PSALM LXXXIX. 16. In thy name shall they rejoice all the day: And in thy righteousness shall they be exalted.

THE Psalmist, in the beginning of this Psalm, having run out at a great length in the praise and commendation of the God of Israel, he comes, from the 15th verse of this Psalm, to declare the happiness of his Israel, of true believers, of whom Israel according to the flesh were a type.

Now God's Israel are a happy people, upon several accounts. 1st, Because they are privileged to know the joyful sound, in the beginning of the 15th verse: The gospel has a joyful sound, a sound of peace, a sound of life, a sound of liberty and salvation. You are all privileged to hear this sound, with your bodily ears; but the great question is, If you do know it, understand it, and give faith's entertainment to it. Alas! Isaiah's lamentation may but too justly be continued, with respect to the greatest part of the hearers of the gospel, Who hath believed our report? 2dly, God's Israel are a happy people, because they walk in the light of his countenance, in the close of the 15th verse: they are privileged with the special intimations of his love, which puts more gladness in their hearts, than when corn, wine, and oil doth abound. 3dly, Whatever discouragement they may meet with from the world, yet still they have ground of rejoicing in their God. In thy name shall they rejoice all the day, and Thanks be unto God, says the apostle, who always causeth us to triumph in Christ. 4thly, Their happiness is evident from this, that they are dignified and exalted above others, by the immaculate robe of a Surety's righteousness; as you see in the words of my text, In thy righteousness, shall they be exalted.

In which words briefly we may notice, 1st, The believer's promotion, he is exalted. In the first Adam we were debased unto the lowest hell; the crown having fallen from our heads: but in Christ, the second Adam, we are again exalted, yea exalted as high as heaven, for we sit together with him in heavenly places, says the apostle. This is an incredible paradox to a blind world, that the believer, who is sitting this moment upon the dung-hill of this earth, should at the same time be sitting in heaven in Christ his glorious head and representative; and yet it is indisputably true, that we sit together with him in heavenly places. Eph. ii 6. Yea, in him, He rules the nations with a rod of iron, and triumphs over, and treadeth upon all the powers of hell. 2dly We have the ground of the bebeliever's preferment and exaltation, it is in thy righteousness. It is not in any righteousness his own: No this he utterly disclaims, reckoning it but dung and lofs, filthy rags, dog's meat; but it is in thy righteousness; that is the righteousness of God; as the apostle calls it, Rom. i. 17. The righteousness which is of God by faith. Phil. iii. 9. The righteousness of God is variously taken in scripture. Sometimes for the infinite rectitude and equity of his nature, Psa. lvi. 7. The righteous Lord loveth righteousness. Sometimes for his rectoral equity, or distributive justice, which he exerciseth in the government of the world, rewarding the good, and punishing evil-doers, Psa. xci. 2. Righteousness and judgment are the habitation of thy throne. Sometimes it is put for the veracity and faithfulness in accomplishing his word of promise, or in executing his word of threatening, Psa. xxxvi. 56. 'Thy faithfulness reacheth unto the clouds, thy righteousness is like the great mountains.' Sometimes it is put for the perfect righteousness which Christ the Son of God as our Surety and Mediator brought in, by the obedience to the law, and death on the cross, for the justification of guilty sinners: And this, as I said is frequently called the righteousness of God, and in this sense I understand it here in the text. In thy righteousness shall they be exalted.

The observation is much the same with the words themselves; namely, 'That in or by the righteousness of Christ, believers are exalted.' Or thus, "Whatever honour or happiness believers are exalted to, the righteousness of Christ is the ground and foundation of it;" It is all owing to the complete obedience, and meritorious death of the ever-blessed Surety.

This the foundation, which God hath laid in Zion, upon which all our happiness in time and through eternity is built. I have not time now to adduce parallel texts of scripture for the confirmation of this doctrine, neither can I stand upon a long prosecution of it considering what great work you have before you thro' the day: All I shall do, shall be only in the first place.

