THE

MOST LAMEN-TABLE TRAGEDIE

of Titus Andron cus.

AS IT HATH SVNDRY
times beene plaide by the Kings
Maiesties Servants.

Makespear

Printed for Eedward White, and are to be folde at his shoppe, nere the little North dore of Pauls, at the signe of the Gun. 1611.

The most lamentable Romaine Tragedie of Titus Andronicus: As it was plaid by the right honorable the Earle of Darbie, Earle of Pembrooke, and Earle of Sussex their Servants.

Enter the Tribunes and Senatours aloft: And then enter Saturninus and his followers at one doore, and Bassianus and his followers, with Drum and Trumpets.

Saturninus

Defendtheiustice of my cause with armes.

And Countrymen my louing followers,
Plead my successive title with your swords:
I am his first borne sonne, that was the last
That ware the Imperiall Diadem of Rome.
Then let my fathers honours live in mee,
Nor wrong mine age with this indignitie.

Bassianus.

Romaines, friends, followers, fauourers of my right,
If ever Bassianus Casars sonne,
Were gracious in the eyes of royall Rome,
Keepe then this passage to the Capitoll,
And suffer not dishonour to approch,
The imperial seat to vertue; consecrate
To suffice, continence, and Nobilitie:
But let desert in pure election shine,
And Romaines fight for freedome in your choice.

Marcus Andronicus with the Crowne. Princes that strine by factions and by friends Ambitiously for Rule and Emperie, Know that the people of Rome for whome we stand A speciall Partie, have by common voyce, In election for the Romaine Emperie Chosen Andronicus, surnamed Pius, For many good and great deferisto Rome: Anoblerman, a brauer warriour, Lives not this day within the Citty walls: Heby the Senate is accited home, From weary warres against the barbarous Gothes, That with his sonnes (aterror to our foes) Hath yoakt a nation strong, traind yp in Armes. Tenne yeares are spent since first he vndertooke This cause of Rome, and chastised with Armes Our enemies pride: Fine times he hath returna Bleeding to Rome, bearing his valiant sonnes In Coffins from the field, And now at last, laden with honours spoiles Returnes the good Andronicus to Rome, Renowned Tiensflourishing in Armes, Let vs intreat by honour of his name; Whomeworthily you would have now fucceede, And in the Capitoll and Senates right, Whome you pretend to honour and adore, That you withdraw you; and abate your Arength, Dismisse your followers, and as surers should, Plead your deserts in peace and humblenes. Saturnmut.

How faire the Tribune speakes to calme my thoughts.

Bajssanus.

Marcus Andronicus, so I doe affic.

In:

of Titus Andronicus.

In thy vprightness and integrity,
And so I love and honour thee and thine,
Thy noble brother Titus and his sonnes,
And her to whome my thoughts are humbled all,
Gracious Lauinia, Romes rich Ornament,
That I will heere dismisse my louing friends:
And tomy fortunes and the peoples favour,
Commit my cause in ballance to be waid.

Exit Souldiers.

-weigh'd

Friends, that have beene thus forward in my right,
I thanke you all, and heere dismisse you all,
And to the love and savour of my Country,
Commit my selfe, my person, and the cause.
Rome beas just and gracious vnto me,
As sam consider and kinde to thee.
Open the gates and let me in.

Basciarus, Tribunes and me a poore Competitor.
They goe up mo the Senate bouse.

Romaines make way, the good Andronieus,
Patron of vertue, Romes best Champion:
Successfull in the battailes that he fightes,
With he nour and with fortune is returned,
From where he sircumscribed with his sword;
And brought to yoake the enemies of Rome.

Sound Drammes and Trumpets, and shen enter two of Titus fonnes, and then two men bearing a Coffin conered with blocke, then two other sonnes, then Titus Andronicus and then Tamorathe Queene of Gothes and her in ofonnes, Chiron and Demetrins, with Aron the More sand others, as many as can be, then fet downe she Coffin, and Titus speakes.

TAINS.

* Flourish

after them.

Titus. Haile Rome, victorious in thy mournining weeds Locas the barke that hath discharge his fraught. Returnes with precious lading to the bay, From whence at first she wayed her anchorage: Commeth Androniens bound with Lawrell bowca, To refalute his country with his teares, the months of the Teares of true ioy for his returne to Rome, and water ba A Thou great defender of this Capitoll, malan van interior Stand gracious to the rites that we intend. Romaines, of fine and twenty valiant fonnes, Halfe of the number that king Priam had, Behold the poore remaines alive and dead! These that survive, let Rome reward with loue: These that I bring vnta their latest home With buriall amongst their auncestors. Heere Gothes haue giuen me leaue to sheath my sword, Tuns vnkinde, and careles of thine owne, and and and Why sufferst thou thy sonnes vnburied yet, To houer on the dreadfull thore of Stix? Make way to lay them by their bretheren.

There greete in silence as the dead are wont,
And sleepe in peace, slaine in your Countries warres:
O facred receptacle of my ioyes,
Sweet Cell of vertue and Nobilitie,
How many sonnes of mine hast thou in store,
That thou wilt neuer render to me more?
Lucius. Give vs the proudest prisoner of the Gothes,
That we may hew his simbes, and on a pile
Ad manus fratrum, sacrifice his sless:
Before this earthy prison of their bones.
That so the shadowes be not vnapeased,
Nor we disturbed with prodigies on earth.

of Bitus Andronicus.

Titus. I giue him you, the noblest that furuiues; The eldest sonne of his distressed Queene. Tamo. Stay Romaine brethren, gracious conquerer, Victorious Titus, rue the teares I shed, A mothersteares in passion for her sonne: And if thy fonnes were euer deere to thee Oh thinke my sonne to be as decre to mee. Sufficeth not that we are brought to Rome To beautifie thy triumphs, and returne Captine to thee, and to thy Romaine yoake, But must my sonnes be slaughtered in the streetes, For valiant doings in their Countries cause? Oif to fight for king and common weale, Were piety in thine, it is in these: Andronicus staine not thy tombe with blood. Wilt thou draw neere the nature of the Gods? Draw neere them then in being mercifull. Sweet mercy is Nobilities true badge, Thrice noble Time spare my first borne sonne. Titus. Patient your selfe Madam, and pardon me. Thefe are their brethren, whome you Gothes beheld Alive and dead, and for their bretheren flaine, Religiously they aske a facrifice: To this your sonne is markt and die he must,

Religiously they aske a facrifice:
To this your sonne is markt and die he must,
T'appease their groning shadowes that are gone.
Lucius. Away with him and make a fire straight,
And with our swords vpon a pile of wood,
Let's hew his limbes till they be cleane consumde.

Exit Titus sonnes with Alarbus.

Tamora. O cruell irreligious piety.
Chiron. Was euer Scythia halfe so barbarous?
Deme. Oppose net Scythia to ambitious Rome,
Alarbus goes to rest, and we survive,
To tremble under Titus threatning looke.

eathly

Tilus .

Then

Then Madam stand resolu'd, but hope withall,
The selfe same Gods that arm de the Queene of Troy
With oportunitie of sharpe reuenge
Vponthe Thracian Tyrant in his Tent,
May sanour Tamora the Queene of Gothes,
(When Gothes were Gothes, and Tamora was Queene)
To quit the bloody wrongs vpon her soes.

Enter the sonnes of Andronicus againe.

Lucius, See Lord and father how we have performed
Our Romainerightes, Alarbus limbs are lept,
And intrals feede the sacrifising fire,
Whose smoke like incense doth persume the skie.
Remaineth nought but to interreour bretheren,
And with lowed larums welcome them to Rome.

Titus. Let it be so, and let Androniens Make this his latest farewell to they rsoules.

Sound trumpets, and lay the Coffin in the Tombe.

In peace and honour rest you heere my sonnes,
Romes readiest Champions, repose you here in rest,
Secure from worldly chaunces and mishaps:
Here lurks no treason, here no enuie swels,
Here grow no damned grudgges, here are no stormes,
No noyse, but silence and eternall sleepe,
In peace and honour rest you heere my sonnes.

Enter Lauinia.

Lani. In peace and honour, live Lord Titus long,
My noble Lord and Father live in fame:
Locat this Tombe my tributariete ares,
I render for my bretherens obsequies:
And at thy feete I kneele, with teares of ioy
Shed on the earth for thy returne to Rome.
O blesse me heere with thy victorious hand,
whose fortunes Romes best Cittizens applauld.

Titus. Kind Rome, that hast thus louingly reserude

The

of Titus Andronicus.

The cordiall of mine age to glad my hart, Lauinia line, outline thy fathers dayes, And Fames eternall date for vertues praise.

Marcus. Long live Lord Titus, my beloued brother,

Gracious triumpher in the eyes of Rome.

Titus. Thankes gentle Tribune, noble brother Marcus
Marcus. And welcome Nephews from successfull wars.

You that survive, and you that sleepe in same:
Faire Lords your fortunes are alike in all,
That in your Countries service drew your swords.
But safer triumph is this sunerall pompe,
That hath aspirde to Solons happines,
And triumphs over chaunce inhonors bed.
Titus Andronicus, the people of Rome,
Whose friend in instruct thou hast everbene,
Send thee by me their Tribune and their trust,
This Pallian are as white and south states.

This Palliament of white and spotlesse hue, And name thee in election for the Empire, With these our late deceased Emperours sonnes

With these our late deceased Emperours sonnes: Be Candidatus then, and put it on,

And helpe to set a head on headles Rome.

Tiens. A better head her glorious body fits,
Then his, that shakes for age and feeblenes:
What should I d'on this robe and trouble you,
Be chosen with proclamations to day,
To morrow yeeld vp rule, resignemy life,
And set abroad new busines for you all.
Rome I have bene thy Souldier forty yeares,
Andled my Countries strength successfully,
And buried one and twenty valiant sonnes,
Knighted in Field, slaine mansfully in Armes,

In right and service of their noble Countrie: Give me a staffe of Honourfor mine age, But not a scepter to controule the world,

B

Vpright

Vpright he held it Lords, that held it last,

Marcus. Titus, thou shalt obtaine and aske the Emperie.

Satur. Proud and ambitious Tribune canst thou tell?

Titus. Patience Prince Saturninus.

Satur. Romaines doe me right.
Patricians draw your swords and sheath them not

Till Saturninus be Romes Emperour:
Andronicus would thou wert shipt to hell,
Rather thenrob me of the peoples harts.

Lucius. Proud Saturnine, interrupter of the good

That noble minded Tims meanes to thee.

Tiess. Content thee Prince, I will restore to thee The peoples harts, and weane them from themselves.

But honour thee, and will do till I die:
My faction if thou strengthen with thy friend,
I will most thankfull be, and thanks to men
Of noble mindes, is honorable meede.

Tinus. People of Rome, and peoples Tribunes here,

I aske your voyces and your suffrages,

Will you bestow them friendly on Andronicus?
Tribunes. To gratisfie the good Andronicus,

And gratulate his fafe returne to Rome,
The people will accept who me he admits.

Time. Tribunes I thanke you, and this fute I make,
That you create your Emperours eldest sonne,
Lord Saturnine, whose vertues will I hope,
Restect on Rome as Tytans rayes on earth,
And ripen instice in this common weale:
Then if you will elect by my aduise,
Crownehim, and say, long line our Emperour.

Marcus. An. With voyces and applause of enery sort,

Patricians and Plebeans we create Lord Saturninus Romes great Emperour.

And

of Titus Andronicus.

And say, Long line our Emperour Saturnine.

Saturni. Titus Andronicus, for thy fauours done,
To vs in our election this day,
I give thee thankes in part of thy deserts,
And will with deeds requite thy gentlenes:
And for an onset Titus to advance
Thy name, and honorable samilie,
Lauinia will I make my Empresse,
Romerroyall Mistris, Mistris of my hart,
And in the sacred Pathan her espouse:
Tell me Andronicus doth this motion please thee?

Titus. It doth my worthy Lord, and in this match,
I hold me highly honoured of your Grace.
And heere in fight of Rome, to Saturnine,
King and Commander of our common weale,
The wide worlds Emperour, doe I confectate,
My fword, my Chariot, and my prisoners,
Presents well worthy Romes imperial Lord:
Receive them then, the tribute that I owe,
Mine honours Ensignes humbled at thy secte.

Satur. Thankes noble Titus, Father of my life, How proud I am of thee, and of thy gifts Rome shall record, and when I do forget The least of these vnspeakable deserts, Romans forget your fealtie to me.

Titus. Now Madam are you prisoner to an Emperour, To him that for your honour and your state, Will vse you nobly and your followers.

Satur. A gooly Lady, trust me of the hue
That I would choose, were I to choose a new:
Cleere vp faire Queene that cloudy countenance,
Though chance of war hath wrought this change of cheere,
Thou comst not to be made a scorne in Rome:
Princely shall be thy vsage every way.

B 2

Rest

Rest on my word, and let not discontent
Daunt all your hopes: Madame he c mforts you,
Can make you greater then the Queene of Gothes;
Lauinia you are not displeased with this.

Laninia. Not I my Lord, sith true Nobilitie, Warrants these words in princely curtesse.

Sainr. Thankes sweete Lauinia, Romans let vs goe,

Raunsomles heere we set our prisoners free,

Proclaime our honours Lords with trumpe and Drum.

Bassianus. Lord Tims by your leave, this maid is mine.

Titus. How sir, are you in earnest then my Lord?
Bassia. I noble Titus, and resolu'd withall,

To doe my selfethis reason and this right.

Marcus. Suum suignam is our Romane iustice,

This Prince in instance ceazeth but his owne.

Lucius. And that he will and shall, if Lucius live.

Tims. Traytors auaunt, where is the Emperours gard?

Treason my Lord, Laumiais surprisde.

Saiur. Surprisde, by whome? Basia. By himthat iustly may Beare his betrothed, from all the world away.

Mutius. Brothers helpe to conney her hence away,

And with my fword He keepe this doore fafe.

Titus. Follow my Lord, and He foone bring her back.

Mutius. My Lord you passenot heere.

Tiens. What villaine boy, barst memy way in Rome?

