

ABS. 1. 81.63

Robert Prouse

BROM AUTHENTIC DOCUMENT

HISTORY Cuxu OF THE

WITCHES

RENFREWSHIRE.

WHO WERE BURNED ON THE GALLOWGREEN OF PAISLEY.

PUBLISHED BY

THE EDITOR OF THE PAISLEY REPOSITORY.

Magic Terrors, Spells of mighty power,

" Witches, who rove at midnight hour."

PAISLEY: PRINTED BY J. NEILSON, FOR JOHN MILLAR, BOOKSELLES. AND INVESTIG BOCKET WITE

A .HISTORY

WITCHES

TO VIEW MINERIAL

not touchang

The state of the s

to the sure of secretives.

Robert Brown Par Inderwood Parker

CONTENTS

The state of the s
Mackerei 's Tre tife on Witcheraft	5
Of the bewitching of Sir George Maxwell 3	5
Account of Janet Douglas, a remarkable girl 4	3
Preface to the Narrative of Christian Shaw 3	¥
Narrative of Christian Shaw 6	8
Information Subjoined by the first Editors to the Narrative 21	3
Appendix No. A. Subscribed Attestation of Dr. M. Brisbane II	2
Subscribed Attestation of Mr. Henry Marshall 11	9
Warrant of Privy Council, dated 19th Jan. 1697 . ibie	l
Dr. Matthew Br fbane's deposition on the trial . 12	8
Confessions of Margaret and Janet Rodger . ibi-	Za .
Appendix No. B. Preface to Two Letters . 32
Letter I. Contains the Advocate's Speech to the Inquell 13	2
Letter H. Contains Answers to Objections on the trial of the Witches
Appendix No. C. Confession and Death of John Reid	8
Appendix No. D. Sermon preached by Mr. D. Brown 16	8
Appendix No. E. Some passages which fell out before and at the execution of the Seven Witches . 18	2
.f Ob.:0: 01	7
Appendix No. G. Dr. Walter Young's Account of Christian	4
Cham to	2
Appendix No H. Information concerning Christian Shaw's	10
	33

Appendix No 1. Witch executed at Painley in 1661 1914
Appendix No K. Act of Parameters off d in 1736 192
Appendix No L. Hugo Arn to remarks on the above ACt 193
Appendix No M. Account of Acts of the General Affembly, a positive detection of the Acts of the General Affembly, a positive detection of the Acts of the Act

The Publisher fineerely thanks his numerous Subscribers, for their liberal encouragement of this Works, which has far exceeded his most fanguine expectations. While he has, at a considerable trouble and expences collected Old Manuferipts, and other materials on the subject, besides what were promited in his Prospectus, and by that means he has been enabled to make his Work more complete, he has the satisfaction to think, that the most of his Subscribers will be well pleased with the Work. However, he is not of the opinion that his Book will please every person, for that is what no Book has even yet done.

The Publisher cannot with propriety omit returning his warmed thanks to Thomas Brisland, Eq. or Fergusie; William M. Kerrell, Efq.; Maxwelltown; Robert Paterion, Efq.; Provoth of Renfrew, and other Landeu Gentlemen he Faculty of Procurator, Pailey, and particularly Melfre. William M. Walter, and Fenny Wilson, Waiter, for the pieces he received from them, and the interell they took in the Work.

TREATISE ON WITCHCRAFT.

By Sir George Mackenzie of Rosehaugh, who was king's advocate, and one of the lords of the privy council in Scotland.

From his "Laws and Customes of Scotland, in Matters Criminal."

Printed in 1678.

CONTENTS.

Wierus' arguments against the punishing of witches-Anfavers to Wierus-Some observations which may persuade a judge to be cautious in judging this crime - Upon what prefumptions witches may be apprehended-Who are judges competent thereto-Padion with the devil-Renouncing of baptism-The devil's mark-Threatening to do mischief, how punishable-Malesices where there are no connection between the cause and the effect-The using magic arts for good ends, how punishable-Confulting with witches, how punished-What the being defamed by the witches imports - A witch's confession not punishable, except the thing confessed be possible- When ther the transportations confessed, be real, and though real, whether punishable-Whether a witch can cause any person be possessed-Whether penetration be possible -Whether transformation be possible-Whether the devil can make brutes to Speak, or raise storms-Whether witches can transfer difeafes, and whether it be lawful to feek their help for this-Whether witches can kill by their looks-Whether witches can procure love by their potions - How witches torment men by their images Whether confessions before kirk sessions be relevant - What can be witnesses in witchcraft - Witchcraft how punished able by the civil laws of England and Scotland Confulters of fortune-tellers, how punishedTHAT there are witches, divines cannot doubt, fince the word of God hath ordained that no witch shall live; nor lawyers in Scotland, seeing our law ordains it to be punished with death. And though many lawyers is Holland, and essewhere, do think, that albeit there were witches under the law, yet there are none under the gospel; the devil's power having ceased, as to these, as well as in his giving responses by oracles.

I. Wierus, that great patron of witchcraft, endeavours to maintain his opinion by these arguments, 1. That auch as are accused of witchcrast, are ordinarily filly old women, whose age and fex disposeth them to melancholy, and whose melancholy disposeth them to a madness, which should render their confessions very suspected, and in this crime there are feldom other proofs, whereas the things confessed are fo horrid, that it cannot be imagined any reasonable creature would commit them. 7. God can only work the miracle ascribed to witches, he who is the author of nature being only able to alter or divert its course: And the devil doth but delude the fancy of poor creatures, as fevers and melancholy mifrepresent objects. Nor are such as are cheated in the one more guilty than they who are fick of the other. And it is fevere to burn men and women for doing that which is concluded impossible to be done by them. 3. It is unjust to punish them for doing ill by charms, except it could be first proved that these charms produced the effects that are punishable; and lawyers should argue thus, those who kill or hust men or beasts by unlawful means, are punishable by death. But so it is, that witches and charmers kill men and beafts by unlawful means, and therefore ought to be panished by death, of which fyllogifm Wierus denies the minor; for it can never be proved that verses, croffes, or laying flesh in the threshold, &c can destroy men or beasts, these being causes very disproportionable to such effects, there being no contact betwixt the agent and patient in these cases. 4. These who execute the will of God are not punishable, for that is their duty, and so cannot be their crime. But so it is, that whatever the devil or witches do, is decreed by God either for trial or punishment expressly, and without his permission and those. And if the devil were not acting here by obedience, or were at liberty. he would not leave any one man undestroved, or any of God's works undefaced.

But that there are witches, and that they are punishable capitally, not only when they poifon or murder, but even for enchanting and deluding the world, is clear by an express text, Exod xxii. verse 18. " Thou shalt not fuffer a witch to live." And it is observable, that the same word which expresses a witch here, is that which is used in Exod. vii. to express those magicians who deluded only the people by transforming a rod into a ferpent, as Mofes had done, though no person was prejudged by their cheat and illusion. Likeas, Lev. xxixand 27. It is ordained that "a man or a woman that hath a familiar spirit, or that is a wizard, shall surely be put to death; they shall stone them with stones; their blood shall be upon them." Which laws were in such observation amongst the Jews, that the witch of Endor, 1 Sam. xxviii. was afraid to use her forcery before the king, because the king had cut off those who had familiar spirits and wizards out of the land. And so great igdignation did the eternal God bear to this fin, that he did destroy the ten tribes of Israel because they were addicted to it

Nor were the Jews only enemies to this vice, but even the Heathens, following the dictates of nature, punished witches as enemies to the author of it; for the Perfeath dashed their heads against stones, as Mining observes, ad, Item its Cornelia inst. de pub. and Tacius, the six Annal. tells us that Pabligus Marcius and Pituanus, were executed for this exime; for which likewise Valerius Maximus, lib vic cap. iii. tells us that Publicia and Luwina were with threefcore and ten other Romans banged.

But fince it is expressly condemned in feripure, and annay general councils, fuch as Aurelian, Toletan, and Anaciritan, it should not be lawful for us to debate what the law hath expressly condemned, by the same reason, that we should deny witcher, we must deny the truth of all history, ecclesialtic and securiar. It is sure that the devil having the power and will to prejudge mea, cannot but be ready to execute all that is in witcheraft: And it is as credible that God would suffer men to be convinced by these means, that there are spirits, and that by these means he would give continued proofs of his power in repressing the devil, and of the necessity that silly men have of depending upon his infinite power.

To the former arguments it may be answered, that as to the first, all fins and vices are the effects of delusion ; nor are witches more deluded by melancholy, than murderers are by rage and revenge. And though it hath mever been feen, that persons naturally mad, have been either guilty of, or punished for this crime, the devil defigning in this crime to gain only fuch as can damn themselves by giving a free consent. Yet if madness could be proved, or did appear; it would certainly defend both against the guilt and punishment: And therefore fuch a series of clear circumstances should concur before a person be found guilty of this crime, as should secure the pannel, and fatisfy the judge fully in the quærie. But fince daily experience convinces the world that there may be fuch a crime, and that the law exacts either confession, or clear proofs, who can condemn the law as rigorous in this cafe, fince, without believing thefe, there could be no justice administered, and whilst judges shunned to punish it in some cases, they behoved to suffer it from the fame arguments to go unpunished in all cafes.

To the fecond, it is answered, that though neither the devil nor witches can work miracles, yet the offering to cheat the world by a commerce with the deril, and the very believing that the devil is able to do fuch things for them, should be a fufficient crime; but much more when they believe all those things to be done by themselves, they giving their own express consignt to the crime, and by concurring by all that in them is to the commission of it. Likeas, it is undentable, that the devil knowing all the fecrets of nature, may, by applying actives to pallives that are unknown to us, produce real effects which seem immossible.

To the third, though charms be not able to produce the effects that are punishable in witches, yet since these effects cannot be produced without the devil, and that he will not employ himself at the defire of any who have not resigned themselves wholly to him, it is very just that the users of these should be punished, being guilty at least of apostacy and herefy.

The fourth argument is but a mere and filly foshifm; for though God in his providence permits at leaft all things that are done, to be done, yet such as contemm either the commands of him or his vicegerents, ought to be punished.