I. To offer a few propositions anent this righteousness, that you may understand both the nature and necessity of it.

II. Give you a few of its properties, to clear its excellency.

III. Speak a little of the believer's exaltation by virtue of this righteousness.

IV. Apply.

For the First. To offer a few propositions anent this righteousness, for clearing its nature and necessity. 1st, Then, you would know, that God having made man a rational creature, capable of moral government, he gave him a law suited to his nature, by which he was to govern himself in the duties he owed to God his great Creator. This law was delivered to man in the form of a covenant; with a promise of life upon the condition of perfect obedience, Gen. ii. 17. Thus stood matters between God and man in a state of innocency.

2^{dly}. Adam, and all his posterity in him, and with him, having broken the covenant, are become liable to the curse, and penalty of it; so that our salvation is become absolutely impossible, until justice be satisfied, and the honour of the broken law be repaired; the law and justice of God are very peremptory, and stand upon a full satisfaction and reparation, otherwise heaven's gate shall be shut, and eternally barred against man and all his posterity. The flaming sword of justice turns every way, to keep us from access unto the paradise that is above.

3dly, While man in these circumstances was expecting nothing but to fall an eternal sacrifice unto divine justice, the eternal Son of God, in his infinite love and pity to perishing sinners, steps in as a Mediator and Surety; offering not only to take our nature, but to take our law-place, to stand in our room and stead; whereby the whole obligation of the law, both penal and preceptive, did fall upon him: That is, he becomes liable and obliged both to fulfil the command, and to endure the curse of the covenant of works, which we had violated. And here by the way, it is fit to advertise you, that it was an act of amazing grace in the Lord Jehovah, to admit a Surety in our room; for, had he stood to the rigour and severity of the law, he would have demanded a personal satisfaction, without admitting of the satisfaction of a surety: In which case, Adam and all his posterity had fallen under the stroke of avenging justice, through eternity. But glory to God, in the highest, who not only admitted of a surety, but provided one, and laid help upon one that is mighty.

4tly, Christ, the eternal Son of God, being in the fulness of time made of a woman, and made under the law, as our surety, he actually, in our room and stead, that in terms of the covenant of works that is, in a word, he obeyed all the commands of the law, and endures the curse of it, and thereby brings in a complete law-righteousness; whereby guilty sinners are justified before God: And this is the righteousness by which we are exalted, by his active and passive obedience he magnifies the law and makes it honourable, and the Lord declares himself to be well pleased for his righteousness' sake.

5tly, Although Christ obeyed the law, and satisfied justice, and thereby brought in an everlasting law righteousness for a whole elect world; yet the elect of God are never exalted by virtue of this righteousness till in a day of power they be brought to receive it by faith, and submit to it for justification before God. We disclaim that Antinomian error of an actual justification, from eternity, or yet of a formal justification, bearing date from the death of Christ. We own indeed, with all protestant sound divines, that it was the purpose of God to justify his elect from eternity, and that all the elect were represented by Christ in his obedience unto death: But that they are actually justified before conversion, or before their application by faith unto the blood of Jesus, is impossible; because the sentence of the broken law stands always in force against them, till they actually believe in the Son of God; for he that believes not, is condemned already: And how can they be both justified and condemned at the same time? Till then, they are children of wrath, even as others.

6thly, This righteousness of the Surety is conveyed unto us by imputation, as is abundantly plain from many places of scripture, particularly Rom. iv. 6, 11, 12, 23, 24. God reckons what the Surety did in our room unto us; so that his righteousness becomes as much ours for justification before God, as tho' we had obeyed the law, and satisfied justice in our own person. Now, this imputation of the Surety's righteousness runs principally upon these two or three things. 1st, Upon the eternal transaction between the Father and the Son, wherein the Son of God was chosen and sustained as the Surety of an elect world: then it was that he gave bond to the Father, to pay their debt, in the red gold of his blood; saying, Sacrifice and offering thou didst not desire; Lo, I come, I delight to do thy will. 2dly, It is grounded upon the actual imputation of our sins unto him. The Lord laid on him the iniquity of us all. There is a blessed exchange of places between Christ and his people; he takes on our sin and unrighteousness, that we may be clothed with the white robe of his righteousness, 2 Cor. v. 21. 'He was made sin for us who knew no sin, that we might be made the righteousness of God in him.' 2dly. This imputation goes upon the ground of the mystical union between Christ and the believer. When the poor soul is determined in a day of power to embrace the Lord Jesus in the arms of faith, Christ and he do that very moment coalesce into one body. He becomes a branch of the noble vine; a member of that body whereof Christ is the glorious head of eminence, influence and government. And being thus united to Christ, the long and white robe of the Mediator's righteousness is spread over him, whereby he is not only freed from condemnation, but for ever sustained as righteous in the sight of God, 1 Cor. i. 30. 'But of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption.'