Musius Helpe Lucius helpe. He kills him.
Lucius, My Lord you are vniust, and more then so,

In wtongfull quarreil you haue staine your sonne.

Titus. Northou, nor he are any sonnes of mine,

My somes would never so dishonour me.

Traytor restore Laumia to the Emperour.

Lucius. Deadif you will but not to be his wife,

That is anothers lawfull promittloue.

of Titus Andronicus;

Enter aloft the Emperour with Tamora and her two sonness and Aron the Moore.

Emperour, No Titus, no, the Emperour needs her not, Nor her, nor thee, nor any of thy stocke: Ile trust by leisure him that mocks me once, Thee neuer, nor thy trayterous haughty sonnes,

Confederates all thus to dishonour me.

Was none in Rome to make a stale
But Saturnine? Full well Andronicus

Agree these deeds, with that proud bragge of thine,

That saidst I begd the Empire at thy hands.

Titus. O monstrous, what reprochfull words ze these?
Satur. But goe thy wayes, goe give that changing peece,

To him that flourisht for her with his sword:

A valiant sonne in law thou shalt enjoy,

One, sit to bandy with thy lawlesse sonnes, To russe in the Common-wealth of Rome.

Tuns. Thesewords are razors to my wounded hart.

Saur And therefore louely Tamora Queene of Gothes,
That like the stately Thebe mongst her Nimphs,

Dost overshine the gallant'st Dames of Rome,

If thou be pleased with this my sodaine choyse, Behold I choose thee Tamora for my Bride,

And will create thee Emperesse of Rome.

Speake Queene of Gothes dost thou applaud my choyse?

And heere I sweare by all the Romaine Gods,

Sith Priest and holy water areso neere,

And tapers burne so bright, and every thing

In readines for Hymeneus stand,

I will not resalute the streets of Rome,

Or clime my Pallace, til from forth this place,

Ilead espousde my Bride along with me.

Tamora. And heere in fight of heaven to Rome I sweare,

If Saturnine advance the Queene of Gothes,

B 3

Shee

Enter

She will a handmaid be to his desires, A louing Nurse, a Mother to his youth.

Sat. Ascend faire Queene, Panthean Lords, accompany Your noble Emperour and his louely Bride, Sent by the heavens for Prince Saturnine, Whose wisdome hath her Fortune conquered, There shall we consummate our spousall rites.

Exeunt omnes.

Titus. I am not bid to waite vpon this Bride, Titus when wert thou wont to walke alone, Dishonoured thus and challenged of wrongs? Enter Marcus and Tilus sonnes.

Marcus. O Titus fee! O fee what thou hast done! Ina bad quarrell flaine a vertuous sonne.

Tions. No foolish Tribune, no: No sonne of mine, Nor thou, nor these, confederates in the deede. That hath dishonoured all our Family, Vnworthy brother, and vnworthy sonnes.

Lucius. But let vs giue him buriall as becomes:

Gine Mutius buriall with our bretheren.

Titus. Traytors away, he rests not in this tombe ? This monument five hundreth yeares hath stood, Which I have sumptuously reedified: Heerenone but Souldiers and Romes Servitors, Repose in fame: None basely slaine in braules, Bury him where you can he comes not heere.

Marcus. My Lord this is impiety in you, My Nephew Mutius deeds do plead for him,

He must be buried with his bretheren.

Titus two sonnes speakes. And shall, or him we will accompany. Titus. And shall! What villaine was it spake that word?

Titus sonne speakes: He that would vouch it in any place but heere.

Titus.

of Titus Andronicus.

Titus What would you bury him in my despight? Marcus. No noble Titas but intreat of thee, To pardon Mutius, and to bury him.

Titus. Marcus, Euen thou halt ftroke vpon my creft? And with these boyes mine honour thou hast wounded, My foes Idoe repute you every one. So trouble me no more, but get you gone.

2. Sonne. Heis not with himselfe, let vs withdraw.

e Sonne. Not I till Mutius bones be buried.

The brother and the sonnes kneele. Mareus. Brother, for in that name doth nature plead 2. Sonne. Father, and in that name doch nature speake. Tuus. Speake thou no more if all the rest will speede. Mar. Renowned Titus more then halfe my foule. Lucius. Deare Father, soule and substance of vsall, Marc. Suffer thy brother Marcus to interre

His noble nephew heere in vertues nest. That died in honour and Laumias cause. Thouart a Romaine be not barbarous: The Greekes vpon aduise did bury Aiax That flew himselfe and wife Laertes sonne Did graciously plead for his Funerals: Let not young Muins then that was thy joy, Bebard his entrance heere.

Tiens, Rife Marcus, rife, The dismalft day is this that ere I saw, Tobe dishonored by my sonnes in Rome: Well bury him, andbury me the next.

They put him in the Tombe. Lucius, Therelie thy bones sweet Mutins with thy friends Till we with Trophees do adorne thy tombe.

They all kneele and say, No man shed teares for noble Mutius, Heliues in fame that dide in vertues caufe.

Hx st

The most lamentable Trage die

Exit all but Marcus and Titus.

Marcus. My Lord to step out of these drivie dumps,
How comes it that the subtile Queene of Gothes,
Is of a sodaine thus advanced in Rome?

Titus. I know not Marcus: but I know it is,
(Whether by deuise or no) the heavens can tell,
Is she not then beholding to the man,
That brought her for this high good turnes farre?

Enter the Emperor, Tamora and her two sonnes, with the Moore at one doore. Enter at the other doore Bassianus and Lauinia with others.

Saturn. So Bassianus, you have plaid your prize, God give you joy fir of your gallant Bride. Balsi. And you of yours my Lord. I fay no more, Nor wish no lesse, and so I take my leaue. Satur. Traytor, if Rome haue law, or we have power, Thou and thy faction shall repent this Rape. Bassia. Rape call you it my Lord, to cease my owne, My true betrothed loue, and now my wife? But let the lawes of Rome determine all Meane while I am possest of that is mine. Satur. Tis good fir, you are very short with vs, But if we line weele be as sharpe with you. Bassian, My Lord, what I have done as best I may, Answere I must, and shall do with my life, Onely thus much I give your Grace to know, By all the duties that I owe to Rome, This noble Gentleman, Lord Treus heere, Is in opinion and in honour wrong'd, That in the rescue of Laninia, With his owne hand did flay his youngest sonne, In zeale to you, and highly mon'd to wrath.

of Titus Andronicus.

To be contrould in that he frankely gaue, Recease him then to favour Saturnine, That hath exprest himselfe in all his deedes A Father and a friend to thee and Rome. Tiens. Prince Bassianus leane to plead my deedis Tis thou, and those, that have dishonoured me, Rome and the righteous heavens be my judge, How I have lou'd and honoured Saturnine. Tamora. My worthy Lord if euer Tamora, Were gracious in those princely eyes of thine Then heare mespeake indifferently wrall: And at my fute (fweete) pardon what is past. Saiur. What Madam, be dishonoured openly, And basely put it vp without revenge? Tamora. Not so my Lord, the Gods of Rome for fend I should be Author to dishonour you. But on mine honour dare I vndertake. For good Lord Time innocence in all: Whosefury not dissembled speakes his griefes: Then at my fute looke graciously on him, Loose not so noble a friend on vaine suppose, Nor with sowre lookes afflict his gentle heart. My Lord, be ruld by me, be wonne at last, Dissemble all your griefes and discontents. You are but newly planted in your Throne, Least then the people, and Patricians too. Vponaiust survay take Titus parte And so supplant vs for ingratude, Which Rome reputes to be a hainous sinne. Yeeldat intreats, and then let me alone lle finde a day to massacre them all, And race their faction and their familie, The cruell Father, and his traytrous sonnes, To whome I feed for my decresonnes life.

To

And make them know what tis to let a Queene Kneele in the streetes, and beg for grace in vaine. Come, come, sweet Emperour, (come Andronicus) Take vp this good old man, and cheere the heart, That dies in tempelt of thy angry frowne. King. Rife Turs, rife, my Empresse hath prevaild. Tius. Ithanke your maiestie, and her my Lord. These words, these lookes, infuse new life in me. Tamora. Titus I am incorporate in Rome, A Roman now adopted happily, And must aduise the Emperour for his good, This day all quarrels die Andronieus, And letit bemine honour good my Lord, That I have reconcil'd your friends and you. For you Prince Bassianus, I haue past My word and promise to the Emperour, That you will be more milde and tractable. And feare not Lords: and you Lauinia, By my aduite all humbled on your knees, You shall aske pardon of his Maiestie.

All. We doe, and vow to heaven, and to his highnes,
That what we did, was mildly as we might,
Tendring our listers honour and our owne.

Marc. That on mine honour heere I do protest.

King. Away and talke not, trouble vs no more.

Tamora. Nay, nay, sweet Emperour, we must all be friends
The Tribune and his Nephews kneele for grace,
I will not be denied, sweet hart looke back.

King. Marcus, for thy sake and thy brothers heere,
And at my louely Tamoras intreats,
I doe remit these young mens hay nous faults,
Stand vp: Laninia, though you lest me like a churle,
I found a friend, and sure as death I swore,
I would not part a Batchiler from the priest.

Come.

of Titus Andronicus,

Come, if the Emperours court can feast two Brides,
You are my guest Lauinia, and your friends:
This day shall be a lone-day Tamora.
Titus. To morrow and it please your Maiestie,
To hunt the Panther and the Hart with me,
With horne and hound, weele give your grace bon iour.

Saurn. Be it so Titus, and gramercy to.

Exeunt

Safe out of Fortunes that, and fits aloft,
Secure of thunders cracke or lightning flath,
Aduanc'd about pale enuies threatning reach,
As when the golden funne falutes the morne,
And having gilt the Ocean with his beames,
Gallops the Zodiacke in his gliftering coach,
And ouer-lookes the highest piering hills.

So Tamora!

Vpon her wit doth earthly honour waite, And vertue stoopes and trembles at her frowne, Then Aronarme thy hart, and fit thy thoughts, To mount aloft with thy Emperial Mistris, And mount her pitch, whome thou in triumph long Hast prisoner held, fettred in amorous chaines, And faster bound to Arons charming eyes, Thenis Prometheus tide to Caucasus. Away with sauish weedes and idle thoughts, I will be bright and shine in pearle and gold, To waite vpon this new made Emperesse. To waite faid 1? to wanton with this Queene, This Goddesse, this Semerimis, this Queene, This Syren, that will charme Romes Saturnine, And see his ship wracke, and his Common-weales. Hollo, what storme is this?

Enter Chiron and Demetrius brauing.

C 2

Demet.

And manners to intrude where I am grac d,
And may for ought thou knowest affected be.
Chiron. Demerrins, thou doost ouerweene in all,
And so in this, to beare me downe with braues,
Tis not the difference of a yere or two
Makes me lesse gracious, or thee more fortunate a
I amas able, and as fit as thou,
To serue, and to deserve my Mistris grace,
And that my sword vpon thee shall approve,
And plead my passions for Laninias love.

Moore Clubs, clubs, these lovers will not keep the peace.

Deme. Why boy, although our mother (vnaduizd)
Gaue your daunfing rapier by your fide,
Are you so desprat growne to threat your friends?
Goe too; have your lath glued within your sheath,

Till you know better how to handle it.

Chiron. Meane while fir, with the littleskill I haue,

Full well shalt thou perceiue how much I dare.

Demet. Ihoy, grow ye so braue?

they draw.

Aron. Why how now Lords?
So neere the Emperours pallace dare you draw,
And maintaine such a quarrell openly?

Full well I wote, the ground of all this grudge,

I would not for a million of gold,

The cause were knowne to them it most concernes.

Nor would your noble mother for much more

Be so dishonored in the Court of Rome.

For shame put vp.

Demet. Not I, till I haue sheathd
My rapier in his bosome, and withall
Thrust these reprochfull speeches downe his throat,
That he hath breathd in my dishonour he ere.
Chiron, For that I am prepard, and full resolude,

Foule

of Titus Andronicus.

Foule spoken Coward, that thundrest with thy tongue.

And with thy weapon nothing durst performe.

Moore. Away I say.

Now by the Gods that warlike Gothes adore,

This petty brabble will vndoo vs all:

Why Lords, and thinke you not how dangerous

It is to iet vpon a Princes right?

What is Laminia then become soloose.

Or Bassianus so degenerate,
That for her loue such quarrels may be brocht;

Without controulement, instice, or reuenge?
Young Lords beware, and should the Empresse know,
This discords ground, the musicke would not please.

Chiron. I care not I, knew the and all the world, Iloue Lauinia more then all the world. (choife

Demet. Youngling learne thou to make some meaner

Laninia is thine elder brothers hope:

Moore. Why are ye mad? or know ye not in Rome,
How furious and impatient they be,
And cannot brooke competitors in loue?
Itell you Lords, you doe but plot your deaths,

By this deuise.

Chiron. Aron, A thousand deaths would I propose, To atchieucher whome I do loue.

Aron. To atchieue her, how?

Demetri. Why, makes thou it so strange?

Shee is a woman, therefore may be woo'd,
Shee is a woman, therefore may be wonne,
Shee is Laumia therefore must be lou'd.
What man, more water glideth by the mill
Then wots the Miller of, and case it is,
Of a cut loafe to steale a strine we know:
Though Bassianus be the Emperours brother,
Better then he have worne Vulcans badge.

C 3

Moore

Moore. I, and as good as Saturnine may. A Demet. Then why should he dispaire that knowes to With words, fairelookes, and liberality? (court it What haft not thou full often strucke a Doe. And borne her cleanly by the Keepers no le? Moore Why then it seemes some certaine snatch or so Would serue your turnes. Chiron. I so the turne were served. Demet. Aron thou hast hit it. Moore. Would you had hit it too, Then should not we be tirde with this adoo. Why harke yee, harke yee, and are you fuch fooles, To square for this? would it offend you then That both should speede? Chiron. Faith not me. Demet. Norme, so I were one. Aron. For shame be friends, and ioyne for that you iar, Tis pollicie and stratageme must doe That you affect, and so must you resolue, That what you cannot as you would atchieue, You must perforce accomplish as you may: Take this of me, Lucrece was not more chast Then this Lauinia, Bassanus loue. A speedier course this linguing languishment Must we persue, and I have found the path: My Lords, a solemnehunting is in hand, There will the louely Roman Ladies troope: The forrest walkes are wide and spacious, And many vnfrequented plots there are, Fitted by kinde for rape and villanie: Single you thither then this dainty Doe. And frikeher home By force if not by words, This way of not at all, stand you in hope,

Come, come, our Empresse with her sacred wit

of Titus Andronicus.