I cannot but acknowledge that there are some secrets in nature which would have been looked upon in the first authors as the effects of magic: And I believe that in the duller nations a philosopher drawing iron with a loadflone might have run a great risk of being burned; and it is hard to give a judgment of Naudeus' learned book in favours of the Persian magicians, the Assyrian chaldeans, the Indian gymnosophists, and the druids of the Gauls; for it cannot be denied but that many true mathematicians and physicians have passed for magicians in the duller ages of the world; but as to this, there is now no fear, fince learning hath fo fufficiently illuminated the world, so as to diftinguish betwixt these two. But I am fill jealous of those sages who were frequented by familiar spirits, though they were otherwise very excellent men, fuch as Porphir, Jamblicus, Plotin, and others, who pretended by the purity of their lives to be fo [piritual. as to deserve the friendship of spirits : for besides that the primitive fathers and doctors of the church have tellified againf fuch as mere magicians. It is not intelligible how those fpirits that frequented them could be good, fince they were tempted to fall from the true religion to paganifm, and did offer such facrifices as the true God did never allow; and if fuch imposures were allowed, it were easy for any to defend themselves, being truly witches.

II. Albeit witchcraft be the greatest of crimes, fince it includes in it the groffest of herefies, and blasphemies, and treasons against God, in preferring to the Almighty his rebel and enemy, and in thinking the devil worthier of being ferved and reverenced, and is accompanied with murder, poisoning, bekiality, and other horrid crimes: Yet I conclude only from this, that when witches are found guilty, they should be most severely punished, not with fcourging and banishment, as the custom of Savoy was related to be by Gothofred, hoc tit, but by the most ignominious of deaths. Yet from the horridness of this crime. I do conclude, that of all crimes it requires the clearest relevancy, and most convincing probation. And I condemn, next to the witches themselves, those cruel and too forward judges, who burn persons by thousands as guilty of this crime, to whom I shall recommend these confiderations.

r. That it is not prefumable that any who hear of the kindnels of Gold to men, and of the devil's malice against them, of the rewards of heaven, and torments of hell, would deliberately enter into the fervice of that wicked spirit, whom they know to have no riches to bestoo, not power to help, except it be allowed by permission that he may tempt men: and that he being a liar from the beginning, his premise a clerve no belief, especially since in no man's experience he lath ever advantaged any perfon; whereas on the contrary, his service hath brought all who entered in it, to the slake.

2. Those poor persons who are ordinarily accused of this crime, are poor ignorant creatures, and oft-times women who understand not the nature of what they are aceufed of; and many miffake their own fears and apprehenous for witcheraft; of which I fhail give you two inflances, one of a poor of the p

others is moft mytherious.

3. The fepoor creatures, when they are defamed, become fo confounded with fear, and the clofe prifon in which they are kept, and fo flarved for want of meat and fleepy (either of which wants is enough to diforder the flrongelt reason) that hardly wifer and more ferious people than they would escape diffraction: and when men are confounded with fear and apprehension, they will imagine things very ridiculous and absurd; and as no man would escape a profound melancholy upon such an occasion, and traindy that harray wher aim more terious people times they would efeape diffraction; and when men are confounded with fear and apprehenfion, they will imagine things very ridiculous and abfurd; and as no man would efeape a profound melancholy upon fuch an occafion, and amidit fuch utages; therefore I remit to physicians and others to confider what may be the effects of melancholy, which hath oft made men, who appeared otherwise folio enough, imagine they were horfes, or had bit their noise, &c. And fince it may make men err in things which are obvious to their fences, what may be expected as to things which transfered the wifefi mens reason.

4. Most of these poor creatures are tortured by their keepers, who being persuaded they do God good service, think it their duty to vex and torment poor prisoners; and I know ex certissima scientia ", that most of all their ever were taken, were tormented after this manner, and this usage was the ground of all their consession; and albeit the poor miscreants cannot prove this usage, the actors being the only witnesses, yet the judge should be afraid of it, as that which at first did elicit the consession; and for fear of which they dare not retract it.

5. I went when I was a justice-depute to examine some women who had confessed tadicially, and one of them, who was a filly creature, told me under fecrecy, that the had not confessed because she was guilty, but being a poor creature, who wrought for her meat, and being defamed for a witch, the knew the would flarve, for no person thereafter would either give her meat or lodging, and that all men would beat her, and hound dogs at her, and that therefore the defined to be out of the world; whereupon the wept most bitterly and upon her knees called God to witness what she said. Another told me that she was afraid the devil would challenge a right to her, after the was faid to be his fervant, and would haunt her, as the minister said when he was desiring her to confess; and therefore the defired to die. And really ministers are ofttimes indifereet in their zeal, to have poor creatures to confess in this; and I recommend to judges, that the wifest ministers should be fent to them, and those who are fent, should be cautious in this.

6. Many of them confels things which all divines conclude impossible, as transmutation of their bodies into beasts, and money into stones, and their going through close doors, and a thouland other ridiculous things, which have no truth nor existence but in their fancy.

7. The acculers here are maîters, or neighbours who had their children dead, and are engaged by grief to fuffeet thefe poor creatures. I knew one likewife burned because the lady was jealous of her with her husbandr and the crime is so odious that they are never affished or defended by their relations.

8. The witnesses and affizers are asraid that if they escape, that they will die for it, and therefore they take an unwarrantable latitude. And I have observed that searce ever any who were accused before a country assistance.

of neighbours did escape that trial.

9. Commissions are granted ordinarily to gentlemen, and others in the country who are suspected upon this account; and who are not exactly enough acquainted with the nature of this crime, which is fo debateable amongfichte moft learned; nor have the pannels any to plead for them, and to take notice who are led as winteffers; fo that many are admitted who are tefles inhabiles *, and fuffected: and albeit their confellions are fent to, and advited by the counfel before fuch commillions be granted, yet the counfel cannot know how their confellions were emitted, nor all the circumflances which are necessary and cannot be known at a dillance. Very many of these poor filly women do re-seal at the stake from the confess they emitted at the bar, and yet have died very penitent: and as it is very presumable that few will accuse themselves, or confess against their own life, yet very many confess this crime.

111. The method I shall use in treating of this crime shall be, 1. Upon what suspicion witches may be apprehended. 2. What judges are competent. 3. What ditties are relevant. 4. What probation is sufficient. 5. What is the ordinary punishment. As to the first, I know it is ordinary in Scotland not only that magistrates do apprehend wisches almost upon any dilation, but even gentlemen, and fuch as are mailers of the ground, do likewise make them prisoners, and keep them so till they transmit them at their pleasure to justices of peace, magiftrates, or fome open prisons. But all this procedure is most unwarrantable. For gentlemen, and such as are vefted with no authority, should upon no account, without a special warrant, apprehend any upon suspicion that they are witches, fince to apprehend is an act of jurifdiction; and therefore I think no prison should receive any as suspected of witchcraft, until they know that the person offered to them, be apprehended by lawful authority. 2. Since imprisonment is a punishment, and constantly attended with much infamy to the name, and detriment to the affairs of him who is imprisoned, especially in witchcraft, I do conclude, that there must some prefumption precede all inquifition. For the meaneft degrees of inquifition, though without captor, does fomewhat defame; and that the person should not be apprehended, except it appear, by the event of the inquisition, that the lies under either many or pregnant suspicions; such as that she is defamed by other witches; that she hash been seriest of an evil fame; that she hash been sound charming, or that the ordinary instruments of charming be found in her house. And according to Delrio's opinion, lib. v. fect. ii, ad assumed informationes, fufficiant levia judicia, sed gravia requirentur ad hocut citetur reus, & ut judex specialiter inquirat.

Improper witnesses

IV. Witchcraft was crimen utriufque fori,† by the canon law; and with us the kirk feffions uffed to inquire into it, in order to the feandal; and to take the confeffion of the parties, to receive witneffes against them; as is clear by the process of Janet Barker and Margaret Lawder, December 9th 1643. But since so much weight is laid upon the depositions there emitted, kirk-feffions should be very cautious in their procedures.

By the act of parliament Q. M. o part. 73. act. All fleriffs, lords of regalities, and their deputes, and all other judges having power to execute the fame, are ordained to execute that act against witcheraft; which can import no more, but that they should concur to the punishment of the crime, by apprehending, or imprisoning the party fuspected: but it doth not follow, that because they may concur, that therefore they are judges competent to the cognition of the crimer fines the relevancy in it is oft-times fo intricate, and the procedur requires necessarily so much arbitrarines, and the procedure requires necessarily so much arbitrarines, and the procedure to the cognition thereof folely to the justice.

In order to take information, light trials fuffice, but particular ones are required to this one, that the perfon accused be summoned, and that the judge may make special enquiry.

eaurt. Nor find I any inflances wherein thefe inferior courts have tried this crime. And albeit the council do fittings grant commissions to countrymen, yet that seems and the seems of th

V. As to the relevancy in this crime, the first article uffet to be padion to ferve the devil, which is certainly relevant per fe, without any addition, as is to be feen is all the indichments, especially in that of Margaret Hutchifon, August toth 1661. And by Delrio, carpz. p. t. quest, 47, and others; but because the devil ufeth to appear in the similitude of a man, when he defireth these poor creatures to ferve him; therefore they should be interrogate, if they know him to be the devil when they condescended to his service.

Paction with the devil is divided by the lawyers, in expressum & tacitum, an express and tacit paction. Express paction is performed either by a formal promise given to the devil then prefent, or by prefenting a supplication to him, or by giving the promife to a proxy or commissioner empowered by the devil for that effect, which is used by some who dare not see himself. The formula fet down by Delrio, is, I deny God, creator of heaven and earth, and I adhere to thee, and believe in thee. But by the journal books it appears, that the ordinary form of express paction confessed by our witness is a simple promise to serve him. Tacit paction is either when a person who hath made no express paction, useth the words or figns which forcerers use, knowing them to be fuch, either by their books, or discourse; and this is condemned as forcery, Can. 26. quest. 5. and is relevant to infer the crime of witchcraft, or to use these words and figns, and though the user know them not to be such; it is no crime, if the ignorance be probable, and if the user be content to abstain, Delrio, lib. ii. queft. 4.

VI. Renotincing of baptifm is by Delrio made an effect of padion, yet with us it is per fe * relevant, as was found in the former process of Margaret Hutchison; and the folemnity confessed by our witches, is by putting one hand to the crown of the head, and another to the fole of the foot, renouncing their baptism in that possess, and to wipe off their brow the old baptism: and our witches confess always the giving them new names, which are very ridiculous, as Red-Anaks, Sergeant, &c.

