

Published according to Act of Parliament

ADVENTURES

OF

Roderick Random.

A NEW EDITION. IN TWO VOLUMES. VOLUME FIRST. Et genus & virtus, nifi cum re, vilior alga eft. Hore' LONDON: Printed for J. WREN, and W. HODGES. MDCCLXXXIV.

TO F III T

THE

PREFACE.

O F all kinds of faire; there a none to entertaining and univerfally improving, as that which is introduced, as it were, occifonally, in the courfe of an interefling flory, which brings every incident home to life; and by reprefenting familiar fecences in an uncommon and amufing point of view, invefts them with all the graces of novelty, while nature is appealed to in every particular.

The Reader gratifies his coriofity, in purfuing the adventures of a perfon in whole favour he is prepoficified : he expose his caule, he fympathizes with him in diflerefs, his indignation is heated against the authors of his calamity is the hormone pations are influend a the contraft between dejected wirtue, and infulting vice, appears with greater aggravation, and every insprefing having a double force on the imagination, the memory retains the circumfance, and into the every insprefine the example. The attention is not tired with a bare catalogue of charaders, but agreeably diverted with all the appear in their peculiar circumfances, opening an ample field for wit and humour.

Romance, no doubt, owes its origin to ignorance, vanity, and inperlision. In the dark ages of the world, when a run had rendered himicil famous for wildom or valour, his family and adherents availed themfelves of his luperior qualities, magnified his virtues, and reprefeated his characher and perion as facred and fupernatiral. The vulgar eafily feallowed the bait, implored his protection, and yielded the tribute of hom age and praile even to adorstion; his exploits were handed down to a 2 policity pofferity with a thousand exaggerations : they were re's peated as incitements to virtue : divine honours were paid, and altars crefted to his memory for the encouragement of those who attempted to imitate his example; and hence arole the heathen mythology, which is no o. ther than a collection of extravagant romances .--- As learning advanced, and genius received cultivation, thefe ftories were embellished with the graces of poetry ; that they might the better recommend themfelves to the attention, they were fung in public, at fellivals for the inftruction and delight of the audience ; and rehearfed before battle, as incentives to deeds of glory. Thus tragedy and the epic mufe were born, and, in the progreis of tafte, arrived at perfection --- It is no wonder. that the ancients could not relifh a fable in profe. after. they had feen fo many remarkable events celebrated in verfe, by the best poets : we therefore find no romance among them, during the zra of their excellence, unlefs the Cyropædia of Xenophon may be fo called; and it was not till arts and fciences began to revive, after the irruption of the Barbarians into Europe, that any thing of this kind appeared. But when the minds of men were debauched by the imposition of prielt-craft to the molt abfurd pitch of credulity ; the authors of romance arofe, and lofing fight of probability, filled their performances with the most monstrous hyperboles. If they could not equal the ancient poets in point of genius, they were refolved to excel them in fiction, and apply to the wonder rather than the judgment of their readers. Accordingly they brought necromancy to their aid, and inftead of fupporting the character of their heroes by dignity of fentiment and practice, distinguilhed them by their bodily ftrength, activity, and extravagance of behaviour. Although nothing could be more ludicrous and unnatural than the figures they drew, they did not want patrons and admirers, and the world actually began to be infected with the spirit of knight-errantry, when Cervantes, by an inimitable piece of ridicule, reformed the tafte of mankind, reprefenting chivalry in the right point of view, and converting romance to purpofes tar more uleful and entertaining, by making it allume the fock, and point out the follies of ordinary life. The

iv

The PREFACE.

The fame method has been praftifed by other Spanifh and French authors, and by none more fuccefsfully than by Monfieur Le Sage, who, in his Adventures of Gil Blas, has deferibed the knavery and foibles of life, with infinite humour and fagacity .- The following fheets L have modelled on his plan, taking the liberty, however, to differ from him in the execution, where I thought his particular finations were uncommon, extravagant, or peculiar to the country in which the fcene is laid .- The difgraces of Gil Bias are, for the most part, fuch as rather excite mirth and compaffion ; he himfelf laughs at them ; and his transitions from diffreis to happinels, or at leaft eafe, are fo fudden, that neither the reader has time to pity him, nor hinfelf to be acquainted with affliction. This conduct, in my opinion, not only deviates from probability, but prevents that generous indignation which ought to animate the reader, againft the fordid and vicious disposition of the world.

I have attempted to represent modeft merit ftruggling with every difficulty to which a friendless orphan is expoled, from his own want of experience as well as from the felfibnefs, envy, malice, and bale indifference of mankind .- Po fecure a favourable propoffellion, I have allowed him the advantages of birth and education, which in the feries of his misfortunes will, I hope, engage the ingenuous more warmly in his behalf; and though I forefee, that fome people will be offended at the mean feenes in which he is involved, I periuade myfelf the judicious will not only perceive the neceffity of deferibing those fituations to which he muit of course be confined, in his low effate, but alfo find entertainment in viewing those parts of life, where the humours and paffions are undifguiled by affectation, ceremony or education: and the whimiical peculiarities of disposition appear as nature has implanted them .- But I believe I need not trouble myfelf in vindicating a practice authorifed by the beth writers in this way, fome of who.n I have already named.

Every intelligent reader will, at first fight, perceive I have not deviated from nature, in the facts, which are all true in the main, although the circumftances are altered and difguiled, travoid perfonal faire. It now remains to give my reafons for making the chief perfonage of this work a North Briton; which are effield theles: I could at a fmall expence beflow on him fuch education as I thought the digaity of his birth and charafter required, which could not pollicly be obtained in England, by fuch flender means as the nature of my plan would afford. In the next place, I could reprefent fimplicity of manner in a remote part of the kingdom, with more propriety than in any place near the expiral; and hafly, the diffontion of the Scots, addiéled to travelling, judifier my conduct in deriving an advonturer from that country.

That the delicate reader may not be offanded at the ubmeaning oaths which proceed from the mouths of fome perfons in these memoirs, I beg leave to premile, that I imagined nothing could more effectually expose the abfurdity of fuch milerable expletives, than a natural and verbal representation of the discourse in which they occur.

APOLOGUE.

POLOGUE.

A Poung painter indulging a win of plafantry, stetched a kind of conversation piece, reprefering a hear, an woll, a monkty, and an afs; and to render it more striking, humorous, and morel, diffinguilhed every figure by fome emblem of human life.

Brain was exhibited in the gerb and attitude of an odd tothisfy, druwhen foltier; the oeal arcicle yon the handle of a eiffer petr, with fyreflactes on his nofe, formed to contemplate a meurophyre; and the afs ensametted with a buge ty-wite, fullive to the numbry, who appeared with the implements of plating. This wholf and groups afforded form mirth, and met with general approbation, until form sufficiences was mit disting the whole was a lampon you the friends of the performer; an infimiation write was no forme circulated four the to energy poole who applanded it boffers, hegan to he alarmed, and even to fanny themfelse figuilited by the feweral figures of the price.

⁶ Among athers, a worth perfonge in years, who had foreed in the any with repartials, being incended athe fappled attrags, repaired is the bedgings of the pointer, and finding thing theme, "Hark ye, Mr. Mouker, faid he, I have a ged "mind is constance you that though thebeats has left bit tests, the retains his power, and that he is not jo drank but he can perceive your impertinence." Should jir, that toothoff, jaw "is a dammed fandalous likel—but, don't you imagine me fo "chopiallen an ont to be able to acheve the cut of referencent." "Hereche was interrupted by the arrival of a larned phyference, was interrupted by the arrival of a larned phyfelen, who advancing to the along is more. Jeke not to preca-"prove the diministion of the baboost -max. Jeke not to preca-" tricate, for hy the beard of Efcalapius! there is not one have "in a doment of the baboost."  in this perimig that will not fland up in judgment to con- vidt this of perfonal abuft-Do but obferve, captain, bew  this patial listle follow has copied the very curls — the co- low, indeed, is different, but teen the form and foretop are  quite jimiler" — "Will be thus removes fracted in a firain of voie icration, a venerable (mator enteed, and waadling up to the defingent,  "Gatampest 1 eried be, I will new let  thet for, I can read famething elfe than a news-paper, and  that without the help of fortlacks-bere is your own note of  show for many, which if I had not advanced, you  yourfielf would bace refembled an wul, in not daring to fleve  yourfielf would bace refembled an wul, in not daring to fleve  your face by day, you ungrateful, flanderous knoce."

In vain the affonithed painter declared that be had no intention to give offence, or to charafterife particular perfons they affirmed the refermblance was too palphele to be over-looked, they taxed him with infolence, malice, and ingratitude; a dutheir clamours being overheard by the publick, the captain war a bear, the defter an afs, and the fenator an own bo bit dying do.

Christian reader, I before these, in the boasel of the Lord, renember this example while these art employed in the perufal of the following firsts; and fack not to appropriate to thyleff that which equally beings to five hundred different people. If they fixed for the following to the character that rejuble there in force ungracious particular, keep thy own council i confider that one feature makes not a face, and though thou art, perhaps, dfitngafied by a bathe nofe, tweety of thy neighbours may be in the fame predicament.

THE

F 1 7

THE

ADVENTURES

OF

Roderick Random.

CHAP. I.

Of my birth and parentage.

WAS born in the northern part of this united kingdom, in the houfe of my grandfather, a gentleun of confiderable fortune and influence, who had on any occafions fignalized himfelf in behalf of his couny; and was remarkable for his abilities in the law; hich he exercised with great fuecels, in the flation of judge, particularly against beggars, for whom he had fingular avertion.

My father (his youngeft fon) falling in love with a orr relation, who lived with the old gentleman in quaty of houfe-keeper, efpoufed her privately; and I was is fird fruit of that marriage.— During her pregancy, a dream difcompofed my mother fo much that re bufkand, tired with her importunity, at laf contied a highland feer, whole favourable interpretation z would have fecured before hand by a bribe, but und him incorruptible. She dreamed, the was devered of a tennis-ball, which the devil (who, to her east furprice, acted the part of midwife) furuck fo forbly with a racket, that it disappeared in a inflant: You I. A and

and the was for fome time inconfolable for the lofs of her offspring ; when all of a fudden, the beheld it return with equal violence, and enter the earth beneath her feet, whence immediately forting up a goodly tree covered with bloffoms, the fcent of which operated for frongly on her nerves that the awoke. The attentive fage, after fome deliberation, affured my parents, that their firft-born would be a great traveller : that he would undergo many dangers and difficulties, and at laft return to his own native land, where he would flourish in. happinels and reputation --- How truly this was foretold will appear in the feguel .- It was not long before fome officious perfon informed my grandfather of certain familiarities that paffed between his fon and houfe keeper, which alarmed him fo much that, a few days: after, he told my father, it was high time for him ton think of fettling ; and that he had provided a match for it him; to which he could in juffice have no objections. My father, finding it would be impeffible to conceal his fituation much longer, frankly owned what he had done : and excufed himfelf for not having afked their cenfent of his father, by faying, he knew it would have been to no purpofe ; and that, had his inclination been known, my grandfather might have taken fuch meafures as would have effectually put the gratification of it out of his power : he added, that no exceptions could . be taken to his wife's virtue, birth, beauty, and good of fenfe, and as for fortune, it was beneath his care .- The old gentleman, who kept all his pathons, except one, incl excellent order, heard him to an end with great temperal and then calmly afked, how he proposed to maintaining himfelf and fpoufe ?- He replied, he could be in no danger of wanting, while his father's tendernefs remained, which he and his wife fhould always cultivate with the utmost veneration; that he was perfuaded his allowance would be fuitable to the dignity and circumstances of his family ; and to the provision already made for his brothers and fifters, who were happily fettled under i his protection .---- " Your brothers and fifters, faid my grandfather, did not think it beneath them to confult me in an affair of fuch importance as matrimony ; nei-il ther (I fup; ofe) would you have omitted that piece of duty, had not you fome facret fund in referve ; to the comforts of which I leave you, with a defire that you will this night feck out another habitation for yourfelf and wife, whither, in a fort time, I will fend you an account of the expence I have been at in you education, with a view of being reimburfed -Sir, you have made the grand tour-you are a polite gentleman-a very pretty gentleman, I with you a great deal of joy, and am your very humble fervant." So faying, he left my father in a fituation eafily imagined. However, he did not long hefitate ; for, being perfectly well acquainted with his father's disposition, he did not doubt that he was glad of this pretence to get rid of him : and his refolves being invariable as the laws of the Medes and Perfians, he knew it would be to no purpofe to attempt him by prayers and entreaties ; fo without any further application, he betook himfelf, with his dif. confolate bedfellow, to a farm houfe, where an old fervant of his mother dwelt; there they remained for fome time in a fituation but ill adapted to the elegance of their defires and tendernels of their love; which nevertheleis my father chofe to endure, rather than fupplicate an unnatural and inflexible parent : but, my mother forefeeing the inconveniencies to which the muft have been exposed had the been delivered in this place, (and her pregnancy was very far advanced) without communicating her defign to her hufband, went in difguife to the houfe of my grandfather, hoping that her tears and condition would move him to compallion, and reconcile him to an event which was now irrevocably was introduced as an unfortunate lady who wanted to complain of fome matrimonial grievances, it being my graudfather's particular province to defide in all cafes of Icandal. She was accordingly admitted into his prefence, where difcovering herfelt the fell at his feet, and a the most affecting manner, implored his forgivenes: at the fame time, representing the danger that threatned hat only her life, but that of his own grandchild which was about to fee the light .- He told her, he was forry iat the indiferction of her and his fon had compelled im to make a vow, which put it out of his power to A 2 give give them any affiliance .-. That he had already imparted his thoughts on that fubiect to her hufband, and was furprized that they fhould diffurb his peace with any further importunity. This faid, he retired. The violence of my mother's affliction had fuch an effect on her conflitution, that fhe was immediately feized with the pains of child bed; and had not an old maid-fervant, to whom the was very dear, afforded her nity and affiftance, at the hazard of incurring my grandfather's difpleafure, the and the innocent fruit of her womb mult have fallen miferable victims to his rigour and inhumanity. By the friendfhip of this poor woman, the was carried up to a garret, and immediately delivered of a man child, the ftory of whofe unfortunate birth he himfelf relates .--- My father being informed of what had happened, flew to the embraces of his darling fpoule, and while he loaded his offspring with paternal careffes, could not forbear fhedding a flood of tears on beholding the dear partner of his heart (for whole cale he would have facrificed the treasures of the east) itretched upon a flock-bed, in a miferable spartment, unable to protect her from the inclemencies of the weather. It is not to be fuppofed that the old gentleman was ignorant of what paffed, tho' he affected to know nothing of the matter, and pretended to be very much furprized, when one of his grandchildren, by his eldeft fon deceafed, who lived with him as his heir apparent, acquainted him with the affair ; he determined therefore to obferve no medium, but immediately (on the third day after her delivery) fent her a peremptory order to be gone, and turned off the fervant that preferved her life. This behaviour fo exafperated my father, that he had recourse to the most dreadful imprecations; and on his bare knees implored that heaven would renounce him if ever he flouid forget or forgive the barbarity of his fire. The injuries which this unhappy mother received from her removal in fuch circumstances, and the want of neceflaries where the lodged, together with her grief and anxiety of mind, foon threw her into a languithing diforder, which put an end to her life. My father, who loved her tenderly, was to affected with her death, that he remained fix weeks deprived of his fenfes: during which

which time, the people where he lodged carried the infant to the old man, who relented fo far, on hearing the melancholy flory of his daughter-in-law's death, and the deplorab ; condition of his fon, as to fend the child to nurfe, and be ordered my father to be carried home to his houfe, where he foon recovered the ufe of his reafon. Whether this hard-hearted judge felt any remorfe for this cruel treatment of his fon and daughter; or (which is more probable) was afraid his character would fuffer in the neighbourhood ; he profeffed great forrow for his conduct to my father, whole delirium was fucceeded by a profound melancholy and referve. At length he difappeared, and notwithstanding all imaginary inquiry, could not be heard of, a circumstance which confirmed most people in the opinion of his having made away with himfelf in a fit of deipair. How I understood the particulars of my birth, will ap. pear in the course of these memoirs.

CHAP. TI.

I grow up-am hated by my relations—first to (shol)—neglefted by my granifisher—maltreated by my miller faciload to awerfity—I form cabal, againft the pedant am debatted accefs to my grandfather—wasted by his heir —I demolifs the teetb of his tator.

HERE were not wanting fome, who fufpected I my uncles of being concerned in my father's fate, on the fuppolition that they would all fhare in the patrimony deflined for him : and this conjecture was Arengthened by reflecting, that in all his calamities they never discovered the least inclination to ferve him ; but on the contrary, by all the artifices in their power, fed his father's refentment, and fupported his reiolution of leaving him to mifery and want .- But people of judgment treated this infinuation as an idle chimera ; becaufe, had my relations been fo wicked as to confult their interest by committing fuch an atrocious crime, the fate of my father would have extended to me too, whofe life was another obitacle to their expectation .- Mean while, 1 grow apace, and as I ftrongly refembled my A 3 father.

father, who was the darling of the tenants. I wanted nothing which their indigent circumstances could afford : but their favour was a weak refource against the jealous enmity of my coufins : who the more my infancy promifed, conceived the more implacable hatred againft me : and before I was fir years of age, had to effectual. Iv blockaded my grandfather, that I never faw him but by fealth, when I fometimes made up to his chair as he fat to view his labourers in the field : on which occafions, he would froak my head, bid me be a good boy, and promife to take care of me-I was foon after fept to ichool at a village hard by, of which he had been dictator time out of mind : but, as he never paid for my board, nor fupplied me with cloaths, books, and other neceffaries I required, my condition was very rauged and contemptible, and the fchoolmafter, who, through fear of my grandfather, taught me gratis, gave himfelf no concern about the prozrefs I made under his inftruction .- In fpite of all these difficulties and diffraces. I became a good proficient in the Latin tongue; and as foon as I could write tolerably, peffered my grandfather with letters to fuch a degree, that he feat for my mafler, and chid him feverely for beflowing fuch pains on my education, telling him that if ever I should be brought to the gallows for forgery, which he had taught me to commit, my blood would lie on his head. The pedant, who dreaded nothing more than the difpleafure of his patron, affured his honour that the boy's ability was more owing to his own genius and application than to any inflruction or encouragement he received ; that although he could not diven him of the knowledge he had already imbibed, unleis he would impower him to difable his fingers, he fhould endeavour, with God's help, to prevent his future improvement. And indeed he punctually performed what he had un. dertaken : for, on pretence that I had writ impertinent letters to my grandfather, he caufed a board to be made with five holes in it, through which he thrust the fingers and thumb of my right hand, and fastened it by whip cord to my writt, in fuch a manner as effectually debarred me the ufe of my pen. But this refiraint I was freed from in a few days by an accident which which happened in a quarrel between me and another boy, who taking upon him to infult my poverty, I was to incenfed at his ungenerous reproach, that with one ftroke of my machine. I cut him to the fkull, to the great terror of myfelf and fchool-fellows, who left him bleeding on the ground, and ran to inform the mafter of what had happened. I was to feverely punished for this trefoafs, that, were I to live to the age of Methufalem, the imprefion it made on me would not be erfaced ; no more than the antipathy and horror I conceived for the mercilefs tyrant who inflicted it. The contempt which my appearance naturally produced, in all who faw me, the continual wants to which I was expofed, and my own haughty disposition, impatient of affronts, involved me in a thousand troublesome adventures, by which I was at length insteed to adverfity, and emboldened to undertakings far above my years. I was often inhumanely scourged for crimes I did not commit, becaufe, having the character of a vagabond in the village, every piece of mifchief whole author lay unknown, was charged upon me. I have been found guilty of robbing orchards I never entered, of killing cats I never hurted, of ilcaling giagerbread I never touched, and of abufing old women I never faw .- Nay, a flammering carpenter had eloquence enough to perfuade my matter, that I fired a pittod load . ed with fmall thot into his windows : though my land. lady and the whole family bore witness, that I was abed falt affrep at the time when this outrage was com. mitted-I was once flogged for having narrowly elcape 1 drowning, by the finking of a ferry-boat in which I was paffenger .- Another time for having recovered of a bruife occasioned by a horfe and cart running over me. -A third time for being bit by a baker's dog,-In fhort, whether I was guilty or unfortunate, the correction and the fympathy of this arbitrary pedagogue were the fame. Far from being fubdued by this infernal ulage, my indignation triumphed over that flavilh awe which had hicherto enforced my obedience : and the more my years and knowledge increased, the more 1 perceived the injustice and barbarity of his behaviour. By the help of an uncommon genius, and the advice and AA direction direction of our ufher, who had ferved my father in his travels, I made a furprifing progrefs in the claffics, writing, and arithmetic : fo that before I was twelve years old. I was allowed by every body to be the beft fcholar in the fchool. This qualification, together with a boldnefs of temper, and ftrength of make, which had fubjected almost all my contemporaries, gave me fuch influence over them, that I began to form cabals againft my perfecutor; and was in hopes of being able to bid him defiance in a very fort time .- Being at the head of a faction conficting of thirty boys, most of them of my own age, I was determined to put their mettle to trial, that I might know how far they were to be depended upon, before I put my grand fcheme in execution; with this view we attacked a body of flout apprentices, who had taken poffeffion of a part of the ground allotted to us, for the fcene of our diversions, and who were then playing at nine-pins on the fpot : but I had the mortification to fee my adherents routed in an inflant, and a leg of one of them broke in his flight by the bowl, which one of our adversaries had detached in pursuit of us .---This difcomfiture did not hinder us from engaging them afterwards in frequent fkirmifhes, which we maintained by throwing flones at a diffance, wherein i received many wounds, the fcars of which ftill remain. Our eremies were fo haraffed and interrupted by thefe alarms, that they at last abandoned their conquest, and left us to the peaceable enjoyment of our own territories .- It would be endless to enumerate the exploits we performed in the courfe of this confederacy, which became the terror of the whole village; infomuch, that when diffcrent interefts divided it, one of the parties commonly courted the affiltance of Roderick Random (by which name I was known) to caft the balance and keep the oppolite faction in awe .- Mean-while. I took the advantage of every play-day, to prefent myfelf before my grandfather, to whom I feldom found accels, by reation of his being clofely befieged by a numerous family of his lemale grandchildren, who, tho' they perpetually quarrelled among themfelves, never failed to join againit me, as the common enemy of all. His heir, who was about the age of eighteen, minded nothing but foxhunting.

hunting, and indeed was qualified for nothing elfe, notwithstanding his grandfather's indulgence, in entertaining a tutor for him at home : who at the fame time performed the office of parifh clerk. This young Acteon, who inherited his grandfather's antipathy to every thing in diftrefs, never fet eyes on me, without uncoupling his beagles, and hunting me into fome cottage or other, whither I generally fled for shelter. In this Christian amusement, he was encouraged by his preceptor, who no doubt, took fuch opportunities to ingratiate himfelf with the rifing fun, obferving that the old gentleman, according to the course of nature, had not long to live, for he was already on the verge of fourfcore .- The behaviour of this raically fycophant incenfed me fo much, that one day, when I was beleagured by him and his hounds in a farmer's house, where I had found protection, I took aim at him (being an excellent markfman) with a large pebble, which ftruck out four of his fore-teeth, and effectually incapacitated him for doing the office of a clerk.

CHAP. III

My mother's brother arrives-relieves me -a description of him-he goes along with me to the boule of my grandfather-is encountered by his dogs-defeats them after a a dialogue between them.

BOUT this time my mother's only brother, who A had been long abroad, lieutenant of a man of war, arrived in his own country; where, being informed of my condition, he came to fee me, and out of his flender finances not only supplied me with what necessaries I wanted for the prefent, but refolved not to leave the country until he had prevailed on my grandfather to fettle fomething handfome for the future. This was a talk to which he was by no means equal, being entirely ignorant not only of the judge's dispolition, but alio of the ways of men in general, to which his education on board had kept him an utter itranger. - He was a Arong-built man, fomewhat bandy-legged, with a neck A S like that of a bull, and a face which (you might eafily perceive) had withftood the most obstinate affaults of the weather .---- His drefs confifted of a foldier's coat altered for him by the thip's taylor, a ftripped flannel jacket, a pair of red breeches, japanned with pitch, clean grey worfled flockings, large filver buckles that covered three four h of his thoes, a filver-laced hat, whole crown over looked the brims about an inch and a half, a black. bob wig in buckle, a clean fhirt, a filk handkerchief, an hanger with a brafs handle girded to his thigh by a tarnished laced belt, and a good oak plant under his arm .- Thus equipped, he ict out with me (who by his bounty made a very decent appearance) for my grandfather's houfe, where we were faluted by Jowler and Cæfar, whom my coufin, young mafter, had let loofe at our approach. Being well acquainted with the invereracy of these curs, I was about to betake myself to my heels, when my uncle feized me with one hand, brandifhed his cudgel with the other, and at one blow laid Cafar forawling on the ground : but, finding him . felf attacked at the fame time in the rear by Jowler, and fearing Cafar might recover, he drew his hanger, wheeled about, and by a lucky firoke, fevered Jowler's head from his body .- By this time the young foxhunter and three fervants armed with pitch forks and flails were come to the affiftance of the dogs, whom they found breathlefs upon the field : and my coufin was fo provoked at the death of his favourites that he ordered his attendants to advance and take vengeance on their executioner, whom he loaded with all the curfes and reproaches his anger could fuggeft .----- Upon which my uncle flept forward, with an undaunted air, at the fight of whole bloody weapon his antagoniils fell back with precipitation, when he accorted their leader thus ;----. Lockee, brother, your dogs have boarded me with-44 out provocation, what I did was in my own defence, " -So you had belt be civil, and let us fhoot a-head, " clear of you." Whether the young fquire mifinterpreted my uncle's defire of peace, or was enraged at the fate of his hounds beyond his ufual pitch of retolution, I know not; but, he fnatched a flail from one of his followers, and came up with a fhew of affaulting the lieutenant.

lieutenant, who, putting himfelf in a pollure of defence, proceeded thus: ____ Lookee, you lubberly fon of a " w-e, if you come a thwart me, 'ware your ginger. " bread-work .- I'll be foul of your quarter, d -n me." This declaration, followed by a flourith of his hanger. feemed to check the progress of the young gentleman's choler, who looking behind him, perceived his attendants had flunk into the houfe, fhut the gate, and left him to decide the contention by myfelf .---- Here a parley enfued, which was introduced by my coulin's alking, " Who the d-l are you ?- What do you want ?- Some " fcoundrel of a feaman, (I fuppofe) who has deferted " and turn'd thief .- But don't think you thall efcape, " firrah-I'll have you hanged, you dog, I will-your " blood thall pay for that of my two hounds, you rag-" amuffin. --- I would not have parted with them to " fave your whole generation from the gallows, you " ruffian, you."___ " None of your jaw, you fwab-__ " none of your jaw (replied my uncle) elfe I fail trim. " your lac'd jacket for you .- I thall rub you down with " an caken towel, my boy-I thall." --- So faving, he theathed his hanger, and grafped his cudgel. Mean while the people of the house being alarmed, one of my female coufins opened a window, " and alked what " was the matter ? --- The matter ! fanfwered the " lieutenant) no great matter, young woman .- I have " bufinels with the old gentleman, and this fpark, be-" like, won't allow me to come along-fide of him, that's " all."-After a few minutes paule, we were admitted and conducted to my grandfather's chamber, through a lane of my relations, who honoured me with very fignificant looks, as I paffed along .--- When we came into the judge's prefence, my uncle, after two or three fea-bows, expressed himfelf in this manner : --- " Your " fervant, your fervant. ---- What cheer, father ? what " cheer ?- 1 suppose you don't know me-may-hap you " don't-My name is Tom Bowling, ---- and this here " boy, you look as if you did not know him neither .---"'tis like you mayu't. --- He's new rigg'd, i'faith : " his cloth don't fhake in the wind to much as it wont " to do. ' I's my nephew, dy'e fee, Roderick Ram-" dom,-your own fleih and blood, old gentlemin, A 6

1 I

" Don't lag a-ftern, you dog," (pulling me forward.) My grandfather (who was laid up with the gout) received this relation, after his long abfence, with that coldness of civility which was peculiar to him : told him he was glad to fee him, and defired him to fit down. "-Thank ve, thank ve, fir, I had as lief ftand, (faid my " uncle) for my own part 1 defire nothing of you : but " if you have any confcience at all, do fomething for " this poor boy, who has been used at a very unchri-" fian rate-Unchriftian do I call it ?- I am fure the "Moors in Barbary have more humanity than to leave " their little ones to want .- I would fain know why " my fifter's fon is more neglected than that there fair-" weather Jack," (pointing to the young fquire, who with the reft of my coufins had followed us into the room.) " Is not he as near a kin to you as the other? " - Is not he much handfomer and better built than " that great chuckle-head ?- Come, come, confider, old " gentleman, you are going in a fhort time to give an "account of your evil actions .---- Remember the " wrongs you did his father; and make all the fatis. " faction in your power, before it be too late .--- The " leaft thing you can do, is to fettle his father's portion " on him."-The young ladies, who thought themfelves too much concerned to contain themfelves any longer, fet up their throats all together against my protector .---- " Scurvy companion, -- faucy tarpaulin,----" rude, impertinent fellow, did he think to prefcribe to " grandpapa ?----His filler's brat has been too well " taken care of .- Grandpapa was too just not to make "a difference between an unnatural rebellious fon. " and his dutiful loving children, who took his advice " in all things; and fuch expressions were vented against him with great violence; until the judge at length commanded filence. He calmly rebuked my uncle for his upmannerly behaviour, which he faid he would excuse on account of his education : he told him he had been very kind to the boy, whom he had kept at fchool feven or eight years, although he was informed he made no progrets in his learning, but was addicted to all manne: of vice, which he rather believed, becaufe he himtelf was witness to a barbarous piece of milchief he had had committed on the jaws of his chaplain .- But, however, he would fee what the lad was fit for, and bind him apprentice to fome honeft tradefman or other. provided he would mend his manners, and behave for the future as became him -- The honeft tar. (whofe pride and indignation boiled within him) answered my grandfather, that it was true he had fent him to fchool. but it had coft him nothing, for he had never been at one thiking expense, to furnith him with food, raiment. books, or other neceffaries ; fo that it was not much to he wondered at, if the boy made fmall progrefs ; and yet, whoever told him fo, was a lying lubberly rafeal, and deferved to be keel-haul'd ; for tho'f he (the lientenant) did not understand those matters himself, he was well informed as how Kory was the belt icholar of his age, in all the country; the truth of which he would maintain, by laving a wager of his whole half year's pay on the boy's head ;--- (with thefe words he pulled out his purfe, and challenged the company)-" Neither is he predicted to vice, as you affirm. but rather left like a wreck (d'ye fee) at the mercy of the wind and weather, by your neglect, old gentleman. -As for what happened to your chaplain, I am only forry, that he did not knock out the fcoundrel's brains, inflead of his teeth .- By the Lord, it ever I come up with him, he had better be in Greenland, --- that's all .--- Thank you for your courteous offer of binding the lad apprentice to a tradelinan. I suppose you would make a taylor of him-would you ?--- I had rather fee him hang'd, d'ye fee-Come along, Kory, I perceive how the land lies, my boy .- let's tack about. i'faith, ---- while I have a thilling, thou fhan't want a teller,-B'wye, old gentleman, you're bound for the other world, but I believe damnably ill provided for the voyage,"---- Thus ended our wifit ; and we returned to the village, my uncle muttering curfes all the way against the old thark and the young fry that furrounded him.

C- H A P. IV.

My grandfather makes bis will —our ficond vifit — be dies — bis will is real in prefence of all bis living defcendants — the difappointment of my female coufins — my uncle's behaviour.

A FEW weeks after our first visit, we were informed that the old judge, at the ead of a fit of thoughtfulnefs, which lafted three days, had fent for a notary and made his will : that the diftemper had mounted from his legs to his ftomach, and-being confcious of his approaching end, he had defired to fee all his defcendants without exception. - In obedience to this fummons, my uncle fet out with me a fecond time. to receive the laft benediction of my grandfather; often repeating by the road, " Ey, ey, we have brought up " the old hulk at laft .---- You fhall fee .-- you fhall fee " the effect of my admonition."-When we entered his chamber which was crowded with his relations, we advanced to the bedfide, where we found him in his laft agonies, fupported by two of his grand daughters, who fat on each fide of him, fobbing molt pitcoully, and wiping away the froth and flaver as it gathered on his lips, which they frequently killed with a fhew of great anguifh and affection .----- My uncle approached him with these words, "What ! he's not a weigh-How " fare ye-how fare ye, old gentleman ?- Lord have " mercy upon your poor finful foul."-Upon which the dving man turned his languid eyes towards us, and Mr. Bowling went on-" Here's poor Rory come to " fee you before you die, and receive your bleffing. ----"What man ! don't despair, -you have been a great " finner 'tis true, what then ? There's a righteous " judge above, -an't there ? --- He winds me no more " than a porpus. Yes, yes, he's a going, --- the land. " crabs will have him, I fee that ; his anchor's a peak, " i'faith."--- This homely confolation fcandatized the company fo much, and effectially the parfon who prohably thought his province invaded, that we were obliged to retire into the other room, where, in a few minutes.

nutes, we were convinced of my grandfather's deceafe, by a difmal yell uttered by the young ladie, in his a. partment : whither we immediately haltened, and found his heir, who had retired a little before into a clofet. under pretence of giving vent to his forrow, afking, with a countenance beflubbered with tears, it his grandpapa was certainly dead ?---- " Dead ! (fays my uncle, " looking at the body) ay, ay, I'll warrant him as dead " as a herring .---- Odd's filh ! now my dream is out for " all the world .---- I thought I flood upon the fore-" cafile and faw a parcel of carrion-crows foul of a " dead (hark that floated along-fide, and the davil " perching on our forit fail ward, in the likeness of a " blue bear ---- who, d'ye fee, jumped over board upon " the carcafe, and carried it to the bottom in his " claws,"____" Out upon thee, reprobate, (cries + he " parfon) out upon thee, blafphemous wretch ! --- Doth " thou think his honour's foul is in the poffeffion of Sa-" tan ?"____ The clamour immediately arole, and my poor uncle, being fhouldered from one corner of the room to the other, was obliged to lug out in his own defence, and fwear he would turn out for no man, rill fuch time as he knew who had a title to fend him as drift .----- " None of your tricks upon travellers, faid "he : mayhap old Buff has left my kiniman here, his " heir : ---- If he has, it will be the better for his milera-" ble foul .---- Odd's bob ; l'd defire no better news .----" I'd foon make him a clear thip I warrant you." 'To avoid any further difturbance, one of my graudfather's executors, who was prefent, affored Mr. Bowling, that his nephew thould have all manner of juffice; that a day thould be appointed, alter the funeral, for examining the papers of the deceased, in prefence of all his relations; till which time every defk and cabinet in the house thould remain close fealed ; and that he was very welcome to be witness to this ceremony, which was immediately performed to his fatisfaction .---- In the mean time, orders were given to provide mourning for all the relations, in which number I was included ; but my uncle would not iuffer me to accept of it until L thould be affored whether or no I had reafon to honour his memory to far .- During this interval, the conjec-

tures of people, with regard to the old gentleman's will, were various as it was well known, he had, belides his landed effate, which was worth 700 l, per annum. fix or feven thousand pounds at intereft : fome imagined, that the whole real effate (which he had greatly improved) would go to the young man whom he always entertained as his heir : and that the money would be equally divided between my female coufins (five in number) and me - Others were of opinion, that as the reft of his children had been already provided for, he would only bequeath two or three hundred pounds to each of his grand-daughters; and leave the bulk of the fum to me, to atone for his unnatural ulage of my father .- At length the important hour arrived, and the will was produced in the midft of the expectants, whole locks and ceftures formed a group that would have been very entertaining to an unconcerned fpectator .--But the reader can fcarce conceive the aftonifhment and mortification, that appeared, when an attorney pronounced aloud, the young fouire fole heir of all his grandfather's effate perfonal and real .- My uncle, who had liftened with great attention, fucking the head of his cudgel all the while, accompanied these words of the attorney with a flare, and whew, that alarmed the whole affembly. The eldeft and perteft of my female competitors, who had been always very officious about my grandfather's perfon, enquired with a faultering accent, and vifage as yellow as an orange, " if there were " no legacies ?" and was answered, " none at all."-Upon which the fainted away. - The reft, whole expectations (perhaps) were not fo fanguine, fupported their difappointment with more refolution, though not without giving evident marks of indignation, and grief at leaft as genuine as that which appeared in them at the old gentleman's death. My conductor, after baying kicked with his heel for fome time against the wainfcot. began : " So there's no legacy, friend, ha ! - here's an " old fuccubus ;----- but fomebody's foul howls for it, " d-n me!"- The parfon of the parifh, who was one of the executors, and had acted as ghoftly director to the old man, no fooner heard this exclamation, than he cried out, " Avaunt, unchriftian reviler ! avaunt ! wilt 4 thou

" thou not allow the foul of his honour to reft in " peace ?"-But this zealous paftor did not find himfelf fo warmly feconded, as formerly by the young ladies, who now joined my uncle against him, and accufed him of having acted the part of a buly body with their grandpapa, whofe ears he had certainly abufed by falle flories to their prejudice, or elfe he would not have neglected them in fuch an unnatural manner. --- The young fquire was much diverted with this fcene, and whispered to my uncle, that if he had not murdered his dogs, he would have thewn him glorious fun, by hunting a black badger (fo he termed the clergyman) .- The furly lieutenant, who was not in an humour to relifh this amufement, replied, " You and your dogs may be " d-ned-I fuppofe you will find them with your old " dad, in the latitude of hell .--- Come, Kory,-- about " thip, my lad, we mult fleer another courie, I think," -And away we went.

CHAP. V.

The schoolmaster uses me barbarously I form a project of revenge, in which I am assisted by my uncle -I leave the viilage—am seitted at an university by his generosity.

O N our way back to the village, my uncle fpoke not a word during the fpace of a whole hour, but whilled with great vehemence, the tune of, Wby fhould we quarrel for riches, Sc. his vifage being contracted all the while into a most formidable frown. At length his pace increased to such a degree, that I was left behind a confiderable way : then he waited for me ; and when I was almost up with him, called out in a furly tone, " Bear a hand, damme! mult I bring to every minute " for you, you lazy dog ?"-Then laying hold of me by the arm, hauled me along until his good nature (of which Re had a great fhare) and reflection getting the better of his paffion, he faid, Come, my boy, don't be " cait down, ---- the old rafcal is in hell, -- that's fome fatisfaction ; ------you fhall go to fea with me, my lad. " _____ A light heart and a thin pair of breeches, goes tho-" rough the world, brave boys ; as the long goes -eh !"-Though Though this propofal did not all fuit my inclination. I was afraid of difcovering my averfion to it, left I should difablige the only friend I had in the world; and he was to much a feaman, that he never dreamt I could have any objection to his defign ; confequently gave himfelf no trouble in confulting my approbation. But this refolution was foon dropt, by the advice of our ufher, who affured Mr. Bowling, it would be a thoufand pities to baulk my genius, which would certainly, one day, make my for une on fhore, provided it received due cultivation-Upon which this generous tar determined (though he could ill afford it) to give me univerfity education; and accordingly fettled my board and other expence, at a town not many miles diftant. famous for its colleges, whither we repaired in a fhort time. But, before the day of our departure, the fchoolmafter, who no longer had the fear of my grandfather before his eyes, laid alide all decency and refiraint, and not only abufed me in the groffest language, his rancour could fuggeft, as a wicked profligate, dull beggarly mifcreant, whom he had taught out of charity, but alfo inveighed in the most bitter manner against the memory of the judge (who by the bye had procured that fettlement for him) histing, in pretty plain terms, that the old gentleman's foul was damn'd to all eternity, for his injudice in neglecting to pay for my learning .---- This brutal behaviour, added to the fufferings I had former. ly undergone made me think it high time to be revenged of this infolent pedagogue. Having confulted my adherents, I found them all faunch in their promites to fland by me : and our fcheme was this :- In the afternoon preceding the day of my departure for the univerfity, I refolved to take the advantage of the uther's going out to make water (which he regularly did at tour o'clock) and flut the great door, that he might not come to the aflittance of his superior. This being done, the affault was to be begun, by my advancing to my maker and spitting in his face. I was to be feconded by two of the ftrongeft boys in the fchool, who were devoted to me; their butinels was to join me in dragging the tyrant to a bench, over which he was to be laid, and his bare polteriors heartily flogged with his

his own birch, which we proposed to wreft from him in the firugale ; but if we thould find him too many for us all three, we were to demand the affiltance of our competitors, who fhould be ready to reinforce us, or oppole any thing that might be undertaken for the mafter's relief. One of my principal affitants was called Jeremy Gawky, fon and heir of a wealthy gentleman in the neighbourhood ; and the name of the other Hugh Strap, the cadet of a family which had given themakers to the village time out of mind .---- I had once Taved Gawky's life, by plunging into a river and dragwing him on fhore, when he was on the point of being drowned .- I had often refcued him from the clutches of those whom his unfufferable arrogance had provoked to a refentment he was not able to fuitain; and many times fayed his reputation and pofferiors, by performing his exercifes at ichool ; fo that it is not to be wondered at, if he had a particular regard for me and my interefts. The attachment of Strap, flowed from a voluntary, difinterefted inclination, which had manifested it. felt on many occasions in my behalf, he having once rendered me the fame fervice that I had done Gawky. by faving my life at the rifk of his own ; and often fathered offences that I had committed, for which he fuffered feverely, rather than I thould feel the weight of the punifument I deferved. Thefe two champions were the more willing to engage in this enterprife, becaufe they intended to leave the fchool the next day, as well as I ; the first being ordered by his father to return in. to the country, and the other being bound apprentice to a barber, as a market town not far off.

In the mean time my uncle being informed of my mafter's behaviour to me, was enraged at his infolence, and rowed revenge fo heartily, that I could not refrain from telling him the feheme I had concerted, which he heard with great faitsfaction, at every fenetence fquirring out a mouthild of fpittle, tindured with tobaco, of which he contlantly chew'd a large quid. At laft, palling up his breeches, he cried, "No, no, Z-ds1 that " wou't do neither, ---howfomever, 'tis a bold under-" taking, my 1ad. ----that I mult fay, 'faith 1---but " lookee, lookee, how doit propofe to get clear of " work"

" won't the enemy give chace, my boy ?-ay, ay, that " he will. I warrant,-and alarm the whole coaft.----" Ah ! God help thee, more fail than ballaft, Rory .--" Let me alone for that-leave the whole to me-I'll " fhew him the foretop fail, I will .----- If fo be your " fhip-mates are jolly boys, and won't flinch, you fhall " fee, you fhall fee; egad, I'll play him a falt-water " trick-I'll bring him to the gang-way, and anoint " him with a cat and nine tails ; he shall have a round " dozen doubled, my lad, he fhall-and be left lafhed, "to his meditations," We were very proud of our affociate, who immediately went to work, and prepared the inflrument of his revenge with great fkill and expedition ; after which, he ordered our baggage to be packed up and fent off, a day before our attempt, and got horfes ready to be mounted, as foon as the affair thould be over. At length the hour arrived, when our auxiliary, feizing the opportunity of the uther's abfence. bolted in, fecured the door, and immediately laid hold of the pedant by his collar, who bauled out, " Murder ! " Thieves !" --- with the voice of a Stentor. Though I trembled all over like an afpen-leaf, I knew there was no time to be loft, and accordingly got up, and fummoned our affociates to my affiltance .- Strap with. out any hefitation obeyed the fignal, and feeing me leap upon the matter's back, ran immediately to one of his legs, which pulling with all his force, his dreadful adverlary was humbled to the ground : upon which Gawky, who had hitherto remained in his place, under the influence of an univerfal trepidation, haftened to the fcene of action, and infulted the fallen tyrant with a loud huzza, in which the whole fchool joined. This noife alarmed the ufher who finding himfelf thut out, endeavoured, partly by threats, and partly by entreaties, to procure admiffion .- My uncle bade him have a little patience, and he would let him in prefently ; but if he pretended to move from that place, it should fare worfe with the fon of a bitch his fuperior, on whom he intended only to beftow a little wholetome chaftifement for his barbarous up ge of Kory, " to which " (faid he) you are 'o ftranger." By this time we had dragged the criminal to a poft, to which Bowling tied him im with a rope he had provided on purpose, after havg fecured his hands and ftript his back .- In this lucrous pofture he flood (to the no fmall entertainment The boys, who crowded about him, and fhouted with reat exultation at the novelty of the fight) venting itter imprecations against the lieutenant, and reroaching his fcholars with treachery and rebellion : then the uther was admitted, whom my uncle accolled this manner : " Hackee, Mr. Syntax, I believe you are an honeft man, d've fee-and I have a reforct for (d've fee) belay you for a fort time."---- With thefe words he pulled out fome fathoms of cord, which the oneil man no fooner faw, than he protetted with great arneftnefs, he would allow no violence to be offered to im, at the fame time acculing me of perfidy and inratitude. But Bowling reprefenting, that it was in ain to refift, and that he did not mean to use him vith violence and indecency : but only to hinder him rom raifing the hue and cry againft us, before we hould be out of their power ; he allowed himfelf to be sound to his own delk, where he fat a spectator of the ounifhment inflicted on his principal. My uncle having upbraided this arbitrary wretch with his inhumanity to ne, told him, that he proposed to give him a little difipline for the good of his foul, which he immediately out in practice, with great vigour and dexterity. This mart application to the pedant's withered posteriors, gave him fuch exquisite pain, that he roared like a mad oull, danced, curied, and blafphemed, like a frantic pediamite. When the lieutenant thought himfelf fufficiently revenged, he took his leave of him in thefe words, " Now, friend, you'll remember me the longeit " day you have to live ____ I have given you a leffon " that will let you know what flogging is, and teach " you to have more lympathy for the future-fhout " boys, flout." --- This ceremony was no fooner over, than my uncle proposed they should quit the school, and convoy their old comrade Rory to a public house, about a mile from the village, where he would treat them all. His offer being joyfully embraced, he addreffed himfelt to Mr. Syntax, and begged him to accompany us ; but this this invitation he refused with great difdain, telling my benefactor, he was not the man he took him to be -" Well, well, old furly, (replied my uncle, thaking his " hand) thou art an honeft fellow notwithstanding ; " and if ever I have the command of a thip, thou that " be our fchoolmafter i'faith." So faving, he difmiffed the boys, and, locking the door, left the two preceptors to confole one another : while we moved forwards on our journey, attended by a numerous retinue, whom he treated according to his promife, -- We parted with many tears, and lay that night at an inn on the road, about ten miles thort of the town where I was to remain, at which we arrived next day, and I found I had no caule to complain of the accomodations provided for me ; in being boarded at the house of an apothecary, who had married a diftant relation of my mother. In a few days after, my uncle fet out for his fhip, having fettled the necessary funds for my maintenance and education.

CHAP. V.

I make great progrefs in my fludies——am careffed by every body—my female coujins take notice of me interval takes invitations——they are incenfed and confpire againfl me—I am left deflitute by a mitfortume that kefals my uncle——Gawuky's treachery ______my recerpt.

AS I was now capable of reflection, I began to conder my precarious fituation : that I was utterly and one by thofe whole duty it was to protect me : and that my fole dependence was on the generofity of one man, who was not only exported by his profession to continual dangers, which might one day deprive me of him for ever; but alto (no doub) fuijed to thole vicilitudes of displotion, which a change of fortune dfuelly creates; or, which a better acquaintance with the world might produce : for I always a forhead his benevolence to the dictares of a heart a yet undebauched by a commerce with mankind —Alarmed with thefe confiderations, I refolved to apply myfeil with great care to my fludies, and enjoy the opportunity in my power : This I did with fuch fuccefs, that in the fpace of three rears. I underftood Greek very well, was pretty far advanced in the mathematics, and no ftranger to moral and natural philosophy; logic I made no account of ; but above all things. I valued myfelf on my tafte in the Belle Lettre, and a talent for poetry which had already produced fome pieces, that met with a very favourable reception. Thefe qualifications, added to a good face and thape, acquired the effeem and acquaintance of the most confiderable people in the town, and I had the fatisfaction to find myfelf in fome degree of favour with the ladies : an intoxicating piece of good fortune, to one of my amorous complexion ! which I obtained, or at leaft preferved, by gratifying their propenficies to fcandal, in lampooning their rivali .- Two of my female coufins, lived in this place, with their mother, fince the death of their father, who left his whole fortune equally divided between them; fo that, if they were not the most beautiful, they were at least the richest toalts in town : and received daily the addreffes of all the beaux and cavaliers of the country .--- Although I had hitherto been looked upon by them with the most supercilious contempt, my character now attracted their notice fo much. that I was given to understand I might be honoured with their acquaintance, if I pleafed .- The reader will eafily perceive, that this condeicenfion either flowed from the hope of making my poetical capacity fublervient to their malice, or at leaft of fcreening themfelves from the lafh of my refentment, which they had effectually provoked .- I enjoyed this triumph with great faaisfaction : and not only rejected their offer with difdain, but in all my performances, whether fatire or panegyrick, industrioufly avoided mentioning their names, even while I celebrated those of their intimates : this neglect mortified their pride exceedingly, and incenfed them to fuch a degree, that they were refolved to make me repent of my indifference .- The first stroke of their revenge confided in their hiring a poor collegian to write veries against me, the jubject of which was my own poverty, and the catafrophe of my unhappy parents; but belides the badnels of the composition (of which

which they themfelves were afhamed) they did not find their account in endeavouring to reproach me with those misfortunes, which they and their relations had brought upon me; and which, conquently, reflected much more diffionour on themfelves than on me, who was the innocent victim of their barbarity and avarice. -Finding this plan milcarry, they found means to ir. ritate a young gentleman againft me, by telling him I had lampooned his miltrefs ; and fo effectually fucceeded in the quality of incendiaries, that this enraged lover determined to feize me next night, as I returned to my lodgings from a friend's house that I frequented ; with this view, he waited in the fireet, attended by two of his companions, to whom he had imparted his delign of carrying me down to the river, in which he propofed to have me heartily ducked, notwithftanding the feverity of the weather, it being then about the middle of December - But this firatagem did not fucceed : for, being apprifed of their ambush. I got home another way, and, by the help of my landlord's apprentice, difcharged a volley from the garret window, which did great execution upon them; and next day occafioned to much mirth at their expence, that they found themfelves under a peceffity of leaving the town, until the adventure hould be entirely forgotten .----- My coulins (though twice baffled in their expectation) did not however cefill from perfecuting me, who had now enraged them beyond a pollibility of forgivenels, by detecting their malice, and preventing its effects : neither fhould I have found them more humane, had I patiently fubmitted to their rancour, and bore without murmuring the rigour of their unreafonable hate : for. I have found by experience, that though fmall favours may be acknowledged, and flight injuries atoned, there is no wretch to ungrateful as he, whom you have molt generoufly obliged; and no enemy to implacable, as those who have done you the greatelt wrong .- Thele goodnatured creatures, therefore had recourfe to a fcheme which confpired with a piece of bad news I foon after received, to give them all the fatisfaction they defired : this plan was to debauch the faith of my companion and confident, who betraved the trult I repoied in him.

24

by

by imparting to them the particulars of my fmall amours, which they published with such exaggerations, hat I fuffered very much in the opinion of every body, and was utterly difcarded, by the dear creatures whofe names had been called in queftion .- While I was bufy n tracing out the author of this treachery, that I might not only be revenged on him, but alfo vindicate my character to my friends. I one day perceived the looks of my landlady much altered, when I went home to dinner, and enquiring into the caufe, fhe fkrewed up her mouth, and fixing her eyes on the ground, told me ner hufband had received a letter from Mr. Bowling, with one enclosed for me-fhe was very forry for what had happened, both for my fake and his own-People hould be more cautious of their conduct .- She was always afraid his brutal behaviour would bring him into fome misfortune or other .---- As for her part the thould be very ready to befriend me : but fhe had a fmall family of her own to maintain .- The world would do nobing for her if the thould come to want-charity beins at home : the withed I had been bound to fome ubstantial handicraft, fuch as a weaver or a shoemaker. ather than loiter away my time in learning foolifh sonfenfe that would never bring me in a penny-but ome folks are wife, and fome are otherwife .---- I was Infening to this mysterious difcourfe, with great amazement, when her hufband entered, and, without fpeaking fyllable, put both the letters into my hand .--- I reeived them trembling, and read what follows :

To Mr. ROSER POTION.

" SIR.

Thus is to let you know that I have quitted the Thunder man of war; being obliged to facer off, for killing my captain, which I did fairly on the beach at Cape Tiberoon, in the illand of Hilpanola; having received his far and returned it, which went through his body ...and I would ferve the beit man to that ver flept betwen flem and flern, if fo be, that he flruck me, as captain Oakhum did. I am (thank God) fale among the French, who are very Vor. I. B "civil,

" civil, thof I don't underfland their lingo, and I hope it to be reflored in a little time, for all the great friends " and parliamentary interefl of the captain, for I have " fent over to my landlord in Deal an account of the " whele aff.ir, with our bearings and difances while " we were engaged, whereby I have defired him to lay " it before his Majefly, who (God blefs him) will not " forfler an heach tar to be wronged.—My love to your " footle, and am

"Your loving friend, " and jervant to command, " while " Thomas Bowling."

To RODERICK RANDOM.

" Dear Rory,

26

"Don'T be grieved at my misfortune—but "Don't gue book my lad. I have got no mo-"ney to fend you; but what of that?—Mr. Potion " will take care of you for the love he bears to me ; " and let you want for nothing, and it thall go hard, " but I will fee him one day repaid.—No more at pre-" fent, but relis

" Your dutiful uncle, " and fervant, till death, " Thomas Bowling.

