatever cause the spirit firongly ftirs. Confers the bays, and rivals thy renown: For thy renown, 'twere well, was this the worst a Chance often hits it; and, to pique thee more, See Dulnels, blund'ring on vivacities, Shakes her fage head at the calamity. Which has expos'd, and let her down to thee. But Wildom, awful Wildom! which inspects. Difcerns, compares, weighs, feparates, infers, Seizes the right, and holds it to the last : How rare! In fenates, fynods, fought in vain ; Or, if there found, 'tis facred to the few : While a lewd profitnte to multitudes, Frequent, as fatal, Wit. In civil life, Wit makes an enterprifer ; Senfe, a man-Wit hates authority : commotion loves, And thinks herfelf the lightning of the ftorm. In flates, 'tis dang'rous ; in religion, death : Sense is our belmet, Wit is but the plume : The plume exposes, 'tis our belinet faves. Sense is the di'mond, weighty, folid, found : When cut by Wit, it casts a brighter beam; Yet, Wit apart, it is a di'mond still. Wit, widow'd of Good-Sense, is worse than nought; It hoists more fail to run against a rock. Thus, a Half-CHESTERFIELD is quite a fool; Whom dull fools foon, and blefs their want of with

How ruinous the rock I warn thee shun, Where Sirens lit, to ling thee to thy fate ! A joy, in which our reason bears no part, Is but a forrow tickling, ere it flings. Let not the cooings of the World allure thee; Which of her lovers ever found her true? Happy! of this bad world who little know!-And yet, we much must know her, to be fafe, To know the world, not love her, is thy point : She gives but little, nor that little, long.

There is, I graint, a triumph of the pulfe; A dance of lipritis, a mere front of joy, Our thoughtleft agitation's idle child, That mantles high, that fiparkles, and expires, Leaving the foul more vapid than before; An animal ovation! foch as holds. Me commerce with our resofon, but fubfills.

Na commerce with our realow, but subsits
On juices, through the well-ton'd tubes, well-strain'd;
A nice machine! scarce ever tun'd aright:
And when it jars—thy Sirens sing no more,

And when it jars—thy Sirens fing no more, Thy dance is done; the demi-god is thrown (Short apotheofis!) beneath the man, In coward gloom immers'd, or fell despair.

Art thou yet dull enough despair to dread, And flartle at destruction? If thou art, Accept a buckler, take it to the field;

(A field of battle is this mortal life!)
When danger threatens, lay it on thy heart;
A fingle fentence proof against the world.

" Soul, body, fortune! ev'ry good pertains
To one of these: but prize not all alike

"To one of these; but prize not all alike;
"The goods of fortune to thy body's health,

" Body to foul, and foul fubmit to God."
Wouldit thou build lasting happiness? do this;

Th' inverted pyramid can never stand.

Is this truth doubtful? It outshines the sun;
Nay, the sun shines not, but to show us this.

Nay, the fun shines not, but to show us this,
The single lesson of mankind on earth.
And yet—Yet, what? No news! mankind is mad;

And yet—iet, what? No news? mankind is mad; Such mighty numbers lift against the right, (And what can't numbers, when bewitch'd, achieve?), They talk themselves to something like belief,

That all earth's joys are theirs: as Athen's fool Grinn'd from the port, on ev'ry fail his own. They grin; but wherefore? and how long the laugh?

Half ignorance, their mirth; and half, a lie:
To cheat the wordly, and cheat themfelves, they fmile.
Hard either tafk! The mont abandon'd own,
That others, if abandon'd, are undone:
Then; for themfelves, the moment Reafon wakes,

(And Providence denies it long repose), O how laborious is their gaiety! They fearce can (wallow their ebullient fpleen, Searce mufter patience to support the farce, And pump fad laughter, till the curtain falls. Searce, did I say? Some cannot fit it out; Oft their own daring hands the curtain draw, And show us what their ov, by their defenir.

The clotted hair! gor'd breaft! blaspheming eye!

Its impious fury still alive in death !-

Shut, shut the shocking scene.—But Heav'n denies A cover to such guilt; and so frould man. Look round, Look rough 20! see the recking blade; Th' invenom'd phial, and the statl ball; The stranging cord, and suffiscating stream; The loathsome rottenness, and soul decays From raging riot (slower suicides!); And pride in these, more execrable still!

How horrid all to thought!—but horrors, theles.
That vouch the truth, and aid my feeble fong.

From vice, sense, fancy, no man can be blefe'd:
Blife is too great, to lodge within an hour:
When an immortal being aims at blifs,
Duration is effential to the name.

Duration is ellential to the name.

O for a joy from Reaghest j by from that,
Which makes man man; and, exercis'd aright,
Will make him more: A bountous joy! that gives,
And promifes; that weaves, with art divine,

The richeft prospect into present peace:
A joy ambitious! joy in common held.
With through at horsel and their greater for

With thrones ethereal, and their greater far:
A joy high privileged from chance, time, death:
A joy, which death shall double! judgment, crown!
Crown'd higher, and still higher, at each stage,
Through blesid Eternity's long day; yet fill,
Not more remote from foreou, than from Him,
Whose lavid hand, whose lave shupendous, pourse.

So much of Deity on guilty duft.

There, O my Lucia! may I meet thee there,
Where not thy presence can improve my blis!

Affects not this the fages of the world? Can nought affed them, but what fools them too? Eternity, depending on an hour, Makes ferious thought man's widdom, joy, and praise-

CONSOLATION.

Containing, among other things,

I. A Moral Survey of the Nocturnal Heavens.

II. A Night-Address to the DEITY.

Humbly Inscribed

To his GRACE the DUKE of NEWCASTLE, one of his Majetty's Principal Secretaries of State.

--- Fatis contraria fata rependens.

Virg.

S when a traveller, a long day past In painful fearch of what he cannot find, At night's approach, content with the next cot, There ruminates a while his labour loft : Then cheers his heart with what his fate affords. And chants his fonnet to deceive the time, Till the due feafon calls him to repofe : Thus I, long travell'd in the ways of men, And dancing, with the reft, the giddy maze, Where Disappointment smiles at Hope's career; Warn'd by the languor of Life's ev'ning-ray, At length have hous'd me in an humble shed. Where, future wand'ring banish'd from my thought, And waiting, patient, the fweet hour of reft, I chase the moments with a serious song, Song fooths our pains; and age has pains to footh.

When age, care, crime, and riends embraced at heart, Torn from my bleeding breath, and Death's dark shade, Which hovers over me, queuech th' ethereal fire; Canst thou, O Nigar! indulge one labour more? One labour more indulge: Then freep, my strain!

Where

Where night, death, age, care, crime, and forrow cease, To bear a part in everlasting lays ; Though far, far higher fet, in aim, I truft, Symphonious to this humble prelude bere.

Has not the muse afferted pleasures pure, Like those above; exploding other joys? Weigh what was urg'd, LORENZO! fairly weigh a And tell me, haft thou cause to triumph still? I think thou wilt forbear a boaff fo bold. But if, beneath the favour of mistake. Thy fmile's fincere; not more fincere can be LORENZO's fmile, than my compassion for him. The fick in body call for aid; the fick In mind are covetous of more difease: And, when at worft, they dream themselves quite well: To know ourselves diseas'd, is half our cure. When Nature's blush by Custom is wip'd off, And Conscience, deaden'd by repeated strokes, Has into manners nat'raliz'd our crimes : The curse of curses is, our curse to love ;

To triumph in the blackness of our guilt. (As Indians glory in the deepest jet), And throw alide our fenses with our peace. But, grant no guilt, no shame, no least alloy :

Grant joy and glory, quite unfully'd, shone: Yet still it ill deserves LORENZO's heart. No joy, no glory, glitters in thy fight, But, through the thin partition of an hour, I fee its fables wove by Destiny, And that in forrow bury'd; this, in shame; While howling furies ring the doleful knell;

And Conscience, now so foft thou scarce canst hear Her whifper, echoes her eternal peal.

Where the prime actors of the last year's scene? Their port fo proud, their buskin, and their plume? How many fleet, who kept the world awake With luftre, and with noise ! Has Death proclaim'd A truce, and hung his fated lance on high? "Tis brandish'd still; nor shall the present year Be more tenacious of her human leaf. Or spread of feeble life a thinner fall.

But

But needless monuments to wake the thought : Life's payelf scenes speak man's mortality : Though in a flyle more florid, full as plain, As maufoleums, pyramids, and tombs. What are our noblest ornaments, but Deaths Turn'd flatterers of life, in paint, or marble, The well-flain'd canvas, or the featur'd flone? Our fathers grace, or rather haunt, the scene You peoples her pavilion from the dead. " Profes'd diversions! cannot these escape?" Far from it. These present us with a shroud; And talk of death, like garlands o'er a grave. As some bold plunderers, for bury'd wealth. We ranfack tombs for pastime; from the dust Call up the fleeping hero; bid him tread The scene for our amusement. How like gods We fit : and, wrapt in immortality, Shed gen'rous tears on wretches born to die : Their fate deploring, to forget our own! What, all the pomps and triumphs of our lives, But legacies in bloffom? Our lean foil, Luxuriant grown, and rank in vanities, From friends interr'd beneath : a rich manure ! Like other worms, we banquet on the dead s Like other worms, shall we crawl on, nor know Our present frailties, or approaching fate ? LORENZO! fuch the glories of the world!

Our present frailities, or approaching fate?

Lorbaso! such the glories of the world!

What is the world itself? Thy world?—A grave!

Where is the dust that has not been alive?

The spade, the plough, disturb our ancessors;

From human mould we reap our daily bread.

The globe around Earth's hollow furface shakes,

And is the ceiling of her sleeping sons.

O'Cr Devastation we blind revels keep;

Whole bury'd towns support the dancer's heel.

The moiss of human frame the sun exhales;

Winds scatter, through the mighty void, the stry;

Winds scatter, through the mighty void, the stry;

Earth reposselses part of what the gave, And the freed spirit mounts on wings of fire; Each element partakes our scatter'd spoils; As Nature wide, our ruins spread; man's deaph silknhabits all things, but the thought of man.

Nor man alone: his breathing buft expires, His tomb is mortal : empires die. Where now The Roman? Greek? They ftalk, an empty name! Yet few regard them in this useful light; Though half our learning is their epitaph. When down thy vale, unlock'd by midnight-thought, That loves to wander in thy funless realms, O Death ! I ftretch my view : what visions rife ! What triumphs! toils imperial! arts divine! In wither'd laurels, glide before my fight ! What lengths of far-fam'd ages, billow'd high With human agitation, roll along In unsubstantial images of air ! The melancholy ghosts of dead renown, Whisp'ring faint echoes of the world's applause, With penitential aspect, as they pass, All point at earth, and hifs at human pride,

The wildom of the wile, and prancings of the great. But, O LONENZO I far the red above, Of ghaftly nature, and enormous fize, One form affaults my light, and chills my blood, And flakes my frame. Of one departed world I fee the mighty fladow; oozy wreath And difinal fea-weed crown her; o'er her urn Reclin'd, the weeps her defolated realms, And bloated fons; and, weeping, prophefies Anather's diffolution, foon, in flames:
But, like Casandra, prophefies in vain;

In vain to many; not, I trult, to thee.
For know? It thou no, or art thou haub to know,
The great decree, the counfel of the ficies?
Delage and Conflagration, dreadful pow'rs!
Prime minithers of vengeaneel chain'd in caves
Dillinch; apart the giant-furies roar;
Apart; or, fuch their horrid rage for ruin;
Iu mutual conflict would they rife, and wage
Eternal war, till one was quite devour'd.
But not for this ordain'd their boundlefs rage;
When Hear'n's inferior infruments of wrath,
War, Famine, Pefilience, are found too weak
To focurge a world for her enormous crimes,
These are tel loofe, alternate: down they ruth,

Swift and tempestuous, from th' eternal throne, With irreskible commission arm'd, The world, in vain corrected, to destroy, And ease creation of the shocking scene.

Seeft thou, LORENZOI what depends on man?
The fate of Nature; as for man, her birth.
Earth's adoors change Earth's transitory feenes,
And make creation groan with human guilt.
How-mgh it groan, in a new deluge whelm'd,
But not of waters! At the deftin'd hour,
By the loud trumpet furnmond to the charge,
See, all the formidable fors of fire,
Eruptions, Earthquakes, Comets, Lightnings, play
Their various engines: all at once differer

Their various engines; all at once differege Their blazing magazines; and take, by storm, This poor terrestrial citadel of man.

This poor terrestrial citadel of man.

Amazing period! when each mountain-height

Amazing period: when each mountain-heigh Out-burns Vojuviu; rocks eternal pour Their melted mass, as rivers once they pour'd; Stars rush; and final Ruin fiercely drives Her ploughshare o'er creation!—While alost, Weet three about the works is core report.

More than aftonihment! if more can be! Far other firmamient than e'er was feen, Than e'er was thought by man! far other flars! Stars animate, that govern these of fire; Far other fin!—A lun, O how unlike

The babe at Bethle'm! how unlike the man That groan'd on Calvary!—Yet He it is a That man of forrows! O how changed!

That man of forrows! O how chang'd! What pomp! In grandeur terrible, all heav'n descends! And gods, ambitious, triumph in his train. As monarche grand, on coronation-days.

Omnipotence affects omnipotence,
Wears all his glories, marshals all his pow'rs,

Their state emblazes! Deity exalts!
A swift archangel, with his golden wing,
As blots and clouds, that darken and disgrace
The scene divine, sweeps stars and suns asset.

And now, all drofs remov'd, heav'n's own pure day, Full on the confines of our ather, flames: While (dreadful contraft!) far, how far beneath!

Hell, burfting, belehes forth her blazing seas,

And

And storms sulphureous; her voracious jaws
Expanding wide, and roaring for her prev.

LORENZO! welcome to this feene; the laft In Nature's courfe; the first in Wislom's thought. This Rivies, if aught can strike the; this awakes 'The most supine; this statement most supine; this statement man from death. Roufe, rouse, LORENZO! then, and follow me, Where truth, the most momentous man can hear, Loud calls my foul, and ardour wings her slight. I find my inspiration in my theme; The grandeur of my fubics! is my mafe.