The second general head was, To offer a few properties of this righteousness, in which believers are exalted, from whence its excellency will appear.

1st, Then it is an every way perfect and spotless righteousness; And how can it be otherwise, seeing it is the righteousness of God? So perfect is it, that the holy law is not only fulfilled, but magnified and made honourable thereby, Isa. xliii. 21. So perfect is this righteousness, that the piercing eye of infinite justice cannot find the least flaw in it: Yea, justice is so fully satisfied therewith, that God speaks of the soul that is clothed therewith, as tho' it were in a state of innocence and perfectly freed from sin: Tbou art all fair, my love; and there is no spot in thee. He hath not beheld iniquity in Jacob, nor perverseness in Israel. Indeed, he beholds many spots in the believer, considered in himself; but not a spot is in him, considered as under the covert of this spotless righteousness.

2^{dly}, It is a meritorious righteousness. The redemption of the soul is precious, and would have ceased for ever, unless it had been redeemed by this righteousness: For silver, and gold, and such corruptible things could never do it. Lay heaven, and all the glories thereof, in the balance with this righteousness, they would be all light as a feather compared with it. Heaven is called a purchased inheritance, and this righteousness is the price that bought it. There is such merit in it, that it expiates sins of the blackest hue, and redeems a whole elect world from wrath and ruin: Yea, such is the intrinsic value of it, that had it been so designed, it was sufficient to have redeemed the whole posterity of Adam, yea, ten thousand worlds of angels and men, upon a supposition of their existence, and fall. O with what confidence then may a poor soul venture its eternal salvation upon this bottom.

3dly, It is an incomparable righteousness: there is no righteousness, among the creatures that can be compared with it. Compare it with our own righteousness by the law, and the apostle Paul will tell us, that he reckoned his pharisaical righteousness before conversion, yea, his own obedience after conversion, but as dung, when laid in the balance with it. Phil. iii. 8. Compare it with Adam's righteousness in a state of innocence, or yet with the righteousness of spotless angels, they are but like glow-worms, when compared with this Sun: The one is but the righteousness of a creature, but here is the righteousness of God.

4thly, It is a soul-beautifying and adorning righteousness, Isa. lxi. 10. I will greatly rejoice in the Lord, my soul shall be joyful in my God, who hath clothed me with the garments of salvation, and covered me with the robes of righteousness; as a bridegroom decketh himself with ornaments, and as a bride adorneth herself with jewels. The poor soul that was black by lying among the pots, when clothed with this robe, shines as the wings of a dove covered with silver and her feathers with yellow gold.

5thly, It is an everlasting righteousness; as the prophet Daniel calls it, chap. ix. 24. Indeed this righteousness had no being, save in the purpose and promise of God, till Christ actually appeared in our nature, and satisfied the commands of the law, and demands of justice; however, upon that very being that it had in the purpose and promise of God, it became effectual for the justification of all the old-testament saints. This righteousness then, I say, is an everlasting righteousness, both as to the contrivance and duration of it. The contrivance of it bears date from the council of peace in the ancient years of eternity: For the Surety was set up from everlasting. And as it is everlasting in its root, so also in its fruit; for, upon this righteousness, the saints will stand and be assol'd at the day of judgment; and, upon this bottom, they will have their standing in heaven through eternity. The song of the redeemed for ever will be, 'He loved us, and washed us with his blood.'