To villanie and vengeance consecrate, Willwe acquaint with all that we intend, And she shall file our engines with aduise, That will not suffer you to square your selues, But to your wishes height aduance you both. The Emperours court is like the house of fame, The pallace full of tongues, of eyes, of eares: The woods are ruthles, dreadfull, deafe, and dull: There speake, and strike braue boyes, and take your turnes. There serue your lust, shadowed from heavens eye, And revell in Lavinias treasurie. Chiron. Thy counsell lad smells of no cowardise. Demet. Sit fas aut nefas, till I finde the streame, To coole this heat, a charme to calme their fits. Excunt. Per Stigiasper manes Vebor.

Enter Titus Andronicus and his three sonnes, making a noyse with hounds and hornes.

Titus. The hunt is vp, the morne is bright and gray,
The fields are fragrant, and the woods are greene,
Vncouple heere, and let vs make a bay,
And wake the Emperour, and his louely Bride,
Androuze the Prince, and ring a hunters peale,
That all the court may eccho with the noyse.
Sonnes let it be your charge, as it is ours,
To attend the Emperours person carefully:
I have bene troubled in my sleepe this night,
But dawning day new comfort hath inspirede.

Heere a cry of houndes, and winde hornes in a peale, then enter Saturninus, Tamora, Bassianus Lauinia, Chiron, Demetrius, and their Attendants.

Titus. Many good morrowes to your maiestie, Madam to you as many and as good. Ipromised your Grace, a Hunters peale, Satur.

Saturnine. And you haverung is lustily my Lords, Somewhat to early fornew married Ladies.

Bassia. Lauinia, how say you? (more Laninia. I say no: I haue bene broad awake two houres &

Satur. Come on then, horse and Chariots let vs haue,

And to our sport: Madam, now shall ye see,

Our Romaine hunting.

Marcus. I have doggs my Lord, Will rouze the proudest Panther in the Chase,

And clime the highest promontary top.

Titut, And I have horse will follow where the game Makes way, and runnes like swallowes ore the plaine.

Deme. Chironwehunt not we, with horse nor hound But hope to plucke addainty Doe to ground.

Enter Aron alone.

Moore. He that had wit would thinke that I had none, Tobury so much gold vnder atree, Andneuer after to inheriteit. Lethim that thinks of me so abjectly, Know that this gold must coine a stratagemes Which cunningly effected, will beget A very excellent pecce of villany: And so repose sweet gold for their vnrest, That haue their almes out of the Empresse Chest.

Enter Tamora alone to the Moore. Tamora. My louely Aron, wherefore look'st thou sad, When every thing doth make a gleefull boaft? The birdschaunt melody on euery bush, The Snake lies rolled in the chearefull funne, The greeneleaues quiuer with the cooling winde, And make a checkerd shadow on the ground: Vnder their sweet shade, Aron let vs sit, And whilst the babling Ecchoe mocks the hounds, Replying shally to the well tun'd hornes,

of Titus Andronicus.

Asifa double hunt were heard at once, Let vs fit downe and marketheir yellowing noyfe: And after conflict such as was supposde The wandring Prince and Dido once enioyed, When with a happy florme they were furprifde, And curtaind with a counsaile-keeping Caue, Wemay each wreathed in the others armes, (Our pastimes done) possesse a golden slumber, Whiles hounds and hornes, and fweet melodious birds

Sainrne is dominator ouer mine: What fignifies my deadly flanding eye. My filence, and my cloudy melancholie, My fleece of Woolly haire that now vncurles, Fuen as an Adder when she dotk vnrowle To do some fatall execution?

No Madam, these are no veneriall signes, Vengeance is in my heart, death in my hand, Blood and revenge are hammering in my head. Harke Tamora the Empresse of my soule, Which never hopes more heaven thenrests in thee,

This is the day of doome for Bassanus, His Phi'omel must loofe her tongue to day, Thy sonnes make pillage of her chastity, And wash their hands in Bassianus blood. Seelt thou this letter, take it vp I pray thee, And give the King this fatall plotted scrowle, Now question me no nore we are espied,

Heere comes a parcell of our hopefull beoty, Which dreads not yet their lives destruction. Enter Bassianus and Lauinia Tamora. Ahmy sweete Moore, sweeter to me then life.

Moores

Moore. No more great Empresse, Bassianus comes, Be crosse with him, and lle goe fetch thy sonnes. To backe thy quarrell what so ere they be.

Bassia. Who have we heere? Romes royall Empresse.
Vnfurnisht of our well be seeming troope?
Oris it Dian habited like her,
Who hath abandoned her holy Groves,
To see the generall hunting in this Forress?
Tamora. Sawcie controuler of our private steps,
Had I the power, that some say Dian had,
Thy temples should be planted presently,
With hornes as was Acteons, and the hounds,
Should drive vpon his new transformed limbes,
Vnmannerly intruder as thou art.

Laumia. Vnder your patience gentle Empresse, Tis thought you have a goodly gift in horning, And to be doubted that your Mooreand you, Are singled forth to try experiments: Ioue shield your husband from his hounds to day, Tis pitty they should take himser a Stag.

Balsian. Beleeneme Queene your swarty Cymerion,
Doth make your honour of his bodies hue,
Spotted, detested, and abhominable.
Why are you sequestred from all your traine?
Dismounted from your snow white goodly steed,
And wandred hither to an obscure plot,
Accompanied with a barbarous Moore,
It soule desire had not conducted you?

Great reason that my noble Lord be rated
For sausines, I pray you let vs hence,
And let her toy her Rauen culloured loue,
This valley fits the purpose passing well.

of Titus Andronicus.

Good King to be somightily abused.

Queene. Why I have patience to endureall this.

Enter Chiron and Demetrine. Dem. How now deere sour raigne & our gracious mother Why doth your Highnes looke so pale and wan? Queene. Haue Inotreason thinke you to looke pale These two haue tyced me hither to this place, A barren, detested vale you seeit is, The trees though Sommer, yet forlorne and leane, Orecome with mosseand balefull Misselto. Heere neuer shines the Sunne, heere nothing breede, Vnlessethe nightly Owle or fatall Rauen: And when they showd me this abhorred pit, They told me heereat dead time of the night. A thousand seinds, a thousand hissing snakes, Tenthousand swelling toades, as many vrchins, Would make such fearefull and confused cries, As any mortall body hearing it Should straite fall mad, or else die suddainely. No sooner had they told this hellish tale, But strait they told me they would bindeme heere, Vnto the body of a dismall Ewe, And leaue me to this miserable death. Andthenthey calldme fouleadulteresse, Lascinious Goth, and all the bitterest tearmes, That euer eare did heare to such effect. Andhad you not by wondrous fortune come, This vengeance on me had they executed: Revengeit as you loue your mothers life, Or be ye not henceforth cald my children. Demet. This is a witnes that I am thy fonne. fab him.

Chiron. And this for me strook home to shew my strength

Lauinia, I come Semeramis, nay Barberous Tamora.

For

For no name fits thy nature but thy owne. Tamora. Giue me thy ponyard, you shal know my boyes Your mothers hand shall right your mothers wrong, Demet. Stay Madam, heere is more belongsto her, First thrash the corne, then after burne the straw : This minion flood vpon her chaftiey, Vpon ker Nupriall vow, her loyaltie. And with that painted hope, braues your mightines, And shall she carry this vnto her grave? Chiron. And if the doe, I would I were on Euenuke, Drag hence her husband to some secrethole, And makehis dead trunke pillow to our lust. Tamora. But when ye have the honny we desire, Let not this waspe out-line vs both to sting. Chiron. I warrant you Madam we will make that fure; Come miltris, now perforce we will enjoy, That nice preserved honestie of yours. Laumia. Oh Tamora, thou bearest a womans face. Tamora: I will notheare her speake, away with her. Lauina. Sweet Lords intreat her heareme buta word. Demet. Listen faire Madam, let it be your glory To see her teares, but be your hart to them As vnrelenting flint to drops of raine. Lauinia- When did the Tigers young ones teach the dame O doe not learne her wrath, she taught it thee, The milke thou suck Afrom her did turneto Marble, Euen at thy teat thou hadft thy tyranny, Yetenery Mother breeds not sonnes alike, Do thou intreat her shew a woman pitty. Chiron. What wouldst thou have me prove my selfea Lauinia. Tis true, the Rauen doth not hatch a Larke, Yer haue I heard, Oh could I finde it now, The Lion moued with pitty, did indure To haue his princely pawes parde all away.

of Titus Andronicus.

Some fay that Rauens foster forlornechildren, The whilft their owne birds familh in their nefts: Ch beto methough thy hard hart fay no, Nothing so kinde but something pittifull.

Tamora. I know not what it meanes, away with her. Lauinia. Ohlet me teach thee for my fathers sake, That gaue theelife when well he might haue flaine thee, Be notobdurate, open thy deafe eares.

Tamora. Hadst thouin personnere offended me,

Euen for his sake am l pittilesse. Remember boyes I powrd forth teares in vaine, To faue your brother from the facrifice, But fierce Androniem would not relent, Therefore away with her, and vie her as you will,

The worse to her, the better lou'd of me.

Lauinia. Oh Tamora be callda gentle Queene, And with thine owne hands kill me in this place, Fortisnot life that I have begd fo long, Poore I was flaine when Bussianus dide.

Tamora. What Begitthou then? fond woman let me goe? Lauinia Tis present death I beg, and one thing more, That womanhood denies my tongue to tell, Oh keepeme from their worsethen killing luft, And tumble me into some loath some pit,

Where neuer manseye may behold my body,

Doethis and be a charitable murderer.

Tamora. So should I rob my sweet sonnes of their fae, No, let them satisfie their lust on thee.

Demet. Away, for thou haft staid vs heere too long. Laminia. No grace, no womanhood, ah beastly cleature, The blot and enemy to our generall name,

Chusband Confusion fall— Chiron. Nay then He stop your mouth, bring thou her

This is the hole where Aron bid vs hide him.

T' amora

Tamora. Farewell my sonnes see that you make her suge.
Nerelet my hart know merry cheere indeed,
Till all the Adronicie be made away:
Now will I hence to seeke my louely Moore,
And let my spleene full sonnes this Trull dessource.

Enter Aronwith two of Titus sonnes. Come on my Lords, the better soote before, Straight will I bring you to the lothsome pit, Where I espied the Panther fast asleepe.

Quintus. My sight is very dull what ere it bodes.

Mart. And mine I promise you, were it not for shame,

Well could I leave our sport to sleepe a while.

Quiv. What art thou fallent what subside h

Quiv. What art thou fallen? what subtile hole is this, Whosemouth is couered with rude growing briers, Vpon whose leaves are drops of newshed blood, As fresh as morning s dew distild on flowers, A very fatall place it seemes to me, Speake brother hast thou hurt thee with the fall?

Marie. Oh brother, with the dismalst obiect,
That ever eye with fight made hart lament.

Aron. Now will I fetch the King to finde them heere;

That he thereby may have a likely geffe,

How these were they that made away his brother, Exit
Marti. Why dost not comfort me and helpe me out,

From this vnhollow and blood stained hole.

Quint. I am surprised with an vncouth searc,

A chilling sweat oreruns my trembling joynts,

My hart suspects more then mine eie can sec.

Mart. To proue thou hast a true divining hart,
Aron and thou looke downe into this den,

And see a fearefull sight of blood and death.

Quint. Aren is gone, and my compassionate hart,

Will not permit mine eyes once to behold,
The thing whereat it trembles by furmife:

of Titus Andronicus,

Ohtell me how it is, for nere till now Was I a child, to feare I know not what.

Martius. Lord Bassianus lies embrewed heere, All on a heape like to a slaughtred Lambe, In this detested darke blood drinking pit.

A precious ring, that lightens all the hole:
Which like a taper in some monument,
Doth shine v pon the dead mans earthly checkes,
And shewes the ragged intrastes of this pit:
So pale did shine the Moone on Piramus,
When he by night lay bath'd in Maiden blood,
Obrother helpe me with thy fainting hand,
If feare hath made thee faint, as mee it hath,
Out of this fell denouring receptacle,
As hat full as Occurs missie mouth.

Quin. Reach me thy hand, that I may help thee out,
Or wanting strength to doe thee so much good,
I may be pluckt into the swallowing wombe,
Of this deepe pit, poore Bassianus graue:
Thave no strength to plucke thee to the brink.

Martins. Nor I no strength to clime without thy help.

Quin. Thy hand once more, I will not loose againe,
Till thou art heere alost, or I below,
Thou canst not come to me, I come to thee.

Enter the Emperour, Aronthe Moore.

Satur. Along with me, lle see what hole is heere, And what he is that now is leapt into it.

Say, who art thou that lately didst descend, Into this gaping hollow of the earth?

Martius. The vnhappie sonne of old Andronicus, Brought hither in a most valuckie houre,

To finde thy brother Basianus dead.

Saturnin. My brother dead, I know thou dost but iest,

He and his Lady both are at the Lodge,

Vpon the north side of this pleasant chase,

Tis not an houre since I lest him there.

Mart. We know not where you left them all aliue, But out alas, heere have we found him dead.

Enter Tamora, Andronicus and Lucius,
Tamora. Where is my Lord the King?
King. Here Tamora, though grieud with killing griefe.
Tamora. Where is thy brother Bassianus?
King. Now to the bottome dost thou search my wound,

Poore Bassianus heere lies murthered.

Tamora. Then all too late I bring this fatal writ.

The complot of this timeles Tragedie,

And wonder greatly that mans face can fold,

In pleasing smiles such murderous tyrannie.