At midnight when mankind is wrapt in peace, And worldly Fancy feeds on golden dreams, To give more dread to man's most dreadful hour s At midnight, 'tis prefum'd this pomp will burft From tenfold darkness : sudden as the spark From fmitten steel; from nitrous grain, the blaze. Man, flarting from his couch, shall sleep no more ! The day is broke, which never more shall close ! Above, around, beneath, amazement all ! Terror and glory join'd in their extremes ! Our GOD in grandeur, and our world on fire ! All Nature struggling in the pangs of death ! Doft thou not hear her ? doft thou not deplore Her strong convulsions, and her final groan? Where are we now? Ah me! the ground is gone On which we flood. LORENZO ! while thou may'ft. Provide more firm support, or fink for ever! Where? How? From whence? Vain hope! it is too Where, where, for shelter, shall the guilty fly, [late! When confternation turns the good man pale?

When confirmation turns the good man pale?

Great day! for which all other days were made;

For which Earth role from Chass, Man from Earth;

And an eternity, the date of gods,
Defeended on poor earth-created man!
Great day of dread, decition, and defpair!
At thought of thee, each fublunary with
Lets go its cager grafp, and drops the world;
And catches at each reed of hope in heav'n.
At thought of thee !—And art thou abjent then!
LORENGO! no; 'tis here:—it is begun;—
Already is begun the grand affize,

In thee, in all: deputed Confcience scales
The dread tribunal, and forestalls our doom;
Forestalls, and, by forestalling, proves it fure.
Why on himself should man toid judgment pass?
Is idle Nature laughing at her sons?
Who Confcience sent, her fentence will support,

And GOD above affert that God in man.
Thrice happy they! that enter now the court

Heav'n opens in their bosoms: but how rare,
Ah me! that magnanimity, how rare!
What hero, like the man who stands himself?
Who dares to meet his naked heart alone?
Who hears intrepid, the full charge it brings,
Resolv'd to silence future murmurs there?
The coward flies; and, flying, is undone.
(Art thou a coward? No): The coward flies;
Thinks, but thinks flightly; afte, but sears to know;
Ales, "What is trath?" with Platars; and revices;
Dissolves the court, and mingles with the throng;

Dilloives the court, and mingles with the throng;
Afylum fad! from reafon, hope, and heav'n!
Shall all, but man, look out with ardent eye,
For that great day which was ordain'd for man?
O day of confummation! mark fupreme
(If men are wife) of human thought! nor leaft,

Or in the fight of angels, or their KING!

Angel, whose radiant circles, height o'er height,
Order o'er order, rifing, blaze o'er blaze,
As in a theatre, furround this scene,

As in a theatre, furround this fcene, Intent on man, and anxious for his fate.

Angels look out for thee; for thee, their LORD, To vindicate his glory; and for thee,

Creation universal calls aloud, To disinvolve the moral world, and give To Nature's renovation brighter charms.

Shall man alone, whose fate, whose final fate, Hangs on that hour, exclude it from his thought? I think of nothing else; I feel I feel it! All Nature, like an earthquake, trembling round! All deities, like fummer's fwarms, on wing I

All basking in the full meridian blaze!

I see the Judge inthron'd! the slaming guard!

The volume open'd! open'd ev'ry heart!

A fun-bear

196 THE CONSOLATION. Night 9.

A fun-beam pointing out each fecret thought ! No patron! interceffor none! now paft The fweet, the clement, mediatorial hour !

For guilt no plea! to pain, no paufe! no bound! Inexorable all! and all extreme!

Nor man alone : the foe of Gop and man. From his dark den, blaspheming, drags his chain, And rears his brazen front, with thunder fcarr'd; Receives his fentence, and begins his hell. All vengeance past, now, seems abundant grace : Like meteors in a flormy sky, how roll

His baleful eyes! he curses whom he dreads : And deems it the first moment of his fall.

'Tis prefent to my thought !- And yet where is it ? Angels can't tell me; angels cannot quess

The period; from created beings lock'd In darkness. But the process, and the place, Are less bicure ; for these may man inquire. Say, thou great close of human hopes and fears ! Great key of hearts ! great finisher of fates ! Great end! and great beginning! fay, where art thou ! Art thou in Time, or in Eternity? Nor in Eternity, por Time, I find thee, These, as two monarchs, on their borders meet,

(Monarchs of all elaps'd, or unarriv'd 1), As in debate, how best their pow'rs ally'd May swell the grandeur, or discharge the wrath,

Of HIM, whom both their monarchies obey. Time, this vast fabrick for him built, (and doom'd With him to fall) now burfting o'er his head; His lamp, the fun, extinguish'd; from beneath The frown of hideous darkness, calls his sons From their long flumber; from earth's heaving womb,

To fecond birth; contemporary throng ! Rous'd at one call, upftarting from one bed, Pres'd in one croud, appall'd with one amaze, He turns them o'er, Eternity! to thee.

Then (as a king depos'd difdains to live) He falls on his own fcythe; nor falls alone; His greatest foe falls with him; Time, and he Who murder'd all Time's offspring, Death, expire.

THE CONSOLATION.

TIME was! ETERNITY now reigns alone! Awful Eternity! offended queen!
And her refentment to mankind, how just!
With kind intent, foliciting access,
How often has the knockd at human hearts!
Rich to repay their hospitality,
How often call'd! and with the voice of Goo!
Yet hor repulse, excluded as a cleat!
A dream! while fouled foos found welcome there!

A dream! while foulest foes found welcome there !

A dream, a cheat, now, all things, but ber smile.

For, lo! her twice ten thousand gates thrown wide,

Erskurry, the various fentence pals'd,
Afligns the fever'd throng dillinch abodes,
Sulphureous, or ambrofial. What enfues?
The deed predominant! the deed of deeds!
Which makes a hell of hell, a heavin of heav'n.
The goddel's, with determin'd alpect, turns
Her adamantine key's enormous fize
Through Delitmy's inextricable wards,
Deep driving ev'ry bolt, on both their fates;
Then, from the cryffal battlements of heav'n,
Down, down, fich huls it through the dark profound,
Ten thousand thousand fathom; there to rust,

Fo divinely close'd! To fee the mighty Dramatiff's last act (Aa met.) in glory-rising o'er the rest. No fancy'd con, a GOD indeed descends, To folve all knots; to strike the moral home; To throw full day on darkest seens of Time; To cleary commend, exalt, and crown the whole. Hence, in one peal of loud, eternal praise, The charmld spectators thunder their applause; The charmld spectators thunder their applause; And the vast works are the seen seen and the seen seen and the seen and the

WHAT THEN AM 1? --- Amidst applauding worlds,

And worlds celeftial, is there found on earth. A peevish, dissonant, rebellious string, Which jars in the grand chorus, and complains? Genfure on thee. LORENZO! I fufpend. And turn it on myfelf; how greatly due! All, all is right, by Gop ordain'd or done : And who, but Gop, refum'd the friends be gave? And have I been complaining, then, fo long Complaining of his favours; Pain and Death? Who, without Pain's advice, would e'er be good? Who, without Death, but would be good in vain? Pain is to fave from pain ; all-punishment, To make for peace; and death to fave from death ; And fecond death, to guard immortal life; To rouse the careless, the presumptuous awe. And turn the tide of fouls another way : By the same tenderness divine ordain'd,

By the lame tendernels divine ordain'd, That planted Eden, and high-bloom'd for man, A fairer Eden, endles, in the Ries. Fleav'n gives us friends to bless the prefent scene 3

Refumes them, to prepare us for the next. All evils natural are moral goods; All dicipline, indulgence, on the whole. None are unhappy; all have cause to smile, But such as to themselves that cause deny. Our faults are at the bottom of our pains; Error, in act, or judgment, is the fource Of endless fighs: we fin, or we mistake, And Nature tax, when falle Opinion flings. Let impious Grief be banish'd, Joy indulg'd ; But chiefly then, when Grief puts in her claim. Toy from the joyous, frequently betrays, Oft lives in vanity, and dies in wo. Joy, amidst ills, corroberates, exalts; Tis joy, and conquest; joy, and virtue too. A noble fortitude in ills delights Heav'n, earth, ourselves; 'tis duty, glory, peace. Affliction is the good man's thining fcene : Profesity conceals his brightest ray : As night to stare, we luftre gives to man.

Heroes in battle, pilots in the ftorm. And virtue in calamities, admire,

The crown of manhood is a winter-joy; An evergreen, that flands the northern blaft.

And bloffoms in the rigour of our fate. 'Tis a prime part of happiness, to know

How much unhappiness must prove our lot :: A part which few possess! I'll pay life's tax, Without one rebel murmur, from this hour, Nor think it mifery to be a man; Who thinks it is, shall never be a god ..

Some ills we wish for, when we wish to live:

What spoke proud Passion? " Wish my being loft !" Prefumptuous! blasphemous! absurd! and false! The triumph of my foul is, -that I am: And therefore that I may be-What? LORENZO ! Look inward, and look deep; and deeper ftill; Unfathomably deep our treasure runs In golden veins, through all eternity !

Ages, and ages, and fucceeding ftill New ages, where this phantom of an hour, Which courts, each night, dull flumber for repairs Shall wake, and wonder, and exult, and praise, And fly through infinite, and all unlock : And (if deferv'd) by Heav'n's redundant love,

Made half adorable itself, adore; And find, in adoration, endless joy !

Where thou, not maîter of a moment here, Frail as the flow'r, and fleeting as the gale, Mayit boalt a whole sternity, enrich'd With all a kind Omnipotence can poue. Since Adam fell, no mortal, uninfpir'd, Has ever yet conceiv'd, or ever shall, How kind is GOD, how great (if good) is Mann. No man too largely from Hear'n's love can hope,

If what is bop'd he labours to fecure. Ills ?- There are none: All-Gracious ! none from thee to From man full many ! Num'rous is the race Of blackeft ills, and those immortal too. Begot by Madness on fair Liberty; Heav'n's daughter, hell-debauch'd! Her hand alone Unlocks destruction to the fons of men. Fast barr'd by thine ; high-wall'd with adamant. Pleas'd to reward, as duty to his will,

A condest needful to their own repole.

Great Gon of wonders! (if, thy love furrey'd, Aught elfe the name of wonderful retains),
What rocks are thefe, on which to build our truft?
Thy ways admit no blemith; none I find;
Or this alone—" That none is to be found."
Not one, to foften Confart's hardy crime;
Not one, to publish peeving from the duft,
Who, like a Lemma, hourn'ring from the duft,
Dare; into judgment call her judge.— SURREME!
For all I bless thee; most, for the fowere;

Averte the dreaded pain; its hideous groans Join heavin's fweet hallelujah's in thy praife, Great fource of good alone! how kind in all! In vengeance, kind! Pain, Death, Gehenna, SAVE. Thus, in thy world material, Mighty Mind!

I lius, in thy world maternal, Nigody Nil. Not that alone which foliaces, and filtries, The rough and gloomy, challenges our praife. The winter is as neceful as the foring; The thunder, as the fun; a stagnate mais Of vapours breeds a petiliential air; Nor more propitious the *Pavonian* breeze.

Of vapours breeds a petitiential as;
Nor more propitious the Pavoniam breeze
To Nature's health, than purifying florms;
The dread Volcano ministers to good.
Its smother'd sames might undermine the world.

Loud Etnas fulminate in love to man; Comets good omens are, when duly scann'd;

Comets good omens are, when duly scann'd;

Stand this the foremost, "" That my heart has bled."
'Tis Heav'n's last effort of good-will to man;
When Pain can't bless, Heav'n quits us in despair.
Who fails to grieve, when just occasion calls,

Or grieves too much, deferves not to be blefs'd; Inhuman, or effeminate, his heart; Reason absolves the grief which Reason ends.

May Heav'n ne'er trutt my friend with happinels, Till it has taught him how to bear it well, By previous pain; and made it fafe to finite! Such finiles are mine, and fuch may they remain; Nor hazard their extinction, from excefs.

My change of heart a change of fight demands;

The Consolation cancels the Complaint,
And makes a convert of my guilty fong.
As when o'er-labour'd, and inclin'd to breathe,

A panting traveller, some rising ground, Some small ascent, has gain'd, he turns him round, And measures with his eye the various vale, The fields, woods, meads, and rivers he has pass'd; And, sainte of his iourney, thinks of home.

Endear'd

202 THE CONSOLATION. Night 9.

Endear'd by distance : nor affects more toil : Thus I, though fmall, indeed, is that afcent The muse has gain'd, review the paths she trod : Various, extensive, beaten but by few ; And, confcious of her prudence in repose, Pause; and with pleasure meditate an end, Though still remote; fo fruitful is my theme. Through many a field of moral, and divine, The muse has ftray'd; and much of forrow seen, In human ways; and much of false and vain; Which none, who travel this bad road, can mifs, O'er friends deceas'd full heartily she wept ; Of love divine the wonders fhe difplay'd: Prov'd man immortal; show'd the fource of joy; The grand tribunal rais'd; affign'd the bounds Of human grief: in few, to close the whole, The moral muse has shadow'd out a sketch. Though not in form, nor with a RAPHAEL Stroke. Of most our weakness needs believe, or do. In this our land of travel, and of hope, For peace on earth, or prospect of the skies.

What then remains?—Much! much! a mighty debt
To be dicharg'd. These thoughts, O Nrowr! are thine;
From thee they came, like lovers sceret fights,
While others slept. So, CYNTHIA, (poets seign)
In shadows veilld, fost-sliding from her sphere,
Her shepherd cheer'd; of there amour'd lefs,
Than I of thee.—And art thou still unsung,
Beneath whose brow, and by whose aid, I sing?
Immoral silence!——Where shall I begin?
Where end? or how seal much s'rom the spheres,

To footh their goddels ?

Nature's great anceftor! Day's clier born!
And fated to furvive the transient fun!

Creation of archangels is the theme!
What, to be fung, so needful? What so well
Celestial joys prepares us to sustain?

Celedial joys prepares us to fuffain?