6thly, It is a soul dignifying and exalting righteousness. Solomon, Prov. xxv. 4. speaking of equity in the administration of justice, says, that even that king of righteousness exalteth a nation. I am sure this holds true in the imputed righteousness of Christ, as you see in my text, In thy righteousness shall they be exalted. But this leads to the Third thing in the method, which was to speak of the believer's exaltation by virtue of this righteousness. And here I will very briefly shew 1st, what evil it exalts him above, 2^{dly} What happiness and dignity it exalts him to.

First, What evil it exalts him above.

1st, It exalts him above the law as a covenant of works; yea, above both the commanding and condemning power of that covenant. Ye are not under the law, says the apostle, but under grace. Rom. vi. 14. And if they are not under it, it follows that they are exalted above it. Indeed, they are not, and cannot be above it as a rule of duty: no creature can be dispensed from the obligation of yielding obedience to the laws of the great Creator; And the believer in a peculiar manner is bound to obey the law of a Creator, in the hand of a Mediator; But considering the law as a covenant of works, demanding the debt of obedience as a condition of life, or threatening eternal wrath in case of disobedience, the believer is indeed exalted above it by the righteousness of Christ; and if the law at any time attempt to bring the believer in bondage to it, he is to stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made him free. The bond-woman Hagar, with her offspring of legal fears and terrors, are cast out by faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, Gal. iv. 30. If a believer in Christ shall hear the thunderings and curses of mount Ebel, or Sinai, he has no reason to be affrighted; for Christ by his righteousness hath redeemed him from the curse of the law. Thou art not come to the mount that burned with fire or blackness, and darkness, and tempest; but thou art come to mount Zion, and to Jesus the Mediator of the new Covenant, and to the blood of sprinkling, which speaketh better things than that of Abel. The believer is dead to the law by the body of Christ, being married unto a better husband, even to him that is raised from the dead.

2dly, By this righteousness the believer is exalted above the world; Rev. xii. 1. The woman clothed with the sun, has the moon under her feet: which may not only point at the believer's duty to soar heavenward in his affections, but also his privilege in Christ to trample both upon the frowns and flatteries of this lower world; according to that of the apostle, This is the victory whereby we overcome the world, even our faith.

3dly, by this righteousness he is exalted above the power and malice of Satan. Indeed, as long as the believer is on this side of Jordan, the devil will be harassing him with his fiery darts, and do his utmost to make him go halting to heaven; by virtue of this righteousness, namely, the doing and dying of our ever-blessed Surety, the devil is both disarmed and destroyed: the head of the old serpent is bruised; for, thro' death, he destroyed him that had the power of death, that is the devil. And by faith in the blood and obedience of the Lord Jesus the believer treads Satan under his feet: they overcome him by the blood of the Lamb.

4thly, By this righteousness the believer is exalted above death. Perhaps thou art in bondage through fear of death; thy heart is like to faint and fail thee, when thou lookest to the swellings of this Jordan: But take a view of this righteousness, and thou shalt be exalted above the fears of it; altho' thou be liable to the stroke of death, yet by this righteousness thou art freed from the sting of it. What is the sting of death? It is sin. Now Christ has finished transgression and made an end of sin, by bringing in everlasting righteousness. And therefore thou mayst roll that word like a sweet morsel under thy tongue, Hof. xiii. 14. 'I will ransom them from the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death: O death, I will be thy plague; O grave I will be thy destruction.'

5thly. By this righteousness the believer is exalted above all accusations, from whatever airth they may come. Rom. viii. 33. there the apostle gives a bold challenge, Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect? The challenge is universal in respect of all accusers; as if he had said, Is there any in heaven, earth, or hell, that can accuse them? It is universal in respect of all the accused: for the whole elect of God are comprehended, among whom there have been as great sinners, as ever breathed on God's earth. And it is universal in respect of all crimes. It is not said, who shall lay this, or that, or the other crime to their charge? But, any thing? And what can be more comprehensive? Now what is the ground of this bold challenge? 'Tis grounded on the righteousness of Christ: For, says the apostle, 'It is God that justifieth, who is he that condemneth? it is Christ that died, yea, rather that is risen again,' &c.

I come, Secondly, to shew, What happiness or dignity the believer is exalted to by virtue of this righteousness. And, in so many words, I only name these two or three particulars, 1st,

He is exalted by it unto a state of peace and reconciliation with God. Rom. v. 1. Being justified by faith we have peace with God. God for ever lays aside every grudge in his heart against the soul that is clothed therewith.