She gweth Saturnine a Letter.

Saturninus reads the Letter.

And if we misse to meete him hans mely,
Smeet huntsman Bassianus tis we meane,
Doe thou so much as dig the grave for him,
Thou knowst our meaning, looke for thy reward.
A nong the nettles at the Elder tree,
Which over-shades the mouth of that same pit,
Where we decreed to bury Bassianus,
Doe this and purchase vs thy lasting friends.

Ring. Oh Tamora was ever heard the like?
This is the pit, and this the elder tree,
Looke first fyou can finde the huntiman out,
That should have murthered Bassianus heere.
Aron. My gracious Lord heere is the bag of gold.

of Titus Andronicus.

King. Two of thy whelpes, fell curs of bloody kinde, Haue heere bereft my brother of his life : Sirs drag them from the pit vnto the prison, There let them bide vntill we haue deuisd Some neuer heard-of tortering paine for them. Tamora. What are they in this pit, oh wondrous thing! How easily murder is discouered? Titus. High Emperour vpon my feeble knee, I beg this boone, with teares not lightly shed, That this fell fault of my accurfed sonnes, Accursed, if the faults be prou'd in them. King. Ifit be prou'de! you secit is apparant, Who found this letter, Tamora was it you? Tamora. Androniens himselfe did take it vp. Titus. I did my Lord, yet let me be their baile, For by my fathers reverent tombe I vow They shall be ready at your Highnes will, To aunswere their suspition with their lives. King. Thou shalt not baile them, see thou follow me. Some bring the murthered body, some the murtherers, Let them not speake a word, the guilt is plaine, For by my foule, were there worfe end then death, That end vpon them should be executed. Tamora. Andronicus I wil entreat the King, Feare not thy sonnes, they shall do well enough. Titus. Come Lucius come, stay not to talke with them. Enter the Empresse sonnes, with Lauinia, her hands cut off and her tongue out out, and ranisht. Demet. So now goe tell and if thy tongue can speake, Who twas that cutthy tongue and rauisht thee. Chiron. Write downethy minde, bewray thy meaning fo, Andifthy stumpes will let thee play the scribe. Demet. See how with fignes and tokens she canscrowle. Chiron. Goe home, call for sweet water, washthy hands. Demet.

King

Deme. She hath no tongue to call, nor hands to wash,
And so lets leaueher to her filent walkes.

Chiron. And twere my cause, I should goe hang my selfe.

Demer. If thou hadst hands to helpe thee knit the cord.

Enter Marcus from bunsing. Who is this my Neece that flies away so fall? Cosen a word, where is your husband? If I do dreame would all my wealth would wake me, If I doe wake, some Planet strike me downe, That I may flumber in eternall sleepe. Speake gentle Neece, what sterne vngentle hands, Hathlopt and hewd, and made thy body bare, Of her two branches, those sweet ornaments Whose circling shadowes, Kings have sought to sleepe in, And might not gaine fo great a happines Ashalfethy loue: Why dooft not speake to me? Alas, a crimfon river of warme blood, Like to a bubling fountaine stird with winde, Doth rife and fall betweene thy Rosed lips, Comming and going with thy honny breath. But sure some Tereus hath defloured thee, And least thou shouldst detect them, cut thy tongue. Ah now thou turnst away thy face for shame. And notwithstanding all this losse of blood, As from a Conduit with their issuing spouts, Yet doe thy cheekes looke red as Tuans face, Blushing to be encountred with a clowde. Shall I speake for thee, shall I say tis so? Oh that I knew thy hart, and knew the beaft, That I might raile at him to ease my minde. Sorrow concealed, like an Ouen stopt, Doth burne the hart to cinders where it is. Faire Philomella she but lost her tongue, And in a tedious sampler sowed her minde.

of Titus Andronicus.

But louely Neece, that meane is cut from thee, A craftier Terens haft thou met, And he hath cut those pretty fingers off, That could have better sowed then Philomel. Oh had the monster seene those Lilly hands, Tremble like Aspenleaues vpon a Lute, And make the filken strings delight to kisse them, He would not then have toucht them for his life. Or had he heard the heavenly Harmony, Which that I weet tongue hath made: He would have dropt his knife and fell afleepe. As Cerberus at the Thracian Poets feete. Come let vs goe, and make thy father blinde, For such a sight will blinde a fathers eye. One houres storme will drowne the fragrant meades, What will whole months of teares thy Fathers eyes? Doe not draw backe, for we will mourne with thee, Oh could our mourning ease thy misery. Exeunt

Enter the Indges and Senatours with Titus two somes bound, passing on the Stage to the place of execution, and Titus going before pleading.

For pitty of mine a ge, whose youth was spent
In dangerous warres, whilst you securely slept.
For all my blood in Romes great quarrell shed,
For all the frosty nights that I have watcht,
And for these bitter teases, which no v you see,
Filling the aged wrinkles in my cheekes,
Be pittifull to my condemned Sonnes,
Whose soules is not corrupted as tis thought.
For two and twenty sonnes I never wept,
Because they died in honours losty bed.

Andronicus lyeth downe, and the Indges passe by him.

For

For these, Tribunes, in the dust I write
My harts deepe languor, and my soules sad teares:
Let my teares stanch the earths drie appetite,
My sonnes sweet blood, will make it shame and blush:
O earth, I will be friend the emore with raine
That shall distill from these two ancient ruines,
Then youthfull Aprill shall with all his showres.
In Summers drought, lie drop vpon thee still,
In Winter with warme teares lie melt the snow,
And keepe eternall spring time on thy face,
So thourefule to drinke my decre sonnes blood.

Enter Lucius, with his weapon drawne. Ohrenerent Tribunes, oh gentle aged men, Vnbinde my fonnes, reuerse the doome of death, And let me say (that neuer wept before) My teares are now prevailing Oratours. Lucius. Oh noble father you lament in vaine, The Tribunes heare you not, no man is by, And you recount your forrowes to a stone. Titus. Ah Lucius for thy brothers let meplead, Graue Tribunes, once more I intreat of you. Lucius, My gracious Lord, no Tribune heares you speak. Titus. Why is no matter man, if they did heare They would not marke me, or it they did marke, All bootlesse vntothem. Therefore I tell my forrowes bootles to the stones, Who though they cannot answere my distresse, Yet in some fort they are better then the Tribunes, For that they will not intercept my tale: When I doe weepe, they humbly at my fecte, Receive my teares, and seeme to weepe with me. And were they but attired in graue weedes, Rome could afford no Tribune like to these.

of Titus Andronicus,

Astone is soft as waxe, Tribunes more hard then stones:
Astone is silent, and offendeth not,
And Tribunes with their tongues doomemen to death.
But wherefore stands thou with thy weapon drawne?
Lucius. To rescue my two brothers from their death,
For which attempt the ludges have pronounst
My everlasting doome of banishment.
Titus. O happy man, they have befriended thee:
Why foolish Lucius, dost thou not perceaue
That Rome is but a wildernes of Tigers?
Tigers must prey, and Rome affords no prey
But me and mine: how happy art thou then,
From these devourers to be banished?
But who comes with our brother Marcus heere?

Enter Marcus and Lanusa.

Enter Marcus and Lanuisa.

Marcus. Titus, prepare thy noble eyes to weepe,
Or if not so, thy noble heart to breake:
I bring consuming forrow to thine age.
Titus. Will it consumeme? Let meseeit then,
Marc. This was thy daughter,
Titus. Why Marcus so she is.
Lucius. Aye me, this object kils me.
Titus: Faint-harted boy, arise and looke vpon her,

Speake Lauinia, what accurfed hand,
Hath made thee handlessein thy Fathers sight?
What soole hath added water to the Sea?
Or brought a saggot to bright burning Troy?
My griefe was at the height before thou camst,
And now like Nylmit discaineth bounds:
Giue me a sword lie chop off my hands too,
For they have sought for Rome, and all in vaine:
And they have surest this woe, in seeding life:
In boorelesse prayer have they bene held vp,
And they have seru'd me to effect lesse vse.

Now

Edition 1600.

Now all the service I require of them, Is that the one will helpe to cut the other? Tis well Lauinia that thou hast no hands, For hands to do Rome service, is but vaine. Lucius. Speake gentle sister who hath marterd thee ? Marcus. O that delightfullengine of her thoughts. That blabd them with such pleasing eloquence, Is torne from forth that pretty hollow cage, Where like a sweet mellodious bird it sung, Sweet varied notes inchaunting euery eare. Lucius. Oh say thou for her, who hath done this deede? Marc. On thus I found her straying in the Parke, Seeking to hide herselfe as doth the Deare That hath receaude some vnrecuring wound. Titus. It was my Deare, and he that wounded her, Hath burt memore then had he kild me dead: For now I stand as one vpon a Rock, Inuirond with a wildernes of Sea. Who markes the waxing tide, grow wave by wave, Expecting ever when some envious surge, Will in his brinish bowels swallow him. This way to death my wretched sonnes are gone, Heere stands my other sonne, abanisht man, And heeremy brother weeping at my woes, Butthat which gives my soule the greatest spurne, Is deere Lauma, deerer then my soule. Had I but seene thy picture in this plight, It would have madded me: what shall I does Nowe I beholde thy lively body fo? Thou hast no hands to wipe away thy teares, Nortongue to tell me who hath marterd thee: Thy husband he is dead, and for his death Thy brothers are condemnde, and dead by this. Looke Marcus, ah sonne Lucius looke on her,

When I did name her brothers, then fresh teares Stood on her cheekes, as doth the honny dew, (husband) Vpon a gathred Lillie almost withered. Mare. Perchance she weepes because they kild her Perchance because the knowes him innocent. Tuus. If they did kill thy husband then be ioy full, Becausethelaw hath tanereuenge on them. No, no, they would not doe fo foule à deede, Witnes the forrow that their fister makes. Gentle Lauinia let me kisse thy lips, Or make some signe how I may do thee ease: Shall thy good Vncle, and thy brother Lucius, And thou and I fit round about some Fountaine, Looking all downewards to behold our cheekes How they are staind in meadowes yet not dry, Withmiery slime left on them by a flood? And in the Fountaine shall we gaze so long, Till the fresh taste be taken from that cleerenes, And made a brine pit with our bitter teares? Or shall we cut away our hands like thine? Or shall we bite our tongues, and in dumbe shews Passe the remainder of our hatefull daies? What shall we doe? let vs that have our tongues Plot some deuise of further misery To make vs wondred at in time to come. Luci. Sweetfather cease your teares, for at your griefe See how my wretched fifter fobs and weeps. Mart. Patience deere Neece, good Titus drie thine eyes. Titus. Ah Marcus, Marcus, Brother well I wote, Thy napkin cannot drinke a teare of mine, For thou poore man hast drowndit with thineowne. Luci. Ah my Laumia I will wipe thy cheekes. Titus. Enter Aronthe Moore alone.

Moore. Titus Andronicus, my Lord the Emperour, Sends thee this word, that if thou love thy sonnes, Let Marcus, Lucius, or thy selfe old Tutus, Or any one of you, chop off your hand, And send it to the King, he for the same, Will send thee hither both thy sonnes alive, And that shall be the raunsome for their fault.

Did euer Ranen sing so like a Larke,
That gives sweet tydings of the Sunnes vprise?
With all my hart, Ilesend the Emperour my hand,
Good Aron wilt thou help to chopit off?

Lucius. Stay Father, for that noble hand of thine,
That hath throwne downe so many enemies,
Shall not be sent: my hand will serve the turne,
My youth can better spare my blood then you,
And therefore mine shall save my brothers lives.

Marc. Which of your hands hath not defended Rome, And reard aloft the bloody Battleaxe, Wrighting destruction on the enemies Castle? Oh none of both but are of high desert:
My hand hath bene but idle, let it serue
To raunsome my two nephewes from their death,
Then haue I kept it to a worthy end.

Moore. Nay come agree whose hand shall goe along, For feare they die before their pardon come.

Marcus. My hand shall goe.

Lucius. By heavenit shall not goe.

of Titus Andronicus.

Titus. Sirs striue no more, such withred hearbs as these Aremeete for plucking vp, and therefore mine. Luciu. Sweet Father, if I shallbe thought thy sonne, Let me redeeme my brothers both from death. Marcus. Andfor our fathers fake, and mothers care, Now let me show a brothers loue to thee. Titus. Agreebetweene you, I will spare my hand. Lucius, Then Ile goe fetch an Axe. Excunt. Marc. But I will vsethe Axe. Titus. Comehither Aron, Ile deceiue them both, Lend methy hand, and I will gine thee mine. Moore. Ifthat be cald deceit, I will be honest, Andneuer whilst Iliue deceiuemen so: But Ile deceiue you in another fort, And that youle say ere halfe an houre passe.

Hee cuts off Titus hand.

Enter Lucius and Marcus againe.

Titus. Now stay your strife, what shall be is dispatcht: Good Aron giue his Maiestie my hand, Tell him it was a hand that warded him From thousand dangers: bid him bury it: More hath it merrited: That let it haue. Asfor my sonnes, say I account of them, A siewels purchast at an easie price, And yet deere too, because I bought mine owne. Aron. I goe Andronicus, and for thy hand, Looke by and by to have thy sonnes with thee. Their heads I meane: Oh how this villany, Doth fat me with the very thoughts of it. Let fooles doe good, and faire men call for grace, Aron will have his foule blacke like his face. Exit. T11368

Titus. O heere I lift this one hand vp to heaven, And bow this feeble ruine to the earth, If any power pitties wretched teares, To that I call : what would thou kneele with me? Doethen deare heart, for heaven shall heare our prayers. Or with our fighs weele breath the welkin dimme, And staine the funne with fogge as sometime cloudes. When they do hug him in their melting bosomes. Marcus. Oh hrother speake with possibilities, And do not breake into these deepe extreames. Tiens. Is not my forrow deepe, having no bostome? Then bemy passios bottomlesse with them. Marcus. But yet let reason gouernethy lament. Tiens. If there were reason for these miseries. Then into limits could I binde my woes: When heaven doth weepe, doth not the earth oreflow? If the windes rage, doth not the sea wax mad, . Threatning the welkin with his bigfwolne face? And wilt thou have a reason for this coile? Iam the fea. Harke how her fighes doe flow : Shee is the weeping welkin, I the earth: Thenmust my Sea be moued with her fighes, Then mustmy earth with her continuall teares, Become a deluge: overflowed and drowned: Forwhy, my bowels cannot hide her woes, But like a drunkard must I vomit them. Then giue me leaue, for loofers will haue leaue, To easetheir stomackes with their bitter tongues.