This letter (which with the other was dated from Port Louis in Hifpanical) I had no fooner read, than the apothecary flaking alis head, began : — " I have a " very great regard for Mr. Bowling, that's certain, " — and could be well content — but times are very " hard. There is no fuch thing as money to be got-" I belice vis all vanihad under-ground, for my parts " — Befides, I have been out of pocket already, having " entertained you fince the beginning of this month " without receiving a fispence,—and God knows if eu ver 1 hall —-for I believe it will go hard with your " uncle.— And more than that, I was thinking of giving you warning, for I want your apartment for a " new "prentice, whom I expect from the county every " hour."

* hour .---- Sc, I defire you will this week provide " vourfelf with another lodging."-The indignation which this barangue infoired, gave me fpirits to fupport my reverfe of fortune ; and to tell him I defpifed ais mean felfish disposition to much, that I would rather arve than to be beholden to him for one fingle meal. Jpon which, out of my pocket-money, I paid him to he laft farthing of what I owed, and affured him I would not fleep another night under his roof. This aid, I fallied out in a transport of rage and forrow, without knowing whither to fly for fhelter, having not me friend in the world capable of relieving me, and ony three shillings in my purfe. After giving way for a ew minutes to the dictates of my rage, I went and hied a imall hed-room at the rate of one fhilling and fixpence per week, which I was obliged to pay per advance, before the landlord would receive me : thither I emoved my luggage; and next morning got up, with view of craving the advice and affiltance of a perfon who had on all occifions loaded me with careffes, and nade frequent offers of friendship, while I was under to neceffity of accepting them. He received me with is wonted affability, and infilted on my breakfafting with him, a favour which I did not think fit to refuse. But when I communicated the occasion of my vilit, he ppeared fo difconcerted, that I concluded him wonerfully affected with the mifery of my condition, and poked upon him as a man of the most extensive fympany and benevolence. He did not leave me long under inis militake; for, recovering himfelf from his confuwon, he told me, he was grieved at my misfortude, and shefired to know what had paffed between my landlord Whir. Potion and me. Whereupon I recounted the conduerfation : and when I repeated the answer I made to is ungenerous remonstrance with regard to my leaving is house, this pretended friend affected a ftare, and exsimed, " Is it peffible you could behave fo ill to the in man who had treated you fo kind y all along ?"_____ My turprife at hearing this, was not at all affected, in hatever his might be; and I gave him to understand, which fome warmth, that I did not imagine he would fo marcafonably espeufe the caufe of a fcoundrel, who - Killer B 2 ought to be expelled from every focial community. This heat of mine gave him all the advantage he defired o ver me, and cur difcourfe (after much altercation concluded in his defining never to fee me in that place to which define I yielded my confent, alforing him, that had I been as well acquainted with his principles for merly as I was now, he never fluculd have had an op portunity of making that requefi.—And thus we part ed.

28

On my return, I met my comrade, Squire Gawkyh whom his father had fent, fome time ago, to town, for his improvement in writing, dancing, fencing, and o ther modifh qualifications. As I had lived with him fince his arrival on the footing of our old intimacy, made no fcruple of informing him of the lowness of my circumftances, and afking a fmall fupply of money, tell aniwer my prefent expence ; upon which he pulled ou a handful of halfpence, with a fhilling or two among them, and fwore that was all he had to keep his pocked till next quarter day, he having loft the greateft part of his allowance the night before at billiards. Though this affertion might very well be true, I was extremely, mortified at his indifference ; for he neither expressed any fympathy for my milhap, nor defire of alleviating my diffrefs; and accordingly 1 left him without utter ing one word : But when I afterwards underftood, tha he was the perfon who had formerly betrayed me t the malice of my coufins, to whom likewife he had car not ried the tidings of my forlorn fituation, which afforded them great matter of triumph and exultation, I deter la mined with myfelf to call him to a fevere account ; for which purpofe, I borrowed a fword, and wrote a challen. lenge, defiring him to meet me at a certain time an . place, that I might have an opportunity of punishin . his perfidy, at the expence of his blood. He accepte the invitation, and I betook myfelf to the field, thoug not without feeling confiderable repugnance to the combat, which frequently attacked me in cold fweaters by the way :----but the defire of revenge, the fhame cha retracting, and hope of conquest, confpired to reperthefe unmanly fymptoms of tear, and I appeared of the plain with a good grace ; there I waited an house beyon evond the time appointed, and was not ill pleafed to and he had no mind to meet me : becaufe I should have In opportunity of exposing his cowardice, difplaying av own courage, and of beating him foundly wherefover I should find him, without any dread of the confrequence. ---- Elevated with thefe fuggeftions, which en-Firely banifhed all thoughts of my deplorable condition, went directly to Gawky's lodgings, where I was informed of his precipitate retreat, he having fet out for the country in lefs than an hour after he had received my billet : and I was vain enough to have the whole Norv inferted in the news, although I was fain to fell a wold laced hat to my landlord, for lefs than half price. to defray the expence, and contribute to my fubfiltence.

20

CHAP. VII.

I am entertained by Mr. Grab-a description of him-I acquire the art of furgery --- confult Grab's disposition ---- become necessary to bim -an accident habbens---he advises me to launch out into the world -affilts me with money - I fet out for London.

THE fumes of my refentment being diffipated, as well as the vanity of my fuccess, I found myfelf deferted to all the horrors of extreme want, and avoid. ed by mankind as a creature of a different species, or mather as a folitary being, no ways comprehended within the fcheme or protection of providence. My defpair had rendered me almost quite stupified, when I was one day told, that a gentleman defired to fee me, at a certain public-houle, whither immediately I repaired; and was introduced to one Mr. Liuncelot Crab, a furgeon in town, who was engaged with two more, in drinking a liquor called pop in, compoled by mixing a quartern of brandy with a quart of fmall. ibeer. Betore I relate the occation of this meffige, I believe it will not be difagreeable to the reader, if I defcribe the gentlemin who fent for me, and mention fome circumtances of his character and conduct, which B 2 may may illustrate what follows, and account for his beha-

This member of the faculty was aged fifty, about five in feet high, and ten round the belly ; his face was capacious as a full moon, and much of the complexion of a mu'berry ; his nofe, refembling a powder-horn, was be fwelled to an enormous fize, and fludded all over with the carbuncles ; and his little grey eyes reflected the rays in in fuch an oblique manner, that while he looked a perfon full in the face, one would have imagined he was admiring the buckle of his floe ---- He had long enter- ha tained an implacable refentment against Potion, who, " though a young practitioner, was better employed than the he, and once had the affurance to perform a cure, a whereby he difappointed and difgraced the prognoftic m of the faid Crab. - This quarrel, which was at one time in upon the point of being made up by the interpolition and mediation of friends, had been fately inflamed beyond a poffibility of reconciliation by the respective wives of the opponents, who chancing to meet at a chriftening, all difagreed about precedence, proceeded from invectives to blows, and were with great difficulty, by the goffips, prevented from converting the occasion of joy into a fcene of lamentation.

The difference between thefe rivals was in the height of rancour, when I received the meffage of Crab, who received me as civilly as I could have expected from one of his difposition ; and after desiring me to fit, en. quired into the particulars of my leaving the houle of Potion ; which when I had related, he faid, with a malicicus grin .- " There's a fneaking dog !- 1 always " thought him a fellow without a foul, d-n me! a " canting fooundrel, who has crept into bulinefs by " his hypocrify, and killing the a-fe of every body." "--- Ay, ay, (fays another) one might fee with half * an eye, that the rafcal has no honely in him, by his " going fo regularly to church." This fentence was confirmed by a third, who affured his companions, that Potion was never known to be difguifed in liquor but once, at a meeting of the godly, where he had diftinguifhed himfelf by an extempore prayer au hour long .---After this preamble, Crab addreffed himfelf to me in thefe H

hefe words, "Well, my lad, I have heard a good " character of you, and I'll do for you .---- You may fend your things to my houle when you pleafe. " mind to embrace my courteous offer, you may let it " alone and be d-n'd." --- I answered, with a tubmif-Tive how, that I was far from rejecting his friendly offer, which I would immediately accept, as foon as he thould inform me on what footing I was to be entertained .---- " What footing I d-n my blood, (cried he) " d'ye expect to have a footman and a couple of hories " kept for you ?"--- No. Sir. (I replied) my expectations are not ouite fo fanguine .- That I may be as little burthenfome as poffible, I would willingly ferve in your thop, by which means I may fave you the expence of a journeyman, or porter at leaft, for I underfland a little pharmacy, having employed fome of my leifure. hours in the practice of that art, while I lived with Mr. Potion: neither am I altogether ignorant of furgery. which I have fludied with great pleafure and application .--- "O ho! you did? (fays Crab.) Gentlemen. " here is a complete artift ! --- Studied furgery ! what? " in books I suppose .- I thall have you disputing with " me one of these days, on points of my proteflion. "You can already account for mulcular motion (I " warrant) and explain the mystery of the brain and " nerves-ha !- You are too learned for me, d-n me. "----But let's hear no more of this fluff, --- can you " bleed and give a clyfter, fpread a plaifter, and pre-" pare a potion ?"---- Upon my anfwering in the affirmative, he fhook his head, telling me, he believed he fhould have little good of me, for all my promifes ;----but, however, he would take me in for the fake of charity .---- I was accordingly that very night admitted to his house, and had an apartment affigned to me in the garret, which I was fain to put up with, notwithftand. ing the mortification my pride fuffered in this change of circumstances. I was foon convinced of the real motives which induced Crab to receive me in this man. ner : for, belides the gratification of his revenge, by expoling the felfilhnels of his antagonilt, in oppolition to his own generofity, which was all affectation, he had be occasion for a young man who understood fomething of the profession, to fill up the place of the eldest apprentice lately dead, not without violent fulpicion of kin foul play from his mafter's brutality. The knowledge me of this circumstance, together with his daily behaviour to to his wife, and the young apprentice, did not at all to contribute to my enjoying my new fituation with eafe ; the however, as I did not perceive how I could beftow myfelf to better advantage, I refolved to fudy Crab's temper with all the application, and manage it with all in the address, in my power .- And it was not long before I found out a ftrange peculiarity of humour, which governed his behaviour towards all his dependants. I obferved when he was pleafed, he was fuch a niggard of his fatisfaction, that if his wife or fervants betraved line the leaft fymptom of participation, he was offended to an infupportable degree of choler and fury, the effects of which they feldom failed to feel .- And when his in. dignation was rouled, fubmiffion and foothing always exafperated it beyond the bounds of reafon and humanity .-- I therefore purfued a contrary plan ; and one day when he honoured me with the names of ignorant whelp and lazy ragamuffin I boldly replied, I was neither ignorant nor lazy, fince I both underflood, and performed my bufinefs as well as he could do for his foul, neither was it just to call me ragamuffin, for I had a whole coat on my back, and was defcended from a better family than any he could boaft an alliance with. He gave tokens of great amazement at this affurance of mine, and shook his cane over my head, regarding me all the time with a countenance truly diabolical. Although I was terribly flartled at his menacing looks and posture, I yet had reflection enough left, to convince me I had gone too far to retract, and that this was the critical minute which mult decide my future lot in his fervice; I therefore fnatched up the peitle of a mortar, and fwore if he offered to firike me without a caule, I thould fee whether his fcull or my weapon was hardeft .- He continued filent for foine time, and at laft broke forth into thefe ejaculations .- " I'nis is " fine ulage from a fervant to a matter, -Very finol-" damnation !

B 4

LO

3.8

" damnation ! ---- but no matter, you fhall pay for this, " you dog, you fhall .- I'll do your bufinefs-yes, yes, " yes, I'll teach you to lift your hand againft me." ----So faying, he retired and left me under dreadful apprehensions, which vanished entirely at our next meeting, when he behaved with unufual complacency, and treated me with a plafs of punch after dinner .- - - By this conduct. I got the afcendency over him in a fhort time, and became fo neceffary to him, in managing his bufinefs while he was engaged at the bottle, that fortune began to wear a kinder afpect ; and 1 confoled myfelf for the difregard of my former acquaintance, with the knowledge I daily imbibed, by the clofe application to the duties of my employment, in which I fuc. ceeded beyond my own expectation .- I was on very good terms with my mafter's wife, whofe efteem I acquired and cultivated, by reprefenting Mrs. Potion in the most ridiculous lights my fatirical talents could in. vent, as well as by rendering her fome Christian offices, when the had been too familiar with the dram bottle, to which the had oftentimes recourse for confolation, under the adiction the fuffered from a harbarous huthand -In this manner I lived, without hearing the leaft tidings of my uncle, for the fpace of two years, during which time I kept little or no company, being neither in a humour to relifh, nor in a capacity to maintain, much acquaintance: for the Nabal my matter allowed me no wages ; and the fmall perquifites of my fration fcarce fupplied me with the common necessaries of life. I was no longer a pert, unthinking coxcomb, giddy with popular applaule, and elevated with the extravagance of hope ; my misfortunes had taught me how little the careffes of the world, during a man's profperity, are to be valued by him; and how ferioully and expeditioully he ought to fet about making himfelf independant of them. My prefent appearance, therefore, was the leaft of my care, which was wholly engroffed in laying up a flock of inftruction that might fecure meagainst the exprice of fortune for the future. I became fuch a floven, and contracted fuch an air of aufterity. that every body pronounced me creit-fallen; and Gawky returned to town without running any rifque BS troit from my refentment, which was by this time pretty much cooled, and reftrained by prudential reasons, fo effectually, that I never fo much as thought of obtaining fatisfaction for the injuries he had done me .--When I deemed myfelf fufficiently mafter of my bufinels, I began to calt about for an opportunity of launching into the world, in hope of finding fome provision, that might make amends for the difficulties I had undergone ; but, as this could not be effected without a small fum of money to equip me for the field. I was in the utmost perplexity how to raife it, well knowing, that Crab, for his own fake, would never put me in a condition to leave him, when his interest was for much concerned in my flay .- But'a fmall accident. which happened about this time, determined him in my favour. --- This was no other than the pregnancy of his maid fervant, who declared her fituation to me, affuring me at the fame time, that I was the occafion of it. Although I had no reafon to quellion the truth of this imputation, I was not ignorant of the familiarities which had paffed between her mafter and her ; taking the advantage of which, I reprefented to her the folly of laying the burden at my door, when the might difpofe of it to much better purpofe with Mr. Crab: She liftened to my advice, and next day acquainted him with the pretended fuccefs of their mutual endeayours .- He was far from being overjoyed at this proof of his vigour, which he forefaw might have very troublefome confequences ; not that he dreaded any domeftic grumblings and reproaches from his wife, whom he kept in perfect fubjection ; but becaufe he knew it would furnish his rival Potion with a handle for infulting and undermining his reputation, there being no fcandal equal to that of uncleannefs, in the opinion of those who inhabit the part of the ifland where he lived .- He therefore took a refolution worthy of himfelf, which was to perfuade the girl, that fhe was not with child, but only inflicted with a diforder incident to young women, which he could eafily remove : with this view (as he pretended) he preferibed for her fuch medicines, as he thought would infallibly procure abortion; but in this fcheme he was difappointed, for the maid, being advertifed advertifed by me of his defign, and at the fame time well acquainted with her own condition, abiolutely reinfed to follow his directions: and threatened to publish ther fituation to the world, if he would not immediately ake fome method of providing for the important ocration, which the expected in a few months. It was not long before I gueffed the refult of his deliberation. by his addreffing himfelf to me (one day) in this manpaer: "I am furprifed that a young fellow like you difcovers no inclination to pulh his fortune in the world,-Before I was of your age, I was broiling " on the coaft of Guinea -Damme I what's to hinder you from profiting by the war, which will certainly " be declared in a thort time against Spain?-you may rest eafily get on board of a king's thip in quality of f " furgeon's mate, where you will certainly fee a great deal of practice, and fand a good chance of getting "" prize money." _____ laid hold of this declaration. which I had long wifhed for, and affured him I would follow his advice with pleature, if it was in my power; but that it was impossible for me to embrace an opportunity of that kind, as I had no friend to advance a dittle money, to fupply me with what necessaries I thould want, and defray the expences of my journey to London. He told me that few necessaries were required ; and as for the expence of my journey, he would lend me money, fufficient not only for that purpole, but alfo to maintain me comfortably in London, until I fhould procure a warrant for my provision on board of tome thip .- I gave him a thoufand thanks for his obliging offer (although I was very well apprifed of his motive, which was no other than a delign to lay the baftard to my charge, after my departure ;) and accordingly fet out in a few weeks for London; my whole fortune confifting of one fuit of cloaths, half a dozen rufiled fhirts, as many plain ; two pair of worfted, and a like number of thread itockings ; a cafe of pocket-instruments, a finall edition of Horace, Wifeman's Surgery, and ten guineas in cath; for which Crab took my bond, bearing 5 per cent interelt ; at the fame time gave me a letter to the mamber of parliament B 6 tor for our town, which he faid would do my bufinefs effectually.

26

C H A P. VIII.

I arrive at Newcafils—meet with my old [chool-fellow Strap —we determine to walk together to London—fit out an eur journey — put up at a folitary ale bonfe—are aithurbed by a firance adventure in the night.

THERE is no fuch convenience as a waggon in this country, and any finances were too weak to (upport the expence of hiring a horfe; I determined theres frore to fet out with the carriers, who transfort goods irom one place to another on horfe-back, and this (thems I accordingly put in execution, on the first day of Noveober 1330, fitting upon a pack-faddle between two bafkets; one of which contained my goods in a knapfack-But by the time we arrived at Newcalkie upon Tyne, I was fo fatigmed with the tedioufnels of the carriage, and benumbed with the coldnefs of the weather, that I xefolved to travel the reft of my journey on foot, raher than proceed in fuch a disgreesble manner.

The hoftler of the inn at which we put up, underftanding I was bound for London, advised me to take my paffage in a collier, which would be both cheap and expeditious, and withal much easier than to walk upwards of three hundred miles through deep roads, in the winter-time ; 2 journey which he believed I had not ftrength enough to perform .- I was almost perfuaded to take his advice, when, one day, flepping into a barber's fhop to be fhaved, the young man, while he lathered my face, accofted me thus: "Sir, I prefume you are a "Scotchman." I answered in the affirmative,-----" Fray (continued he) from what part of Scotland ?"----I no fooner told him, than he discovered great emotion, and not confining his operation to my chin, and upperlip, befmeared my whole face with great agitation. I was to offended at this profusion, that farting up, I afked him what the d-l he meant by using me fo ?-He begged pardon, telling me his joy at meeting with a countryman had occafioned fome confusion in him : and crazed craved my name-But when I declared my name was Random, he exclaimed in a ranture, " How ! Rory " Random ?" The fame, I replied, looking at hin, with aftonifhment. " What, cried he, don't you know " your old school-fellow. Hugh Strap " At that in-Rant recollecting his face. I flew into his arms, and in the transport of my joy, gave him back one half of the fuds he had to lavishly beltowed on my countenance, fo that we made a very ludicrous appearance, and furnished a great deal of mirth for his mafter and fhop mates, who were witneffes of this fcene. - When our mutual careffes were over. I fat down again to be fhaved, but the poor fellow's nerves were fo difcomposed by this unexpected meeting, that his hand could fearcely hold the razor. with which. (neverthelefs) he found means to cut me in three places, in as many firokes. His mafter, perceiving his diforder, bade another fupply his place, and after the operation was performed, gave Strap leave to mediately to my lodgings, where calling for fome beer. I defired to be informed of his adventures, which contwined nothing more, than that his mafter dying before his time was out, he had come to Newsattle about a year ago, in expectation of journey-work, along with three young fellows of his acquaintance who worked in the keels ; that he had the good fortune of being im. ployed by a very civil master, with whom he intended to flay till the fpring, at which time he propoled to go to London, where he did not doubt of finding encou-tuation and defign, he did not approve of my taking a palfage by fea, by reafon of the danger of a winter voyage, which is fo very hazardous along that coaft, as well as the precarioufnels of the wind, which might poffishy detain me a great while, to the no f nall detriment of my fortune : whereas, If I would venture by land, he would bear me company, carry my baggage all the way; and if we should be fatigued before we could perform the journey, it would be no hard matter for us to find on the road, either returning hories or waggons, of which we might take the advantage for a very triffing expence .- I was fo ravithed at this propofal.

1

.

4

 pofal, that 1 embrased him aff-dionately, and affored him he might command way purfs to the laft farthing ; but he gave me to underfland, he had faved money furficient to anfver his own occations; and that he had a friand in London, who would foon introduce him into bufnefs, in that capital; and might pollibly have it in his power to ferve me allo.

Having concerted the plan and fettled our affairs that night, we departed next morning by day-break, armed with a good cudgel each (my companion being charged with the furniture of us both, crammed into one knapfack;) and our money fewed between the lining and wailband of our breeches, except fome loofe filver for our immediate expence on the road .---- We travelled all day at a round pace, and being ignorant of the proper flages, were benighted at a good diffance from the inn, fo that we were compelled to take up our lodging at a fmall hedge ale-house, that flood on a byeroad, about half a mile from the high-way: There we found a pedlar of our own country, in whole company we regaled ourfelves with bacon and eggs, and a glafs of good ale, before a comfortable fire, converting all the while very fociably with the landlord and his daughter, a hale buxom lafs, who entertained us with great good humour, and in whole affection I was vain enough to believe I had made fome progress. About eight o'clock, we were all three, at our own defire shewn into one apartment, furnished with two beds. in one of which Strap and I betook ourfelves to relt, and the pedlar occupied the other, though not before he had prayed a confiderable time extempore, fearched into every corner of the room, and failened the door on the infide with a ftrong iron fcrew, which he carried about with him for that ule .----- I flept very found till midnight, when I was disturbed by a violent motion of the bed, which shook under me with a continual tremor .----Alarmed at this phænomenon, I jogged my companion, whom, to my no fmall amazement. I found drenched in fweat, and quaking through every limb, he told me with a low faultering voice, that we were undone; for there was a bloody highwayman loaded with piftols in the next room ; then bidding me make as little noife as putfible.

offible, he directed me to a fmall chink in the board artition, through which I could fee a thick fet brawny ellow, with a fierce countenance, fitting at a table with fur young landlady, having a bottle of ale and a brace f piftols before him. I liftened with great attention. nd heard him fay in a terrible tone ; " D-n that fon * of a bitch. Smack the coachman !- he has ferved me a fine trick, indeed !-----but d-tion feize me, if [" don't make him repent it !-- I'll teach the fcoundrel to give intelligence to others, while he is under ar-" ticles with me."-Our landlady endeavoured to apneafe this exafperated robber, by faying he might be niltaken in Smack, who perhaps kept no corresponlence with the other gentleman who robbed his coach, -and that if an accident had difappointed him to day, he might foon find opportunities enough to atone for his loft trouble.____ " I'll tell thee what, my dear, " Bett (replied he,) I never had, nor ever will, while "my name is Rifle, have fuch a glorious booty as I " miffed to-day. Z-ds! there was 100/ in cash to " recruit men for the king's fervice, belides the jewels, " watches, fwords, and money belonging to the paffen-" gers : - had it been my fortune to have got clear off " with fo much treafure. I would have purchased a " committion in the army, and made you an officer's " lady, you jade, I would." ---- " Well, well, (cries " Betty) we mult truft to providence for that ;----but " did you find nothing worth taking, which efcaped "the other gentleman of the road ?" " Not much, "faith (faid the lover) I gleaned a few things,-luch " as a pair of pops, filver mounted, (here they are) I " took them loaded from the captain who had the " charge of the money, together with a gold watch, which he had concealed in his breeches .- I likewife " found ten Portugal pieces in the fhoes of a quaker, " whom the fpirit moved to revile me with great bitter -" nefs and devotion ; but what I value myfelf molly " for, is this here purchase, a gold fouf box, my girl, " with a picture on the infide of the lid ; which I un. "tied out of the tail of a pretty lady's fmock."-Here, as the devil would have it, the pedlar fnored to loud, that the highwayman inatching his pittols, itarted up, crying, crying, "Hell and d-m-n! I am betrayed, who is "that in the next room ?" Mrs. Betty told him, he need not be uneafy, there were only three poor wearied travellers, who miffing the road, had taken up their lodging in the houfe, and were afteep long ago,-" Tra-" vellers! fays he, fpies, you b-ch! but no matter-" 1'll fend them all to hell in an inftant,"-He accordingly ran towards our door ; when his fweetheart interpoling, affured him, there was only a couple of poor sound Scotchmen, who were two raw and ignorant to give him the leaft caufe of fufpicion ; and the third was a prefbyterian pedlar of the fame nation, who had often lodged in the houfe before .- This declaration fatisfied the thief, who fwore he was glad there was a pedlar, for he wanted fome linen - Then in a jovial manner, he put about the glafs, mingling his discourse to Betty, with careffes and familiarities that fooke him very happy in her amours. During that part of the conversation which regarded us, Strap had crept under the bed, where he lay in the agonies of fear; fo that it was with great difficulty I perfuaded him our danger was over, and prevailed on him to wake the pedlar, and inform him of what he had feen and heard .- This itinerant merchant no fooner felt fomebody fhaking him by the thoulder, that he farted up, calling as loud as he could .- " Thieves, thieves ! Lord have mercy on 44 us.22 And Rifle, alarmed at this exclamation, jumped up, cocked one of his piftols, and turned towards the door, to kill the first man who thould enter ; for he verily believed himfelf befet ; when his Dulcinea, after an immoderate fit of laughter, perfuaded him, that the poor pedlar dreaming of thieves, had only cried out in h his fleep .- Mean-while, my comrade had undeceived our fellow lodger, and informed him of his reafon for diffurbing him; upon which, getting up foftly, hepeeped through the hole, and was fo terrified with what he faw, that falling down on his bare knees, he put up a long petition to Heaven, to deliver him from the hands of that ruffian, and promifed never to defraud a cuitomer for the future to the value of a pin's point, provided he might be relcued from the prefent danger. -Whether or not his difburthening his confcience atforded ded him any eafe. I know not : but he flipt into bed ain, and lay very quiet until the robber and his miefs were alleep, and fnored in concert : then, rifing tly, he untied a rope that was round his pack, which aking fast to one end of it, he opened the window th as little noife as poffible, and lowered his goods to the yard with great dexterity; then he moved intly to our bed fide, and bad us farewel, telling us, at as we ran no rifk, we might take our reft with reat confidence, and in the morning affure the landrd that we knew nothing of his efcape : and laftly. aking us by the hands, and withing us all manner of ccefs, he let himfelf drop from the window without hy danger, for the ground was not above a yard from s feet as he hung on the outfile. Although I did not ink proper to accompany him in his flight. I was not all free from apprehention, when I reflected on what ight be the effect of the highwayman's difapopintments he certainly intended to make free with the pedlar's vare. Neither was my companion at more eafe in his and ; but on the contrary, fo poffeffed with the dreadal idea of Rifle, that he folicited me ftrongly to follow ur countryman's example, and fo elude the fatal refentnent of the terrible adventurer, who would certainly treak his vengeance on us, as accomplices of the neder's elopement .- But I represented to him the danger f giving Rifle caule to think we knew his profeffion. ad fuggelted, that if ever he thould meet us again on he road, he would look upon us as dangerous acquinance, and find it his interest to put us out of the way. -I told him withal, my confidence in Betty's good naure ; in which he acquiefced, and, during the remainag part of the night, we concerted a proper method f behaviour, to render us uafufpested in the morning. It was no fooner day, than Betty, entering our chan. er, and perceiving our window open, cried out, " Olds * bobs ! fure you Scotchman mult have hot conftitu. tions, to lie all night with the window open, in fach cold weather."-I feigned to flart out of fleep, and "ithdrawing the curtain, called, " What's the matter?" Vnen the the wed me, 1 affested furprife, and fuil. Blefs mel the window was thut when we went to " bed."

" bed."-" I'll be hanged, faid the, if Sawny Waddle. " the pedlar has not got up in a dream and done it, for " I heard him very obfropolous in his fleep. ---- Sure " I put a chamber pot under his bed."----With thefe words the advances to the bed in which he lay, and finding the theets cold, exclaimed, " Good lack a daify ? " the rogue is fled !" ---- " Fled (cried I, with feigned " amazement) God forbid !---- Sure he has not robbed " us."-Then fpringing up, I laid hold of my breeches, and emptied all my loofe money into my hand ; which having reckoned. I faid, Heaven be praifed our money is all fafe : ---- Strap, look to the knapfack .----- He did fo, and found all was right .- Upon which we afked with feeming concern, if he had ftole nothing belonging to the houfe ?- " No, no, replied the, he has fole no-" thing but his reckoning :" which, it feems, this pious pedlar had forgot to discharge, in the midit of his devotion .- Betty, after a moment's paule, withdrew, and a immediately we could hear her waken Rifle, who no fooner heard of Waddle's flight, than he jumped out of bed and dreffed, venting a thousand execrations, and vowing to murder the pedlar, if ever he should fet eyes on him again ; " For, faid he, the fooundrel has by this " time railed the hue and cry againft me."---Having dreffed himfelf in a hurry, he mounted his horfe, and for that time rid us of his company, and a thousand fears that were the confequence of it .- While we were at breakiaft, Betty endeavoured, by all the cunning fhe was miltrefs of, to learn whether or no we fuspected our fellow lodger, whom we faw take horfe ; but as we were on our guard, we answered her fly questions with a fimplicity the could not diffruft ; when, all of a fudden, we heard the trampling of a horfe's feet at the door. This noife alarmed Strap fo much, whole imagination was wholly ingroffed by the image of Rifle, that with a countenance as pale as milk, ne cried, ---- " O Lord! " there's the highwayman returned !" - Our landlady flaring at these words, faid, "What highwayman, " young man ?- Do you think any highwaymen har-" bour here !"- I hough I was very much dilconcerted at this piece of indifcretion in Strap, 1 had prefence of mind enough to tell ner, we had met a horfe-man the day

y before, whom Strap had foolihly fuppofed to be a gluwayman, becaufe he rode with pithis; and that had beta terrified at the found of a norfs' feet ever ce.—She forced a fimile at the ignorance and timidity my conrade; but I could perceive (not without eat concern) that this account was not at all fatisfacty to her.

CHAP. V.

e proceed on our journey—are overtaken by an highwaynum, who fare at Strap, is prevented from flooting me by a company of borfame, who ride in purfut of bim. —Strap is put lo bed at an inn.—— Adventures fat that inn.

A F T E R having paid our fcore, and taken leave of our holtels, who embraced me tenderiv at partng, we proceeded on our journey, bleffing ourfelves has we had come off to weil. We had not walked a." ove five miles, when we observed a man on horseback alloping after us, whom we in a thort time recognized be no other than this formidable hero who had aleady given us fo much veration .- He stopped hard by ue, and afked if I knew who he was ?---- My aftonifhsent had disconcerted me fo much, that I did not hear i is queflion, which he repeated with a volley of oaths nd threats : but I remained as mute as before. Strap eeing my difcompoture, fell upon his knees in the mud, ttering with a lamentable voice, thefe words : " For " C----- ft's fake, have mercy upon us. Mr. Kifle, we * know you very well." ____ " Oho ! cried the thief, " you do !-but you never thall be evidence againt me " in this world, you dog !"-So faying, he drew a billol, and fired it at the unfortunate thaver, who fell Ist upon the ground, without fpeaking one word .-----My comrade's fate, and my own fituation, rivetted me o the place where I flood, deprived of all fenfe and effection ; fo that I did not make the least attempt ither to run away, or deprecate the wrath of this barparian, who inapped a fecond pittol at me; but before he had time to prime again, perceiving a company of horfemen horfemen coming up, he rode off, and left me ftanding motionlefs as a ftatue, in which pofture I was found by see those whose appearance had faved my life. This company confifted of three men in livery well armed, with ha an officer, who (as I afterwards learned) was the perfon from whom Rifle had taken the pocket piftols the w day before ; and who, making known his misfortune to he a nobleman he met on the road, and affuring him his in non-refistance was altogether owing to his confideration for the ladies in the coach, procured the affidance ple of his lord(hip's fervants to go in queft of the plunderer. This holiday captain fcampered up to me with great addrefs, and afked who fired the pillol which he had he heard .---- As I had not yet recovered my reafon, he, a before I could answer, observed a body lying on the bu ground : at which fight his colour changed, and he in pronounced with a faultering tongue. " Geutlemen. " here's murder committed ! Let us alight."-" No, " no, faid one of his followers, let us rather purfue the ". murderer .- Which way went he, young man ?" ---- " By this time I had recollected myfelf to far as to tell them, that he could not be a quarter of a mile before ; be and to beg of one of them to affilt me in conveying the corps of my friend to the next house, in order to its being interred. --- The captain, forefeeing that in cafe he fhould purfue, he mult loon come to action, began to cuib his horfe, and give him the four at the fame time. which treatment making the creature rear up and fnort, he called out, his horfe was frightened, and would not proceed; at the fame time wheeling him round and round, ftroaking his neck, whiftling and wheedling him with " Sirrah, Sirrah, --- gently, gently," &c. ----"Z-ds! (cried one of the fervants) fure my Lord's " Sorrel is not refty ?"-With these words he bekowed a lafh upon his buttocks, and Sorrel difdaining the rein, forward with the captain at a pace that would have foon brought him up with the robber, had not the girth (happily tor him) given way, by which means he landed in the dirt : and two of his attendants continued their purfuit, without miading his fitu cion. Mean-waile one of the three who remained at my defire, turning the body of Strap, in order to fee the wound which had

The time between this event and dinner. I paffed in bferving a game at cards between two farmers, an exifeman, and a young fellow in a rufty gown and cafock, who, as I afterwards underflood, was curate of a righbouring parify .- It was cafy to perceive, that the natch was not equal; and that the two farmers, who were partners, had to do with a couple of fharpers, who Aript them of all their cash in a very fhort time. But what furprifed me very much, was to hear this clergy. nan reply to one of the countrymen who feemed to ufpect toul play, in these words : " D-n me, friend. ' d'ye queftion my honour ?" I did not at all wonder to find a cheat in canonicals, this being a character frequent in my own country ; but I was icandalized at the indecency of his behaviour, which appeared in the oaths he fwore, and the bawdy fongs which he fung. At laft. to make amends, in fome fort, for the damage he had done to the unwary boors, he pulled out a fiddle from the lining of his gown, and promifing to treat them at dinner, began to play molt melodioufly, finging in concert all the while .- This good humour of the parfon infpired the company with fo much glee, that the farimers foon forgot their loffes, and all prefent went to idancing in the yard. While we were agreably amuled in this manner, our mulician spying a horseman riding towards the inn, ftopt all of a fudden, crying yout, " Gad fo! gentlemen, I beg your pardon ; there's 44 OUF

" our dog of a doctor coming into the inn." He immediately concealed his infirument, and ran towards the gate, where he took hold of the vicar's bridle, and helped him off, enquiring very cordially into the flate of his health. This rofy for of the church (who might be about the age of fifty) having alighted and entrufts ed the curate with his horfe, falked with great folem" nity into the kitchen, where, fitting down by the fire, he called for a bottle of ale and a pipe : fcarce deigning an answer to the submiffive questions of those who enquired about the welfare of his family. While he indulged himfelf in a profound filence, the curate approaching him with great reverence, afked if he would not be pleafed to honour us wich his company at dinner ? To which interrogation he answered in the negative, faving, he had been to vifit fonire Bumpkin, who, had drank himfelf into a high fever at the laft affizes a and that he had, on leaving his own houfe, told Betty he fhould dine at home. Accordingly, when he had made at end of his bottle and pipe, he rofe, and moved, with prelatical dignity to the door, where his journey man flood ready with his nag. He had no fooner mounted, than the facetious curate coming into the kitchen, held forth in this manner : " There the old " rafcal goes, and the D-I go with him .- You fee " how the world wags, gentlemen .- By Gad, this " rogue of a vicar does not deferve to live ; -and yet " he has two livings worth 400 l. per annum, while " poor 1 am fain to do all his drudgery, and ride "twenty miles every Sunday to preach, for what? " why, truly, for 20 /. a year. I fcorn to boalt of my " own qualifications, but-comparifons are odious. I " thould be glad to know how this fwag bellied doctor " deferves to be more at eafe than me .- He can loll " in his elbow chair at home, indulge himfelf in the " beft of victuals and wine, and enjoy the conversation " of Betty his houfe-keeper .----- You understand me, " gentlemen .- Betty is the doctor's poor kinfwoman, " a pretty girl the is ; but no matter for that ; -----" ay, and a dutiful girl to her parents, whom the vilits " regularly every year, though I mult own, I could 46 ACTVICE

mervice t'ye, gentlemen."-By this time dinner ing ready. I waked my companion, and we ate altother with great cheerfulnefs. When our meal was ided, and every man's fhare of the reckoning adjustthe curate went out on pretence of fome neceffary cafion, and mounting his horfe left the two farmers fatisfy the holt in the best manner they could .--e were no fooner informed of this piece of fineffe. an the excifeman who had been hitherto filent, began open with a malicious grin : " Ay, ay, this is an old trick of Shuffle :- I could not help finiling when he talked of treating -You mult know this is a very curious fellow .- He picked up fome fcraps of learn. ing when he ferved young lord Trifle at the Univerfity -But what he most excels in is pimping. No man knows his talents better than I; for I was valet de chambre to fquire Tattle, an intimate companion to Shuffle's lord .- He got himfelf into a fcrape, by pawning fome of his lordship's clothes, on which account he was turned away ; but, as he was acquainted with fome particular circumftances of my lord's conduct, he did not care to exafperate him too much, and to made interest for his receiving orders, and afterwards recommended him to the curacy which he now enjoys .--- However, the fellow cannot be too much admired for his dexterity in making a comfortable livelihood, in fpite of fuch a fmall allowance. -You hear he plays a good flick, and is really diverting company .- Theie qualifications make him agreeable, wherever he goes ;-and, as for playing at cards, there is not a man within three counties a match for him :- the truth is, he is a damnable cheat ; and can thift a card with fuch address, that it is im-" poffible to difcover him."-Here he was interrupted by one of the farmers, who afked why he had not julice enough to acquaint them with these particulars before they engaged in play ?--- The excifeman replied without any helitation, that it was none of his bufinefs to intermeddle between man and man; befides, he did not know they were ignorant of Saufle's character, which was notorious to the whole country .- This did not fatisfy the other, who taxed him with abetting and affifting sfifting the curate's knavery, and infifted on having h thare of the winnings returned : this demand the excifman as politively refuled, affirming, that whatfoeve flights Shuffle might practife on other occasions, he wa very certain, that he had play'd on the fourre wit them, and would answer it before any bench in Chr ftendom; fo faying, he got up, and having paid h reckoning, fneaked off. The landlord thrufting his nec into the paffage, to fee if he was gone, fhook his hear faying, " Ah! Lord help us ! if every finner was t " have his deferts .---- Well, we victuallers must no " difoblige the excitemen .- Lut I know what :- if par " fon Shuffle and he were weighed together, a firay " thrown into either fcale, would make the balance " kick the beam .- But, mafters, this is under the role." continued Boniface with a whifper.

48

CHAP. X.

The highwayman is taken—we are detained as evidence a gainfi him—proceed to the next village—be gloaps we arrive at another inn, where we go to bed—in the night we are awaked by a dreadful adventure—next nigh we lodge at the boufe of a feboolmafter—our treatmenthere.

C T R A P and I were about to depart on our jour-D ney, when we perceived a croud on the road, coming towards us fhouting and hallowing all the way-As it approached, we could difcern a man on horfeback in the middle, with his hands tied behind him. whom we foon knew to be Rifle !- This highwayman not being fo well mounted as the two fervants who went in purfuit of him, was foon overtaken, and after having difcharged his pillols, made prifoner without any further opposition. They were carrying him in triumph, amidit the acclamations of the country people, to a juffice of peace in a neighbouring village, but flopt at our inn to join their companion, and take refreihment. When Rifle was difmounted, and placed in the yard, within a circle of peafants, armed with pitchforks

ks. I was amazed to fee what a pitiful dejected fellow show appeared, who had but a few hours before filled with fuch terror and confusion. --- My companion is fo much encouraged by this alteration in his aprance, that going up to the thief he prefented his inched fifts to his nofe, and declared, he would either gel or box with the prifoner for a guinea, which he mediately produced, and began to firip-but was fuaded from his adventure by me, who represented whim the folly of the undertaking, as Rifle was now the hands of juffice, which would, no doubt, give us atisfaction enough .- But what made me repent of impertigent curioficy, was our being detained by captors, as evidence against him, when we were julk ing to fet forward. However, there was no remedy ; were obliged to comply ; and accordingly joined in cavalcade, which luckily took the fame road that we proposed to follow .- About the twilight we arrived the place of our defination, but as the juffice was he to vifit a gentleman in the country, with whom ath underflood) he would probably flay all night, the "ber was confined in an empty garret three ftories h, from which it feemed impoffible for him to efcape : is nevertheleis, was the cafe ; for next morning en they went up Bairs to bring him before the juffice, bird was flown, having got out at the window upthe roof, from whence he continued his rout along tops of the adjoining houses, and entered another ret window were he tkulked until the family were ep, at which time he ventured down ftairs, and let felf out by the ftreet door, which was found open. is event was a great difappointment to those that aphended him, who were flufhed with hopes of the ward; but gave me great joy, as I was permitted w to continue my journey without any further moation .- Refolving to make up for the fmall progrefs had hitherto made, we this day travelled with great bur, and before night, reached a market town, anty miles from the place from whence we fet out in morning, without meeting any adventure worth rice .- Here having taking up our lodging at an inn, pound myfelf o fatigued, that I began to defpair of I OL. L.

our performing our journes on foot, and deficed Stin to enquire if there were any waggon, return horfes, other cheap carriage in this place, to depart for L. don next day .- He was informed, that the wagen from Newcafile to London had halted here two nive ago; and that it would be an eafy matter to overt it, if not the next day, at fartheft the day after the ne This piece of news gave us fome fatisfaction, and, all having made a hearty fupper on hafhed mutton. were thewn to our room, which contained two be the one allotted for us, and the other for a very home gentleman, who, we were told, was then drinking beler Though we could very well have dispensed with company, we were glad to fubrit to this difpofiti as there was not another bed empty in the houfe ; a accordingly went to reft, after having fecured our bas case under the bolfter. About two or three o'clock the morning, I was waked out of a very profound ilcen, by a dreadful noife in the chamber, which the not fail to throw me into an agony of confiernation when I heard thefe words pronounced with a territy voice :- " Blood and wounds ! run the halbert into " onts of him that's next vop, and I'll blow the other " brains out prefently."-This dreadful falutation h to fooner reached the ears of Strao, that flarting . of hed, he can against fomebody in the dark, and ov the turned him in an inftant ; at the fame time bawlin. out. " Fire ! murder ! fire !" a cry which is a mom alarmed the whole houfe, and filled our champer w a crowd of naked people .- When lights were broug the occasion of all this dillurbance foon appeared which was no other than our fellow lodger whom tound lying on the floor foratching his head, with a low teftifying the utmost attonishmen!, at the concourse ha apparitions that furrounded him .----- This horn. ventlemen was, it feems, a recruiting ferjeant, w having lifted two country fellows overnight, dream they had mutinied, and threatened to murder him a the drummer who was along with him. This man fuch an imprefiion on his imagination, that he got it in his fleep, and expressed himself as above. When chi apprehention of danger vanished, the company behits

22

ine another with great furprife and mirth ; but what atwracted the notice of every one, was our landlady with Mothing on her but her thift and a large puir of buckwikin breeches with the backfide before, which fhe had whipt on in the hurry, and her hufband with her pettimat about his fhoulders : one had wrapt himfelf in a splanket, another was covered with a facet, and the ararummer who had given his only thirt to be wathed appeared in cuerba with the bolfler rolled about his middle .---- When this affair was difcuffed, every body "etired to his own apartment, the ferieant flipt into bed, wand my companion and I flept without any further di-Rurbance till morning, when we got up, went to breakfall, paid our reckoning, and fet forward, in expectaion of overtaking the waggon; in which hope, howwever, we were difappointed for that day. As we exerted ourfelves more than ufual, I found myfelf quite Spent with fatigue, when we entered a small village in the twilight. We enquired for a public house, and were directed to one of a very forry appearance. At pur entrance the landlord, who feemed to be a venerable bld man, with long grey hair, role from a table placed yby a large fire in a very neat payed kitchen, and with ha cheerful countenance accolled us in thefe words : Salvete; Pueri, ingredimini."-I was not a little pleafed to hear our hou fpeak Latin, becaufe I was in hope of recommending myfelf to him by my knowledge in that language : I therefore aniwered without hefitation, -" Diffolve frigus, ligna fuper foco, -large reponens." I had no fooner pronounced theie words, than the old gentleman running toward me, fhook me by the hand, perging,-" Fili mi dilectifime ! unde venis ?-a superis ni "" fallor !" -- In fhort, finding we were both read in the sicleffics, he did not know how to teftify his regard enough; but ordered his daughter, a jolly rofy-cheeked damiel, who was his fole domettic, to bring us a bottle of his quadrimum-repeating from Horace at the fame atime, " Deprome quadrimum fabina, O Thaliarche, merum "" dicta." This quadrimum was excellent ale of his own brewing, of which he told us he had always an amphora tour years old, for the ufe of himfelf and friends .- In the courie of our conversation, which was interlarded with

with foraps of Latin, we underflood, that this facetion perfon was a fchoolmafter, whole income being fmall he was fain to keep a plafs of good liquor for the en. tertainment of paffengers, by which he made thift to make the two ends of the year meet .---- " I am thill " day, faid he, the happieft old fellow in his majefty" " dominions .---- My wife, reft her foul, is in heaven " My daughter is to be married next week :- but the " two chief pleafures of my life are these (pointing to " the bottle and a large edition of Horace that lay or " the table.) I am old. 'tis true .--- what then ? the " the more reason I should enjoy the small share oflifethal " remains, as my friend Flaccus advifes :- Tu ne que. " steris (scire nefas) quem mihi, quem tibi finem dii de " derint. --- Carpe diem quam minimum credula postero." -As he was very inquilitive about our affairs, we made no fcruple of acquainting him with our fituation, which when he had learned, he enriched us with advices how to behave in the world, telling us that he was no ftranger to the deceits of mankind .--- In the mean time he ordered his daughter to lay a fowl to the fire for fupper, for he was refolved this night to regale his friends-permittens divis catera .---- While our entertainment was preparing, our hoft recounted the adventures of his own life, which, as they contain nothing remarkable. I forbear to rehearfe. When we had fared fumptuoufly, and drank feveral bottles of his quadrimum, I expressed a defire of going to reft, which was with fome difficulty complied with, after he had informed us, that we fhould overtake the waggon by noon next day ; and that there was room enough in it. for half a dozen, for there were only four paffengers as yet in that convenience .---- Before my comrade and L fell afleep, we had fome conversation about the good humour of our landlord, which gave Strap fuch an idea of his benevolence, that he pofitively believed we fhould pay nothing for our lodging and entertainment, ----" Don't you obferve, faid he, that he has conceived a "particular affection for us,-nay, even treated us at. "fupper with extraordinary fare, which, to be fure, we " flould not of ourfelves have called for ?"---- I was Dartly rtly of Strap's opinion : but the experience I had of e world made me infnend my belief till the morning. hen getting up betimes, we breakfaited with our hoft ad his daughter on hafty pudding and ale, and defired know what we had to pay .- - " Biddy will let your know, gentlemen, faid he, for I never mind thefe matters .- Money matters are beneath the concern of one who lives upon the Horatian plan - Grescentent fequitur sura pecuniam." Mean while Biddy having nfulted a flate that hung in the corner, told us, our choning came to 8 s. 7 d .- " Eight shillings and feven pence ! cried Strap : 'tis impoffible-vou muft be miltaken, voung woman."----" Reckon again. child, (fays her father very deliberately) perhaps you have milcounted."-" No. indeed, father, (the replied) I know my bufineis better."-I could contain my indignation no longer, but faid, it was an unconicionable hill, and demanded to know the particulars ;" upon which the old man got up, mutterg, " Ay, ay, let us fee the particulars --- that's but reafonable."-And taking pen, ink, and paper, wrote tollowing Items.

52

			5.	d.
To bread and beer -			0	6
To a fowl and faulages		-	2	6
To four bottles quadrim		-	2	0
To fire and tobacco	-		0	7
To lodging -	·		2	0
To breakfait -	-		3	0

s he had not the appearance of a common publican. ad had raifed a fort of veneration in me by his deeanor the preceding night, it was not in my power upbraid him as he deferved ; therefore I contented ryfelf with faying, I was fure he did not learn to be an stortioner from Horace. He answered, "I was but a young man, and did not know the world, or I would not tax him with extortion, whole only aim was to live contentus parvo, and keep off importuna pauperies." - My fello . traveller could not to eatily it up with this impolition ; bat fwore he thould either C 3 take take one chird of the money, or go without.--While we were engaged in this difpute. I perceived the daughter go out, and conjecturing the occafion, immediately paid the ecorbitant demand, which was no fooner done, than Biddy returned with two flout fellows, who came in on pretence of taking their morning draught: but in reality to frighten us into compliance --Jolt as we departed, Strap, who was half ditrafted on account of this piece of expence, went up to th febool-mafter, and grinning in his tace, pronounced with great emphafic. "Somer account cge?" ---- To which the pedant replicd, with a malecius fimile "A dinium req guin, nif, aret, imprat."

CHAP. IX.

T E travelled half a mile without exchanging one word; my thoughts being engroffed by the knavery of the world, to which I muft be daily exposed and the contemplation of my finances, which began fen fibly to diminifh -At length Strap, who could hold n longer, addreffed me thus :--- " Well, fools and theil " money are foon parted .----- If my advice had been " taken, that old fkin-flint fhould have been damn'c " before he had got more than the third of his de " mand. --- 'Tis a fure fign you came eafily by you " money, when you iquander it away in this manner " - Ah, God help you, how many grifly beards mui " I have mowed before I earned tour fhillings and " threepence halfpenny, which is all thrown to the " dogs ?- How many days have I fat weaving haint " till my toes were numbed by the cold, my finger " cramp'd, and my nofe as blue as the fign of the peril " wig that hung over the door? What the devil wal " you afraid of ? I would have engaged to box with " any one of those fellows that came in, for a guines "-I'm fure I have beat ftouter men than either e es them."

"-And indeed my companion would have fought body, when his life was in no danger; but he a mortal averfion to fire arms, and all inftruments eath. In order to appeafe him, I affured him, no of this extraordinary expense thould fall upon his alders : at which declaration he was affronted, and me, he would have me to know, that although he a poor barber's boy, he had a foul to fpend his ney with the best fouire of the land. Having walked day at a great pace, without halting for a refrefitit, we descried, towards the evening, to our inexfliole joy, the waggon about a quarter of a mile bee us; and by that time we reached it, were both of fo weary, that I verily believe it would have been imcticable for us to have walked one mile farther. e therefore bargained with the driver, whole name s loev, to give us a caft to the next flage for a fhilr : at which place we should meet the mafter of the ggon, with whom we might agree for the reft of the

Accordingly the convenience flopt, and Juey having aced the ladder, Strap (being loaded with our bagge) mounted firit : but jult as he was getting in. 4 emendous voice affailed his ears in thefe words: God's fury ! there shall no paffengers come here."-ne poor fhaver was fo difconcerted at this erclamaon, which both he and I imagined proceeded from e mouth of a giant, that he descended with great vecity, and a countenance as white as paper .- locy periving our attonithment, called with an arch facer, Waunds, coptain, whay woan't you fooffer the poor waggoneer to meake a penny !- Coom, coom, young man, get oop, get oop, --- never mind the coptain. I'fe not afear'd of the coptain."- This was not enburagement fufficient to Strap, who could not be preailed upon to venture up again; upon which I atmpted, though not without a quaking heart, when I eard the fame voice uttering like distant thunder : Hell and the devil confound me, if I don't make you fmart for this !"-However 1 crept in, and by accient got an empty place in the ftraw, which I immeditely took poffellion of, without being able to differn the C A faces the faces of my fellow travellers in the dark. Strap for lowing with the knapfack on his back, chanced to take the other fide, and by a jolt of the carriage, pitched d rect upon the ftomach of the captain, who bellowed out in a moft dreadful manner : " Blood and thunder, where " " my fword ?" At thefe words my frighted comrac ftarted up, and at one foring bounced againft me with fuch force, that I thought he was the fuppofed fon and Anak, who intended to prefs me to death .--- In the mean time a female voice cried, " Blefs me ! what he "the matter, my dear ?" "The matter," replied the captain, " damn my blood ! my guts are fqueezed in m "a pancake, by that Scotchman's hump." Strat trembling all the while at my back, afked him pardon and laid the blame of what had happened upon the jolting of the waggon ; and the woman who fooke be fore went on : " Ay, ay, my dear, it is our own faul " we may thank ourfelves for all the inconveniences w " meet with .- I thank God, I never travelled fo bet " fore .- I'm fure, if my lady or Sir John was to known " where we are, they would not fleep this night full " vexation .- I with to God we had writ for the chart "riot: ____ I know we fhall never be forgiven."-" Come, come, my dear, (replied the captain) it don2 " fignify fretting now,-we thall laugh it over as a from " lick-I hope you will not fuffer in your health. -" fhall make my lord very merry with our adventures i " the Diligence."-This difcourfe gave me fuch a hig notion of the captain and his lady, that I durit not vent ture to join in the conversation : but immediately af ter another female voice began : " Some people giv in " themfelves a great many needlefs airs-better folk " than any here have travelled in waggons before now " Some of us have rode in coaches and chariots within " three footmen behind them, without making fo much " fuis about it .---- What then ? we are now all upon the " footing ; therefore lei's be fociable and merry .- What " do you fay, Ifaac? Is not this a good motion, yo " doating rogue ?- Speak, you old cent. per cent. torn " nicator .- What desperate debts are you thinking of u "What mortgage are you planning ? Well, Ifaac, pol " fitively you shall never gain my tavour, till you tur $ " ovch over a new leaf, grow honeft, and live like a gentleman --- In the mean time, give me a kifs, you old "umbler."-Thefe words, accompanied with a hearty ack, enlivened the perfon to whom they were adeffed, to fuch a degree, that he cried in a transport, wough with a faultering voice, "Ah ! you wanton baggage-upon my credit, you are a waggilh wirl, he, he, he !"-This laugh introduced a fit of ighing, which almost fuffocated the poor usurer (fuch afterwards found, was the profession of this our felv. traveller.) About this time I fell affeep, and epioved comfortable nan till fuch time as we arrived at the inn mere we put up-Here, having alighted from the wagn. I had an opportunity of viewing the paffengers in der as they entered .- The first who appeared was a difk airy girl, about twenty years old, with a filver-laced t on her head, inftead of a cap, a blue ftuff riding t trimmed with filver, very much tarnished, and a thip in her hand .- After her, came limping, an old in with a worited night-cap, buttoned under his chin, th a broad brimmed hat flouched over it, an old ru. + blue cloak tied about his neck; under which appeared brown furtout, that covered a thread-bare coat and aill coat, and, as we afterwards difeerned, a dirty flanl jacket .- His eyes were hollow, bleared, and gum. y; his face was thrivelled into a thouland wrinkles. s gums were deflitute of teeth, his nofe tharp, and ooping, his chin peeked and prominent, fo that, when : numped, or fooke, they approached one another, we a pair of nut-crackers ; he supported himself on an ory headed cane, and his whole figure was a just emem of winter, famine, and avarice .- But how was I rprized, when I beheld the formidable captain in the ape of a little thin creature, about the age of forty. ith a long withered vifage, very much refembling that a baboon, through the upper part of which, too lite grey eyes peeped : He wore his own hair in a queue hat reached to his rump, which immoderate length. I sppofe, was the occasion of a baldnets that appeared on ne crown of his head, when he deigned to take off his at, which was very much of the fize and cock of Piol's .---- Having laid afide his great coat; I could not elp admiring the extraordinary make of this man of CS war :

war : He was about five feet and three inches high, fizteen inches of which went to his face and long fcraggy neck! his thighs were about fix inches in length, his legs refembling fpindles or drum-flicks, two feet and any half, and his body, which put me in mind of extension without fubftance, engroffed the remainder ; --- fo that on the whole, he appeared like a fuider or grafshoppen erect .---- and was almost a vox, et preterea nihil .- His drefs confifted of a frock of what is called bear-fkin, the fkirts of which were about half a foot long, an Huffan wailtcoat, fearlet breeches, reaching half way down his thighs, worfied flockings, rolled up almost to his groin, and thoes with wooden heels at leaft two inches high at he carried a fword very near as long as himfelf in one hand, and with the other conducted his lady, who feemed to be a woman of his own age, and ftill retained fome remains of an agreeable perfon ; but fo ridiculoufly affected, that had I not been a novice in the world, I might have eafily perceived in her, the deplorable vanity, and fecond hand airs of a lady's woman. ----We were all affembled in the kitchen, when captain Weazel (for that was his name) defired a room with a fire for himfelf and fpoufe; and told the landlord, they would fup by themfelves. The inn-keeper replied, that he could not afford them a room by themfelves ; and as for fupping, he had prepared victuals for the paffengers in the waggon, without refpect of perfons, but if he, could prevail on the reft to let him have his choice in a feparate manner he fhould be very well pleafed. This was no fooner faid, than all of us declared against the propofal, and Mifs Jenny (our other female paffenger) obferved, that if captain Weazel and his lady had a wind to fup by themfelves, they might wait until we thould have done .---- At this hint, the captain publi on a martial frown, and looked very big, without (peak-L inv ; while his yoke fellow, with a difdainful tofs of her noie, muttering fomething about " Creature ;"-which Mit's Jenny over-hearing, flept up to her, faying,-" None of your nomes, good Mrs. Abigail ;- creature " quotha,-I'll affure you .- No fuch creature as you " neither-no ten pound ineaker-no quality coupler." -Here the captain interpoled with a " Damme, ma-66 dam.