Inanimate, all-animating birth! Work worthy Him who made it! worthy praise !-All praise! praise more than human! nor deny'd Thy praise divine !- But though man, drown'd in sleep, Withholds his homage, not alone I wake; Bright legions swarm unseen, and fing, unlicard By mortal ear, the glorious Architect, In this his univerfal temple, hung

With luftres, with innumerable lights, That shed religion on the foul; at once, The temple, and the preather ! O how loud It calls devotion! genuise growth of Night! Devotion! daughter of Aftronomy !

An undevout astronomer is mad. True ; all things speak a GOD; but, in the small,

Men trace out Him; in great, He feizes man; Seizes, and elevates, and raps, and fills With new inquiries, 'mid affociates new. Tell me, ye ftars ! ye planets! tell me, all

Ye flare d and planeted inhabitants I what is it? What are these sons of wonder? Say, proud arch! (Within whose azure palaces they dwell)

Bult with divine ambition! in diffain
Of limit built! built in the tafte of heav'n!
Vaft concave! ample dome! waft thou defign'd
A meet apartment for the DEITY?—
Not fo: that thought alone thy flate impairs,
Thy lofty finks, and shallows thy profound,
And firaitens thy diffusive; dwarfs the whole,
And makes an univerfe an orvery.

But when I drop mine eye, and look on man, Thy right regain'd, thy grandeur is reftor'd, O Nature! wide flies off th' expanding round. As when whole magazines, at once, are fir'd, The fmitten air is hollow'd by the blow ; The vait displosion dishipates the clouds ; Shock'd æther's billows dash the distant skies ; Thus (but far more) the expanding round flies off, And leaves a mighty void, a spacious womb, Might teem with new creation; reinflam'd Thy luminaries triumph, and affume Divinity themselves. Nor was it strange, Matter high-wrought to fuch furprifing pomp, Such godlike glory, stole the style of gods, From ages dark, obtufe, and fteep'd in fenfe: For, fure, to fense, they truly are divine, And half-abfoly'd idolatry from guilt ; Nay, turn'd it into virtue. Such it was In those who put forth all they had of man Unloft, to lift their thought, nor mounted higher : But, weak of wing, on planets perch'd; and thought What was their highest, must be their ador'd.

And are there, then, LORENZO! those to whom Unseen, and unexistent, are the same? And if incomprehensible is join'd, Who dare pronounce it madness, to believe? Why has the mighty Bullder thrown aside All measure in his work; stretch'd out his line so far, and spread amazement o'er the whole? Then (as he took delight in wide extremes) Deep in the bosom of his universe, Dropt down that resjoning mite, that infect, man, To-crawl, and gaze, and wonder at the scene?—

But they how weak, who could no higher mount?

THE CONSOLATION. Night o.

That man might ne'er prefume to plead amazement For disbelief of wonders in bimself. Shall Gon be less miraculous, than what His hand has form'd? fhall mysteries descend From unmysterious? things more elevate. Be more familiar? uncreated ly More obvious than created, to the grafp Of human thought ? The more of wonderful Is heard in Him, the more we should assent. Could we conceive Him. GOD he could not be : Or He not GOD, or we could not be men : A GOD alone can comprehend a GOD. Man's distance how immense ! On such a theme, Know this, LORENZO ! (feem it ne'er fo ftrange) Nothing can fatisfy, but what confounds ; Nothing, but what aftonifbes, is true. The scene thou feest attests the truth I sing. And ev'ry flar sheds light upon thy creed. These stars, this furniture, this cost of "leav'n. If but reported, thou hadft ne'er believ'd ; But thine eye tells thee, the romance is true. The grand of Nature is th' Almighty's oath, In Reason's court, to filence Unbelief.

The moral emanations of the fkies, While nought, perhaps, Lorenzo less admires ! Has the great Sov'reign fent ten thousand worlds To tell us. He refides above them all. In Glory's unapproachable recess? And dare Earth's bold inhabitants deny The fumptuous, the magnifick embally A moment's audience? Turn we, nor will hear From whom they come, or what they would impart For man's emolument ; fole canfe that stoops Their grandeur to man's eye ? LORENZO ! rouse ;

How my mind, op'ning at this scene, imbibes,

Let thought, awaken'd, take the lightning's wing, And glance from east to west, from pole to pole, Who fees, but is confounded, or convinc'd? Renounces Reason, or a GOD adores? Mankind was fent into the world to fee : Sight gives the science needful to their peace;

That obvious science asks finall Learning's aid. Wouldft thou on metapliyfick pinions foar? Or wound thy patience amid logick thorns? Or travel History's enormous round? Nature no fuch hard talk enjoins : the gave A make to man directive of his thought; A make fet upright, pointing to the stars, As who should say, " Read thy chief lesson there." Too late to read this manufcript of Heav'n. When, like a parchment-fcroll, fbrunk up by flames. It folds LORENZO's leffon from his fight.

Leffon how various! Not the Gop alone.

I fee his ministers; I fee, diffus'd In radiant orders, effences fublime, Of various offices, of various plume, In heav'nly liveries, diffinctly, clad, Azure, green, purple, pearl, or downy gold, Or all commix'd; they stand, with wings outspread, Lift'ning to catch the Mafter's leaft command, And fly through Nature, ere the moment ends : Numbers innumerable !- Well conceiv'd

By Pagan, and by Christian! o'er each sphere Presides an angel, to direct its course, And feed, or fan, its flames; or to discharge Other high trust unknown. For who can fee Such pomp of matter, and imagine, mind

For which alone inanimate was made, More fparingly ditpens'd? that nobler Son, Far liker the great SIRE !--- 'Tis thus the fkies

Inform us of inperiors numberlefs, As much, in excellence, above mankind,

As above earth, in magnitude, the Spheres. Thefe, as a cloud of witnesses, hang o'er us t In a throng'd theatre are all our deeds ; Perhaps, a thousand demigods descend On ev'ry beam we fee, to walk with men.

Awful reflection! strong restraint from ill! Yet, bere, our virtue finds ftill ftronger aid From these ethereal glories Sense surveys. Something, like magick, strikes from this blue vault : With just attention is it view'd? we feel

A fudden fuccour, unimplor'd, unthought :

Natura

213

Nature herfelf does half the work of man. Seas, rivers, mountains, forests, deferts, rocks, The promontory's height, the depth profound Of fubterranean, excavated grots, Black-brow'd, and vaulted-high, and yawning wide From Nature's ftructure, or the fcoop of Time : If ample of dimension, vast of fize, Ev'n thele an aggrandizing impulse give : Of folemn thought enthufiaftick heights Ev'n thefe infuse .- But what of vast in thefe? Nothing ;-or we must own the skies forgot. Much less in Art. - Vain Art! thou pigmy-pow'r! How doft thou fwell, and first, with human pride. To show thy littleness! what childish toys, Thy wat'ry columns fquirted to the clouds ! Thy bason'd rivers, and imprison'd seas! Thy mountains moulded into forms of men! Thy hundred-gated capitals ! or those

Where three days travel left us much to ride :: Gazing on miracles by mortals wrought, Arches triumphal, theatres immenfe, Or nodding gardens pendent in mid-air!

Or temples proud to meet their gods half-way! Yet thefe affect us in no common kind. What then the force of fuch fuperior fcenes? Enter a temple, it will strike an awe : What awe from this the DEITY has built !

A good man feen, though filent, counfel gives : The touch'd spectator wishes to be wife: In a bright mirror his own hands have made, Here we see fomething like the face of GOD. Seems it not then enough, to fay, LORENZO! To man abandon'd, " Haft thou feen the fkies ?"

And yet, fo thwarted Nature's kind defign By daring man, he makes her facred awe (That guard from ill) his shelter, his temptation To more than common guilt, and quite inverts Celeftial Art's intent. The trembling ftars See crimes gigantick, stalking through the gloom With front erect, that hide their head by day, And making night still darker by their deeds. Slumb'ring in covert, till the shades descend.

Rabine and Murder, link'd, now prowl for prey. The mifer earths his treasures: and the thief, Watching the mole, half-beggars him ere morn. Now blots, and foul conspiracies, awake : And, muffling up their horrors from the moon, Havock and devastation they prepare, And kingdoms tott'ring in the field of blood. Now fons of Riot in mid-revel rage. What shall I do ?- suppress it? or proclaim ?-Why fleeps the thunder? Now, LORENZO! now, His best friend's couch the rank adulterer Afcends fecure a and lausels at gods and men. Prepolt'rous madmen, void of fear or shame, Lay their crimes bare to these chaste eyes of Heav'n : Yet shrink, and shudder, at a mortal's fight. Were moon, and stars, for villains only made? To guide, yet foreen them, with tenebrious light? No; they were made to fashion the sublime

No; they were made to rathion the tublime Of human hearts, and wifer make the wife.

Those ends were answer'd once; when mortals liv'd. Of stronger wing, of aquiline ascent,

Of stronger wing, of aquiline ascent In theory sublime. O how unlike

Those vermin of the night, this moment fung, Who crawl on earth, and on her venom feed! Those ancient fages, human flars! they met; Their brothers of the fixes, at mid-night hour; Their countel ask'd; and, what they ask'd, oby'd.

The STAGYRITE, and PLATO, he who drank The poifon'd bowl, and he of Tufculum, With him of Corduba, (immortal names!);

With him of Corduba, (immortal names!); In these unbounded, and Elysian, walks, An area sit for Gods, and godlike men, They took their nightly round, through radiant paths

By ferath trad; influcted, chiefly, thus, To tread in their bright footleps here below; To walk in worth fill brighter than the skies. There, they contracted their contempt of earth;

Of hopes eternal kindled, there, the fire; There, as in near approach, they glow'd, and grew (Great vifitants!) more intimate with GOD,

More worth to men, more joyous to themselves.

Through

Through various virtues, they, with ardour, ran The zodiack of their learn'd, illostrious lives,

In Christian hearts, O for a Pugan zeal ! A needful, but opprobrious pray'r! As much Our ardour less, as greater is our hight. How monftrous this in margh! Scarce more frange

Would this the comenon in usture frike.

A fun that froze us, or a ftar that warm'd.

What taught these heroes of the moral world? To these thou gir'ft thy praise, give predit too. Thefe doctors ne'er were penfion'd to deceive thee; And Pagan tutors are thy tafte. - They taught. That narrow views betray to mifery : That wife it is to comprehend the whole : That Virtue rofe from Nature, ponder'd well, The fingle base of Virtue built to heav'n : That GOD, and Nature, our attention claim : That Nature is the glass reflecting GOD, As, by the fea, reflected is the fun, Too glorious to be gaz'd on in his fohere : That mind immortal loves immortal aims : That boundless mind affects a boundless space : That vaft furveys, and the fublime of things, The foul affimilate, and make her great : That, therefore, Heav'n her glories, as a fund Of inspiration, thus spreads out to man.

Such are their doctrines ; fuch the Night inspir'd. And what more true? what truth of greater weight? The foul of man was made to walk the fkies ; Delightful autlet of her prison bere!

There, difincumber'd from her chains, the ties Of toys terreftrial, the can rove at large; There, freely can respire, dilate, extend, In full proportion let loofe all her pow'rs ; And, undeluded, grasp at something great. Nor, as a stranger, does she wander there; But, wonderful herfelf, through wonder strays; Contemplating their grandeur, finds her own ; Dives deep in their oconomy divine, Sits high in judgment on their various laws,

And, like a mafter, judges not amifs. Hence, greatly pleas'd, and juffly proud, the foul Grows

Grows confcious of her birth celefial; breathea More life, more vigour, in her native air; And feels herfelf at bome among the flars; And, feeling, emulates her country's praife.

What call we, then, the firmament, LORENZO ?—A As anth the body, fince the filter fuffain. The foul with food, that gives immortal life, Call it, The noble patture of the mind; Which there exparistes, firengthess, and exults, And riots through the luxuries of shought. Call it, The garden of the DEITY, Bloffom'd with flars, redundant in the growth Of fruit ambrofal; mered fruit to mun. Call it, The breath-plate of the true High Prieth,

Ardent with gems oracular, that give,
In points of higheft moment, right response;
And ill neglected, if we prize our peace.

Thus have we found a true alreology;
Thus have we found a new, a noble facile,
In which alone flars govern human fates.
O that the flars (as fome have feign'd) let fall
Bloodified, and havock, on embattled realms,
And refeu'd monarch from so black a guilt!
Bourson't this wish how gen'rous in a fee!
Wouldt thou be great, wouldt thou become a god,
And flick thy deathlefs name among the flars,
For mighty conquests on a needle's point?
Instead of forging chains for faceigners,
Ballit thy tator. Grandeur all thy aim?

Baffile thy tator. Grandeur all thy aim?
As yet thou knowlt not what it is. How great,
How glorious, then, appears the wird of man,
When in it all the flars, and planets, roll!
And what if feems, it is: great objects make
Great minds, enlarging as their views colorge;
Theft fill more godlike, as their more daviae.

And more divine than the fig. thou can't not fee. Dazzled, o'erpower'd, with the delicious draught Of milcellancous fplendours, how I red From thought to thought, inclusite, without end! An Edon, this 1 a rananous unigh! I meet the DEITY in ovry view, And tremble at my nakedness before him!

THE CONSOLATION. Night 9.

O that I could but reach the *iree of life!*For here it grows, unguarded from our tafle;
No flaming fword denies our entrance here:
Would man but gather, he might live for ever.

216

LORENZO! much of moral haft thou feen. Of curious arts art thou more fond? Then mark The mathematick glories of the ficies, In number, weight, and measure, all ordain'd. LORENZO's boafted builders, Chance, and Fate, Are left to finish his aereal towers: Wildom, and Choice, their well-known characters Here deep impress; and claim it for their own. Though splendid all, no splendour void of use ; Ule rivals Beauty : Art contends with Powers No wanton waste, amid effuse expense The great OECONOMIST adjusting all To prudent pomp, magnificently wife. How rich the prospect! and for ever new! And newest to the man that views it most : For newer still in infinite fucceeds. Then, these aëreal racers, O how swift! How the shaft loiters from the strongest string ! Spirit alone can distance the career. Orb above orb afcending without end! Circle in circle, without end, inclos'd! Wheel within wheel; EZEKIEL! like to thine! Like thine, it feems a vision, or a dream : Though feen, we labour to believe it true! What involution! what extent! what fwarms

'I'is Comprehension's absolute defeat.