Enter a messenger with two heads and a hande.

Messen. Worthy Andronieus, ill art thou repaid, For that good hand thou sentst the Emperour: Heere are the heads of thy two noble sonnes.

of Titus Andronicus.

And heeres thy hand in scorne to thee sent backe; Thy griefes their sports: Thy resolution mockt: That woe is me to thinke vpon thy woes, More then remembrance of my fathers death, Marc. Now let hat Etna coole in Cicilie, And be my hart an euer-burning hell: These miseries are more then may be borne. To weepe with them that weepe, doth ease some deale, But sorrow flouted at, is double death. Luci. Ah that this fight should make so deepe a wound, And yet detested life not shrinke thereat: That ever death should let life beare his name, Where life hath no more interest but to breath. Marc. Alas poore hart that kisse is comfortlesse, 18 11 As frozen water to a starued snake. Tiens. When will this fearefull flumber haue an end? Mar. Now farewell flatterie, die Androniens, Thoudoft not flumber, see thy two sonnes heads, Thy warlike hand, thy mangled daughter heere? Thy other banisht sonne with this deere fight Strucke pale and bloodlesse, and thy brother I, Euen like a stony Image, cold and numme. Ah now no more will I controule my griefes, Rent of thy filuer haire, thy other hand Gnawing with thy teeth, and be this difmall fight The cloting vp of our most wretched eyes: Now is a time to storme, why art thou still? Tiens. Ha, ha, ha. Mare. Why dost thou laugh? it fits not with this houre. Titus. Why I have not another teare to fied: Besides, this sorrow is an enemie, And would vsurpe vpon my watry eyes, And make them blinde with tributarie teares. Then which way shall I finde Revenges Caue? FOR

For these two heads doeseeme to speake to me; And threat me, I shall never come to blisse, Till all these mischiefes be returned againe, Euen in their throats that have committed them. Come let me see what taske I have to doe You heavie people, circle me about. That I may turne me to each one of you, And sweare vntomy soule to right your wrongs, The vow is made, come Brother take a head, And in this hand the other will I bearc. And Lauinia thoushalt be imployed in these Armes, Beare thou my hand sweet wench betweene thy teeth : As for thee boy, goe get thee from my fight, Thou art an Exile, and thou must not stay, and the Hie to the Gothes, and raife an army there, Andifyouloueme, as I thinke you doe, they man ? Let's kisse and part, for we have much to doe.

sil sometawarels of Assist Exerns

Lucius. Farwell Andronicus my noble Father:
The wofulst man that ever livde in Rome:
Farewell proud Rome till Lucius come againe,
He loves his pledges dearer then his life:
Farewell Lauma my noble fister,
O would thou wert as thou to fore hast bene,
But now nor Lucius nor Laumialines
But in oblivion and hatefull griefes:
If Lucius live he will requite your wrongs,
And make proud Saturnine and his Empresse
Beg at the gates like Tarquin and his Queene.
Now will I to the Gothes and raise a power,
To be revended on Rome and Saturnine.

Exit Lucius.

Enter Lucius somme and Lauinia running after him, and the boy slies from her with his bookes under his arme.

Enter Titus and Marcus

Condition of tollowing the series

Puer. Helpe Grandsier helpe, my Aunt Laninia, Followes me euery where I know not why. Good Vncle Marcus see how swift she comes, Alassweet Aunt, I know not what you meane. Marcu. Standby me Lucius, doe not feare thine aunt Titus. She loues thee boy too well to do thee harme. Puer. I when my father was in Rome she did. Marcus What meanes my Neece Lauinia by these fignes? Titus. Fearcher not Lucius somewhat doth she meane. See Lucius see, how much shemakes of thee: Some whether would she have thee goe with her. Ah boy, Cornelia neuer with more care Red to her sonnes then she hath red to thee, Sweet Poetry, and Tullies Oratour: Canst thou not gesse wherefore she plies thee thus? Puer. My Lord I know not I, nor can I geste, Vnlesse some fit or frenzie do possesse her: For I have heard my Grandfier fay full oft, Extremitie of griefes would make men mad. And I have red that Hecuba of Troy, Ran mad through forrow, that made me to feare Although my Lord, I know my noble Aunt, Loues me as deare as ere my mother did, And would not but in fury fright my youth, Which made me downe to throw my bookes and flie, Causses perhaps, but pardon me sweet Aunt, And Madam, it my V-ncle Marens goe,

I will most willingly attend your Ladyship.

Titus, How now Lauinia, Marcus what meanes this?

Some booke there is that the defires to fees

Which is it girle of these? open them boy,

But thou are deeper read and better skild,

Come and take choyse of all my Library,

And so beguile thy forrow; till the heavens

Reue ale the dambd contriver of this deede.

Why lifts she vp her armes in sequence thus?

Marc. I thinke she meanes that there was more then one

Consederate in the fact, I more there was:

Or else to heaven she heaves them for revenge.

Titus. Lucius what booke is that she tosseth so?

Puer. Grandsier tis Ouids Metamorphosis,

My mother gaueit me, would be will be with

Mare. For lone of her that's gone, Perhaps she culd it from among the rest.

Titus. Soft, so busily she turnes the leaves, Helpe her, what would she finde? Lauinia shall Iread?

This is the tragicke tale of Philomel,

And treates of Tereus treason and his rape.

And rape I feare was roote of thine annoy.

Marc. See brother seenote how she quotes the leaves!
Titus. Lauinia, wert thou thus surprized sweet girle.

Rauisht and wrongd as Philomela was,

Foredin the ruthlesse, vast, and gloomy woods?

See, see, I such a place there is where we did hunt,

(O had we neuer, neuer hunted there)

Patternd by that the Poetheere describes, By nature made for murthers and for rapes.

Marc. O why should nature build so foule a den.

Vnlesse the Gods delight in tragedies?

Tit. Giue signes sweet girle for heere are none but friends.
What

of Titus Andronicus,

What Romane Lord it was durst do the deede?

Or slonke not Saturnine, as Tarquin erst.

That left the Campe to sinne in Lucrece bed.

Mare. Sit downe sweet Neece, brother at downe by me,

Appollo, Pallas, Ione, or Mercury,

Inspire me that I may this treason finde.

My Lord looke heere, looke heere Lapinia.

Hewrites his Name with his staffe, and guides it with feete and mouth.

This fandie plot is plaine, guide if thou canst
This after me, I have writ my name,
Without the helpe of any hand at all.
Curst be that hart that forst vs to this shift:
Write thou good Neece, and heere display at last,
What God will have discovered for revenge,
Heaven guide thy pen to print thy sorrowes plaine,
That we may know the traytors and the truth.

She takes the staffe in her mouth, and guides it with her stumpes, and writes.

Tiens. Oh doe ye read my Lord what she hath writ, Stuprum, Chiron, Demetrius.
Marc. What, what, the lustfull sonnes of Tamora,

Performers of this hainous bloody deede?

Titus. Magni Dominator poli,

Tam lentus audis scelera, tam lentus vides?

Marci Oh calme theegentle Lord, althard I know
There is enough written vpon this earth,

Tostirre a mutenie in the mildest thoughts,
And armethemindes of infants to exclaimes.

My Lord kneele downe with me, Laninia kneele,

And

And kneele sweete boy, the Romaine Hectors hope, And sweare with me, as with the wofull feere, And father of that chast dishonoured Dame, Lord Innius Brutus (weare for Lucrece rape, That we will presecute by good aduise Mortall reuenge vpon these tray terous Gothes, And see their blood, or die with this reproch. Titus. Tis fure enough, and you knew how, But if you hunt these Beare whelpes then beware, The Dam will wake, and if the winde you once. Shee's with the Lyon deepely still in league, And lulls him whill the playeth on her back. And when he sleepes will she do what she lift. You are a young huntsman Marcus, let it alone. And come I will goe get a leafe of braffe, And with a gad of steele will write these words. And lay it by : the angry Northerne winde, Will blow these sands like Sibels leaves abroad. And wheres your lesson then, boy what fay you? Puer I say my Lord, that if I were a man, Their mothers bed-chamber should not be safe. For these bad bond-men to the yoake of Rome. Marc. I thats my boy, thy father hath full oft. For his vngratefull country done the like. Puer. And Vnckle so will I, and if I line. Titus. Come goe with me into mine Armorie, Lucius Ile fit thee, and withall, my boy Shall carry from r to the Empresse sonnes, Presents that I is d to send them both, Come, come, the dothy message, wilt thou not? Puer. I with my daggerin their bosomes Grandsier. Tuis. No boy not fo, Ile teach thee another course, Lauinia come, Marcus looke to my house, Lucius and He goe braue it at the Court.

of Titus Andronicus.

Imarry will we sir, and weele be waited on.

Marc. O heavens! can you heare a good man grone

And not relent, or not compassion him?

Mareus attend him in his extasse,

That hath more scars of sorrow in his hart,

Then foe-mens markes upon his battred shield,

But yet so iust, that he will not revenge,

Revenge the heavens for old Androneus.

Enter Aron, Chiron and Demetrius at one dore, and at another dore young Lucius and another, with a bundle of weapons, and verses writ upon them.

Chiron. Demetrius heeres the sonne of Lucius, He hath some message to deliuer vs. Aron. I somemad message from his mad Grandfather. Puer. My Lords, with all the humblenes I may, Igreete your honours from Andronious, And pray the Romane Gods confound you both. Deme. Gramercie louely Lucius, what's the newes? Puer. That you are both decipherd, that's the newes, For villaines markt with rape. May it please you, My Grandsier well aduisde hath sent by me, The goodliest weapons of his Armorie, To gratifie your honourable youth The hope of Rome, for so he bad me say: And so I do, and with his gifts present Your Lordships, when euer you haue neede, You may be armed and appointed well, And so Ileaue you both : like bloody villaines. Exit Deme. What's heere? a scrole, and written round about? Let's see,

Chron, O tis a verse in Horace, I know it well.

ı

Ireadit in the Grammer long agoe. Moore liuft, a versein Horace, right, you haueit. Now what a thing it is to be an Asse. Heeres no found iest, the old man hath found their gilte-And sends the weapons wrapt about with lines. That wound (beyond their feeling) to the quick: But were our witty Empresse well a foote. She would applaud Andrenicus conceit. But let herrest in her vnrest a while. And now young Lords, wast not a happy flarre. Led vs to Rome strangers, and more then fo Captines to be advanced to this height? It did me good before the Pallace gate. To brave the Tribune in his brothers hearing. Demer. But me more good to see so great a Lord, Basely insinuate, and send vs gifts. Moore Hadhenotreason Lord Demetring Did younot vichis daughter very friendly? Demet. I would we had a thousand Romane Dames At such a bay, by turne to serue our lust. Chiron. A charitable with and full of love. Moore, Heere lacks but your mother for to fay Amen, Chiron. And that would she fortwenty thousand more. Demet. Come let vs goe and pray to all the Gods For our beloued mother in her paines. Moore. Pray to the deuils, the gods haue given vs ouer. Trumpets (ound.

Dem. Why do the Emperors trumpets flourish thus? Chiren. Belike for joy the Emperour hath a fonne. Deme. Soft, who comes heere?

Enter Nurse with a blacke a Moore childe. Nur. Good morrow Lords, O tell me did you see Aron the Aren. Well, more or lesse, or nere a whit at all, (Moore Heere

of Titus Andronicus,

Heere Aronis, and what with Aron now? Nurfe. Oh gentle Aron, we are all vndone, Now helpe, or woe betide thee euermore. Aron. Why what a catterwalling dost thou keepe, What dost thou wrap and fumble in thine armes? Nurse. O that which I would hide from heavens eye, Our Empresse shame, and stately Romes disgrace, She is delivered Lords, she is delivered. Aron. To whome? Nurse. I meane she is brought a bed. Aron. Wel God giue her good rest, what hath he sent her? Nurse. A denill. Aron. Why then the is the Deuils Dam, a ioy full iffue, Nurse. A ioyles, difmall, blacke, and forrowfull islue, Heere is the babe as loath some as a toad, Amongst the fairest breeders of our clime, The Empresse sends it thee, thy stampe, thy seale, And bids thee christen it with thy daggers point. Aron. Zounds ye whore, is black so base a hue? Sweet blows, you are a beautious blossome sure. Deme. Villaine what hast thou done? Aron. That which thou canst not vadec. Chiren. Thou half vndone our mother. Aron. Villaine, I have done thy mother. Demet: And therein hellish dog thou hast vndone, Woe to her chance, and dambd her loathed choyce, Accurst the ofspring of so foule a fiend. Chiron. It shall not live. Aron. It shall not die. Nurse. Aron it muft, the mother wils it so. Aron. What muftit Nurse? thenlet noman but I, Doe execution on my flesh and blood, Dem. Ile broach the tadpole on my Rapiers point, Nurse giue it me, my sword shall soone dispatch it. AYON

Aron. Sooner this fword shall plow thy bowels vp. Stay murtherous villaines, will you kill your brother ? Now by the burning tapers of the skie, That shone so brightly when this boy was got, He dies vpon my Semitars sharpe point, That touches this my first borne sonne and heire. I tell you younglings, not Enceladus, With all his threatning band of Typhone broode, Norgreat A'cides, nor the God of warre, Shall ceaze this prey out of his fathers hands: What, what, ye sanguine shallow harted boyes, Yee white-limbde walls, ye ale-house painted signes, Cole-blacke is better then another, hue, In that it scornes to beare another hue: For all the water in the Ocean, Can neuer turne the Swans blacke legs to white, Although shelaue them hourely in the flood: Tell the Empresse from me I am ot age To keepemine owne, excuse it how she can. Demet. Wilt thou betray thy noble mistris thus? Aron. My mistris is my mistris, this my felfe, The vigour, and the picture of my youth: This before all the world do I preferre, This mauger all the world will I keepe safe, Or some of you shall smoake for it in Rome. Demet. By this our mother is for ever shamde. Chiron. Rome will despise her for this foule escape. Nurse. The Emperour in his rage will doome her death. Chiron. Iblush to thinke vpon this ignomie. Aron, Why theres the priviledge your beauty beares: Fie trecherous hue, that will betray with blushing The close enacts and counsels of the hart: Heeres a young lad framde of another leere, Lookehow the blacke slave smiles vpon the father, o'Titus Andronicus.