VI. The devil's mark ufeth to be a great article with us. but it is not per fe found relevant, except it be confessed by them, that they got that mark with their own confent: quo cafu +, it is equivalent to a paction. This mark is given them, as is alledged, by a nip in any part of the body, and it is blue ; Delrio calls it ftigma, or character, lib. ii. quest. 4. and alledges that it is fometimes like the impression of a hare's foot, or the foot of a rat, or spider, I. v. fect. 4. num. 28. Some think that it is impossible there can be any mark which is infensible, and will not bleed; for all things that live must have blood, and so this place behoved both to be dead and alive at once, and behoved to live without aliment; for blood is the aliment of the body; but it is very eafy to conceive that the devil may make a place intentible at a time, or may apply things that may fqueeze out the blood.

This mark is difcovered among us by a pricker, whose trade it is, and who learns it as other trades; but this is a horrid cheat; for they alledge that if the place bleed not, or if the person be not fensible, he or she is infallibly a witch. But as Delrio confesses, it is very hard to know any fuch mark, a neco, clavo, vel impertigine naturall; and there are many pieces of dead fieth which are infensible even in living bodies; and a villain who used this trade with us, being in the year 1666, apprehended for other villanies, did confess all this trade to be a mere cheat,

^{*} By itself. † In which case.

VIII. Threatening to do mischief, if any evil follow immediately, hath been too ordinarily found a relevant article to infer witchcraft with us. Thus Agnes Finnie was purfued in anno 1643, upon the general article of having witched feveral persons, and particularly for these articles, 1. That William Fairlie having nick-named and called her Annie Winnie, she sware in rage he should go halting home, and within twenty-four hours he took a palfy. 2. That Beatrix Nisbit refuling to pay the faid Agnes the annual rent of two dollars owing by Hector Nisbit her father, she told her she should repent it, and within an hour thereafter she lost her tongue, and the power of her right fide. 3. That Janet Greintoun having refused to carry away two herrings she had bought from the faid Agnes, and to pay for them, she told her it should be the last meat she should eat, and within a little after she fell fick : against which articles it was there alledged that this libel was not relevant, and could not go to the knowledge of an inquest. 1. Because no means were condescended upon from which the witchcraft was inferred; and if this libel were relevant, it would be relevant to libel generally that the pannel were a witch. 1. Affizers are only judges to the matter of fact, and not to what confifts in jure*; but so it is, that if this libel were to pass to the knowledge of an inquest, all the debate in jure behoved to be before the affize before whom the pannels procurators behoved to debate how far minæ & damnum sequutum+ are relevant, and how far any person is punishable as a witch, though no charms or other means commonly used by witches be condescended upon; and as to the threatenings, they were not relevant, feeing they had not all the requifites which are expressed by the doctors as requifite, for they were not specific, bearing the promife to do a particular ill, as that Fairlie should take a palfy, or Nisbit lose her tongue. 2. There was not a preceding reason of enmity proved, nor is it probable that for fo fmall a matter as a herring, or the annual rent of two dollars, the would have killed any person, and exposed herself to hazard ; nor was the effect immediate, nor fuch as could have proceeded from any other natural cause, without all which had concurred. Delrio, lib. 5. fect 3. is very clear, that minæ etiam cum damno fequuto*, are not fo much as a prefumption: but though all these did concur, it is very clear, both from Delrio, ibid. and Farin. queft. 5. num. 37. That all thefe threatenings are not sufficient to infer the crime of witchcraft. Lastly, it was offered to be proved, that some of these persons died of a natural disease, depending upon causes preceding that threatening : notwithstanding of all which, the libel was found relevant, and the was burned. But I think this decision very hard, and very contrary to the opinion of all received writers, who think, that albeit minæ be adminiculatæ† with all the former advantages, & probatæ de ea quæ folet minas exequit, yet the fame are only sufficient to infer an arbitrary punishment, not cotporal, but pecuniary; and certainly fuch a wicked cuftom as threatening, is in itself a crime: and thus it was only well found to be crimen in suo generes, in the process led against Katherine Ofwald, Nov. 11th 1629. IX. Sometimes articles are libelled, wherein the malefice hath no dependence at all upon the means used: and thus it was libelled against Margaret Hutchison, August 20th 1661. That John Clark's wife being fick, she came to the bed fide when all the doors and windows were fast, and combed her head several nights; and the last of these nights she came to the bed side, and put her hand to the woman's pap; whereupon the child died, which article was found relevant per fe. And it was li-

^{*} Even threatening with following damage. † Threats attefled. † And proven concerning her who was accustomed to execute these threatenings. § Crime in its own ki 1.

belled against Janet Cock, September 7th 1661, that & woman called Spindie being at enmity with her, she gave her a cuff, whereupon Spindie immediately distracted : and being reproved therefore by the minister of Dalkeith, he immediately distracted; which article was likewise found relevant, being joined with fame and delation : which decitions are in my opinion very dangerous, for they want a fure foundation, and are precedents whereby judges may become very arbitrary. And against these I may oppone a third allegiance used in the former procels against Agnes Finnie, wherein it was alledged, that the conclusion of all criminal libels should be necessarily inferred from the deed subsumed, and that conclusion femper fequitur debiliorem partem : nam libellus est fyllogilmus apodicticus, fed non probabilis *; and therefore except the libel could condescend upon some means used by the pannel, from which the malefice were necesfarily inferred, it could not be concluded that these malifices were done by her, or that she was guilty of the wrong done. Thus Bodin, lib. 4 does conclude, that veneficæ non funt condemnandæ licet fint deprehenfæ cum busonibus, offibus, aliisque instrumentis egredientes exovili licet oves immediate moriantur + And Perkins, cap. 6. afferts, that neither defamation nor threatenings, albeit what is threatened does follow, nor mala famat, nor the defuncts laying the blame of their death upon the perfou accused (called inculpatio by the doctors) can infer this crime, though all these be conjoined; for in his opinion, nothing can be a fufficient ground to condemn a witch, except the pannel's own confession, or the depositions of two famous witnesses, deponing upon means used by the pannel. And it is remarkable, that in the chapter immediately subsequent to that wherein witches are or-

That a conclusion always follows the weaker party, for a libel is an apollicite fyllogism, but is not at all 1 robable.

[†] That witches are not to be condemned with toads, bone, or of the inframents, and unless the fixer die immediately when they go ut of the fold.

† Bad fame,

Minarily to be put to death, God hath expressy ordained that " out of the mouth of two or three witnesses every against Hobel Young for witchcraft, Feb. 4. 1620 and against Katherine Ofwald, Nov. 11. 1629. This point is likewise debated, it being libelled against the said Katherine, that by her witchcraft she caused a cow give blood in flead of milk, and caufed a woman fall and break a rib in her fide. Against which it was alledged, that quo & ad quem inter caufam & effectum*: but on the conanother natural cause, viz. from lying upon an ant or emmet hill; and therefore I think that because we know not what virtue may be in herbs, stones, or other things which may be applied, it were very hard to find cures charms, or fpells, to be witchcraft : but when these outward applications are used to do hurt; as for instance, if the faid Margaret Wallace, being at enmity with John Clark, and after the was forbidden to frequent his house, did continue to frequent the fame, and did throw in blood or any unufual thing upon his wife's pap : if the child who fucked the fame had thereafter died. I think this article, joined with preceding defamation of her by another witch, might have been found relevant, because she was there in re illicita t. And fince the law cannot know exactly what efficacy there is in natural causes, it may very well discharge any such superstitious forbidden acts, as it pleases, under the pain of witchcraft. Nor can these who are accused, complain of severity, since sibi imputent I that use these forbidden things against the express commandment of the law : and therefore fince the law and practice hath forbidden all charms, it is most just that these who use the same should be severely punished,

^{*} There were no necessary connexion existed betwire the cause and the effect. † In an unlawful way. ‡ They may lay the blame on themselves.

whatever the pretext be upon which they are used, or after whatever way or manner, or to whatever end, whether good or bad.

X. Albeit per leg. 4 cod. de mal. & Math. these magic arts are only condemned, which tend to the destruction of mankind, but not these whereby men are cured, or the fruits of the ground preferved; yet I have oft-times imputed this constitution to Tribonian, who was a pagan and a fevere enemy to christians, or elfe that it behoved to be so interpreted, or that thereby remedies, assisted by godly prayers were allowed, elfe what mean these words, fuffragia innocenteradhibita*. But fince I am informed from the ecclefiastic historians, as Zozim. lib. 2. that Constanting was not yet turned christian when he past that constitution: but however this conflictution is omitted in the Bafilicks; and the Gloss fays, that our throw in The aworafae for it was not thought fit to be mentioned in the repurgation of the law a and that constitution was very well reprobated by Leo's 65 novel. And by the canon law, tit. de forti-legiis; and the general fanction of the former act of parliament leaves no place for this diffinction. Suitable to all which. John Brough was convicted for witchcraft, in anno 1643. for curing beafts, by casting white stones in water, and fprinkling them therewith; and for curing women, by washing their feet with fouth running water, and putting odd money in the water. Several other instances are to be feen in the processes led in anno 1661. And the instance of Drummond is very remarkable, who was burned for performing many miraculous cures, albeit no malefice+ was ever proved.

XI. Confulting with witches is a relevant ditty wittens, as was found againft Allifon Jollie, per. Oct. 1596, and this is founded upon the express words of the act. The protessing likewife skill in necromancy, or any fuch casts, is by the forefaid act of parliament, a relevant

* Aids innocently ufed.

[†] Malefice in the Scots law fienifies an act or effect of witcheraft, article. For the full clearing of which act, it is fit to know that divination was either per damono-mantiam. the invocation of pagan gods, or nanganiam, which was the prophecying for invocation of fome fublunary thing. Magnania is divided in necromantians, which was a prophecying by departed spirits, udromantiam, which was a divination by water, &c. All which species and kinds of divinations by any thing, is comprehended under the general prohibition of necromancy, and fuch like acts : fo that predictions and responses by the seive, and the shear, and by the book, and all fuch cheats and species of forcery are punishable by death in this act. Yet these forbidden practices may fometimes be excused by ignorance. or if it can be cleared, by circumstances, that the user defigned nothing but an innocent jeft or recreation, Delrio,

lib. 4. cap 1. quæft. 4.