59

dam, what do you mean by that ?- Daran you, Sir, who are you? (replied Mifs Jenny) who made you a captain, you pitiful, trencher foraping, pimping cur . ler ?- 'odeath ! the army is come to a fine pals, when fuch fellows as you get committions .-- What, I fuppofe you think I don't know you ? - Agad you and vour belomate are well met-a caft off miltrefs, and a hald valet de chambre are well yoked together." Blood and wounds? (cried Weazel) dy'e queftion -1 would flea him, carbonado him ! Fury and de. Bruction ! I would have his liver for my fupper."o faving, he drew his fword, and flourified with it to the great terror of Strap; while Mils Jewny Inapping er fingers, told him, fhe did not value his refentment loufe. In the midit of this quarrel, the maller of the graggon alighted, who understanding the caufe of the isturbance, and tearing the captain and his lady would ake umbrage, and leave his carriage, was at great ains to have every thing made up, which he at last acbmplifhed, and we fat down to supper all together. At red-time we were flewed to our apartments ; Ta: old furer, Strap and I, to one room ; the captain, his wife, and Mils Jenny to another. About mi inight, ny companion's bow is being difordered, he got up, in rder to go backward ; but in his return, mitaking one loor for another, intered Weazel's chamber, and with aut any hefitation went to bed to his wife, who was fall fleep, the captein being at another end of the room, roping for fome empty veffel, in lieu of his own chamver-pot, which was leaky: As he did not perceive strap coming in, he went toward his own bed, after ha. ing found a convenience; but no fooner did he feel a ough head, covered with a cotton night cap, that it same into his mind, that he had miftaken Mifs Jenny's bed initead of his own, and that the head he felt was hat of tome gallant, with whom the had made an aiignation. Fuli of this conjecture, and foundalized ac. the protitution of his apartment, he matched up the weffel he had juft before filled, and emptied it at once on he attonifhed barber, and his own wife ; who waking

at that inflant, broke forth into lamentable crime which not only alarmed the hufband beyond meafur but frightened poor Strap almost out of his fenfes ; fine he verily believed himfelf bewitched : efpecially where the incenfed captain feized him by the throat, with the volley of oaths, afking him how he durft have the press fumption to attempt the chaftity of his wife, --- Pote Strap was fo amazed and confounded, that he count fay nothing, but .-- " I take God to witness the's a vite " gin for me."____ Mrs. Weazel, enraged to fr herfelf in fuch a pickle, through the precipitation of h hufband, profe in her fhift, and with the heel of her fhoe, which the found by the bed-fide, belaboured the captain's baid pate, till he roared, " Murder."-" I " teach you to empty your flink-pots on me, cried fhile " you pitiful, hop o'my thumb coxcomb. What ! " warrant vou're jealous, vou man of lath. Was in " for this I condefcended to take you to my bed, you 44 poor, withered, faplefs twig ?"---- The noife, occ. fioned by this adventure, had brought the mafter en the waggon and me to the door, where we overhear all that paffed with great fatisfaction. In the mean time we were alarmed with the cry of "Rape ! Mush " der I Rape !" which Mifs Jenny pronounced with great vociferation .----- " O you vile, abominable ol " villain, faid fhe, would you rob me of my virtue -----" But I'll be revenged of you, you old goat ! I will "-Help | for heaven's fake ! help !----- I thall b " ravifhed ! ruined ! help !"-Sonie fervants of the inn, hearing this cry, came running up flairs with lights, and fuch weapons as chance aforded ; when we beheld a very diverting fcene .- In one corner ftoo the poor captain thivering in his thirt, which was a torn to rags ; with a woful vifage, fcratched all ove by his wife ; who had by this time wrapped the count terpane about her, and fat fobbing on the fide of he bed .- In the other end lay the old ufurer fprawling on Mifs Jenny's bed, with his flannet jacket over his thirt and his tawny meagre limbs exposed to the air ! while the held him faft by the two ears, and loaded him with execrations .- When he afked what was the matter, fhe affected to weep, told us, the was afraid that wicked rogul ingue had ruined her in her fleep, and bad us take supplice of what we faw, for the intended to make ale of fur evidence against him. The poor wretch looked make one more dead than alive, and begged to be releamid: a favour which he had no fooner obtained, than protefted the was no woman, but a devil incargatehaat the had first feduced his flesh to rebel, and then beantayed him .---- "Yes, cockatrice (continued he) you in know you laid this foare for me-but you fhan't fucthe ceed ---- for I will hang myfelf before you thall get a farthing of me."-So faving, he crawled to his own Wed, groaning all the way .---- We then advanced to one captain, who told us, " Gentleman, here has been I a damn'd miltake : but I'll be revenged on him who was the occasion of in ---- That Scotchman who carries the knapfack, thall not breathe this vital air another day, if my name be Weazel .- My dear, I afk you ten thousand pardons ; you are fentible I could al-mean no harm to you."-" I know not what you meant (replied the, fighing) but I know I have got enough to fend me to my grave."-At length they were reconciled. The wife was complimented with a whare of Mil's Jenny's bed (her own being overflowed) find the matter of the waggon invited Weazel to fleep the remaining part of the night with him. I retired to where I found Strap mortally afraid, he having Hole away in the dark, while the captain and his lady there at logger-heads.

C H A P. XII.

aptain Weazel challenges Strap, who declines the combat -an affair between the captain and me -the ufurer is fain to give Mils Jenny five guineas for a release ---nus are in danger of losing a meal-the behaviour of Wea-captain Weazel and his lady -the captain's courage tried ---- Ifaac's mirth at the captain's expence.

4

TEXT morning, I agreed to give the mafter of the waggon ten thillings for my paffage to Loudon. provided Strap thould be allowed to take my place when

I fhould be difpoled to walk .- At the fame time I de fired him to appeale the incenfed captain, who had entit tered the kitchen with a drawn fword in his hand, and threatened with many oaths, to facrifice the villain, while attempted to violate his bed; but it was to no purport for the mafter to explain the miftake, and affure him bu the poor lad's innocence, who flood trembling behing me all the while a the more fubmifion that appeared by Strap, the more implacable feemed the refentment Weazel, who fwore he must either fight him, or would inftantly put him to death. I was extremely provoked at this infolence, and told him, it could not fuppofed that a poor barber lad would engage a man at the fword at his own weapon ; but I was perfuaded would wreftle or box with him. To which propose Strap immediately gave affent, by faving he would b with him for a guinea .---- Weazel replied, with a low of difdain, that it was beneath any gentleman of hit character to fight like a porter, or even to put himfe on a footing, in any refpect, with fuch a fellow as Stra - " Odds bodikins ! (cries Joey) fure, coptain, val " would not commit moorder ! Here's a poor lad the " is willing to make atoonement for his offence ; and " an that woan't fatisfie yaw, offers to fight yaw fairlin "---- An yaw woan't box, I dare fay, he will coode " with yaw .- Woan't yaw, my lad ?"---- Strap, aft fome hefitation, anfwered, "Ye-yes, I'll cudgel with " him."____But this expedient being also rejected b the captain, I began to fmell his character, and tippin Strap the wink, told the company that I had alward heard it faid, the perfon who received a challenge thou have the choice of the weapons ; this therefore bein the rule in point of honour, 1 would venture to prob mife on the head of my companion, that he would ven fight captain Weazel at fharps; but it fhould the fuch fharps as Strap was belt acquainted with, name h razors -At my mentioning razors, I could perceive the captain's colour change, while Strap pulling me be the fleeve, whilpered with great exgernels ; " No, not "no; for the love of God, don't make any fuch bail. " sain."-At length Weazel recovering hindelt, turning ed towards me, and, with a ferocious countenanch after

ned. " Who the devil are you ?- will you fight me ?". ith thefe words, putting himfelf in a posture, I was evoully alarmed at feeing the point of a forord withhalf a foot of my break ; and foringing to one fide. tched up a foit that flood in the chimney-corner. th which I kept my formidable advertary at bay, to made a great many half-longes, fkipping backard at every pufh, till at laft I pinned him up in a mer, to the no fmall diversion of the company. shile he was in this firmation, his wife entered, and ling her bufband in thefe dangerous circumftances, tered a dreadful foream : In this emergency, Weazel manded a cedation, which was immediately grant-; and at laft was contented with the fubmillion of rap, who falling on his knees before him, protefted le innocence of his intention, and alked pardon for se miftake he had committed. This affair being end, without bloodfbed, we went to breakfaft, but mif-It two of our company, namely Mils Jenny and the arer. As for the first, Mrs. Weazel informed us. hat the had kept her awake all the night with her toans: and that when the role in the morning. Mils. nny was fo much indifpoled, that fhe could not proled on her journey. At that inftant, a mellage came om her to the mafter of the waggon, who immediatewent, into her chamber, followed by us all. She told m in a lamentable tone, that fie was afraid of a mifarriage, owing to the fright the received lat night om the brutshity of Liaac; and as the event was un. stain, defired the ufurer might be detained to aniwer or the confequence. Accordingly, this ancient Tarain was found in the waggon, whither he had retired avoid the fhame of laft night's difgrace, and brought y force into her prefence. He no fooner appeared han the began to weep and figh most piteously, and ald us, if the died, the would leave her blood upon the lead of that ravifher. Poor lfaac turned up his eyes nd hands to heaven, prayed that God would deliver im from the machinations of that Jezebel; and affured as, with tears in his eyes, that his being found in bed with her, was the sefult of her own invitation. The waggoner understanding the cafe, advised linac to make , it it up, by giving her a fum of money : to which ada vice he replied with great vehemence. " A fum of mon " ney !---- a halter for the cocatrice !"---- " O! 't " very well (faid Mifs Jenny): I fee it is in vain thin " attempt that flipty heart of his, by fair means. " Joey, be fo good as to go to the juffice, and tell him " there is a fick perfon here, who wants to fee him! " on an affair of confequence." ---- At the name en juffice. Ifaac trembled, and, bidding loev flav, afken, with a quivering voice. " what the would have ?" She told him, that as he had not perpetrated his wicked pure pofe, the would be fatisfied with a fmall matter. - Anon though the damage fhe might fuftain in ber health mights he irreparable, the would give him a release for an hun dred guineas .---- " An hundred guineas ! (cried he in " an extacy :) an hundred furies !---- Where thould " poor old wretch like me have an hundred guineas ?] " I had fo much money, d'ye think I fhould be found " travelling in a waggon at this feafon of the year ?-"Come, come, (replied Jenny) none of your miferly " artifice here .- You think I don't know you, Ifaac Rak " pine, the money-broker in the Minories .- Ah ! you " old rogue ! many a pawn you have had of me and ma " acquaintance, which was never redeemed."----Ifaa finding it was in vain to difguife himfelf, offered twent to fhillings for a difcharge, which the abfolutely refute. under fifty pounds : At laft, however, fhe was brought down to five, which he paid with great reluctancy ra ther than be profecuted for a rape. After which ach commodation the fick perfon made fhift to get into the waggon, and we fet forwards in great tranquillity Strap being accomodated with Joey's horfe, the drive ver himfelt chufing to walk .---- This morning and forenoon we were entertained with an account of the valour of captain Weazel, who told us he had one knocked down a foldier that made game of him ; tweak ed a drawer by the nofe, who found fault with his picking ing his teeth with a fork, at another time ; and that his had moreover challenged a cheefe-monger, who had the prefumption to be his rival :---- for the truthe of which exploits he appealed to his wife .--- She con the firmed whatever he faid, and obferved " the laft affai a * happened appened that very day on which I received a loveinster from fquire Gobble ; and don't you rememther, my dear, I was prodigioufly fick that very whicht with eating ortolans, when my lord Diddle mock notice of my complexion's being altered, and inny lady was fo alarmed, that the had well nigh faintd."-Yes, my dear. (replied the captain) you know. winy lord faid to me, with a fneer, ---- Billy, Mrs. Weazel is certainly breeding .- And 1 anfwered "tavalierly, " My Lord, I with I could return the "mompliment."---- Upon which the whole company proke out into an immoderate fit of laughter ; and ny lord, who loves a repartee dearly, came round and puffed me."-We travelled in this manner five days "hout interruption, or meeting any thing worth noe : Mils Jenny (who foon recovered her foirits) enter- : Ining us every day with diverting fongs, of which the hald fing a great number 1 and rallying her old galhit, who notwithitanding would never be reconciled to d .-- On the fixth day, while we were about to fit down dinner, the inn-keeper came and told us, that three . itlemen, just arrived, had ordered the victuals to carried to their apartment, although he had informthem that they were beipoke by the paffengers in e waggon. To which information they had replied. The paffengers in the waggon might be damn'd, -pofed it would be no hard hip on fuch travellers to dine upon bread and cheefe for one day."---- This, is a terrible difappointment to us all : and we laid r heads together how to remedy it ; when Mils Jenobferved that captain Weazel, being by profellion. foldier, ought in this cafe to protect and prevent us. nom being infulted. But the captain excufed himfelf, ving, he would not for all the world be known to have wavelled in a waggon ; fwearing at the fame time, that huld he appear with honour, they should eat his iword oner than his provision. Upon this declaration. Mifs many fnatching his weapon, drew it, and ran immediely into the kitchen, where the threatened to put the ok to death if he did not fend the victuals into our amber immediately .--- The noife the made, brought : the

66

the three firangers down, one of whom no fooner part ceived her, that he cried, " Ha! Jenny Ramper ! when "the devil brought thee hither?" ____ " My de "Jack Rattle ! (replied fhe, running into his arm, " is it you ?- Then Weazel may go to hell for a d "ner-I shall dine with you."--- They confent to this propolal with a great deal of joy ; and we will on the point of being reduced to a very uncomfortal meal, when loev understanding the whole affair. tered the kitched with a pitchfork in his hand, ale fwore he would be the death of any man who fhom pretend to feize the victuals prepared for the wage -This menace had like to have produced fatal confiquences ; the three firangers drawing their fwords, all being joined by their fervants, and we ranging out. felves on the fide of Locy : when the landlord interr fing, offered to part with his own dinner to keep t peace, which was accepted by the ftrangers ; and fat down at table without any further moleftation. the afternoon, I chose to walk along with locy, all Strap took my place. Having entered into a convel. fation with this driver. I foon found him to be a mel. ry, facetious, good-natured fellow, and withal yes arch : He informed me, that Mifs Jenny was a co mon-girl upon the town, who falling into company with a recruiting officer, he carried her down in the flage coach from London to Newcalle, where he b been arrafted for debt. and was now in prilon ; up which the was fain to return to her former way of h by this conveyance. He told me likewife, that one the gentlemen's fervants, whom we left at the inp, h ving accidentally feen Weszel, immediately knew him and acquainted Iver with fome particulars of his charals. ter. That he had ferved my lord Frizzle in quality valet de chambre, many years : while he lived feparate. from his lady : But upon their reconciliation, the chi preisly infitted upon Weazel's being turned off, as with as the woman he kept : when his lordinio, to get rid them both with a good grace, proposed that he should marry his mittreis, and he would procure a committie for him in the army : This expedient was agreed t and Weazel is now, by his lordibip's intereft, enfigh it

"'s regiment. I found he and I had the fame fenints with regard to Weazel's courage, which we reind to put to the trial, by alarming the paffengers with mry of, "an highwayman !" as foon as a horfeman dappear. This fcheme we put in practice towards dufk, when we deferied a man on horfeback ap. miching us. Joey had no fooner intimated to the le in the waggon, that he was afraid we fhould be hobbed, than a general confernation arole : Strap uped out of the waggon, and hid himfelf behind a e. The ufurer put forth ejaculations, and made a ing among the thraw, which made us conjecture he hid fomething under it. Mrs. Weazel wringing her ids, uttered lamentable cries; and the captain to great amazement, began to faore; but this artidid not fucceed ; for Mils Jenny, thaking him by the talders, bawi'd out, "'Sdeath ! captain, is this a me to fnore, when we are going to be robbed ? ---het up for thame, and behave like a foldier and a "Wan of honour,"-Weazel pretended to be in a great ion for being disturbed, and iwore, he would have "nap out if all the highwaymen in England furwinded him, -" D-n my blood ! what are you afraid of?" (continued he ;) at the lame time trembling th fuch agitation, the whole carriage thook .- This upular piece of behaviour incenfed Mils Ramper fo Wch, that the cried, " D-n your pitiful foul, you are as arrant a poltroon, as ever was drummed out of a regiment .- Stop the waggon, Joey-let me get out, and by G-d, if I have rhetorick enough, the thicf Whall not only take your purfe, but your fkin alfo." faying, the leapt out with great agility. By this the the horieman came up with us, and happened to a gentleman's fervant well known to loey, who ammunicated the fcheme, and defired him to carry it a little further, by going up to the waggon, and meltioning those within. I he itranger conlenting for the fake of diversion, approached it, and in a terrible ine, demanded, " who have we got here ?"-liauc rebied, with a lamentable voice, " Here's a poor miferawhile finner, who has got a fmall family to maintain, and nothing in the world wherewithal, but thefe ss fifteen.

" fifteen fhillings, which if you rob me of, we muft and " farve together."___ " Who's that fobbing in the " ther corner ?" (faid the fuppofed highwayman.) " " poor unfortunate woman, (anfwered Mrs. Weaze " upon whom I beg you for Christ's fake to have co " paffion." ____ " Are you maid or wife? (faid h "Wife to my forrow," (cried fhe.)-" Who, or wh " is your hufband ?" (continued he.) --- " My hufba " (replied Mrs. Weazel) is an officer in the army, at " was left fick at the laft inn where we dined."-" Y " must be mistaken, Madam, (faid he) for I myself fint " him get into the waggon this afternoon. But pre-" what fmell is this? Sure your lap-dog has befoul " himfelt;-let me catch hold of the nafty cur, I'll tea " him better manners,"----Here he laid hold of o of Weazel's legs, and pulled him out from under I wife's petticoats, where he had concealed himfelf..... The poor trembling captain being detected in this i glorious fituation, rubbed his eyes, and affecting to wa out of fleep, cried, " What's the matter ? ---- What " the matter ?"-" The matter is not much, (anfwer." " the horfeman) I only called in to enquire after yo " health, and fo adieu, most noble captain."_____ faying, he clapped fpurs to his horfe, and was out fight in a moment, ---- It was fome time before Weaz could recollect himfelf, but at length re-affuming th big look, he faid, " Damn the fellow ! why did he tic " away, before I had time to alk him how his lord and " lady do ?- Don't you remember Tom, my dear in -addreffing himfelf to his wife .- " Yes, (replied the " I think I do remember fomething of the fellow-but " you know I feldom converfe with people of his flat " on."___" Hey-day ! (cried Joey) do yaw knaw the " young mon, coptain ?- " Know him, (faid Weazels, " many a time has he filled a glafs of Burgundy to me " at my lord Trippet's table."_" And what may hill " neame be, coptain ?"-(faid Joey.) " His name !--" his name (replied Weazel) is Tom Kinfer."-----"Waunds! (cried Joy) a has changed his own name " then I for I'fe lay any wager he was chrittened Joh " Trotter."-This observation railed a laugh again h the captain, who feemed very much disconcerted ; when Ifaa l c broke filence, and faid, " It was no matter who or hat he was, fince he has not proved the robber we forceted .- And we ought to blefs God for our nar. w escape:"-" Blefs God, (faid Weazel) blefs the wil! for what? had he been a highwayman. I fould have eat his blood, body and guts, before he ad robbed me, or any one in this Diligence." Ha, a, hal (cried Mifs Jenny) I believe you will eat all bu kill indeed, captain."-The ufurer was fo well fed at the event of this adventure, that he could not ain from being fevere, and took notice that captain azel feemed to be a good Chriftian, for he had armimfelf with patience, and refignation, inftead of carweapons : and worked out his falvation with fear trembling. This piece of fatire occafioned a great of mirth at Weazel's expence, who muttered a at many oaths, and threatened to cut lfaac's throat. The univer taking hold of this menace, faid. " Genemen and ladies, I take you all to be witnefs, that by life is in danger from this bloody-minded officer. I'll have him bound over to the peace." This fed fneer produced another laugh against him, and he ained creit-fallen during the remaining part of our hney.

C H A P. XIII.

ap and I are terrified by an apparation — Strap's mjecture — the myflery explained by Joeyerrive at London — eur drefi and apparance leferbidd — we are infalted in the freet—an adventure an ale boge— we are implied up by a waggift estman — jet to right by a tobacconfil—take loaginge —dive for a dimer-an accident at our ordinary.

Le arrived at our inn, fupped, and went to bed ; but Strap's diffemper continuing, he was ored to rife in the middle of the night, and taking the die in his hand, which he had left burning for the pole, he went down to the house of office, whence it hort time he returned in a great hurry, with his a flanding on end, and a look betokening horror and aftonihment.

aftonifhment. Without fneaking a word, he fet dowr light and jumped into bed behind me, where he lay trembled with great violence. When I afked him v. was the matter ? he replied with a broken accent, " " have mercy on us ! I have feen the devil "-The my prejudice was not quite fo ftrong'as his, I wasa a little alarmed at this exclamation, and much mor a when I heard the found of bells approaching our ch. ber, and felt my bed fellow cling close to me, utte thefe words. " Christ have mercy upon us! there "comes."- At that inftant, a monfrous overgris raven enter our chamber, with bells at his feet, made directly towards our bed .- As this creature is koned in our country a common vehicle for the c and witches to play their prarks in. I verily belie, we were haunted ; and in a violent fright, fhrunk der the bed clothes. This terrible apparition leapt u the bed, and after giving us feveral fevere dabbs vit its beak ihrough the blankets, hopped away and vars 'ed.' Strap and I recommended ourfelves to the protion of heaven with great devotion, and when wes longer heard the noife, ventured to peep up and 1 breath. But we had not been long freed from m phantom, when another appeared that had well ris deprived us both of our fenfes. We perceived and man euter the room, with a long white beard reached to his middle; there was a certain wild perliarity in his eyes and countenance, that did not fave of this world; and his drefs confilted of a brown coat buttoned behind and at the wrifts, with an fashioned cap of the fame fluff upon his head .-- I fo amazed that I had not power to move my eyes fi fuch a ghaffly object, but lay motionlefs, and faw come ftraight up to me : when he reached the beck wrung his hands, and cried, with a voice that did feem to belong to a buman creature. "Where, Ralph ?"---- I made no reply ; upon which he repeat in an accent fill more preternatural ; " Where is E " pho ?"-He had no fooner pronounced thefe work than I heard the found of the belts at a diftance ; why the apparition having liftened to, tript away, and left almolt petrified with fear. It was a good while befor Id recover myfelf fo far as to fpeak; and when at wigth I turned to Strap, I found him in a fit, which, wever did not laft long .- When he came to himfelf. tked his opinion of what had happened ; and he afed me that the first must certainly be the foul of forme fon damned, which appeared by the chains about its is (for his fears had magnified the creature to the menefs of a horfe, and the lound of fmall morrice bells The clanking of malfy chains.)-As for the old man. took it to be the fpirit of fomebody murdered g ago in this place, which had power granted it torment the affaffin in the fhape of a raven, and that Ralpho was the name of the faid murderer.---though I had not much faith in this interpretation. was too much troubled to enjoy any fleep ; and in iny future adventures never paffed a night fo In the morning, Strap imparted the whole air to Joev, who, after an immoderate fit of laugh-", explained the matter, by telling him the old man ws the landlord's father, who had been an idjot fome ars, and diverted himfelt with a tame raven. hich, it feems, had hopped away from his apartment the night, and induced him to follow it to our cham. r, where he had inouired after it, under the name Ralpho.

CO

Nothing remarkable happened during the remaining mirt of our journey, which continued fix or feven days inger: At length we entered the great city, and dged all night at the inn where the waggon put up.--fext morning, all the paffengers parted different ways ; failt my companion and I fallied out to enquire for e member of parliament, to whom I had a letter of commendation from Mr. Crab. As we had difcharged ar lodging at the inn, Strap took up our baggage and marched behind me in the fireet with the knapfack on is back, as usual, fo that we made a very whimfical appearance .- I had dreffed myfek to the greateft advanlage; that is, put on a clean ruffled fairt, and my beft mread flockings; my hair (which was of the deep:ft red) sung down upon my fhoulders, as lank and firaight as a ound of candles ; and the fkirts of my coat reached to he middle of my leg ; my waiftcoat and breeches were of

of the fame piece, and cut in the fame tafte ; and hat very much refembled a barber's bafon in the f lowners of the crown and narrowners of the br Strap was habited in a much lefs aukward manner : a fhort crop eared wig that very much refem Scrub's in the play, and the knapfack on his back, ded to what is called a queer phiz, occafioned by a li chin, and hook nofe and high cheek bones, rendred on the whole a very fit fubiest of mirth and pleafan As we walked along, Strap, at my defire, inquired a carman whom we met, whereabouts Mr. Crin with the word, " Anan 1" Upon which I came in order to explain the queflion, but had the misfort to be unintelligible likewife, the carman damning for a loufy Scotch guard, and whipping the hor with a "Gee ho !" which nettled me to the quick. a roufed the indignation of Strap fo far, that after the fellow was gone a good way, he told me he would fight thim for a farthing .----- While we were deliberation upon what was to be done, an hackney-coachman d ving foftly along, and perceiving us ftanding by the kennel, came up clofe to us, and calling, "A coad "mafter !" by a dexterous management of the rein made the horfes flumble in the wet, and bedaub us over with mud, ---- After which exploit he drove c applauding himfelf with a hearty laugh, in which veral people joined to my great mortification ; but of more compationate than the reft, feeing us ftrange adviled me to go into an ale houle and dry myle I thanked him for his advice, which I immediate complied with ; and going into the house he point out, called for a pot of beer, and fat down by a fire the public room, where we cleaned ourfelves as well we could .--- In the mean time, a wag, who fat a box imosking his pipe, understanding by our diale that we were from Scotland, came up to me, and with a grave countenance, afked how long I have been caught ? As I did not know the meaning of the queftion, I made no answer, and he went on, fayin it could not be a great while, for my tail was not y cut, at the fame time taking hold of my hair, and tight pin the wink to the reft of the company, which feemhighly entertained with his wit .- I was incenfed at ufage, but afraid of refenting it, becaufe 1 happen. to be in a firange place, and perceived the perfon b fooke to me, was a brawny fellow, for whom I light myfelf by no means a match. However, Strap ing either more courage or lefs caution, could not up with the infults that I fuffered ; but told him in eremptory tone, " He was an uncivil fellow for makag fo free with his betters."-Then the wit going gards him, afked. What he had got in his knapfack? s it oatmeal or brimftone, Sawney ?" (faid he) feiznim by the chin, which he thook, to the inexprefe divertion of all prefent .---- My companion feeling felf affaulted in fuch an opprobrious manner, difented himfelf in a trice, and lent his antagonift fuch a on the ear, as made him ftagger to the other fide of room ; and in a moment a ring was formed for the abatants .- Seeing Strap beginning to frip, and my ad being heated with indignation, which banifhed all Her thoughts. I undreffed myfelf to the fkin in an in-At, and declared, that as the affront that occafioned quarrel was offered to me. I would fight it out my -; upon which one or two cried out, "That's a brave cotch boy ; you thall have fair play, by G-d." is affurance gave me fresh spirits, and going up to advertary, who by his pale countenance did not feem zh inclined to the battle, I ftruck him fo hard on the aach that he reeled over a bench, and fell to the und. Then I attempted to keep him down, in order improve my fuccels, according to the manner of my a country : but was reftrained by the fpectators, one whom endeavoured to raife up my opponent, but in a; for he protefted he would not fight, for he was not e recovered of a late illnefs. I was very well pleafed n this excuse, and immediately dreffed myself, having wired the good opinion of the company for my braveas well as of my comrade Strap, who shook me by hand and withed me joy of the victory. After ing drank our pot, and dried our clothes, we in a ed of the landlord if he knew Mr. Cringer the memof parliament, and were amazed at his replying in GL. 1. D

the negative ; for we imagined, he must be altogether confpicuous here, as in the borough he represented; I he told us we might noffibly hear of him as we nat We betook ourfeives therefore to the fire along. where feeing a footman at the door, we made up him, and afked if he knew where our patron lived ?-This member of the party-coloured fraternity, furveyi us both very minutely, faid he knew Mr Cringer ve well, and bade us turn down the first firset on our le then turn to the right, and then to the left again, af which peranibulation we would obferve a lane, throu which we must pass, and at the other end we fher find an alley that leads to another fireet, where we fhou jee the fign of the Thiffle and three Pedlars, and the he lodged .- We thanked him for his information, a went forwards. Strap telling me that he knew this pi fon to be an honeft friendly man by his countenant before he opened his mouth; in which opinion I a oniciced, aferibing his good manners to the company daily faw in the house where he ferved. We follow his directions punctually, in turning to the left and the right, and to the left again ; but inftead of feeing tane before us, tound ourfelves at the fide of the rive a circumftance that nerplexed us not a little ; and i fellow-traveller ventured to pronounce, that we had co rainly miffed our way .- By this time we were pret much fatigued with our walk, and not knowing how proceed, I went into a imall fouff-thop hard by, e couraged by the fign of the Highlander, where I fou to my inexpredible fatisfaction, the thop-keeper was i countryman. He was no fooner informed of our per grination, and the directions we had received from t footman, than he informed us we had been imposed u on, telling us, Mr. Cringer lived in the other end the town ; and that it would be to no purpose for us on thither to-day, for by that time he was gone to I house .- I then alked if he could recommend us to lodging. He readily gave us a line to one of his acquai tance who kept a chandler's thop not far from St Marti Lane : there we hired a bed room, up two pair of Itai at the rate of 21. per week, fo very fmall, that wh the bed was let down, we were obliged to carry out

ry other piece of furniture that belonged to the apartent, and pie the beditead by way of chairs .- About oner-time our landlord afked us how we propofed to e? to which interrogation we answered that we would directed by him. " Well then (fays he) there are two ways of eating in this town, for people of your condition : the one more creditable and expensive than the other : the first, is to dine at an eating house frequented by well dreffed people only ; and the other is called diving, practifed by those who are either obliged or inclined to live trugally."-I gave him to under. nd that provided the laft was not infamous, it would t much better with our circumftances than the other. " Infamous | (ctied he) God forbid ! there are many creditable people, rich people, ay, and fine people, that dive every day. I have feen many a pretty gentleman with a laced waittcoat, dine in that manner. very comfortably for three pence halfpenny, and go afterwards to the coffee houle, where he made a fipure with the beft lord in the land-but your own eyes thall bear witnets-I will go along with you today and introduce you "-He accordingly conducted to a certain lane, where stopping, he bade us obwe him, and do as he did, and walking a few paces, lowed his example, and defcending very inccefsfully. and mytelf in the middle of a cook's thop, almost fuftated with the lieams of boiled beet, and furrounded a company of hackney coacamen, chairmen, drayin, and a few footmen out of place or on board wages; to fat eating thin of beet, tripe, cow heel, or faufages. feparate boards, covered with cloths, which turned r Romach .- While I food in amaze, undetermined nether to fit down or walk upwards again, Strap in his ficent milling one of the steps, tumpled headlong into is infernal ordinary, and overturned the cook as the Fried a porringer of loup to one of the guelts : In her I, the dathed the whole mets against the legs of a ummer belonging to the foot-guards, who happened be in her way, and fealded him to milerably that he rted up, and danced up and cown, uttering a volley rexecrations that made my hair ftand on end. While D 2

he entertained the company in this manner, with a elequence peculiar to himfelf, the cook got up, and a ter a hearty curfe on the poor author of this mifchance who lay under the table foratching his rump with a we ful countenance, emptied a falt cellar in her hand, and firipping down the patient's flocking, which brough the fkin along with it, applied the contents to the fore-This poultice was fcarce laid on, when the drummely who had begun to abate of his exclamations, broke for into fuch a hideous yell, as made the whole comparis tremble : then feizing a pewter pint pot that flood him, fourezed the fides of it together, as if it had been made of pliant leather, grinding his teeth at the famtime with a most horrible grin. Gueffing the caufe this viclent transport. I bade the woman walh off the fait, and bathe the part with oil, which the did, arts procured him immediate eafe. But here another diff culty occured, which was no other than the landlady infilling on his paying for the pot he had rendered of lefs. He fwore he would pay for nothing but what h had eaten, and bade her be thankful for his moderatich or elfe he would profecute her for damages. - Strap for feeing the whole affair would lie at his door, promife to fatisfy the cook, and called for a dram of gin to treat the drummer, which entirely appealed him, and comnofed all ani nofities. After this accommodation, out fundlord and we fat down at a board, and dined updited thin of beef most deliciously ; our reckoning amounting to two pence halfpenny each, bread and imall beer in

C H A P. XIV.

We vife Strap's friend—a defeription of him—his ac wice—wwe go to Mr. Gringer's houfs—are deniet ac mittance—an accident hefalt Strap—his hebavion thereupon—an accident defalt Strap—his hebavion thereupon—actraordinary adventure occurs, in t. course of which I lofa all my monsy.

I N the afternoon, my companion proposed to call : his friend's house, which, we were informed, which the neighbourhood, whither we accordingly went, and were fo lucky as to find him at home. This genmman, who had come from Scotland three or four years fore, kept a fchool in town, where he taught the La-French, and Italian languages ; but what he chiefly of:fied was the pronunciation of the English tongue. ater a method more ipeedy and uncommon than any sactifed heretofore : and indeed if his fcholars fpoke te their mafter, the latter part of his undertaking was irtainly performed to a tittle : for though I could fily understand every word of what I had head hitherfince I entered England, three parts in four of his he alect were as unintelligible to me, as if he had spoke in arabick or Irifh. He was a middle-fized man, and poped very much, though not above the age of forty ; his face was frightfully pitted with the fmall pox, and is mouth extended from ear to ear. He was dreffed in a night gown of plaid, faitened about his middle with a rieant's old fash, and a tie perriwig with a fore-top maree inches high, in the falhion of king Charles the recond's reign .- After he had received Strap (who was valated to him) very courteoully, he inquired of him. ho I was : and being informed, took me by the hand. felling me, he was at fchool with my father .- When he maderitood my fituation, he affured me that he would do are all the fervice in his power, both by his advice and therwife; and while he fpoke thefe words, eyed me with great attention, walking round me feveral times and muttering, " O Ch-ft ! O Ch-ft ! fat a faight is here ?- I foon gueffed the reafon of his ejaculation. Ind faid, " I fuppofe, Sir, you are not pleafed with my " dreis."-Dreis, (answered he) you may caal it fat you pleafe in your country, but I vaw to Gad, 'tis a mafquerade here.-No christian will admit fuch a figure into his hawfe .- Upon my conficience ! I wonder the dogs did not hunt you .- Did you pais through * St. James's market ?-God blefs my eye faight ! you # look like a coufig-german of Ouran Outang."____[began to be a little ferious at this difcourie, and alked aim, if he thought I should obtain entrance to-morrow at the house of Mr. Cringer, on whom I chiefly depended, for an introduction into bulinels .- " Mr. Cringer. D 3 62 Mr.

" Mr. Cringer (replied he, foratching his cheek) ma m " be a very honelt gentleman --- I know nothing to think " contrary ; but is your fole dependance upon him " Who recommended you to him ?"-I pulled out Make Crab's letter, and told him the foundation of my hopes has at which he flared at me, and repeated, " Ch-ft !! -I began to conceive bad omens from this behaviour ch his, and begged he would affift me with his advice by which he promifed to give very frankly ; and as a fpecies men, directed us to a perriwig ware houle, in the neighter bourhood, in order to be accommodated ; laying fron bo injunctions on me not to appear before Mr. Cringer, tille I had parted with thefe carroty locks, which the faidh were fufficient to beget an antipathy against me in a' mankind. And as we were going to purfue this advices he called me back, and bade me be fure to deliver me letter into Mr. Cringer's own hand. As we walked a long. Strap triumphed greatly in our reception with hit friend, who (it feems) had affured him, he would in day or two provide for him, with fome good mafter by and " now (fays he) you thall fee how I will fit your " with a wig .- There's ne'er a baiber in London (and "that's a bold word) can palm a rotten caul. or a pea " nyweight of dead hair upon me." - And indeed this zealous adherent did wrangle fo long with the merchant that he was defired twenty times to leave the thop, anon fee if he could get one cheaper ellewhere. At lengthing I made choice of a good handfome bob, for which paid ten fhillings; and returned to our lodging, where Sirap, in a moment, rid me of that hair which had give en the fchoolmafter fo much offence.

We got up next day betimes, naving been informestthat Mr. Crugger gave audience by candle-light to all hisdependants, he himfelf being obliged to attend the leverol my Lord Terrier, a "break of day; becaule his lord's dhip dhade one at the minitter's between eight and nino'clock.---When we came to Mr. Cringer's door, btrag to give me an inflance of his policeneff, ran to the knocker, which he employed fo loud and fo long, the alarmed the whole firres; and a window opening in the facend flory of the next houle, a chamber pot was dicharged upon him fo fuccesfifully, that the poor barbe wet to the fkin, while I, being luckily at fome dince, efcaped the unfavoury deluge .- In the mean time sotman opening the door, and feeing no body in the aret but us, afke ! with a ftern countenance, if it was I made fuch a damaed noife, and what I wanted .- I I him I had bufinets with his mafter, whom I defired fee. Upon which he claoped the door in my face. thow me, I muft learn better manners befo e I could we accefs to his malter. Vered at this difappointment, ned my refeatment against Strap, whom I tharply primanded for his prefumption; but he not in the leaft garding what I faid, wrung the urine out of his perri. le, and lifting up a large flone, flung it with such arce against the fireet door of that house from whence had been bedewed, that the lock giving way, it flew de open, and he took to his heels, leaving me to folw him as I could. Indeed there was no time for deberation : I therefore purfued him with all the fneed I buld exert, until we found ourfelves about the dawn. a threet we did not know. Here, as we wandered a. ing, gaping about, a very decent fort of a man, paffing w me, hopped of a fudden, and took up fomething. which having examined, he turned and prefented it to me with these words, " Sir, you have dropt half a crown." -1 was not a little furprifed at this initance of honefty. and told him it did not belong to me ; but he bade me recollect, and fee if all my money was fafe : upon which pulled out my purfe (for I had bought one fince I came (b town) and reckoning my money in my hand, which was now reduced to five guineas feven thillings and two sence, alfured him I had loit nothing .- Well chen, (fays " he) fo much the better, -this is God fend-and as you " two were prefent when I picked it up, you are enti-" tled to equal theres with me."-I was aftonithed at hele words, and looked upon this perfon to be a prodizy of integrity, but abfolutely refuted to take any part of the fum .- " Come, gentlemen, (faid he) you are too is modett-I fee you are ftrangers-but you shall give " me leave to treat you with a whet this cold raw morn. "ing."-I would have declined this invitation, but Strap whilpered to me, that the gentleman would be affronted, and I complied .- " Where thall we go ? (faid DA of the

W

" the firanger) I am quite ignorant of this part of the " town."-I informed him that we were in the fame tuation : Upon which he propofed to go into the f publick houfe we fhould find open ; and as we walked in gether, he began in this manner :- " I find by you " tongues vou are from Scotland, gentlemen. I " grandmother by the father's fide was of your country " and I am fo prepoffeffed in its favour, that I new " meet a Scotchman but my heart warms. ----- 11-" Scots are a very brave people. There is fearce a great 144 family in the kingdom that cannot boalt of fome e " ploits performed by their anceftors many hundred year "ago .---- There's your Douglaffes. Gordons, Camili " bel's, Hamiltons .- We have no fuch antient familier "here in England .- Then you are are very well ed " cated-1 have known a pedlar talk in Greek and Ha " brew, as well as if they had been his mother tongt " -And for honefty-I once had a fervant, his narth " was Gregory Macgregor. I would have entrufted hill " with untold gold." ____ This eulogium on my nati country, gained my affection fo ftrongly, that I believe could have gone to death to ferve the author; and Strar eyes fwam in'tears. At length, as we paffed through dark narrow lane, we perceived a public houle, which we entered ; and found a man fitting by the fire, fmoal ing a pipe, with a pint of purl before him .----- Out new acquaintance afked us, if ever we had drank eg flip? To which queflion we answering in the negative he affured us of a regale, and ordered a quart to be propared, calling for pipes and tobacco at the fame time . We found this composition very palatable, and drank heartily ; the convertation (which was introduced by the gentleman) turning upon the fnares that young unexpe rienced people are exposed to in this metropolis. He described a thousand cheats that are daily practiled upon the ignorant and unwary ; and warned us of them with fo much good nature and concern, that we bleffed the opportunity that threw us in his way -After when had put the cann about for fome time, our new friend began to yawn, telling us he had been up all night with a lick perion ; and propoled we thould have recourse to fome diversion to keep him awake .- " Suppose (faid he)

we should take a hand at which for pacime .- But let me fee, that won't do, there's only three of us : and annot play at any other game .- The truth is, I feladom or never play, but out of complaifance, or at much a time as this, when I am in danger of falling afleep." - Although I was not much inclined to gam -. I felt no aversion to pais an hour or two at cardy to a friend; and knowing that Strap underflood as mich of the matter as I, made no fcruple of faying, I with we could find a fourth hand." While we re in this perplexity, the perfon whom we found in the ule at our entrance overhearing our difcourfe, took the be from his mouth very gravely, and accolled us thus: Gentlemen, my pipe is out you fee, (thaking the athes into the fire) and rather than you thould be baulked, I don't care if I take a hand with you for a rifle,-but remember I won't play for any thing of confequence." We accepted his proffer with pleae; having cut for partners, it fell to my lot to play ah him against our friend and Strap, for three pence a. me. We were fo fuccefsful, that in a fhort time I s half a crown gainer; when the gentleman whom we I met in the ftreet observing he had no luck to-day. ppofed to leave off, or change pareners. By this time was inflamed with my good fortune and the expectation improving it, as I perceived the two ftrangers play'd a indifferently : therefore I voted for giving him his enge ; and cutting again, Strap and I (to our mutual isfaction) happened to be partners. My good fortune ended me ftill, and in less than an hour, we had got rty fhillings of their money; for 2s they loft, they w the keener, and doubled itakes every time. At lait inconttant goddefs began to yeer about, and we were y foon fiript of all our gains, and about forty faillings our own money. This lofs mortified me extremely, d had a visible effect on the mufcles of Strap's tace, ich lengthened apace ; but our antagonists perceiving r condition, kinuly permitted us to retrieve our lots, d confole ourfelves with a new acquilition. Then my mpanion wifely fuggetted it was time to be gone ; up which the perion who had joined us in the house bem to curfe the cards; and muttered that we were in-Ds delvert

debted to fortune only for what we had got, no part our fuecefs being owing to our good play. This is nuation pettled me fo much, that I challenged him t game of piquet for a crown ; and he was with difficult perfuaded to accept the invitation .- This contell en in lefs than an hour, to my inexpreffible affliction, w folt every fhilling of my own money, Strap abfolu and refuting to fupply me with a fixpence .- The gen the man, at whole r quelt we had come in, perceiving my difconfolate looks the firmation of my heart, while well nigh burned with grief and refentment, when other ftranger got up, and went away with my mone began in this manner ; "I am truly afflicted at y. " bad luck, and would willingly repair it, was it in at " power. But what in the name of goodnefs could p " voke you to tempt your fate fo long ? It is alwayin " maxim with gamefters to purfue fuccefs as far a " will go, and to flop whenever fortune fhifts about w "You are a young man, and your pathons tob impe " ous : you mult learn to govern them better :-- Ha 45 ever, there is no experience like that which is boug " you will be the better for this the longest day y " have to live .- As for the fellow who has get ye " money, I don't half like him .- Did not you obfer " me tip you the wink to leave off in time."---- 1 a fwered, No. " No, (continued he) you was too eag " to mind any thing but the game .- But, harkee, (fa " he, in a whilper) are you fatisfied of that you " man's honefty ! his looks are a little fufpicious ; --" but I may be miltaken ; he made a great many g " maces while he flood behind you; this is a ve " wicked town." I told him I was very well convinc of my comrade's integrity, and that the grimaces mentioned were doubtless owing to his anxiety at n lofs .-.... U ho ! if that be the cafe, 1 afk his pardon .-" Landlord, fee what's to pay."-The teckoning mounted to eighteen pence, which having discharge the gentleman thook us both by the hand, and faying he thould be very glad to fee us again, departed.

82

CHA

CHAR XV.

ap moralizes ____prefents bis purfe to me____we inform our landlord of my misfortune ; be unravels the mystery-I prefent myself to Gringer ---- be recommends and turns ome over to Mr. Staytabe ____ [become acquainted with a fellow dependant, who explains the characters of Cringer and Staytabe -and informs me of the method to be burfued at the Navy office and Surgeon's ball - Strap is emplosed.

N our way to our lodging, after a profound filence on both fides. Strap with a hideous groan obferved. at we had brought our pigs to a fine market. To this fervation 1 made no reply, and he went on : " God fend us well out of this place, we have not been in London eight and forty hours, and I blive we have met with eight and forty thousand mistortuses. We have been jeered, reproached, buffeted, pilled upon, and at laft fiript of our money ; and I suppose by and by we shall be ftript of our fkins. Indeed, as to the money part of it, that was owing to our own folly : Solomon fays, Bray a fool in a mortar and be will never be wife. An ! God nelp us, an sunce of prudence is worth a pound of gold." This was no time r him to tamper with my disposition, already mad with y lofs, and inflamed with refentment against him for aving refused me a little money to attempt to retrieve

I therefore turned towards him with a ftern counnance, and afked, " Who he called fool ?" Being alogether unaccustomed to fuch looks from me, he flood ill and ftared in my face for fome time ; then with fome onfution, uttered, " Fool ! - I called no body tool but myfelt ;- I am fure I am the greateft fool of the two. for being fo much concerned at other people's mistortunes : ---- but Nemo omnibus horis fapit --- that's all." - Upon which a filence enfued that brought us to our odging, where I threw myfelf upon the bed in an agony f delpair, refolved to perilh rather than apply to ny ompanion or any other body for relief; but Strap, who new my temper, and whole heart bled within him at D 6 my diffrefs, after fome paufe came to the bed-fide, anim putting a leathern purfe into my hand, burft into tears crying, "I know what you think : but I foorn you what "thoughts .---- There's all I have in the world, take in-" and I'll perhaps get more for you before that be don the "-If not, I'll beg for you, feal for you, go through " the wide world with you, and flarve with you, fet." " though I be a poor cobler's fon, I am no fcout."-----I was fo touched with the generous paffion of this poch creature, that I could not refrain from weeping alfo, and we mingled our tears together for fome time .--- Upon enamining the purfe, I found in it two half-guineas and half a crown, which I would have returned to him, favor ing, he knew better than I how to manage it, but his abfolutely refused my propofal, and told me, it was more reafonable and decent that he fhould depend on minwho was a gentleman, than that I fhould be controule by him.

11 7

After this friendly contelt was over, and our mind more at eafe, we informed our landlord of what had hap pened to us, taking care to conceal the extremity to which we were reduced ; He no fooner heard the flory that he affured us we had been grievoully imposed upon by a couple of tharpers, who were affociates ; and that this polite, honeft, triendly, humane perfon, who have treated us to civilly, was no other than a rafcally Money dropper, who made it his bufinefs to decoy ftrangers in that manner, to one of his own haunts, where an accom plice or two were always waiting to affift in pillaging the prey he had run down. Here the good man recounted. a great many flories of people who had been feduced cheated, piltered, beat,-nay, even murdered by iuch villains. I was confounded at the artifice and wicked nefs of mankind, and Strap, lifting up his eyes and hands to heaven, prayed that God would deliver him from fuch icenes of iniquity; for furely the devil had fet up his throne in London. Our landlord being curious to know what reception we had met with at Mr. Cringer's, we acquainted hinr with the particulars, at which he fhool his head, and told us, we had not gone the right way to work; that there was nothing to be done with a mb-r of p-m-t without a bribe; that the fervant was mmonly infected with the mafter's difeafe, and exandted to be paid for his work, as well as his betters .--the therefore advifed me to give the footman a fhilling next time I should defire admittance to my patron, elfe I fhould fcarce find an opportunity to deliver my meter. Accordingly, next morning, when the door was opened. I flipt a fhilling into his hand, and told -im I had a letter for his mafter .- I found the good efmets of my liberality ; for the fellow let me in immewhately, and taking the letter out of my hand, defired abe to wait in a kind of paffage, for an answer. In this arace I continued ftanding three quarters of an hour, duing which time I faw a great many young fellows, whom auformerly knew in Scotland, pafs and repafs, with an our of familiarity, in their way to and from the audiencemamber ; while I was fain to ftand fhivering in the cold, and turn my back to them, that they might not perceive le lownels of my condition .- At length Mr. Cringer me out to fee a young gentleman to the door, who was other than Squire Gawky, dreffed in a very gay fuit of clothes : At parting, Mr. Cringer thook him by the hand, and told him he hoped to have the pleasure of his mpany at dinner. Then turning about towards men aked what were my tommands ; when he underftood I was the perfon who had brought the letter from Mr. grab, he affected to recollect my name, which, however, pretended he could not do, till he had confuited the atter again ; to fave him that trouble, I told him my mame was Kandom .---- Upon which he wenton, " Av. ay, Random, Random, Random -I think I remamber the name ;" and very well he might, for this very dadividual Mr. Cringer had many a time rode before my drandfather's cloak bag, in quality of a footman .-----Well, (fays he) you propose to go on board a man of war, as furgeon's mate." I replied by a low bow. I believe it will be a difficult matter, (continued he). to procure a warrant, there being already fuch a fwarm de or Scot's furgeons at the navy-office, in expectation of the next vacancy, that the committioners are afraid of being torn to pieces, and have actually applied for a guard to protect them. ---- However, fome thips will " foon be put into commillion, and then we thall fee " what',

com

" what's to be done." —— So faving, he left me exceed ingly mortified at the different reception Mr. Gawk and I had met with from this upflart, proud, mean member, who (I imagined) would have been glad of an opportunity to be grateful for the obligations he owed the my family.