2dly, They are exalted by this righteousness unto a state of sonship. Christ was made under the law, to redeem us that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons. Gal. iv. 4.

3dly, Unto a state of fellowship and familiarity with God, and access to him with holy confidence and boldness, Heb. iv. 14. 16. 'Having therefore, brethren, boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus, by a new and living way, which he had consecrated for us through the vial, that is to say, his flesh; and having an high priest over the house of God; let us draw near with true hearts, in full assurance of faith, Heb. x. 19. &c. Having such a great high priest over the house of God, let us come with boldness to a throne of grace.' The believer may come under the covert of this righteousness, with as great freedom unto God, as his Father in Christ, as ever Adam could have done in a state of innocence.

4tly, At last thou shalt be exalted to a state of endless glory. For heaven (as I was hinting before) is the purchase of the obedience and death of Christ; and faith acted on this righteousness and satisfaction is the path of life, by which we enter into these rivers of pleasures, and that fulness of joy which is at God's right-hand for ever-more.

The Fourth thing was the application of the doctrine. And my first use shall be of information, in these few particulars.

1st, Is it so, that in a Surety's righteousness, believers are exalted: then see hence, that whatever account the world may make of them as the dross and off-scouring of the earth, yet they are dignified persons in God's reckoning: 'Ever since thou wast precious in my sight, thou hast been honourable.'

2^{dly}, See hence, that the believer has no ground of boasting. Why? Because it is not in his own, but in Christ's righteousness, that he is exalted: Boasting is excluded says the apostle, by what law? of works? Nay, but by the law of faith. Rom. iii. 27. If it were by our own doings or obedience that we are exalted, we have nothing whereof to glory in ourselves. There are three questions that the apostle asks, which may silence all flesh, and put all boasters to an eternal blush, 1 Cor. iv. 7 'Who maketh thee to differ? What hast thou that thou didst not receive? Why dost thou glory as if thou had not received it?' Let believers themselves pose their souls with those or the like inquires, when pride begins to rise in their breasts.

3^{dly}, See hence what obligation we lie under to the Lord Jesus: Who, altho' he was the great law-giver, yet was content to be made under the law: though he was the Lord of life, yet humbled himself unto the death, to bring in that righteousness by which we are exalted. He was content to be numbered among the transgressors, that we might be counted among the righteous: He was content to become sin, that we might be made the righteousness of God;

content to become a curse for us, that the blessing of Abraham might rest upon us, O admire this love, which passeth knowledge.

4thly, See hence a noble antidote against a spirit of bondage unto fear. What is it that thou fearest, O believer? Indeed, if thou sin, thou mayest see the rod of a father; for he will visit thy transgression with a rod, and chide iniquity with stripes: but art thou afraid of the vindictive wrath? there is no ground for this Luke i. 74. He has delivered us out of the hands of our enemies, that we might serve him without fear: that is, without all servile or slavish fear of wrath. Art thou afraid of the tempests of Mount Sinai: there is no ground for that, for the storm broke upon the head of the Surety; and therefore thou mayest sing and say, as Isa. xii. 1. Thou wast angry with me, thine anger is turned away. Art thou afraid lest thou be refused access unto the presence-chamber? Improve this righteousness by faith, and thou shalt see that the way to the holy of holies is opened, and get the banner of love displayed over thee. Whenever the poor believer takes the righteousness of the Surety in the hand of faith, and holds it up unto God as the ransom of his own sinning, he is so well pleased with it, that his frowns are turned into smiles. In a word, you shall never get ride of a spirit of bondage, till you learn by faith to improve this law bidding righteousness; and then indeed legal fears and terrors do vanish like the darkness of the night, before the rising of the sun.