Aswho should say, old Lad I amthine owner He is vour brother Lords, sensibly ted Ofthat selfe blood that first gauelife to you, And from that wombe where you imprisoned were, Heisinfranchised and come to light: Nay he is your brother by the surer side. Although my seale be stamped in his face. Nurse. Aron what shall I say vnto the Empresse? Demet. Aduise thee Aron, what is to be done, And we will all subscribe to thy adusse: Sauethou the childe so we may all be safe. Aron. Then fit we downe and let vs all consult. My sonne and I will have the winde of you: Keepe there, now talke at pleasure of your lafety. Demet. How many women faw this childe of his? Aron. Why so braue Lords, when we io yne in league I am a Lambe, but if you braue the Moore, The chafed Bore, the mountaine Lyonesse, The Oceanswells not so as Aron flormes: But say againe, how many saw the childe? Nurse. Cornelia, the midwife and my selfe, And no one else but the delivered Empresse. Aren. The Empresse, the Midwife, and your selfe, Two may keepe counsell when the thirds away: Goe to the Empresse, tell her this I said, He kills her. Weeke, week, so cries a Pigge prepared to the spit. Demet. What meanst thou Aron, wherefore didst thou this Aron. O Lord sir, tis a deed of pollicie, Shall she live to betray this gilt of ours? A long tongu'd babling Goffip, no Lords no: And now be it knowne to you my full intent. Not farre, one : Muliteus my Country-man His wife but yesternight was brought to bed, His childe is like to her, faire as you are: Goc

Goe packe with him, and give the mother gold, And tell them both the circumstance of all. And how by this their childe shall be aduaunst. And be received for the Emperours heyre. And substituted in the place of mine, To calme this tempest whirling in the Court. And let the Emperour dandle him for his owne. Harkeye Lords, ye see I haue giuen her phisick, And you must needes bestow her funerall, The fields are neere, and you are gallant Groomes: This done, see that you take no longer daies But send the Midwife presently to me. The Midwife and the Nurse well made away? Then let the Ladies tattle what they please. Chiron. Aron I fee thou wilt not trust the ayre with secrets. Deme. For this care of Tamora, Elerselse and hers are highly bound to thee. Excunt Aron. Now to the Gothes, as swift as swallow flies. There to dispose this treasure in mine armes, And secretly to greete the Empresse friends: Come on you thick-lipt-slave, Ilebeare you hence, Foritis you that puts vs to our shifts: Ile make you feed on berries, and on rootes, And feede on curds and whay, and suckethe Goate, And cabbin in a Caue, and bring you vp To be a warriour, and commaund a Campe. Exit.

Enter Titus, old Marcus, young Lucius, and other gentlemen with bowes, and Titus beares the arrowes with Letters on the ends of them.

Titus. Come Marcus, come, kinsmen this is the way, Sir boy let me see your archerie, Looke yee draw home enough and tis there straight,

Terras

of Titus Andronicus.

Terras Astreareliquit, be you remembred Marcus? Skees gone, shees fled firs take you to your tooles, You Cosens shall goe sound the Ocean, And cast your nets, happily you may finde her in the sea, Yet theres as little iustice as at Land: No Publius and Sempronius, you must doeit, Tis you must dig with mattocke, and with spade, And pierce the inmost center of the earth, Then when you come to Plutoes Region, I pray you deliver him this petition, Tell him it is for iustice and for aide, And that it comes from old Andronicus; Shaken with forrowes in vngratefull Rome. Ah Rome, well, I made thee miserable, What time I threw the peoples suffrages On him that thus doth tyrannize ore me. Goeget you gone, and pray be carefull all, And leaue you not a man of warre vnsearcht, This wicked Emperour may have thipt her hence, And kinsmen then we may goe pipe for iustice, Marc. O Publius is not this a heavie case To fee thy noble Vnclethus distract? Publi. Therefore my Lords it highly vs concernes, By day and nightt'attend him carefully: Andfeede his humour kindely as we may, Till time beget some carefull remedie. Marcus. Kinsmen, his sorrowes are past remedie. Joyne with the Gothes, and with reuengefull warre, Take wreake on Rome for this ingratitude, And vengeance on the tray tor Saturnine. Tiens, Publins how now, how now my Maisters, What have you met with her? Pabli. Nomy good Lord, but Plato sends you word, If you will have revenge from hell you shall, M arrie

Marrie for Iustice she is so imployd, He thinkes with lone in heauen, or some where else, So that perforce you must needs stay a time.

Titus. He doth me wrong to feed me with delayes,

And pull her out of Acaron by the heeles.

Marcus we are but shrubs, no Cedars we, No big-bond-men, framd of the Cyclops size, But mettal Marcus, steeleto the very backe,

Yet wrung with wrongs more then our backs can beare:

And fith theres no iustice in earth nor hell, We will solicite heaven, and move the Gods,

To send downe Iustice for to wreake our wrongs:

Come to this geare, you are a good Archer Marcus.

He gives them the Arrowes.
Ad Ionem, thats for you, here ad Apollonem,

Ad Martem, thats for my selfe, Here boy to Pallas, here to Mercury,

To Saturnine, to Caius, not to Saturnine, You were as good to shoote against the winde.

Too it boy, Marcus loose when I bid, Ofmy word, I have written to effect,

Theres not a God left vnfollicited.

Marens Kinsmen, shoot all your shafts into the Court,

We will afflict the Emperour in his pride.

Titus. Now Mailters draw, oh well said Lucius,

Goodboy in Virgoes lap, giue it Pallas.

Marc. My Lord, I aime a mile beyond the Moone

Your letter is with Inpiter by this.

Tiens. Ha, ha, Publius, Publius, what hast thou done?

See, see, thou hast shot off one of Taurus hornes.

Marcus. This was the sport my Lord, when Publins shot,

The Bull being gald, gaue Aries such a knocke,

That downe fell both the Rams hornes in the Court,

And

of Titus Andronicus.

And who should finde them but the Empresse villaine:
She laught, and told the Moore he should not choose
But give them to his maister for a present.
Titus. Why there it goes, God give your Lordship ioy.

Enter the Clowne with a basket and two Pidgions init.

Titus. Newes, newes from heaven,

Marcus the poalt is come.

Sirra what tydings, haue you any letters? Shall I haue iustice, what faics Inpiter?

Clowne. Ho the libbetmaker, hee fayes that he hath taken them downeagaine, for the man must not be hanged till the next weeke.

Titus. But what faies Iupiter I aske thee?

Clowne. Alassir I know not Iupiter:

I neuer dranke with him in all my life:

Titus. Why villaine art not thou the Carrier?

Clowne. I of my pidgions fir, nothing els.

Tieus. Why, didAthounot come from heauen?

Clowne. From heauen! alas sir, I neuer came there,

God forbid I should be so bold, to presse to heaven in my young dayes.

Why I am going with my pidgions to the tribunal Plebs, to take vp a matter of brawle, betwixt my Vncle, and one of the Emperialls men.

Marcus. Why fir, that is as fit as can be to serue for your Oration, and let him deliuer the pidgions to the Emperour from you.

Titus. Tell mee can you deliver an Oration to the Emperour with a grace?

Glowne. Nay truely sir, I could neuer say grace in all my life.

Tums. Sirra come hither, make no more adoe,

H

But

.....

But giue your Pidgions to the Emprour,
By me thou shalt haue instice at his hands.
Hold, hold, meane while here's money for thy charges,
Giue me pen and inke.

Sirra, can you with a grace deliuer a Supplication?

Clowne. Isir.

Tiens. Then here is a supplication for you, and when you come to him, at the first aproach you must kneele, then kisse his foote, then deliver vp your Pidgions, and then look for your reward.

Ile be at hand sir, see you doe it branelie.

Clowne. I warrant you sir, let me alone.

Titus. Sirra hast thou a knise? Come let me see it.

Here Mareus, fold it in the Oration,

For thou hast made it like an humble Suppliant.

And when thou hast given it the Emperour,

Knocke at my dore, and tell me what he sayes.

Clowne. God be with you sir, I will.

Titus. Come Marcus let vs goe, Publius sollow me.

Exeunt

Enter Emperous and Empresse, and her two sonness the Emperous brings the Arrowes in his hand that I trus shot at him.

Satur. Why Lords, what wrongs are these? was ever Gene
An Emperour in Rome thus overborne,
Troubled, confronted thus, and for the extent
Of egall instice, vsde in such contempt?
My Lords, you know the mightfull Gods,
How ever these disturbers of our peace
Buzin the peoples cares, there nought hath past,
But even with la wagainst the wilfull sonnes

o Titus Andronicus.

Of old Andronicus. And what and if His forrowes have so overwhelmde his wits? Shall we be thus afflicted in his wreakes, His fits, his frenzie, and his bitternes? And now he writes to heaven for his redresse. See heeres to lone, and this to Mercury, This to Apollo, this to the God of warre: Sweet scrowles to flie about the streets of Rome, Whats this but Libelling against the Senate, And blazoning our vniustice every where? A goodly humour, is it not my Lords? As who would say, in Rome no instice were: But if I liue, his fained extasses Shall be no shelter to these outrages, But he and his shall know that instice lives In Saturninas health, whome if he sleepe, Heele soawake, as he in fury shall Cut off the proud'st conspiratour that lives, Tamora. My gracious Lord, my louely Saturnine, Lord of my life, commaunder of my thoughts, Calme thee, and beare the faults of Tims age. Th'effects of sorrow for his valiant sonnes, Whose losse hath pearst him deepe, and scard his hart, And rather comfort his distressed plight, Then prosecute the meanest or the best

For these contempts: Why thus it shall become Hie witted Tamora to glose with all:
But Tiens I have touched thee to the quicke,
Thy life blood out: if Aron now bewise,
Then is all safe, the Anchor's in the port.

How now good fellow wouldst thou speake with vs?

Clowne. Yea for sooth, and your Mistership be Emperiall.

H 2

Tamo.

Clowne. Tis he, God and Saint Stephen give you good den, I have brought you a letter and a couple of pigions heere.

Hereads the Letter.

Satur. Goetake him away and hang him presently.

Clowne. How much money must I have?

Tamora. Come sirra, you must be hanged.

Clowne. Hangd, be Lady then I have brought vp a neck to a faire end.

Exit.

Satur. Dispightfull and intollerable attongs,
Shall I endure this monstrous villany.
I know from whence this same deuse proceedes:
May this be borne, as if his trayterous sonnes,
That dide by law formurther of our brother,
Haue by my meanes bene butchered wrong fully?
Goe dragge the villaine hither by the haire,
Norage, nor honour, shall shape priviledge,
For this proud mocke sle be thy slaughter man,
Sly francicke wretch, that holpst to make me great,
In hope thy selfe should governe Rome and me.

3. 5. 1

Enter Nuntius Emillius.

Saturn. What newes with thee Emilling?

Emil. Armemy Lords, Rome neuer had more cause,
The Gothes have gathered head, and with a power
Of high resolved men, bent to the spoyle,
They hither march amaine, under conduct
Of Lucias, sonne to old Andronicus
Who threats in course of this revenge to doe

of Titus Andronicus.

As much as ever Ceriolanus did. King Is warlike Lucius Generall of the Gothes, Thele tydings nip me, and I hang the head As flowers with frost, or grasse beat downe with stormes: I now begins our forro westo approach, Tis hethecommon people loue so much, My selfe hath often heard them fay, When I have walked like a private man, . That Lucius banishment was wrongfully, And they have wisht that Lucius were their Emperour. Tamora. Why should you feare, is not your Citty strong? King. Ibut the Cittizens fauour Lucius, And will revolt from me to succour him. Tamora. King, bethy thoughts imperious like thy name. Is the Sunne dimd, that Gnats do flie in it? The Eagle suffers little birds to fing, And is not carefull what they meane thereby, Knowing that with the shadow of his wings, He can at pleasure stint their melodie. Euen so mayest thou the giddy men of Rome, Then cheare thy spirit, for know thou Emperour, I will enchaunt the old Andronicus With words more fweet and yet more dangerous Then baites to fish, or honny stalkes to heepe, When as the one is wounded with the baite, The other rotted with delicious feede. King. But he will not entreat his sonne for vs. Tamor. If Tamora entreat him then he will, For I can smooth and fill his aged eare, With golden promises, that were his heart Almost impregnable, his old yeares deafe, Yet should both care and harr obey my tongue. Goethou before to be our Embassadour, Say that the Emperour requests a parly Of

Of warlike Lucius, and appoint the meeting.

King. Emillius doethis message honourably,
And if he stand in hostage for his safety,
Bidhim demaund what pledge will please him best.

Emillius. Your bidding shall I doe effectually.

Exit.

Tamora. Now will I to that old Andronicus,
And temper him with all the Art I haue,
To plucke proud Lucius from the warlike Gothes,
And now sweet Emperour be blith againe,
Andbury all thy feare in my deuises.

Satur. Then goe successantly and plead to him.

Exeunt.

Enter Lucius with an Army of Gothes, with Drum and Souldiers.

Lucius. Approued warriours, and my faithfull friends,
I have receaved letters from great Rome,
Which fignifies what hate they beare their Emperour,
And how defirous of our fight they are.
Therefore great Lords be as your titles witnes,
Imperious and impatient of your wrongs,
And wherein Rome hath done you any scathe,
Let him make treble satisfaction.