At my return. I was furprifed with the agreeable new of Strap's being employed on the recommendation of hi friend the schoolmatter, by a periwig-maker in the neigh bourhood, who allowed him five thillings per week, be fides bed and board .- I continued to dance attendance every other morning at the levee of Mr. Cringer, during a fortnight, in which time I became acquainted with young fellow of my own country and profeffion, who all fo depended on the member's intereft : but was treated with much more respect than 1, both by the fervants and mafter, and often admitted into a parlour, where there was a fire for the convenience of the better fort of thof who waited for him. Thither I was never permitted te penetrate on account of my appearance, which was not at all fashionable ; but was obliged to stand blowing my fingers in a cold lobby, and take the first opportunity of Mr. Cringer's going to the door to speak with him .--On: day, while I enjoyed this occasion, a perfon was introduced, whom Mr. Cringer no fooner faw, than running towards him, he faluted him with a bow to the very ground, and afterwards thaking him by the hand with great heartinefs and familiarity, called him his good friend. and alked very kindly after Mrs. Staytape, and the young ladies : then, after a whilper which continued for fome minutes, wherein I heard the word Henour repeated feveral times with great emphafis, Mr. Cringer introduced me to this gentleman, as to a perion whole advice and affiltance I might depend upon, and having given me his direction, followed me to the door, where he told me. I need not give myfelf the trouble to call at his noufe any more, for Mr. Staytape would do my bulinefs. At that initiant my tellow-dependant coming out after men overneard the difcourie of Mr. Cringer, and making up to me in the fireet, accouted me very civilly : This addrefs I looked upon as no imali honour, confidering the figure he made ; for he was dreifed in a blue frock with

with a gold button, a green filk wailcoat trimmed with bld, black velvet breeches, white fik flockings, filver ackles, a gold faced hat, a fpencer wig, and a filver lted hanger, with a fine clouded cane in his hand --I perceive (fays he) you are but lately come from Scotland ;---- pray what may your bulinefs with Mr. "Cringer be ? - I fuppofe it is no fecret-and I may poffibly give you fome advice that will be ferviceable : for I have been inrgeon's fecond mate on board of a feventy gun thip, and confequently know a good deal of the world."-I made no crup'e to difclofe my finttion, which when he had learned, he fbook his head. and told me he had been pretty much in the fame cire umftances about a year ago; that he had reli d on Crin-Fer's promifes, until his money (which was confiderable) is well as his credit, was quite exhausted, and when he brote to his relations for a fresh supply, instead of money, he received nothing but reproaches, and the epihets of idle, debauched fellow : That after he had waitd at the navy office many months for a warrant to no ourpofe, he was fain to pawn tome of his clothes, which who foon procured a warrant for him, notwithitanding the had affirmed the fame day, that there was not one varancy. I'hat he had gine on board, where he remained hine months ; at the end of which the fhip was put out of commission ; and he faid the company were to be paid off in Broad-Breet the very next day. That his relations being reconciled to him, had charged him to pay his dewoirs regularly to Mr Cringer, who had informed them by letter, that his interest alone had procured the warrant ; in obedience to which command, he came to his levee every morning as I law, though he looked upon him to be a very pititul fcoundrel. In conclution, he afked me if I had yet p fed at Surgeon's-Hall? To which queftion I answered, I did not to much as know it was neseffary -" Necelfary ! (cries ac) O Lord, O Lord ! 1 " find I must initruct you -come along with me, and " I'll give you fome information about that matter."-So faying, ne carried me into an ale-houle, where he called tor iome beer and bread and cheete, on which we breakfatted. While we fat in this place, he told me I mait must first go to the navy office, and write to the board defiring them to order a letter for me to the Surgeon's Hall, that I may be examined touching my fkill in fur gery : That the furgeons, after having examined me woul give me my qualification fealed up in form of a letter directed to the commissioners, which qualification I must deliver to the fecretary of the board, who would open it in my prefence, and read the contents. After which I must employ my interest to be provided for an foon as poffible. That the expence of his qualification for fecond mate of a third rate, amounted to thirteer fhillings, exclusive of the warrant, which coft him half a guinea, and half a crown, befides the prefent to the fecretary, which confilted of a three pound-twelve piece. -This calculation was like a thunderbolt to me, whole whole fortune did not amount to twelve thillings ---- I accordingly made him acquainted with this part of my diffrefs, after having thanked him for his information. and advice. He condoled me on this occafion : but hade me be of good cheer, for he had conceived a friendthip for me, and would make all things eafy------ He was run out at prefent, but to morrow or next day he was certain of receiving a confiderable fum: of which he would lend me what would be fufficient to answer my exigencies. This frank declaration pleafed me fo much, that I pulled out my purfe and emptied it before him, begging him to take what he pleafed for pocket expence, until he flould receive his own money. -----With a good deal of preffing he was prevailed upon to take five fhillings, telling me that he might have what money he wanted at any time for the trouble of going into the city : but as he had me, with me, he would defer his going thither till to-morrow, when I thould go along with him, and he would put me in a way of acting for myfelf, without a fervile dependance on that rafcal Cringer, much leis on the loufy taylor to whom I heard him turn you over. - - " How (cried I) is Mr. " Staytape a taylor ?"-" No leis, 1'll affure you (an-" (wered he) and I conteis, more likely to ferve you " than the member: For provided you can entertain " him with politics and conundrums, you may have 6. credit with him for as many and as rich clothes as on pleafe."-. I told him I was utterly igoorant of both, fo incenfed at Gringer's ufage, that I would never ioot within his door again. -- After a good deal more veriation, my new acquaintance and I parted, having le an appointment to meet nest day at the fame place, order to fet opt for the city. I went immediately too pp, and related every thing which had happened, but lid not at all improve of my being fo forward to lend hey to a ftranger, effocially as we had already been unch impofed upon by appearances. However (faid e) if you are fares he is a Scotchman, I believe you re fafe."

80

C H A P. XVI.

N the morning I role and went to the place of remdezvous, where I waited two hours in wain; and was exciperated again! him for breaking his appointment, it I let out for the city by mylelf, in hope of finding villan; and being revends on him for his breach of numfel. At length I found mylelf at the Navy-office, soin I cattered, and faw crowds of young fellows walkebelow; many of whom made no better appearance in myfelf. I conditied the paying mony of each, and and made up to one whole countenance I liked, and hed, if he could initruit me in the form of the letter below at to be feut to the board, to obtain an order the was to be feut to the board, bo dotain an order would have me the copy of waat he had writ tor himly, by the direction of another who knew the form a mydel.

00

and accordingly pulled it out of his pocket for my pere fal ; and told me, that if I was expeditious. I might fe it in to the board before dinner, for they did no busit nefs in the afternoon. He then went with me to a court fee-house hard by, where I wrot the letter, which will immediately delivered to the mefferger ; who told not I might exp & an order to morrow about the fame tinte Having transacted this piece of bulinefs, my min. w a good deal composed ; and as I met with fo much civity ty from this firanger, I defired further acquaintance with him, fully refolved however, not to be deceived by him fo much to my prejudice as I had been by the beau. He agreed to dine with me at the cook's thon which me frequented ; and on our way thither, carried me he 'Change, where I was in fome hopes of finding M Tackion (for that was the name of the perfon who have broke his appointment)-I fought him there to no put pofe, and on our way towards the other end of the towing imparted to my companion his behaviour towards men Upon which he gave me to understand, that he was a ftranger to the name of beau Jackfon (fo he was called at the Navy office) although he did not know him pell fonally ; that he had the character of a good-natural. careless tellow, who made no feruple of borrowing from any body that would lend; that most people who knew him, believed he had a good principal at bottom, but h extravagance was such, he would probably never have in his power to manifelt the honeity of his intention .- his This account made me fweat for my five thillings, which I neverthelets did not altogether detpair of recovering provided I could find out the debtor. This young main likewife added another circumstance of Source Jackfon 10 hiltory, which was, that being deflitute of all mean to equip himself for fea. when he received his last war rant, he had been recommended to a perfon who had lent him a little money, after he had figned a will ank power, entitling that perion to lift his wages when the thould become due, as also to inherit his effects in calls of his death .- That he was still under the tutorage and direction of that gentleman, who advanced him ima i fums from time to time upon this fecurity, at the rate of 50 per cent. But at preient his credit was very low hecault ufe his funds would pay little more than what he already received, this moderate intereft included. er tile itranger (whole name wis Thomfon) had enmined me with this account of Jackfon, he informed hat he himfelf had paffed for a third mate of a third about four months ago ; fince shich time, he had antivattended at the Nave Office, in hope of a war-, baying been affired from the beginning, both by totch member and one of the comifingers to whom imember recommended him that he fould be put the first vicancy ; notwithitanding which promife, ad the mortification to fee fix or feren appointed in fame flation almost every week-that now being utw impoverithed, his fole hope confitted in the promife friend lately come to town, to lend him a finall ter, for a prefent to the f- -v ; without which he vertuaded he might wait a thouland years to no pole .--- 1 conceived a mighty liking to this young nw, which (I believe) proceeded from the fimilitude our fortunes : We ipent the whole day together ; and he lived at Wapping, I defired him to take a fhare of bed. Next day we returned to the Navy-Office, ere, after being called before the board, and quellionabout the place of my nativity and education, they ored a letter to be made out for me, which upon payhalf a crown to the clerk. I received, and delivered a the hands of the clerk at Surgeon's-Hall, together In a thilling for his crouble in registering my name.---this time my whole tlock was diminished to two thilgs, and I faw not the least profpect of relief, even for fent fublistence, much lets to enable me to pay the at Surgeon's Hall for my examination, which would ae on in a fortnight. In this late of perplexity, I lifulted strap, who affored me, he would pawn every ng he had in the world, even to his razors, before I ald want : but this expedient I abfolutely rejected, ting him I would a thouland times rather list for a folr, of which I had fome thoughts, than be any longer urden to him. At the word foldier, he grew pale as ith, and begged on his knees, I would think as more that feneme. "God preferve us all in our right wits I (cried he) would you turn foldier, and pernaps 66 be

" be fent abroad against the Spaniards, where you m " fland and be fhot at like a woodcock ?- Heaven k " cold lead out of my carcafe ! and let me die in a " like a Chriftian, as all my forefathers have done "What fignifies all the riches and honours of this 1 " if one enjoys not content .- And in the next, there " " no respect of perfons. Better be a poor honeft b " ber with a good confeience, and time to repent of the " fins upon my death bed, than to be cut off (God bl " us) by a mufket-thot, as it were in the very flower " one's age, in the purfuit of riches and fame. What "fignify riches (my dear friend !) do not they make " unto themfelves wings, as the wife man faith ; a " does not Horace observe, Non domus aut fundus, se aris acervus aut auri aproto domino deduzit corpete " febrem, non animo curas. - I could moreover menti " many other favings in contempt of riches, both fre " the bible and other good books ; but as I know you a to " not very fond of those things, I shall only affure ye " that if you take on to be a foldier. I will do the fam " and then if we fhould be both flain, you will not or " have your own blood to answer for, but mine all " and peradventure the lives of all those whom we fhile " kill in battle - Therefore I pray you, confider when " that you will fit down contented with finall things " and thare the fruits of my industry in peace, till prin " vidence fhall fend better tidings : or by your defpate " plunge both our fouls and bodies into everlalling pet " dition, which God of his infinite mercy forbid." ----I could not help fmiling at this harangue, which was di livered with great carnelinefs, the tears flanding in h. eyes all the time : and promifed to do nothing of the fort without his confent and concurrence .- He was much comforted with this declaration ; and told me in a fel days he should receive a week's wages, which should be at my fervice, but advised me in the mean time, to g in quell of Jackfon, and recover, if poffible, what he has borrowed of me .- I accordingly trudged about from or end of the town to the other for feveral days without be ing able to learn any thing certain concerning him: Anci. one day being extremely hungry and allured by the fleams that regaled my noitrils from a boiling cellar, went down with an intention to gratify my appetite with penny worth of beef : when, to my no finall fur-, I found Mr. Jackfon fitting at dinner with a foot-He no fooner perceived me than he got up, and is me by the hand, faying, " He was glad to fee e, for he intended to have called at my lodgings the afternoon."---- I was fo well pleafed with this ounter, and the apologies he made for not keeping ppointment, that I forgot my refentment, and fat in to dinner, with the happy expectation of not only vering my own money before we should part, but of reaping the henefit of his promife to lend me rewithal to pais examination ; and this hope my fan. e complexion fuggefled, though the account Thomgave me of him, ought to have moderated my exation .----- When we had feafted fumptuoully he took leave of the footman, and adjourned with me to an house hard by, where, after shaking me by the hand in, he began thus : "I fuppofe you think me a fad dog Ir. Random, and I do confess that appearances are gainft me .- But I dare fay you will forgive me when tell you, my not coming at the time appointed was wing to a peremptory melfage, I received from a ertain lady, whom-harkee (but this is a great feret) I am to marry very foon .- You think this ftrange erhaps, but it is not lefs true for all that-a five housand pounder, I'll affure you, befides expectalons. --- For my own part, devil take me if I know that any woman can fee engaging about meat a whim you know, -and then you would not aulk one's good fortune .---- You faw that footman who dined with us-he's one of the honefteft fellows hat ever wore a livery .--- You must know, it was by is means 1 was introduced to her, for he made me first acquainted with her woman, who is his mistrefs had of my money-but what of that? things are now throught to a bearing --- I have-(come a little this way) I have proposed marriage, and the day is fixed --- the's a charming creature | writes like an angel .---) Lord ! the can repeat all the English tragedies as well as e'er a player in Drury-Lane ! and indeed is fo

- 92

" Deer Kreeter.

04

⁴⁴ A S yos are the animable hopjack of my conte ⁴⁵ A playhings, your aydcar is internally kimm ⁴⁶ before my keymerycal fanfee, when Murfy fends ⁴⁷ puppies to the keys of flipping mortals ; and when ⁴⁵ bus flines from his merydying throne: Whereu ⁴⁴ I fiall canfeeif old whorie time has loft his pinn ⁴⁶ as also Cupid his harrows, until thou enjoy fw ⁴⁶ prepote in the loafseek harms of your faithfool to co ⁴⁷ mend,

"Winegar-yeard, Divory } " lane, January 12th." }

" CLAYRENDE

While I was reading, he feemed to be in an exta subbing his hands, and burfling into fits of laughter ; laft he caught hold of my hand, and fqueezing it, crie " There is fivle for you I what do you think of this b " let doux ? " I answered, it might be fublime f " aught I knew, for it was altogether above my con " prehenfion."_" O ho ! (faid he) I believe it is-bo " tender and tublime-fhe's a divine creature ! --- a: " fo doats upon me !--- Let me fee- what fhall I " with this money, when I have once got it into a " hand ?- In the first place I shall do for you -I'm " man of a few words-but, fay no more,-that's dete " mined ---- whether would you advite me to purcha " fome poll, by which I may rise in the flate, or la " out my wife's fortuge in land and retire to the cour " try at once ?" I gave my opinion without hefitation that he could not do better than buy an eltate and im prove ; efpecially fince he had already feen fo much o the world. Then I launched out into the praifes of country life, as described by the poets whole works had read .- He feemed to relifh my advice, but witha told me, that although he had feen a good deal of th world both by land and lea, having cruized three whol month the in the channel, yet he fhould not be fatisfied une had vifited France, which he proposed to do behe (hould fettle : and to carry his wife along with -I had nothing to object to his propofal ; and afked foon he hoped to be happy --- " As to that (he relied) nothing obfructs my happines, but the want a little ready cafh --- for you must know. my friend the city has gone out of town for a week or two ; nd I unfortunately milled my nay at Broad freet, by eing detained too long by the dear charmer -- but there ill be a recal at Chatham next week, whither the thin's poks are fent, and I have commissioned a friend in hat place to receive the money."-If that be all (faid there's no great harm in deferring your marriage a days .- 'Yes, faith ! but there is, (faid he) you don't now how many rivals I have, who would take all dvantages againft me .- I would not baulk the impaence of her paffion for the world ---- the leaft appearnce of coldnets and indifference would ruin all : and uch offer's don't occur every day."-I acquiesced his objervation, and enquired how he intended to sceed? At this queftion he rubbed his chin, and 4, "Why, truly I must be be obliged to fome friend or other-do you know nobody that would lend me a imall fum for a day or two ?"-I affired him that I is an utter ftranger in London, that I did not believe sould borrow a guinea it my lite depended upon it .--No! (faid he) that's hard-that's hard-1 with I had any thing to pawn-upon my foul, you have got excellent linen (feeling the fleeve of my thirt) how inany thirts of that kind have you got ?"-1 aniwered. bix ruffled and fix plain."-At which he teflified great prile, and fwore that no gentleman ought to have more an four-" How many d'ye think I have got (contimued he;) but this and another as I nope to be fayed ? -I dare tay we thall be able to raife a good fum out of your inperfluity ---- let me tee--let me tee---each of inefe thirts are worth fixteen thillings at a moderate price-eight tunes eight is fixty four, that's three pounds four-z-ds! that will do-give me your hand."-" Sottly, foftly, Mr. Jackfon, (faid I) don't " difpofe

" cifcole of my linen without my confent-firft pay " the crown you owe me, and then we shall talk of othe " matters."-He pretefted he had not above one f ling in his pocket, but that he would pay me out the first of the money raifed from the fhirts .- This pill of affurance incenfed me fo much, that I fwore I would not part with him until I had received fatisfaction what I had lent him, and as for the fhirts, I would as nawn one of them to fave him from the gallows. this expression he laughed aloud, and then complain it was damned hard, that I should refuse him a trit that would infallibly enable him not only to make he own fortune, but mine alfo .---- " You talk of pawning " my fhirts (faid 1), fuppofe you fhould fell this hangen " Mr. Jackfon ? I believe it would fetch a good round " fum ?"-" No, hang it, (faid be) I can't appear d " cently without my hanger, or egad it fhould gat However, feeing me inflexible with regard to my linen. at length unbuckled his hanger, and fhewing me the fign of the three blue balls, defired me to carry it thith and pawn it for two guineas. This office I would by means have performed, had I feen any likelihood of have ing my money otherwife ; but not willing, out of a pies of talle delicacy, to neglect the only opportunity I though perhaps ever have. I ventured into a pawn-broker's (homwhere I demanded two guineas on the pledge, in the name of Thomas Wilfon-" Two guineas ! (faid the " pawn-broker, looking at the hanger) this piece of good " has been here feveral times before for thirty fhillings to " however, fince I believe the gentleman to whom it be " longs will redeem it, he thall have what he wants ; and accordingly he paid me the money, which I can ried to the house where I left Jackfon, and calling folk change, counting out to him feven and thirty fhillings referving the other five for myfelf .- After looking at the money fome time, he faid, " D-n it ! it don't fignif h. " - this won't do my bufinefs ; fo you may as well tak to " half a guinea or a whole one, as the five fhillings your, " have kept."- I thanked .him kindly, but retufed to accept of any more than was my due, becaufe I had non projpect of repaying it .-- Upon which declaration, he stared in my face, and told me, I was excessively raw,

01

I would not talk in that manner .- " Blood, (cried () I have a very had opinion of a young fellow who on't borrow of his friend, when he is in wantis the fign of a fneaking foirit ---- Come, come. handom, give me, back the five thillings, and take is half guinea, and if ever you are able to pay me. believe vou will, if not d-n me if ever I atk it."in I reflected on my prefent necessity, I fuffered myto be p rfuaded, and after making my acknowledgeats to Mr. lackion, who offered to treat me with a I returned to my lodgings with a much better o. ion of this gentleman than I had in the morning : that night imparted my day's adventures to Strap, who miced at my good luck, faving, " I told you if he was Scotchman you was fafe enough -and who knows at this marriage may make us all .- You have heard. uppole, as how a countryman of ours, a journeywhen baker, ran away with a great lady of this town, id now keeps his coach-Ecodd I fay nothing ; but Rerday morning as I was a thaving a gentleman at is own house, there was a young lady in the room a fue boxom wench, Plaich ! and the threw fo in y flicep's eyes at a certain perfon, whom I thall t name, that my heart went knock, knock, knock, he a tuiling mill, and my hand fh-th-thook fo theh that I fliced a piece of thin off the gentleman's ife: Whereby he iwore a deadiy outh, and was going hortewhip me, when the prevented him and made peace ____ Quien baua malum ! Is not a journeyman trber as good as a journe, man baker? The only Ference is, the baker utes flour for the belly, and barber ufes it for our head : and as the head is a usre noble member than the belly, fo is a barper more ble than a baker-for what's the belly without the ad !-Befides, I am told he can neither read nor ite; now you now I can do both: And moreover ak Latin-But I will fay no more, for I defpite vay-nothing is more vain than vanity."----With worus he pulled out of his pocket a wax candle's which he applied to his forenead; and upon examin, I found he had combed his own har over the e of his wig, and was indeed in his whole drefs be-. I. come come a very fmart fhaver.—I congratulated him on profited with a fatyrical finite, which he underflood ry well; and fhaking his head, obferred I had very o the faith, but the truth would come to light in fplice my increduity.

08

C H A P. XVII.

I go to Surgeon's Hall, where I meet with Mr. Jac-— an examined — a force dipute aris's being two of the examiners— Jackyon diguifer kimic) to tradi reiped— is detelled— in nazard of being to Brithourell— be treats us at a tonern chrite us to a night-boule— a troublefone advenue there — we are committee to the Round-boule rica before a fuffice—bis behaviour.

V ITH the affidance of this faithful adherent, v preferved my half-guinea entire, till the day of examp nation, when I went with a quaking heart to Surge hall, in order to undergo that ceremony .---- Amon croud of young fellows who walked in the outward his I perceived Mr. Jackfon, to whom I immediately who up, and inquiring into the flate of his amour, under food it was ftill undetermined by reafon of his frienday abfence, and the delay of the recal at Chatham, wo be put it out of his power to bring it to a conclusion .----then affed what his bufinels was in this place; he to plied, he was retolved to have two ftrings to his boy, that in cale the one tailed he might ufe the other; and with this view, he was to pais that night for a big qualification. - At that initant a young tellow came . from the place of examination, with a wild countenand. his lip quivering, and his looks as pale as if he had to a sholt ---- He no fooner appeared, than we all flock about him with the unnoft eagernels to know what ception he had met with ; which (after fome paule) described, recounting all the questions they had alk with the antwers he made. In this manner we oblight no leis than twelve to recapitulate, which, now the dill.

was paft, they did with pleafure; before it fell to but : At length the beadle called my name, with a ce that made me tremble as much as if it had been found of the laft trampet : However, there was no nedy : I was conducted into a large hall, where I faw put a dozen of grim faces fitting at a long table ; one whom bade me come forward in fuch an imperious ne, that I was actually for a minute or two bereft of fenfes .----- The first queition he put to me was, Where was you born ?" To which I answered, In biland. --- " In Scotland (taid he) I know that very well ---- we have fcarce any other countrymen to ex-ate as the locuits did Egypt : --- I alk you in what bart of Scotland was you born ?"- I named the place my nativity, which he had never before heard of: He in proceeded to interrogate me about my age, the wn where I ferved my time, with the term of my apanticelhip; and when I informed him that I ferved three mars only, he fell into a violent poffion ; fwore it was hame and a fcandal to fend fuch raw boys into the and as furgeons : that it was a great prelumption in and an affront upon the Englith, to pretend to fufent fkill in my bufnefs, having ferved fo thort a die, when every apprentice in England was bound feven this at leaft;-that my friends would have some better it y had made me a weaver or thoemaker, but their pride huld have me a gentleman (he imposed) at any rate. I their poverty could not afford the neceffary educa-.--- I'his exordium did not at all contribute to the revery of my fpirits, but on the contrary reduced me to in a figurion that I was fearce able to fland; which ing perceived by a plump gentleman who lat opp lite me, with a tkull before him, he faid, Mr. Snarler is too fevere upon the young man; and turning toidrds me, toid me, I need not be atraid, sor no budy ald do me any harm; then bidding me take time to bilect myleit, he examined me touching the operaa of the trepan, and was very well facished with my wers .---- the next perfon who questioned me was a 5, who began by afking it I had ever feen amputais performed ; and 1 replying in the affirmative, he thook thook his head and faid. " What upon a dead fubi " I (uppofe ? If (continued he) during an engageme " at fea, a man thould be brought to you with his hi " that off, how would you behave " After fome fitation. I owned fuch a cafe had never come under obfervation ; neither did I remember to have feen a niethod of cure propofed for fuch an accident, in any the fyftems of inroery I had perufed. Whether it y owing to the fimplicity of my antwer, or the archin of the oueflion. I know not, but every member at t board deigned to (mile, except Mr. Snarler, who fee ed to have very little of the animal rifibile in his con tution- The facetious member, encouraged by the fu cefs of his laft joke, went on hus : " Suppole you w " called to a patient of a plethoric habit, who had be " bruifed by a fall, what would you do ?" I answere I would bleed him immediately. "What, (faid h " before you had tied up his arm?"- ut this throke wit not answering his expectation, he defired me to a vance to the gentleman who fat next him ; and w with a pert air alked what method of cure I would fe low in wounds of the inteffines -- I repeated the meth of cure as it is prefcribed by the belt chirurgical writer which he heard to an end, and then faid with a fupe cilious imile, " So you think by fuch treatment t " patient might recover ?"-I told him I faw nothin to make me this k other wife .- " That may be, (refum " he) 1 won't aniwer for your forefight :--- but did ye " ever know a cale of this kind fucceed?" I acknow ledged I did not; and was about to tell him I had m ver feen a wounded intelline ; but he itopt me by fa ing with tome precipitation, " nor never will-I affire "that all wounds of the inteffines, whether great 44 finall, are mortal, "-Pardon me, brother, (tays th " fat gentleman) there is very good authority -... He he was interrupted by the other, with " Sir, excule m at I despite all authority .---- Nullius in verba .------" itand upon my own bottom."-" But, Sir, Sir, (r " plied his antagonift) the reation of the thing thews -" A fig for realon, (cries this fufficient member) " laugh at reafon, give me ocular demonstration."____ The corpuient gentleman began to wax warm, ar objery

E z

grved that no man acquainted with the anatomy the par s. would advance fuch an extravigant afion .--- This incurdo enraged the other fo much. the flarted up, and in a furious tone exclain-" What, Sir ! do you quettion my knowledge in natomy "-By this time, all the examiners had builed the opinion of one or other of the difputants. raifed their voices all together, when the chairman nmanded filence, and ordered me to withdraw. In than a quarter of an hour, I was called in again. Eived my qualifications fealed up, and was ordered bay five thillings .---- I laid down my half guinea unthe table, and flood fome time, until one of them le me begone : to this I replied. I will, when I nave my change ; upon which another threw me five thilis and fix pence, faying, I thould not be a true chman if I went away without my change. I was irwards obliged to give three thillings and fix pence he beadles, and a thilling to an old woman who pt the hall : This difburtement lunk my finances to teen pence halfpenny, with which I was fneaking when Jackfon perceiving it, came up to me, and ged I would tarry for him, and he would accompany to the other end of the town, as foon as his examition thould be over. I could not refuie this to a perthat was to much my friend-but I was attonithed he change of his drefs, which was varied in halt an ir from what I have already deferibed, to a very groue fathion .- His head was covered with an old imoukeye wig that did not boalt one crooked hair, and a ched hat over it, which would have very well b.come humney-fweeper or a quit-man : his neck was adorn with a black crape, the ends of which he had twiltand a red at the button hale of the thabby great coat I wrapped up his whole body ; his white filk Hockings re converted into black worsted hole ; and his coultance was rendered venerable by wrinkles, and a beard his own painting;-When I expressed my furprile at metamorpholis, he laughed, and told me, it was the by the advice and affittance of a friend who lived r the way, and would certainly produce fomething y much to his advantage ; for it gave him the appear-ONAL LIBP

LOF

ance

E 3

ance of age, which never fails of attracting refpect. applanded his fagaeity, and waited with impatience. the effects of it. At length he was called in, bu: w ther the oddness of his appearance excited a curio fuitable to his figure, I know not, he was discovered be an impostor, and put into the hands of the headly order to be fint to Bridewell. So that inftead of feet him come out with a el cerful countenance, and a geon's qualification in his hand, I perceived him theus h the outward hall as a prifoner : and was v much alarmed and anxious to know the occafion ; w he called with a lamentable voice and pitious afject me and fome others who knew him: For God's f " gentlemen, bear witness that I am the fame individ " John Jackion, who ferved as turgeon's fecond m " on board the Elizabeth, or elle I shall go to bri " well "- It would have been impeffible for the n auftere bermit that ever lived, to have refrained in lauching at his appearance and address : we therefy inquired ourfeives a good while at his expence, and. terwards pleaded his canfe fo eff dually with the beac who was gratified with half a crown, that the prifo was difoutfed ; and in a tew moments refumed his f mer gaiety ;---- fwearing, fince the board had refu his money, he would ipend it every flittling before went to bed in treating his friends ; at the fame ti invising us all to favour him with our company. was now ten o'clock at night, and as I had a great w to walk through the Breets that were utterly unknot to me, I was prevailed upon to be of their party, hopes he would atterwards accompany me to my lo gings according to his promife. He conducted us his friend's house who kept a tavern over the way, wh we continued orighing punch, until the liquor moun up to our heads, and made us all extremely trolicktom I in particular was to much elevated, that nothing won terv me but a wench, at which demand Jackion prefied much joy, and affured me [thould have my fire before we parted .- Accordingly, when he had p the reckoning, we fallied out, roaring and finging ; a were conducted by our leader to a place of nocture catertainme ertainment, where I immediately attached myfelt to ir one, with whom I propuled to fornd the remaine part of the night ; but the not reli hing my appeare, refufed to grant my requelt b fore I thould have de her an acknowledgement, which not foring with circumftances, we broke off our correspondence, to no fmall mortification and refentment, becaufe I argit the mercenary creature had not done indice to merit .- In the mean time, Mr. Jackion's drefs had racted the inclinations and affiduities of two or three ophs, who loaded him with careffes, in return for arrack ounch with which he treated them ; till at igth, notwithstanding the forightly fallies of those rmers, fleep began to exert his power over us all : d our conductor called, " To pay." When the bill s brought, which amounted to twelve thillings, he his hand in his pocket, but might have laved himthe trouble, for his purfe was gone. - This acciht disconcerted him a good deal at first, but after to ne collection, he leized the two Dulcineas who fat py m, one on each hand ; and fwore it they did not imdiately reflore his money, he would charge a conable with them .- The good lady at the bar, feeing what fied, whilpered fomething to the drawer, who went t; and then with great composure alked what was the atter ? Jackfon told ner ne was robbed, and fwore it e refused nim fatisfaction, he would have her and her hores committed to Bridewell .- " Robbed, (cried the) robbed in my house ! Gentlemen and ladies, I take you all to witness, this perion has ican Jalized my reputation."-At that initiant feeing the constable and aten enter, the proceeded, " What ! you muit not on ly endeavour by your take afperfions to ruin my cnaracter ; but even commit an affault upon my family ? Mr. Conttable, i charge you with this uncivil perion. who has been guilty of a riot here ; I thali take care and bring an action against him for detaination."____ "hile I was reflecting on this melancholy event, which ad made me quite fober, the lady whole favours 1 a.d. ficited, being piqued at iome repartee that paffed beween us, cried, " They are all concerned :"-and dered the conftable to take us all into cuitody, an arrest E 4 which

which was performed inftantly, to the utter aftonifhmen and defpair of us all, except Jackfon, who having be often in tuch icrapes, was very little concerned, a charged the conflable in his turn with the landlady at her whole bevy : Upon which we were carried altog ther prifoners to the Round-houfe ; where Jackfon (aft. a word of comfort to us) informed the constable of it being robbed, to which he faid he would fwear ne. morning before the jullice --- " Ay, ay, (fays t " bawd) we fhall fee whofe oath will on it fignity."a little time the conflable calling Jackion into another 10cm, ipoke to him thus; " I perceive that you ar " your company are ftrangers, and am very forry til. " your being involved in fuch an ugly bufinels. I hal " known this woman a great while ; the has kept a n  toricus houfe in the neighbourhood this many years. " and although often complained of as a nuifance, it " elcapes through her intereft with the I-t-ces, the " when fhe, and all of her employment, pay contribu-"tion quarterly for protection --- As the charged m " with you firlt, her complaint will have the preferend " and the can procure evidence to iwear whatev r th " fhall pleafe to defire of them. So, that unlefs yo " can make it up before morning, you and your com " paniohs may think yourfelves happily quit for "mouch's hard labour in Bridewell. Nay, it the thoul, "fwear a robbery or affault againit you, you will be " committed to Newgate, and tried next leffions a " the Old Bailey tor your life." This last piece of m formation had such an eff. & upon Jackson, that he a greed to make it up, provided his money might be re tored. The conitable told sim, that initead of retrisving what he had lait, he was pretty certain, it would col him tome more before they would come to any compofitton. --- But however he had compafion on him; and -would, it he pleated, found them about a mn ual releafe -The unifor unate beau thanked him for his friendlhip and returning to us, acquainted us with the fubitance of this dialogue; while the constable defiring to fpeak in private with our adversary, carried her into the new room, and pleaded our cause to effectually, that the condefcended to make him umpire : He accordingly propolee

100

profed an arbitration, to which we gave our affent; he fined each party in three fhillings, to be laid out a bowl of punch, wherein we drowned all animolities, the inexpressible joy of my two late acquaintances and , who had been in the flate of the damned ever fince ekfon mentioned Bridewell and Newgate .- By the ne we had finithed our bowl, to which, by the byer I id contributed my laft thilling, it was morning ; and I opofed to move homeward, when the constable gave to underftand, he could difcharge no prifoners but order of the jutice, before whom we mult appear This rehewed my chapting and I curied the bour in hich I had yielded to Jackfon's invitation - About he d'elock we were efforted to the houfe of a certain lice not many miles diftant from Covent Garden : who fooner faw the conftable enter with a train of prifuss at his heels, that he faluted him as follows : " So Mr Conftable, vou are a dligent man-What den of rogues have you been fcouring ?" Then looking at us no appeared very muchide? Crad, he conditued ; " Av. ay, thieves I fee -old offenders -O your nu nide ferwant, M.s. Hanrid al I foppole thefe fellows maye bean taken robbing your houle-yes, yes, here's an old acquaintance of mine-you have ufed expedition (faid he to me) in returning from inlafportation ; but we thall fave you the trouble for the future-the furreons will fetch you from your next transportation at their expences? I'affared his worthip ne was mitaken ine, for he had never feen me in this lite before. ----o this declaration he replied, " How ! you impudent rafcal, dare you fay to to my face? Do you think I am to be imposed upon by that northern accent which vou have affumed ? but it than't avail you, - you thall find me two far north for you .---- Here, clerk, write this fellow's mittimus-His name is Patrick Gaginagan."-Here Mr. Jiekian interpoled, and told him. was a Scotchman lately come to towa, detcended of a bod family, and that my name was Random -The matice, looked upon this affertion as an outrage upon hismemory, on which he valued numicit much, and urutog up to Jackion with a fierce countenance, put his mands in his fides, and faid, " Who are you, Su ? ----ES 16. Dep

" Do you give me the lie ?---- Take notice, gentleme " here's a fellow who affronts me upon the bench, b " I'll lav you faft, firrah, I will--- for notwithftan " ing your laced jacket. I believe you are a notoriolim " felon." - My friend was fo much abashed at this my nace, which was thundered out with great vociferation that he changed colour, and remained foecehlefs.----This confusion his worthip took for a fymptom of guilt and to complete his difcovery, continued his threats-" Now, I am convinced you are a thief, -- your face dim " won't lie ftill-you'll be hanged, firrah, (raifing h " voice) you'll be hang'd, and happy had it been the " the world, as well as your own miferable foul, if you " had been detected and cut off in the beginning with " your career .---- Come hither, clerk, and take the " man's confettion." --- I was in an agony of confient nation, when the conftable going into another room with his worthip, acquainted him with the truth of the floryh which having learned, he returned with a failing county tenance, and addreffing himfelt to us all, faid, it was all y ways his way to terrify young people, when they came before him, that his threats might make a drong into preffion on their minds, and deter them from engaging in icenes of riot and debauchery, which commonly end ed before the judge .- Thus having cloak d his own want of ditger.ment, under the difguile of paternam care, we were difmiffed, and I found myfelf as much lightened as if a mountain had been lifted off my breaft. I all and man have set serry my qualification to the nearooffice—the nature of it — the behaviour of the S-t-y —Strap'r concern offor my adfrace— a battle between binn and a black-"finith — the troublefone confequence of it — bir hareague to me — bir frican the Geodu mafter resonantle name to a French apothecary, who entertains me as a jourmemyana.

СНАР

C H A P. XVIII.

Would willingly have gone home to fleep, but was told by my companions, that we must deliver our letirs of qualification at the navy offic: before one o'clock; acordingly we went thither and gave them to the t-t-v, who opened and read them, and I was mightipleafed to find myfelf qualified for fecond mate of a wird rate. When he had fluck them altogether on a de, one of our company afke lit there were any vacanes ; to which interrogation, he answered, No. Then ventured to inquire if any thios were to be put in com. affion foon - At which queftion he furveyed me with a ok of ineffable contempt, and puthing us out of his ofce, locked the door without deigning us another word. --- We went down flairs and conferred together on our spectations, when I underflood that each of them had en recommended to one or other of the comm ili mers: nd each of them promifed the first vacancy that should Il : but that none of them relied folely upon that intea, without a prefent to the S-t-y, with whom fome t the C----- went fnacks -- For which reafon each I them had provided a fmall purfe; and I was afked what proposed to give ?- This was a verations queltion to me the (far from being in a capacity to gratify a ravenous -t-v) had not wherewithal to purchase a dinner ---therefore answered, I had not yet determined what to tive ; and fneaked off towards my own lodgings, curfing ay fate all the way, and inveighing with much bitternels mainit the barbarity of my grandtather, and the fordid. warice of my relations, who left my a prey to contempt. and indigence .- Full of thefe difagreeable reflections, arrived at the houfe where I lodged, and relieved my E 6 landlord landlord from great anxiety on my account : for this hold neft man believed I had met with fome dif nal acciden and that he would never fee me again .---- Strap, while had come to visit me in the morning, understanding we had been abroad all night, was Imoft diftraded, and after having obtained leave of his mafter, had gone in quelt of m ., though he was even more ignorant of the town than L. Not being willing to inform my landlor of my adventure, I told him. I had met an acquiaintanche at Surgeon's-hall, with whom I fpent the evening and night, but being very much infelled by bugs, I had not flept much, and therefore intended to take a little repofe fo faving I went to bed and defired to be awakened Scrap thould happen to come while I thould be afteen was accordingly roufed by my friend hi nifelf, who enterny ed my chamber about three o'clock in the afternoon ; and prefented a figure to my eyes, that I could fearce believes real .- In fhort, this off clignate thaver, fetting out tout ward's Surgeon's-hall, had enquired for me there to not purpole: from thence he found his way to the Navy-office. where he could hear no tidings of me, becaufe I walk tinknown to every body then prefent ; he afterwards wen y noon the 'Change in hopes of feeing me upon the Scotel's walk : but without fuccefs : At laft being almost in de the fpair of finding me, he refolved to alk every body he meter in the fireet, if perchance any one could give him infor mation about me : and actually put his refolution in prac-g tice, in fpite of the fcoffs, curfes, and reproaches with which he was answered ; until a blacksmith's prentice, feeing him Rop a porter with a burden on his back hearing his queftion, for which he received a hearty curfe.k called to him, and afked if the perfon he inquired after was not a Scotchman ?- Strap replied with great eagerrefs, "Yes, and had on a brown coat with long fkirts." -... The fame (faid the blackfmith) I faw him pafs by "an hour ago."-" Did you fo ?" (cried Strap, rubbing his hands.) "Odd! I am very glad of that ---- which " way went he ?-" Towards Tyburn on a cart (laid " he ;) if you make good fpeed you may get thither time ; " enough to fee him hang'd."-This piece of wit incented my friend to fuch a degree, that he called the blackimith fcoundrel, and protefted he would fight him analf a farthing _" No. no." (faid the other flripping) Il have none of your money _ you Scotch nen felnom carry any money about you -but l'll fight you for give "-There was a ring imme fiately formed by the b : a d Strap finding he could not get off honour bly whout fighting, at the fame time burning with refenthat against his adverfary, quitted his clothes to the the of the multitude, and the battle began with great mence on the fide of strap, who is a few binutes exaffed his breath and fpirits on his patient antagonilt. b fuftained the aff ul: with great coolnefs, till finding barber quite fpent, he returned the blows he had him with fuch interest, that Strap, after having rered three falls on the hard ftones, gave out and allowblack mith to be the better min .- Fae victory bethus decided, it was propoled to adjourn to a cellar d by and drink friends - But when my friend began gather up his clothes, he perceived that fome hone't fon or other had made free with his thirt, neckcloth, int and wig, which were carried off; and probably his dat and waittcoar would have met with the fame fate. It they been worth itealing .- It was in vain for him make a noife, which only yielded mirth to the loec. ors ; he was fain to get off in this manner, which he complifhed with much difficulty, and appeared before e ali befineared with blood and dirt. --- Not with tandz this misfortune, fuch was his transport at finding me e and found, that he had almost tuffes and funk me death with his embraces .- Ai er he had cleaned infelt and put on one of my thirts, and a woollen nightp: I recounted to him the particulars of my night's opaign, which filled him with admiration, and made im repeat with great energy an oblervation which was ten in his mouth, namely, "that jurely London is the devil's drawing-room."-As neither of us had ned, ne defired me to get up, and the milk-woman iming round at that initant, he went down itairs and fought up a quart, with a penny brick, on which we ade a comforcable meal. He then thared his money ich me, which amonisted to eignteen pence, and left me, with an intention to borrow an old wig and hat of his send the fchool-malter.

IOL

109

He

He was no former gone than I began to confider him fination with great uneafinefs, and revolved all februnes my imagination could fuggeft, in order to che and purfue fome one that would procure me bread ; H it is in poffible to express the pange I felt, when I reflere ed or the miferable dependence in which I lived at mit expense of a poor barber's boy .---- My pride took Ma alarm, and having no hopes of fucceeding at the Natur office, I came to a refolution of enlifting in the follow guards next day, be the event what it would. This travagant defign, by flattering my disposition gave grie fatiliaction, and I was charging the enemy at the hear of my own regiment, when Strap's return interruphe my reverie .- The fchool mafter had made him a prefet of the tye-wig which he wore when I was introduced Bim, together with an old hat, whole brims would hat overshadowed a Coloffus .- Though Strap had venturing to wear them in the dufk, he did not choose to entertain the mob by day ; therefore went to work immediate and reduced them both to a moderate fize. While W * s employed in this office, he addreffed me thus : " The " be fure, Mr. Random, you are born a gentleman, and " have a great deal of learning-and indeed look like " a gentleman, for as to perfon you may hold up york " head with the beft of them --- On the other hand, h " am a poor but honeft cobler's fon-my mother was " industrious a woman as ever broke bread, 'till fuch " time as the took to drinking, which you very well " know-but every body has failings - bumanum e " errare-Now for myfelf I am a poor journeyman baik " ber, tolerably well made, and understand fome Latin 44 and have a fmattering of Greek ----- but what de " that ? perhaps I might alfo fay that I know a little of " the world-but that is to no purpose-though you be " gentle and I fimple, it does not follow but that I what " am fimple may do a good office to you who are gentle " Now this is the cafe-my kiniman the fchool-matter 44 ---- perhaps you did not know how near he is related " to me-l'il fatisfy you in that prefently-his mot el " and my grandmother's futer's nephew-no, that's no " it-my grandfather's brother's daughter-rabbit it ! ... " have forgotten the degree, but this I know, he and I es ares

-c coufins feven times remove !." - My impatience to wy the good office he had done me got the better of temper, and I interrupted him at this place, with D-n your relation and pedigree, ---- if the fchoolmafter or you can be of any fervice to me, why don't you tell me without all this preamble," --- When I nounced thefe words with fone veac dence. Strap ked at me for fome time with a grave countenance, then went on : " Surely, our pedigree is not to be dery forry to fee fuch an alteration in your te nper of hte-you was always h ry, but now you are grown is crabbed as old Periwinkle the drunken tinker. whom you and I (God torgive us) played to many 111 halucky tricks, when we were at fchool .- But I will ho longer detain you in fuspence, because (doubtlefs) jothing is more unealy than doub -- dubio procul dubio il dubius -My friend, or relation, or which you will, br both, the fchool-matter, being informed of the reward I have for you-for you may be fure, I did not tail to let him know your good qualities-by the bye. he has undertaken to teach you the pronunci tion of the English tongue, without which (he fays) you will be unit for bulinels in this country ---- I fay my reliation has fooke in your behalf to a French apothecary who wants a journeyman; and on his recommendation, you may have fifteen pounds per year, bed and board, whenever you pleafe."----- 1 was too much intercitin this piece of news to entertain it with indifference: t jumping up, infitted on Strap's immediately accominving me to the houfe of his friend, that I might not e this opportunity through the leaft delay or negled my part. We were informed that the ichool-matter is in company at a public house in the neighbournood, hither we repaired, and found him drinking with the othecary in queffion. When he was called to the door our delire, and oblerved my impatience, he broke out to his ulual terms of admiration : " O Ch-#! I fuppole when you heard of this offer, you did not take lenure enough to come down stairs, but leaps out of the window ; did you overturn no porter nor owner woman in your way ? --- It is a mercy of God you fid 11 108

" not knock your brains out againft fome poft in " career. O' my confeience ! I believe had I bee " the inmost receffes of my habitation, --- the very ; " tralia .- - even in bed with my wife; vour leagen " would have furmoursed bolts, bars, decency, and sim " ry thing. The den of Cacus, or Santium Santion " could not have hid me froin you. But come along "gentleman of whom I fpoke, is in the houfe, I " prefent you to him forthwith,"-When I entered room, I perceived four or five people impaking, on whom the ferool-maiter accolted thus : "" Mr. Lavem" At here's the young man of whom I fpoke to you,"apathecary, who was a little old withered man, will fore head about an inch high, a note turned up at the e large cheek bones that helped to form a pit for his li prev eyes, a great bag of loofe fkin hanging down each fide in wrinkles like the alforias of a baboon ; a a mouth fo accultomed to that contraction which produ grinning, that he could not pronounce a fyllable, wi out discovering the remains of his teeth, which could of four yellow langs, not improperly, by anatumi called canine ---- This perfon, (I fay) after having et me fome time; faid, " Oho, 'tis ver well, M.mf. Co " cordance ; young man, you are ver welcome 14 take one coup of bierre-and come to mine houfe "morrow morning : Monf. Concordance vil fiew w " de way."-Upon this I made my bow, and as I we out of the room, could hear him fay ! Ma for ! ce'f beau garcon, ce'ft un galliard ____As' I had by my of appurcation waile I lerved Crab, acquired the Freil tongue, well enough to read authors Written in that ia guage, and underland any thing that becurre i in co vertation, 1 determined to pretend ignorance to imy 'ne maiter, that he and his tamily, whem hiuppoied to of the lame o untry, not being on the referve before his might polably discover fomething in dife arte which would either yield me amufement or advantage .- Nel -morning Mr. Concordance carried me to the ap thecarv boufe, where the bargain was made, and orders give to provide an apartment for me immediately .- Bu beto I emered upon bulinets, the fchool-matter recommended me to his taylor, who gave me credit for a fuit of clothe

In paid out of the first moiser of my wages, and they begun upon that very duy; he afterwards accomated me with a new har, on the fame terms; i forhat few days I hoped to make a wery fubionable appearing the mean time Steap conveyed my baggage to blace allotted for meyowinen was a oack room up two of itairs, frumthed with a patter for met to le upon, uir without a back, an earthen chamber pot without indle, a bottle by way of a candifica, and a trianpice of glafs indead of a mirrour, the reft of its imments having been lately removed noise of the gars, for the convenience of the fervant of an Irith capy who lodged in the first floor.

C H A P. XIX.

scharadter of Mr Laxement, his mife, and dargiter — fome anecdotes of the family — the mother and mg/ter reads — I am ality of a mill the that gives we profine justificition, but is attended with twowligione onfiguences.