Use second of reproof, unto all those who are seeking to exalt themselves by righteousness of their own, like the Jews, Rom. x. 3. 'Who went about to establish their own righteousness of would not submit to the righteousness of God.' There are some of the hearers of the gospel, who exalt themselves in a native righteousness: they are not so bad as others; they are free of gross out-breakings, being no common drunkards, swearers, or sabbath-breakers, and therefore conclude that all is right with them: but, first, the Pharisee could make their brag, and Paul before conversion could say that touching the law he was blameless; and yet, when God opened his eyes, he found himself lying under the arrest of justice: For, when the commandment came sin revived, and he died. Others are exalting themselves in a moral kind of righteousness: they not only cease to do evil, but do many things that are materially good: they are sober, temperate, just, in their dealings, liberal to the poor, good peaceable neighbours; they love every body, and every body loves them; they keep the commandments as well as they can; and this is the ground they are standing upon. But I may say to you, as Christ said to the young man, who told him. All these things have I kept from my youth up One thing thou yet lackest. O what is that? say you, I answer, it is to be brought off from that rotten bottom of a covenant of works that ye are standing upon. Ye want to see that ye are spiritually dead in trespasses and sins, and that ye are legally dead, condemned already, and the wrath of God abideth on you. Ye want to see, that all your own righteousness is as filthy rags, and to be made to say with the church, Surely in the Lord have I righteousness and strength. Others will go further than bare morality: they will abound in the duties of religion, read, hear, pray, communicate, run from sermon to sermon, from sacrament to sacrament, and upon these things they rest; all these things are good in their proper place, but if you build your hope of acceptance here, you are still upon a covenant of works bottom, seeking righteousness, as it were by the works of the law; and while you do so, you do but seek the living among the dead. All your works are but dead works; till you be in Christ; and they will but stand as cyphers in God's reckoning, till you be brought to submit to this righteousness, by which alone guilty sinners can be exalted. Others rely upon a mixt kind of righteousness: they will freely own that their duties and performances will never exalt them into favour and acceptance with God; but, O, say they, it is Christ and our duties Christ and our prayers, he and our tears and repentance, that must do it. But believe it, Sirs, Christ and the idol of self will never cement. These old rotten rags will never piece in with the white and new robe of the righteousness of the Son of God; and if you adventure to mingle them together, Christ shall profit you nothing. Gal. v. 2. 3. 4. Others again, they will pretend to renounce all their works and duties, and own with their mouths that it is by faith in Christ only that they hope to be accepted; but tho' they own this with their mouth, yet still their hearts cleave fast unto the covenant of works; they were never thro' the law dead to the law.

And when nothing else will do, they will make their own act of believing the righteousness on which they lean for acceptance: which is still a seeking righteousness in themselves: whereas, if ever we be justified before God, we must have it in the Lord Jesus, saying, In him we will be justified, and in him alone we will glory. Faith carries the soul quite out of itself; yea, faith renounces its own act in the point of justification. All these, and many other rooms and lying refuges hath the devil and our hearts devised, to lead us off from Christ: But, O sirs, believe it, these are but imaginary sanctuaries, and the hail will sweep them away. Nothing but the doing and dying of the Surety, apprehended by faith, will ever exalt you into favour and friendship with God; or acquit you from the curse and condemnation of the broken law; and unless ye betake yourselves to the horns of this blessed altar, to this refuge of God's appointing, you are undone; and you may read your doom, Isa. l. 11. 'Behold all ye that kindle a fire; that compass yourselves about with sparks: walk in the light of your fire, and in the sparks that ye have kindled. This shall ye have of mine hand, ye shall lie down in sorrow.'

Use third, of Trial. Is it so, that in Christ's righteousness we are exalted? O then, sirs, try if you be really exalted by this righteousness.