XII. The last article in criminal libels useth ordinarily to be the being delated by other witches, which the doctors call diffamatio *, and we, common bruit, and open fame, which are never fustained as relevant per fe, but only joined with other relevant articles; as is to be feen in the forefaid process of Margaret Hutchison, though I think that interloquutor very severe, since if any of the former articles be per fe relevant, they need not the affiftance of fame and delation. Sometimes likewife, but with much more reason, articles that are of themfelves irrelevant, are fustained relevant, being joined with fame and delation; an example whereof is to be feen in the oth article of the indictment against Janet Cock, Sep. 7 1661. In which article she was accused for having recovered a child by charms, with the help of another witch, which other witch had confessed the same when the was confronted with the faid Janet; likeas, both of them were found lying above the child, whifpering one to another, and the blood of a dog was found flanding in a plate befide them; which article was not fuffained relevant per fe, but was found relevant, being joined with fame and delation.

XIII. The relevancy of this crime being thus discussed. the ordinary probation of it is, by confession or witnesses : but the probation here should be very clear, and it should be certain that the person who emitted it is not weary of life. or oppressed with melancholy. 2. Albeit, non requiritur hic ut constet de corpore delicti *, this being a crime, which confilts oft-times in animo †; yet it ought to be fuch as contains nothing in it that is impossible or improbable. And thus albeit, Ifobel Ramfay did, upon the 20th of Aug. 1661, confess that the devil gave her fixpence, and faid that God defired him to give it her : and at another time a dollar, which turned thereafter into a flate-stone : the justices did not find this confession, though judicial. televant. And to know what things are of themselves impossible for the devil to do, or at least what is believed to be impossible, may be seen very fully treated of in Delrio's fecond book, where it is condescended that succubi & incubi funt possibiles; id est, that the devil may lie in the shape of a man with a woman, or in the shape of a woman with a man, having first formed to himself a body of condenfed air; and upon fuch a confession as this, Margaret Lawder and others were convicted. It is likewise posble for the devil to transport witches to their public conventions, from one place to another, which he may really do, by carrying them; and fundry witches were in anno 1665, burned in Culrofs upon fuch a confession as

XIV It may be, I confels, argued, that spirits and immaterial substances cannot touch things material, and consequently can neither raise nor transport them; but if we consider how the adamant raises and transports the iron,

Not required this as it may conflitute the substance of the crime;

† In the mind,

and how the foul of man, which is a spirit, can raise or transport the body, and that a man's voice, or a musical found is able to occasion great and extraordinary motions in other men, we may easily conclude, that devils who are fpirits of far more energy, may produce effects furpaffing very far our understanding. And vet I do not deny but that the devil does fometimes perfuade the witches that they are carried to places where they never were, making those impressions upon their spirits, and acquainting them what was done there, which is done by impressing images upon their brain, and which images are carried to the exterior fenfes by the animal spirits, even as we fee the air carries the species of colours upon it, though in a very infenfible way; and thus we fee likewife, that the fumes of wine or melancholy will represent strange apparitions, and make us think them real. Nor ought it to be concluded that because those witches are only transported in spirit, or in dreams, that therefore they ought not to be punished, fince none can be punished for dreaming ; and that because those witches defire to have these dreams, and glory in them when they are awake: nor have any these dreams but such as have entered into a preceding paction. I know that the canon Epifcopi in the council of Anacir, (or the Aquilean council, as others call it) does condemn these transportations as talke, and mere delusions, which are impressed upon the fancy of poor creatures by the devil, & cum folus spiritus hæc patitur, nec non in animo fed in corpore inveniri opinantur *, but that act of that council does not affert all transportations to be imaginary, and dreams, but only declares those who thought they followed Diana and Herodias to these public meetings, to be altogether feduced; for these indeed were seduced; for Herodias being dead long fince, could not be at their meetings. But from that it is unjuftly concluded, that there are no real transportations, there being so many

^{*} And when the spirit of itself suffers such things, they are supposed to assist the body as well as the mind.

inflances of these transportations given, both in sacred and profane story; and persons having been sound wounded, and having really committed murders and other insolencies, during these transportations.

XV. Whether it be possible for a witch to cause any person be possessed, by putting devils into their body, may be debated; and that it is possible, appears from the history of Simon Magus, and many others, and is testified to be true by St Jerome, in the life of St. Hilanon. And fince witches have confessed that there are devils who obey one another, and that there are different degrees amongst them; why may not those of an inferior degree be forced, by virtue of a paction with those of a superior order, to poffefs men and women at the defire of witches? done. And I find by a decision of the parliament of Tholodus, that devils have been heard to complain in those that were poffesfed, that they were put there by the enchantment of fuch and fuch women : But upon the other hand, it is not to be imagined that devils would obey mortal creatures, or that God would leave fo great a power to any of them to torment poor mortals: and the devil, who is a liar from the beginning, is not to be believed, in faying that he is put there by enchantments; and though he makes fuch promifes to witches, yet he does in these but cheat them; and if the devil could posfels at pleasure, we would see many more possessed than truly there are.

XVI. The devil cannot make one folid body to penetrate another, quelt. 17. and therefore I think that atticle libelled against Margaret Hutchifon, of coming to John Clark's houfe, when doors and windows were flut, fhould not have been admitted to probation, fince it is very probable they would have fearched the houfe after the fecond or third night's fear; and she could not penetrate doors nor walls.

XVII. The devil cannot transform one species into another, as a woman into a cat, for else he behoved to annihilate fome of the fubstance of the woman, or create fome more substance to the cat, the one being much more than the other; and the devil can neither annihilate or create, nor could he make the shapes return, nam non datur regressus à privatione ad habitum *: but if we confider the strange tricks of jugglers, and the strange apparitions that Kercher and others relate from natural causes, we may believe that the devil can make a woman appear to be a beaft, & è contra +, by either abusing the fense of the beholders, or altering the medium, by inclosing them in the skin of the beast represented, or by inclosing them in a body of air, shaped like that which he would have them represent, and the ordinary relation of the witnesses, being wounded when the beast was wounded, in which they were changed, may be likewife true, either by their being really wounded within the body of air in which they were inclosed, or by the devil's inflicting that wound really himself, which is Delrio's opinion. But it would feem hard to condemn any person upon the confession of what seems almost impossible in itself : and I cannot allow inflances in the journal books, where poor creatures have been burned upon fuch confessions, without other ftrong adminicles.

XVIII. The devil may make brutes to fpeak, or at least speak out of them, quest. 18.

He can also raise storms in the air, and calm these that are raised, quest. It And yet it being libelled against Janet Cook, that she said to these who were carrying a witch to be executed, "Were it not a good sport if the devil should take her from you;" likesa, a great storm did overtake them when they were carrying her to the place, it having been a great calm both before and after; yet this article was not sustained relevant, since it might have proceeded from folly, or jest, or vana jastantia +.

When the shape is destroyed, it is impossible to restore it.

† On the other hand. ‡ Vain boasting.

XIX. The devil may inslich diseases, which is an effect me may occasion applicando activa passivas, and by the same means he may likewise cure: a clear inslance whereof appears in the marriage-knot And not only may he cure disease laid on by himself, as Wierus obferves, but even natural diseases, since he knows the natural causica and the origin of even those natural diseases, better than physicians can, who are not present when disease are contrasted, and who being younger than he, must have less experience. And it is as untrue, that Divus Thomas observes, who afferts that cures performed by the devil cannot continue, since his cures are not natural.

And fince he both may make fick, and may make whole, at follows that he may transfer a disease from one person to another. And I find that it being libelled against Margaret Hutchison, that she took a disease off a woman to put it on a cat: it was alledged that this article was not relevant; because, 1. Una saga non potest esse ligans & folvens in eodem morbot. 2. That in fuch transactions as thefe, the devil never used to interpose his skill, except where he was a gainer; and therefore though he would transfer a difease from a brute beast to a rational creature, yet he would never transfer a disease from a grational creature to a brute beaft. both these defences were repelled. Many witches likewife confess that they cannot cure diseases, because they are laid on by witches of a superior order, who depend upon spirits of a higher degree.

Some think that they may innocently employ a witch to take off the diftafe imposed by another; and lay it upon the witch who imposed it, even as men may innocently borrow money from a ulturer, to be employed for pious uses, or may cause an instell swear by his falle gods, for cliciting truth; and that in this manner devils are anther punished than served. But since all commerce with devils is unlawful, this practice is juffly reprobated by D. Atuun, p. 2. difcourfe 48. But yet it is thought lawful to all who are bewitched, to defire the bewitchers to take off the difeafe, if it can be removed without a new application to the devil, but only by taking away the old charm; or it is lawful to any to remove the charm or figa of it, if it be in their power, D. Autun. pag. 825.

[†] By applying actives to passives.

The same witch cannot both cause and cure a disease.

XX. Witches may kill by their looks, which looks beling full of venomous fpirits, may infect the perion upon whom they look, and this is called falcinatio ply fica, fed falcinatio vulgaris, qua dicitur fieri per oculos tenerorum puerorum yet parvorum porcororum vana et & ridicula, Del.

lib. 3. q. 4 fect. 1.

I know there are who think all kinds of fascination by the eyes, either an effect of fancy in the person affected. or elfe think it a mere illusion of the devil, who persuades witches that he can beflow upon them the power of killing by looks, or elfe the devil really kills, and afcribes it felfely to their looks : whereas others contend, that by the received opinion of all historians, men have been found to be injured by the looks of witches; and why may not witches poifon this way, as well as the Bafilisk dothe or why may not the spirits in the eye affect as well as the breath? or why may not looks kill as well as raife paffions in the person looked upon? nor can it be denied but that blearedness is begot by blearedness; and that menstruous women will spoil a mirror by looking upon it. Likeas there feems even fome ground for it in feripture for, Deut. 28 54. " It is faid that a man's eyes shall be evil towards his brother" And some likewise endeavour by consequence from Matth. 20. 15. "Is thine eye evil :" the word Bassana fignifying in scripture both to bewitch and to envy. Some likewise think that St. Paul, Gal. 2. 1. alludes to this received opinion, but conjecture doth for much over-rule all this affair, that it were hard to fx erimes upon fo flender grounds; and therefore though where witches confefs that they did kill by their looks, their confeffion and helief may, if they be otherwife of a found judgment, make a very confiderable part of a erime, where it is joined with other probabilities, yet per fe it is lardly relevant.

Natural witcheraft is the effects of natural caufes, but that which is produced by the eyes of certain perfons or animals, is vain and ridiculous.