TEXT day, while I was at work in the hop, a bouncing dam el well dreifed came in. on prece of finding a vial for iome nie or other ; and ing an opportunity, when the thought I did not id her, of oble ving me narrowly, went away with a ht look of difusin. --- I eatily gueffed her dentiments, t my pride took the retolution of entertaining the as indifference and neglect towards her .- At dinner, maids, with whom I dined in the kitched, gave me understand that this was my matter's only daughter. o would have a very handiome forcure, on account which, and her beauty, a great many young gentle. in made their addreffes to her --- that the had been ce on the brink of marriage, out disppointed by the iginets of her father, who retuied to part with a thilling promote the match-for which realon the young lady not behave to her father with all the filial veneration at might be expected : In particular, the harboured most perfect hatred for his countrymen, in which difpolicion difcofition the refembled her mother, who was Englifh woman ; and by the hints they drop'd. I learner ed he grev mare was the better horfe-that the wanted mation of high fpirit, which was often manifefted at man expence of her dependents : that the loved divertion and looked upon mifs as her rival in all parties ; whill was indeed the true caufe of her difappointments; for him the mother been hearty in her intereft, the father worknot have ventured to refuse her demands .- Over and be beve this intelligence. I. of myjelt, foon made more dia coveries ; Mr Lavement's fignificant grins at his with while the looked another way, convinced me that he was not at all content with his lot ; And his behaviour in pril fence of the captain, made me believe his chief tormely was jealoufy .- As for my own part. I was confidered by no other light than that of a menial fervant, and have been already fix days in the houfe without being honou ed with one wordfrom eithermother or daughter, the law ter (as I understood from the maids) having at table or day expressed some surprise that her papa should entertain fuch an aukward mean looking journeyman .- I was new tled at this piece of information, and next Sunday (it be ing my turn to take my civer fion) dreffed myfelf in my ne clothes to the greately advantage, and, wanity apart, mach no contemptible figure After having fpent mot part of the day in company with Strap and fome of his acquaintance. I came home in the afternoon, and way let in by mifs, who, not knowing me, dropt a low curtil as I advanced, which I returned with a profound bow and thut the door .- By that time I had turned about the had perceived her miftake, and changed colour, but did not withdraw. The paffage being narrow, I could not get away without joilling her ; fo I was forced to remain where I was with my eyes fixed on the ground and my face glowing with bluthes .- At length her vanis ty coming to her affiniance, the went away tittering and I could hear her pronounce the word " Creature." From this day forward, the came into the thop fifty times every day upon various presences, and put in practice for many ridiculous airs, that I could eafily perceive her opinion of n.e was changed, and that the did not think me allogether an unworthy conqueit .- But my heart was thel'd against her charms by pride and refeatment. were two chief ingredients in my difo di iou, that ained infentible to all ner arts ; and not wir a tanding advances the made, could not be previled upin eld her the leaft attention .- This neglict fain haall all the favourable i norefficias the felt for me, and age of a flighted woman took place in her heart ; of the manifested not only in all the fugge tions her ce could invent to my prejudice with her fath r, but in procuring for me fuch tervile employments, as the would sufficiently humble my inicit. One day articular, the ordered me to bruth my mafter's coat, I r mfing, a fmart dialogue enfued, which ended in muriting into tears of rige ; when her mother in erpofand examining into the merits of the caule, deterhed H in my fayour : and this good office I owed not to effection or confideration the had for me, but folely to defire of mortifying her dau thter, who on this occali on wed, that let people be never fo much in the right, The were fome folks who would never do them justice a to be fure they had their realons for it, which tome ple were not ignorant of, although they defpifed their ele arts-This infinuation of fome people and fome ks, put me upon oblerving the behaviour of my mutrefs are narrowly for the tuture ; and i. was not long before ad reafon to believe that the looked upon her daugaas a rival in the affections of captain O Jonnell, who liged in the houfe .---- In the mean time my industry. I knowledge gained me the good will of my master, o would often fay in French, " Mardy I c'eft un bon "ron." He had a great deal of bufinets ; but as he was butly employed among his fellow refugees, his profits thre fmail .- However, his expence for medicines was It great, for he was the molt expert man at a fuccedanum, of any apothecary in Longon, fo that I have been metimes amazed to fee him, without the leaft helication, take up a phylician's preicription, though he had not in s fhop one medicine mentioned in is -Oyfter hells could convert into crab's eves : common oil into oil fweet almonds ; fyrup of fugar into ballanic fyrup ; names water into aqua cinhamoni; turpentine into pivi ; and a hundred more colly preparations were produc'd duc'd in an inflant, from the cheapeft and coarfeft dr of the materia merica : And when any common the was ordered for amatient, he always took care to difgu it in colour or maile, or both, in fuch a manner, that it could not poffibly be known - For which purp cochinest and oil of cloves were of great fervice. ming many noftrums which he poffeffed, there was c for the venereal difeate, that brought him a good deal nioney - and this he concealed fo antiuliv from me, th I could never learn its composition : But during t eight months I flay'd in his fervice, he was fo unfortung in the use of it, that three parts in four of those who to it, were fain to confirm the cure by a falivation and the direction of another doctor -This bad mecels, in a appearance, attached him the more to his (pecific 4 an before I left him, I may venture to fiv, he would haw fooner renounced the Trinity (notwithstanding his bein a good Hugonot) than his configence in the never-failin power of this semedy .- Mrs Lavement had attempt ed more than once. to introduce a vegetable diet into he family, by launching put into the praile of roots and greens, and decrying the use of field, both as a phyficial and philotopher; but all his rhetoric could not make one proteivie to his orition, and even the wife of hi botom declared against the propofal .- Whether it was owing to the light regard the paid to her hufband's ad monthen in this patercular, or to the natural Warmth of her conditution, I know not ; but this lady's befion became every day more and more violent; till at last the look'd upon decency as an annecellary selfraint ; and the afternoon, when her hufband was abroad, and her dan he ter gone to vifit, ordered me to call a hackney coach, in which the and the captain drove towards Covent-Garden .---- buils came hume in the evening, and fupping at her ufual hour, went to bed. - About eleven o'clock my mauer entered, and afked it this wife was gone to fleep: Unon which I told him, my mittrefs went out in the atternoon, and was not yet returned. This was like a clap of thunder to the poor Apoth-cary, who farting back, scried, " Mart de ma vie ! vat you tell a me?" -My wite not at homes"-A. that inftant a patient's fervant arrived with a prefeription for a deaught, which mr

mafter taking, went into the flop to make it up his own hand, ---- While he rubbed the ingredient glais mortar, he inqui ed of me, whether or no rife went out alone : and no fooner heard that the in company with the capitain, than with one blow blit the mortar into a toonfand nieces, and orinlike the head of a bals wind, exclaimed, " An trai-1" ____ It would have been impoffiple for me to have erved my gravity a minute longer, when I was haprelieved by a rap at the door, which I opened, and rived my miltrel's coming out of the coach ; the bounanmediately into the fam, and addreff ther huthand : " I juppofe you thought I was lott, my dear ----ntwin Udonnell has been to good as to treat metwith play."-" Play-play (replied ne) Ohi! yes by gar. believe ver prettieplay."-Blefs me! (faid fhe) what's e matter ?"- " Vat de matter ?" (cried he, forget. all his former complaifance) " by gar, you be one mn dog's wite -ventre bleu ! me will thow you yat is to put one horn upon mine heid. Pardien! capitaine Odonnell be one."____ Here' the captain. thad been alt the wille at the door difeharging the b. entered, and faid with a terrible voice, "D-m ed what am I !" -Mr. Lavement changing his tone. amediately faluted him with, " Oh feroiteur monfieur capitaine, vous etes un gallant homme -ma femme forte oblige." I'nen turnene about towards me. concunced with a low voice, " Et diablement obligeante. m doute."_" Harkee, Mr. Lavement, (faid the day. its) I am a man of honour, and I believe you are too uch of a gentleman to be offended at the civility I aw your wife." ____ This declaration had luca an It on the ap thesary, that he relumed all the po-To of a Freuchman ; and with the utmolt prostration omphanent, affured the captain that he was perfectly a tatisfied with the honour ne had done his wife .---afters being thus compoled, every body went to relt. Wext day I perceived inrough a glais door that opened in the thop into the parlour, the captain talking earneltto mits, who heard him with a look that expressed ana uningled with icorn ; which however he at latt found wans to mollity, and lealed his reconciliation with a kils. This

----- This circumftance foon convinced me of the cafion of the quarrel ; but notwithflanding all my lance. I could never difcover any other commerce bet them .- n the mean while. I had reafon to believe 114 intpired one of the maids with tender fentiments for and one night when I thought every other perfon in house afleep. I took the opportunity of going to 1th the fruits of my conquest . her bedfellow having the betore yone to Richmond to vifit her parents - Accel ingly I got up, and (naked as I was) explored my in the dark, to the parret where the lay .- I was ravit to find the door open, and moved foftly to her bed fit transported with the hope of completing my wilhes But what horrors of jealouly and dilappointment dil feel, when I tound her afleep, fatt locked in the arms det man, whom I cafily gueffed to be no other than the class tain's tervant ! I w supon the point of doing fome r thing, when the noile of a rat foratching behind the walk foot put me to flight, and I was fain to get back to the own bed in fatety .- Whether this alarm had diforde my mind, or that I was led aftray by the power of defti I know not ; but initicad of turning to the lett hat when I deicended to the fecond flory, I puriued contrary courie, and mittook the young lady's bed-chall ber for my own. I did not perceive my miltake beta I had run against the bed posts ; and then it was not my power to retreat undiscovered t for the nymph bei awake, filt my approach, and with a foit voice, bade all me make leis noife, left the Scotch booby in the next roch thould overhear us. This hint was fufficient to inton me of the nature of the affignation ; and as my paffior at any time high, were then in a flate of exaltation, 1 1 folved to profit by my good fortune --- Wi hout any moth ceremony therefore. I made boid to flip mico bed to this charmer, who gave me as tavourable a reception as I coult delire .- Our convertation was very iparing on my part but the upbraided the perion whom I repretented with his jeabouly of me, whom the handled fo roughly, cash my refeatment had well nigh occafioned a difcovery mon than once ; but I was consoled for her natred of me b the revenge I enjoyed in understanding from her ow mouth that it was now high time to falve her reputatio diatrimony ; for the had reafon to fear the could not n longer conceal the eff-dts of their mutual inurfe. - While I was meditating an unfwer to this ofai. I heard a noife in my room like fomething y falling down upon the floor: Upon which I ed up, and creeping to the door of my chamber, rved by moon light, the fhadow of a man groping way out : fo I retired to one fide to let him pafs. faw him go down flairs as expeditionally as he could. -It was an eafy matter to divine that this was the ain, who having over flept himfelf, had got up at to keep dis affiguation : and finding my door open. fentered my apartment inflead of that of his miftrefs. re I supplied his place. - But finding his mitake. falling over my chair, he was afraid the noife might in the family, and for that reafon made off, delaying gratification of his defires till another opportunity. this time, I was fatisfied ; and inftead or returning to place from whence I came, retreated to my own calile. ch I for ified by bolting the door, and in the contulation of my own happinels fell affeen .--- But the h of this adventure could not be long concealed from young mittrets, who next day, came to an explanation h the captain, upon his lamenting his laft night's difointment, and begging pardon for the noife he had de .- Their mutual chagrin, when they came to the swledge of what had happened, may be eafily conjecturthough each had a peculiar grief unfelt by the other ; the was confcious of not only having betrayed to me secrets of her commerce with him ; but allo, of havincented me by the freedoms the had taken with my me, beyond a hope of reconciliation .- On the other nd, his jealoufy fuggefted, that her forrow was all arti-; and that I had fupplied us place with her own priviand content .---- That fuch was the fituation of their sughts, will appear in the fequel-for, that very day the me into the mop where I was alone, and fixing her is, fwimming in tears, upon me, fighed most pircoufly a it I was proof against her distrefs, by recollecting the thets with which the had honoured me the night be-"e; and believing that the good reception I enjoyed was dined for another ; therefore I took no notice of her affliction :

affi (dion; and fie had the mortification to find her dainsturned four fold. — However, from thence forw fie thought purper to use me with more complain than ufual, knowing that it was in my power at any to publish her thange. — By thefe means my life becmuch more agreeable (though 1 never could prevail on mytell to repeat my mediurnal wfit) and as 1 ew day in proved in my knowledge or the town, 1 hook my aw kward air by degrees, and acquired the charas of a politic junneyman apotheear;

C H A P. XX.

I am offaulted and dangeroufly wounded — fulfielt Odonand am confirmed in my apinion—concert in a fehrme revenge and put it in execution— Consmit rob ho er fervent ana alp-fpeurs— I make no addreffer to a can ano am urraculoufly activered from her funce.

NE night about twelve o'clock, as I returned from vifiting a patient at Chelfea, I received a blow of my head from an unfeen hand, that firesched me tenfelel on the ground ; and was left for dead with three ftall of a tword in my body. The groans I ustered when recovered the ule of my realon, alarmed the people of folitary ale-houle, that food near the spot where I lay, and they were humane enough to take me in, and fend for " forgeon, who dreffed my wounds, and affired me they wer not mortal. One of them penetrated through the fkin and mulcies of one fide of my belly in luch a manner, that (doubtlefs) the affaffin imagined he had run me through the entrails - The second flanted along one of my ribs. and the laft, which was intended for the finishing throke, having been directed to my heart, the fword inapt upon my break bone, and the point remained flicking in the fkin .---- When I reflected upon this event, I could not perfuade mytelf that I had be n affaulted by a common foot-pad ; becaule it is not uluar for fuch people to murder thole they rob, elpecially when they meet with no reflitance ; and 1 toung my money and every thing elle about me (but my carcale) faie. I concluded therefore that

I muß either have been mißaken for another, or oed to the private refentment of fome fecret enemy what had happened: and as I could remember no body had the leaft caufe of complaint againft me, except ain Odonnell and my mafter's daughter, my fulpicion ed upon them, though I took care to conceal it, that ght the looner arrive at confirmation .---- With this I went home in a chair about ten o'clock in the ning : and as the chairmen supported me into the e, met the captain in the paffage, who no fooner faw than he flarted back, and gave evident figns of guilty ufion, which he would have accounted for from the rife occafioned by feeing me in fuch a condition .-- My er having heard my flory, condoled me with a good of ivmp thy, and when he underflood my wounds not dangerous, ordered me to be carried up flairs ed; though not without fome opposition from his who was of opinion, it would be better for me to an hospital, where I should be more carefully attend--My meditation was employed in concerting with If fome method of revenge against iquire Odonnell his inamorato, whom I looked upon as the authors y misfortune ; when mils (who was not at home at prival) entered my chamber; and faying the was for the accident that had befallen me, afked if I Sed any body to be the affaffin : Upon which I my eyes fiedfallly upon her, and answered. " Yes." e discovered no fymptom of confusion ; but replied. y, " If that be the cafe, why don't you take out warrant to have him apprehended ? It will cost but aifle-if you have no money, I'll lend you."- I'his meis not only cured me of my fulpicion with refpect r; but even liagger'd my belief with regard to the in, of whole guilt I refolved to have farther proof. ie I thould enterprife any thing in the way of revenge. I thanked her kindly for her generous offer : which over I had no occasion to accept, being determined nothing rafhly: For though I could plainly perceive merion who attacked me, to be a loldier whole face nught was familiar to me, I could not fwear with a monficience to any particular man; and granting 1 my profecution of him would not much av il. VaL, I. -This

-This uncertainty I pretended, left the captain hear from her, that I knew the perfon who wounded me, and thick proper to withdraw before I could be in a condition to requite him .- In two days I was up, and the to me little bufinefs, fo that Mr. Lavement made fhilt to cal on his practice, without hiring another journeyma s my room .- The first thing I attempted towards a me tain difcovery of my fecret enemy, was to get inter donnell's apariment, while he was abroad in an under and examine his fword, the point of which being bris off, I applied the fragment that was found flicking my body, and found it answered the fractured part h ally .- There was no ro m left for doubt ; and t that remained was to fix upon a fcheme of revenge, whe almost folely engraffed my thoughts during the fpaces eight nights and days - Sometimes I was tempter fall upon him in the fame manner as he had practis upon me, and kill him cutright .--- But this aff my honour oppoled as a piece of barbarous coward in which he was not to be imitated .---- At other ti I entertained thoughts of demanding fatisfaction in honourable way; but was diverted from this undertake by confidering the uncertainty of the event, and the ture of the injury he had done me, which did not ent hin to fuch eafy terms .- At laft I determined to E. in a middle courfe ; and actually put my defign in ou cu ion after this manner .- Having fecured the affilla of Strap and two of his acquaintance whom he cos depend upon, we provided ourfelves with difguiles, and I caufed the tollowing letter to be delivered to him one of our affociates in livery, one Sunday evening.

«SIR,

F I may be allowed to judge from appearance will not be differentiated beto you to hear that my a " usual is gene to Bagthot to vifit a patient, and will "return till to-morrow night; fo that if you have whing to propole to me (as your behaviour on mary " clinons has feemed to infinute) you will do wel " exabrace the prefect opportunity of feeing nis letter was figned with the name of an apothecary's who lived at Chelfea, of whom I had heard Odon . was an admirer. Every thing fucceeded to our with. amorous hero haftened towards the place of affigua-; and was encountered by us in the very place where ad affaulted me. We ruthed upon him all at once, red his fword, firint off his clothes even to the fkin, h we foourged with neitles till he was bliftered from to foot, not with it anding all the eloquence of his tears Tupplications. When I was fatisfied with the ftripes beltowed, we carried off his clothes, which we hid shedge near the place, and left him flark naked, to his way home in the beft manner he could, while I care to be there before him. I afterwards underthat in his way to the lodgings of a friend, who in the fkirts of the town, he was picked up by the h, who carried him to the Kound house from whence Int for his clothes to his lodgings ; and next morning ed at the door in a chair, wrapt in a blanket he morrowed; for his body was fo fore and fwelled, that uld not bear to be confined in his wearing apparel .-a ras treated with the utmost tenderness by my mistress ser daughter, who vied with each other in their care ar exprefing his joy, by feveral malicious grins, he ordered me to prepare an unguent for his fores. invielf, no body can doubt my gratification, when al every day an opportunity of feeing my revenge acted on the body of my adversary, by the ulcers of I had been the caufe ; and indeed I not only enthe fatisfaction of having flead him alive, but anoalto which I had not forefeen. The flory of his betacked and thript at fuch a place having been infertthe news, gave information to thole who found his es next day whither to bring them ; and accordingly rieved every thing he had loit except a few letters. g which was that which I had writ to him in the of the apothecary's wife .- I'his and the others. (it leems) were all on the fubject of love (tor this mian hero was one of those people who are called ne-hunters) fell into the hands of a certain female Fr, famous for the fcandal the had published : with. F 2 after after having embellished them with some ornaments her own invention, gave them to the town in print. I was very much thecked on reflecting, that I toin peffibly be the occasion of a whole tamily's unbapping on account of the letter I had written : but was ealed that apprehenfion, when I underflood that the Chel apothecary had commenced a law fuit against the prin for defamation ; and looked upon the whole as a piece forgery, committed by the author, who had difappear But whatever might be his opinion of the matter. o two ladies feemed to entertain a different idea of it : f as foon as the pamphlet appeared, I could perceive th care of their patient confiderably diminith, until at 1 it ended in total neglect. It was impofficile for him be ignorant of this charge, any more than of the occasi of it, but as he was contcious to himtelt of having c ferved worfe than contempt at their hands, he was gl to come off to cheaply, and contented himfelt with ni tering curies and threats against the apothecary, who f he imagined) having got an inkling of the appointme with his wife, had taken revenge with him in the ma ner detcribed. By that time he had got a new fcarff ik his character was become fo notorious, that he thought high time for him to decamp : and his retreat he pe formed in one night without beat of drum, after havi robbed his own fervant of every thing that belonged him except the clothes he had on his back .---- A fe days after he difappeared, Mr. Lavement, for his ow fecurity, took into cuftody a large old trunk whi he had left; and as it was very heavy, made queftion that the contents were fufficient to indemni him for what Odonnell owed in lodging .- But, a mon being elapfed without hearing any tidings of this a venturer ; and my maller being impatient to know wh the trunk contained; he ordered me to break it open his prefence, which tafk I performed with the pettle our great mortar, and discovered, to his inexpreffible fionilhment and mortification, a heap of flones.

Yours, 8

About this time, my friend Strop informed me of a offer he had to go aboad with a gentleman in quali ou calet de chambre, and at the fame time affured m that whatever advantage he might propoleto himielf fro is profpect, he could not bear the thoughts of parting om me : fo much was he attached to my fortun: In ite of all the obligations I owed to this poor honeft felw, ingratitude is fo natural to the heart of man, that began to be tired of his acquaintance; and now, that had contracted other friendthips which appeared more editable, was even afhamed to fee a journeyman barber quiring after me with the familiarity of a companion. therefore, on pretence of confulting his welfare, infittupon his accepting the propofal, which he at laft dermined to embrace with great reluctance, and in a few sys took his leave of me, fhedding a flood of tears, which could not behold without emotion. I now began to ok upon myfelt as a gentleman in reality : learned to ince of a Frenchman whom I had cured of a failionable flemper: frequented plays during the holidays; became le oracle of an alebouie, where every difoute was refert to my decision ; and at length contracted an acquainnce with a young lady, who found means to make a inqueft of my heart, and upon whom I prevailed, after auch attendance and folicitation, to give me a promife of arriage .- As this beautiful creature paffed for a rich eirefs, I bleffed my good fortune, and was actually on he point of crowning all my wilhes by matrimony; when ne morning, I went to her lodgings, and her maid beng abroad, took the privilege of a bridegroom to enter er champer, where to my utter confusion I found ner in ed with a man. Heaven gave me patience and prefence f mind enough to withdrawemine diately ; and I thanked y stars a thouland times for the happy difcovery, by hich I refolved to profit fo much, as to abandon all noughts of marriage for the future.

F 3

CHAP.

8+6

C H A P. XXI.

Squire Garuky comes to lodge with my master ---- is invole in a troublefome affair, out of which he is extricated by - he marries my mafter's daughter _____ they co (bire againft me - - 1 am found guity of theft -discharged ----- deserted by my friends ----- 1 hire room in St. Giles's --- where, by accident. I find the la to whom I made my address in a miterable condition -I relieve her.

7 HILE I enjoyed myfelfat large in this temp of mind, Mr. Lavement let his first floor to n countryman and acquaintance Squire Gawky, who byth time had got a lieutenancy in the army, and fuch a ma tial ferocity in his appearance, that I was atraid he would remember what had happened between us in Scotland and atone for his breach of appointment then, by h punctuality now ; but whether he had actually forgot m or was willing to make me believe fo, he betraved ne the leaft fymptom of recognition at fight of me, and remained quite cured of my apprehenfion; tho' I had og cafion not long after to be convinced, that howfoever h externals might be altered, he was at bottom the fam individual Gawky whom I have already deforibed .- For coming home late one night from the houle of a patient I heard a noife in the fireet, and as I approached, pen ceived two gentlemen in cultody of three watchment The prifoners, who were miferably disfigured with dir! complained bitterly of the lofs of their hats and wigs and one of them, whom by his tongue I knew to be Scotchman, lamented molt piteoully, offering a guine for his liberty, which the watchman refused, alledging that one of his companions was wounded grievoufly, and that he must stand to the confequence .- My prejudice in fur your of my native country was fo ftrong that I could no bear to fee any body belonging to it in diffrefs, and there fore, with one blow of my faithful cudget, knocked dowr the watchman who had hold of the perion for whom I was chiefly concerned .-- He was no fooner difengaged, than he betook himielf to his heels, and left me to maintain the difpute hute as I should think proper ; and indeed I came off fcurvily, for, before I could avail myfelf of my fpeed, ceived a blow on the eye, from one of the other two, t had well nigh deprived me of the use of that organ; wever, I made thift to get home, where I was informd of captain Gawky's being robbed and abufed by a apany of footpads ; and was ordered by my mafter to pare an emollient glyfter and paregorick draught, in er to allay and compose the ferment of his spirits, ocmoned by the barbarous treatment he had undergone, file he took twelve ounces of blood from him immediy .--- When I enquired into the particulars of this adinture, and understood by the fervant that he came in before me without hat or wig, I made no fcruple of Heving him to be the perfon I had releafed, and was infirmed in my belief upon hearing his voice, to which fore that event) I had been fo long a ftranger. My eye ing confiderably fwelled and juffamed, I could not re. It upon my enterprife without curfing my own folly. deven refolved to declare the truth of the whole flory, morder to be revenged on the cowardly wretch, for whom had fuffered : Accordingly, next day, after he had ald, in prefence of my matter, his wife and dau thter, who une to vifit kin, a thouland lies concerning the prowhe had thown in making his elcape, I ventured to ex. amin the mystery, and calling in the evidence of my untufed eye, upbraided him with cowardice and ingraude. Gawky was to altonifhed at this difcourfe, that could not answer one word ; and the rest of the conmy ftared one at another ; till at length my miltrefs re. mimanded me for my infolent behaviour, and threatened tura me away for my prefumption .- Joon which, whwky (having recollected hinfelt) oblerved, as tife you is oun might have miltaken another perfon for him, he could mygive his infinuations, more effectally as he ice ned to sive fuffered for his civility ; buc advifed me to be more rtain in my conjectures for the future, before 1 ven.ur. to publish them to the prejudice of any man .- difs cplauded the captain's generofity in pardoning one was I d to villanoully afperted him, and I began to imagine or praile was not at all diffatereited .-- Butthe apothecary, bao geruaps had more penetration, or lefs partiality than F 4 the

his wife and daughter, differed from them in his fer " ments of the matter, and expressed himfelf to me in his thop in this manner: "Ah mon pauvre Roderique " you ave more of de veracité dan of de prudence-" mine vite and dater be diablement fage, and Monfred " capitaine un fanfaron, pardieu!" This eulogium on the wife and daughter, though fooken ironically by him, wie nevertheleis literally juit; by efpoufing the caufelly Gawky, the one obliged a valuable longer, and the ot acquired a hufbard at a ju fture when one was abfolute ly neceffary ; for the young lady finding the effects of correspondence with Odonrell becoming plainer and plain er every day, infinuated herielt fo artiully into the aff ... tion of this new lodger, that in lefs than a fortnight, 16 pretence of going to a play, they drove away togethern, the Fleet, where they were coupled ; from thence the moved to a bagnio, where the marriage was confu mated : and in the morning came home, where they affen her father's and mother's bleffing. - The prudent parents notwithitanding the precipitancy with which the matio was carried on, did not think fit to refute their approth tion : for the apothecary was not ill pleated to find I daughter married to a young man of a good profpect, w. had not mentioned to him one fyllable on the article b her dowry ; and his wife was rejoiced at being rid of rival in her gallants, and a foy upon her pleatures. N. was I without felt enjoyment at this event, when I r fielted upon the revenge I had unwittingly taken upon my enemy, in making him a cuckold by anticipation .-. But I little dream'd what a ftorm of mitchief was breve ing against me, whilit I thus indulged myfelf .--- What ever face Gawky put on the matter, my dilcovery of the adventure before related, and the reproaches I venter against him, had stung him to the foul, and cherithe the feeds of enmity fo flrongly in his breaft, that he (feems) imparted his indignation to his wife, who bein as defirous as himfelf to compais the ruin of one that n only flighted her careffes, but was able on any occafic to difcover particulars not at all advantageous to h character, readily joined in a confpiracy against mil which (had it taken effect as they expected) would ich fallibly have brought me to an ignominious death.

My mafter having feveral times miffed large quantities medicines of which I could give no account, at laft all patience, and in plain terms taxed me with havgenbezzled them for my own ufe. As I could only appole my fingle affeveration to his fufpicion, he told me the day, " By gar, your vord not be give me de fatisfaction -me find neceffarie to chercher for my medicine, pardonnez moi-il faut chercher-me demand le clef conceal the fright he was in, left I should mike any polition, he went on, " Oui, foutre, I charge you rendez le clef of your coffre -moi -fi, moi qui vous parle." was fired with fo much refentment and difdain this accufation, that I burft into tears, which he took ir a fign of guilt; and pulling out my key, told him he hight fatisfy himfelf immediately, though he would not and it to eaty to fatisfy me for the injury my reputation had fuffered from his unjust fulpicion, ---- He took the my and mounted up to my chamber, attended by the nole family : faying " H: bien, nous verrons,-nous verrons." -- But what was my horror and amaze nent, then opening my cheft he pulled out an handful of the bry things that were milling, and pronounced, " Ah, ah ! vous etes bien venus-mardie, Monf Roderique, you be fort innocent."--- I had not power to utter ne word in my own vindication, but flood motionlefs ad filent, while every body prefent made their respective marks on what appeared against me. --- The servants id they were forry for my misfortune, and went away speating, "Who would have thought it ?" My miftrefs lok occasion from this detection to rail against the pracce of employing ftrangers in general; and Mrs. Gaww, after having oblerved that fhe never had a good pinion of my fidelity, proposed to have me carried before are judice and committed to Newgate immediately. Her uiband was actually upon the Itairs in his way for a minitable, when Mr. Lavement, knowing the colt and ouble of a profecution to which he mut bind himielf, ad at the fame ti ne dreading lett fom: particulars of my onfeifion might affect his practice, called out, " Reitez. . mon fis ! rellez, it be veritablement one grand crim, which dis pauvre diable have committed -bot penteire

15.

de.

" de good God give him de penitence, and me vill'n " have upon mine head de blood of one finner."-T captain and his lady used all the christian arguments the zeal could fuggeft, to prevail on the apothecary to purf me to destruction, and reprefented the injustice he did the community of which he was a member, in letting villain efcape, who would not fail of doing more mifchin in the world, when he flouid reflect on his coming off f eafily now :---but their eloquence made no impreffin o my mafter, who turning to me, faid, " Go, miterable, g " from mine houfe, quick, quick-and make reparation " for your mauvaile actions." - By this time my indign: tion had rouled me from the fupefaction in which I ha hitherto remained, and I began in this manner. "Si "appearances. I own. condemn me : but you are im " pofed upon as much as I am abufed-I have fallen " facrifice to the rancour of that fcoundrel (pointing the "Gawky) who has found means to convey your good " hither, that the detection of them might blaft my re " putation, and accomplifh my deftruction .- His hatre " of me is owing to a confcioufnets of his having wrong "ed me in my own country ; for which injury he in " cowardly manner refuied me the fatisfaction of a gen " tleman :- he knows, moreover, that I am no ftrange 45 to his daftardly behaviour in this town, which I have " recounted before ; and he is unwilling that fuch a tefti 44 mony of his ingratitude and pufillanimity fhould live "upon the earth; for this reafon he is guilty of the mol "infernal malice to bring about my ruin. - And 1 am " afraid, madam, (turning to Mrs. Gawky) you have too " eafily entered into the featiments of your hufband .-" I have often found you my enemy; and am well ac er quainted with the occasion of your being fo, which I " don't at present think proper to declare; but I would " not advile you for your own fake, to drive me to extre-"mi.y." This address enraged her fo much, that with a face as red as fearlet, and the eyes of a fory, the thrusted up to me, and putting her hands on her fides, thit in my face, faying, I was a fcandalous villain. but the defied my malice; and that unless her papa would profecute me like a thief as I was, the would not itay another night under nis 100f. At the fame time, Gawky affaming a big LOOK, ok, told me, he fcorned what lies I could invent again ft m; but that if I pretended to afperfe his wife, he auld nut me to death, by G-, -To this threat I an. ered, "I wilk to God I could meet with thee in a defart, that I might have an opportunity of punifing thee for thy perfidy towards me, and rid the world of fuch a rafcal - What hinders me this moment (faid I. feizing an old bottle that flood by) from doing myfelf that justice ?" I had no fooner armed myfelf in this anner, than Gawky and his father-in-law retired in fuch hurry, that the one overturned the other, and they rold together down flairs; while my mistrefs fwooned away th fear : and her daughter afked if I intended to murer her. I gave her to understand that nothing was farher from my intention ; that I would leave her to the ings of her own confcience : but was firmly refolved to ther hufband's nofe, whenever fortune fhould offer a onvenient opportunity. Then going down ftairs, I met avement coming up trembling with the pefile in his and, and Gawky behind armed with his fword pulhing im forward. I demanded a parley, and having affured tem of my pacific difposition : Gawky exclaimed, " Ah! villain ! you have killed my dear wife."- And the apothecary cried, Ah coquin 1 vere is my fhild ?"----The lady (faid 1) is above flairs, unhurt by me, and will a few months hence (I believe) reward your con-"cern."--- Here fhe called to them, and defired they would let the wretch go, and trouble themfelves no fursher about him .- To which requeit her father confented, . obferving neverthelefs, that my conversation was fort. mysterieuse. Finding it impoffible to vindicate my innoence, I left the house immediately, and went to the choolmafter, with an intention of clearing myfelf to him, ad alking his advice with regard to my future conduct : ut, to my inexpreffible vexation was told he was gone p the country, where he would ftay two or three days .----B returned with a defign of confulting fonie acquaintance had acquired in my malter's neighbourhood ; but my tory had taken air, through the officioufnels of the ferrants, and not one of my friends would vouchfafe me a mearing .- Thus I found myfalf, by the iniquity of manhind, in a much more deplorable condition than ever : for .

£.6

thou

though I had been formerly as poor, my reputation we without blemith, and my health unimpaired till now ;but at prefent my good name was lofd, my money goneny friends were alienated, my body was infelded by diftemper courtached in the courfe of an amour; and mu faithful Strap, who slone could yield me pity and affith ance, abfent I knew not where.

The first refolution I could take in this melanchol conjuncture, was to remove my clothes to the houfe on the perfon with whom I had formerly lodg'd : where remained two days, in hopes of getting another place, by the intereft of Mr. Concordance, to whom I made no doub of being able to vindicate my character ; but in this fup polition I reckoned without my holt, for Lavement tool care to be before-hand with me, and when I attempted to explain the whole affair to the fchool-mafter. I found him to prepoff: fied againft me, that he would fcarce hear me to an end ; but when I had finished my justification, thook his head, and beginning with his usual exclamation, "O C-ft !" faid, " That won't go down with me. " -I am very forry I fhould have the misfortune of being " concerned in the affair, but however, shall be more " cautious for the future --- I will truft no man from " henceforward-no, not my father who begat me-nor " the brother who lay with me in my mother's womb-" Should Daniel rife from the dead, I would think him " an impoltor, and was the genius of truth to appear, " would queition its veracity." --- I told him, that one day, it was poffible, he might be convinced of the injury. I had juffered, and repent of his prema ure determination. -To which remark he answered, the proof of my innocence would make his bowels vibrate with joy ; " but " till that thall happen (continued he) I must beg to " have no manner of connexion with you -my reputation " is at ftake-O my good God! I thall be tooked upon " as your accomplice and abet.or-people will fay Jona-" than Wild was but a type of me-boys will hoot at " me as I pais along; and the cinder wenches beich. " forth reproaches waited in a gale impregnated with gin . -1 thall be notorious-the very batt of flander, and " cioaca of infamy."-I was not in an humour to relia the choiax of expretions upon which this gentleman valubinfelf in all his differences ; hus without any cersnay took my leave, carfed with every featiment of twors, which my futation could furgel. Leand furel, wever, in the intervals of my differed, cartinus circumfore frage fuit my expense to my calturinus circumnees; and with that view hired an apartment in a irret near St. Gills's, at the rate of mine sence per ek. In this place I refibred to parform my own cures, ving firit pawned three hirts to purchafe medicines. Id fupport for the occifon.

One day when I fat in this folitaty retreat, muling upthe unhappinets of my fate, I was alarmed by a groun. at iffued from a chamber contiguous to mine, into which . mmediately ran, and found a woman (tretched on a ferable truckle bed without any vifible firns of life. aving applied a fmelling bottle to her note, the blood gan to revisit her cheeks, and the opened her eyes ; but, od heaven I what were the emotions of my foul, when difcovered her to be the fame individual lady, who had rumphed over my heart, and to whofe fate I had al noft: en infeparably joined ! Her deplorable fituation filled y breaft with compaffion, and every tender idea reving in my imagination, I flaw into har embrace. She lew me immediately ; and ftraining me gently in her ms, fhed a torrent of tears, which I could not help ineating : At length, caffing a languithing look at me. a pronounced with a feeble voice, " Dear Mr. Random, I do not deferve this concern at your hands .---I am a vile creature, who had a bafe defign upon your perfon--fuffer me to explate that and all my other crimes by a milerable death, which will not fail to overtake me in a few hours,"-lencouraged her as much as I could,. id her I forgave all her intentions with regard to me; id that altho' my circumftances were extremely low. would thare my laft farthing with her. In the mean me, begged to know the immediate caufe of that fit from hich the had just recovered, and faid I would eadea. our by my fkill to prevent any more fuch attacks .- she med very much affected with this expression, took my and and preffed it on her lips, faving, " You are too generous]. I with I could live to express my gratitudebut alas ! I perilh for want."- Then thatting her eyes, fac

133:

the relapted into another fwoon .--- Such extremity die diffrefs muft have waked the moft obdurate heart to fym pathy and compafion : What effect then muft it hav had on mine, that was naturally prone to every tende paffion ? I ran down frairs and fent my landlady to a chy mift's flop for fome cinnamon water, while I returning to this unfortunate creature's chamber used alithe mean in my power to bring her to herfelf: This aim with much difficulty I accomplified, and made her drink glafs of the cordial to recruit her fpirits ; then I preparen a little mulled red wine and a toaft, which having taken the found herfelf thoroughly revived, and informed m that fhe had not tafted food for eight and forty hour before .- As I was impatient to know the occasion an nature of her calamity, the gave me to underftand than the was a woman of the town by profession :- that in th course of her adventures. the found herfelf dangerouff. infected with a diffemper to which all of her clafs are part ticularly fubject:-that her malady gaining ground ever day, the became loathfome to herfelf, and offenfive to others: when the refolved to retire to fome obfcure cornel where the might be cured with as little noife and expende as poffible ; that fhe had accordingly chofen this place of retreat, and put herfelf into the hands of an advertifing doctor, who having fleeced her of all the money the had or could procure, left her three days ago in a worfe condition than that in which he found her; that except the clothes on her back, fhe had pawned or fold ever thing that belonged to her to fatisfy that rapacious quacks and quiet the clamour of her landlady, who still perfister. in her threats to turn her out to the ftreet. After hav ing moralized upon these particulars. I proposed that the fhould lodge in the fame room with me, an expedient that would fave fome money ; and affured her I would under take her cure as well as my own, during which the thould partake of all the conveniences that I could afford to my felf. She embraced my offer with unteigned acknow ledgment, and I began to put it in practice immediate ly .- I found, in her, not only an agreeable companion whole convertation greatly alleviated my chagrin, but al fo a careful nurfe who lerved me with the urmoft fideli ty and affection. One day, while I teftified my furprife th2 hat a woman of her beauty, good fen(», and education, wor fine had a large portion of each) could be reduced fuch an infamous and miffer ble way of life as to at of produtte; the anfwered with a tigh, "Thefe very advantages were the caub of my uadding." —This rearkable reply inflamed are curisify to fuch a degree, sat i begged the would favour one with the particulars her flory, and the compiled in thefe words.

C H A P. XXII.

The Hiftory of Mils WILLIAMS.

W Y father was an eminent merchant in the city, who having, in the courfe of trade, fuffered hery confiderable loffes, retired in his old age with his wife to a fmall eftate in the country, which he had purhafed with the remains of his fortune. At that time I. eing but eight years of age, was left in town for the convenience of education, boarded with an aunt, who was a rigid prefbyterian, and who confined me to clofew to what the called the duties of religion, that in time grew weary of her doctrines, and by degrees conceived in avertion for the good books the daily recommended o my perulal. As I increased in age, and appeared with a perfon not difagreeable, I contracted a good deal if acquaintance among my own fex, one of whom, after having lamented the restraint I was under from the nar. ownels of my aunt's fentiments, told me, I mut now hrow off the prejudices of opiaion impibed under her afluence and example, and learn to think for invfelf : or which purpole the advifed me to read Shaftelbury. l'indal, Hoobes, and all the books that are remarkable for their deviation from the old way of thinking, and by comparing one with another, I thould foon be able o form a fyitem of my own. I followed her advice : and whether it was owing to my prepoffelfion against what I had formerly read, or the clearnels of argument n thefe my new saitructors, I know not, but I ftudied them with pleature, and in a thort time became a profeffed Free-minker. Proud of my new improvement, I argued.

argued in all companies, and that with fuch fuccefs, think I foon acquired the reputation of a philosopher, and fell people durft undertake me in a difpute .- I grew van upon my good fortune, and at length pretended to ma un my aunt a profelyte to my opinion ; but the no foon perceived my drift, than taking the alarm. fhe wrote but my father an account of my herefy, and conjured hir as he tendered the good of my foul, to remove me inter mediately from the dangerous place where I had con tracted fuch finful principles : Accordingly, my fath ordered me into the country, where I arrived in the fifteenth year of my age, and by his command, gath him a detail of all the articles of my faith, which he down not find fo unreasonable as they had been represented .-Finding myfelf fuddenly deprived of the company and pleafures of the town, I grew melancholy, and it wat fome time before I could relifh my fituation .- But folks tude became every day more and more familiar to m and I confoled myfelf in my retreat with the enjoyment of a good library, at fuch times as were not employed in the management of the family (for my mother has been dead three years) in vifiting, or fome other partin of rural diversion .- Having more imagination than judgh ment. I addicted myfelf too much to poetry and row mance ; and in fhort, was looked upon as a very extrain ordinary perfon by every body in the country where refided .- 1 had one evening ftrayed with a book in mon hand, into a wood that bordered on the high road, a a little diftance from my father's houfe ; when a certain drunken fquire, riding by, perceived me, and crying " Z----tis! there's a charming creature !" alighted in a moment, caught me in his arms, and treated me f rudely, that I thrieked as loud as I could, and in the mean time oppoled his violence with all the ftrength that rage and refentment could inipire. ---- During this ftruggle another horieman came up, who feeing a lady to unworthily ufed, difmounted, and flew to my auiftance .- My raviller, mad with difappointment, or proweked with the reproaches of the other gentleman, quitted me, and running to his horfe, drew a puttol from the laddle, and fired at my protector, who happily re-Criving no damage, went up, and with the but end of high whip, laid him protrate on the ground before he und ufe the other, which his antagonift im nediately rented, and elapping to the fquire's break, threatened to in to death for his cowardice and treachery . In. s dilemma I interpofed and bezzed his life, which us granied to my requeft, after he had alkes pardon, d (wore his intention was only to obtain a kils .- Hower, my defender thought proper to unload the other tol, and throw away the fints, before he gave him liberty. ---- This courteous ftranger conducted me me, where my father having learnt the fignal fervice had done me, loaded him with careffes, and infifted his lodging that night it our house -If the obliga-In he had conterred upon me justly infpired me with atiments of gratitude, his appearance and convertation med to entitle him to fomewhat more. - He was about he age of two and twenty, among the talleft of the ddle fize; had chefnut coloured hair, which he wore d up in a ribbon ; a high polifhed forehead, a nofe inhning to the aquiline, lively blue eyes, red pouting ms, teeth as white fnow, and a certain opennefs of Juncenance-but what need I defcribe any more parculars of his perfon ! I hope you will do me the justice believe I do not flatter, when I fay he was the exact femblance of you ; and if I had not been well aquaintwith his family and pedigree, I should have made no. ruple of concluding that you was his brother .- - He loke little, and feemed to have no referve, for what he id was ingenuous, fenfible, and uncommon .- In thort aid the, buriting into tears) he was formed for the suin our fex. His behaviour was modeft and respectful, at his tooks were fo fignificant, that I could eatily obive, he fecretly bleffed the occasion that introduced in to my acquaintance. - We learned from his difcourfe at he was the eldeft fon of a wealthy gentleman in the righbourhood, to whofe name we were no lirangers ; at he had been to vifit an acquaintance in the country, bom whole houle he was returning home, when my ricks brought him to my refcue .- All night long my hagination formed a thousand ridiculous expectations :. here was fo much of knight errantry in this gentlean's coming to the relief of a damfel in didrets, with ... whom whom he immediately became enamoured, that all I have read of love and chivairy recurred to my fancy, and his looked upon myfelf as a princefs in fome region of romance, who being delivered from the power of a brut w giant or fatyr by a generous Oroondates, was bound it gratitude, as well as led by inclination, to yield up min affections to him without referve. In vain did I ender vour to chaftife these foolish conceits by reflections more. reationable and fevere ; The amufing images took fu) poffettion of my mind, and my dreams reprefented min hero fighing at my teet, in the language of a delpairin ... lover .- Next morning after breakfaft he took his leave. when my father begged the favour of further acquaint ance with him ; to which requelt he replied by a com pliment to him, and a look to me to full of eloquencia and tendernefs, that my whole foul received the foit imipreffion .- In a fhort time he repeated his vifit ; and as recital of the particular fteps he purfued to ruin me would he be too tedious and impertinent, let it fuffice to fay, his made it his bufinefs to infinuate himfelf into my efteeme by convincing me of his own good fenfe, and at the fame time flattering my understanding : This talk he performin ed in the most artful manner, by feeming to contradic. me often through mitapprehention, that I might have an opportunity of clearing myfelf, the more to my own how nour. Having thus fecured my good opinion, he be gan to give me fome tokens of a particular paffion, founded on a veneration for the qualities of my mind, and as an accidental ornament, admired the beauties of my perion ; till at length, being tully perfuaded of his conqueit, he choie a proper feation for the theme, and disclosed his love in terms to ardent and fincere, that it was impoflible for me to difguile the fentiments of my heart, and he received my approbation with the molh lively transport. After this mutual declaration, we contrived to meet more frequently, in private interviews, where we enjoyed the convertation of one another, in all the elevation of tancy and impatience of hope, that reciprocal adoration can inspire. --- He proteffed his honourable intentions, of which I made no queftion, lamented the avaricious disposition of his father, who had denined him for the arms of another, and vowed eternal delity lelity with fuch an appearance of candour and devotion. But I became a dupe to his deceit, and in an evil hour mowned his eager defire with full poffeffion .--- Curled the day on which I gave away my innocence and arace for a momentary gratification, which has entailed ton me fuch mifery and horror ! curfed be my beau'y. that first attracted the attention of the feducer ! curfed my education, that by refining my fentiments, made heart the more fusceptible ! curfed be my good fenfe, at fixed me to one object. and taught me the prefembce I enjoyed was but my due ! Had I been ugly, no dy would have tempted me; had I been ignorant, the farms of my perfon would not have atoned for the arfenefs of my converfation ; had I been giddy, my mity would have divided my inclinations, and my . weas would have been to diffuted, that I thould never we liftened to the inchantments of one alone.

139

But to return to my unfortunate flory ; we gave a ble to guilty pleafure, which for fome months banilhed ery other concern .- At laft, by degrees, his vilits beme lefs frequent, and his behaviour lefs warm: I perfived his coldness, my heart took the alarm, my tears proached him, and I infilted up in the performance of: s promife to espouse me, that, whatever should hapn, my reputation might be fafe : He feemed to acmiefce iu my propofal, and left me on pretence of findg a proper clergyman to unite us in the bands of wedck .- But alas ! the inconstant had no intention to rern: I waited a whole week with the utmoft i npatience; metimes doubting his honour, at other times inventg excutes for him, and condemning myfelf for haruring the leaft fufpicion of his faith .---- At length, I aderitood from a gentleman who dined at our houfe, at this perficious wretch was on the point of fetting it for London with his bride, to buy clothes for their oproaching nuptials. - This information diftracted mal is more to, as I found myfelf fome months gone with hild, and reflected, that it would be impoffiple to conal iny difgrace, which would not only ruin the chader I had acquired in the country, but also bring the mey hairs of an indulgent parent with forrow to they wave. Rage took policilion of my foul; I denounced a thoufand thousand imprecations, and formed as many fchemest. revenge against the traitor who had undone me ! T my refentment would fublide to filent forrow : I recall the travouility I had loft. I wept over my infatuation and fonictimes a ray of hope would intervene, and a moment cheer my drooping heart : I would revolve the favourable circumstances of his character, repeat vows he made, afcribe his absence to the vigilance of fufpicious father who compelled him to a match his f abhorred, and comfort myfelf with the expectation. feeing him before the thing thould be brought to a terms of agreement .- But how vain was my imagin. tion ! The villain left me without remorfe, and in few days the news of his marriage was foread all oth the country .- My horror was then inconceivable ! al had not the defire of revenge diverted the refolution, thould infallibly have put an end to my miferable lite My father observed the symptoms of my defpair ; a thrugh I have good reafon ro believe, he gueffed th caufe, was at a great deal of pains to feem ignorant my affliction, while he endeavoured with paternal form pefs to alleviate my diffrefs. I faw his concern, whi increased my anguith, and raised my fury against the a thor of my calamity to an implacable degree. Havin furnished myfelf with a little money. I made an elop ment from this unhappy parent in the night-time, an about break of day, arrived at a imall town, from when a flage coach let out for London, in which I embarkel and next day alighted in town ; the foirit of revenue having supported me all the way against every other r flection .- My full care was to hire a lodging, in which I kept myfelt very retired, having aftuined a feigne name, that my character and fituation might be the be ter concealed. It was not long before I found out th house of my ravilher, whither I immediately repaired a transport of rage, determined to act io ne desperat deed for the latisfaction of my delpair, though the hurry of my fpirits would not permit me to concert or refolv upon a particular plan. When I demanded admillion to Lothario (10 let me call him) I was defired to fend up my name and buliacis; but this I refated, telling the porter I had bufinels for his mafter's private ear : Upon which ch I was conducted into a narlour until he flowld be formed of my request. - There I remained about a oter of an hour, when a fervant entered, and told nis nufter was engaged with company and begged be excufed at that time .- My temper could hold out ionger : 1 pulled a poignard from my bofom, whare I I concealed it, and ruthing out, flew up flairs like a , exclaiming, " Where is this perfidious villain ! would I once plunge this dagger into his falfe heart, " fhould then die fatisfied." The noife I made alar nnot only the fervants, but the company alfo, who Fring my threats, came forward to the fair cafe to what was the matter. 1 was feized, difarmed, and h-held by two footmen ; and in this figuration felt the At exquifite torture in beholding my undoer approach h his young wife. I could not endure the fight, deprived of my fenfes, and fell into a fevere fit, fing which I know not how I was treated ; but when Becovered the use of reflection, found myfelf on a bed a paultry apartment, where I was attended by an old man, who afked a thoufand impertinent queftions reing to my condition ; and informed me that my beviour had thrown the whole family into confusion ; at Lothario affirmed I was mad, and proposed to have fent to Bedlam ; but my lady perfuaded herfelf there mis more in my conduct than he cared thould be known, a had taken to her bed on bare fufpicion, having firit adered that I fhould be narrowly looked to. I heard all al faid without making any other reply, than defiring would do me the favour to call a chair : but this he told me) could not be done without her matter's maient, which, however, was eafily procured, and I as conveyed to my own lodgings in a flate of mind at baffles all defeription. The agitation of my thoughts bduced a fever, which brought on a mifcarriage; and believe it is well for my confcience that heaven thus poled of my burden; for let me own to you with petence and horror, if I had brought a living child into e world, my frenzy would have prompted me to facrithe little innocent to my relentment of the father's Edelity.

After this event my rage abated, and my hate became more deliberate and calm ; when one day, m landlady informed me that there was a pentleman below who cefired to fee me, he having fomething of confe quence to in part, which he was fure would contribut to my peace of mind. I was exceedingly alarmed at th declaration, which I attempted to interpret a thousand ways ; and before I came to any determination he en tered my room, with an apology for intruding upon TE againft my knowledge or confent - I furveyed him fom time, and not being able to recollect his face, demand ed with a faultering accent, what his bufinefs was with mei Upon which, he defired I would give him a partit cular audience, and he did not doubt of communicatin femething that would conduce to my fatisfaction and repole. As I thought myfelt sufficiently guarded againing any violence. I granted his requeft, and bid the woman withdraw. The stranger then advancing, gave me to underfland that he was well acquainted with the particle culars of my flory, having been informed of them from Lothario's own mouth-that from the time he knew my misfortunes, he had entertained a detellation for the auto thor of them ; which had of late been increased and init flamed to a defire of revenge, by a piece of dilhonour a able conduct towards him-that hearing of my melan choly fituation, he had come with an intention of offer the ing his affiltance and comfort, and was ready to efpoulie ny quarrel, and forthwith take vengeance on my fell ducer, provided I would grant him one confideration which (he hoped) I fhould see no reason to refuse. Hack all the artifice of hell been employed in composing a perfualive, it could not have had a more inftantaneou or favourable effect than this difcourfe had upon me. I was transported with a celirium of gloomy joy ; I hugged my companion in my arms, and vowed that it he would make good his promife, my toul and body thould be at his glipofal - The contract was made ; he devoted himfelt to my revenge, undertook to muruer Lothario that very night, and to bring me an account of his death before morning. Accordingly, about two of the clock, he was introduced to my chamber, and affured me, my perfidious lover was no more; that although he was not entitled to fuch an honourable proceeding, here had fairly challenged him to the fi-ld, where he upbrail. thim with his treachery towards me. for whom (he I me) his fword was drawn, and after a few puffes. him weltering in his blood. --- I was fo favaged by wrongs, that I delighted in the recital of this advenle, made him repeat the particulars, feafted my eyes h the blood that remained on his clothes and fword, d vielded up my body as a recompence for the fervice had done me. My imagination was fo engroffed with sefe ideas, that in my fleep I dreamed Lothario appear. before me, pale, mangled, and bloody, blamed my hnefs, protefted his innocence, and pleaded his own late to pathetically, that I was convinced of his fideliand waked in a fit of horror and remorie. --- My d fellow endeavoured to footh, confole, and perfia le that I had but barely done justice to myfelf .- I dropt rep again, and the fame apparition returned to my hey .--- In fhort, I paffed the night in great milery, Id looked upon my avenger with fuch abnorrence, that the morning, perceiving my averlion, he infinuated ere was still a possibility of Lothario's recovery ; it was ue he left him wounded on the ground, but not quite ad ; and perhaps his hurts might not be mortal. it thefe words I ftarted up, bade him fly for intelliince, and if he could not bring me tidings of Lothario's fety, at least to confult his own, and never return, for was refolved to furrender myfelf to jultice, and declare that I knew of the affair, that if poffible, I might piate my own guilt by incurring the rigour, of a fin. poly represented the unreafonablenefs of my prejudice ainst him, who had done nothing but what his love of he had intpired, and honour juftified; -that now he had. the rifk of his life, been fublerwient to my revenge, was about to difcard him, as an infamous agent occa. onally neceffary; and that even if he should be fo icky as to bring news of Lothario's fafety, it was proable my former refentment might revive, and I would pbraid him with having failed in his undertaking .-- I fured him, that on the contrary, he thould be dearer o me than ever, as I thould then be convinced he acted hore on the principles of a man of honour, than on those of a mercenary affaffin, and foorned to take away the li of an adverfary (how invetrate foever) which fortun had put in his power .- " Well then, madam. (faid h " whatever may have happened, I fhall find it no di " ficult matter to acquit myfelf in point of honour.". And tock his leave in order to inquite into the conf quences of his duel - I was now more fentible than ev of the degrees of guilt and mifery ; all the affliction had fuffered hitherto was owing to my own credulity an weakness, and my conference could not accule me of ve nial ctimes : but now that I looked upon myfelf as murderer, it is in puffible to express the terrors of m in acipation, which was inceff only haunted by the imag of the deceated, and my bofom living with the molt en quifite as onies, of which I faw no end .- At length He ratio (for to I thall call my keeper) returned, and tellin me I had nothing to fear, delivered into my hands billet, containing their words a

$42

of

" MADAM.

"A 1 underfland it is of confequence to your peace wounds received tom libratio are not mortal. The statistication my humanity could not deny, even to perfor, who has enceavoured to dilutib the repole, a well as defining the libration of an enceavour of a statistication of the statisticati

" Lothario."

Being well sequentiated with his hand, I had no rea fon to lupeet an imposition in this letter, which I readover and over with a transport of joy, and carelled Ho ratio fo much, that he appeared the happiei man alive Thus was 4 won from cellpair by the meases of a greater misfortune than that which deprefied me.— Griets are but my raptures were not lailing —— that very letter which in a manner re-eliabilitied my trasquility, in a Ritle time bauthed my refeatment, recalled my formehappinets, and filled my foll with rage and forrow.— Horatio perceiving the futuation of my mind, endeavour-divert my chagrin, by treating me with all the aments and entertainments of the town. I was grawith every indugence I could defire; introduced the company of other kept miltreffes, by whom an mone deference was paid to me; and I began to II remembrance of my former condition, when an tent brought it back to my view, with all its intereffircumflances. Diverting myfelf one day with fome papers, which I had not be fore perufed, the folag advertifement attracted my attention.

is pathetic remonstrance had fuch an effect on me. was fully refolved to return like the prodigal fonamplore the forgiveness of him who gave me life a last upon inquiry. I found he had paid his debt to e a month before, lamenting my abience to his laft having left his fortune to a ftranger, as a mark of fentment of my unkind and undutiful behaviour .---"rated with remorfe on this occasion, I funk into the profound melancholy, and confidered myielf as the ildiate caufe of his death .- I loit all relith for comand indeed molt of my acquaintance no fooner lived my change of temper, than they abandoned Horatio, difguiled at my infentibility, or (which is improbable) cloyed with poffesion, became colder and every day, till at last he left me altogether, withdaking any apology for his conduct, or lecuring me t the mileries of want as a man of honour ought e done, confidering the fhare he had in my ruin ; Ino Io G, for for I afterwards learned that the quarrel between Loth rio and him, was a flory trumped up to rid the one my importunities, and give the other the epioyment my perfon, which, it feems, he lufted after, upon f ing me at the houfe of my feducer. Reduced to t extremity. I curfed my own fimplicity, uttered hor imprecations against the treachery of Horatio ; and a became every day more and more familiarized to the of innocence, refolved to be revenged on the fex in a neral, by practifing their own arts upon themfelves." Nor was an opportunity long wanting ; an old gentlew man, under pietence of fympathizing, vifited me, a after having condoled me on my mislortunes, and pie feffed a difinterefted friencfhip, began to difplay the of her occupation, in encomiums on my beauty, and vectives against the wretch who had forfaken me; innuating withal that it would be my own fault if I , not fill make my fortune by the extraordinary qual cations with which nature had endued me. - I for understood her drift, and gave her fuch encouragement to explain herfelf that we came to an agreement imrediately to divide the profits of my profitution, accruit from fuch gallants as the thould introduce to my quaintance. The first stroke of my diffimulation w practifed upon a certain judge, to whom I was reco mended by this matron, as an innocent creature juit rived from the country. He was fo transported with appearance and teigned fimplicity, that he paid a hund ha guineas for the polleffion of me for one night only, ring which I behaved in fuch a manner, as to make Ha perfectly well pleafed with his purchafe.

C H A P. XXIII.

147

is interrupted by a bailiff, subo arrefts and carries " to the Marshalfea ____ I accompany her ____ ring witneffes to prove the is not the perfon named in e writ ---- the bailiff is fain to give her a prefent, and ischarge her ---- we shift our lodging --- the refumes er Bory and ends it --- my reflections thereupon --- The takes one acquainted with the progress of a common roman of the town ---- refolves to guit that way of Se.