Nor think thou seeft a wild disorder here;

Through this illustrious chaos to the fight,

Arrangement neat, and chastest order, reign.

The path preferibld, inviolably kept,

Upbraids the lawless fallies of mankind.

Worlds, ever thwarting, never interfere;

What knots are ty'd! how soon are they dissolved.

Of worlds, that laugh at earth! immensely great! Immensely distant from each other's spheres! What, then, the wondrous space through which they roll? At once it quite ingulfs all human thought:

And fet the feeming marry'd planets free!

More

They rove for ever, without error rove : Confusion unconfus'd! Nor less admire This tumult untumultuous : all on wine ! In motion, all! yet what profound repose! What fervid action, vet no noise ! as aw'd To filence, by the prefence of their LORD : Or hush'd, by His command, in love to man, And bid let fall fort beams on human reft, Restless themselves. On you corulean plain, In exultation to their GOD, and thine, They dance, they fing eternal jubilee, Eternal celebration of His praise. But, fince their fong arrives not at our ear. Their dance perplex'd exhibits to the fight Fair hieroglyphick of His peerless power. Mark, how the Labyrinthian turns they take, The circles intricate, and myflick maze, Weave the grand cipher of Omnipotence; To gods, how great! how legible to man!

Leaves to much wonder greater wonder ftill?
Where are the pillars that Jupport the ficies?
What more than Atlantaen fhoulder props
Th' incumbent load? What magick, what firange arty.
In fluid air thefe pond'rous orbs fuffairs?
Who would not think them hung in golden chains?
And to they are; in the high will of Heavin,
Which fixes all; makes adamant of air,
Or air of adamant; makes all of nought,
Or nought of all; if fixed the dread decree.

Imagine from their deep foundations torn
The moft gignatick fons of earth, the broad
And tow'ring Alps, all tofs'd into the fea;
And, light as down, or volatile as air,
Their bulks enormous dancing on the waves,
In time, and measure, exquinte; while all
The winds, in emulation of the fipheres,
Tune their fonorous infiruments aloft;
The concert fwell, and animate the ball.
Would this appear amazing? What, then, worlds,
In a far thinner element fultain'd,
And acting the fame part, with greater fkill,

More rapid movement, and for noblest ends? More obvious ends to país, are not these stars The feats majeftick, proud imperial thrones, On which appelick delegates of Heav'n, At certain periods, as the Sov'REIGN nods, Discharge high trusts of vengeance, or of love.

To clothe, in outward grandeur, grand defign.

And acts most solemn still more solemnize? Ye citizens of air! what ardent thanks.

What full effusion of the grateful heart. Is due from man indulg'd in fuch a fight ! A fight fo noble! and a fight fo kind! It drops new truths at ev'ry new furvey ! Feels not LORENZO fomething ftir within. That fweeps away all period? As these spheres Measure duration, they no less inspire The godlike hope of ages without end. The boundless space, through which these rovers take Their reftless roam, suggests the fifter-thought Of boundless time. Thus, by kind Nature's Skills

To man unfabour'd, that important guelt. ETERNITY, finds entrance at the fight :

And an eternity, for man ordain'd, Or these his destin'd midnight-counsellors, The flare, had never whisper'd it to man, NATURE informs, but ne'er infults, her fons a Could the then kindle the most ardent with

To disappoint it ?- That is blasphemy, Thus, of thy creed a second article, Momentous as th' existence of a GOD,

Is found (as I conceive) where rarely fought : And thou may'ft read thy foul immortal, here, Here, then, LORENZO! on these glories dwell a

Nor want the gilt, illuminated, roof, That calls the wretched gay to dark delights. Assemblées ?- This is one divinely bright; Here, unendanger'd in health, wealth, or fame, Range through the fairest, and the SULTAN fcorm He, wife as thou, no erescent holds fo fair, As that which on his turbant awes a world : And thinks the Moon is proud to copy him. Look on her, and gain more than worlds can give,

A mind

A mind superior to the charms of power. Thou, muffled in delutions of this life ! Can vonder Moon turn Ocean in his bed, From fide to fide, in conftant ebb, and flow, And purify from flench his wat'ry realms? And fails her moral influence? Wants the power To turn LORENZO's stubborn tide of thought From stagnating on Earth's infected shore, And purge from nuisance his corrupted heart? Fails her attraction when it draws to Heav'n? Nay, and to what thou valu'ft more, Earth's joy ? Minds elevate, and panting for unfeen, And defecate from fense, alone obtain Full relish of existence undeflower'd, The life of life, the zeft of worldly blifs. All else on earth amounts-to what? To this ? " BAD to be fuffer'd : BLESSINGS to be left :" Earth's richest inventory boasts no more.

Of higher scenes be, then, the call obey'd. O let me gaze !- Of gazing there's no end. O let me think !- Thought too is wilder'd here ... In mid-way flight Imagination tires; Yet foon reprunes her wing to foar anew, Her point unable to forbear, or gain : So great the pleasure, fo profound the plan! A banquet this where men and angels meet, Eat the same manna, mingle earth and heav'n. How diffant fome of these nocturnal funs ! So distant (fays the fage *) 'twere not absurd To doubt, if beams, fet out at Nature's birth, Are yet arriv'd at this fo Breign world; Though nothing half to rapid as their flight. An eye of awe and wonder let me roll, And roll for ever. Who can fatiate fight In fuch a scene? in such an ocean wide Of deep aftonishment? where depth, height, breadth, Are loft in their extremes ; and where to count The thick-fown glories in this field of fire, Perhaps a feraph's computation fails. Now, go, Ambition! boast thy boundless might In conquest, o'er the tenth part of a grain.

And yet LORENZO calls for miracles, To give his tott'ring faith a folid base. Why call for less than is already thine? Thou art no novice in theology; What is a miracle? -"Tis a reproach. 'Tis an implicit fatire, on mankind ; And while it fatisfies, it censures too. To common fense, great Nature's course proclaims

A DEFTY: when mankind falls afleen,

A miracle is fent as an alarm

To wake the world, and prove Him o'er again, By recent argument, but not more frong. Say, which imports more plenitude of power, Or Nature's laws to fix, or to repeal?

To make a fun, or flop his mid career? To countermand his orders, and fend back

The flaming courier to the frighted East, Warm'd, and aftonish'd, at his ev'ning-ray? Or bid the Moon, as with her journey tir'd,

In Ajalon's foft, flow'ry vale repose? Great things are these; still greater, to create.

From Adam's bow'r look down thro' the whole train Of miracles :- refittless is their power?

They do not, can not, more amaze the mind, Than this, call'd unmiraculous furvey, If duly weigh'd, if rationally feen,

If feen with buman eyes. The brute, indeed, Sees nought but spangles here; the fool, no more. Sayft thou, " The course of Nature governs all ?" The course of Nature is the art of GOD. The miracles thou call'ft for, this atteft;

For fav. could Nature Nature's course control?

But, miracles apart, who fees HIM not, Nature's CONTROLLER, AUTHOR, GUIDE, and END? Who turns his eye on Nature's midnight-face, But must enquire,-" What band behind the scene,

" What arm almighty put these wheeling globes " In motion, and wound up the vast machine?

Who rounded in his palm these spacious orbs? " Who bowl'd them flaming through the dark profound,

" Num'rous as glitt'ring gems of morning-dew, " Or sparks from populous cities in a blaze, ce And

" And fet the bosom of Old Night on fire? " Peopled her desert, and made horror smile !"

Or, if the military ftyle delights thee,

(For flars have fought their battles, leagu'd with man), Who marshals this bright host? intols their names ? " Appoints their posts, their marches, and returns,

" Punctual, at stated periods? Who disbands

" These vet'ran troops, their final duty done, " If e'er disbanded "-HE, whose potent word. Like the loud trumpet, levy'd first their pow'rs In Night's inglorious empire, where they flept

In beds of darkness; arm'd them with fierce flames, Arrang'd, and disciplin'd, and cloth'd in gold; And call'd them out of Chaos to the field. Where now they war with Vice and Unbelief.

O let us join this army ! Toining thefe, Will give us hearts intrepid, at that hour, When brighter flames shall cut a darker night :

When these strong demonstrations of a GOD Shall hide their heads, or tumble from their fplieres, And one eternal curtain cover all !

Struck at that thought, as new-awak'd, I lift

A more enlighten'd eye, and read the stars To man still more propitious; and their aid (Though guiltless of idolatry) implore; Nor longer rob them of their noblest name. O ye dividers of my time! ye bright Accountants of my days, and months; and years, In your fair calendar distinctly mark'd! Since that authentick, radiant register, Though man inspects it not, stands good against him : Since you, and years, roll on, though man flands fling Teach me my days to number, and apply My trembling heart to wildom ; now beyond

All shadow of excuse for fooling on. Age smooths our path to Prudence; sweeps aside The fnares keen Appetite and Passion spread

To eatch stray fouls; and wo to that grey head, Whose Folly would undo, what Age has done ! Aid, then, aid, all ye stars !- Much rather, THOU. Great ARTIST! Thou, whose finger set aright

This exquisite machine, with all its wheels,

222 THE CONSOLATION. Night 9

Though intervalv'd, exact; and pointing out Life's rapid and irrevocable flight, With fuch an index fair, as none can mils, Who lifts an eye, nor fleeps till it is clos'd. Open mine eve, dread DEITY ! to read The tacit doctrine of thy works : to fee Things as they are, unalter'd through the glass Of worldly wishes. Time, Eternity! ('Tis thefe, mifmeafur'd, ruin all mankind) ; Set them before me; let me lay them both In equal scale, and learn their various weight. Let Time appear a moment as it is : And let Eternity's full orb. at ouce. Turn on my foul, and firike it into heav'n, When shall I fee far more than charms me now? Gaze on creation's model in thy breaft Unveil'd, nor wonder at the transcript more? When this vile, foreign duft, which smothers all That travel Earth's deep vale, shall I shake off? When shall my foul her incarnation quit, And, readopted to thy bles'd embrace, Obtain ber apotheosis in THEE? Doft think, LORENZO! this is wand'ring wide ? No, 'tis directly firiking at the mark; To wake thy dead devotion * was my point; And how I blefs Night's confecrating shades,

No, its directly straining at the mark;

To wake thy dead devotion * was my point;

And how I blefs Niph's confecrating shades,

Which to a temple turn an univerfe;

Fill us with great ideas, full of heav's,

And anticlote the peliticutal earth!

In ev'ry storm, that either frowns, or falls,

What an afylum has the foul in pray'r!

And what a fane is this, in which to pray!

And what a fane is this, in which to pray!

And what a GOD must dwell in such a fane!

Owhat a genius must inform the skies!

And is LORENZO's falamander-heart

Cold, and untouch'd, amid these facerd fires?

O ye nocturnal sparks! ye glowing embers,

On heav n's broad hearth! who burn, or burn no more;

Who blaze, or die, as great JE HOVA H's breath

Or blows you, or forbears; affit my fong;

Four your whole influence; excretic his heart,

So long possession and bring him back to stans.

And is Loasawo a demurer still ?

Pride in thy parts provokes thee to contest

Truths, which, contested, put thy parts to shame.

Nor shame they more Loasawo's bead, than beants.

A faithless heart, how despicably small!

Too strait aught great or gen rous to receive!

Fill'd with a atom! fill'd and fould with fell'!

And self mistaken! self that lasts an hour!

And felf millaken! felf that lafts an hour! Inflinds and paffore of the nobler kind, Ly luffocated there; or they alone, Reafon apart, would wake high hope; and open, To ravifit'd thought, that intelled and Jiphere, Where Order, Wifdom, Geodnefi, Providence, Their endless miracles of love display, And promite all the truly great defire.

Their endlels miracles of love display,
And promise all the truly great defire.
The mind that would be happy, must be great s.
Great, in its subjects great, in its favores.
Extended views a narrow mind extend;
Push out its corrugate, expansive make,
Which, erelong, more than planets shall embrace.

Which, erelong, more than planets shall embrace.

A man of compass makes a man of worth;

Divine contemplate, and become divine.

As man was made for glory, and for biss.

All littleness is in approach to wo : Open thy bosom, fet thy wishes wide, And let in manhood : let in happinels : Admit the boundless theatre of thought From nothing, up to GOD; which makes a man. Take GOD from Nature, nothing great is left : Man's mind is in a pit, and nothing tees; Man's heart is in a jakes, and loves the mire. Emerge from thy profound; erect thing eye; See thy diffres! how close art thou befieg'd! Befieg'd by Nature, the proud Sceptick's foe! Inclos'd by these innumerable worlds. Sparkling conviction on the darkeft mind, As in a golden net of PROVIDENCE, Flow art thou caught, fure captive of belief! From this thy blels'd captivity, what art, What blasphemy to reason, sets thee free!

This foene is Heavin's indulgent violence:
Canft thou bear up against this ride of glory?
What is earth bofomd in these ambient orbs,
But, firth in G O D impos'd; and prefs'd on man?
Dar't thou fill litigate thy desprate cause,
Spite of these mun'rous, awful unitesser,
And doubt the deposition of the skies?
That bright connection between hearts, and Heavin!
O laborious is thy way to ruin!