XXI. It may be also doubted whether witches can by amorous potions inchant men or women to love; and though it may feem that these being acts of the foul, cannot be raifed by any corporeal means, yet l. 4. c. de. Malef. & Mathemat. makes this possible, and punishable, eorum scientia punienda, & severissimis merito legibus vindicanda, qui magicis accincti artibus pudicos ad libidinem de fixisse animos deteguntur* : but this law speaks only of luft, and not of love, as I conceive. Nor can it be denied, but that not only witches, but even naturalifis may give potions that may incline men or women to luft. And therefore the question still remains, whether witches may incline men or women by potions to a fancy and kindness for any particular person; and though potions may incline men to madness, yet it doth not follow that therefore they may incline them to love. And though D. Autun doth bring many arguments from history, and pretends that the devil may raise and excite the old species of love which lies hidden in the body, and may thereby form a passion, yet these are too conjectural grounds to be the foundation of a criminal fentence. The Balilicks make the punishment of this to be deportation, and fo fupplies the former law.

XXII. Witches do likewise torment mankind, by making images of clay or wax, and when the witches prick or punce these images, the persons whom these images represent, do find extreme torment, which doth not proceed from any influence these images have upon the body tormented, but the devil doth by natural means raise these torments in the person tormented, at the same very time that the witches do prick or punce, or hold to the fire these images of clay or wax; which manner of torment was lately confessed by some witches in Inverness, who likewise produced the images, and it was well known they hated the person who was tormented, and upon a confession so adminiculate, witches may very judiciously be found guilty, since conflat de corpore delicit de mode de linguendi & inimicitiis præviis*.

[&]quot;The several punishments ought to be inflicted on those, who, hy magic arts, force chaste persons to the commission of acts of impurity.

XXIII. It is ordinarily doubted whether confessions emitted before the kirk fessions in this case be sufficient ; but this I have treated more fully in the title of probation by confession. Only here I shall observe, that Christian Stewart was found art and port of the bewitching Patrick Ruthven, by laying on him a heavy fickness with a black clout, which the herfelf had confessed before feveral ministers, notaries, and others, at diverse times; all which confessions were proved; and upon these repeated confessions she was burned, Nov. 1596. Margaret Lawder was convicted upon confession emitted before the magistrates and ministers of Edinburgh, albeit past from in judgment, Dec. 9. 1643. fee that book of adjournal, pag. 349. And if the confession be not fully adminiculate, lawyers advife that confessors should be subjected to the torture, which is not usual in Scotland. And it is very observable that the justices would not put James Welsh to the knowledge of an inquest, though he had confessed himfelf a witch before the prefbytery of Kirkendbright, because he was minor when he confessed the crime, and the confession was only extra-judicial, and that he now retracted the fame; but because he had so grossly prevaricated, and had delated fo many honest persons, they ordained him to be scourged and put in the correction koule, April 17th 1662. It was proved against Margaret Wallace, March 20. 1622. that she said that if it could be proved that she was in Greg's house, she should be guity of all the ditty; and therefore it being proved that she was in Greg's house, that probation was alledged by the advocate to be equivalent to a consession, as was found against Patrick Cheyn: to which it was replied, that this could amount to no more than a lie; and in my opinion, it could not have even the strength of an extra-judicial confession, but rather imported a denial of the crime.

It is evident from the nature of the crime mentioned just now, of their hatred and previous malice.

XXIV. The probation by witness in this crime is very difficult, and therefore focii criminis *, or other confessing witches are adduced; but though many of them concur, their depositions folely, are not esteemed as sufficient, ne vel ad pænam extraordinariam imponendam +, though fome think the fame Aufficient to that end, because of that general brocard, ex multiplicatis indiciis debilibus refultare indicia indubitata. But Delrio afferts, that the comjection of fuch testimonies is not fusicient, "nunguam enim", faith he, "que fua natura dubia funt poffunt facere rem indubitatem ut nec multa agraunum fanum nec multa non alba unus album nec multa tepida unum callidum 1. And that the tellimony of one confessing witch was not found sufficient to file the pannel, is clear by the process of Allison Jollie, who was affoilzied pen. Oct. 1596. albeit lanet Hepburn, another witch confest that the faid Alifon had caused her bewitch Isobel Hepburn, whereof she died; but though witchcraft cannot be proved per focios criminis o, though dying and penitent witches, yet it may be doubted if the confulting witches may not be proved by two witches who were confulted: for if this be not a fufficient probation, it would be impossible to prove confulting any other manner of way.

^{*} Accomplication the crime. † Not to impose extraordinary putificants. † A multitude of weak evidences can nover establish one undoubted fact, as many fick cannot make one in health, gor many black figures a white one, mor many 'cold fubliances he warm que. † By accomplices in the crime.

The persons to whom the injuries are done by the witches, are admitted to be witnesses: thus Katherine Wardlaw was admitted against Margaret Hutchisen; but fometimes they are only admitted cum nota, if the prohation be not otherwise weak, and thus William Young and Agnes Hutchison were only admitted cum nota, as gainst Beatrix Leslie, August 1661. And in that procels likewife they received only Agnes Rofs cum nota, because she was the mistress of the two women who were maleficiat. Neilfon was admitted to be an affizer against Margaret Wallace, though he was brother-in-law to John Nicol, who had given information for raising the ditty, because the ditty was not at Nicol's inflance; and vet Starling was fet from being an affizer, because Moor, who was alledged to be one of the persons maleficiat, was his brother-in-law. March 2. 1622. Dickson was there likewife admitted to be an affizer, though he affifted the bailie in taking her, which was found the office of a good citizen, and though he had deadly feud against her husband, fince it was not proved he had any against Women are received witneffes in this crime, as is clear by the procefs againft Margaret Wallace, and all the proceffes in August 1661. The not fliedding of tears hath been used as a mark and presumption of witchcraft, Sprenger, mal. malef. p. 3, q. 15. because it is a mark of impenitence; and because several witches have consessed they could not weep: but the being accusted of 66 hord do crime may occasion a deep melancholy; and melancholy being cold and dry, hinders the fiedding of tears; and great griefs do rather altonish than make one weep.

XXV. The punishment of this crime is with us death by the forefaid act of parliament, to be execute as well against the user as the feeker of any response or consultation, & de practica. The doom bears, to be worried at the flake, and burned.

By the civil law, confulters were punished by death

1. s. c. de mafef. & mathem. nemo aruspicem consulat, aut mathematicum nemo ariolum, angurum et vatum prava confessio nonticescat fileat omnibus rer petuo divinandi curiofitas*. In which law, fortune-tellers are also punishable; though with us, dumb persons who pretend to foretell future events, are never punished capitally. But'yet I have feen them tortured, by order from the council, upon a reprefentation that they were not truly dumb, but (feigning themselves to be so) abused and cheated the people. The forefaid law is renewed in the Bafilicks 1. 3t h. t. μπόεις ερωτατα τινα μαντικήν τη αγπλλο μενος οι δι χαλόπιοι και οι μπαγοι μπόε το αυταις ταις μαντικίς ιαυτων massystocan, alla' de nedaling on dia or depor repuesa unonciobocar to But Farin, and others think, that where no person is injured, death should not be inflicted; and that imprisonment and banishment is now practifed by all nations in that cafe, lib. 1. tom. 3. quest. 20. num. 89. & Clarus. fect. herefis num ult. But Perezeus thinks this too favourable a punishment, except the users of these curious arts were induced thereto, out of a re fimplicity, & fine dolo malo 1: but with us po fuch diffinction can be allowed by the justices, who must find all libels relevant, which bear confulting with witches, and that ditty being proved, they must condemn the pannel to die; albeit I think the council may alter the punishment, if it be clear that the ufer of these acts had no wicked defign nor intercourse with the devil therein.

XXVI. By the law of England, witchcraft was of old punished fometimes by death, and fometimes by exile; but 1. Jac, this following statute was made, which I here fet down, because it is very special.

[&]quot;It shall not be lawful for any one to consult a fortune-teller, or one pretending to foretel events by any mathematical rules, for all their declarations are criminal, and cariofity for divination ought to be effectually reftrained.

Let none feek advice by the art of divination, for the Chaldeaus, and magicians, by no means different the truth, wherefore they sught to be subjected to capital punishment or public scourging. And without any evil design.

" If any person or persons shall use, practife, or exercise invocation or conjuration of any evil and wicked spirit, or shall confult, covenant with, entertain, employ, feed or reward, any evil or wicked spirit; to, or for, any intent or purpose, or take up any dead man, woman, or child, ont of his, her, or their grave, or any other place where the dead body refleth, or the fkin, bone, or any part of a dead person to be imployed or used in any manner of witch-craft, forcery, charme, or inchantment; or shall use, practife, or exercise any witch-craft, inchantment, charm or forcery, whereby any person shall be killed, destroyed, wasted, confumed, pined, or lamed, in his, or her body, or any part thereof; that then every fuch offender or offenders, their aiders, abbetters, and counfellors, being of any the faid offence, duely and lawfully convicted: and attainted, shall suffer pains of death, as a fellon, or fellons, and shall lofe the priviledge, and benefit of Clergie; and Sanctuary. If any person or persons take upon him or them, by witch-craft, inchantment, charm, or forcery, to tell or 'declare, in what place any treasure of Gold, or Silver, should or might be found, or had in the earth, or other fecret places: Or where goods or other things loft, or ftoln, are become : Or whereby any cattell or goods of any person, shall be destroyed, or to hurt or destroy any person in his, or her body, albeit the same be not effected or done; being therefore lawfully convicted, . shall for the faid offence fuffer Imprisonment by the space of a whole year, without baile or mainprife. Once every quarter of the year these Mountebanks are to mount the pillory, and to fland thereupon in fome Mercat Toun fix hours, and there to confesse his or her errour, and

THE BEWITCHING

63

SIR GEORGE MAXWELL OF POLLOK.

Account of Sir George Maxwell, and his fon John.
Taken from Crawford's history of the thire of Renfrew.

"Mr. GEORGE MAXWELL of Pollok, obtained the honour of knighthood from King Charles II. He was a gentleman of fingular accompliftments, and jully efleemed a person eminent for piety. learning, and other good qualifications. Sir George deceased anno 1677. To whom succeeded John his son and heir; which John was raised to the digniny of baronet, by king Charles Idd's letters patent, bearing date, at Whitehall, the 12th of April 1682. He was, by King William, nominated one of his privy council for Scotland, upon the first constitution thereof; and afterwards, in the year 1696, was appointed one of the lords commissioners of the treasure of the constitution of the college of one of the college of the tendence of the featons of the college of justice, and lord justice clerk."