TER fory was here interrupted by a rap at the door, which I no fooner opened, than three or four ble fellows rufned in, one of whom accofted my fellodger thus :-- " Madam, your fervant, you muft do e the favour to come along with me-I have got a rit ag. inft you." While the bailiff (for fo he was) e thus, his followers furrounded the prifoner, and an to handle her very roughly .- This treatment ined me fo much, that I fnatched up the poker, and Id certainly have used it in defence of the lady, withany regard to the firength and number of her adveris, had the not begged me with a composure of counnce, for which I could not account, to nie no vioe in her behalf, which could be of no fervice to her, night be very detrimental to myfelf. Then turning at leader of this formidable troop, the defired to fee writ, and having peruled it, faid with a faultering e, " I am not the perfon whole name is here menned ; arreft me at your peril."_" Ay, ay, Madam. splied the catchpole) we fhall prove your identity. In the mean time, whether will you be plea-I to be carried to my houfe, or to jail?"-" If I aft be confined (faid the) I would rather be in your infe than in a common jail." ___ " Well, well, (anered he) if you have money enough in your pocket. in thall be entertained like a princefs." But when inquainted him with her poverty, he fwore he never credit, and ordered one of his myrmidons to call a a, to carry her to the Marshalfea at once. While G 2 they

they waited for the converience fhe took me afide, al hade me be under no concern on her account, for he knew how to extricate herfelf from this difficulty year foon, and perhaps gain fomething by the occafion, - m though her difcourfe was a myflery to me. I was ver well pleafed with her affurance, and when the coale came to the door, offered to accompany her to prifon, h which propofal, after much entreaty, the confented When we arrived at the gate of the Marshalfea, our conductor alighted, and having demanded entrance, prejer ed the writ to the turnkey, who no fooner perceived the name of Elizabeth Cary, than he cried, " Ah hah ! r " old acquaintance Bett! I'm glad to fee thee with " my heart "- so faying, he opened the coach-dow and helped her to difmount ; but when he observed h face, he flarted back, faving, "Z-ds! who have " " got here!"-The bailiff, alarmed at this interrogatic cried with fome emotion, " Who the devil fhould it b " but the prifoner Elizabeth Cary ?" The turnkey s plied, "That Elizabeth Cary !- 1'll be damn'd if that " Elizabeth Cary, more than my grandmother .---" D-n my blood, I know Bett Cary as well as if I h " made her."- - Here the lady thought fit to enterpole and tell the catchpole, if he had taken her word for it the firft, he might have faved himfelf and her a great deal h trouble .- " It may be fo (answered he) but by G -- d, I " have further evidence that you are not the perfon, b " fore you and I part." --- " Yes, yes, (faid fhe) you " fhall have further evidence to your coft." --- Then adjourned into the lodge, and called for a bottle of winter where my companion wrote a direction to two of her and anaintance, and begged the favour of me to go to the lodgings, and requelt them to come to her immediateld I found them altogether at a houfe in Bridges-Bre Drury-lane; and as they were luckily unengaged they out with me in a hackney coach without hefitation, afine I had related the circumftances of the affair, which ft tered them with hopes of feeing a bailiff trounced : 1 there is an antipathy as natural between the whores a bailiffs, as that fubfifting between mice and cats .----Accordingly, when they entered the lodge, they embula ced the priloner very affectionately by the name of Nale

Williams, and alked how long the had been nabbed, d tor what ?- On hearing the particulars of her advenre repeated, they offered to fwear before a justice of .nace, that the was not the perfon mentioned in the it, whon, it feems, they all knew ; but the bailiff, no was by this time convinced of his miltake, told them would not put them to that trouble .- -- " Ladies, taid he) there's no harm done-you thall give me leave to treat you with another bottle, and then we'll part friends,"- l'ais propofal was not at all relithed the fifterhood ; and Mifs Williams told him, Sure he d not imagine her fuch a fool, as to be fatisfied with a miltry glafs of four wine .- Here the turnkey interrupther, by afficining with an oath, that the wine was as and as ever was upped over tongue, --- " Well (continued (he) that may be-but was it the beft of champaign, it is no recompence for the damage I have fut. fered both in character and health, by being wrong. fully dragged to jail -At this rate no innocent perion. is fate, fince an officer of jultice, out of malice, private pique, or millake, may injure and oppreis the fubject with impunity-but thank heaven. I live under the protection of laws that will not fuffer fuch infults to pais unpunched, and I know very well how to procure redreis."-Mr. Vulture (for that was the iliff's name) finding he had to deal with one who would it be imposed upon, began to look very fullen and perexed, and leaning his torehead on his hand, entered to a deliberation with himlelt, which lalted a few miates, and then broke out into a volley of dreadrul cur. s against the old b-ch our landlady (as he called her) r having milinformed him. ---- After much wrangling d fwearing, the matter was reterred to the decision of e turnkey, who calling for the other bottle, mulched e bailiff in all the liquor that had been drank, cuachre, and a couple of guineas for the use of the plaintiff. -The money was immediately deposited ; Milis Wilins gratified the two evidences with one half, and putmag the other in her pocket, drove nome with me, leavthe catchpole grumoling over his lofs, yet pleafed the main, for having to cheaply got clear of a buineis at might have cont him ten times the fuin, and his place to boot.—This guinea was a very feafonable relief to us who were reduced to great nexefiity, fix of my thirts, and almoft all my clothes, except thole on my back, having been either pawned or fold for our maintenance before this happend.—As we refented the behaviour of our landlady, our firlt care was to provide our cleves with another lodging, whither we recoved next day, with an intention to keep ourfelves as retired as polible, until our cure floud be completed.—When we were fixed in our new habitation, I entreated her to fixih the flory of her life, which the purfaced in this manner :

63

10

The fuccefs of our experiment on the I-ge, encouraged us to practice the same deceit on others, and my virginity was five times fold to good purpofe : but this harveft lafted not long, my character taking air, and my directrefs deferting me for fome new game. Then I took lodgings near Charing-crofs, at two guineas per week, and began to entertain company in a public manner :--but my income being too finall to defray my expence, I was obliged to retrench, and enter into articles with the porters of certain taverns, who undertook to find em. ployment enough for me, provided I would thare my profits with them .- Accordingly, I was almost every night engaged with company, among whom I was expofed to every mortification, danger, and abufe, that flow from drunkennefs, brutality, and difeafe. How miferable is the condition of a courtezan, whofe business it is to footh, fuffer, and obey the dictates of rage, infolence, and lull !- As my foirit was not fufficiently humbled to the will, nor my temper calculated for the converfacion of my gallants, it was impoffible for me to overcome an averfion I felt for my proteffion, which manifested itfelf in a tettled gloom on my countenance, and difgutted thole fonsot mirth and riot fo much, that I was frequently used in a shocking manner, and kicked down stairs with difgrace .- The meffengers feeing me difagreeable to their benefactors and employers, feldom troubled ma with a call, and I began to find myfelf almost totally neglected. To contribute towards my fupport, I was fain, to tell my watch, rings, trinkets, with the belt part of my clothes; and I was one evening muling by myfelf, on, the mifery before me, when I received a meffage from a mino, whither I repaired in a chair, and was introdu. I to a gentleman dreffed like an officer, with whom L poped in a fumptuous manner, and after drinking an arty glafs of champaign, went to bed .- In the morning ten lawoke, I found my gallant had got up, and draww afide the curtain, could not perceive him in the om. This circumftance gave me fome uneafinefs, but he might have retired on fome neceffary occasion, I aited a full hour for his return ; and then in the grea-It perplexity role up, and rung the bell. When the aiter came to the door, he found it locked, and defired imittance, which I granted, after oblerving with great rorife, that the key remained on the infide, as when e went to bed - I no fooner enquired for the captain. an the fellow ftaring with a diffracted look, cried. How, Madam ! Ishe not a bed?" And when he was tisfied as to that particular, ran into a clofet adjoiningthe chamber, the window of which he found open .-"hrough this the adventurer had got upon a wall, from hence he dropped down into a court, and efcaped : aving me to be answerable, not only for the reckonig, but alfo for a large filver tankard and poffet-bowl. hich he had carried off with him. It is impollible to efcribe the confernation I was under, when I faw my. If detained as a thief's accomplice ; for I was looked pon in that light, and carried before a julice, who, hittaking my confution for a fign of guilt, com nitted mey fter a thort examination, to Bride well, having advited ne, as the only means to fave my life, to turn evidence nd impeach my confederate. - I now concluded the yen. seance of heaven had overtaken me, and that I mult foon mith my career by an ignominious death .- This reflec. ion funk fo deep into my foul, that I was for fome days eprived of my reation, and actually believed myfelf in well, tormented by fiends : Indeed, there needs not a vey extravagant imagination to form that idea ; for of allthe fcenes on earth, that of Bridewell approaches nearest she notion I had always entertained of the infernal reoions .- Here I faw nothing but rage, anguith and imbiety ; and heard nothing but groans, curies, and blaf. nemy .- In the midit of this hellich crew, I was fub-G4 iected

IŞT

jected to the tyranny of a barbarian, who imposed upon his me tafks that I could not poffibly perform, and then pulled nifhed my incapacity with the utmost rigour and inhum manity. I was often whipt into a fwoon, and lathed ou of it, during which miferable intervals, I was robbed byfit my fellow-prifoners of every thing about me, even to mythe cap, fhoes, and flockings ; I was not only defitute of neceffaries, but even of food, fo that my wretchednelit was extreme. Not one of my acquaintance to whom Inthe imparted my fituation, would grant me the leaft fuccounter or regard, on pretence of my being committed for theft and my landlord refused to part with fome of my own clothes, which I fent for, becaufe I was indebted to him to for a week's lodging. Overwhelmed with calamity, In grew desperate, and refolved to put an end to my grievances and lite together; for this purpofe I got up in thebit middle of the night, when I thought every body round me afleep, and fixing one end of my handkerchief to a large hook in the cicling, that supported the folles on h which the hemp is weighed, I flood upon a chair, and 16 meking a nooie on the other end, put my neck into it. with an intention to hang myfelf; but before I could adjust the knot. I was furprifed and prevented by two wos men who had been awake all the while, and inipected my defign. In the morning my attempt was published by among the prifoners, and punithed with thirty liripes, the pain of which co-operating with my disappointment and ditgrace, bereit me of my tenfes, and threw me intoan echafy of mauneis, during which, I tore the fith from my bones with my teeth, and dashed my head a. gainft the pavement. So that they were obliged to fet a watch over me, to refirain me from doing further milchief to myfelf and others. This fit of phrenzy continued for three days, at the end of which I grew calm and fullen : but as the detire of making away with myfelf still) emained, I came to a determination of ftarving myfelf to death, and with that view retuied all futtenance. Whither it was owing to the want of oppoficion, or to the weakness of nature, I know not, but on the lecond day of my fall, I found my refolution confiderably im. paired, and the calls of hunger almost insupportable. At this critical juncture, a lady was brought into the pri-100

fon with whom I had contracted an acquaintance while I lived with Horatio: the was then on the fane footing s I was, but afterwards quarrelling with her gallant, and not finding another to her mind, altered her fcheme of life, and fet up a coffee-houfe among the hundreds of Drury, where the entertained gentlemen with claret, grack, and the choice of half a dozen of damfels, who ived in her houfe. This ferviceable matron having reglected to gratify a certain i -ce for the connivance he enjoyed, was indicted at the quarter feffions, in conequence of which her bevy was difperfed, and herfelf ommitted to Bridewell .- She had not been long there. efore the learned my difafter, and coming up to me, fter a compliment of condolence, inquired into the pariculars of my fate : While we were engaged in diffourfe together, the mafter came and told me, that the ellow on whole account I had inffered was taken : that e had confeifed the theft, and cleated me of any conern in the affair ; for which reafon, he, the mafter, had rders to difcharge me, and that I was from that mosent free. This piece of news foon banifhed all thoughts F death, and had fuch an inftantaneous effect on my puntenance, that Mrs. Coupler (the lady then prefent) oping to find her account in me, very generoully offerd to furnish me with what necessaries I wanted, and ake me into her own house as foon as the thould com. romife matters with the j-ces. The conditions of her ffer were, that I thould pay three guineas weekly for iv board, and a reafonable confideration befides for the le of fuch clothes and ornaments as the thould fupply he with, to be deducted from the first profits of my earaces. Thefe were hard terms : but not to be rejected y one who was turned out helplefs and naked into the ade world, without a friend to pity or affet her. 1 service embraced her propofal, and the being bailed in tew hours, took me home with her in a coach. As I as by this time confcious of having formerly difguited y admirers by my referved and haughty behaviour. I ow endeavoured to conquer that dispolition, and the adden change of my fortune giving me a flow of fpirits, oppeared in the most winning and gay manner I could lume. Having the alvantage of a good voice and education GS ducation. I exerted my talents to the uttermoft, and foon became the favourite with all company. This fuccefs alarmed the pride and jealoufy of Mrs. Coupler, who could not hear the thoughts of being eclipfed: She therefore made a merit of her envy, and whilpered among the cultomers, that I was unfound. There needed no more to ruin my reputation, and blaft my profperity ; every body fhunned me with marks of averfion and difdain : and in a very fort time I was as folitary as ever. Want b of gallants was attended with want of money to fatisfy my malicious landlady, who having purpofely given me credit to the amount of eleven pounds, took out a writ. againft me, and I was arrefted in her own houfe. Tho' the room was crouded with people, when the bailiff entered, not one of them had compation enough to mollify my profecatrix, far-lefs to pay the debt; they even laughed at my tears, and one of them bade me be of good cheer, for I fould not want admirers in Newgate. At that inftent, a fea lieutenant came in, and feeing my, plight, began to enquire into the circumftances of my misfortune, when this wit advised him to keep clear of me, for I was a fire-fhip. " A fire-fhip ! (replied the " failor) more like a poor galley in diffres, that has been " boarded by fuch a firethip as you ; if fo be, as that " is the cafe, the fands in more need of affiltance. " Harkee, my girl, how far have you over run the con-" ftable ?" I told him that the debt amounted to eleven pounds, belides the expence of the writ-" An' that be " all (faid he) you fhan't go to the bilboes this bout." And taking out his purfe, paid the money, difcharged the bailiff, and telling me, I had got into the wrong port, adviled me to feek a more convenient harbour, where I could be fately hove down, for which purpole he made me a prefent of five guineas more. I was fo touched with this fingular piece of generofity, that for fome time I had not power, to thank him. However, as foon as I had recollected myielf, I begged the favour of him to go with me to the next tavern, where I explained the nature of my difafter, and convinced him of the falfehood of what was reported to my prejudice to effectually, that he from that moment attached himfelf to me, and we lived in: in-

n great harmony together, until he was obliged to go. o fea, where he perilhed in a ftorm.

Having loft my benefactor, and almost confumed the remains of his bounty. I faw myfelf in danger of relapng into my former necessity, and began to be very un. afy at the profpects of bailiffs and jails :- when one of he fifterhood, a little ftale, advifed me to take lodgings a a part of the town where I was unknown, and pais or an heirefs, by which artifice I might entrap fomeody to be my hufband, who would pofficily be able to llow me an handfome maintenance, or at work fcreen, ne from the dread and danger of a prifon, by becoming able for whatever debts I fhould contract. I approved. of this (cheme, towards the execution of which, my comanion clubbed her wardrobe, and undertook to live with me in quality of my maid ; with the provifo, that he should be reimburied, and handsomely confidered. but of the profits of my fuccels .- She was immediately etached to look out for a convenient place, and that very day hired a genteel apartment in Park freet, whiher I moved in a coach loaded with her baggage and ay own .---- I made my first appearance in a blue riding abit trimmed with filver ; and my maid acted her part o artfully, that, in. a day or two my fame was foread . ill over the neighbouchood, and I was faid to be a rich reirefs just arrived from the country .---- This report . rought a fwarm of gay young fellows about me ; but I oon tound them out to be all indigent adventurers like. nyfelf, who crowded to me like crows to a carrion ... with a view of preying upon my fortune. - I maintained. aowever, the appearance of wealth, as long as poffible, . in hopes of gaining fome admirer more for any purpole; and at length attracted the regard of one who would . nave fatisfied my wilhes ; and managed matters fo well, ... hat a day was actually fixed for our nuptials : . In the nterim, he begged leave to introduce an intimate friend . o me, which requeit, as I could not refuse. I had the extreme mortification and furprile, to fee next night in ... hat friend, my old keeper, Horatio, who no fooner beheld me than he changed colour ; but had prefence of mind to advance and falute me, bidding me (with a low voice) be under no apprehention, for he would not ex-G.6 pale.

ILS.

156

pofe me.—In fpite of this affurance, I could not recover myfelf fo far, as to entertain them, but withdrew to my chamber, on pretence of a fevere head-ach, to the no fmall concern of my adorer, who took his leave in the terd arent manner, and went off with his friend.

Having imparted my fituation to my companion, fhe found it high time for us to decamp, and that without any noife, becaufe we were not only indebted to our Fandlady, but alio to feveral tradefmen in the neighbourhood .- Our retreat (therefore) was concerted and executed in this manner : Having packed up all our clothes and moveables in fmall pareels, fhe (on pretence of fetching cordials for me) carried them at feveral times to the house of an acquaintance, where the likewife procured a lodging : to which we retired in the middle of the night, when every other body in the houfe was affeep .- I was now obliged to aim at lower game. and accordingly foread my nets among trades people : but found them all too phlegmatic or cautious for my art and attractions; till at laft I became acquainted with you, on whom I practifed all my desterity ; not that I believed you had any fortune, or expectation of one, but that I might transfer the burthen of fuch debts as I had incurred or fhould contract, from myfelf to another : and at the fame time avenge myfelf of your fex, by rendering miferable one, who bore fuch refemblance to the wretch who ruined me ;---- but heaven preferv'd you from my fnares, by the difcovery you made, which was owing to the negligence of my maid in leaving the chamber-door unlocked, when the went to buy fugar for breakfast .---- The perfon in bed with me was a gentleman, whom I had allured the night before, as he walked homeward, pretty much elevated with liquor ; for by this time my condition was to low, that I was forced to turn out, in the twilight, to the ftreets, in hopes of prey .- When I found myfelf detected and forfaken by you. I was fain to move my lodging, and dwell two pair of flairs higher than before : My companion being difappointed in her expectations, lett me, to trade upon her own bottom, and I had no other refource, than to venture forth, like the owls, in the dark, to pick up a precarious and uncomfortable fubfiftence. I have often fauntered fauntered between Ludgate-hill and Charing erofs, a whole winter night, exposed not only to the inclemency of the weather, but likewife to the rage of hunger and thirft, without being to happy as to meet with one cully; then creep up to my garret, in a deplorable, draggled condition, fneak to bed, and try to bury my appetite and forrows in fleep .-- When I lighted on fome rake or tradef nan reeling home drunk. I frequently fuffired the molt brutal treatment, in fpite of which I was obliged to affect gaiety and good humour, though my foul was fune with refentment and difdain, and my heart loaded with grief and affliction. -In the courfe of thefe noc. turnal adventures, I was infected with the difeate, that in a fhort time rendered me the object of my own abhorrence, and drove me to the retreat, where your benevolence refcued me from the jaws of death.

So much candour and good fenfe appeared in this Jady's narration, that I made no feruple of believing every fyliable of what the faid ; and expressed my altonishment at the variety of miferies the had undergone, in fo little time ; for all her misfortunes had happened within the compais of two years .- I compared her fituation with my own, and found it a thousand times more wretched ; I had endured hardfhips, 'tis true ; my whole lite had been a feries of fuch ; and when 1 looked forward, the profpect was not much bettered, --- but then. they were become habitual to me, and confequently I could bear them with lefs difficulty .- If one feature of life thould not fucceed, I could have recourse to another, and to to a third, veering about to a thouland different thitts, according to the emergencies of my fate, without forfeiting the dignity of my character, beyond a power of retrieving it, or fubjecting myfelf wholly to the caprice and barbarity of the world. On the other hand, the had known and relianed the fweets of profperity, the had been brought up under the wings of an indulgent parent, in all the delicacies to which her lex and rank entitled her ; and without any extravagance of hope, entertained herielf with the view of uninterrupted happi. neis through the whole icene of life .- How fatal then, how tormenting, how intolerable mud her reverfe of fortune fortune be ! a reverie, that not only robs her of thele external comforts, and plunges her into all the miferies of want, but alfo murthers her peace of mind, and entails upon her the curfe of eternal infamy !-- Of all profeffions I pronounced that of a courtegan the molt deplorable, and her of all courtezans the most unhappy ----She allowed my observation to be just in the main, but at the fame time affirmed, that notwithfianding the difgraces which had fallen to her fhare. fhe had not been in fo unlucky in the condition of a profitute, as many others of the fame community .---- " I have often feens to " (faid fhe) while I ftrolled about the freets at mid-" night, a number of naked wretches, reduced to rags " and filth, huddled together like fwine, in the corner in " of a dark alley ; fome of whom, but eighteen months " before, I had known the favourites of the town, rol-" ling in affluence, and glittering in all the pomp of " equipage and drefs."-And indeed the gradation is the esfily conceived : the most fashionable woman of the town is as liable to contagion, as one in a much humbler fohere i fhe infects her admirers, her fituation is public : the is avoided, neglected, unable to fupport her ufual appearance, which however the firives to maintain. as long as poffible ; her credit fails, fhe is obliged toretrench, and become a night-walker, her malady gains ground, fhe tampers with her conflitution, and ruins it ; her complection fades, the grows naufeous to every body, finds herfelf reduced to a flarving condition, is tempted to pick pockets, is detected, committed to Newgate, where the remains in a miferable condition, 'till the is discharged because the plaintiff will not appear to profecute her. No body will afford her lodging, the fymptoms of her diftemper are grown outrageous, the fues to be admitted into an hospital, where she is cured at the expence of her nole ; the is turned out naked into the freets, depends upon the addreffes of the loweft clafs. is fain to allay the rage of hunger and cold with gin, degenerates into a brutal infenfibility, rots and dies upon a dunghill .- Miferable wretch that I am ! perhaps the fame horrors are decreed for me! -" No. (cried the 4 after fome paufe) I shall never live to fuch extremity 44 of diffress ! my own hand shall open a way for my " deliverance, deliverance, before I arrive at that forlorn period !"er condition filled me with fympathy and compation ; revered her qualifications, looked upon her as unforinate, not criminal, and attended her with fuch care and fuccefs, that in lefs than two months, her health. well as my own, was perfectly re-ettablished .----s we often conferred upon our mutual affairs, and inperchanged advice, a thousand different projects were mormed, which upon further canvailing appeared impraccable .- We would have gladly gone to fervice ; but the would take us in without recommendation? At ingth an expedient occurred to her, of which the in-Inded to lay hold ; and this was to procure with the It money the thould earn, the homely garb of a counwww.wench, go to fome village at a good diftance from own, and come up in the waggon, as a freth girl for fersice; by which means, fhe might be provided for in a hanner much more fuitable to her inclination, than her refent way of life.

....

1

C H A P. XXIV.

an reduced to great mifery — affaulted on Tower-bill by a prefs gang, who put use on bourd a tender — my ugge there — my arrival on board the Thunker man of war, where ham put in irons, and afterwards releafed by the good offices of Mr. Toomion, who recommends ne as affidant to the furgeon — be relates his own flory, and makes me acquainted with the characters of the captain, furgeon, and first mate.

Applauded the refolution of Mifs Williams, who, a few days after, was hired in guality of bar-keeperg y one of the ladies who had witneffed in her benälf at he Marthalfea; and who fince that time had got credit, ith a wine-merchant, whole favourite the was, to fet up a convenient house of her own. — Thither my felow lodger repaired, after having taken leave of me, with torrent of tears, and a thoufand proteitations of eternal gratitude; afturing me, the would remain in this fittage tion no longer than the thould pick up money fufficient is to put her other defign in execution.

As for my own part, I faw no refource but the army or navy, between which I hefitated fo long, that I found myfelf reduced to a ftarving condition ---- My foirit be-h gan to accomodate itfelf to my beggarly fate, and In became fo mean as to go down towards Wapping, with an intention to enquire for an old fchool-fellow, who (I underflood) had got the command of a fmall coaffing veffel, then in the river, and implore his affistance .----But my deftiny prevented this abject piece of behaviour for as I croffed Tower-wharf, a fouat tawney fellow, with a hanger by his fide, and a cudgel in his hand, camel up to me, calling, " Yo, ho! brother, you must come " along with me."-As I did not like his appearance inflead of answering his falutation, I quickened my pace, b in hope of ridding myfelf of his company ; upon which he whiftled aloud, and immediately another failor apole peared before me, who laid hold of me by the collar. and began to drag me along .- Not being of a humourit to relifh fuch treatment, I difengaged myfelf of the affailant, and, with one blow of my cudgel, laid him motionleis on the ground ; and perceiving myfelf furrounded in a trice, by ten or a dozen more, exerted myfelf with fuch dexterity and fuccefs, that fome of my opponents were fain to attack me with drawn cutlaffes ; and after an obstinate engagement, in which I received a b large wound on my head, and another on my left cheek, I was difarmed, taking prifoner, and carried on board a.k prefling tender : where, after being pinioned like a maleiactor, I was thruft down into the hold, among a parcel of miferable wretches, the fight of whom well nigh diffracted me .- As the commanding officer had not humanity enough to order my wounds to be dreffed, and h I could not use my own hands, I defired one of my fellow captives who was unfettered, to take a handkerchief out of my pocket, and tie it round my head to ftop b the bleeding, He pull'd out my handkerchief ('tis true) but initead of applying it to the ule for which I defigned it, went to the grating of the hatchway, and, with afonithing composure, fold it before my face to a bumoat-womant, then on board, for a quart of gin, with which he treated my companions, regardlefs of inv cirunitances and increaties

I complained bitterly of this robbery to the mid hipm in in deck, telling him at the fame time, that unleis my jurts vere dreffed, I fhould bleed to death. Bu comp offin was a weakness of which no man could justly accuse this erfon, who fighting a mouthful of diffilved tobacco pon me through the gratings, told me, " I was a mutinous dog, and that I might die and be danned."inding there was no other remedy, I appealed to paence, and laid up this ulage in my memory, to be recald at a fitter feafon .- In the mean time, lots of blood, exation, and want of food, contributed, with the noime fench of the place, to throw me into a fwoon ; out which I recovered by a tweak of the nois, administred w the tar who itood centinel over us, who at the fame me regales me with a draught of flip, and comforted me ith the hopes of being put on board the l'aunder next ay, where I should be freed from my handcuff;, and ared of my wounds by the doctor .- I no fooner heard in name the Thunder, than I afked, if he had belonged that thip long ? and he giving me to understand he ad belonged to her five years, I enquired if he knew sucenant Bowling ?- " Know lieutenant Bowling (faid he,)-odds my lite ! and that I do; and a good feaman he is, as ever stept upon forecastle, -and a brave fellow as ever crackt bulket : --- none of your guiaca pigs, ---- nor your treth water, withy wathy, fairweather towls. ----- Many a taught gale of wind has honeft Tom Bowling and I weathered together. ---Here's his health with all my heart, wherever he is, a-loft or a -low ----- in heaven or in hell---all's one for that-he needs not be athamed to thow minfelt." ---was fo much affected with this eulogiuin, that I could t refrain from telling him, that I was lieutenant wling's kiniman ; in confequence of which connexion, be

A bum-boat-woman is one who fells bread, cheefe, greens, wor, and fresh provisions to the failors, in a finall boat that along fide the ship.

he expressed an inclination to ferve me, and when he was relieved, brought fome cold hoiled heef in a platterand bifcuit, on which we fupped plentifully, and afterwards drank another can of flip together. While we were thus engaged, he recounted a great many exploits of my uncle, who (I found) was very much beloved by the fhip's company, and pitied for the misfortune that happened to him in Hilpaniola, which I was very plad to be informed was not fo great as I imagined, for captain Oakhum had recovered of his wounds, and adually at that time commanded the fhip. Having, by accident, in my pocket my uncle's letter, written from Port Louis. I gave it my benefactor (whole name was Jack Rattlin) for his perufal; but honeft Jack told me frankly, he could not read, and defired to know the contents ; which I immediately communicated : When he heard that part of it, in which he fays, he had writ to his landlord in Deal, he cried, "Body of me that was old Ben Block. "-he was dead before the letter came to hand .---" Ey, ey, had Ben been alive, lieutenant Bowling " would have had no occafion to fculk fo long .---- Ho-" neft Ben was the firit man that taught him to hand, " reef, and fteer, - Well, well, we niuft all die, that's " certain, -- we must all come to port fooner or later, -at fea, or on thore ;-we must be fast moored one " day ;-death's like the best bower anchor, as the fay-" ing is, it will bring us all up."-I could not but fignify my approbation of the jultness of Jack's reflections ; and inquired into the occasion of the quarrel between captain Oakhum and my uncle; which he explained in this manner .- -- " Captain Oakhum, to be fure, is a " good man enough,-befides, he is my commander ;----" but what's that to me ?- I do my duty, and value no. " man's anger of a rope's end .- Now the report goes, " as how he's a lord's, or baron knight's brother, where-" by (d'ye fee me) he carries a ftrait arm, and keeps " alout from his officers, thof, may hap, they may be " as good men in the main as he. Now we were at " anchor in Tuberoon bay, lieutenant Bowling had the " middle watch, and as he always kept a good look out, " " he made (d'ye fee) three lights in the offing, where-" by he ran down to the great cabin for orders, and " found

" found the captain afleep :---whereupon he waked him. which put him in a main high paffion, and he fwore. woundily at the lieutenant, and called him loufy Scotch fon of a whore, (for I being then centinel in " the fleerage, heard all) and fwab and lubber, whereby the lieutenant returned the falute, and they jawed " together fore and aft a good fpell, till at laft the capstain turned out, and laying hold of a rattan, came athwart Mr. Bowling's quarter ; whereby he told the " captain, that if he was not his commander, he would * heave him over board, and demanded fatisfaction athore; whereby in the morning, watch, the captain went alhore in the pinnace, and afterwards the lieutenaut carried the cutter afhore : and fo they, leaving the boat's crews on their oars', went away together; and (fo d've fee) in lefs than a quarter of an. hour we heard firing, whereby we made for the place. and found the captain lying wounded on the beach, and fo brought him on board to the doctor, who. cured him in less than fix weeks. But the lieutenant clapt on all the fail he could bear, and had got far, * enough a head before we knew any thing of the matter ; to that we could never after get fight of him, for. which we were not forry, becaule the captain was. mainly wroth, and would certainly have done him a, mifchief ; for he afterwards cauled him to be run on the thip's books, whereby he loft all his pay, and if. "he fhould be taken, would be tried as a deferter."

" thieves enow among us already " Another obferving my wounds, which remained expoted to the air, told me. my feams were uncaulked, and that I must be new payed .- A third, feeing my hair clotted together with blood. as it were, into diffinct cords, took notice, that my bows were manned with the red ropes, inftead of my fide .- A fourth afked me, if I could not keep my yards fouare without iron braces ? And in thort, a thoutand witticifms of the fame nature were paffed upon me, before I could get up the fhip's fide .- After we had been all entered a upon the fhip's books, I enquired of one of my fhip mates, a where the furgeon was, that I might have my wounds dr ffed, and had actually got as far as the middle deck (for our thin carried eighty guns) in my way to the cock pit, when I was met by the fame midthipman, who his had used me to barbarously in the tender : He feeing me h free from my chains, afked, with an infolent air, who had a releafed me? To this queltion 1 tool fuly antwered with a countenance that 100 plainly declared the flate of my thoughts ; "Whoever did it, I am perfuaded did not h " confult you in the aff ir." --- I had no fooner uttered in thefe words, t' an he cried, " Damn you, you faucy fomin " of a bitch, I'll each you to talk fo to your officer."-So faying, he beltowed on me feveral fevere ftripes with a fupple Jack he had in his hand ; and going to the commanding officer, made fuch a report of me, that I was w immediately put in irons by the matter at arms, and a centinel placed over me .- Hopeft Rattlin, as foon as he heard of my condition, came to me, and administered all the confolation he could, and then went to the furgeon in my behalt, who fent one of his mates to drefs my wounds. This mate was no other than my old friend Thomfon, with whom I became acquainted at the Navyoffice, as before mentioned. If I knew him at firit fight, it was not eafy for him to recognize me, disfigured with blood and dire, and altered by the milery I had undergone. - Unknown as I was to him, he furveyed me with looks of compation, and handled my fores with great tendernels. When he had applied what he thought proper, and was about to leave me, I afked him it my mistortunes had disguiled me to much, that he could not recollect my face ? Upon this address he observed me with great earneitness for or fome time, and at length, protefted he could not reblleft one teature of my countenance .- To keep him no onger in fulpence, I told him my name; which when e heard he embraced me with affection, and profeffed as forrow in feeing me in fuch a difagreeable fituation. made hip acquainted with my flory, and when he heard ow inhumanly I had been ufed in the tender, he left me bruptly, affuring me. I thould fee him again foon. I ad fcarce time to wonder at this fudden departure, when as matter at arms came to the place of my confinenent, and bade me follow him to the quarter-deck, where was examined by the first lieutenaut, who commanded he (hip in the absence of the captain, touching the treatnent I had received in the tender from my friend the idhipman, who was prefent to confront me .- I recountd the particulars of his behaviour to me, not only in the ender, but froce my being on board the thin, part of which being proved by the evidence of Jick Rattlin and thers, who had no great devotion for my oppreffor. I was ifcharged from confinement to make way for him, who vas delivered to the mafter at arms to take his turn in he bilboes. - And this was not the only fatisfaction I moved, for I was at the requeit of the furgeon, excuptid from all other duty, than that of affilting his mates in naking and administering medicines to the fick. - This wood office I owed to the friendthip of Mr. Thomfon, who had reprefented me in fuch a favourable light to the urgeon, that he demanded me of the lieutenant to fupily the place of his third mate, who was lately dead -When I had obtained this favour, my friend Thomfon arried me down to the cock-pit, which is the place alotted for the habitation of the furgeon's mates : And when he had (hewn me their birth, (as he called it) I was filled with altonifhment and norror. - We delcended y divers ladders to a fpace as dark as a dungeon, which underflood was immerfed feveral feet under water. reing immediately above the hold : I had no fooner approached this difinal gulph, than my nofe was faluted with an intolerable flench of putrified cheefe and rancid outter, that iffued from an apartment at the foot of the adder, refembling a chandler's thop, where, by the faint limmering of a candle, I could perceive a man with a pale pale meagre countenance, fitting behind a kind of defk having fpectacles on his nofe, and a pen in his hand .-This (I learned of Mr. Thomfon) was the thip's fleward who fat there to diffribute provision to the feveral meffer and to mark what each received .- He therefore prefented my name to him, and defired I might be entered in his mefs : then taking a light in his hand, conducted me to the place of his refidence, which was a fquare of about fix feet, furrounded with the medicine cheft, that of the first mate, his own, and a board by way of table fastened to the after-powder-room ; it was also inclosed with canvas nailed round to the beams of the fhip, to forcen us from the cold, as well as from the view of the midflipmen and muarter mafters, who lodged within the cable tiers on each fide of us: In this gloomy manfion, he entertained me with fome cold falt pork, which he brought from a fort of locker, fixed above the table ; and calling for the boy of the mefs, fent for a can of heer, of which he made excellent flip to crown the banquet. ---- By this time I began to recover my fpirits, which had been exceedingly depressed with the appearance of every thing about me, and could no longer refrain from afking the particulars of Mr. Thomfon's fortune fince I had feen him in London .- He told me, that being difappointed in his expectations of borrowing money to gratify the rapacious f -t -ry at the navy office, he found himfelf utterly unable to fubfift any longer in town, and had actually offered his fervice in quality of mate, to the furgeon of a merchant's thip bound to guinea on the flaving trade ; when one morning, a young fellow, of whom he had fome acquaint. ance, came to his lodgings, and informed him, that he had feen a warrant made out in his name at the navyoffice, for furgeon's fecond mate of a third rate : This unexpected piece of good news he could fcarcely believe to be true; more especially, as he had been found qualified at furgeon's hall for third mate only ; but that he might not be wanting to himielt he went thither to be affured, and actually found it fo: Whereupon, demanding his warrant, it was delivered to him, and the oaths adminiflered immediately .- That very atternoon, he went to Gravefend in the tilt boat, from whence he took a place in the tide-coach for Rochefter next morning got

165

OB

h board the Thunder, for which he was appointed, then ing in the harbour at Chatham ; and the fame day was uffered by the clerk of the cheque. ---- And well it has for him, that fuch expedition was used : for in lefs an twelve hours after his arrival, another William homfon came on board, affirming that he was the perin for whom the warrant was expedited, and that the her was an impostor .- My friend was grievoully alarmat this accident, the more fo, as his namefake had very uch the advantage over him, both in affurance and drefs. -However, to acquit himfelt of the fufpicion of imposure, he produced feveral letters written from Scotland him in that name, and recollecting that his indentures vere in a box on board, he brought them up, and coninced all prefent, that he had not affumed a name which id not belong to him .- His competitor enraged, that ney thould hefitate in doing him justice. (for to be fure, e warrant had been defigned for him behaved with fo buch indecent heat, that the commanding officer, (who as the fame gentleman I had feen) and the furgeon pere offended at his prefumption, and making a point of with their friends in town, in lefs than a week got the lift confirmed in his flation .- " I have been on board (faid he) ever fince, and as this way of life is become familiar to me, have no caufe to complain of my lituation .- The furgeon is a good-natured indolent man; the first mate I who is now on thore on duty) is indeed a little proud and choleric, as all Welchmen are, but in the main, a friendly honeft fellow .- The lieutenants I have no concern with ; and as for the captain, he is too much of a gentleman to know a furgeon's mate, even by fight."

C H A P. XXV.

he behaviour of Mr. Morgan—bis pride, diffleafure, and generofity—the aconomy of our mafi deferibed— I homfon's further friendfhip — the nature of my duty explained—the fituation of the fick.

WHILE he was thus difcourfing to me, we heard a voice on the cockpit ladder, pronounce with great

preat vehemence, in a firange dialect, " The devil and " his dam blow me from the top of Mounchdenny, if " go to him before there is fomething in my pelly :-" let his nofe be as yellow as faffron, or as plue as a bell " (look you) or as green as a leek, 'tis all one."-To this declaration fomebody answered, " So it feems my poor " mels mate muft part his cable for want of a little affilt " ance - His fore tonfail is loofe already ; and b fide " the deftor ordered you to over haul him :- but I fe " you don't mind what your mafter fays."-Here he wa interrupted with, " Splunter and oons ! you loofy tog " who do you call my mafter ? get you gone to the doc. " tor, and tell him my birth and education, and my " abilities : and moreover, my behaviour is as good at " his, or any gentleman's (no difparagement to him) " in the whole world -God plefs my foul! does he think " or conceive, or imagine, that I am a horfe, or an afs. " or a goat, to trudge backwards and forwards, and up-" wards and downwards, by fea and by land, at his " will and pleafures ?- Go your ways you rap feation. " and tell doctor A kins, that I defire and requeft, that "he will give a look upon the tying man, and order fome-" thing for him if he be dead or alive, and I will fee him " take it by and by, when my craving ftomach is fatis. " fied, look you."-At this the other went away, fayings that if they would ferve him fo when he was dving, by God, he would be foul of them in the other world, -Here Mr. Thomfon let nie know that the perfon we heard was Mr. Morgan the first mate, who was just come on board. from the holpital, whither he had attended fome of the fick in the morning -At the fame time I faw him come: into the birth .- He was a thort thick man with a face garnished with pimples, a fnub note turned up at the end an exceffive wide mouth, and little fiery eyes, furrounded with fkin puckered up in innumerable wrinkles. ---- My friend immediately made him acquainted with my cafe ; when he regarded me with a very lofty look. but withou: ipeaking, let down a bundle he had in his hand, and approached the cupboard, which when he had opened, he exclaimed in a great paffion, " Cot is my life ! all the " pork is gone, as I am a chrittian !" Thomion then gave him to understand, that as I had been brought on board

nard half famifhed, he could do no lefs than entertain he with what was in the locker : and the rather as he ad bid the fleward enter me in the mefs - Whether this ifappointment made Mr Morgan more peevifh than ufual r he really thought himfelf too little regarded by his felnw mate, I know not, but after fome paufe, he went on this manner-" Mr. Thomfon, perhaps you do not ufe me with all the good manners, and complaifance, and reforct. (look you) that becomes you, becaufe you have. not youchfafed to advife with me in this affair .- I have in my time, (look you) been a man of fome weight and fubftance, and confideration, and have kept houfe and home, and paid foot and lot and the king's taxes ; av, and maintained a family to boot .- And moreover, alls. I am your fenior, and your elder, and your petter, Mr. Thomfon."-" My elder, I'll allow you to be, but not my better," (cried Thomfon with fome heat.) Cot is my faviour, and witness too (faid Morgan, with great vehemence) that I am more elder, and therefore more petter by many years than you."-Fearing this pute might be attended with fome bad confequence, I erpofed, and told Mr. Morgan, I was very forry for wing been the occasion of any difference between him id the second mare : and that rather than caufe the leaft each in their good understanding, I would eat my alwance by myfelf, or feek admiffion into fome other comny .- But Thomfon, with more fpirit than difcretion 1 thought) Rififted upon my remaining where he had pointed me ; and observed that no man poffelled of geofity and compafion, would have any objection to it, Matidering my birth and talents, and the mistortunes I d of late to unjufily undergone .---- This was touching Morgan on the right key, who protetted with great meltnels, that he had no objection to my being receiv in the met's ; but only complained, that the ceremony addking his confent was not observed. "As for a fhentle. an in diffrefs, (faid he, fhaking me by the band) I p ble him as I lote my own powels: For Got help me ! have had vexations enough upon my own pack."d as I afterwards learned, in fo faying, he fpoke no whet than what was true; for he had been once fettled what very good fituation in Glamorgauthire, and was Ok. I. ruined ruined by being fecurity for an acquaintance .- All dif ferences being compoled he untied his bundle, which con filled of three bunches of onions, and a great lump of Chefhire cheefe wrapt up in a handkerchiel ; and taking fome bilcuit from the cupboard, fell to with a keen appe tite, inviting us to there of the repatt. - When he had fee heartily on his homely fare, he filled a large cup made of a cocoa-nut fhell, with brandy, and drinking it off, tols us, " Prandy was the pell menftruum for onion and " fheefe."- His hunger being appeafed, he began to be in better humour; and being inquificive about my birth no fooner underflood that I was defcended of a good family, than he difcovered a particular good will to me on that account, deducing his own pedigree in a direct line from the famous Caractacus king of the Britons, who was first the prifoner, and afterwards the friend of Claudiu: Catar -Perceiving how much I was reduced in point of linen, he made me a prefent of two good ruffled thirts which with two more of check which I received from Mr. Thomfon, enabled me to appear with decency .----Mean while the failor, whom Mr. Morgan had fent to the doctor, brought a prefcription for his mefs-mate which when the Welchman had read, he got up to prepare it, and afked if the man was tead of alive * Dead ! (replied lack) if he was dead, he would have "-no occation for doctor's ftuff .- No, thank (Jod, death " han't as yet boarded him, but they have been yard " are and yard arm their three glaffes."-" Are hi "eyes open ?" (continued the mate.) --- " His ftar. "board eye (taid the failor) is open buttalt jamm'd in hi " head ; and the haulyards of his under jaw have given " way."___ " Paffion of my heart ! (cried Morgan) th "man is as bad as one would defire to be !- Did you fee " his pulles !" To this the other replied with " Anan?" -Upon which this Cambro Briton, with great earnest nels and humanity, ordered the tar to run to his mels mate, and keep him alive till he thould come with th sodicine, " and then (faid he) you thall peradventur " pehold what you fhall fee." -- The poor fellow with great fimplicity ran to the place where the fick man lay, but in lets than a minute returned with a woful countenance and told us his comrade had itruck. Morgan hearing this erclaime.

xclaimed, "Mercy upon my falvation 1 why dil you not flop him till I same?" ---- "Stop him (faid the other) I hailed him feveral time; but he was too far on his way, and the ensmy had got polfellion of his lelled quarters; it of tath the dil not mind me." --- "Well, well, (faid he) we all owe heaven a teath. -Go your ways, you ragamuffh, and take an example and a warning, look you, and repart of your mitteets." --h favine, he oughed the farma out of the birth.

While he entertained us with refl- clions fuitable to this vent, we heard the boatfwain pipe to dinner; and im. ediately the boy belonging to our mefs, ran to the lock . from whence he carried off a large wooden platter. d in a few minutes returned with it full of boiled peafe. Iting " Scaldings," all the way as he came .- The cloth, infifting of a piece of an old fail, was instantly laid, coverwith three plates, which by the colour I could with ficulty difeern to be metal, and as many fpoons of the me composition, two of which were curtailed in the andles, and the other abridged in the lip. Mr. Morgan mfelf enriched this mels with a lump of falt butter, boped from an old galipot, and a handful of opions orn, with fome pounded pepper .- I was not very much inpted with the appearance of this dilh, of which, neveriteis, my mefs-mates ext heartily, adviting me to folw their example, as it was banyan day, and we could we no meat till next noon .- But I had already laid in licient for the occasion ; and therefore defired to be cufed : expressing a curiofity to know the meaning of ayan-day .- They told me, that on Mondays, Wednefs, and Fridays the thip's company had no allowance meat, and that these meagre days were called banyan s, the reason of which they did not know; but I have te learned they take their denomination from a fect of rotees in fome parts of the Laft-Indies, who never taffe

After dinner, Thomfon led me round the hip, fuswne the different parts, deferibed their nies, and, as is he could, made me equainted with the particulars ne difcipline and economy practified on board.—He a demanded of the boattwain an hammock for me, on was flung in a very near manner by my friend Jack H a Ratinner.

Rattlin ; and as I had no bed cloaths, procured credit, for me with the purfer, for a mattrefs and two blankets. -At feven c'clock in the evering Morgan vifited the fick, and having ordered what was proper for each, I affilled Thomfon in making up his prefcriptions ; But when I followed him with the medicines into the fick birth or holoital, and obferved the functions of the patients, I was much lefs furprifed that people fhould die on board, than that any fick perion should recover.-----Here I faw about filty milerable dillempered wretches, fuspended in rows, fo hucdled one upon another, that not more than fourteen irches fpace was allotted for each with his bed and bedding; and deprived of the light of the day, as well as of Irefh air ; breathing nothing but a neifome atmosphere of the morbid fleams exhaling from their own excrements and difeafed bodies. devoured with vermin hatched in the filth that furrounded them, and definite of every convenience necoffary for people in that helpleis condition.

C H A P. XXVI.

A difigreeable accident bappens to me in the differing of m office — Different's major is offended — a diangue be tenen him and the Joip's floward — upon examination I find more causes of complaint taus one — my hair is out off — Worgard cookery — the manner of flopping on bara — I am awakened in the night by a dreadym moje.

I could not comprehend how it was pollible for the attendants to come near those who hung on the infide towards the lides of the fhip, in order to all it them as they feemed barricadoed by those who lay on the outfde, and entirely out of the reach of all vification — Much lefs could 1 conceive how my friend Thomfo would be able to administre elyflers, that were ordere for fome in that futuation; when I faw him thruth hi wig in his pocket, and firip hundlef to his waitheat i a moment, then creep on all four, under the hammed of the fick, and forcing up his bare pate between two keep them alunder with one fhoulder, until the had don his duty .- Eager to learn the fervice. I defired he would give me leave to perform the next operation of that kind ; and he confenting, I undreffed myfelf after his example, and crawling along, the hip happened to roll ; this motion alarming me. I laid hold of the first thing, that came within my grafp, with fuch violence, that I overturned it, and foon found by the fmell that iffued upon me. I had not unlocked a box of the most delicious perfume ; it was well with me that my nofe was none of the most delicate, elfe I know not how I might have been affected by this vapour, which diffaled itfelf all over the fhip, to the utter difcomposure of every body who tarried on the fame deck ;-neither was the confequence of this difgrace confined to my fende of fmelling only ; for I felt my misfortune more ways than one. That I might not however appear altogether difconcerted in this my first effay, I got up, and pushed my head with great force between two hammocks, towards the middle, where the greatest refistance was, I made an opening indeed, but not understanding the knack of dexteroully turning my thoulder to maintain my advantage, had the mortifica . tion to find myfelf fluck up as it were in a pillory, and the weight of three or four people bearing on each file of my neck ; fo that I was in danger of strangulation .---While 1 remained in this defencelefs pofture, one of the fick men, rendered peevifh by his diftemper, was fo enraged at the fmell I had occafioned, and the rude shock he had received from me in my elevation, that with many bitter reproaches, he feized me by the nofe. which he tweaked to unmercifully that I roared with anguith. Thomfon perceiving my condition, ordered one of the waiters to my affi tance, who with much difficulty difengaged me from this fituation, and hindered me from taking vengeance on the fick man, whale indifao. fition would not have foreened him from the effects of my indignation.

173

After having made an end of our ministry for that time, we defcended to the cockpit, my friend comfort. zing me for what had happened, with a homely proverb, which I do not chufe to repeat. When we had defeended half way down the ladder, Mr. Morgan, before he haw us, having intelligence by his note of the approach OF

H 2

of fomething extraordinary, cried, " Cot have mercy " upon my fenfes ! I believe the enemy has poarded us "in a flink-pot !" Then directing his difcourfe to the Reward, from whom he imagined the odour proceeded. he reprimanded him feverely for the freedoms he took among gentlemen of birth, and threatened to finoak him like a padger with fulphur, if ever he fhould prefume to offend his neighbours with fuch fmells for the futures The fleward, confcious of his own innocence, replied with fome warmth, " I know of no fmells but those of "your own making." - This repartee introduced a fmart dialogue, in which the Welchman undertook to prove that though the ftench he complained off did not flow from the fleward's own body, he was neverthelefs the author of it, by ferving out damaged provisions to the flip's con pany; and in particular, putrified cheefe, from the use of which only, he affirmed, fuch unfavoury fleams could arife. Then he launched out into the praise or good cheefe, of which he gave the analysis ; be explained the different kinds of that commodity, with the methods practifed to make and preferve it ; and concluded with obferving, that in wielding good cheefe, the county of Glamorgan might vie with Chefhire itfelf, and was much superior to it in the produce of goats and putter .- I gathered from this convertation, that if I entered in ny prefent pickle. I thould be no welcome gueft, and therefore defired Mr. Thomfon to go before, and represent my calamity; at which the first mate ex. prefling fome concern, went upon deck immediately, taking his way through the cable tire, and by the main hatchway. to avoid encountering me ; defiring me to clean myfelf as foon as poffible ; for he intended to regale himfeif with a difh of falmagundy and a pipe .----Accordingly I fet about this difagreeable bufineis, and foon found I had more causes of complaint than I at firit imagined; for I perceived fome guelts had honoured me with their company, whole whit I did not at all think feafonable ; neither did they feem inclined to leave me in a hurry, for they were in poffcilion of my chief quarters, where they fed without releave at the expence of my blood .- But confidering it would be much cafier to extirpate this ferocious colony in the infancy of their fettlemente ettlement, than after they (hould be multiplied and namaralized to the foil. I took the advice of my friend. who, to prevent fuch misfortunes, went always cloie haved, and made the boy of our mels cut off my hair, which had been growing fince I left the fervice of Lavement : and the fecond mate lent me an old bob wig to: upply the lofs of that covering. This affair being ended, and every thing adjuited in the best manner my ircumstances would permit, the defcendant of Caraecacus returned, and ordering the boy to bring a piece of "alt heef from the brine, cut off a flice and mixed it with an equal quantity of onions, which feafoning with a moderate proportion of pepper and falt, he brought it into a confidance with oil and vinegar. - Then tailing the difh, affured us, it was the belt falmagundy that ever he made, and recommended it to our palate with uch heartinefs, that I could not help doing honour to his preparation. , But I had no fooner fwallowed a mouth ful, than I thought my entrails were icorched, and en. deavoured, with a deluge of finall beer, to allay the heat it occafioned. --- Supper being over, Mr. Morgan having imoaked a couple of pipes, and fupplied the moilture he had expended with as many cans of flip, of which we all partook, a certain yawning began to admonith me, that it was high time to repair by fleep the miury I had fuffered from want of reit the preceding night ; which being perceived by my companions, whole time of repole was now arrived, they propoled we inould turn in, or in other words, go to bed. Our hammocks. which hung parallel to one another, on the outfide of he birth, were immediately unlathed, and I beneld my meis-mates fpring with great agility into their repective nefts, where they feemed to lie concealed, very much at their eafer But it was fome time before I could prevail upon myfelf to trut my carcais at fuch a dittance from the ground, in a narrow bag, out of which I imagined, I thould be apt, on the least motion in my fleep, to tumble down at the hazard of breaking my bones. I .uffered myfelf, however, to be perfuaded, and taking a leap to get in, threw mifelt quite over, with fuch iolence, that had I not luckily got hold of Thomion's naminock, I should have pitched upon my head on the HA other other fide, and in all likelihood fractured my fkull. After fome fruitlefs efforts, I fucceeded at laft ; but the apprehention of the jeopardy in which I believed myfelf, withflood all the attacks of feep, till towards the morn ing watch, when, in foite of my fears, 1 was overpowered with flumber ; though I did not long enjoy this comfortable fituation; being aroufed with a noile 10) loud and fhrill, that I thought the drums of my eare were burft by it : this was followed by a dreadful fummons pronounced by a hoarfe voice, which I could not understand. While I was debating with myfelf whether or not I fhould wake my companion, and enquire into the occasion of this diffurbance. I was informed by ones of the quarter-mafters, who paffed by me with a lanthorn in his hand, that the noife which alarmed me, was occafioned by the boatfwain's mates, who called up the larboard watch, and that I mult lay my account with fuch interruption every morning at the fame hour, -Being how more affured of my fafety, I acdreffed myfelf again to reft, and flept till eight o'clock, when rifing, and breakfalling with my comrades, on bifcuit and brandy, the fick were vilited and affilted as before ; after which vifitation my good friend Thomfon explained and performed another piece of duty to which I was a ftranger. -At a certain hour in the morning, the boy of the mels went round all the decks, ringing a finall handbell, and in rhimes compoled for the occasion, invited all those who had fores, to repair before the malt, where one of the doctor's mates attended, with applications to drefs them. 10

172

CHAP.