Laborious? 'Tis imbrafficable quite : To fink beyond a doubt, in this debate, With all his weight of wildom, and of will, And crime flagitious, I defy a fool. Some with they did ; but no man difbelieves GOD is a Spirit; Spirit cannot strike These gross, material organs; GOD by man-As much is feen, as man a GOD can fee. In these aftonishing exploits of power. What order, beauty, motion, diftance, fize! Concertion of defign, how exquifite ! How complicate, in their divine police! Apt means ! great ends ! confent to gen'ral good !-Each atribute of thefe material gods, So long (and that with specious pleas) ador'd; A fep'rate conquest gains o'er rebel-thought; And leads in triumph the whole mind of man. LORENZO! this may feem harangue to thee;

Such all is apt to feem, that thwarts our will. And doft thou, then, demand a fimple proof Of this great master-moral of the skies, Unskill'd, or difinclin'd, to read it there? Since 'tis the basis, and all drops without it. Take it in one compact, unbroken chain. Such proof infifts on an attentive ear; "Twill not make one amid a mob of thoughts, And, for thy notice, ftruggle with the world. Retire ; - the world thut out ; - thy thoughts call Imagination's airy wing reprefs;-Thome ;-Lock up thy fenfes ; -- let no passion ftir ; ---Wake all to Reafon ; let her reign alone ;---Then, in thy foul's deep filense, and the depth Of Nature's filence, midnight, thus inquire,

As I have done; and shall inquire no more. In Nature's channel thus the question run.

"What am I? and from whence ? --- I nothing know,

" But that I am; and, fince I am, conclude

"Something eternal. Had there e'er been nought, "Nought still had been. Eternal there must be.-

" But what eternal ?- Why not buman race;

" And ADAM's ancestors without an end?

"That's hard to be conceiv'd; fince ev'ry link

" Of that long-chain'd succession is so frail.

"Can ev'ry part depend, and not the whole?

"Yet grant it true; new difficulties rife; "I'm still quite out at sea; nor see the shore.

" I'm still quite out at lea; nor lee the shore.
"Whence earth, and these bright onbs?—Eternal too?—

"Grant matter was eternal; fill these orbs

"Would want some other father .- Much defign

4 Is feen in all their motions, all their makes :

" Design implies intelligence, and art :

"That can't be from themselves, - or man: That art "Man scarce can comprehend, could man bestow?

"Man learce can comprehend, could man beltow to And nothing greater, yet allow'd, than man.

44 Who, motion, foreign to the smallest grain,
44 Shot through vast masses of enormous weight?

"Who bid brute Matter's reflive lump assume

"Such various forms, and gave it wings to fly?"

"Has matter innate motion? then each atom,
Afferting its indiffuntable right

"To dance, would form an universe of dust.

"Has matter none? Then whence these glorious forms,

"And boundless flights, from shapeless, and repos'd?"
"Has matter more than motion? has it thought,

"Judgment, and genius? is it deeply learn'd

" In mathematicks? has it fram'd fuch laws,

Which, but to guefi, a Newton made immortal :--

Who think a clod inferior to a man!

" If art, to form, and counsel, to conduct, " And that with greater far, than human skill,

"Refides not in each block; --- a GODHEAD reigns...
"Grant, then, invifible, eternal, MIND;

"That granted, all is folv'd .-- But, granting that,
"Draw I not o'er me a still darker cloud?

" Grant I not that which I can ne'er conceive?

226

" A being without origin, or end !-" Hail, Human Liberty ! there is no GO D ...

" Yet, why? On either scheme that knot subfills :

" Sublift it muft. in GOD, or buman race.

" If in the last, how many knots beside, " Indiffoluble all? --- Why choose it there,

"Where, chosen, still subsist ten thousand more? " Reject it, where, that chosen, all the rest

" Difpers'd, leave Reason's whole horizon clear ? "This is not Reason's dictate; Reason says,

" Close with the fide where one grain turns the scale. "What wast preponderance is here! Can Reason

"With louder voice exclaim --- Believe a GOD?

" And Reason heard, is the sole mark of man.

"What things impossible must man think true, " On any other fystem! and how strange

" To difbelieve, through mere credulity !"

If, in this chain, LORENZO finds no flaw. Let it for ever bind him to helief.

And where the link in which a flaw he finds ?---And, if a GOD there is, that GOD how great ! How great that POWER, whole providential care Through these bright orbs dark centres darts a ray Of Nature universal threads the whole ! And hangs creation, like a precious gem,

Though little, on the footftool of his throne! That little gem, how large! A weight let fall

From a fix'd ftar, in ages can it reach This distant earth? Say, then, LORENZO! where, Where ends this mighty building? where begin The fuburbs of creation? where the wall Whose battlements look o'er into the vale

Of non-existence ? Norwing's strange abode ! Dread, bottomless Amazement! how it yawns? How shuddering Fancy sickens, and recoils? And is it there LORENZO hopes to dwell? Say, at what point of space JEHOVAH dropp'd His flacken'd line, and laid his balance by : Weigh'd worlds, and measur'd infinite, no more? Where rears his terminating pillar high Its extramundane head? and fays, to gods,

In characters illustrious as the fun.

" I stand, the plan's proud period; I pronounce "The work accomplish'd; the creation clos'd.

" Shout, all re gods! nor (bout, ye gods, alone ;

" Of all that lives, or, if devoid of life, as That refts, or rolls, ye heights, and depths, refound! at Refound! relound! we depths, and beights, refound!" Hard are those questions ?- Answer harder still,

Is this the fole exploit, the fingle birth, The folitary fon of power divine?

Or has th' almighty FATHER, with a breath,

Impregnated the womb of diftant space? Has he not bids in various provinces. Brother-creations the dark bowels burft

Of Night primæval, barren now no more?

And he the central fun, transpiereing all Those plant-generations, which disport, And dance, as motes, in his meridian ray ;

That ray withdrawn, benighted, or absorb'd,

In that abys of borrer, whence they forung : While Chaos triumphs, reposses'd of all

Rival Greation ravished from his throne? Chaos ! of Nature both the womb, and grave !

Thinkst thou my scheme, LORENZO, spreads too wide?

Is this extravagant?-No t this is infi: Just in conjecture, though 'twere false in fact.

If 'tis an error, 'tis an error fprung From noble root, high thought of the MOST HIGH.

But wherefore error? Who can prove it fuch ?----He that can fet OMNIPOTENCE a bound.

Can man conceive beyond what GOD can do? Nothing but quite-inpossible is bard.

He fummons into being, with like eafe, A whole creation, and a fingle grain.

Speaks he the word? a thousand worlds are born !-A thousand worlds? there's space for millions more :

And in what space can his great fiat fail? Condemn me not, cold critick I but indulge The warm imagination. Why condemn?

Why not indulge fuch thoughts, as fwell our hearts With fuller admiration of that Power.

Who gives our hearts with fuch high thoughts to fwell?

Why

218 THE CONSOLATION. Night 9.

Why not indulge in his augmented praise?

Darts not his glory a still brighter ray,
The less is left to Chaos, and the realms
Of hideous Night, where Fancy strays aghast;
And, though most talkative, makes no rebort?

Still feems my thought enormous! Think again :-Experience' felf shall aid thy lame belief. Glasses, (that revelation to the fight !), Have they not led us in the deep disclose Of fine-fpun Nature, exquifitely [mall ; And, though demonstrated, ftill ill-conceiv'd? If, then, on the reverse, the mind would mount In magnitude, what mind can mount too far, To keep the balance, and creation poile? Defect alone can err on fuch a theme. What is too great, if we the eaule furvey? Stupendous ARCHITECT ! Thou, Thou art all? My foul flies up and down in thoughts of THEE, And finds herfelf but at the centre still ! I AM, thy name ! existence, all thine own ! Creation's nothing : flatter'd much, if ftvl'd

O for the voice-of what? of whom?-What voice Can answer to my wants, in sach ascent, As dares to deem one universe too small? Tell me, LORENZO! (for now Fancy glows, Fir'd in the vortex of almighty power), Is not this home-creation, in the man Of universal Nature, as a speck, Like fair BRITANNIA in our little ball : Exceeding fair and glorious, for its fize. But elsewhere far out-measur'd, far outshone? In Fancy (for the fast beyond us lies) Canft thou not figure it, an ife, almost Too small for notice, in the vast of being : Sever'd by mighty feas of unbuilt space, From other realms; from ample continents Of higher life, where nobler natives dwell Less northern, less remote from DEITY. Glowing beneath the line of the SUPREME ; Where fouls in excellence make hafte, put forth

" The thin, the fleeting atmosphere of GOD."

Luxuriant

Luxuriant growths : nor the late autumn wait Of human worth, but ripen foon to gods?

Yet why drown Fancy in such depths as these? Return, presumptuous rover ! and confess The bounds of man; nor blame them as too fmall. Enjoy we not full scope in what is feen? Full ample the dominions of the fun ! Full glorious to behold! how far, how wide, The matchless monarch, from his flaming throne, Lavish of lustre, throws his beams about him, Farther and faster than a thought can fly, And feeds his planets with eternal fires ! This Heliopolis, by greater far, Than the proud tyrant of the Nile, was built t And he alone, who built it, can deftroy, Beyond this city, why strays human thought? One wonderful, enough-for man to know! One infinite, enough for man to range! One firmament, enough for man to read! O what voluminous instruction here ! What page of wildom is deny'd him? None; If learning his chief lesson makes him wife. Nor is instruction, here, our only gain; There dwells a noble pathos in the fkies, Which warms our passions, proselytes our hearts. How eloquently thines the glowing pole! With what authority it gives its charge, Remonstrating great truths in style fublime, Though filent, loud! heard earth around; above The planets heard; and not unheard in hell; Hell has her wonder, though too proud to praife. Is earth, then, more infernal? has the thofe, Who neither praise (LORENZO!) nor aamire?

LORENZO's admiration, pre-engag'd, Ne'er ask'd the Moon one question; never held Leaft correspondence with a fingle flar ; Ne'er rear'd an altar to the Queen of Heav'n, Walking in brightness; or her train ador'd. Their fublunary rivals have long fince Ingross'd his whole devotion; flars malign, Which made their fond aftronomer run mad s Darken his intellect, corrupt his heart;

(230 Cause him to facrifice his fame and neace To momentary madness, call'd Delight. Idolater, more gross than ever kis'd The lifted hand to LUNA, or pour'd out The blood to Jove !- O THOU, to whom belongs All facrifice ! O thou great love unfeign'd ! DIVINE INSTRUCTOR! thy first volume, this, For man's perufal : all in CAPITALS! In moon and flars, (heav'n's golden alphabet!) Emblaz'd to feize the fight; who runs, may read ; Who reads, can understand, 'Tis unconfin'd To Christian land, or Fewry; fairly writ, In language univerfal, to MANKIND : A language, lofty to the learn'd , yet plain To those that feed the flock, or guide the plough, Or, from its bulk, frike out the bounding grain. A language, worthy the GREAT MIND, that fpeaks Preface, and comment, to the facred page! Which oft refers its reader to the fkies. As presupposing his first lesson there, And scripture' felf a fragment, that unread. Stupendous book of wifdom, to the wife !

Stupendous book ! and open'd, NIGHT! by thee, By thee much open'd, I confess, O Night! Yet more I wish ; but how shall I prevail? Say, gentle Night! whose modest, maiden beams Give us a new creation, and prefent The world's great picture, foften'd to the fight : Nay, kinder far, far more indulgent still, Say, thou, whose mild dominion's filver key Unlocks our hemisphere, and fets to view Worlds beyond number : worlds conceal'd by day Behind the proud and envious star of moon!

The mighty POTENTATS, to whom belong These rich regalia, pompoully display'd To kindle that high hope? Like him of Uz, I gaze around; I fearch on every fide-O for a glimple of HIM my foul adores! As the chas'd hart, amid the defert wafte, Pants for the living stream; for H 1 M who made here So pants the thrifty foul, amid the blank

Canst thou not draw a deeper scene ?- and show

Of fublunary joys. Say, Goddefs! where? Where blazes his bright court? where burns his throne? Thou know? if, for thou art near him, by thee, round. His grand pavillon, facred Fame reports The fable curtain drawn. If not, can none Of thy fair daughter-train, fo fwift of wing,

Of thy fair daughter-train, to swift of wing, Who travel far, discover where be dwells?

Ye Pleiades! Arthurus! Mazarath!
And thou, Orion! of still keener eye!
Say, ye, who guide the wilder'd in the waves,
And bring them out of tempelt into port!
On which hand mult! bend my courie to find him?
These courtiers keep the secret of their K ING;
I wake whole nights, in wain, to steal it from them.

I wake; and, waking, climb Night's radiunt feale, From fiphere to fiphere; the fleps by Nature fet For man's afcent; at once to tempt, and aid; To tempt his eye, and aid his tow'ring thought; Till it arrives at the great seal of all.

In ardent Contemplation's rapid car, From earth, as from my barrier, I fet out. How swift I mount! diminish'd earth recedes; I pass the meon; and, from her farther side, Pierce heavin's blue cuttain; sfrike into remote 3. Where, with his lifted tube, the subtile sage. His artificial, airy journey takes, And to celestial lengthens human sight. I paule at ce'vy planed on my road, And ask for HIM, who gives their orbs to roll, Their foreheads sair to shine. From SAYURA's ring, In which, of earths an army might be lost, With the bold comet, take my bolder slight, and the foreserior educates of the die.

Their foreheads fair to finite. From SATUAN's ring, In which, of earth's an army might be loft, With the bold comet, take my boider flight, Amid those forerign glories of the skies, Of. independent, native fustre, proud; The fouls of lystems! and the lords of life, Through their wide empires!——What behold Inter A wilderness of wonders burning round; A wilderness of wonders burning round; Where larger suns inhabit sigher spheres; Perhaps the villas of descending gods! Nor halt I here; my roll is but begun;

U 2

'Tis but the threshold of the DEITY;

232 THE CONSOLATION. Night 9.

Or, far beneath it, I am grovelling fill;
Grovelling in elevation few can reach!
Nor is it flrange; I built on a miffake;
The grandeur of his works, whence Felly fought
For aid, to Reafon fets his glory higher;
Who built thus high for worms (mere worms to Him);

Who built thus high for worms (mere worms to Him O where, Lorenzo! must the Builder dwell?

Where, LOKENAO! muit the DUIDER WHIT!
Paufe, then; and, for a moment, here refpire—
If human thought can keep its flation here. [thou, where an 12—Where is earth?—Nay, where art O Sun?—Is the fun turn'd reclute?—and are
His boaffed expeditions floor to mine?

To mine, how short! On Nature's Alps I stand, And see a thousand firmaments beneath! A thousand systems! as a thousand grains!