Letter which Sir John Maxwell of Pollok fent to George Sinclair, profeflor of philotophy in the college of Glafgow, along with the account of the bewitching of his father.

SIR,

Pollok, 24th June 1684.

I fend you herewith the true account my father cauled me write from his own mouth, which is the fureft relation I can give, either of his own trouble, or what concerns Janet Donglas, firft difeoverer of thefe pictures. There fell out fome lefs material circumflances in the family, during her abode three, whereby it fully appeared, that fice knew what was done in diffant places, and underflood languages For inflance, when a chapter in the Greek New Teflament was read, the made us underfload by figns what the purpofes were, (for at that time fhe was dumb, whether really or counterfeitly, it is hard to determine) and did exactly give an account to myfelf what we did at two miles diffant from the place where fice was, without any information given to her which I knew of. I reft your affectionate friend,

JOHN MAXWELL.
Taken from Sir George Maxwell's account

of his being bewitched.

Upon the 14th of October 1676, my father was furprifed at Glasgow, in the night time, with a hot and fiery diftemper; and coming home the next day, he was fixed to his bed. The phylician, fearing a pleuresy and a fever, opened a vein, and the application of medicaments being made, the fiery heat was abated; he remaining for feven weeks together under a great pain, chiefly in his right fide, though not fixed to his bed. There had come to Pollok-town a young dumb girl, but from whence was not known, who had remained there for four weeks before, but feldom frequenting Sir George Maxwell's house, till at length she came to some more familiarity and converse with his two daughters And, having observed Sir George fick and weak in his body, the fignified unto them, That there was a woman, whose fon had broke his fruit-yard, that did prick him in the fides.

And feeing this woman one day in the hall of Polloka amongt a great many other company, file affured his adaughter, that this was the woman; and the day following, file told the gentleman, That this woman (whose name was Janet Mathie, relict of (John Stewart, undermiller in Shaw-mill) had formed a wax picture with pins in the fide, which was to be found in her house, in a hole behind the fire, offering to bring it unto them, providing the were accompanied with men to protect her from violence. At first they hardly understood her, till she went to one of the gentlewoman's closets, and bringing thence a little bees-wax, she plyed it before the fire, shewing the dimensions and quantity of the picture. The gentlewoman regarded not the information, because they thought it fabulous; yet his two fervants, Laurence Pollock, and Andrew Martin, knowing how much the girl loved their master, and knowing that his life was in hazard, if this picture were not found, refolved at all adventures to try whether the information were true or falle; and therefore going along with her to the faid Janet Mathie's house, one of them planted himself on one fide of the fire, and the other on the other fide, while, in the mean time, the little girl coming quickly by Laurence Pollock, patteth her hand in the hole behind the fire, and then flips into Andrew Martin beneath his cloak, the waxen effigy, which had two pins in it, one in each fide, but that in the right fide, fo long as to pierce through to the other ; that in the left was not fo long, nor fo deeply thrust in. This picture being brought to Pollok, Sir George's fon, without acquainting his father, apprehended Janet Mathie, procuring the next day the Lord Rols's order for conveying her to prison. She being interrogated touching the picture, after several subterfuges, alledged, " It was the deed of the dumb girl."

It was also enquired, whether Sir George or his Lady had given her at any time provocation to this malice? But it was well known, they had been courteous to her; and, upon her complaints, had rebuked some for foreading bad reports upon her name, as not appearing fafficiently well founded to a conviction. Only upon the 1311 of October above-specified, before Sir George want to Gillingow, he had called before him a ferviant in Pollok-town, that had broken his orchard in harvest Inf., who consessed with the fact, and that Hugh Stewart, a son of Janet Mathie's, was his complice. But a bye-stander declared, That he was not now in Pollok land, but in the Darnly. To whom Sir George replied, I hope my fingers may reach him in Darnly. This was all which could be thought a provocation to Mathie, no harm being done in the meantime to her son, whorn Sir George to this hour doth not so much as know by the face, but hath suffered him all the time of his sickness to live in his mother's house, even since her imprisonment. In the meantime Mathie remaining oblituate, was searched for insessible the state of the son of the

After the finding of the picture of wax forefaid, there was fome abatement of Sir George's fickness, but not to any observable degree, fo low was he brought. But upon the 4th of January following, his fickness recurred with that violence, that for four or five days, his friends and relations had no great confidence of his life. But they were more amazed on the 7th of January, being the Sabbath day, when they had an express from the dumb girl, who was at Pollok-town, but could not get over the water to the house, the river being fo swelled at that time, signifying that John Stewart, Mathie's eldest son, had four days since formed an efficy of clay, for taking away Sir George's life. And when she was called for, a fee declared, it was in his bouse, beneath the boliter, a mong the bed-ftraw.

The next day following, James Dunlop of Houfehill, and Lahowick Stewart of Achinhood, with fome of Sir George's Grevants, went to Stewart's houfe, taking the little girl with them. refolving to make a very exact trial, that it might not be faid, that the dumb girl had brought any thing hither. Wherefore they caufed John Stewart himfelf to light a candle and hold it, while Ludowick Stewart, and another did, in his fight, lift the clay edity from Smong the bed-firmy, beneath the bolifer (the little gid all the while flanding at a diflance from the place), but the picture having been made only three or four days before, and not fufficiently hard, did break into two pieces. In it were three pins, one in each fide, and one in the breaft. Stewart had nothing to lay for himlelf, but that he knew not who had put that thing there. He was infantly apprehended, and fo was a little filter of his, lately entered into the fourteenth year of her age, named Annabil Stewart, who was faid to have whilpered before fomewhat of the waxen effigy. This poor creature proved thereafter, through God's lavour, a key to the detection of making both the pictures.

At firft file was very obtlinate, but the next day file confessed, "That being present in her brother's house the 4th of January, while the clay picture was formed, the black gentleman being present, (which was the name file gave the devil) together with Besset Weir, Margery Craig, Margaret Jackson, and her brother John." But when confronted with her brother, she did not with confidence adhere to her consession. Upon the sinding of this picture, Sir George did very observably recover in his health, and all the pain which was jan his side, did, by degrees, wear away.

John Stewart remained, notwithflanding his fifter's confeffion, above measure oblinate, until he was fearched the next day for infensible marks, whereof he had great plenty; at the finding whereof, he was fo confounded, that immediately he confeffed his paction with the devil, and almost all the other heads expressed in his judicial confession after-written; and declared, "That his accomplices who formed the effigy with him were the same his fifter had named." She asso are a free and full confession of her paction with the devil, and her accession to her forming both of the waxen picture in her mother's house, and of the clay one in her brother's house.

Upon information of the premifes, the Earl of Dundonald and the Lord Rofs, granted a warrant for apprehending Besse Weir, Margaret Jackson, and Margery Craig, who had been fellow-fisters in the aforesaid forcery.

Margaret Jackson, a woman aged about fourscore of years, after a day or two, confessed paction with the devil, and her accession to the making of both the pictures, and condescended upon the accomplices above-named. Many insensible marks were found on her body.

Upon the 17th of January 1all, a third portrait of clay was found under Janet Mathie's boltler in the prifon house of Paisley, which the dumb girl had given information of. But it fermed to be the picture of some orman, and probably of some of the family of Pollok. For Annabil Stewart did freely declare, "That their malice was against the whole family of Pollok." For turning to young Pollock and his Lady, she faid, "And against you allo," This portrait was found before four famous witnesses.

The lords of His Majefty's privy council, being informed of these pictures and effigies, the depositions of three confessing witches being fent, did grant a commission for their trial, and also for the trial of the other three that were offinate. And in regard of the fingularity of the cafe, they ordered the process to be very folemn, commissioning for the trial fome judicious gentlemen in the country, viz. Sir Patrick Gaufton of Gaufton. James Brifbane of Bishopton, Sir John Shaw younger of Greenock, and John Anderson younger of Dovehill. To whom they added Mr. John Prefton, advocate, (a gentleman well feen in criminals, and who exercised the office of justice-depute for feveral years), a fine qua non in the commission. And that the whole pracess might be the more exact, they appointed George Lord Ross affestor, with power to vote and decide. And further ordered Mr. Robert Martin, clerk to the juffice court, to be clerk to the precess, which was to be recorded in the public books of adjournal.

What follows of Sir George Maxwell's affair, is mostly taken out of an authennic copy of the trial of the witches, held at Pailey, Feb. 15, 1677, touchingt he bewitching of Sir George Maxwell, and part is taken out of Sir

George's account.

The commissioners of justiciary held their first court at Pailley, the 27th of January 1677; before whom Annabil Stewart, of the age of fourteen years, or thereby, when brought in the presence of the justices for the crime of witchcraft, declared, that in harvest last, the devil, in the shape of a black man, came to her mother's house. and required the declarant to give herfelf up to him; and that the devil promifed her she should not want any thing that was good. Declares, that she, being enticed by her mother Janet Mathie, and Bessie Weir, who was officer to their feveral meetings, she put her hand to the crown of her head, and the other to the fole of her foot, and did give herfelf up to the devil. Declares, that her mother promised her a new coat for doing it. Declares, that her spirit's name was Enippa , and that the devil took her by the hand, and nipped her arm, which continued to be fore for half an hour. Declares, that the devil, in the shape of a black man, lay with her in the bed under the clothes, and that fhe found him cold. Declares, thereafter he placed her nearest himself. And declares, that the was prefent in her mother's house when the effigy of wax was made; and that it was made to represent Sir George Maxwell. Declares, that the black man, Janet Mathie, the declarant's mother, (whose spirit's name was Landlady,) Beffie Weir, (whose spirit's name is Sopha,) Margery Craige. (whose spirit's name is Rigerum,) and Margaret Jackson, (whose spirit's name + is Locas,) were all present at the making of the faid effigy; and that they bound it on a spit, and turned it before the fire ; and that it was turned by Beffie Weir, faying as they turned it, Sir George Maxwell ! Sir George Maxwell! and that this was expressed by all of them. and by the declarant. Declares, that the picture was made in October last. And farther declares, that upon the third day of January instant, Bessie Weir came to her mother's house, and advised her to come to her brother John Stuart's, upon the night following: and that accordingly she came to the place, where she found Bessie Weir, Margery Craige, Margaret Jackson, and her brother John Stuart, and a man with black clothes, a blue band, and white handcuffs, with hoggers, and that his feet were cloven. And the declarant fat down by the fire-fide with them, when they made a picture of clay, in which they placed pins in the breaft and fides. And declares, that they placed one in every fide, and one in the breaft. Declared that the black man did put the pins in the picture of wax; but is not fure who put in the pins in the picture of clay. Declares, that the effigies produced, are the effigies she faw made. Declares, that the black man's name is Ejoal. This declaration was emitted before James Dunlop, of Househill, William Gremlaye, &c. January, 27. 1677. Ita eft Robertus Park, notarius publicus, &c.