4.

1. 1.

C H A P. XXVII.

I acquire the friedlying of the furgeon, who presents a marrant for one and makes me a prefent of clobar furgeon leaves the foir the captain comes on hoard wild another furgeon — a designed between the captain and Morgan — the foir are ordered to be brough upon the quarter deck and examined — the confequences of that order — a maluan acufer. Morgen, and is fet at liberty by command of the captain, whom he inflately attacks and pummak without mer-9.

TAT HILE I was bufied with my friend in this practice, the doctor chanced to pais by the place where we were, and ftopping to oblerve me, appeared very well fatisfied with my method of application ; and afterwards fent for me to bis cabin, where having examined me touching my fkill in furgery, and the particulars of my foreune, he interefted himfelf fo far in my behalf, as to promife his affiltance in procuring a warmant for me, feeing I had already been found qualified at Surgeons' Hall, for the flation I filled on board; and in this good office he the more cordially engaged, when he underflood I was nephew to lieutenant Bowling, for whom he expressed a particular regard .- In the mean time, I could learn from his discourse that he did not intend to go to fea again with Captain Oakhum, having, as he thought, been indifferently used by him during the laft voyage.

While I lived tolerably eafy, in expectation of preference, I, was not altogether wishout martifications, which I not only fuffered from the rude infults of the allors and petty officers, among whom I was known by the uame of Labbily Boy, but allo from the difpolition of Morgan, who, the' friendly in the main, was often every troublefome with his pride, which expected a good deal of fubmilion from me, and delighted in recapituating the favoure it had received at this hand.

About fix weeks after my arrival on board, the fur-H 5. geon

geon bidding me follow him into his cabin: prefented a warrant to me, by which I was appointed furgeon's third mate on board the Thunder .- This he had procured by his intereft at the Navy-office ; as alfo another for bimfelf, by virtue of which he was removed into a fecond rate. I acknowledged his kindnefs in the ftrongeft terms my gratitude could fuggelt, and profeffed my for row at the prospect of losing fo valuable a friend, to whom khoped to he ve recommended myfelf fill further, by my refpectful and diligent behaviour .- But his generefity relled not here :- for, before he left the fbip, he made me a prefent of a cheft and fome clothes, that enabled me to support the rank to which he had railed me .---- I found my fpirit revive with my good fortune; and now I was an officer refolved to maintain the diz. nity of my flation, against all opposition or affronts ; nor was it long before I had occasion to exert my refolution ; my old enemy the midshipman (whose name was Crampley) entertaining an implacable animofity againft me, for the difgrace he had fuffered on my account, had fince that time taken all opportunities of reviling and ridiculing me, when I was not entitled to retort this bad ufave. And even after I had been rated on the books, and mullered as furgeon's mate, did not the think fit to rettrain his infolence .- In particular, being one day prefent, while I dreffed a wound in a failor's. leg, he began to fing a fong, which I thought highly in- the invious to the honour of my country, and therefore fignified my refeatment, by observing, that the Scots always laid their account with finding enemies among the ignorant, infignis cant, and malicious .- This unexpected piece of affurance enraged him to fuch a degree, that he lent me a blow on the face, which I verily thought the had demolifhed my cheek-bone ; I was not flow in re-kn turning the obligation, and the affair began to be very the ferious, when by accident Mr. Morgan, and one of the kin matter's mates, coming that way, interpoled, and in-has outring into the caule, endeavoured to promote a recon-ke ciliation ; but finding us both exafperated to the utter kin most, and bent against accommodation, they advised us, the enner to leave our difference undecided till we should be have an opportunity or terminating it on thore, like "igentlemen gentlemen, or elfe choofe a proper place on board, and bring it to an iffue by boxing. This laft expedient was greedily embraced by us both ; and being forthwith conducted to the ground proposed, we fiript in a moment. and began a very furious contelt, in which I foon found myfelf inferior to my antagonift, not fo much in Arenoth and agility, as in fkill, which he had acquired in the School of Hockley in the Hole and Tottenham Court -----Many crofs-buttocks did I fultain, and pegs on the ftomach without number, till at fast my breath being quite gone, as well as my vigour wafted, I grew defperate, and collecting all my firength in one effort, threw in at once, head, hands, and feet, with luch violence, that I drove my antagonift three paces backward, into the main hatchway, down which he fell, and pitching upon his head and right fhoulder, remained without fenfe and motion .---- Morgan looking down, and feeing him lie in that condition, cried, " Upon my confcience, as " I am a chriftian finger (look you) [believe his patcles " are all ofer ; but I take you all to witness that there " was no treachery in the cafe, and that he has fuffer. " ed by the chance of war." -So faying, he defcended to the deck below, to examine into the fituation of my adverfary : and left me very little deafed with my vice tory, as I found myfelr not only terribly bruifed, but likewife in danger of being called to account for the death of Crampley .: But this fear vanished when my fellow mate, having by bleeding him in the jugular brought him to himfelf, and inquired into the flate of his body. called up to me to be under no concern, for the midthipman had received no other damage than as pretty a luxation of the os humeri, as one would defire to fee on a fummer's day .--- Upon this information, 1 crawled down to the cockpit, and acquiinted Thomfon with the affair, who, providing himfelt with bandages, &c. neceffary for the occafion, went up to affin Mr. Morgan in the reduction of the diflocation .- When this was fuccellively "performed, they withed me joy of the event of the combat ; and the Welchman, after observing, that in all lik. hin bod. the ancient Scots and Britons were the fame people, bade me " praife Got for putting mettle in my pelly, and " ftrength in my limbs to iupport it."-I acquired fuch H 6 reputation .

reputation by this cencounter (which lafted twenty mi is nuts?) that every body became more cautious in their hehaviour towards me; though Crampley, with his arm in a ling, talked very high, and threatened to feize the firld opportunity of retriving on flore, the honour hela had loke by an accidence, from which I could juftly claim to merit.

About this time, captain Oakhum, having received he failing orders, came on board; and brought along within him a furgeon of his own country, who foon made us fenfible of the lofs we faffered in the departure of doctor by A:kins : for, he was grossly ignorant, and intolerably it affuming, falle, vindictive, and unforgiving ; a merci-h leis tyrant to his inferiors, an abject fycophant to those above him. In the morning after the captain came only board, our first mate, according to cultoin, went to y wait on him with a fick lift, which when this grim commander had perufed, he cried with a ftern countenance, " Blood and oons! fixty-one people fick on board of de " inv thin !---- Harkee, you fir, "Il have no fick in my " fhip, by G-d." The Welchman replied, he fhould be very glad to find no fick people on board ; but while the it was otherwife, he did no more than his duty in pre- in tenting him with a lift--- " You and your lift may be the "d-n'd, (faid the captain, throwing it at him), I fay, w "there shall be no fick in this ship while I have the " command of her."-Mr. Morgan being nettled at this treatment, told him, his indignation ought to be directed to Got Almighty, who vilited his people with diftempers, and not to him, who contributed all in his power towards their cure. The bashaw not being ufed to fuch behaviour in any of his officers, was enraged to fury at this fatirical infinuation, and ftamping with his toot, called him infolent fcoundrel, threatning to have: him pinioned to the deck, if he thould prefame to utter another fyllable. But the blood of Caractacus being thoroughly heated, difdained to be reitricted by fuch a command, and began to manifest itfelf in, " Captain " Oagum, I am a thentleman of birth and parentage. Here his narangue was broke off by the captain's fleward, who, being Morgan's countryman, hurried nim out of the the cabin before he had time to exaferate his mafter to a greater degree : and this would certainly have been the cafe ; for the indignant Welchman could hardly be hindered, by his friend's arguments and entreaties, from re-entering the prefence chamber, and defying cap. Itain Oakhum to his teeth .- He was, however, appealed at length, and came down to the birth, where finding Thomfon and me at work preparing medicines, he bade his leave off our labour and go to play, for the captain by his fole word and power and command, had driven fickness a-pegging to the tevil, and there was no more malady on board. So faying he drank off a gill of brandy, fighed grievoully three times, powred forth an feiaculation of " Got plefs my heart, liver and lungs !". wand then began to fing a Welch fong with great earnestnefs of vifage, voice, and getture .- I could not conceive the meaning of this fingular phenomenon, and faw by the looks of Thomfon, who at the fane time thook his head, that he fulpected poor Cadwallader's brains were munfettled. He perceiving our a mazement, told us he would explain the maftery ; but at the fame time bale why take notice, that he had lived poy, patchelor, married man, and widower, almost forty years, and in alk that time, there was no man nor mother's fon in the whole world, who darft ufe him fo ill as captain Oakhun had done. Then he acquainted us with the dian. bigue that paffed between them, as I have already real lated it ; and had no fooner finished this parration, that he received a meffage from the furgeon, to bring the lift to the gaarter deck, for the captain had ordered all the patients thither to be reviewed - Tais inhu nia order thocked us extremely, as we knew it would be impoffiple to carry fome of them on the deck, without imminent danger of their lives; but as we like wife knew it would be to no purpole for us to remouthrate again & it, we repaired to the quarter deck in a body, to feethis extraordinary multer ; Morgan obierving by the way that the captain was going to fend to the other world-B great many evidences to tellify again thimfelf. - Wnen we appeared upon the deck, the captain bade the doftor, who stood bowing at his right hand, look at thefe lazy lubberly fons of bitches, who were good for nothing 0.1

18's

on board but to eat the king's provision, and encourage idlenefs in the fkulkers .--- The furgeon grinned approv hation, and taking the lift, began to examine the come claints of each as they could crawl to the place appoints ed .- The first who came under his cognizance was a poor fello winft freed of a fever, which had weakened him fo much that he could hardly fland .- Mr. Mack thane (for that was the doctor's name) having felt his pulfe, protefted he was as well as any man in the world and the captain delivered him over to the boatfwain' mate, with orders that he fhould receive a round dozen at the gang-way immediately, for counterfeiting hime the man dropt down on the deck, and had well night perifhed under the hands of the executioner .- The next patient to be confidered, laboured under a quartan agues and being then in his interval of health, difcovered no other fymptoms of diffemper, than a pale meagre countenance, and emaciated body ; upon which, he was declared fit for duty, and turned over to the boatfwain ; but being refolved to difgrace the doctor, died upon the forecalle next day, during his cold fit .--- The third complained of a pleuritic flitch, and fpitting of blood for which doctor Mackthane prefcribed exercife at the pump to promote expectoration ; but whether this was improper for one in his fituation, or that it was ufed to excefs. I know not, but in lefs than half an hour he was fuffocated with a deluge of blood, that iffued from his lungs .----- A fourth, with much difficulty, climbed to the quarter deck, being loaded with a monftrous afeites or dropfy, that invaded his chell fo much, he could fcarce fetch his breath; but his difeafe being interpreted into fat, occafioned by idlenels and excels of eating, he was ordered, with a view to promote perspiration and enlarge his cheft, to go aloft immediately : It was in vain for this unwieldy wretch to alledge his utter incapacity, the boatfwain's driver was commanded to whip him up with the cat and nine tails : The imart of this application mide him exert himfelf for much, that he actually arrived at the puttoc throuds ; but when the enormous weight of his body had nothing elie to support it than his weakened arms, either out of fpite fpite or neceffity he guitted his hold, and plunged into the fea, where he must have been drowned, had not a failor who was in a boat along fide, faved his life, by keeping him afloat till he was holfted on board by a tackle. It would be tedious and difagreeable to deferibe the fate of every miferable object that fuffered by the inhumanity and ignorance of the captain and furgeon, who to wantonly facrified the lives of their fellow-creatures. Many were brought up in the height of fevers, and rendered delirious by the injuries they received in the way. Some gave up the ghoft in the prefence of their infpectors ; and others, who were ordered to their duty, languifhed a few days at work among their fellows, and then departed without any ceremony. On the whole, the number of the fick was reduced to lefs than a dozen; and the authors of this reduction were applauding themfelves for the fervices they had done to their king and country, when the boatfwain's mate informed his honour, that there was a man below lafhed to his hammock by the direction of the doctor's mate, and that he begged hard to be releafed : affirming, he had been fo mattreated only for a grudge Mr. Morgan bore him, and that he was as much in his fenfes as any man aboard. The captain hearing this, darted a fevere look at the Welchman, and ordered the man to be brought up immediately : Upon which, Morgan protetted with great tervency, that the perton in queftion was as mad as a march hare ; and begged for the love of Gat, they would at leaft keep his arms pinioned during his examination, to prevent him from doing mitchief. This requelt the commander granted for his own fake, and the patient was produced, who inflited upon his being in his right with such calmness and itrength of argument, that every body predent was inclined to believe him, except Morgan, who affirmed there was no truffing to appearances; for he himfelt had been to much imposed upon by his behavicur two days before, that he had actually unbound ann wich his own hands, and had we'l nigh been murdered for his pains: this was confirmed by the evidence of one of the waiters, who declared, he had pulled the patient from the doctor's mate, whom he had gotten down and almost ftrangied. To this the man answered, that the winnels witnefs was a creature of Morgan's, and was fithorned to give his teftimony against him by the malice of the mate whom the defendant had affronted, by difcovering to the neonle on board that Mr. Morgan's wife kept a gin that in Rag Fair. This anecdote produced a laugh at the expence of the Welchman, who fhaking his head with fome emotion, faid, " Av, av, tis no matter .- Got know. " it is an arrant falfehood." Captain Oakhum, without any farther hefitation, ordered the fellow to be unfetter ed : at the fame time threatning to make Morgon er change fituations with him for his fpite ; But the Briton no fooner heard the decifion in favour of the madman than he got up the mizen throuds, crying to Thomfor and me to get out of his reach, for we should fee him play the devil with a vengeance. We did not think fit to difregard his caution, and accordingly got up on the noon, whence we beheld the maniac (as foon as he was releafed) fly at the captain like a fury, crying, " [7] let " you know, you fooundrel that I am commander of " this veffel,"-and pummel him without mercy. The furgeon who went to the affiftance of his patron, fhared the fame fate ; and it was with the utmoltdifficulty that he was maftered at laft, after having done great execution among those who opposed him.

132.

C H A P. XXVIII.

The captain enraged, threatens to put the madman for death with the own hand—is diverted from that reforlation by the arguments and perfusion of the first lieutenant and furgeon—may lef fail for St. Helen, join the fleet under the command of Sir G--n-ees, and proceed for the Will Indien—are overtaken by a terrible tempel—may friend Jack Rattlin has his leg worke by a fall from the main yard the behaviour of defor Machfhane—Jack oppols the ampatation of his limb, in which he is feconded by Morgan and me, who undertake the cure, and perform it fucceforfully.

THE captain was carried into his cabin fo enraged with the treatment he had receeived, that he ordered

I the fellow to be brought before him, that he might we the pleafure of pittoling him with his own hand ; ad would certainly have fatisfied his revenge in this anner, had not the first lieutenant remonstrated againft by obferving that in all appearance, the fellow was bt mad but desperate ; that he had been hired by fome remy of the captain to affaffinate him, and therefore aght to be kept in irons till he could be brought to a purt martial, which, no doubt, would fift the affiir to ie bottom, (by which means, important difcoveries ight be made) and then fentence the criminal to a death dequate to his demerits. This fuggellion, improbable it was, had the defired effect upon the captain, being actly calculated for the meridian of his intellects : more oecially, as doctor Mackshane espoused this opinion, in pufeonence of his previous declaration that the man was ot mad. Mor an finding there was no more damage one, could not help difcovering, by his countenance, ae pleafure he enjoyed on this occasion ; and while he athed the doctor's face with an embrocation, ventured alk him, whether he thought there were more fools madmen on board? But he wo: 'd have been wifer in. ontaining this fally, which his patient carefully laid up his memory, to be taken notice of at a more fit feafon. lean while we weighed anchor, and on our way to the lowns, the madman, who was treated as a prifoner. tok an opportunity, while the centinel attended him to he head, to leap over-board and frustrate the fevenge of he captain. We flaid not long at the downs, but took ae benefit of the fir't eafterly wind to go round to Spittad; where having received on board provisions for fig. nonths, we failed from St. Helens in the grand fleet bund for the Welt-Indies, on the ever-memorable expeition of Carthagena.

It was not without great mortification Lfaw myleifon the point of being transported to fuch a diltant and unsalthy climate, delitute of every convenience that could ender fluct a vogage (apportable; s and under the domiion of an arbitrary tyrant, worde command was al not trolerable: However, as these complaints were comon to agreat many on board. J refolved to fub nit paantly to my fate, and contrive to make myleif as easy -1 as the nature of the cafe would allow. We got out the the channel with a protperous breeze, which died aways leaving us becalmed about fifty leagues to the weftwark of the Lizard ; But this flate of inaction did not laft long th for next night cur main-top-fail was folit by the windi which in the morning increased to a hurricane. I was awakened by a most horrible din, occasioned by the place of the gun carriages upon the deck above, the cracking of cabins, the howing of the wind through the fhroudd the confused noise of the thip's crew, the pipes of the boatfwain and his mates, the trumpets of the lieutenantsu and the clanking of the chain pumps. Morgan, who have never been at fea before, turned out in a great hurry crying, " Got have mercy and compation upon us ! It " believe we have not upon the confines of Lucifer and " the d-ned !"-while poor Thomfon lay quaking it his hammock, putting up petitions to heaven for our fafeth ty. I rofe and joined the Welchman, with whom (after hal) ving fortified ourfelves with brandy) I went above ? but if my fenie of hearing was thartled before, how mult my fight have been appalled in beholding the effects of the form! The fea was fwelled with billows mountain high on the top of which our thip fometimes hung as if it walk about to be precipitated to the abyfs below ! Sometime we tunk between two waves that role on each fide high h er than our topmall-head, and threatened by dathing to gether to overwhelm us in a moment ! Of all our fleet confitting of a hundred and fifty fail, fearce twelve appr peared, and thefe driving under their bare poles, at the mercy of the tempelt. At length the malt of one of them gave way, and tumbled over-board with a hideout crafh ! Nor was the profpect in our own thip much more agrecable : a number of officers and failors ran backwards and forward with diffraction in their looks, hollowings to one another, and undetermined what they thould attend to firlt. Some clung to the yards, endeavouring tok unbend the fails that were fplit into a thousand pieces flapping in the winds; others tried to furl those which were yet whole, while the malts, at every pitch, bent and quivered like twigs, as if they would have thivered into: innumerable fplinters !- Wnile I confidered this fcener with equal terror and allonithment, one of the main bra s broke, by the flock whereof two failors were flung abm the vards arm into the fea, where they perifh d, and for lack Rattlin thrown down upon the deck, at the exince of a broken leg. Morgan and I ran immediately his affistance, and found a splinter of the thin bone wruft by the violence of the fall through the fkin: As this as a cafe of too great confequence to be treated without e authority of the doctor, I went down to his cabin to form him of the accident, as well as to bring up drefngs, which we always kept ready prepared. I entered is apariment without any ceremony, and by the glimfering of a lamp, perceived him on his knees, bet re mething that very much refembled a crucifix ; bu, this will not infin upon, that I may not ferm too much a we to common report, which indeed affilted my conture on this occalion, by reprefenting Dr. Mackthane a member of the church of Rome. Be this as it will, got up in a fort of confusion, occasioned (1 suppose) bis being diffurbed in his devotion, and in a trice, stened the fupiest of my fufpicion from my fig :t. Afir making an apology for my intrufion, I acquainted him with the fituation of Rattlin, but could by no means prefil upon him to vifit him on deck where he lay; he hide me defire the boatfwain to order fome of the men to urry him down to the cockpir, and in the mean time daid he) I will direct l'homfon to get ready the dreffings. then I fignified to the boarfwain the doctor's delire, he grore a terrible oath, that he could not fpare one man om the deck, becaufe he expected the mail would go it the board every minute. This piece of information Id not at all contribute to my peace of mind ; however, my friend Rattlin complained very much, with the littance of Morgan, I supported him to the lower deck, inither Mr. Mackthane, after much entreaty, ventured come, attended by Phomfon with a box full of drefligs, and his own tervant, who carried a whole fet of pital instruments .- He examined the fracture and the nound, and concluding from a livid colour extending felt upon the limb, that a mortification would enfue. folved to amputate the leg immediately. This was a readful fentence to the patient, who recruiting himfelf with a guid of tobacco, pronounced with a worul countenance.

CC :

tenance, "What ! is there no remedy, doctor ?-m' " I be dock'd ! can't you fplice it ?" -" Affuredly, do " tor Mackfhane (faid the first mate) with fubmillio " and deference, and veneration to your fuperior ability " ties, and opportunities, and flations (look you) I "apprehend, and conjecture, and aver, that there is I " occasion nor necessity to fmite off this poor man's leg-"God Almighty blefs you, dear Welchman! (cri-" Rattlin) may you have fair wind and weather when " foever you're bound, and come to an anchor in t " road of heaven at laft." Mackfhane, very much i cenfed at his mate's differing in opinion from him fo penly, answered, that he was not bound to give an a count of his practice to him ; and in a peremptory ton ordered him to apply the tourniquet. At the fight which, Jack flarting up, cried, " Avaft, avaft ! d-" my heart, if you clap your nippers on me, till I kno " wherefore !- Mr. Random, won't you lend a hand t " wards faving my precious limb ? Odd's heart, if lie " tenant Bowling was here, he would not fuffer Ju " Rattlin's leg to be chopped off like a piece of o " junk."- This pathetic address to me, joined to m inclination to ferve my honeft friend, and the reafons had to believe there was no danger in delaying the an putation, induced me to declare myfelf of the first mate epinion, and affirm that the preternatural colour of 1 fkin was owing to an inflammation occalioned by a cor tufion, and common in all fuch cafes, without any in dication of an approaching gangrene. Morgan, who ha a great opinion of my fkill, manifeftly exulted in m fellowfhip, and afked Thomfon's fentiments of the ma ter, in hopes of ftrengthening our affociation with him too; but he, being of a meek difpolition, and eithdreading the ennity of the furgeon, or fpeaking the dictates of his own judgment, in a modeft manner, e poufed the opinion of Mackfhane, who by this time, ha ving confulted with himfelf, determined to act in fuch manner, as to foreen himfelt from cenfure ; and at the fame time revenge himfelf on us, for our arrogance i contradicting him. With this view, he afked if w would undertake to cure the leg at our peril; that is, b answerable for the confequence. To this queition More

g

In replied, that the lives of his creatures are in the hands Got alone ; and it would be great prefumption in him undertake for an event that was in the hands of his wher, no more than the doctor could promife to cure the fick to whom he administered his affiltance ; but the patient would put himfelf under our direction, we fuld do our endeavour to bring his diftemper to a faurable iffue, to which at prefent, we faw no obftruc-I fignified my concurrence ; and Rattlin was fo in. verjoyed, that fhaking us both by the hands, he fwore body elfe fould touch him, and if he died, his blood buld be upon his own head. Mr. Mackfhane, flatterg himielf with the prospect of our miscarriage, went way, and left us to manage it as we should think pror; accordingly having fawed off part of the fplinter Tat Ruck through the fkin, we reduced the fracture, relfed the wound, applied the eighteen tailed bandage, d putwhe leg in a box, fecundum artem. Every thing bceeded according to our with, and we had the fatis-Stion of not only preferving the poor fellow's leg, but lewile of rendering the doctor contemptible among the e fkip's company, who had all their eyes on us during e courie of this cure, which was completed in fix ecks.

C H A P. XXIX.

In the linear's malice I am taken up, and imprificant for a figure III and taken up, and imprificant Themfor is tampered with to turp evidence againff us integring III and the propolal, and is maltreasted for his integring III and the propolal is and the fargen thering an engagement with fome French flips of war. If remain feltered on the poor, explicit to the ensury i four, and grow additions with far III and the ensury i four, and grow additions with far IIII and the the battle by Morgan, who facts freely of the captain is is over brand by the centinel, who inform again fibm, and again imprifined — Thomfon grows ideperates and notwithflanding the remonflennes of Morgan and ms, goes overboard in the night.

N the mean time, the florm fubfided into a brifk gale, that carried us into the warm latitudes, where the weather weather became intolerable, and the crew very fick The dofter left nothing unattempted towards the con pletion of his vengeance against the Welchman and m He went among the fick, under pretence of enquirit into their grievances, with a view of picking up con plaints to our preindice ; but finding himfelf fruffrated that expectation by the good will we had procured fro. the patients by our difigence and humanity, he took th refolution of liftening to our conversation, by hidia himfelf behind the canvafs that furrounded our birth here too he was detected by the boy of our mefs, wh acquainted us with this piece of behaviour, and one nigh while we were picking a large bone of falt beef. Morga difcerned fomething flir on the outfide of our hanging: which immediately interpreting to be the doctor, he tip me the wink, and pointing to the place, where I coul perceive fomebody ftanding ; upon which, I (natched u the bone, and levelled it with all my force at him, fay ing. "Whoever you are, take that for your curiofity." It had the defired effect, for we heard the liftener tumble down, and afterwards crawl to his own cabin; I ap plauded myfelf much for this feat, which turned out one of the molt uplucky exploits of my life, Mackthane from that time marking me out for destruction. About a week after this exploit, as I was going my rounds among the fick. I was taken prifoner, and carried to the poor by the mafter at arms, where I was loaded with irons, and Rapled to the deck, on pretence that I was a fpy on board, and had confinired against the captain's life. How ridiculous foever this imputation was, I did not fail to fuffer by it all the rigour that could be hewn the work of criminals, being expoled in this milerable condition to the fcorching heat of the fun by day, and the unwholelome damps by night, during the fpace of twelve days, in which I was neither brought to trial, nor examined touching the probability of my charge. I had no fooner recovered the ufe of my reflection, which had been outte overthrown by this accident, than I tent for Thom-Ion, who, after condoling me on the occation, hinted, that I owed this information to the hatred of the dodlor who had given an information against me to the captain, in confequence of which I was arrested, and all my pa-DETS s feized. While I was curfing my capricious fate, I " Morgan alcend the poop, guarded by two corporals, o made him fit down by me, that he might be pinionin the fame machine. Not with flanding my fituation. build fearce refrain from laughing at the countenance my fellow-prifoner, who, without fpesking one word, wed his feet, to be inclosed in the rings provided for t purpole ; but when they pretended to faiten him on back, he grew outrageous, and drawing a large cuu from his fide pocket, threatened to rip up the belof the first man that should approach him, in order to at him in fuch an unworthy minner. They were preing to use him very roughly, when the lieutenant on quarter deck, called up to them to let him remain as was. He then crept towards me, and taking me by hand, bade me " put my trut in Got." And lookat Thomson, who fat by us trembling, with a pale age, told him, there were two more rings for his feet the thould be glad, to find him in fuch good comay. But it was not the intention of oar adverfury to lude the fecond mate in our fate : him he excepted be his drudge in attending the fick, and, if poffible, evidence against us ; With this view he founded him er off, but finding his integrity incorruptible, harraffed in fo much out of fpite, that in a thort time this mild lature grew weary of his life.

TO

While I and my fellow prifoner comforted each other our tribulation, the admiral difcovered four fail to leerd, and made fignal for our thip and four more to ice : Hereupon every thing was cleared for an engageint, and Mackshane forefeeing he should have occasion more affiliants than one, obtained Morgan's liberty ; ile I was left in this deplorable pofture to the chance battle. It was almost dark when we came up with the enmolt chace, which we hailed, and inquired who y were : they gave us to understand they were French in of war, upon which captain Oakhum commanded im to fend their boat on board of him : but they reed, telling him, it he had any bulinefs with them, to me on board of their thip : H: then threatened to pour a broad fide upon them, which they promifed to ren. Both files were as good as their word, and the engagement engagement began with creat fury. The reader n guefs how I paffed my time lying in this helplefs fits tion, amich the terrors of a fea fight ; expeding evmement to be cut afunder or daffied in pieces by the e my's flot ! I endeswoured to compose myself as much peffible, by reflecting that I was not a whit more expose than those who were flationed about me; but when Leheld them employed without intermiffion in annoyi the foe, and encouraged by the fociety and behaviour one another, I could eafily perceive a wide difference I tween their condition and mine : However, I conceal my agitation as well as I could, till the head of the ficer of marines, who flood near me, being flot e bounced from the deck athwart my face, leaving n well nigh blinded with brains. I could contain myf no longer, but began to bellow with all the firength my lungs : when a drummer coming towards me, afki il I was wounded, and before I could anfwer, receive a great that in his belly which tore out his entrails, at, he fell flat on my breaft. This accident entirely bereh me of all diferention ; I redoubled my cries, which we drowned in the noife of the battle ; and finding myfe difregarded, lott all patience, and became frantick ; I ven ed my rage in oaths and execrations, till my fpirits bein quite exhaufied. I remained quiet and infentible of th load that oppreffed me. The angagement lasted the broad day, when captain Oakhum, finding he was like th gain neither honour nor advantage by the affair, pretend. ed to be undeceived by feeing their colours ; and hailing the fhip with whom he had fought all night, protelle, he believed them Spaniards, and the guns being filence. on each fide, ordered the barge to be hoifted out, an went on hoard of the French commodore. Our lofs a mounted to ten killed, and eighteen wounded, molt par ol whom afterwards died. My tellow-mates had no fooner difpatched their bufinefs in the cock pit, than full of friendly concern, they came to visit me. Morgan alcending firth, and feeing my face almost covered will brains and blood, concluded 1 was no longer a man for this world ; and cailing to Thomion with great emotion bade him come up, and take his laft farewel of his com sace and countryman, who was polling to a petter place.

here there were no Mackfhanes por Oakhtims to afrfe and torment him. "No. (faid he, taking me by the hand) you are going to a country where there is more reford thown to unfortunate thentlemen, and where you will have the facisfaction of beholding your adverfiries tolling upon pillows of purning brimftone." Thomfon alarmed at this apoftrophe, made hafte to e place where I lay, and fitting down by me, with tears his eyes, enquired into the nature of my calamity .--this time I had recollected myfelf fo far as to be able converse rationally with my friends, whom, to their teat fatisfaction, I immediately undeceived with regard their apprehension of my being mortally wounded .firer I had got myfelf difengaged from the carnage in wich I wallowed, and partaking of a refreshment which friends brought along with them, we entered into courfe upon the hardthips we fuffained, and fooke ve-I treely of the authors of our milery : but our difcourfe ing overheard by the centinel who guarded me, he s no fooner relieved, than he reported to the captain ry fyllable of our conversation, according to the oris he had received : The effect of this information foon beared in the arrival of the mafter at arms, who repla-Morgan in his former flation ; and gave the fecond te a caution to keep a firiet guard over his tongue, if did rat cheole to accompany us in our confinement. Thomion forefeeing that the whole flavery of attending fick and wounded, as well as the cruelty of Mackine, muft now fall upon his fhoulders, grew desperate the profpect, and though I never heard him fwear be. e. imprecated dreadful curles on the heads of his opflors, declaring that he would rather quit life altogefor, than be much longer under the power of fuch barians .- I was not a little fartled at his vivacity, and Releavoured to alleviate his complaints, by reprefenting fubject of my own, with as much aggravation as it suld bear, by which comparison he might fee the bace of misfortune lay on my file, and take an example n me of fortitude and fubmiffion, till fuch time as we id procure redrefs, which (I hoped) was not far off, fidering, that we fhould probably be in a harbour in than three days, where we fhould have an opportu-OL. I. nity nity of preferring our complaints to the admiral. TI Welchman joined in my remonstrances, and was at gree pains to demonstrate, that it was every man's duty : well as inte eft to refign himfelf to the divine will, an look upon himfelf as a centinel upon duty, who is by n means at liberty to leave his poft, till he is relieved Thomfon liftened attentively to what we faid, and at la after fhedding a flood of tears. fhook his head, and le us without making any reply. About eleven at night h came to fee us again, with a fettled gloom on his count tenance, and gave us to understand, that he had under gone exceffive toil fince he faw us, and in recompene had been grofsly abufed by the doctor, who taxed him with being confederate with us, in a delign of taking way his life and that of the captain. After fome time fpent in mutual exhortation, he got up, and fqueezing m by the hand with an uncommon fervour, cried, " Gola " blefs you both ;" and left us to wonder at his fingu lar manner of parting with us, which did not fail t make an impression on us both.

Next morning, when the hour of vifitation came round this unhappy young man was miffing, and after firitearch, fuppoied to have gone over-board in the nightand this was certainly the cafe.

CHAP. XXX.

We loment the fate of our companion — the captain offer Alongan his likers, which be refujer to accept — We are brought before him and examined — Norgan is fen back into caflody, whither alfo I am remanded, after a cus rious trial.

The news of this event affeded my fellow prifoneman me extremely, as our unfortunate companio had jufily acquised, by his amiable dipolition, the lowand eltern of us both ; and the more we regretted his unftimely fate, the greater horror we concerted for the villal who was undoubtedly the occasion of it.—Thisabandone micreant did not difcore the least fymptom of concert for Thomfon's death, although he muth have been confcioute:

cious to himfelf of having driven him by ill ulage to hat fatal refolution ; but defired the captain to fet Moran at liberty again to look after the patients. Accordngly, one of the corporals was fent up to unfetter him; ut he protefted he would not be releafed until he fould now for what he was confined: nor would he be a ennis ball, nor a fhittle-cock, nor a trudge, nor a fculon to any captain under the fun.-Oakhum finding im obflinate, and fearing it would not be in his power exercife his tyranny much longer with impunity, was illing to fhew fome appearance of juffice, and therepre ordered us both to be braught before him on the harter deck, where he fat in flate, with the clerk on he fide, and his counfellor Mackshane on the other .--Then we approached, he honoured us with this falutaon : " So, gentlemen, damn my blood ! many a captain in the navy would have ordered you both to be tuck'd up to the yard's arm, without either judge or jury, for the crimes you have been guilty of; but damn my blood, I have too much good nature, in allowing fuch dogs as you to make your detence."----Captain Oakhum, (faid my fellow-fufferer) certainly it is in your power (Got help the while) to tuck us all up at your will, and defire, and pleatures .----And perhaps it would be petter for fome of us to be tucked up, than undergo the mileries to which we have been exposed. So may the farmer hang his kids for his diversion, and amusement, and mirth ; but there is fuch a thing as justice, if not upon earth, furely in heaven, that will punish with fire and primtone all those who take aw y the lives of innocent people out of wantonnels or parparity (look you) _____ in the mean time, I thall be glad to know the crimes aid to my charge, and fee the perfon who accufes me."--- " That you fhall, (faid the captain) here, toctor, what have you to fay !"-Mackihane itepping ward, hemmed a good while, in order to clear his pat, and before he began, Morgan accould him thus: Doctor Mackthane, look in my face-look in the face If an honelt man, who abhors a falle witness as he bhors the tevil, and Got be judge between you and e."-The doctor not minding this conjuration, made I a

1 1

the

the following freech, as rear as I can remember :---" I'll tell you what, Mr. Morgan, to be fure what yo " fay is juft, in regard to an honeft man, and if fo be " appears as how you are an honeft man, then it is n " opinion, that you deferve to be acquitted, in relation " to that there affair : for I tell you what captain Oal " hum is refolved to do every body juffice. -----" for my own part, all that I have to alledge, is that " have been informed von have fooken difrespectf " words againft your captain, who to be fure is the more " honourable and generous commander in the king " fervice, without afparagement or acceptation of man " woman or child "- Having uttered this elegant he rangue, on which he feemed to plume himfelf, Morga replied, " I do partly guefs, and conceive, and undel " fland your meaning, which I with could be more el " plicit : But however, I do fuppofe, I am not to " condemned upon bare hear fay; or if I am convict " of facaking difrefpedfully of captain Oakhum, I how " there is no treafon in my words."-" But there's mil "tiny, by God, and that's death by the articles " war, (cried Oakhum) ---- In the mean time, let t " witneffes be called."- Hereupon Mackibane's feil vant appeared, and the boy of our mefs, whom they have feduced and tutored for the purpole .- The first declaris that Morgan, as he defcended the cock-pit ladder on day curfed the captain, and called him a lavage beam faving, he ought to be hunted down as an enemy mankind --- " This (faid the clerk) is a frong pro-" fumption of a defign formed against the captain's li " ---- For why ? It pr iuppofes malice afore-thought " and a criminal intention a priori."-" Right, (faid t.) " captain to his miterable grub, who had been an a " torney's boy) you fhall have law enough ; here's Com " and Littlejohn for it. This evidence was confirme by the boy, who affirmed, he heard the first mate fall that the captain had no more bowels than a bear, and the furgeon had no more brains than an afs .-- Then the centinel who heard our discourse on the poop was exact mined, and informed the court that the Welchman and fured me, captain Oakhum and doctor Mackfhane would tois upon billows of burning brimftone in hell eir barbarity .---- The clerk obferved, that there was evident prejudication, which confirmed the former alpicion of a confpiracy against the life of captain akhum ; for, becaufe, how could Morgan fo policively aronounce that the captain and furgeon would be damad, unless he had an intention to make away with them -fore they could have time to repent. -This fage exanation had great weight with our noble commander, the exclaimed, " What have you to fay to this, Taffy ? you feem to be taken all a back, brother, ha !"forgan was too much of a gentleman to difown the atxt, although he abfolutely denied the truth of the coment : Upon which the captain, frutting up to him, with a ferocious countenance, faid, " So, Mr. fon of a bitch, you confess you honoured me with the names of bear and bealt, and pronounced my damnation ! Damn my heart ! I have a good mind to have you brought to a court-martial and hanged, you dog."-Mere Mackfhane, having occasion for an affitant, interobfed, and begged the captain to pardon Mr. Morgan ith his wonted goodneis, upon condition that he the milinquent fhould make fuch jubmillion as the nature of is mildemeanor demanded .- Upon which the Camprawitcon, who on this ogcafion would have made no fubdiffion to the Great Mogul, furrounded with his guards. manked the doctor for his mediation, and acknowledged imfeif in the wrong for calling the image of God a realt, " but (faid he) I fpoke by metaphor and parable. and comparison, and types; as we fignify meekaels by a lamb, letchery by a goat, and craftinels by a fox; fo we liken ignorance to an ais, and brutality to a bear, and fury to a tyger ; therefore 1 made uie of these fimilies to express my fentiments (look you) and what I faid, before Got, I will not unfay before man or bealt neither."-Oakhum was jo provoked at his infolence (as he termed it) that he ordered nim. with with to be carried to the place of his confinement, ad his clerk to proceed on the examination of me ----he first queition put to me, was touching the place of iy nativity, which I declared to be the north of Scotnd. ---- " I'ne north of Ireland more like, (cried the captain) but we thall bring you up preiently."------

196

the

13.

He

He then afked what religion I profeffed : and when I answered, "The protefant," fwore I was as arrant a Roman as ever went to mais. "Come, come, clerk " (continued he) catechife him a little on this fubied." -But before i relate the particulars of the clerk's in ouiries, it will not be amils to inform the reader that our commander himfelf was an Hibernian, and, if no threwdly belied, a Roman Catholic to boot .--- " You " fay you are a proteftant, (faid the clerk) make the " fign of the crofs with your fingers, fo, and fwear " upon it to that affirmation."-When I was about to perform this ceremony, the captain cried with fome smotion, "No, no, damme | I'll have no profanation nei-" ther .- But go on with your interrogations."-" Wel " then, (proceeded my examiner) how many facraments " are there ?"-To which I replied, " Two " -" What " are they ?" (faid he). I answered, " Baptism and " the Lord's supper."-" And fo you would explode " confirmation and marriage together ! (faid Oakhum] " I thought this fellow was a rank Roman." The clerk, though he was bred under an attorney, could not refrain from bluthing at this blunder, which he endeayoured to conceal, by observing that these decoys would not do with n.e. who feemed to be an old offender.----He went on with afking, if I believed in transubstantiation : but I treated the notion of a real prefence with fuch difrespect that his patron was scandalized at my impiety, and commanded him to proceed to the plot .--Whereupon this miferable pettifogger told me, there was great reafon to fufpect me of being a foy on board; and that I had entered into a confpiracy with Thomfon and others not yet detected, against the life of captain Oakhum .- Which acculation they pretended to support by the evidence of our boy, who declared he had often heard the deceased Thomson and me whilpering together, and could diffinguifh theie words, " Oakhum, rai-" cal, poifon, piftol." By which expressions it appear. ed, we did intend to use finister means to accomplish his deftruction. That the death of Thomfon leemed to confirm this conjecture, who either feeling the things of remorfe, for being engaged in fuch a horrid confederacy or fearing a difcovery, by which he must have intallialy fuffered

Fered an ignominious death, had put a fatal period to own existence. --- But what established the truth of whole, was a book of cyphers found among my pars, which exactly tallied with one found in his cheft, er his difappearance : This, he obferved, was a preinption very near proof politive, and would determine v jury in Christendom to find me guilty. -In my own ence. I alledged that I had been dragged on board at it very much against my inclination, as I could prove by e evidence of fome people now in the thip, confeently could have no defign of becoming fpy at that ine ; and ever fince had been entirely out of the reach any correspondence that could justly entail that fufpion upon me .- As for confpiring against my captain's e, it could not be fuppofed that any man in his right its would harbour the leaft thought of fuch an under. king, which he could not pollibly perform without rtain infamy and ruin to himfelf, even if he had all e inclination in the world. That allowing the boy's idence to be true (which I affirmed was falle and maious) nothing conclutive could be gathered from a w incoherent words ; Neither was the fate of Mr. homfon a circumstance more favourable for the change ; r I had in my pocket a letter which too well explainthat mystery, in a very different manner from that hich was supposed : With these words I produced the llowing letter, which Lick Rattlin brought to me the ry day after Thomfon uifappeared : and told me it was mmitted to his care by the deceased, who made him omife not to deliver it fooner. The clerk taking it it of my hand, read aloud the contents, which were ele :

66 Dear Friend.

Am to much oppressed with the fatigue I daily Am fo much oppressed with the fatigue I daily and nightly undergo, and the barbarous ulage of Doctor Mackihane, who is bent on your destruction, as well as mine, that I am reiolved to free myfelf from this miferable life, and before you receive this, thall be no more. I could have withed to die in your good opinion, which I am atraid I thall forfeit by the latt act of my life ; but if you cannot acquit me, I know you 14 66 will

. William Thomfon."

This letter was no fooner read, that Mackshane, in a transport of rage, fnatched it out of the clerk's hands. and tore it into a thousand pieces, faying, it was a villanous forgery, contrived and executed by myfelf ----The captain and clerk declared themfelves of the fame of in on, although I infifted on having the remains of it compared with other writings of Thomfon, which they had in their poffetion : and I was ordered to answer the laft as sicle of their acculation, namely, the book of cyphers found among my papers .- " that is eafily done " (laid 1.) What you are pleafed to call cyphers, are " no other than the Greek characters, in which, for my " amufement, 1 kept a diary of every thing remarkable " that has occurred to my observation fince the begin-" ning of the voyage, till the day on which I was put " in irons; and the fame method was practifed by Mr ... " Thomion, who copied mine "-" A very likely flory ! " (cried Mackfhane) what occasion was there for using " Greek charactors ? if you were not afraid of difcover-"ing what you had wrote? But what d'ye talk of " Greek characters ? D'ye think I am fo ignorant of " the Greek language, as not to diffinguith its letters " from thele, which are no more Greek than Chinele ? "No, no, I will not give up my knowledge of the "Greek for you, nor none that ever came from your " country." So faying, with an unparalleled effrontery, he repeated fome gibberilh, which by the found feemed to be Irifh, and made it pais for Greek with the captain, who looking at me with a contemptuous fneer, exclaime ed. "Ah. ah ! have you caught a tartar !" I could not. help imiling at the confummate affurance of this Hibernian, and offered to refer the difpute to any body on. board who underflood the Greek alphabet ; Upon which Miorgan.

forgan was brought back, and being made acquainted with the affair, took the book and read a whole page in nglifh, without hefitation, deciding the controverly in y fayour. The doctor was to far from being out of buntenance at this detection, that he affirmed Morgan Has in the fecret, and repeated from his own invention, -Oakhum faid, " Ay, ay, I fee they are both in a ftory :" And difmiffed my fellow-mate to his cockft, although I proposed that he and I thould read and ranflate feparately, any chapter or verfe in the Greek Rament in his poffeilion, by which it would appear hether we or the furgeon fpoke truth .---- Not being "adued with eloquence enough to convince the captain at there could be no juggle nor confederacy in this apedient, I begged to be examined by fome unconcern-I perfon on board, who understood Greek : Accordgly the whole thip's company, officers and all,' were alled upon deck, among whom it was proclaimed, that any of them could fpeak Greek, he or they fo qualied thould afcend the quarter deck immediately. fter fome paufe two fore-maft men came up and pro-' Hed their fkill in that language, which (they faid) they fquired during feveral voyages to the Levant, among he Greeks of the Morea. The captain evalued much this declaration, and pat my journal book into the ands of one of them, who candidly owned he could either read nor write ; the other acknowledged the fame egree of ignorance, but pretended to fpeak the Greek ngo with any man on board ; and addreffing hi nicit me, pronounced fome fentences of a barbarous corapted language, which I did not understand. I affert. I that the modern Greek was as different from that noke and written by the ancients, as the English used ow from the old Saxon ipoke in the time of idengiat a nd as I had only learned the true original tongue, in hich Homer, Findar, the Evangelist, and other great ten of antiquity wrote, it could not be juppoied that I wuld know any thing of an inperfect Gotnic dialect at role on the ruins of the former, and fearce retained by traces of the old expreilion, -But if doctor Macksane, who precended to be matter of the Greek lan- large, could maintaid a convertation with thefe teamen. Ls. I would-

I would retract what I had faid, and be content to fuf. fer any punifhment he fhould think proper to inflict. In I had no fooner uttered thefe words, than the furgeon, knowing one of these fellows to be his countryman, ac-b coffed him in Irifh, and was answered in the fame in brogue; then a dialogue enfued between them, which he they affirmed to be in Greek, after having fecured the fecrecy of the other, who had his cue in the languages of the Morea from his companion, before they would he venture to affert fuch an intrepid falihood .-. " I thought " (faid Oakhum) we fhould difcover the imposture at a " last. Let the rafcal be carried back to his confine- m " ment. I find he muft dangle."---- Having nothing w further to urge in my own behalf, before a court fo prejudiced with fpite, and fortified with ignorance againft w truth, I fuffered myfelf to be reconducted peaceably to the my fellow prifoner, who hearing the particulars of my in trial, lifted up his hands and eyes to heaven, and uttered a dreadful groan ; and not daring to diffurden his to thoughts to me by fpeech, left he might be overheard by it the centinel, burft forth into a Welch fong, which he w accompanied with a thousand contortions of face, and violent geflures of body.

C H A P. XXXI.

MEAN while, a quarrel happening between the two modern Greeks, the one to be revenged of the to o.h.r., came and diffeored to us the mythery of Mackthane's dialogue, as I have explained it above. This detection coming to the ears of the doctor, who was fenible.

203

ble, that (now we were in fight of Jamaica) we fhould ave an opportunity of clearing ourfelves before a courtnartial, and, at the fame time, of making his malice and znorance confpicuous, he interceded for us with the capain foweffectually, that in a few hours we were fet at berty, and ordered to return to our duty. - This was a appy event for me, my whole body being bliftered by the fun, and my limbs benumbed by want of motion : But I could fcarce perfuade the Welchman to accept of this indulgence, he perfifting in his obflinacy to remain n irons until he fould be difcharged by a court-martial. which he believed would also do him justice on his nemies : at length I reprefented to him the precarious fue of a trial, the power and intereft of his adverfaries. and flattered his revenge with the hope of wreaking his refentment with his own hands upon Mackhane after our eturn to England : This laft argument had more weight with him than all the reft, and prevailed upon him to repair with me to the cock-pit, which I to fooner entered than the idea of my departed friend prefented itfelf to my remembrance, and filled my eyes with tears .---- We Hischarged from our mels the boy who had afted to peradioully, notwithilanding his tears, intreaties, and profeffions of penitence for what he had done ; but not before he had confelled that the forgeon had bribed him to give evidence against us, with a pair of flockings, and a touple of old check thirts, of which his fervant had fince plundered him.

The keys of our chefts and lockers being fent to us by the doctor, we detained the meffenger until we had examined the contents ; and my fellow-mate finding all his Chethire cheefe confumed to a cruit, his brandy exhausted, and his onions gone, was feized with a fit of choler. which he difcharged on Mackshane's man in oaths and exexcrations threatening to profecute him as a thief .- The fellow fwore in his turn that he never had the keys in. ihis poffeffion till that time when he received them from his mafter, with orders to deliver them to us .- " As Got 14 18 my judge, (cried Morgan) and my falfation, and my " witnels, wholoever has pilfered my provisions, is a louir, " beggarly, rafcally knave ! and by the foul of my grand-" fire ! I will impeach, and accufe, and indict him of a 16 " ropper z

" roppery, if I did but know who he is."----Had thisks misfortune happened at fea, where we could not repairing the lofs, in all probability this defcendant of Caractacus would have loft his wits entirely :- but when I obferved. how eafy it would be to remedy this paultry mifchance. he became more calm, and reconciled himfelf to the oc-hi cafion .- A little while after this transport, the furgeon came into the birth under pretence of taking fomething out of the medicine cheft, and, with a fmiling afpect wifhed us joy of our deliverance, which (he faid) he had been at great pains to obtain of the captain, who was very juftly incenfed at our behaviour ; but he (the doctor) had paffed his word for our future conduct, and he hoped we fhould give him no caufe to repent of his kindnefs. -He expected (no doubt) an acknowledgment from usit for this pretended piece of fervice, as well as a general amnefty of what was pail ; but he had to do with people who were not quite fo apt to forgive injuries as help imagined, or to forget that if our deliverance was owing to his mediation, our calamity was occasioned by his malice ; I therefore fat filent while my companion h anfwered, " Ay, ay, 'tis no matter-Got knows the heart "-there is a time for all things, as the wife man faith, i " there is a time for throwing away ftones, and a time w " to gather them up again."-He feemed to be difconcerted at this reply, and went away in a pet, muttering fomething about " Ingratitude" and " Fellows," of .. which we did not think fit to take any notice.

Our free having joined another that waited for us, lay r at anchor about a month in the harbour at Fort Royal in a jamaica, during which time fomething of confequence is was certainly tranfacted; notwihilanding the infountions of fome who affirmed we had no bulkneis at all in that plate—that in order to take the advantage of the featom proper for one energrize, the Weak Indian fquadrons, which had previous notice of our coming, ought to have joined us, at the well end of Hipanida, with necellary itores and isfredhuncht, from whence we could have taileed directly for Carthagena, blotte the enemy could put themilves in a good pollure of delence, or, indeed, have in inking of our cetagen. Be this as it will, we tailedo trou jamaica, and in ten days or a fortnight, beat up against the wind as far as the ifle of Vache, with an intention, as was faid, to attack the French fleet, then furpofed to be lying near that place : but before we arrived they had failed for Europe, having first dispatched an advice boat to Carthagena, with an account of our being in those feas, as alfo of our ftrength and deftination .--We loitered here fome days longer, taking in wood, and brackish water, in the use whereof, however, our admiral feemed to confult the health of the men, by reftricting each to a quart a day .- At length we fet fail, and arrived. in a bay to the windward of Carthagena, where we came to an anchor, and lay at our eafe ten days longer. ----Here again, certain malicious people take occasion to blame the conduct of their fuperiors, by faring, that in . fo doing, they not only unprofitably wafted time, which . was very precious, confidering the approach of the rainy feafon, but alfo allowed the Spaniards to recollect theme. felves from the terror occasioned by the approach of an . English fleet, at least three times as numerous as ever ap-... peared in that part of the world before. But if I might be allowed to give my opinion of the matter. I would : afcribe this delay to the generofity of our chiefs, who forned to take any advantage that fortune might give them, even over an enemy. At laft, however, we weight ed and anchored again fomewhat nearer the harbour's mouth, where we made thift to land our marines, who encamped on the beach, in definite of the enemy's fhot. which knocked a good many of them on the head .--- I'his piece of conduct in choosing a camp under the walls of an ... enemy's fortification, which I believe never happened before, was practifed I prelume, with a view of accuitom. ing the foldiers to fland fire, who were not as yet much uled to difcipline, most of them having been takenfrom the plough-tail a few months before. ___ This expedient again has furnished matters for centure against the miniftry, for fending a few raw recruits on fuch an important enterprife, while to many veteran regiments lay inactive at home : But furely our governors had their realons for to doing, which poffibly may be difcloted with other fecrets of the deep. Perhaps they were touth to rilk their bell troops on fuch desperate lervice ; or, the colonels and field officers of the old corps, who, generally, ipeaking, fpeaking, enjoyed their commilions as fine cures pr penfions, for fome domeflick fervices rendered to the court, refufed to embork on fach a dangerous and preearious undertaking; for which refufal, no doube, they are to be much commended.

20%

C H A P. XXXII.

O U R forces being landed and flationed as I have ulready mentioned, fet about erecting a fafcine battery to cannonade the principal fort of the enemy, and in fomething more than firce weeks, it was ready to to open. That we might do the Spaniards as much honour as polible, it was determined, in a council of war, that five of our largeft hips hould attack the fort on one fide, while the battery, frengthened by two mortars and twenty four cohoran, finculd ply it on the other.

Accordingly, the fignal for our thip to engage, among others, was hoilted, we being advertifed the night before to make every thing clear for that purpofe : and in fo doing a difference happened between Captain Oakhum and his well-beloved coufin and counfellor Mackfhane, which had well nigh terminated in an open rupture .- The doctor. who imagined there was no more danger of being hurt by the enemy's flot in the cockpit than in the center of. the earth, was lately informed that a furgeon's mate had been killed in that part of a fhip, by a cannon ball from two fmall redoubts that were deftroyed before the difembarkation of our foldiers ; and therefore infitted upon having a platform railed for the convenience of the fick and wounded in the after hold, where he deemed himfelf more fecure than on the deck above. The captain offended at this extraordinary propofal, accused him of pufillanimity. and told him, there was no room in the hold for fuch an occafion :

wherefion: or, if there was, he could not expect to be imthulged more than the relf of the furgeons of the uavywho used the cockpit for that purpole. Pear rendering Machthane oblinate, he perfided inhisedmand, and the sed his inftructions, by which it was authorized : the caprain fwore thefe inftructions were dickated by a parcel of lazy polycoons who were never at fear; in everthelefs he was obliged to comply, and fent for the carpenter to give whim orders about it : But before any theh measure could me taken, our fignal was thrown out, and the doctor compelled to truth his carcelate in the cockpit, where M organ wand I were, bufy in putting our inftruments and dreffings win orders.