Goth. Brave slip sprung from the great Andronicus,
Whose name was once our terrour, now our comfort,
Whose high exploits and honourable deeds,
Ingratefull Romerequites with soule contempt,
Beboldein vs, weele follow where thou leadst,
Like stinging Beesin hortest Sommers day,
Led by their maister to the flowred fields,

And be auengd on curfed Tamora:

And

of Titus Andronicus.

And ashe saith, so say we all with him.

Lucius. I humbly thanke him and I thank you all.

But who comes heere led by a lusty Goth?

Enter a Goth leading of Aron with his child in his arms.

Goth. Renowned Lucius from our troups I Braid, Togaze vpona rainous Monasteire, Andas I carnestly did fixe mine eye Vponthe wasted building, suddainely Iheard a childe cry vnderneath a wall: Imade vnto the noyfe, when foone I heard, The crying babe controld with this discourse: Peacetawny flaue, halfe me, and halfe thy dam, Did not thy hue bewray whose brat thou art, Had nature lear thee butthy mothers looke, Villainethou mightst haue bene an Emperour. But where the Bulland Cow are both milk white, They neuer do beget a cole-blacke Calfe: Peace villaine peace, euen thus he rates the babe, For I must beare thee to a trusty Goth, Who when he knowes thou art the Empresse babe, Will hold thee dearely for thy mothers take. With this my weapon drawned rusht vpon him, Surprized him fuddainely, and brought him hither To vse as you thinke needefull of the man.

Lucius. Ohworthy Goth, this is the incarnate deuill, That robd Andronicus of his good hand:
This is the Pearle that pleased your Emptesseeve, And heeres the base fruit of his burning lust,
Say wall-eyd slaue whether would st thou conuay
This growing Image of thy fiendlike sace?
Why dost not speake? what dease, not a word?

A halter Souldiers, hang him on this tree, And by his side his fruit of Bastardie. Aron. Touch not the boy, he is of Royall blood. Luci. Too like the Syrefor ever being good, First hang the childe that he may see it sprall, A fight to vexethe fathers soule withall. Aron. Get me a ladder, Lucius saue the childe, And beare it from me to the Empresse: If thou doe this, Ile shew thee wondrous things, That highly may aduantage thee to heare; If thou wilt not, befall what may befall, Ilespeake no more but vengeance rot you all. Lucius. Say on, and if it please me which thou speakst, Thy childe thall live, and I will fee it nourisht. Aron. And if it please thee? why affare thee Lucius, Twill vexethy foule to heare what I shall speake: For I must talke of murthers, rapes, and massacres, Acts of blacke nights, abhominable deeds, Complots of mischiefe, treason, villanies Ruthfull to heare, yet pittiously performd, And this shall all be buried by my death, Vnlesse thou sweare to me my childe shall line. Lucius. Tell on thy minde, I fay thy childe shall line. Aron. Swearethat he shall, and then I will begin. Lucius. Who should I sweare by, thou beleeuest no God, That graunted, how canst thou beleeue an oath? Avon. What if I doe not, as indeed I doe not, Yet for I know thou art religious, And hast a thing within thee called conscience, With twenty popish tricks and ceremonies, Which I have seene thee carefull to observe, Therefore Lyrge thy oath, for that I know An Idcot holds his bauble for a God, And keepes the oath which by that God he sweares,

To

of Titus Andronicus,

To that Ile vrge him: therefore thou shalt vow By that same God, what God so ere it be That thou adorest, and hast in reuerence, To saue my boy, to nourish and bring him vp, Or else I will discouer nought to thee. Lucius. Euen by my God I sweare to thee I will. Aron. First know thou, I begot him on the Empresse, Lucius. Oh most insatiate luxurious woman! Aron. Tut Lucius, this was but a deede of charitie, To that which thou shalt heare of me anon, Twas her two sonnes that murdered Bassianus, They cut thy fifters tongue and rauisht her, And cut her hands, and trimd her as thou sawest. Lucius, Oh detestable villaine, call'stchou that trimming Aron. Why the was washt, and cut, and trimd, And twas trim sport for them that had the doing ofit, Lucius, Oh barberous beastly villaines like thy selfe! Aron. Indeede I was their tutor to instruct them, That codding spirit had they from their mother, As sure a carde as euer wonne the set: That bloody minde I thinke they learnd of me, Astrue a dog as euer fought at head : Well, let my deedes be witnes of my worth, Itraynde thy bretheren to that guilefull hole, Where the dead corps of Bassianus lay: Iwrote the letter that thy Father found, And hid the gold within the Letter mentioned, Confederate with the Queene, and her two sonnes. And what not done, that thou haft cause to rue, Wherein 1 had no stroke of mischiefe init. I playd the cheater for thy Fathers hand, And when I hadit drew my selfeapart, And almost broke my hart with extreame laughter, I pried me through the crevie of a wall, When

When for his handhe had his two sonnes heads, I Beheld his teares, and laught so hartily, That both mine eyes were rainie like to his: And when I told the Empresse of this sport, She sounded almost at my pleasing tale, And for my tidings gaue metwenty kisses.

What canst thou say all this, and neuer blush?

Aron.
Ilikea blacke dogge as the saying is.

Art thou not forry for these hainous deedes.

Aron.

I that I had not done a thousand more, Euennow I curse the day, and yet I thinke Few come within the compasse of my curse, Wherein I did not some notorious ill, As kill a man, or else deuise his death, Rauisha maid, or plot the way to doe it, Accuse some innocent, and for sweare my selfe, Set deadly enmity betweene two friends, Make pooremens cattell breake their necks, Set fire on barnes and haystackes in the night, And bid the owners quench them with their teares: Oft have I digd vp deadmen from their graves, And fet them vpright at their deere friends doore, Euen when their sorrowes almost was forgot And on their skinnes, as on the barke of trees, Haue with my knife carued in Romaine letters, of Tirus Andronicus.

Let not your forrow die, though I am dead.
Tut, I have done a thousand dreadfull thinges
As willingly as one would kill a flie,
And nothing greeues me hartily indeede,
But that I cannot doe tenne thousand more.
Lucius. Bring downe the deuill, for he must not die
So sweet a death as hanging presently.

Aron. If there be deuils, would I were a deuill,
To live and burne in everlasting fire,
So I might have your company in hell
But to torment you with my bitter tongue.

Lucius. Sirsstophis mouth, and let him speake no more.

Enter Emillius.

Goth. My Lord there is a Messenger from Rome
Desires to be admitted to your presence.

Lucius. Let him come neere.

Welcome Emillius, what sthe newes from Rome?

Emill. Lord Lucius, and you Princes of the Gothes,
The Romaine Emperour greetes you all by me,
And for he vinderstands you are in Armes,
He craves a party at your fathers house
Willing you to demained your hostages,
And they shall be immediately delivered.

Goth. What saies our Generall?

Lucius. Emillius, let the Emperour give his pledges
Vinto my Father, and my Vincle Marcus,
And we willcome: march away.

Exeunt.

Enter Tamora, and her two sonnes disguised.

And

Tamora. Thus in this strange and sad habilliament, I will encounter with Andronicus,

Let

And fay, I am revenge sent from below,
To ioyne with him and right his hainous wrongs,
Knocke at his study where they say he keepes,
To ruminate strange plots of diere Revenge,
Tell him Revenge is come to ioyne with him,
And worke confusion on his enemies.

They knocke and Titus opens bis studie dore.

Titus. Who doth molest my contemplation? Is it your tricke to make me ope the dore, That so my sad decrees may flie away, And all my studie be to no effect? You are deceaud, for what I meane to doe, See heere in bloody lines I have fet downe, And what is written shall be executed. Tamora. Titus, I am come to talke with thee, Tiens. No not a word: how can I grace my talke, Wanting a hand to give that accord, Thou hast the ods of me, therefore no more. Tamora. If thou didst know me thou wouldst talke with Titus. I am not mad, I know thee well enough, Witnes this wretched flump, witnes these crimson lines, Witnes these trenches made by griefe and care, Witnes the tyring day and heavie night, Witnes all forrow that I know thee well Forour proud Empresse, mighty Tamora: Is not thy comming for my other hand? Tamora. Know thou sad man, Iam not Tamora, She is thy enemie, and I thy friend, I am Reuenge sent from th'infernall Kingdome, To ease the grawing vulture of thy minde, By working wreakefull vengeance on thy foes:

of Titus Andronicus.

Comedowne and welcome me to this worlds light, Conferre with me of murder and of death, There's not a hollow Caue or lurking place, Novast obscurity or misty vale, Where bloody murther or deteffed rape, Can couch for feare but I will finde them out, And in their eares tell them my dreadfull name, Revenge, which makes the foule offenders quake. Titus. Artthou Reuenge, and art thou sent to me, To be a torment to mine enemies? Tamera. Iam, therefore come downe and welcome me, Titus. Doe me some sernice ere I come to thee, Loe by thy fide where Rape and Murder stands, Now give some surance that they art Revenge, Stab them or tearethem on thy Charlot wheeles, And then lle come and be thy Waggoner, And whirle along with thee about the Globes. Prouide thee two proper palfreies, as blacke as Ice, To hale thy vengefull Waggon swift away, And finde out murder in their guilty cares. And when thy Caris loaden with their heads, I will dismount, and by the Waggon wheele, Trot like a seruile footeman all day long, Euen from Epeons rising in the East, Vntill his very downefall in the Sea. And day by day ile doe this heavy taske, So thou destroy Rapine and Mut der there. Tamora. These are my ministers and come with me. Titus. Arethem thy ministers, what are they call'd? Tamora. Rape and Murder, therefore called fo, Gause they take vengeance of such kinde of men. Titus. Good Lord how like the Empresse Sonnes they are And you the Empresse: but we worldly men Haue miserable mad mistaking eyes: Oh

Oh sweet Revenge now doe I come to theee, And if one armes imbracement will content thee, I will imbrace thee init by and by. Tamora. This closing with him fits his Lunacie, Whatere I forge to feede his braine-sicke fits, · Doe you vehold, and maintaine in your speeches. For now he firmely takes me for Reuenge, And being credulous in this mad thought, Ilemake him send for Lucius his sonne. And whilft I at a banquet hold him fure. He finde some cunning practise out of hand To scatter and disperse the giddie Gothes, Or at the least make them his enemies: See heere he comes, and I must ply my theame. Tuni. Long have I bene for lorne, and all for thee, Welcome dread fury to my woefull house, Rapine and Murther you are welcome too, How like the Empresse and her sonnes you are. Well are you fitted, had you but a Moore, Could not all hell affoord you such a devill? For well I wotethe Empresse neuer wags But in her company there is a Moore, And would you represent our Queene aright, It were convenient you had such a deuill: But welcome as you are, what shall we doe? Tamora. What wouldst thou have vs doe Andronicus? Deme. Show me a murtherer Ile deale with him. Chiron. Show mea villaine that hath done a rape, And I am fent to be revengd on him, Tamora. Show me a thousand that hauedone thee wrong, And I will be revenged on them all. Titus. Looke round about the wicked streets of Rome, And when thou findst a man that's like thy selfe,

Good murther stab him, heesa murtherer.

Goe

of Titus Andronicus.

Goe thou with him, and when it is thy hap To finde another that is like to thee, Good Rapine stab him, he is a rauisher, Goethou with them, and in the Emperours Court, There is a Queeneattended by a Moore, Well maist thou know her by thy owne proportion, For vp and downe she doth resemble thee. I pray thee doe on them some violent death, They have bene violent to me and mine, Tamora. Well hast thou lessond vs, this shall we doe. But would it please thee good Andronicus, To send for Lucius thy thrice valiant sonne, Who leades towards Rome a band of warlike Gothes, And bid him come and banquet at thy house, When he is heere, euen at thy solemne feast, I will bring in the Empresse and her sonnes, The Emperour himselfe, and all thy foes, And at thy mercy shall they stoope and kneele, And on them shalt then ease thy angry hart: What faies Androusens to this deuise?

Enter Marcus.

Titus. Marcus my brother, tis fad Titus calls,
Goegentle Marcus to thy Nephew Lucius,
Thou shalt enquire him out among the Gothes,
Bid him repaire to me, and bring with him
Some of the chiefest Princes of the Gothes,
Bid him encampe his souldiers where they are,
Tell him the Emperourand the Empresse too
Feast at my house, and he shall feast with them.
This doe thou for my lnue, and so let him,
As he regards his aged Fathers life.

Mar. This will I doe, and soone returne againe.

Tamora

Tamor. Now will I hence about thy busines. And take my ministers along with me.

Titus. Nay, nay, let rape and murder stay with me,

Or els Ile call my brother backe againe,

And cleave to no revenge but Lucius.

Tam. What say you boyes, will you bide with him. Whiles I goe tell my Lord the Emperour, How I have governd our determindiest. Yeelde to his humour, smooth and speake him faire, And tarry with him till I turne againe.

Titus. I know them all, though they suppose me mad,

And will ore-reach them in theyr owne deuises, A payre of cursed hell-hounds and their Dam.

Deme. Madam depart at pleasure, leave vs heere. Tamora. Farewell Andronicus, reuenge now goes

To lay a complot to betray thy foes.

Titus. I know thou dooft, and sweete reuenge farewell. Chiron. Tell vs old man, how shall we be imployd, Titus. But I have worke enough for you to doe,

Publius come hether, Caius, and Valentine,

Publius. What is your will? Titus. Know you these two?

Pub. The Empresse sonnes I take them, Chiron, Demetrins.

Titus. Fie Publius fie, thouart toomuch deceaude,

The one is Murder, Rape is the others name, And therefore binde them gentle Publins,

Cains and Valentine, lay hands on them, Oft haue you heard me wish for such an houres

And now I finde it, therefore binde them fure,

And stop their mouthes if they begin to cry.

Chiron. Villaines forbeare, we are the Empresse sonnes. Publius. And therefore do we what we are commanded. Stop close their mouthes, let them not speake a word, Is he fure bound, looke that you binde them fast.

Enter

of Titus Andronicus,

Enter Titus Andronicus with a knife, and Laninia with a Bason.