So much a stranger, and so late arriv'd, How can man's curious spirit not enquire, What are the natives of this world sublime, Of this so soreign, unterrestrial sphere,

Where mortal, untranslated, never stray'd?

"O ye, as distant from my little home, As swiftest sun-beams in an age can sly !

"Far from my native element I roam,
"In quest of new, and wonderful, to man.

"What province this, of his immense domain,
"Whom all obey? Or mortals here, or gods!

"Ye bord'rers on the coasts of bliss! what are you?
"A colony from heav'n? or, only rais'd,

"A colony from heav'n? or, only rais'd,
"By frequent vifit from heav'n's neighb'ring realms,

"To fecondary gods, and half-divine?"Whate'er your nature, this is past dispute,

" Far other life you live, far other tongue

"You talk, far other thought, perhaps, you think,
"Than man. How various are the works of God!

"But fay, What thought? Is Reason here enthron'd,
And absolute? or Sense in arms against her?

"Enjoy your happy realms their golden age?

"And had your Epen an abstemious Eve?
"Our Eves's fair daughters prove their pedigree,

"And ask their Adams, Who would not be quise?"
"Or, if your mother sell, are you redeemed?"

And:

a And if redeem'd .- is your Redeemer forn'd?

" Is this your final refidence? If not,

"Change you your scene, translated? or, by death? " And if by death ; What death ?- Know you disease ?

" Or horrid war ? -- With war, this fatal hour,

" EUROPA groans (fo call we a fmall field

" Where kings run mad). In our world, DEATH deputes. " Intemp'rance to do the work of Age :

" And, hanging up the quiver Nature gave him,

" As flow of execution, for dispatch " Sends forth Imperial butchers : bids them flay

" Their sheep, (the filly sheep they sleec'd before)

46 And tofs him twice ten thousand at a meal. " Sit all your executioners on thrones?

"With you, can rage for plunder make a god?

66 And blood/hed wash out ev'ry other stain ?--" But you, perhaps, can't bleed : from matter gress

-66 Your fpirits clean, are delicately clad

" In fine-fpun æther ; privileg'd to foar, " Unloaded, uninfected, How unlike

"The lot of man! How few of human race "By their own mud unmurder'd! how we wage"

" Self-war eternal !- Is your painful day " Of hardy conflict o'er? or, are you still

" Raw candidates at school? And have you those: " Who difaffect reversions, as with us ?-

" But what are we? You never heard of Man,

" Or Earth; the Bedlam of the universe ! 66 Where Reason (undifeas'd with you) runs mad,

" And nurses Folly's children as her own; " Fond of the foulest. In the facred mount

" Of Holinels, where Reason is pronounc'd " Infallible ; and thunders, like a god ; " Ev'n there, by faints, the damons are outdone :

What these think wrong, our faints refine to right; " And kindly teach dull Hell her own black arts; " SATAN, instructed, o'er their morals smiles .-

66 But this, how strange to you, who know not Man ! " Has the least rumour of our race arrived?

" Call'd here ELMAH, in his flaming car? " Pass'd by you the good ENOCH, on his road

" To those fair fields, whence Lucifer was hurl'd :

THE CONSOLATION. Night o. 234

"Who brush'd, perhaps, your sphere, in his descent, " Stain'd your pure cryftal ather, or let fall

" A fhort eclipse from his portentous shade? "O! that the fiend had lodg'd on fome broad orb

" Athwart his way ; nor reach'd his prefent home : "Then blacken'd Earth, with foothers foul'd in hell.

of Nor wash'd in Ocean as from Rome he pass'd

"To BRITAIN's ifle ; too, too conspicuous there !"

But this is all digression .- Where is HE. That o'er Heav'n's battlements the felon hurl'd To groans, and chains, and darkness? Where is HE. Who fees creation's fummit in a vale? He, whom, while man is man, he can't but feek ; And if he finds, commences more than man?

O for a telescope his throne to reach!

Tell me, ve learn'd on earth ! or blefs'd above! Ye fearthing, ye Newtonian angels! tell. Where your great MASTER's orb? his planets, where? Those conscious satellites, those morning-stars,

First-born of DEITY! from central love, By veneration most profound, thrown off; By fweet attraction, no less strongly drawn: And d, and yet raptur'd; raptur'd, yet ferene;

Past thought Alustrious, but with borrow'd beams a In still approaching circles, still remote, Revolving round the fun's eternal Sing!

Or fent, in lines direct, on embaffies To nations - in what latitude? - Beyond Terrestrial thought's horizon !- And on what High errands fent ?- Here human effort ends :

And leaves me ftill a ftranger to bis throne. Full well it might! I quite mistook my road, Born in an age more curious, than devout;

More fond to fix the place of heav'n or hell, Than studious this to shun, or that secure. 'Tis not the curious, but the pious path, That leads me to my point. LORENZO! know. Without or flar, or angel, for their guide, Who worthip GOD, shall find him. Humble Lave, And not proud Reason, keeps the door of Heav'n; Love finds admission, where proud Science fails. Man's seience is the culture of his heart :

And not to lofe his plummet in the denths Of Nature, or the more profound of GOD. Either to know, is an attempt that fets The wifest on a level with the fool. To fathom Nature (ill-attempted here!) Past doubt, is deep philosophy above: Higher degrees in blifs archangels take, As deeper learn'd; the deepest, learning still. For, what a thunder of omnipotence (So might I dare to speak!) is feen in all! In Man! in Earth! in more-amazing Skies! Teaching this leffon, Pride is loath to learn. 66 Not deeply to discern, not much to know, " Mankind was born to WONDER and ADORE." And is there cause for higher wonder ftill, Than that which flruck us from our past furveys? Yes: and for deeper adoration too. From my late airy travel unconfin'd, Have I learn'd nothing ?- Yes, LORENZO! this :: Each of these stars is a religious house; I faw their altars fmoke, their incenfe rife. And heard Holannas ring through ev'ry fphere. A feminary fraught with future gods.

Nature all o'er is confearated ground,
Teeming with growths immortal, and divine.
The great Paperstron's all-bounteous hand
Leaves nothing waste; but sows these fiery fields
With feeds of reason, which to virtues rise
Beneath his genial ray; and, if escap'd.
The pessional blasts of stubborn will,
When grown mature, are gather'd for the skiesy
And is devotion thought too much on earth,
When beings, so superior, homage boast,

But wherefore more of planets, or of flare?

Ethereal journeys, and, difcover'd there,
Ten thousand worlds, ten thousand ways devout?

All Nature fending incense to THE THEOMS,
Except the bold LORENZOS of Our Sphere?
Op'ning the folemn fources of my foul,
Singe 1 have pour'd, like feign'd Exidanus,
My flowing numbers o'er the flaming skies,

And triumph in proftrations to THE THRONE?

Nor fee, of fancy, or of fact, what more Invites the muse, -here turn we, and review Our past nocturnal landscape wide :- then, fav. Say, then, LORENZOI with what burft of heart. The whole, at once, revolving in his thought, Must man exclaim, adoring, and aghast? "O what a root ! O what a branch is here!

64 O what a father! what a family!

" Worlds! fustems! and creations!-and creations.

" In one agglomerated cluster, hung,

" Great VINE! on THEE, on THEE the clufter hangs ;

" The filial clufter ! infinitely fpread " In glowing globes, with various being fraught :

" And drinks (nectareous draught !) immortal life.

" Or, shall I fay (for who can fay enough?)

" A constellation of ten shoufand gems,

46 (And, O! of what dimension! of what weight!)

66 Set in one fignet, flames on the right hand " Of MATESTY DIVINE! the blazing feal,

"That deeply stamps, on all created mind,

44 Indelible, his fov'reign attributes,

" OMNIPOTENCE, and Love : that paffing bound. " And this furpaffing that. Nor stop we here,

" For want of power in GOD, but thought in Man.

" Ev'n this acknowledg'd, leaves us ftill in debt ;

" If greater aught, that greater all is Thine, " DREAD SIRE !- Accept this miniature of THEE;

44 And pardon an attempt from mortal thought,

"In which archangels might have fail'd, unblam'd." How fuch ideas of the ALMIGHTY's power, And fuch ideas of th' ALMIGHTY's plan.

(Ideas not abfurd) diftend the thought Of feeble mortals! Nor of them alone! The fulness of the DEITY breaks forth In inconceivables to men, and gods.

Think, then, O think; nor ever drop the thought; Flow low must man descend, when gods adore !-

Have I not, then, accomplish'd my proud boast? Did I not tell thee, " + We would mount, LORENZO! " And kindle our devotion at the flars ?"

* John xv. I.

And

And have I sight of and did I flatter thee?
And art all adamant? and doft confute
All urg'd, with one irrefragable smile?
LORENGO! Further how milerable bere!
Swear by the start, by H I M who made them, swear,
Thy heart, henceforth, shall be as pure as they.
Then thou, like them, shalt stime; like them, shalt rife.
From low to lofty; from obscure to bright:
By due gradation, Nature's facred law.
The start, from whence?—Ask Chass,—be can tell..
These-bright temptations to idolatry.

From Darknefs and Confusion took their birth; Soon Deformity! from fluid dregs
Tarlaream, first they role to masses rude;
And then, to spheres opaque; then dimly shone;
Then brighten'd; then blaz'd out in persed day,
Nature delights in progress; in advance

Mitter delignts in progress; in auvance. From worke to better: but, when minds alcend, Progress, in part, depends upon themselvers. Heav'n aids exertion; greater makes the great; The voluntary little lesses more.

O be a man! and thou shalt be a god!
And half self-made!—ambition how divine!

And half felf-made !—ambition how divine!

O thou, ambitious of ditgrace along!

Still undevout? unkindled!—though high-taught,
School'd by the fkies; and pupil of the flars;

Rank.coward to the faffininable world!

Art thou affami'd to bend thy knee to Heav'n?

Curs'd fume of pride, exhal'd from deepeth hell!

Pride in religion is man's higheft praife.

Bent on delfruction! and in love with Death!

Not all thefe luminaries, quench'd at once, Were half fo fad, as one benighted mind, Which gropes for Happinels, and meets Defpaire. How, like a widow in her weeds, the Night, Amid her glimm'ring tapers, filent fits!

How forrowful, how defolate, fine weeps
Perpetual dews, and faddens Nature's ficene!

A fcene more fad fin makes the darken'd foul;
All comfort kills, nor leaves one fpark alive.

Though blind of heart, still open is thine eye: Why fuch magnificence in all thou feest?

THE CONSOLATION. Night o. 238

Of matter's grandeup, know, one end is this, To tell the rational, who pages on it.

"Though that immenfely great, ftill greater be, Whose breast, capacious, can embrace, and lodge,

" Unburden'd, Nature's universal scheme; 46 Can grafp Greation with a fingle thought; " Greation grafp; and not exclude its SIRE."

To tell him farther .- " It behoves him much "To guard th' important, yet depending, fate

" Of being, brighter than a thousand suns; "One fingle ray of thought outflines them all."-

And if man hears obedient, foon he'll foar Superior heights, and on his purple wing, His purple wing bedropp'd with eyes of gold,

Rifing, where thought is now deny'd to rife,

Look down triumphant on these dazzling fpheres. Why then perfift?-No mortal ever liv'd, But, dying, he pronounc'd (when words are true!)

The whole that charms thee, absolutely vain : Vain, and far worfe - think thou, with dving men -O condescend to think as angels think

O tolerate a chance for happines!

Our nature fuch, ill choice ensures ill fate ; And hell had been, though there had been no God. Doft thou not know, my new aftronomer !

Earth, turning from the fun, brings night to man? Man, turning from his Gop, brings endless night : Where thou canft read no morals, find no friend.

Amend no manners, and expect no peace. How deep the darkness! and the groam how loud! And far, how far, from lambent are the flames! Such is LORENZO's purchase! such his praise! The proud, the politick LORENZO's praise Though in his ear, and levell'd at his heart. I've half read o'er the volume of the skies.

For think not thou haft heard all this from me : My fong but echoes what great Naturs speaks. What has the spoken? Thus the goddess spoke, Thus speaks for ever :- " Place, at Nature's head. " A fov'reign, which o'er all things rolls his eye, Extends his wing, promulgates his commands.

66. But, above all, diffuses endless good :

" To whom, for fure redrefs, the wrong'd may fly ; "The vile, for mercy; and the pain'd, for peace ;

By whom, the various tenants of these spheres,

"Diversify'd in fortunes, place, and powers, Rais'd in enjoyment, as in worth they rife,

" Arrive at length (if worthy fuch approach)

" At that blefs'd fountain head from which they ftream;

" Where conflict past redoubles present joy, And prefent joy looks forward on increase.

" And that on more : no period! ev'ry flep

" A double boon! a promise, and a bliss?" How eafy fits this scheme on human hearts ! It fuits their make : it fooths their vaft defires ; Passion is pleas'd; and Reason asks no more; 'Tis rational ! 'tis great !- but what is thine ? It darkens! shocks! exeruciates! and confounds! Leaves us quite naked, both of help, and hope, Sinking from bad to worfe : few years, the fport Of Fortune : then the morfel of Defbair.

Say, then, LORENZO! (for thou know'ft it well). What's vice?-Mere want of compass in our thought. Religion, what ?- The proof of common fenfe. How art thou hooted, where the leaft prevails! Is it my fault, if thefe truths call thee fool? And thou shalt never be miscall'd by me. Can neither Shame, nor terror, Rand thy friend ! And art thou fill an infect in the mire? How, like thy guardian angel, have I flown; Snatch'd thee from earth; efforted thee through all Th' ethereal armies; walk'd thee, like a god, Through fplendours of first magnitude, arrang'd On either hand : clouds thrown beneath thy feet ; Close-cruis'd on the bright paradife of GoD; And almost introduc'd thee to THE THRONE! And art thou fill caroning, for delight, Rank poison; first, fermenting to mere froth, And then subfiding into final gall? To beings of fublime, immortal make, How mocking is all joy, whose end is fure! Such joy more shocking still, the more it charms ! And doft thou choose what ends, ere well begun?