Our thip, with others deftined for this fervice, immediately weighed, and in lefs than half an hour came to an anchor before the caftle of Boca Chica, with a fpring upon our cable ---- and the cannonading (which indeed was terrible) began. The furgeon, after having croffed. himfelf, fell flat on the deck ; and the chaplain and purfer, who were flationed with us, in quality of affiliants, fok-Howed this example, while the Welchman and I fat upon the cheft looking at one another with great difcomposure, foarce able to refrain from the like protration ... And that the reader may know, it was not a common occasion that alarmed us thus. I mult inform him of the particulars of this dreadful din that altonished us. The fire of the Spainiards proceeded fromeighty-four great guns, befide a mortar and fmall arms, in Boca Chica, thirty fix it Fort St Joleph, twenty in two fafcine batteries, and four men of war, mounting fixty four guns each .- This was answered by our land battery, mounted with twenty-one cannon, two mortars, and twenty four cohorns, and five great thips of eighty or feventy guns, that fired without intermiffion. -We had not been many minutes engaged, when one of the failors brought another on his back to the cockpit. where he toffed him down like a bag of oats, and pulling out his pouch, put a large chew of tobacco in his mouth. withou: fpeaking a word; Moigan immediately examined the condition of the wounded man; and cried out, "AsI thall " " aniwer now, the manisas tead as my great grandfather." -" Dead, (faid his comrade) he may be dead now, for " sought I know, but I'll be damned it he was not alive se when

" when I took him up "-- So faving, he was about to return to his quarters, when I hade him carry the body along with him, and throw it over board .- " D-n the " body ! (faid he) I think 'tis fair enough if I take care of " my own."-My fellow mate (natching up the amoutation knife, purfued him half way up the ladder, crying, "You loufy rafcal is this the church vard, or the charnel. " houfe, or the fepulchre, or the Golgotha of the (hip?"___ but was flopt in his career by one calling, "You ho, avalt " there-fcaldings."- (Scaldings ! (anfwered Morgan) "Got knows 'tis hot enough indeed :- who are you ?" "-Here's one," (replied the voice). And I immediately knew it to be that of my honeft friend lack Rattlin, who coming towards me, told me, with great deliberation, he was come to be docked at laft, and discovered the remains of one hand which had been fhattered to pieces with a grape fhot .- I lamented with unfeigned forrow his misfortune, which he bore with heroic courage, obferving, that every that had its committion : It was well it did not take him in the head ; or if it had, what then ? he (hould have died bravely, fighting for his king and country. Death was a debt which every man owed, and muft pay : and that now was as well as another time .- I was much pleafed and edified with the maxims of this fea-philosopher who endured the amputation of his left hand without fhrinking; the operation being performed (at his request) by me,after Mackfhane, who was with difficulty prevailed to lift his head from the deck, had declared there was a neceflity for his lofing the limb .- While 1 was employed in drefling the flump, I afked Lack's opinion of the battle, who fhaking his head, frankiy told me, he believed we fhould do no good : " For why, because instead of grop-" ping anchor clofe under fhore, where we fhould have " had to deal with one corner of Boca Chica only, we had. " opened the harbour, and exposed ourfelves to the whole " fire of the enemy from their thipping and Fort St Jatepin 44 as well as from the caffle we intended to canonade, that " befides, we lay at too great a diffance to damage the walls " and three parts in four of our thou did not take place ; 44 for there was fearce any body on board who understood 44 the pointing of a gun .- Ah I God help us ! (continued (he) is your kinfman lieutenant Bowling had been here, we should have had other quels work" - By this time air patients had increased to fuch a pu pher, that we did not now which to begin with: and the first mate plainly told be furgeon, that if he did not get up inmediately, and erform his duty, he would complain of his behaviour to he admiral, and make application for his warrant. This emonfirance effectually roufed Mackihane, who was never eaf to an argument in which he thought his interest was inncerned ; he therefore rofe up, and in order to ftrengthh his refolution, had recourfe more then once to a cafeottle of rum, which he freely communicated to the chapin and purier, who had as much need of that extraorinary infoiration as himfelf : Being thus fupported, he rent to work, and arms and less were hewed down withat mercy .---- the fumes of the liquor mounting into ne parfon's brain, conforred with his former agitation of birits, to make him quite delirious : he ftript himfelf to he fkin, and befmearing his body with blood, could fearce e withheld from running upon the deck in that condition. ack Rattlin, fcandalizes at this deportment, endeavoured allay his transports with reason ; but finding all he faid seffectual, and great contumon occasioned by his trolick, e knocked him down with his right hand, and by threats. ept him quiet in that state of humiliation .- But it was ot in the power of rum to elevate the purfer, who fat on ae floor wringing his hauds, and curfug the nour in which e lett nis peaceable profettion of a brewer in Rochefter, o engage in fuch a life of terror and difquiet .-. While we iverted ourfelves at the expence of this poor devil, a thot appened to take us between wind and water, and (its purie being through the purier's flore-room) made a terri. le havock and noif: among the jars and bottles in its way. nd difconcerted Mackihane to much, that he droot his talpel, and falling down upon his knees, pronounced his Pater nofter aloud ; the purfer fell backward and lay with. at lepie or motion; and the chaplain grew fo outrageous, hat Kattlin with one hand could not keep him under : is that we were obliged to contine him in the furgeoa's abin, where he was no doubt guilty of a thousand exravagances .- Much about this time, my old antagonilt Grampley came down, with exprets orders (as he laid) to ring me up to the quarter deck, to drefs a light wound the

ZIO THE ADVENTURES OF

the captain had received by a folinter. His reafon for honouring me in particular with this piece of fervice. being, that in cafe I (hould be killed or difabled by the way, death or my mutilation would be of lefs confequence to the fhin's company than that of the doctor or h his first mate .- At another time, perhaps, I might have disputed this order, to which I was not bound to pay the leaft regard : but as I thought my reputation depended. upon my compliance, I was refolved to convince my rival that I was no more afraid than he of exposing myfelf to danger .- With this | provided myfelf with dreffings, and followed him immediately to the guarter deck, through a moft infernal scene of flaughter, fire, smoke, and uproar ! Captain Oakhum, who leaned againft the mizen. maft, no fooner faw me approach in my fhirt, with the fleeves tucked up to my arm pits, and my hands dyed with blood, than he fignified his difpleafure by a frown, and afked why the doctor himfelf did not come ? I told him Crampley had fingled me out, as if by express command: at which reply he feemed jurprifed, and threatned he to punifh the midfhipman for his prefumption, after the engagement : In the mean time I was fent back to my flation, and ordered to tell Mackfhane, that the captain expected him immediately .- I got fafe back and delivered my commiffion to the doctor, who flatly refuled to quit the post affigned to him by his instructions ; whereupon Morgan, who (I believe) was jealous of my reputation for courage, undertook the affair, and alcended with great intrepidity .- The captain finding the furgeon obftinate, fuffered himfelf to be dreffed, and fwore he would confine Mackthane as foon as the fervice fhould be over.

CHAR

C H A P. XXXIIL

breach being made in the walls, our folders give the affault, and take the place without spokition—our failors at the fame time become mafters of all the other frentible the good configuence of this jucceff the harbour near Bocc Chica and take pifefin of the harbour near the ioun—find two fores defiried, and the chanour more nearer the ioun—find two fores defiried, and the channel blocked up walth fam voldin; which however we find near to clear—lant our folders at La guina repuile a boy of Miltim—attack the calle of St. Lazars, and are forced to retreat with great loir—the remains of our army are re imbacked—an effort of the atmiral to take the twum—the aconomy of our expedition deforted.

A V I N G cannonaded the fort, during the fpace of four hours, we were all ordered to flip our cales, and theer off : but next day the engagement was newed, and continued from the morning till the afterbon, when the enemy's fire from Boca Chica flickened, nd towards evening was quite filenced. - A breach ring made on the other fide, by our land battery, large nough to admit a middle fized baboon, provided he could nd means to climb up to it : our general proposed to ive the affault that very night, and actually ordered a etachment on that duty : Providence flood our friend pon this occasion, and put it into the hearts of the Spafiards to abandon the fort, which might have been mainained by refolute men to the day of judgment againft Il the force we could exert in the attack .- And while ur foldiers took poffeffion of the enemy's ramparts, with. ut reflitance, the fame good luck attended a body of faiprs. who made themielves matters of fort St. Jofeph, he fascine batteries, and one Spanish man of war; the ther three being burnt or funk by the foe, that they hight not fall into our hand .---- The taking of thele orts, in the trength of which the Spaniards chiefly con-Ided, made us matters of the outward harbour, and oclafioned great joy among us: as we laid our account with finding little or no opposition from the town : And indeed.

indeed, if a few great thips had failed up immediatel before they had recovered from the confusion and defuait that our unexpected fuccels had produced among them it is not impossible that we might have finished the affair to our fatisfaction, without any more bloodfhed : but this flep our heroes difdained, as a barbarous infult over the enemy's diffreis; and gave them all the refpite they could defire, in order to recollect themfelves .- In the meantime Mackfhane taking the advantage of thisgeneral explication, waited on our captain, and pleaded his own caufe fo effectually, that he was re-eftablished in his good graces ; and as for Grampley, there was no more notice taken of his behaviour towards me during the action .---But of all the confequences of the victory, none was more grateful than plenty of fresh water, after we had languished five weeks on the allowance of a purfer's quart perdiem for each man, in the Torrid Zone, where the fun was vertical, and the expence of bodily fluid fo oreath that a gallon of liquor could fearce fupply the wafte of twenty four hours ; especially as our provision confisted of putrid falt beef, to which the failors gave the name of Irifh horfe : falt pork of New England, which, though seither fifh nor flefh, favoured of both ; bread from the fame country, every bifcuit whereof, like a piece of clockwork, moved by its own internal impulse, occasioned by the myriads of infects that dwelt within it ; and butter ferved out by the gill, that tafted like train oil thickened with falt. Inflead of fmall beer, each man was allowed. three half quarterns of brandy or rum, which were dif. tributed every morning, dilated with a certain quantity of his water, without either fugar or fruit to render it palatable, for which reafon, this composition was by the failors not unaptiv fuled Auceffity. Nor was this limitation. of fimple element owing to a scarcity of it on board, fock there was at this time water enough in the fhip for a h voyage of fix months, at the rate of half a gallon per day to each man : But, this taft must (I fuppole) have been enjoined by way of penance on the fhip's company for their fins ; or rather with a view to mortify them into a contempt of life, that they might thereby become more refolute and regardlefs of danger. How fimple then dothose people argue, who afcribe the great mortality among h LISA as, to our bad provision and want of water; and aftirm, that a great many valuable lives might have been fixed if the utilelis raniports had been employed in fetching if effi flock, turtle, fruit, and other refrediments from manics, and other adjacent illands, for the use of the row and fleet listing, it is to be hoped, that thole wio is dwent to a better place, and thole who furview were the more eafily maintained. After all, a fufficient nummer remained to fall before the wills of St. Lazar, where they behaved like their own country mailiffs, which h it there gres, run into the jaws of a bear, and have their seeds crulked for their valour.

But to return to my narration: After having put gar. ifons into the forts we had taken, and re-imbarked our oldiers and artillery, a piece of fervice that detained us more than a week; we ventured up to the month of the anner harbour, guarded by a large fortification on one de, and a fmall redoubt on the other, both of which were deferted before our approach, and the entrance of the narbour block'd up by feveral old galleons and two men of war that the enemy had funk in the caannel .- We made lbift, however, to open a paffage for fome thips, that favoured a fecond landing of our troops at a place stalled La Quinta, not far from the town, where, after a aint refiftance from a body of Spaniards, who oppoled their difembarkation, they encamped with a delign of be-Beging the caffle of St. Lazar, which overlooked and tommanded the city : Whether our renowned general had no body in his army who knew how to approach it. in form, or that he trulled entirely to the fame of his farms, I thall not determine : but, certain it is, a refoluion was taken in a council of war, to attack the place with mulquetry only : This was put in execution, and lucceeded accordingly ; the enemy giving them fuch a hearty reception, that the greatest part of the detacament look up their everlatting refidence on the fpot ---- Our thief not relifning this fort of complaitance in the Spahiards, was wile enough to retreat on board with the cemains of his army, which, from eight thousand able men landed on the beach near Boca Chica, was now reduced to fifteer, hundred fit for fervice .- The fick and wounded were fqueezed into certain veffels, which thence obtained obtained the name of hofpital fhips, though methinks the fcarce deferved fuch a creditable title, feeing few of the could boaft of their furgeon, nurfe, or cook ; and th space between decks was fo confined, that the miferabl patients had not room to fit upright in their beds. Thei wounds and flumps being negleded, contracted filth an purrefaction, and millions of maggots were hatched midft the corruption of their fores. This inhuman difre ward was imputed to the fearcity of furgeons ; thoug it is well known that every great thin in the fleet could have fpared one at leaft for this duty ; an expedient which would have been more than fufficient to remove this thocking inconvenience : But perhaps the general wa too much of a gentleman to alk a favour of this kind from his fellow chief, who, on the other hand, would not derogate fo much from his own dignity, as to offer fuch affiftance, unafked; for, I may venture to affirm that by this time the Dzmon of Difcord, with her footy wings, had breathed her influence upon our counfels and it might be faid of these great men, (I hope they will pardon the comparison) as of Casar and Pompey, the one could not brook a fuperior, and the other was impatient of an equal : So that between the pride of one, and infolence of another, the enterprife mifcarried, according to the proverb, " Between two ftools the back-"fide talls to the ground."-Not that I would be thought to liken any publick concern to that opprobrious part of the human body, though I might with truth affert, if I durft ute fuch a vulgar idiom, that the nation did hang an a-le at its difappointment on this occasion ; neither would I prefume to compare the capacity of our heroic leaders to any fuch wooden convenience as a joint ftool or a clofe ftool; but, only to fignify by this fimile, the miltake the people committed in trutting to the union of two infiruments that were never joined.

A day or two after the attempt on St. Lazar, the admiral ordered one of the Spanih men of war we had taken, to be mounted with firteen guns, and manned with detachments from our great thips, in order to batter the town; accordingly fine was towed into the inner harbour in the night, and moored within half a mile of the walls, againfil which like began to fire at day-break; and continued

nued about fix hours exposed to the opposition of at leaft wirty pieces of cannon, which at length obliged our men fet her on fire, and get off as well as they could, in eir boats .- This piece of conduct afforded matter of eculation to all the wits either in the army or navy, ho were at laft fain to acknowledge it a ftroke of policy pove their comprehension .- Some entertained fuch an reverent opinion of the admiral's understanding, as to hink he expected the town would furrender to his float. g battery of fixteen guns: Others imagined his fole tention was to try the enemy's firength, by which he ould be able to compute the number of great thios that ould be neceffary to force the town to a capitulation : ut, this last conjecture foon appeared groundlefs, in as such as no fhips of any kind whatever were afterwards uployed on that fervice. - A third fort fwore, that no ther caufe could be affigned for this undertaking, than at which induced Don Quixote to attack the windmill. fourth clafs (and that the most numerous, though, ithout doubt, composed of the fanguine and malicious) ainly taxed this commander with want of honeity as ell as fenfe; and alledged that he ought to have facrificed rivate pique to the interest of his country : that where e lives of fo many brave fellow-citizens were concern-I, he ought to have concurred with the general, without sing folicited, or even defired, towards their prefervation ad advantage ; that if his arguments could not diffuade m from a desperate enterprise, it was his duty to have ndered it as practicable as poffible, without running treme hazard; that this could have been done, with a ood profpect of fuccefs, by ordering five or fix large ips to batter the town while the land forces itormed e caffle : by these means a confiderable diversion would we been made in favour of those troops, who in their arch to the affault, and in the retreat, fuffered much ore from the town that from the calle ; that the inabitauts feeing themielves vigoroufly attacked on all unds, would have been divided, diffracted, and confused. ad, in all probability, uuable to refit the affailantsut all these suggestions furely proceeded from ignorance id malevolence, or elfe the admiral would not have und it tuch an eafy matter, at his return to England, to justify his conduct to a ministry at once fo upright and difeerning .- True it is, that those who undertook t vindicate him on the fpot, afferted, there was not water encugh for our great thips near the town : though thi was a little unfertunately urged, becaufe there happene to be pilots in the fleet periecly well acquainted wit. the foundings of the harbour, who affirmed there was water enough for five eighty gun fhips to lie abreally almost up at the very walls. - The difappointments w fuffered, occasioned an universal dej clion, which was not at all alleviated by the objects that daily and hourly entertained our eyes, nor by the prospect of what mul have inevitably happened, had we remained much longer. in this place. Such was the economy in fome thips that rather than be at the trouble of interring the dead their commanders ordered their men te throw theirbodie overboard, many without either ballaft or winding theetfo that numbers of human bodies floated in the har beur, until they were devoured by thatks and carrior crows ; which afforded no agreeable (pectacle to those who furvived .- At the fame time the wet feafon began during which, a deluge of rain falls from the riting to the fetting of the fun, without intermiffion ; and that no fooner ceafes than it begins to thunder and lighten with such continual flashing, that one can fee to read very fmall print by the illumination.

215

$0

C H A P. XXIX.

H E change of the atmosphere, occasioned by this phanomenon, conspired with the stench that surrounded unded us, the heat of the climate, our own conflutons impoverified by had provifions, and our defpair, introduce the bilious fever among us, which raged ith fuch violence that three fourths of thofe whom it yaded, died in a deplorable manner; the colour of teir fin being, by the extreme putrefadion of the juices, uanged into that of foct.

Our conductors finding things in this fituation, perfived it was high time to relinquish our conquests ; and is we did, after having rendered their artillery ufelefs, d blown up their walls with gun-powder .- Jult as we iled from Boca Chica on our return to Jamaica, I found wfelf threatned with the fymptoms of this horrid diftemr; and knowing very well that I flood no chance for v life, if I should be obliged to lie in the cock- pit, which, this time was grown intolerable even to people in falth, by reafon of the heat and unwholefome fmell of caved provision; wrote a petition to the captain, repreating my cafe, and humbly imploring his permiftion to among the foldiers in the middle deck, for the benefit the air : But I might have fpared myfelf the trouble : this humane commander refused my requelt, and orderme to continue in the place allotted for the furgeon's ites, or be contented to lie in the holpital, which, by e bye, was three degrees more offenfive, and more fuffo-Eing than our birth below .- Another in my condition. rhaps, would have fubmitted to his fate, and died in a t; but I could not brook the thought of perilhing fo ifully, after I had weathered fo many gales of hard forhae : I therefore, without minding Oakhum's injunction. evailed upon the foldiers, (whofe good will I had acwired) to admit my hammock among them; and actually hgratulated myfelfupon my comfortablefituation; which mampley no fooner underflood, than he fignified to the -lotain my contempt of his orders; and was invelted with power to turn me down again into my proper habimion .- This barbarous piece of revenge incenfed me for Atch against the author, that I vowed, with bitter impreions, to call him to a fevere account, if ever it should be my power ; and the agitation of my fpirits increased fever to a violent degree .- While I lay galping for math in this informal abode, I was vilited by a ferieant. allor I. the

the bones of whole nole I had reduced and fet to right after they had been demolifhed by a fplinter during on engagement : He being informed of our condition, offer ed me the ule of his birth in the middle deck, which wal inclosed with canvas, and well aired by a port hole that remained open within it .- I embraced this propofal with ioy, and was immediately conducted to the place, when I was treated, while my illness lafted, with the utmost tendernefs and care by this grateful halberdier, who have no other hed for himfelf than a hencoop, during the wholl paffage ... Here I lay and enjoyed the breeze, notwithftan ing which, my malady gained ground, and at length m life was defpaired of, though I never foft hopes of recovering even when I had the mortification to fee, from my cabilit window, fix or feven thrown overboard every day, while died of the fame diftemper. This confidence, I am perfuad ed. conduced a great deal to the prefervation of mylife.efpel cially, when joined to another refolution I took at the bell ginning, namely, to refute all medicine, which I could not help thinking co-operated with the deleafe, and inftead of relifting putrefaction, promoted a total degeneracy of the vit tal fluid ... When my friend Morgan, therefore, brought hilk diaphoretic bolufes, I put them in my mouth, 'tis true" but without any intention of fwallowing them ; and when he went away, fpit them out, and walhed my mouth wit water gruel ; I feemingly complied in this manner, that I might not affront the blood of Caractacus, by a refufation which might have intimated a diffidence of his phyfica capacity; for he acted as my phyfician ; doctor Mackfhan never once enquiring about me, or even kno ving where was----When my dittemper was at the height, Morga thought my cafe desperate, and after having applied blifter to the nape of my neck, fqueezed my hand, bid ding me with a woful countenance, reccommend myfething to Got and my Reteemer ; then taking his leave, defire the chaplain to come and administer fome spiritual confo lation to me ; but before he arrived, I made thift to rike myfelf to the troublefome application the Welchman hat beftowed on my back. The parfon having felt my pulle enquired into the nature of my complaints, hemmed little, and began thus; " Mr. Random, God out of him " infinite mercy hath been pleafed to vifit you with 44 dreadf dreadful difte nper, the iffue of which no man knows-You may be permitted to recover and live many days on the face of the earth ; and, which is more probable. you may be taken away and cut off in the flower of your youth : It is incumbent on you, therefore, to prepare for the great change, by repenting fincerely of your fins; of this there caunot be a greater fign, than an ingenuous confession, which I conjure you to make, without helitation, or mental refervation ; and when I am convinced of your figerity. I will then give you fuch comfort as the fituation of your foul will admit of. Without doubt, you have been guilty of numberlefs tranfgreffions to which youth is funiect, as fwearing, drunkennefs, whoredom, and adultery ; tell me therefore without referve, the particulars of each, efpecially the laft, that I may be acquainted with the true flate of your confcience : for no phyfician will prefcribe for his patient until he knows the circumftances of his difeafe." As I was not under any apprehenfions of dearn. could not help fmiling at the doctor's inquilitive remonrance, which I told him favoured more of the Roman an of the Protestant church, in recommending auricular onfeffion ; a thing, in my opinion, not at all neceffary falvation, and which, for that reafon, I declined .---his reply difconcerted him a little; however, he explain-I away his meaning, in making learned dittinctions bereen what was abfolutely necessary, and what was only uvenient ; then proceeded to alk what religion I profed : I answered that I had not as yet considered the fference of religions, confequently I had not fixed on ay one in particular, but that I was bred a Prefbyterian. At this word the chaplain expressed great aftonishment d faid, he could not comprehend how a Prefbyterian was sticled to any polt under the English government .- Then alked if I had ever received the Sacrament, or taken. e oaths ; to which queftions Lreplying in the negative, e held up his hands, affured me he could do me no ferince, withed I might not be in a state of reprobation ; and turned to his mels mates, who were making merry in we ward-room, round a table well itored with bumbo + ad wine. ___ This infinuation, terrible as it was, nad K a not not fuch an effect upon me, as the fever, which, foon afte the he had left me, grew outrageous ; I began to fee ftrang chimeras, amd concluded myfelf on the point of becomingal delirious : In the mean time being in great danger of ful focation. I ftarted up in a kind of frantic fit, with an in tention to plunge myfelf into the fea, and as my friencun the ferjeant was not prefent, would certainly have coolection myfelt to fome purpofe, had I not perceived a moifiur upon my thigh, as I endeavoured to get out of my ham his mock : the appearance of this revived my hopes, and I had reflection and refolution enough to take the advantage of this favourable fymptom, by tearing the thirt from my body, and the fheets from my bed, and wrapping myfel in a thick blanket, in which inclosure, for about a quarterine of an hour, I felt the pains of hell; but it was not long the before I was recompenied for my fuffering by a proful h fweat, that burfling from the whole furface of my fkin, in leis than two hours, relieved me from all my complaints except that of weaknefs ; and left me as hungry as a kite hi ---- I enjoyed a very comfortable nap, after which I was regaling myfelf with the agreeable reverie of my futur happinels, when I heard Morgan, on the outfide of the curtain, afk the ferjeant, if I was alive ftill ? " Alive " (cried the other) God forbid he fhould be otherwife " he has lain quiet thele five hours, and I do not chool to " to difturb him, for fleep will do him great fervice." -" Aye, faid my fellow mate, he fleeps to found, (lool k " you jthat he will never waken till the great trump plows "- Got be merciful to his poor foul .- He has paid his " debt like an honell man .- Ay, and moreover, he is a " reft from all perfecutions, and troubles, and afflictions " of which, Got knows, and I know, he had his own " thare,-Ochree ! Ochree ! he was a promiting youth " indeed."

Bumbe is a liquor composed of rum, sugar, water and nutmeg.

So taying, he groaned grievoufly, and began to whine in fuch a manner, as pertuaded me he had a real triendhin for me.—The leijeant, alarmed at his words, came intro the birth, and while he looked upon me, I imiled, aner ight him the whick he immediately gueffed my meaning and, remaining lilent, Morgan was confirmed in hi opuino of my being dead; whereupon he approache wuat tears in his eyes, inorder to indulge his giret will fight of the object : And I counterfeited death fo well, by fixing my eyes, and dropping my under jaw, that he aid, " There he lies, no petter than a lump of clay, Got " help me." And observed by the diffortion of my face, that I must have had a ftrong ftruggle. I should not have been able to contain myfelf much longer, when he began to perform the lait duty of a friend, in cloting my eyes and my mouth : noon which I fuddenly fnapped at his fingers, and difcomovied him fo much, that he fart. ed back, turned pale as athes, and flared like the pisture of horror : Although i could not help laughing at his appearance. I was concerned for his fituation, and itretched out my hand, telling him, I hoped to live and eat Tome falmagundy of his making in England .---- It was ome time before he could recolled himfelf fo tar as to reel my pulfe, and enquire into the particulars of my difcafe: But when he found I had enjoyed a favourable crifis he congratulated me upon my good fortune ; not fulling to afcribe it, under Got, to the blifter he had applied to my back, at his laft wife ; which, by the bye, fiid hen. muft now be removed and dreffed : He was aftuilly going to fetch dreffings, when I feigning a tonithment, faid, " Blefs me ! iure you never applied a bliter to ne-there is nothing on my backs I affuse you" -But he could not be convinced ull he had examined it, and then en-Beavoured to conceal his confusion, by expressing his fureprife in finding the fkin untouched, and the platter miling. In order to excuse myfelt for paying fo little regard to his prefeription. I pretended to have been infenfible when it was put on, and to have pulled it off after wards le a fit of delivium. This apology fatisfied my friends. who on this occasion abated a good deal of his thiff els in regard to punctilio ; and as we were now fately areived at Jamaica, where I had the benefit of freth provision and other refreihments. I recovered strength every day, and in a fhort time my health and vigour were perfectly ate eftablished .----- When I got up at firit, and was jufs able to crawl about the deck with a staff in my haud, & met Doctor Mackihane, who paffed by me with a difdainful look, and did not vouchfafe to honour me with one word : After him came Crampley, who firusting up to me, with a fierce counter mee: pronounced, " Here's K. 3. 64 fine:

"fine difcipline on board, when fuch lary fuelking fonaof of bitches as you, are allowed, on pretence of ficke-"nefs, to lollop at your cafe, while your betters are kepts. "to hard duty !" "The fight and behaviour of this masficious feoundrel, enraged me fo much, that I could a fearce refrain from laying my cudgel acroß his pate, but when I confidered any pretent feeblenes, and the enemies I had in the flipt, who wanted only a pretence to ruin me, I reftrained my paffion, and contented myfelf with telling him. I had not forgot his infolence and malice, and that claration he grinned, fhook his flip, and fwore he longed for nothing more than fuch an opportunity.

Mean while our thip was ordered to be heaved down, withauled and watered, for her return to England; and our captain, for fome reafon or other, not thinking it convenient for him to revife his native country at this times, exchanged with a gentleman, who on the other hand withed for nothing to much, as to be fafe without the tropic; all his care and tendernefs of himfelf being infufficient to preferve his complexion from the injuries of the fun and wather.

Our tyrant having left the thip, and carried his favourite Mackshane along with him, to my inexpressible futisfaction, our new commander came on board in a sen-oared barge, overfhadowed with a valt umbrella, and appeared in every thing the reverse of Oakhum, being a tall, thin, young man, dreffed in this manner : a white hat, garnifhed with a red feather, adorned his head, from whence his hair flowed upon his fhoulders. in ringlets tied behind with a ribbon. His coat, confilling of pink coloured filk, lined with white, by the elegance of the cut retired backward, as it were, to difcover a white fattin wailcoat embroidered with gold, unbuttoned at the upper part to difplay a broach with garnets, that glittered in the breaft of his fhirt, which was of the finelt cambrick, edged with a rich Mechlin a the knees of his crimion velvet breeches icarce delcended to low as to meet his filk flockings, which role with out fpot or wrinkle on his meagre legs, from thoes of blue Meroquin, fludded with diamond buckles that Samed forth rivals to the fun ! A fleel hilted fword, in-aid with gold, and decked with a knot of ribbon which ell down in a rich tofsle, equipped his fide ; and an mber-headed cane hung dangling from his wrift : But the most remarkable parts of his furniture were, a mask on his face, and white gloves on his hands, which did not feem to be put on with an intention to be pulled off occasionally, but were fixed with a corious ring on the attle finger of each hand .---- In this garb, captain Whiffle, for that was his name, took pofferfion of the thip, furrounded with a crond of attendants, all of whom: a their different degrees, feemed to be of their patron's disposition ; and the air was fo impregnated with perumes, that one may venture to affirm the clime of Arabia Feelix was not half fo fweet fcented. My fellowmate, observing no furgeon among his train, thought he had found an occasion too favourable for himfelf to be neglected; and remembring the old proverb, " Spare to " fpeak, and fpare to fpeed," refolved to folicit the new raptain's interest immediately, before any other furgeoa sould be appointed for the thip. With this view he remaired to the cabin in his ordinary drefs, confitting of a check fhirt and troufers, a brown linen waiftcoat, and a pight cap of the fame, (neither of them. very clean) which for his future mistortune, happened to fmell Brong of tobacco. Entering without any ceremony into this facred place, he found captain Whiffle repofing upon a couch, with a wrapper of fine chintz about his bady, and a muflin cap bordered with lace about his head : and after feveral low conge's, began in this manner : ----" Sir, I hope you will forgive, and excuse, and pardon the prefumption of one who has not the honour of being known unto you, but who is, neverthelefs, a " thentieman porn and pred, and moreover, has had " misfortunes, Got help me, in the world." --- Here he was interrupted by the captain, who on feeing him, had farted up with great amazement at the novelty of the apparition ; and having recollected himfelf, pronounced with a look and a tone fignifying didain, curiofity, and Turprife, " Zauns ! who art thou ?"--" I am furgeon's me first mate on board of this fhip, (replyed Morgan) and us I molt vehemently defire and befeech you, with all " fubmifion, to be pleafed to condefcend and youch-4 Gafe

" fafe to enquire into my charafter, and my pehaviour in " and my deferts, which, under Got, I hope, will ender " title me to the vacancy of furgeon."---- As he promeeded in his fpeech, he continued advancing towards the captain, whofe noftrils were no fooner faluted with the aromatic flavour that exhaled from him, than he eried with great emotion, " Heaven preferve me ! I amir. " fuffocated !--- Fellow, fellow, away with thee .----" Curfe thee, fellow ! get thee gone .---- I fhall be funk " to death !" At the noife of his outeries, his fervants . ran into his apartment, and he accosted them thus a " Villains ! cut-throats ! traitors ! I am betrayed ! I am " or muft I be fliffed with the ftench of him ! oh ! " oh !"----With thefe interjections, he funk down upon his fettee in a fit ; his valet de chambre plied him with a imelling bottle, one footman chafed his temples with Hungary water, another sprinkled the floor with spirits! of lavender, and a third puthed Morgan out of the cabin ; who coming to the place where I was, fat down with a demure countenance, and, according to his cuf. tom, when he received any indignity which he durft not revenge, began to fing a Welch ditty .---- I gueffed he was under fome agitation of fpirits, and defired to know the caule ; but, inflead of anfwering me directly, he afked with great emotion, if I thought him a monfter and a flinkard ? " A monfter and a flinkard (faid I, with " fome furprife) did any body call you fo?--" Got is " my judge (replied he) captain Fifle did call me both ; "ay and all the water in the Tawy will not walh it in " out of my remembrance. --- I do affirm, and avouched " and maintain, with my foul, and my pody, and my " plood, look you, that I have no imells about me, but " such as a chriftian ought to have, except the effluyia " of tobacco, which is a cephalic, odoriferous, aroma. " tic herb, and he is a ton of a mountain-goat who lava " otherwife .---- As for my being a moniter, let that be "as it is : 1 am as Got was pleafed to create me, which, 4 peradventure, is more than I thall aver of him who "gave me that title; for I will proclaim it before the " world, that he is dilguifed and transfigured, and 44-transmographied, with affectation and whimfies : and " that he is more like a papoon than one of the human " race."

C H A P. XXXV.

Captain Whiffe fends for me—bis fituation defcribed his furgeon arrives, preferibes for him, and buts him to bed—a bed is patt of for Mr. Simper contiguous to the flate room, which, which other parts of the captain's bebaviour, gives the fairly, company a very unfavourable idea of their communite.——I am detained in the Welf. Indire, by the admired, and go on board of the Lizzard floop of war in quality of furgeon's mates, makere I make mufich knows to the furgeron, which treats merey kindly —I go on floore, fell my tacket, purchaft mecharized and any return on board am furprified at the fight of Crangley, who is appointed list terms of the floop ——we fail on a cruize — take a prizes, in which I arrive at Port Morant, under the command of my mefs mate, with whom I live in great harmony.

I E was going on with an elogium upon the cap-tain, when I received a melfige to clean myfelf and go up to the great cabin : and with this command I initantly complied, fweetening myfelf with role-water from the medicine cheft. When I entered the room, 1 was ordered to stand by the door, until captain Whiffle had reconnoitered me at a diffance, with a fpy glafs. He having confulted one fenfe in this manner, bade me advance gradually, that his note might have intelligence, befor: it could be much offended : I therefore approached with great eaution and fuccefs, and he was pleafed to fay, " Ay this creature is tolerable."-I found him lolling on his couch with a languishing air, his head fupported by his valet de chambre, who from time to time applied a fmelling bottle to his nofe .- " Vergette, " (faid he, in a iquesking tone) doft thou think this " wretch (meaning me) will do me no injury ? may I " venture to fubmit my arm to him :-" fon my vord, " (replied the valet) I do tink dat dere be great occa; K 5 66 fion

" fien for your honeur lofing one fmall quantite of blodts " and the young man ave quelque chofe of de bonne be " mien."-" Well then, (faid his mafter) I think I muft ... " venture."- Then addreifing himfelf to me. " Haft iz " thou ever blooded any body but brutes ?- But I need a " not afk thee, for thou wilt tell me a most damnable " lie." ___." Brutes, Sir, fanfwered I, pulling down his " glove, in order to feel his pulfe) I never meddle with " brutes."-" What the devil art thou about ? (cried " he) doft thou intend to twift off my hand? Gad's " curfe ! my arm is benumbed up to the very fhoulder ! " Heaven have mercy upon me! must I perish under " the hands of favages ? What an unfortunate dog was " I to come on hoard without my own furgeon, Mr. " Simper."-I graved pardon for having handled him to roughly, and with the utmost care and tenderness tied up his arm with a fillet of filk. While I was feeling for the yein, he defired to know how much blood I intended to take from him, and when I answered, " Not " above twelve ounces :" flarted up with a look full of horror, and bade me begone, fwearing I had a defign upon his life .- Vergette appealed him with difficulty, and opening a bureau, took out a pair of feales, in one of which was placed a fmall cup ; and putting them into my hand, told me, the captain never loft above an ounce and three drashms at one time .- While I prepared for this important evacuation, there came into the cabin a young man gayly dreffed, of a very delicate complexion, with a kind of languid finile on his face, which feemed to have been rendered habitual, by a long courfe of affectation. ---- The captain no fooner perceived him, than rifing haftily, he flew into his arms. crying, " OI my dear Simper ! I am exceffively difor-" dered ! I have been betrayed, frighted, murdered by. " the negligence of my fervants, who fuffered a bealt, "a mule, a bear, to furprife me, and think me into " convultions with the fumes of tobacco." --- Simper, who by this time, I found, was obliged to art for the clearness of his complexion, affumed an air of fortaels. ane fympathy, and lamented with many tender expreffions of forrow, the fad accident that had thrown nam into that condition ; then feeling his patient's pulle on the

he out-fide of his glove, gave it as his opinion, that nis diforder was cutrely nervous, and that fome drops of tindure of calker and liquid landanum would be of more fervice to him than bleeding, by bridling the inorinate failts of his fpirits, and composing the fermentaion of his bile...-I was therefore fent to prepare this preceription, which was adminiftered in a glafs of fack poffet; after the captain had been put to bed, and orders fent to the officers on the quarter-deck, to let no body walk on that fide under which he lay.

While the captain enjoyed his repole, the doctor watched over him, and indeed became fo neceffary, that a cabin was made for him contiguous to the flate room. where Whiffe flept, that he might be at hand in cafe of accidents in the night .---- Next day our commander being happily recovered, gave orders that none of the lieutenants fhould appear upon deck without a wigfword, and ruffles ; nor any midlhipman, or other petty officer be feen with a check fhirt, or dirty linen .--- He alfo prohibited any perfon whatever except Simper, and This own fervants, from coming into the great cabin, without first fending in to obtain leave -Thefe fingular regulations did not prepoffels the thip's company in his favour : but on the contrary, gave fcandal an opportunity to be very bufy with his character, and accuse him of maintaining a correspondence with his furgeon not fit to be named.

In a few weeks our thip being under failing orders. I was in hopes of revisiting my native country in a very fhort time, when the admiral's furgeon came on board, and fending for Morgan and me to the quarter deck, gave us to understand there was a great fearcity of furgeons in the Welt Indies ; that he was commanded to detain one mate out of every great thip that was bound for England ; and defired us to agree between ourfelves. before the next day at that hour, which of us thould fay behind .- We were thunderliruck at this propofal. and ftared at one another fome time without fpeaking ; at length the Welchman broke filence, and offered to remain in the Welt-Indies, providing the admiral would give him a furgeon's warrant immediately : But he was told there was no want of chief furgeons, and that he muft wuft be contented with the flation of mate, till he thould be further provided for in due courfe : Whercupon Morgan flaily refused to guit the fhip for which the commiffioners of the pavy had appointed him : and the other told him as plainly, that if we could not determine the affair by curtelves before to morrow morning, he mult caft lots and abide by his chance .- When I recalled to my remembrance the miferies I had undergone in Engpland, where I had not one friend to promote my intereft. or favour my advancement in the navy, and at the fame time reflected on the prefent dearth of furgeons in the Well-Indies, and the unhealthinefs of the climate, which every day almost reduced the number, I could not help thinking my fuccefs would be much more certain and expeditious, by my flaving where I was, then by returning to Europe .- I therefore refolved to comply with a good grace, and next day when we were ordered to throw dice, told Morgan, he needed not trouble himfelf, for I would voluntarily fubmit to the admiral's pleafure .---- This frank declaration was commended by the gentleman, who affured me, it fhould not fare the worfe with me for my relignation. Indeed he was as good as his word, and that very afternoon procured a warrant. appointing me furgeon's mate of the Lizzard floop of war, which put me on a footing with every first mate in the fervice.

My ticket being made out, I put my cheft and bedding on board a cance that lay along fide, and having shook hands with my trufty friend the ferjeant, and honelt lack Rattlin, who was bound for Greenwich hofpital, I took my leave of Morgan with many tears, after we had exchanged our fleeve buttons as remembrances of each other .- Having prefented my new warrant to the captain of the Lizzard, I enquired for the doctor, whom I no fooner faw, than I recollected him to be one of the young fellows with whom I had been committed to the round houle, during our irolick with Jackion, as I have related before. He received me with a good deal of courtely, and when I put him in mind of our former acquaintance, expressed great joy at feeing me again, and recommended me to an exceeding good mels, comp fed of the guener and mafter's mate-As there was not one fick perfon in the fhip. I got leave to go afhore. next day, with the gunner, who recommended me to a Tew that bought my ticket at the rate of 40 per cent. difcount : and having furnished myfelf with what ne. refferies I wanted, returned on board in the evening, and to my furprife, found my old antagonitt Crampley walking upon deck .- Though I did not fear his enmity. I was thocked at his appearance, and communicated my Centiments on that fubiest to Mr. Tomlins the furgeon. who told me that Crampley, by dint of fome friends about the admiral, had procured a commillion, conftijuting him lieutenant on board the Lizzard : and adwifed me, now he was my fuperior officer, to behave with fome refpect towards him, or elfe he would find a chousand opportunities of using me ill .- This advice was a bitter portion to me, whom pride and refentment had rendered utterly incapable of the least fubmiffion to, or even of a reconciliation which the wretch who had, on many occasions, treated me fo inhumanly : However, I refolved to have as little connection as pollible with him. and to ingratiate myfelf as much as I could with the reft of the officers, whofe friendship might be a bulwark to defend me from the attempts of his malice.

In lefs than a week we failed on a cruize, and having weathered the east-end of the island, had the good fortune to take a Spanish barcolongo, with her prize, which was an English ship bound for Bristol, that failed from Jamaica a fortnight before, without convoy. the prifoners who were well, we put on fhore on the north fide of the ifland ; the prizes were manned with Englishmen, and the command of the barcolongo given to my friend the mafter's mate, with orders to carry them into Port Morant, and there to remain until the Lizzards cruize thould be ended, at which time the would touch at the fame place in her way to Port-Royal. With him I was fent to attend the wounded Spaniards as well as Englishmen, who amounted to fixteen, and to take care of them on fhore, in a houfe that was to be hired as an hospital - I his defination gave me a great deal of pleafure, as I should for some time, be freed from the arrogance of Crampley, whole inveteracy againft me had already broke out on two or three occa-Vol. I. fions fions fince he was become a licutenant.—My mefs-mate who very much refembled my nucle, both in figure an dipolition, treated me on board of the prize with the unsoft eivility and confidence; and, simong other fa vours, made me a prefent of a filver-hilded hanger, and a pair of piftols mounted with the fame metal, which fell to his fikare in plundering the energy.—We arriven fafely at Morant, and going on flore, pitched upon an empty flore-houfe, which we bired for the reception on the wounded, who were brought to it next day, with heds and other neceffaries; and four oit he flip's company appointed to attend them and obey me.

C H A P. XXXV.

A fleange adventure in configuence of which I am extremely happy — Crampley duer me ill office with the captern: But his malies in defaced by the goon mature and friendfuip of the jurgeon — were return the Part Renais — coptain get: the command of larger flip, and is fucceeded by an old man — Braye is provided for — we receive orders to fail for England.

W HEN my patients were all in a fair way, my companion and commander, whole name was Brayl, carried me up the country to the house of a rich planter, with whom he was acquainted ; where we were fumptuoully entertained, and in the evening fet out one our return to the thip. When we had walked about all mile by moon-light, we perceived a horfeman behind us who coming up, withed us good even, and alked which's way we went: His voice, which was quite familiar tek me, no fooner firuck my ear, than, in fpite of all make refolution aed reflection, my hair briftled up, and was feized with a violent fit of trembling, which Bray h mifinterpreting, bade me be under no concern .- 1 tole him he was mittaken in the caufe of my diforder ; and addreffing myfelf to the perfon on horfeback, faid, " It " could have fworn by your voice, that you was a deaner 44 friend of mine, if I had not been certain of his-" death."

death."-To this address, after some pause, he replied, " There are many voices as well as faces that refemble one another ; but pray, what was your friend's name?" fatisfied him in that particular, and gave a fhort detail of the melancholy fate of Thomfon, not without many fighs and fome tears. A filence enfued which lafted fome minutes, and then the conversation turned on dif-Ferent subjects, till we arrived at a house on the road. where the horfeman alighted, and begged with fo much marnefinefs, that we would go in and drink a bowl of bunch with him, that we could not refift .- But if I was alarmed at his voice, what must my amazement be, when I discovered by the light, the very perfon of my lamented friend ? Perceiving my confusion, which was extreme, he clafped me in his arms, and bedewed my ace with tears .- It was fome time before I recovered the. ale of my reafon, overpowered with this event, and onger fill before I could fpeak. So that all I was capable of was to return his embraces, and to mingle the overflowings of my joy with his ; while honeit Brayl, affected with the fcene, wept as faft as either of us, aud lignified his participation of our happinels, by hugging as both, and capering about the room like a madman,-At length I retrieved the use of my songue, and cried. " Is it poffible, can you be my friend Thomfon ! Nose certainly ; alas! he was drowned ! and I am now un-"" der the deception of a dream !" --- He was at great pains to convince me of his being the individual perfon whom I regretted, and bidding me fit down and compole mylelt, promited to explain his fudden ditappearance from the l'nunder, and to account for his being ac prefent in the land of the living .- This talk he acquited himfelt of, after I had drank a glais of punch, and recollected my fpirits ; by informing us, that with a determination to rid himfelf of a muerable existence, he had gone in the night time to the head, while the thip was on her way, from whence he flipped down, as foltly as he could by the bows, into the fea, where after he was ducked, he began to repent of his precipitation, and as he could fwim very well, kept himfelf above water, in hopes of being taken up by fome of the thips aftern ; -that in this figuation, he hanied a large velici, and begged to be taken in, but was answered that she was a heavy failer, and therefore they did not choose to lose time, by bringing too; however, they threw an old cheft over board, for his convenience, and told him, that fome of the thips aftern would certainly fove him ; -that no other veffel came within fight or cry of him, for the fpace of three hours, during which time he had the mortificacion to find himfelf in the middle of the ocean alone, without any other fupport or refting place but what a few crazy boards afforded ; till at laft he difcerned a fmall floop fleering towards him, upon which he fet up his throat, and had the good fortune to be heard and refcued from the dreary wafte, by their boat, which was hoifled out on purpole .- " I was no fooner " brought on board (continued he) than I fainted, and " when I recovered my fenfes, found myfelf in bed, " regaled with a most noifome (mell of onions and " cheefe. which made me think at first, that I was in " my own hammock, along fide of honeit Morgan, and " that all which had paffed was no more than a dream. " - Upon inquiry I understood that I was on board of " a schooner belonging to Rhode Island, bound for Ja-" maica, with a cargo of geefe, pigs, onions, and " cheefe ; and that the mafter's name was Robertfon, " by birth a North Briton, whom I knew at fift fight " to be an old fchool fellow of mine. ---- When I difeo-" vered myfelf to him, he was transported with fur-" prife and joy, and begged to know the occasion of " my misfortune which I did not think fit to dilclofe, " becaufe 1 knew his notions with regard to religion " were very fevere and confined ; therefore contented " myfelf with telling him, I fell overboard by accident ; " but made no foruple of explaining the nature of my " dilagreeable station, and of acquainting him with my " determined purpole never to return to the Thunder " man of war ---- Although he was not of my opinion " in that particular, knowing that I mult lole my es clothes, and what pay was due to me, unleis I went " back to my duty ; yet, when I deteribed the circum-" flances of the hellith lite I led, under the tyrannic " iway of Oakhum and Mackihane; and among other " grievances, hinted a diffatisfaction at the irreligiose 46 depoitment

23:1

2.22

46 deportment of my flip mates, and the want of the 44 true prefbyterian gofpel dockrine; he changed his fentiments, and conjured me with great vehemence and zeal to lay afide all thought of rifing in the navy ; " and that he might flew how much he had my interest at heart, undertook to provide for me in fome fhape 45 or other, before he should leave Jamaica. - This pro-" mife he performed to my heart's defire, by recommending me to a gentle nan of fortune, with whom 6.6 " I have lived ever fince, in quality of furgeon and " overfeer to his plantations - He and his lady are now " at Kingdon, fo that I am, for the prefent, matter of 44 this house, to which, from my loul, I bid you welso come, and hope you will favour me with your com-" pany during the remaining part of the night." -----I needed not a fecond invitation; but Mr. Brayl, who was a diligent and excellent officer, could not be perfuaded to fleep out of the flip : however he fupped with us, and after having drank a cheerful glais, iet out for the veffel, which was not above three miles from the place, efforted by a couple of flour negroes, whom Mr. Thomfon ordered to conduct him - Never were two friends more happy in the conversation of each other than we, for the time it laited : I related to him the particulars of our attempt upon Carthagen 4, of which he had heard but an imperfect account ; and he gratified me with a narration of every little incident of his life fince we parted .- He affored me, it was with the ut not difficulty he could refift his inclination of coming down to Port. Royal to fee Morgan and me, of whom he had heard no tidings frace the day of our feparation ; but that he was rettrained by the fear of being detained as a deterter. -He told me, that when he neard my voice in the dark, he was almost as much furprifed as I was at feeing him afterwards ; and in the confidence of friendthip, difcloted a pattion he entertained for the only daughter of the gentlem in with whom he lived, who, by his defeription, was a very amiable young lady, and did not dildain his addrelles; that he was very much favoured by her parents, and did not deipair of obcaining their content to the maten, which would at once reader him independent of the world .- I congratulated him on his good.

23.3

good fortune, which he protefted fhould never make him forget his friends: and towards morning we betook ourfelves to reft.

Next day he accompanied me to the flip, where Mr. Brast entertained him at dinner, and we having (pent the afternoon together, he took his leave of us in the evening, after he had forced upon me ten pilloles, as a final token of his affediton.— In flort, while we flaid here, we flaw one another every day, and generally ate at the fame table, which was plentifully fupplied by him with all kinds of poultry, butcher's meat, oranges, limes, pine-apples, Madeira-wine, and excellent runs ; fo that this fonall interval of ten days was by far the moft agreeable perigd of now life.

At length the Lizzard arrived ; and my patients being all fit for duty, they and I were ordered on board of her, where I understood from Mr. Tomlins, that there was a dryness between the lieutenant and him on my account : that rancorous villain having taken the opportunity of my absence, to fill the captain's ears with a thouland fcandalous ftories, to my prejudice ; among other things affirming, that I had once been transported for theft, and that when I was in the Thunder man of war I had been whipt for the fame crime .---- The furgeon, on the other hand, having heard my whole flory from my own mouth, defended me ftrenuoufly, and in the courfe of that good natured office, recounted all the inflances of Crampley's malice against me, while I remained on board of that thip .- Which declaration, while it fatisfied the captain of my innocence, made the lieu. tenant as much my defender's enemy as mine. This infernal behaviour of Crampley, with regard to me, added fuch fuel to my former refeatment, that at certain times, I was quite befide myfelf with the defire of revenge, and was even tempted to piltol him on the quarter deck, though an infamous death mult inevitably have been my reward .- But the furgeon, who was my confident, argued against fuch a defperate action to ef. fectually, that I fliffed the flame which confuned me. for the prejent, and refolved to wait for a more convenient opportunity .---- In the mean time, that Mr. fomlins might be the more convinced of the wrongs I fuffered.

fered by this fellow's flinder, I begged he would go and wifit Mr. Thomfon, whole wonderful efcape I had made him acquainted with, and enquire of him into the particulars of my conduct, while he was my fellow mate. This request the furgeon complied with, more through curiofity to fee a perfon whole fate had been fo extraordinary, than to confirm his good opinion of me, which he affured me, was already firmly eftablished .- He therefore fet out for the dwelling-place of my friend, with the letter of introduction from me ; and being received. with all the civility and kindnels I expected, returned to the fhip, not only fatisfied with the character beyond the power of doubt or infinuation, but also charmed with the affability and conversation of Thomson, who loaded him and me with prefents of fresh flocks, liguors, and fruit. As he would not venture to come and lee us on board. Jeft Crampley fould know and detain him : when the time of our departure approached, I obtained leave to go and bid him farewel .- After we had vowed an everlafting triendfhip, he preffed upon me a purfe with four doubloons, which I refused as long as I could, without giving unbrage; and having cordially embraced each other. I returned on board, where I found a fmall box. with a letter directed for me, to the care of Mr. Fomlins. -Knowing the fuperfcription to be of Thomfon's handwriting, I opened it with fome furprife, and learned that this generous friend, not content with loading me with the prefents already mentioned, had fent for my ule and acceptance, half a dozen of fine fhirts, and as many linen waillcoats and caps, with twelve pair of new thread flockings .- Being thus provided with money, and all neceffaries fot the comfort of life, I began to look upon myfelt as a gentleman of fome confequence, and felt my pride dilate ap (ce,

Next day we failed for Port-Royal, where we arrived fafely with our prizes; and as there was nothing to do on board, I went athore, and having purchafed a laced wailleoat, with fome other clothes at a faile, made a Waggering figure for forme days, among the taverns, where I ventured to play a little at hazard, and came off with firty pitloles in my pocket, Mean while our captain was promoted to a faip of twenty guns, and the command

236 . THE ADVENTURES, &c.

ermmand of the Lizzardqriven to a man turned of fourfeore, who had been lieutenant fince the reign of King William, and notwikhlanding his long fervice, would have probably died in that flation, had be not applied fome prize-money he had lately received to make intereft with his fuperiors. My triend Brayl was alfo made an officer, about the fame time, after he had ferved in quality of a midflipman and mate five and twenty years. Soon after thele alterations, the admiral pitched upon our flip to carry home difloratches for the minifity; and we fet tail for England, having firlf forubbed her bottom, and taken in providions and water for the occafion.

THE END OF THE FIRST VOLUME.