Titus. Come, come Lauinia, looke, thy foes are bound, Sirs stop their mouthes, let them not speake to me, But let them heare what fearefull words I vtter. Oh villaines, Chiron and Demetrins, Here stands the spring whome you have staind with mud, This goodly Sommer with your Winter mixt, You kild her husband, and for that vilde fault, Two of her brothers were condemnd to death, My hand cut off, and made a merry iest, Both her sweet hands, her tongue, and that more deere Then hands or tongue, her spotlesse chastity, Inhumaine traytors, you constraind and forst. What would you say if I should let you speake? Villaines for shame you could not beg for grace. Harke wretches how I meane to martyr you, This one hand yet is left to cut your throates Whilst that Lauinia tweene her stumps doth hold The Bason that receaues your guilty blood. You know your Mother meanes to feast with me, And calls herselse Reuenge, and thinkes me mad. Harke villaines, I will grinde your bones to dust, And with your blood and it Ile make a paste, Andof the paste a coffen I will reare, And make two pasties of your shamefull heads, And bid that strumpet your vnhallowed Dam, Like to the earth swallow her owne increase. This is the feast that I have bid her to, And this the banquet fhe shall furfet on, Fer worse then Philomel you vide my daughter, And worfe then Progne I will be reuengd,

And

And now prepare your throats: Lauinia come,
Receaue the blood, and when that they are dead,
Let me goe grinde their bones to powder small,
And with this hatefull liquour temper it,
And in that passelet their vilde heads be bakte,
Come, come, be every one officious,
To make this banket, which I wish may prove
More sterne and bloody then the Centaures seast.

He cuis their throats.

Sonow bring themin, for Ile play the Cooke,
And see them ready against their Mother comes.

Exennt.

Enter Lucius, Marcus, and the Gother. Lucius. Vnckle Mareus, fincetis my fathers minde That I repaire to Rome, I am content. Goth. And ours with thine befall what Fortune will. Lucius. Good Vnckletake you in this barbarous Moore, This rauenous Tiger, this accurfed deuill, Let him receaue no sustenance, fetter him, Till he be brought vnto the Emperous face, For testimony of her foule proceedings: And feethe Ambush of our friends be strong, I feare the Emperour meanes no good to vs. Moore. Some deuill whisper curses in mine eare, And promptmethat my tongue may vtter forth, The venemous mallice of my fwelling heart. Lucius, Away inhumane dogge, vnhallowed slave, Sirs, helpe our vnckle to conuey him in, The trumpets shew the Emperour is at hand.

Sound Trumpets, Enter Emperous and Empresse, with Tribunes and others.

King. What, hath the firmament moe sunnes then one?

Lucius

of Titus Andronicus.

Lucius. What bootes it thee to call thy selfe a sunne?

Marens, Romes Emperour and Nephew breake the parle

These quarrels must be quietly debated.

The feast is ready which the carefull Titus,

Hath ordained to an honourable end,

For peace, for loue, for league and good to Rome:

Please you therefore draw nie and take your places.

Saturn. Marens we will.

Sound trumpets, enter Titus like a Cooke, placing the mease on the Table, and Lauinia with a vaile oner her face. Titut. Welcom my gracious Lord, welcom dread Queen Welcome ye warlike Gothes, welcome Lucius, And welcome all, although the cheere be poore, Twill fill your stomacks, please you eat of it. Satur. Why art thou thus attired Andronicus? Titus. Becaufe I would be sure to haue all well, To entertaine your highnes, and your Empresse. Tam. We are beholding to you good Andronicus, Titur. And if your highnes knew my heart, you were: My Lord the Emperour resolue me this, Wasit well done of rath Virginius, To flay his daughter with his owne right hand, Because she was enforst, staind, and deflowrde? Saint, It was Andronieus. Tiens. Your reason mighty Lord? Satur. Because the girle should not suruiue her shame. And by her presence still renew his forrowes. Timi. A reason mighty, strong, and effectuall, A patterne, president, and lively warrant, For memost wretched to performe the like, Die, die, Lauinia, and thy shame with thee, And with thy shame thy Fathers sorrow die. he kills her. Saturn. What hast thou doue vnnaturall and vnkinde? TITHE

Tit. Kild her for whome my teares haue mabe me dlind. I am as wofull as Virgi ins was, And have a thousand times more cause then he, To doe this outrage, and it is now done. King. What was she rauisnt? tell who did the deede. Tuns. Wilt please you cat, wilt please your highnes feed? Tam. Why hast thou staine thine onely daughter Tuns. Not I, twas Chiron and Demetrins. They rauisht her, and cut away her tongue, And they, twas they, that did her all this wrong. King. Goe fetch them hether to vs presently, Titus. Why there they are both, baked in that pie, Whereof their mother daintiliehath fed, Eating the flesh that she herselfe hath bred. Tis true, tis true, witnes my knives sharpe point, Hestabsthe Empresse.

Empe. Die franticke wretch for this accursed deede. Lucius. Canthesonnes eye behold his father bleede? There's meede for meede, death for a deadly deede.

Marcus. You sad fac'd men, people and sons of Rome, By vprores seuerd like a flight of fowle, Scattred by windes and high tempeltious gufts, Oh let me teach you how to knit againe This scattred corne into one mutuall sheasse, These broken limbs againe into one body.

Raman Lord. Let Rome herselse bebane vnto her selfe, And shee whome mightickingdomes cursie too, Like a forlorne and desperate cast away, Doe shamefull execution on her selse. But if my frostie signes and chaps of age, Graue witnesses of true experience, Connot induce you to attend my words, Speake Romes deere friend, as erst our Ancestor,

When

of Titus Andronicus.

When with his solemne tongue he did discourse To loue-sicke. Didoes sad attending eare, The story of that balefull burning night, When subtile Greekes surprized King Priams Troy, Tell vs what Sinon hath bewitcht our eares, Or who hath brought the fatall engine in That gives our Troy, our Romethe civill wound. My harris not compact of flint nor steele, Nor can Ivtter all our bitter griefe, But floods of teares will drowne my Oratorie, And breake my very vttrance even in the time When it should move you to attend me most, Lending your kind commiseration. Heereisa Captaine let him tell the tale, Your harts will throb and weepe to heare him speake. Lucius. Then noble auditory be it knowne to you, That curfed Chironand Demetrius Were they that murdred our Emperours brother, And they itwere that ranished our fister, For their fell faults our brothers were beheaded, Our Fathersteares despiss, and basely cousend, Ofthat true hand that fought Romes quarrell out, And sent her enemies vnto the graue. Lastly my selfe vnkindly banished, The gates shut on me and turnd weeping out, To beg reliefe among Romes enemies, Who drownd their enmity in my true teares, And opt their armes to imbrace me as a friend, and I am the turned forth be it knowne to you, That have preserud her welfare in my blood, And from her bosome tooke the enemies point,

My scars can witnes, dumb although they are,

Sheathing the seele in my adventrous body.

Alasyou know I am no vaunter I,

That

That my report is instand full of truth,
But soft, me thinkes I doe digresse too much,
Cyting my worthles praise, Oh pardon me,
For when no friends are by, men praise themselves.

Marcu. Now is my turne to speake: behold this childe. Of this was Tamora deliuered, The issue of an irreligious Moore, Chiefe Architect and plotter of these woes. The villaine is aliue in Time house. And as he is to witnes this is true, Now judge what course had Tirms to revenge. These wrongs, vnspeakeable past pacience, Or more then any living man could beare. Now you have heard the truth, what fay you Romanes? Have we done ought amisse? show vs wherein, And from the place where you behold va now, The poore remainder of Andronicie Will hand in hand all headlong cast vs downe, And on the ragged stones beat forth our braines, Andmake a mutuall closure of our house: Speake Romaines speake, and if you say we shall, Lochand in hand Lucius and I will fall.

Emillius. Come come thou reverent man of Rome,
And bring our Emperour gently in thy hand,
Lucius our Emperour for well I know,

The common voyce doe cry it shall be so.

Marcus. Lucius, all haile Romes royall Emperour,

Goe goe into old Tiens for rowfull house,
And hither hale that misbelieving Moore,
To be adjudged some direfull slaughtering death,
As punishment for his most wicked life.

Lucius all haile to Romes gracious Gouernour.

Lucius. Thankes gentle Romaines may I gouerne fo,
To heale Romes harmes, and wipe away her woe:
But

of Titus Andronicus.

But gentle people giue me aime a while,
Fornature putsme to a heauie taske,
Standall aloofe, but Vnckle draw you neere,
To shed obsequious teares vpon this trunke,
Oh take this warme kisse on thy pale cold lips,
These forrowful drops vpon thy bloud-slaine face,
The last true duties of thy noble sonne.

Mare. Teare for teare, and louing kisse for kisse, Thy brother Marens tenders on thy lips, Oh were the summe of these that I should pay, Countlesse and infinite, yet would kepay them.

Lucius. Come hither boy come, come and learne of vs,
To melt in showers, the Grandsier lou'd thee well,
Many a time he daunst thee on his knee,
Sung thee asseepe, his louing breast thy pillow,
Many a marter hath he told to thee,
Meete and agreeing with thine infancie,
In that respect them like a louing childe,
Shed yet some sinall drops from thy tender spring,
Because kinde nature doth require it so,
Friends should associate friends in griefe and woe.
Bid him farewell, commit him to the grave,

Doe them that kindnes, and take leave of them.

Puer. O Grandsier, Grandsire, even with all my hart,

Would I were dead so you did live againe.

O Lord I cannot speake to him for weeping,

My teares will choake me if I ope my mouth.

Romaine. You and Andronicie have done with woes,

Giue sentence on this execrable wretch, Thathath bene breeder of these dire euents.

Lucius. Set him breast deepe in earth and famish him There let him stand and raue andery for foode, If any one relecues or putties him, For the offence he dies, this is our doome.

Some

Some stay to see him fastned in the earth.

Aron. Ah why should wrath be mute, and sury dumb.

I am no baby I, that with base praiers

I should repent the euils I have done,

Ten thousand worsethen euer yet I did,

Would I performe if I might have my will,
If one good deed in all my life I did,

I doe repent it from my very sonle.

Lucius. Some louing friends conucy the Emperour hence
And give him buriall in his fathers grave,
My father and Laviniashall forthwith
Be closed in our housholds monument:
As for that hanous Tiger Tamora,
No funerell rite, nor man in mourneful weeds,
No mourneful bell shall ring her buriall.

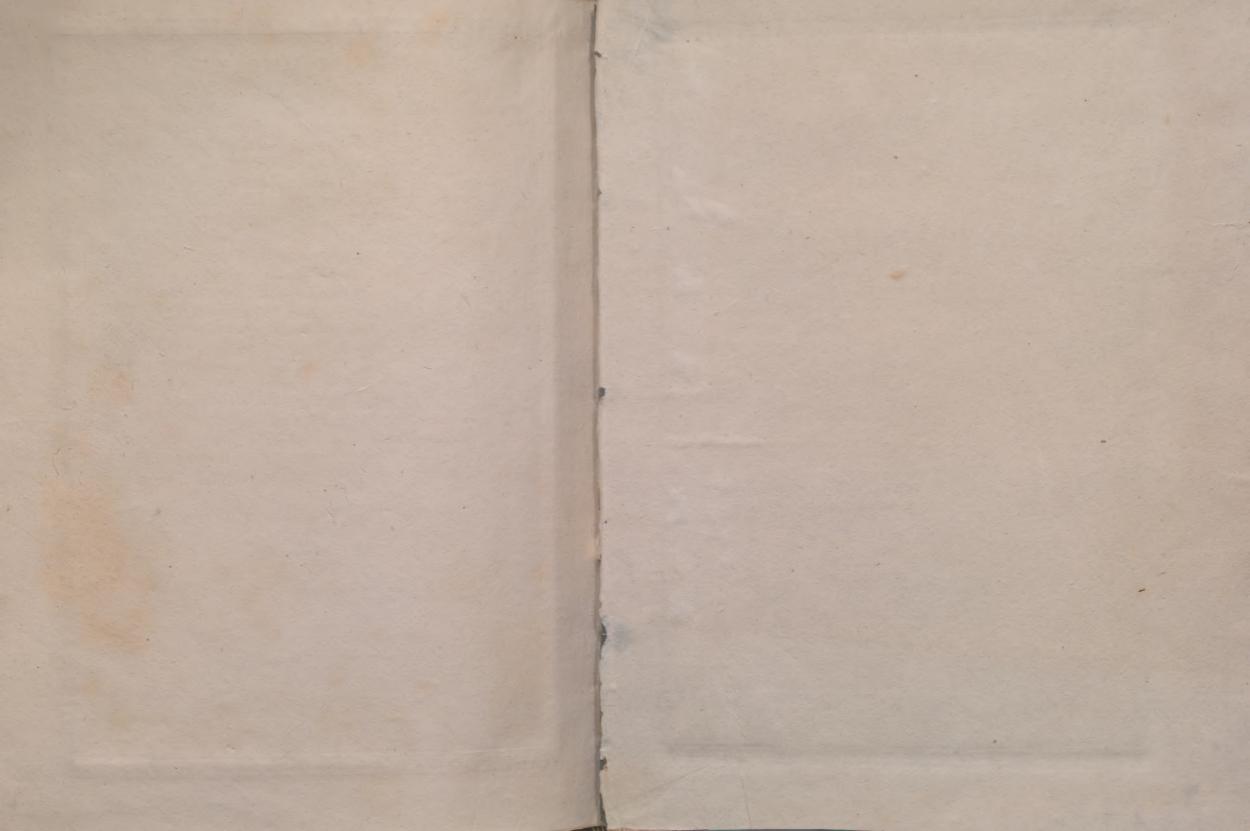

But throw her forth to beafts and birds to prey;
Her life was beaftly and devoid of pitty,
And being so shall have like want of pitty.
Seeiustice done on Aron that dambd Moore,

Seciustice done on Aron that dambd Moore, By whome our heavy haps had their beginning:

Then afterwards to order well the state, That like events may ner eit ruinate.