And infamous, as short? and dost thou choose

if Thou, to whose palate glory is so sweet)
To wade into perdition, through contempt,
Not of poor bigots only, but thy soun?
For I have peep'd into thy cover'd heart,
And seen it blush beneath a boakful brow;
For, by strong Guilt's most violent assult,

Confeience is but disabled, not definy it.

O thou most awful being! and most vain!

Thy will, how Fail! how glorious is thy power?

Though dread Examiry has fown her feeds

Of blifs, and wo, in thy defpotick breast;

Though heavin, and hell, depend upon thy choice;

A butterfly comes 'crost, and both are fied.

Is this the picture of a rational?

This horid image, shall it be most just?

Lorence I No: it cannot—final not be,

If there is force in respin; or in jounds

Chaned beneath the glimples of the moon,

A marick, at this placetary hour.

Chance breast in the gampies of the about A magick, at this planetary hour, When Slumber locks the gen'ral lip, and dreams. Through fendlefs mases hunt fouls uninfpir'd. Attend—The facred myficries begin—My folemn Nights-born adjuration hear; Hear, and Pll raife thy finit from the duft; While the flave gaze on this enchastment new; Enchastment, not infernal, but divine;

"By Silence, DEATH's peculiar attribute;
"By Darkneis. Gullt's inevitable doom:

46 By Darkness, and by Silence, fifters dread! 46 That draw the curtain round Night's ebon throne,

"And raife idean, folemn as the scene;
"By NIGHT, and all of awful, Night presents

"To thought, or fense, (of awful, much to both,
"The goddess brings)! By these her trembling fires,

Part of the Book of JOB.

Hrice happy Job long liv'd in regal Rate, Nor faw the fumptuous east a prince fo great ; Whose worldly stores in such abundance flow'd, Whose heart with such exalted virtue glow'd. At length misfortunes take their turn to reign, And ills on ills fucceed : a dreadful train! What now but deaths, and poverty, and wrong, The fword wide-wasting, the reproachful tongue, And spotted plagues, that mark'd his limbs all o'er So thick with pains, they wanted room for more? A change fo fad what mortal heart could bear? Exhausted Wo had left him nought to fear ; But gave him all to Grief. Low earth he press'd, Wept in the dust, and forely smote his breast. His friends around the deep affliction mourn'd, Felt all his pangs, and groan for groan return'd; In anguish of their hearts their mantles rent. And fev'n long days in folemn filence fpent ; A debt of rev'rence to diffres so great! Then Job contain'd no more ; but curs'd his fate. His day of birth, its inauspicious light, He wishes funk in shades of endless night, And blotted from the year; nor fears to crave Death, instant death; impatient for the grave, That feat of peace, that manfion of repole, Where rest and mortals are no longer foes: Where counsellors are hush'd, and mighty kings (O happy turn!) no more are wretched things. His words were daring, and displeas'd his friends:

His words were daring, and displeas'd his friends; His conduct they reprove, and he defends; And now they kindled into warm debate, And fentiments oppos'd with equal heat; Fix'd in opinion, both refuse to yield,
And summon all their reason to the field:
So high at length their arguments were wrought,
They reach'd the last extent of human thought:
A pause enside.—When 10: Heav'n interpos'd,
And awfully the long contention clos'd.
All o'er their heads, with terrible surprise,
A fudden whirlwind blacken'd all the slice:
(They saw and trembled!) From the darkness broke
A dreadful voice, and thus th' Almighty spoke.

Who gives his tongue a loofe fo bold and vain-Censures my conduct, and reproves my reign? Lifts up his thought against me from the dust, And tells the world's Creator what is just? Of late fo brave, now lift a dauntless eye, Face my demand, and give it a reply : Where didft thou dwell at Nature's early birth? Who laid foundations for the spacious Earth? Who on the furface did extend the line. Its form determine, and its bulk confine? Who fix'd the corner-stone? What hand, declare, Hung it on nought, and fasten'd it in air; When the bright morning-stars in concert fung. When heav'n's high arch with loud hofannas rung; When shouting sons of God the triumph crown'd, And the wide concave thunder'd with the found? Earth's num'rous kingdoms, hast thou view'd them all & And can thy fpan of knowledge grafp the ball? Who heav'd the mountain, which sublimely stands, And casts its shadow into distant lands? Who, stretching forth his sceptre o'er the deep,

Can that wild world in due subjection keep?

I broke the globe, I scoop'd its hollow'd side,
And did a bason for the shoots provide;

I can them with my word; the boiling sea,
Work'd up in tempests, hears my great decree;

"Thus far, thy floating tide shall be convey'd;
"And here, O Main, be thy proud billows flaid."

Haft thou explor'd the feerets of the deep, Where, flut from use, unnumber'd treasures sleep; Where, down a thousand fathoms from the day, Springs the great fountain, mother of the sea?

hole

Those gloomy paths did thy bold foot e'er tread, Whole worlds of waters rolling o'er thy head? Hath the cleft centre open'd wide to thee?

Death's inmost chambers didft thou ever fee? E'er knock at his tremendous gate, and wade To the black portal through th' incumbent shade? Deep are those shades; but shades still deeper hide My counfels from the ken of human pride.

Where dwells the light? in what refulgent dome? And where has darknef made her difmal home? Thou know'th, no doubt, fince thy large heart is fraught. With ripen'd wildom through long ages brought, Since Nature was call'd forth when thou waft by,

And into being rofe beneath thine eye!

Are mifts begotten? Who their father knew? From whom defeend the pearly drops of dew? To bind the fream by night, what hand can boaft, Or whiten morning, with the hoary froft? Whofe pow'rful breath, from northern regions blown, Touches the fea, and turns it into flone? A fudden defert fpreads o'er realms defac'd, And lavs one half of the creation wafte?

And lays one half of the creation waste? Thou know'st me not; thy blindness

Thou know'ft me not; thy blindness cannot see How as a distance parts thy God from thee. Canst thou in whirewinds mount alost? Canst thou In clouds and darkness wrap thy awful brow? And, when day triumphs in meridian light, Put forth thy hand, and shade the world with might?

Who launch'd the clouds in air, and bid them roll Sufpended feas aloft, from pole to pole? Who can refresh the burning fandy plain, And quench the fummer with a waste of rain? Who in rough deferts, far from human toil, Made rocks bring forth, and desolation smile? There blooms the rose, where human face ne'er shone, And foreads its beauties to the fun alone.

To check the flower, who lifts his hand on high, And fluts the fluices of th' exhaulted fky, When earth no longer mourns her gaping veins, Her naked mountains, and her ruffet plains; But, new in life, a chearful prospect yields Of shining rivers, and of verdant fields; 252 A PARAPHRASE ON

When groves and forests lavish all their bloom, And earth and heaven are fill'd with rich perfume?

Hast thou e'er scal'd my wint'ry skies, and seen Of bail and fnows my northern magazine? These the dread treasures of mine anger are, My fund of vengeance for the day of war, When clouds rain death, and storms, at my command,

Rage through the world, or waste a guilty land. Who taught the rapid winds to fly fo falt,

Or shakes the centre with his eastern blast? Who from the skies can a whole deluge pour? Who strikes through Nature with the folemn roar Of dreadful thunder, points it where to fall, And in fierce lightning wraps the flying ball? Not he who trembles at the darted fires, Falls at the found, and in the flash expires.

Who drew the comet out to fuch a fize, And pour'd his flaming train o'er half the fkies? Did thy refeatment hang him out? Does he Glare on the nations, and denounce, from thee? Who on low earth can moderate the rein.

That guides the flars along th' ethereal plain? Appoint their feafons, and direct their course, Their luftre brighten, and fupply their force? Canft thou the fkies' benevolence restrain. And cause the Pleiades to shine in vain? Or, when Orion sparkles from his sphere, Thaw the cold feafon, and unbind the year? Bid Mazzaroth his deftin'd flation know. And teach the bright Ardurus where to glow? Mine is the Night, with all her flars; I pour

Myriads, and myriads I referve in store. Dost thou pronounce where day-light shall be born, And draw the purple curtain of the morn ;

Awake the fun, and bid him come away, And glad thy world with his obsequious ray? Haft thou, inthron'd in flaming glory, driv'n Triumphant round the spacious ring of heav'n? That pomp of light, what hand fo far displays. That distant earth lies basking in the blaze? Who did the foul with her rich pow'rs invest.

And light up reason in the human breast?

To shine, with fresh increase of lustre, bright, When flars and fun are fet in endless night? To these my various questions make reply.

Th' Almighty spoke; and speaking, shook the sky. What then, Chaldean fire, was thy furprise!

Thus thou, with trembling heart, and downcast eys: " Once and again, which I in groans deplore,

" My tongue has err'd; but shall presume no more.

" My voice is in eternal filence bound, " And all my foul falls proftrate to the ground."

He ceas'd: when, lo l again th' Almighty spoke; The same dread voice from the black whirlwind brokes Can that arm measure with an arm divine ?

And canst thou thunder with a voice like mine? Or in the hollow of thy hand contain The bulk of waters, the wide-spreading main, When, mad with tempelts, all the billows rife In all their rage, and dash the distant skies?

Come forth, in beauty's excellence array'd : And be the grandeur of thy pow'r display'd : Put on omnipotence, and frowning make The spacious round of the creation shake: Dispatch thy vengeance, bid it overthrow Triumphant vice, lay lofty tyrants low, And crumble them to duft. When this is done. I grant thy fafety lodg'd in thee alone; Of thee thou art, and mayft undaunted ftand Behind the buckler of thine own right hand. Fond man! the vision of a moment made!

Dream of a dream! and shadow of a shade! What worlds haft thou produc'd, what creatures fram'd. What infects cherish'd, that thy God is blam'd? When, pain'd with hunger, the wild raven's brood Calls upon God, importunate for food, Who hears their cry, who grants their hoarse request. And fills the clamour of the craving neft ?

Who in the cruel offrich has fubdu'd A parent's care, and fond inquietude? While far she flies her scatter'd eggs are found, Without an owner, on the fandy ground; Cast out on fortune, they at mercy lie, And borrow life from an indulgent fky :

Adopted

Adopted by the fun, in blaze of day, They ripen under his prolifick ray. Unmindful the, that fome unhappy tread May crush her young in their neglected bed. What time she skims along the field with speed,

154

She foorns the rider, and purfuing steed. How rich the peacock ! what bright glories run From plume to plume, and vary in the fun! He proudly fpreads them to the golden ray, Gives all his colours, and adorns the day;

With confcious state the spacious round displays, And flowly moves amid the waving blaze.

Who taught the hawk to find, in feafons wife, Perpetual Summer, and a change of skies?

When clouds deform the year, the mounts the wind, Shoots to the fouth, nor fears the fform behind : The fun returning, the returns again,

Lives in his beams, and leaves ill days to men.

Though firong the hawk, though practis'd well to fly, An eagle drops her in a lower fky :

An eagle, when, deferting human fight, She feeks the fun in her unweary'd flight. Did thy command her vellow pinion lift So high in air, and feat her on the clift, Where far above thy world she dwells alone, And proudly makes the strength of rocks her own; Thence wide o'er Nature takes her dread furvey, And with a glance predestinates her prey? She feasts her young with blood, and, hov'ring o'er

Th' unflaughter'd hoft, enjoys the promis'd gore. Know'ft thou how many moons, by me affign'd,

Roll o'er the mountain-goat, and forest-hind, While pregnant they a mother's load fustain? They bend in anguish, and cast forth their pain. Hale are their young, from human frailties freed; Walk unfustain'd, and unaffifted feed ; They live at once ; forfake the dam's warm fide ; Take the wide world, with Nature for their guide;

Bound o'er the lawn, or feek the distant glade; And find a home in each delightful shade. Will the tall Reem, which knows no lord but me, Low at the crib, and ask an alms of thee?

Submit

Submit his unworn shoulder to the voke. Break the stiff clod, and o'er thy furrow smoke? Since great his drength, go trust him, void of care; Lay on his neck the toil of all the year : Bid him bring home the feafons to the doors. And cast his load among thy gather'd stores.

Didft thou from fervice the wild afs discharge, And break his bonds, and bid him live at large, Through the wide wafte, his ample manfion, roam, And lofe himfelf in his unbounded home? By Nature's hand magnificently fed, His meal is on the range of mountains foread : As in pure air aloft he bounds along, He fees in diftant fmoke the city throng: Confeious of freedom, feorns the fmother'd train-

The threat'ning driver, and the fervile rein. Survey the warlike horfe! didft thou invest

With thunder, his robust distended chest? No fense of fear his dauntless foul allays: 'Tis dreadful to behold his noftrils blaze; To paw the vale he proudly takes delight. And triumphs in the fulness of his might; High-rais'd he fnuffs the battle from afar, And burns to plunge amid the raging war; And mocks at death, and throws his foam around, And in a fform of fury shakes the ground. How does his firm, his rifing heart, advance Full on the brandish'd fword, and shaken lance; While his fix'd eye-balls meet the dazzling shield, Gaze, and return the lightning of the field! He finks the fense of pain in gen'rous pride, Nor feels the shaft that trembles in his fide: But neighs to the shrill trumpet's dreadful blast Till death; and when he groans, he groans his last.

But, fiercer fill, the lordly lion flalks, Grimly majestick in lis lonely walks; When round he glares, all living creatures fly; He clears the defert with his rolling eye. Say, mortal, does he rouse at thy command, And roar to thee, and live upon thy hand? Dost thou for him in forests bend thy bow, And to his gloomy den the morfel throw,

Where bent on death lie hid his tawny brood, And, couch'd in dreadful ambush, pant for blood; Or. ftretch'd on broken limbs, confume the day, In darkness wrapt, and flumber o'er their prey? By the pale moon they take their deftin'd round. And lash their fides, and furious tear the ground. Now shricks, and dying groans, the defert fill; They rage, they rend, their rav'nous jaws distil With crimfon foam; and, when the banquet's o'er, They ftride away, and paint their fleps with gore : In flight alone the shepherd puts his trust, And shudders at the talon in the dust.