Sir George Mixwell's account fays, "That the new name the devil gave her, was Anipy. † Sir George Maxwell's account fays, Janet Mathie her mother, whose name was, from the devil, Lands lady, Befie Weir, whose name was Sopha, Margery Craig, whose name was Rigern, Margaret Jackson, whose name was Access.

The fecond confession is of John Stuart, who being interrogated anent the crime of witcheraft, declared, that upon Wednelday the third day of January instant, Bessie Weiri, in Pollok town came to the declarant late at night, who being without doors near to his own house, the said Bessie Weir did intimate to him, that there was a meeting to be at his house the next day; and that the

Sir George Maxwell's account, fays, this declaration was made before famous witneffes, fubficihed by the two notaries public for her, Robert Fark younger, Patrick Carfwell in Paifley, and fubficibed by the commissioners.

devil, under the shape of a black man, Margaret Jackson, Margery Craige, and the faid Bessie Weir were to be prefent. And that Beffie Weir required the declarant to be there, which he promised; and that the next night, after the declarant had gone to bed, the black man came in, and called the declarant quietly by his name; upon which he rose from his bed, and put on his clothes, and lighted a candle. Declares, that Margaret Jackson, Bessie Weir, and Margery Craige, did enter in at a window in the gavel of the declarant's house, and that the first thing that the black man required, was, that the declarant should renounce his baptism, and deliver himself wholly to him : which the declarant did, by putting one hand on the grown of his head, and the other on the fole of his foot. And that he was tempted to it, by the devil's promising that he should not want any pleasure, and that he should get his heart filled on all that shall do him wrong. Declares that he gave him the name of Jonas for his spirit's name .. Declares, that thereafter the devil required all their consents for the making of the efficies of clay, for the taking away the life of Sir George Maxwell of Pollok, to revenge the taking the declarant's mother, Janet Mathie. Declares, that every one of the persons abovenamed gave their confent to the making of the faid effigies, and that they wrought the clay, and that the black man did make the figure of the head, and face, and two arms. to the faid effigies : Declares, that the devil fet three pins in the same; one in each fide, and one in the breast; and that the declarant did hold the candle to them all the time the picture was making; and that he observed one of the black man's feet to be cloven; and that his apparel was black; and that he had a bluish band and handcuffs: and that he had boggers on his legs without shoes: and that the black man's voice was bough and gouffie. And farther declares, that after they had begun the forming of the effigies, his fafter Annabil Stuart, a child of thirteen or fourteen years of age, came knocking at the door, and being let in by the declarant, the staid with them a confiderable time; but that she went away before the reft, he having opened the door to her. That the rest went out at the window at which they entered. De clares, that the effigies were placed by Beffie Weir in his bed-ftraw. He further declares, he himfelf had envy against Sir George Maxwell, for apprehending Janet Mathie his mother; and that Beffie Weir had great malice against this Sir George Maxwell; and that her quarrel was, as the declarant conceived, because the faid Sir George had not entered her husband to his harvest service: and also declares, that the faid effigies were made upon the fourth day of January inflant; and that the devil's name was Ejoal. Declares, that his fpirit's name was Jonas; and Bessie Weir's spirit's name, who was officer, was Sopha; and that Margaret Jackson's spirit's name, was Locas; and that Annabil Stuart, the declarant's fifter's, was Enippa; but does not remember what Margery Craige's fpirit's name was. Declares, that he cannot write. This confession was emitted in the presence of the witnesses to the other consession, and on the same day, Ita est, Robertus Park, notarius publicus, &c*.

^{*} Sir George Maxwell's account lays, " That the new name given to him by the devil, was Jonas."

The confession of Margaret Jackson, relief of Thomas Stunt, in Shawe, who, being examined by the justices ament her being guilty of witcherast, declares that she was present at the making of the first elligites and picture that were made in Janet Mathie's house in October; and that the devil in the shape of a black man, Janet Mathie, Boffic Weir, Margery Craige, and Annabil Stunt, were present at the making of the faid elligites, and that they were made to represent Sir George Maxwell of Pollok, for the taking away his life. Declares, that forty years areo, or thereabout, she was at Pollokshev-croft, with some few flicks on her back, and that the black man came to her, and that the did give up herfelf unto the black man, from the top of her head to the fole of her foot; and that this was after the declarant's renouncing of her baptifm ; and that the spirit's name which he designed her, was Locas. And that about the third or fourth of lanuany instant, or thereby, in the night time, when she awaked, she found a man to be in bed with her, whom the supposed to be her husband, though her husband had been dead twenty years, or thereby, and that the man immediately disappeared; and declares, that this man who disappeared was the devil. Declares, that upon Thursday the 4th of January instant, she was present in the house of John Stuart, at night, when the effigy of clay was made, and that the faw the black man there. fometimes fitting, fometimes standing with John Stuart; and that the black man's clothes were black, and that he had white hand-cuffs; and that Bessie Weir in Polloktoun, and Annabil Stuart in Shaws, and Margery Craige, were at the aforesaid time and place of making the said effigy of clay; and declares, that the gave her confent to the making of the fame; and declares that the devil's name, who compeared in the black man's shape, was Ejaol. Sie subscribitur, ita est, Robertus Park, notarius publicus, &c ..

^{*} Sir Ge arge Maxwell's account, fays, " This confession had the time solemnities which the for nor had."

One remarkable paffage which is taken from Sir George Maxwell's account, runs thus: The justice upon the 27th of January, commanded the jailor to fix Janet Mathic's feet in the flocks, that the might not do violence to her own life. The man declared, "That the ne'kt morning he had found her boliter, which the night before was bid at leaft fix yards diflant from the flocks, now placed beneath her: the flocks being fo heavy, that two of the throngest men in the country could lardly have carried them fix yards: he wondering, did ask her how ^{*} Sir George Mixwell's account, fays, "This confession had the same forementies which the two former had.

Re had win to the bolder; the answered, "That the had crept along the floor of the room, drawing the flooks to the same place." And before the court, she said, "She had gotten one foot free out of the hole, and with the other had drawn the flooks." a thing altegether impossible, The slocks being so weighty, nor was she able to take her foot out of the hole.

Upon the 15th of February 1677, the julifies being convened again in court at Pailey, John Stuart, and Annabil Stuart, with Margaret Jackfon did adhere to their former judicial confession; but Janet Mathie, Befile Weir, and Margery Craige, did obstinately deny.

Now follow the depolitions of certain persons, agreeing with the consessions of the above-faid witches.

Andrew Martin, fervitor to the lord of Pollok, of the age of thirty years, or thereby, depones that he was prefent in the house of Janet Mathie, pannel, when the picture of wax produced was found in a little hole in the wall at the back of the fire. Depones, that Sir George's fickness did fall upon him about the 18th of October, or thereby. Depones, that the picture of wax was found on the ____ of December, and that Sir George's ficknels did abate and relent about the time the picture of wax was found and discovered in Janet Mathie's house. Dcpones, that the pins were placed in the right and left fides ; and that Sir George Maxwell of Pollok's pains, as he understood by Sir George's complaining of these pains, lay most in his right and left sides. And depones, that Sir George's pains did abate and relent after the finding of the faid picture of wax, and taking out of the pins, as is faid. And depones, that the pannel lanet Mathie has been by fame and bruit reputed a witch these several years by past. And this is the truth, as he shall answer to God. Sic subscrib. Andr.

Laurence Pollock, fecretary to the lord of Pollok, fworn and purged of partial counfel, depones, that on the —— day of December, he was in the pannel Janete Mathie's house when the picture was found; and that he did not fee it before it was brought to the pannel's door. Depotes, that Sir George Maxwell of Pollok's fickness did feize upon him about the fourteenth of October, or thereby, and he did continue in his fickness or dittemper for fix weeks or thereby. Depones, that Sir George's fickness did abate and relent after the finding of the faid picture of wax, and taking out of the pins that were in the efficies. Depones, that by open bruit and common fam; Janet Mathie, and Beffle Weir, and Margery Craige, are branded to be witches. Depones, that the truth is this, as he fihall answer to God. Sie fullfrijb.

Laurence Pollock.

Ludowick Stuart of Auchinhood, being fworn and purged of partial counsel, depones, that Sir George's fickness fell upon him the fourteenth or fifteenth of October, or thereby. Depones, that he was not prefent at the finding of the picture of wax, but that he had feen Sir George Maxwell of Pollok, after it was found, and having feen him in his fickness often-times before, he did perceive that Sir George had fenfibly recovered after the time that the faid picture was faid to be found, which was upon the 11th or 12th of December. Depones, that Janet Mathie and Margery Craige, two of the pannels, are, by report of the country, faid to be witches. Depones, that he having come to Pollok, he did fee Sir George Maxwell, whose pains did recur, and that his pains and torments were greatly increased in respect of what they were before the finding of the picture of wax. Depones, that upon the 8th of January, when they left the faid Sir George Maxwell of Pollok, the deponent, James Dunlop of Househill, Allan Douglace, and several others, did go to the house of John Stuart, warlock, in Pollok-shaw, and there he found a picture of clay in the faid John Stuart's bed-ffraw. Depones, that there were three pins in the faid picture of clay, and that there was one in each fide, and one in the breatt. And depones, that being returned to Sir George's house, Sir George told the deponent that he found great cafe of his pains, and that it was before the deponent. Househill, and the reft did reveal to him that they had found the faid picture of clay; and further depones, that this is truth, as he final anfwer to, God. Sie fubferib. Ludowick Stuart.

What follows, is taken from Sir George's account.

of fact, touching the effigies, Sir George's fickness, and the recovery of his health, upon the finding of the fame, confidering also the bad fame of those who were obstinate. and having confronted them with the confessing witches, who in their faces avowed their accession, in manner exprefled in the confessions above written. Confidering, laftly, all other circumftances of their cafe, committed them to the trial of a judicious inquest, who being found guilty, were condemned to the fire to be burned, and their effigies with them. Only Annabil, in regard of her nouage, and the evidences she seemed to give of her penitency, was reprieved by order of the council, but to remain in prison. In the meantime, both she and her brother John did feriously exhort their mother to confession: and with tears, did Annabil put her in mind of the many meetings she had with the devil in her own house : and that a fummer's day would not be fufficient to relate what could prevail with her obdured and hardened heart.