There is the more need to try this now, that you are to approach the table of the Lord; this righteousness is the wedding-garment without which ye cannot be welcome guests. And, if you adventure to meddle with the symbols of Christ's body and blood without it, you may expect that the master of the feast will say to you, Friend, how camest thou hither wanting the wedding-garment? For your trial, I offer these two or three things. 1st, hast thou seen thyself condemned by the law or covenant of works? every man by nature is condemned already, while out of Christ. Now, the ordinary way that God takes of bringing an elect soul into Christ, and under the covering of his righteousness, is by discovering unto him the sentence of condemnation that he is under, by virtue of the broken law; and thus paves the way toward his acceptance of Christ as the Lord our righteousness. For thus it is that the law is our school-master to lead us to Christ, that we may be justified by faith. The Lord leads the sinner to mount Zion by the foot of Sinai. The Spirit's way is first to convince of sin, and then of righteousness. 2dly, Has the Lord discovered the Surety and his righteousness to thee? And has thy soul found rest here? Perhaps the law and its curses, justice and wrath were pursuing thee; and thou could not find a hole wherein to hide thy head; all refuges fail'd: At length the Lord drew by the veil, and discovered his righteousness as a sufficient shelter, saying Turn into the strong hold thou prisoner of hope; and hither thou fled, as into a city of refuge, saying, This is my rest here will I dwell. Readily, when it comes to this, there is a little heaven of serenity and joy enters into the soul; so that, if it were possible, it would make heaven and earth to ring with hallelujahs of praise unto God for his unspeakable gift. Dost thou not know, O believer, something of this, to thy sweet experience? This says that in his righteousness thou art exalted. 3dly, When an arrow of conviction is at any time shot by the hand of God into thy conscience, whereby thy peace and quiet is disturbed, whither dost thou run for ease and relief? The man that is married to the law, he runs into the law for relief and ease; the law is the thing that heals him; his prayers, his tears, his reformation, is that which stops the mouth of his conscience: but as for the believer, he can never rest on this side of the blood of sprinkling; he gets his healing only from under the wings of the Sun of righteousness. No other balm will give him ease, but the balm of Gilead; and no other hand can apply it but the physician there. 4tly, If you be exalted by imputed righteousness, you will be the real students of gospel-yourselfes then by this, whether you be exalted by this righteousness. Are you delivered from the reigning power of sin? At least, is so far broken, that it is become your burden, under which you may groan, saying with the apostle, Wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from the body of this death?

Use fourth, shall be of Consolation and encouragement to believers, who are exalted in this righteousness. By virtue of it, O believer, thou can stand in need of. Whatever grace or mercy thou wantest, thou shall have it, if thou do but improve this law-biding righteousness. Wantest thou pardoning grace, to take away the guilt of sin? That is one of the gifts of God, thro' the righteousness of Christ apprehended by faith: For he is set forth to be a propitiation thro' faith in his blood. to shew forth his righteousness for the remission of sins. Wantest thou to have thy peace with God confirmed? Improve this righteousness by faith: For, being justified by faith, we have peace with God thro' the Lord Jesus Christ. Wantest thou access unto the holiest? by faith in the blood of Jesus have we access with boldness. Wantest thou medicinal grace for healing of soul-pleagues; Improve this righteousness by faith: For by his stripes we are healed. Out of the side of our gospel-altar comes forth living water, that bealetb the corrupt and dead sea of indwelling corruption, Ezek. xlvii. at the beginning. This is the tree of life, whose leaves are for the healing of the nations. Wantest thou a shadow or covering, to shelter thy weary soul from the scorching heat of divine anger, or of temptation from Satan, or tribulation from the world? improve this righteousness, and sit down under the shadow of it. It is as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land. Wantest thou courage to look the law or justice of God in the face? Here is a fund for it; under this covering you may look out with confidence, and say, Who can lay any thing to my charge? Wantest thou to have the new covenant confirmed to thy soul? improve this righteousness by faith: for Christ, by his obedience and death, confirmed the covenant with many. His blood is the blood of the new testament, and when the soul by faith takes hold of it, the covenant of grace is that moment confirmed unto it for ever.

In a word, by virtue of this righteousness, thou mayest come to a communion table, and to throne of grace, and ask what thou wilt, our heavenly Father can refuse nothing to the younger brethren, who come to him in their elder Brother's garment. By virtue of this righteousness, thou mayest lay claim to every thing, and to all the blessings of heaven and eternity; thou didst indeed forfeit thy right in the first Adam, but the forfeiture is recovered, and the right restored to thee, upon a better ground, namely, upon the obedience and death of the second Adam; and thou comest in upon his right. May not all this then revive thy drooping spirit? And make thee take up that song in the text? "In thy name will I rejoice all the day; and in thy righteousness will I be exalted."