Mild is my Behemoth, though large his frame; Smooth is his temper, and repress'd his flame. While unprovok'd. This native of the flood Lifts his broad foot, and puts ashore for food; Earth finks beneath him, as he moves along To feek the herbs, and mingle with the throng. See, with what firength his harden'd loins are bound, All over proof, and thut against a wound. How like a mountain-cedar moves his tail! Nor can his complicated finews fail. Built high and wide, his folid bones furpass The bars of fleel ; his ribs are ribs of brafs ; His port majestick, and his armed jaw, Give the wide forest, and the mountain, law. The mountains feed him; there the beafts admire The mighty stranger, and in dread retire: At length his greatness nearer they furvey, Graze in his fliadow, and his eye obey. The fens and marshes are his cool retreat, His noontide shelter from the burning heat; Their fedgy bosoms his wide couch are made, And groves of willows give him all their shade. His eye drinks Fordan up, when, fir'd with drought, He trufts to turn its current down his throat ; In leffen'd waves it creeps along the plain : He finks a river, and he thirsts again.

Go to the Nile, and, from its fruitful fide, Cast forth thy line into the fwelling tide : With flender hair Leviatkan command, And firetch his vafiness on the loaded firand. Will he become thy fervant? will he own Thy lordly nod, and tremble at thy frown? Or with his fport amufe thy leifure day, And, bound in filk, with thy foft maidens play?

Shall pompous banquets fwell with fuch a prize?
And the bowl journey round his ample fixe?
Or the debating merchants finare the prey,
And various limbs to various marte convey?
Through his firm full what fleel its way can win?
What forceful engine can fubblue his fkin?
Fly far, and live; tempt not his matchlefs might;
The braveft firrink to cowards in his fight;
The rafheft dare not roufe him up: who then
Shall turn on me, among the fons of men?

Am I a debtor? Haft thou ever heard Whence come the gifts which are on me conferred? My lavilh fruit a thouland vallies fills, And mine the herds that graze a thouland hills: Earth, fea, and air, all nature is my own; And flars and fun are duft beneath my throne. And dar'ft thou with the world's great Pather vie,

Thou, who doft tremble at my creature's eye?

At full my large Leviathan shall rife,
Boat all his strength, and spread his wondrous size.

Who, great in armis, e'er flripp'd his finining mail, Or crown'd his triumph with a fingle feale? Whose heart susains him to draw near? Behold, Dethruction yawns; his spacious jaws unfold, And, marshall'd round the wide expanse, disclose Teeth edg'd with death, and crouding rows on rows: What hiskows fangs on either fishe artie! And, what a deep abys between them lies! Meter with thy lance, and with thy plumet sound,

The one how long, the other how profound.
His bulk is charg'd with fuch a furious foul,
That clouds of funcke from his fpread notfrils roll,
As from a furnace; and, when rous'd his ine,
Fate fliges from his jaws in fitecams of fire.
The rage of tempefis, and the roar of feas,
Thy terror, this thy great fuperior pleafe;
Strength, on his ample floudler fits in flat;

His well join'd limbs are dreadfully complete :

As fteel his nerves, as adamant his heart. When, late-awak'd, he rears him from the floods. And, ftretching forth his stature to the clouds, Writhes in the fun aloft his fealy height. And firikes the diffant hills with transient light,

Far round are fatal damps of terror spread, The mighty fear, por blush to own their dread.

Large is his front; and when his burnish'd eyes Lift their broad lids, the morning feems to rife.

In vain may death in various shapes invade The fwift-wing'd arrow, the descending blade; His naked breaft their impotence defies : The dart rebounds, the brittle fauchion flies. Shut in himfelf, the war without be hears, Safe in the tempest of their rattling spears; The cumber'd ftrand their wafted vollies ftrow : His fport, the rage and labour of the foe.

His pastimes like a caldron boil the flood. And blacken ocean with the rifing mud; The billows feel him, as he works his way : His hoary footsteps shine along the sea: The foam high-wrought, with white, divides the green, And diffant failors point where death has been. His like earth bears not on her spacious face ;

Alone in nature flands his dauntless race, For utter ignorance of fear renown'd. In wrath he rolls his baleful eye around : Makes ev'ry fwoln, difdainful heart, fubfide,

And holds dominion o'er the fons of pride. Then the Chaldean eas'd his lab'ring breaft, With full conviction of his crime oppreft.

" Thou can't accomplish all things, Lord of might ! " And ev'ry thought is naked to thy fight.

46 But oh! thy ways are wonderful, and ly " Beyond the deepest reach of mortal eye. " Oft have I heard of thine almighty pow'r;

But never faw thee till this dreadful hour. " O'erwhelm'd with shame, the Lord of life I fee, " Abhor myfelf, and give my foul to thee.

" Nor shall my weakness tempt thine anger more ;

" Man was not made to question, but adore."

NOTES.

IT is difputed among the criticks, who was the author of the book of 5th. Some give it to Mofes; fome to others. As I was engaged in this little performance, fome arguments occurred to me, which favour the former of thele opinions; which arguments I have flung into the following notes, where little elfe is to be exaceful.

Page 249. Thrise bappy Job, &c.] The Almighty's fpeech, chap, xxxiii. &c. which is what I paraphrafe in this little work, is by much the finest part of the noblest and most ascient poem in the world. Bishop Patrick fays, its grandeur is as much above all other poetry, as thunder is louder than a whisper. In order to set this distinguished part of the poem in a fuller light, and give the reader a clearer conception of it, I have abridged the preceding and subsequent parts of the poem, and joined them to it; so that this piece is a fort of an epitiome of the whole bub of 76h.

I use the word paraphrase, because I want another which might better answer to the uncommon liberties I have taken. I have omitted, added, and transpord. The meantain, the court, the same, and other parts, are entirely added: the peaces, the sime, see, are much enlarged: and I have thrown the whole into a method more suitable to our notions of regularity. The judicious, if they compare this piece with the original, will, I stater mylelf, find the reasons for the great liberties I have indulged myfelf in through the whole.

Longinar has a chapter on interrogations, which hows, that they contribute much to the fublime. This fpeech of the Almighty is made up of them. Interrogation feems, indeed, the proper flyle of Majetly incented. It differs from other manner of reproof, as bidding a person execute himself, does from a common execution; for he that asks the guilty a proper question, make him, in effect, pass fentence on himself.

Page 250. ——From the darkness broke A dreadful voice, and thus th' Almighty spoke.]

The book of Job is well known to be dramatick, and, like the tragedies of old Greece, is fiction built on truth.

Probably

Probably this most noble part of it, the Almighty speaking out of the whirlwind, (so fuitable to the afterpractice of the Greek stage, when there happened Dignus vindice nodus), is fictitious; but it is a fiction more agreeable to the time in which 700 lived, than to any fince. Frequent, before the law, were the appearances of the Almighty after this manner, Exodus chap. xix, Bzekiel chap. i. &c. Hence is he faid to dwell in thick darkness; and have his way in the whirlwind. Page 250. Thus far thy floating tide, &c.] There is a very great air in all that precedes; but this is fignally fublime. We are struck with admiration, to see the vaft and ungovernable ocean receiving commands, and punctually obeying them; to find it, like a managed horse, raging, toffing, and foaming, but by the rule and direction of its mafter. This paffage yields, in fublimity, to that of Let there be light, &c. fo much only, as the absolute government of Nature yields to the creation of it.

The like spirit in these two passages, is no bad concurrent argument, that Moles is author of the book of

Page 253. When, pain'd with hunger, the wild raven's brood, &c. ] Another argument, that Mofes was the author, is, that most of the creatures here mentioned, are Egyptian. The reason given why the raven is particularly mentioned as an object of the care of Providence, is, because, by her clamorous and importunate voice, she particularly feems always calling upon it; thence And fince there were ravens on the banks of the Nile more clamorous than the rest of that species, those, probably, are meant in this place,

Ibid. Who in the cruel offrich has fubdu'd, &c. ] There are many inflances of this bird's stupidity; let two suffice.

Firft, It covers its head in the reeds, and thinks itfelf all out of fight.

__ Stat lumine claufo Ridendum revoluta caput; creditque latere, Que non ibla videt-

Secondly, They that go in purfuit of them, draw the fkin of an offrich's neck on one hand, which proves a fufficient lure to take them with the other. They have fo little brain, that Heliogabalus had fix hundred heads for his fupper.

Here we may observe, that our judicious as well as fublime author, just touches the great points of distinction in each creature, and then haftens to another. A. description is exact, when you cannot add, but what is common to another thing; nor withdraw, but something peculiarly belonging to the thing described. A likeness is lost in too much description, as a meaning often in too much illustration.

Page 254. What time the thims along the field, &c. ] Here is marked another peculiar quality of this creature, which neither flies, nor runs diffinctly, but has a motion composed of both, and, using its wings as fails, makes great speed.

Vasta velut Libyæ venantum vocibus ales

Cum premitur, calidas cursu transmittit arenas, Inque modum veli sinuatis stamine pennis

Pulverulenta volat-Claud, in Eutr.

Ibid. She forms the rider, and purfuing fleed. ] Xenophon fays, Cyrus had horses that could overtake the goat, and the wild ass; but none that could reach this creature. A thousand golden ducats, or a hundred camels, was the flated price of a horse that could equal their fpeed.

Ibid. How rich the peacock, &c. ] Though this bird is but just mentioned in my author, I could not forbear going a little farther, and spreading those beautiful plumes (which are there that up) into half a dozen lines. The circumstance I have marked, of his opening his plumes to the fun, is true. Expandit colores adverso maxime foli, quia sic fulgentius radiant. Plin. l. x. c. 20.

Ibid. Though firong the hawk, though practis'd well to fly.] Thuanus (de re accip.) mentions a hawk that new from Paris to London in a night.

And the Egyptians, in regard to its swiftness, made it their fymbol for the wind; for which reason, we may suppose the hawk, as well as the crow above, to have been a bird of note in Egypt.

Page 254. Thence wide der Nature takes her dread furvey, &cc. ] The eagle is faid to be of so acute a fight, that when she is so bigh in air, that man cannot fee her, the can difcern the smallest fish under water. My author accurately understood the nature of the creatures he defcribes, and feems to have been a naturalift, as well as a poet : which the next note will confirm;

Ibid. Know ft thou how many moons, by me affign'd, &c. ] The meaning of this question is, Knowest thou the time and circumftances of their bringing forth? forst to know the time only, was easy, and had nothing extraordinary in it : but the circumflances had fomething peculiarly expressive of God's providence, which makes the question proper in this place. Pliny observes, that the hind, with young, is by inflinct directed to a certain herb called fefelis, which facilitates the birth. Thunder also (which looks like the more immediate hand of Providence) has the same effect, Pfal. xxix. In fo early an age to observe these things, may flyle our author a naturalift.

Page 255. Survey the warlike horse, &c.] The defcription of the horse is the most celebrated of any in the poem. There is an excellent critick on it in the Guardians. I shall therefore only observe, that, in this description, as in other parts of this speech, our vulgar translation has much more spirit than the Septuagint; it always takes the original in the most poetical and exalted fenfe: fo that most commentators, even on the Hebreau itself, fall beneath it.

Page 256. By the pale moon they take their destin'd round, &c.] Pursuing their prey by night, is true of most wild beasts, particularly the lion, Pfal. civ. 20. The Arabians have one among their 500 names for the lion, which fignifies the hunter by moonshine.

Ibid. He finks a river, and be thirsts again, &c.]

Cephisi glaciale caput, quo suetus anhelam Ferre stim Python, amnemque avertere ponto. Stat. Theb. v. 349.

Qui spiris tegeret montes, hauriret biatu Flumina, &c. Claud. præf. in Ruf.

Let not then this hyperbole feem too much for an eaftern poet, though fome commentators of name ftrain hard, in this place, for a new conftruction, through fear

Page 256. Go to the Nile, and from its fruitful fide, &cc.] The taking the crocodile is most difficult. Diodorus favs they are not to be taken but by iron nets. When Augustus conquered Egypt, he struck a medal, the impress of which was a crocodile chained to a palmtree, with this inscription, Nemo antea relegavit.

Page 257. The rashest dare not rouse him up, &c.] This alludes to a custom of this creature, which is, when fated with fifth, to come afhore, and fleep among the reeds.

Thid.

Behold.

Destruction yaruns; his spacious jarus unfold, &c.] The crocodile's mouth is exceeding wide. When he gapes, fays Pliny, fit totum os. Martial fays to his old woman.

Cum comparata rictibus tuis ora Niliacus habet crocodilas amufta. So that the expression here is barely just.

Toid. Fate iffues from his jaws in freams of fire.] This, too, is nearer truth than at first view may be ima-The crocodile, fay the naturalists, lying long under water, and being there forced to hold its breath, when it emerges, the breath, long repressed, is hot, and burfts out so violently, that it resembles fire and smoke. The horse suppresses not his breath by any means so long; neither is he fo fierce and animated; yet, the most correct of poets ventures to use the same metaphor concerning him.

Collectumque premens volvit sub naribus ignem.

By this, and the foregoing note, I would caution against a false opinion of the eastern boldness, from pasfages in them ill understood.

Page 258. Large is his front; and, when his humilit age, see ]. His eyes are like the eye-lids of the morning. I think this gives us as great an image of the thing it would expreis, as can enter the thought of the interest of the morning, which is the crocille's eye, from this pallage, though no commentator I have feen mentions it. It is easy to conceive how the Egyptians should be both readers and admirers of the writings of Moser, whom I suppose the author of the writings of Moser, whom I suppose the author of this poem. I have observed already, that three or four of the creatures here described, are Egyptian; the two last are notoriously fo : they are the river-horse, and the crocodile, those celebrated inhabitants of the Nile; and on thefe two it is that our author chiefly dwells. It would have been expected, from an author more remote from that river than Mofes, in a catalogue of creatures produced to magnify their Creator, to have dwelt on the two largest works of his hand, viz. the elephant and the whale: this is fo natural an expectation, that fome commentators have rendered Behemoth and Leviathan, the elephant and whale, though the descriptions in our author will not admit of it; but Mofes being (as we may well suppose) under an immediate terror of the hippopotamos and crocodile, from their daily mischiefs and ravages around him, it is very accountable why he fhould permit them to take place.