Some account of Janet Douglas, the girl referred to in the account of the bewitching of Sir George Maxwell of Pollok.

Sir 'ohn Maxwell, at the end of the account which he fent to Mr. George Sinclair, professor of philosophy in the college of Clasgow, says, It is to be noted, the dumb girl, whose name was Janet Douglas, doth now speak, not very distinctly, yet so as the may be understood; and is a person that most wonderfully discovers things past, and doth also understand the Latin tongue, which the never learned.

The following is the extract of a letter which was fent to Mr. George Sinclair, professor of philosophy in the college of Glasgow.

"When I was at Glafgow, in fummer 1677, I was defirous to fee the dumb girl, [] anet Douglas.) At my first incoming the declined to entertain discourse, but by friendly expressions, and giving her some money. I gained her. I first enquired anent her parentage. "I do not remember," fays she, " of my parents, but only that I was called by the name of Janet Douglas by all people who knew me. I was kept when I was very young, by a poor woman who proved cruel to me, by beating and abusing me; whereupon I deserted the woman's house, and went a-begging." I enquired next how she became dumb. She told me by reason of a fore swelling the took in her throat and tongue; but afterwards by the application of Album Græcum, " which I thought faid she, was revealed to me, I recovered my speech." I asked her, how she came to the knowledge of witches and their practices. She answered, That she had it only by a vision, and knew all things as well as if she had been perfonally prefent with them; but had no revelation or information from the voice of any spirit; nor had she any communication with the devil, or any spirit of that kind; "only, fays she, the devil was represented to me, when he was in company with any of the witches, in that fame fhape and habit he was feen by them."-She told me, the was altogether ignorant of the principles of religion, but had fome fmattering knowledge of the Lord's prayer, which she had heard the witches repeat, it seems, by her vision, in presence of the devil; and at his desire, which the observed, they added to the word art, the letter w, which made it run, " Our Father which wart in heaven;" and made the third petition thus, " As on earth fo it may in heaven;" by which means the devil made the application of the prayer to himfelf. - 1 remember. that one day there was a woman in the town, who had the curiofity to give her a vifit, who asked her, "How the came to the knowledge of fo many things? But the young wench shifted her, by asking the woman's name; the told her name, fays the other, " Are there any other in Glafgow of that name? No, fays the woman. Then, faid the girl, "You are a witch." Says the other, "Then you are a devil." The girl answers, "The devil doth not reveal witches; but I know you to be one, and I know your practices too." Hereupon the woman ran away in great confusion, being indeed a person suspected of witchcraft, and had been fometimes imprisoned on that account - Another woman, whose name was Campbel, had the curiofity likewife to come and fee her, and began to ask some questions at her. The weach thifting to give her an answer, fays, "I pray you tell me where you were yesternight, and what you were doing? " And withal, fays she, let me see your arm;" fhe refusing, the landlord laid hold upon the woman, with fome others in the house, and forced her to make bare her arm, where lanet Douglas shewed them an invisible mark, which she had gotten from the devil. The poor woman much ashamed, ran home. A little time after, the came out and told her neighbours, that what Janet Douglas faid of her was true; and carnefly intreated them that they would shew so much to the magistrates, that the might be apprehended, " otherwife the devil, fays she, will make me kill myself." But the neighbours judging her to be under a fit of diffraction, carried her home to her house; but early the next morning the woman was found drowned in Clyde, - The girl like. wife told me at Glasgow, being then under no restraint, that it was revealed to her the would be carried before the great council at Edinburgh, imprisoned there, and foourged through the town All which came to pass -For about a year after, the was apprehended and imprisoned in the tolbooth of the Canongate, and was brought before the council, but nothing being found against her, the was difmiffed; but thereafter, for feveral crimes committed within the town of Edinburgh, fite was taken again, and imprisoned, scourged, and sent away to some foreign plantation; since which time I have not heard of her—There are several other remarkable passages concerning her, which I cannot inform you of, which others perhaps may do; therefore I shall abruptly break off, and say no more, but that I am your affectionate friend. Mr. Sinclair says, "This information I have from a discreet understanding gentleman, who was one of my scholars at Glasgow several years ago."

THE BEWITCHING

CHRISTIAN SHAW.

PREFACE,

THE NARRATIVE

Christian Shaw.

WISE men do justly suspect, and are hardly brought, to credit the accounts of extraordinary stories; especially anent witchcraft; because the frequent impostures which the Romanifes have obtruded on the world in their miraeles and legends; the many relations of odd things as done by dæmons or wizards, which yet, were either false or the ground of simple natural causes; the ignorance of feveral judges and juries, who have condemned filly creatures merely upon their ridiculous confessions, or other flender proof; and the difficulty of conceiving the manner or philosophy of some operations and appearances. though undoubtedly true in fact; are good prejudices against a fudden belief, and precautions for an exact inquiry. But they are men of weak fouls, destitute of distinct thoughts; who deny all, because they have discovered error in fome, or condemn as false, all fects which they are ignorant how they came to exist: by the same rule of reasoning that there are no enthusialts, because the best men have been sometimes mistaken for these; nor are there any criminals, in respect severals have suffered who were not trilly fuch, confidering that many histories are fabulous, therefore none is to be trufted: And all the phænomenas in nature, whose invisible causes they cannot comprehend, are mere delufions.

The following narrative, as to the truth of fact, is the best attested piece of history of this kind, that has occurred in many ages: the most of the matters therein represented having gained the affent of private scepties: and being proven before public judges, to that it is more surprising than the strange things of witcheraft, that any should ferming the providences, and from thence differed fuch useful providences at a diffance, when notoricty has dispelled all objections in the places where they did

avill

Many authors have proven at large, that there are witches and witcheraft, from realon, feripture, antiquity, and experience of all nations and ages in the world, and they have folved the difficulties which might obfruct the belief of this positive proof, by possible hypothesis of philosophy: where it is to be observed, that though any such explicas sions of the natural manner of phenomena are fubject to cavil, yet the exiftence of a thing which hath fo certain positive evidence cannot be denied in sound reasoning; because angels and men not being made for civil converse together in this world, and all communion with devils being interdicted us, the Scripture needed to unfold little of their way of acting; and fill the next age may discover what this could not reach, as this has already unveiled what was thought inextricable in the last, unless impossibility were presently demonstrated. Therefore such a flort birth, as may somewhat illustrate the events in the subsequent discourse, may fuffice in the present case; especially since providence does, by eminent occurrences, rather delign our practical instruction, than a subject of notional speculation.

The devil can affume a corporeal shape and bespeak man out of it: as he did to Eve, our Saviour, and in fome heathen oracles: fo that there is capacity for the entering into contract. Satan is willing thus to infure mortals of being enemies to heaven, earth, and their own falvation, by his indefatigable malice against all the three: as curiofity in wits, revenge, and disclosure of secrets in the great, covetousness in the worldling, or power and pleasure in all whom he thinks needful, (they being impregnable other ways), and is permitted by God, to attack in this manner, does sufficiently blind them, to be fusceptible of his proposals thereanent We see daily how criminal lusts inflamed by fatan, divert their horror, not only of eternal, but also of temporal eminent torments : perverting these instincts of nature which might fright them from furrender. But further, he does commonly facilitate his conquest on witches, by decoying them piecemeal to his lure, through the mediation of others from among mankind that are already embarked, till they be prepared, and he get an opportunity of making with them an explicit transaction.

That accordingly Satan has de facto prevailed in making forcerers and witches, appears from the testimony of the wifest and best in all states and times.

The heathens, by nature and practice, discovering this truth, made laws against maleficos and mathematicos *. (thefe last, though they assumed the name of an art much encouraged by the legislators; yet were known, under the cloak thereof, to confult the devil anent the fates of men and states) which the Roman fenate and people did execute; and even the Persians, in some good reigns did the same, Under the Old Testament dispensation the magicians of Egypt and Babylon were baffled by Mofes and Daniels Balaam and the witch of Endor were baffled, jul judgments were inflicted on Jezebel, Manasseh, and the ten tribes for their forceries, and witchcrafts amongst other crimes; and the laws made against fuch, as distinct from other guilt under the New Testament Simon Magus, who bewitched the people of Samaria; Elimas the forcerer, who was ftruck blind at Paul's rebuke; the Pythoniffe girl who feems to have been possest of confent, because she was not tormented, but got profit thereby; and fuch as confessed thewed their deeds and burned their books in Ephefus; are undeniable instances of witchcraft. Finally, there are prophecies of falle Christs with figns and wonders, able to deceive, if possible, the very elect : general councils have made canons against these wretches; and the experimental knowledge of injured mortals, with the public fentences which did vindicate the fame; in fubfequent ages, are delivered down to us by the writers thereof. Hence Guilielmus Linenfis, a popish doctor, was justly put to death, even though he died penitent, he having confessed witchcraft, (whereof the written covenant was found in his pocket), and that his share of the devil's service was to perfuade and preach that witches were only filly deluded melancholians, whereby their confessions were no proof. His fuccess was such in this work of darkness, that the people and judges did flack, and witches were vallly multiplied in few years, vid. Pet. Mamorius de Lamiis, who sees an acoust of the process from authentic records. Through these periods, it is observed, that Satap has oft shited the seene, and turned himself to many shapes, as he found it most accommodating to his purposes whereby the manner of apparition of devils has been different, according to the share of the times. So of old Satan appeared, and was worshipped as such, for deprecating his mischies, which is faid to be retained in some of the most barbarous places of the Indies to this day.

[.] Witches and Mathematicians.

In the darkness of popery the devil was transformed into a more innocent spirit*, in the brounies and fairies. These were then very frequent, he having impudence thus to appear openly, proportional to the knowledge of men, over whom his reign was fo universal, as it is related to continue in the more northern regions at this day. But fince light has broke out in our horizon, he oftener works externally by magicians and witches, and internally on the lufts of men, being now mostly restrained to his own sphere, or fubjects. Yet itill he enfoares feverals, partly, by aping the ordinances of God; especially as they are corrupted in the Romish church, whence so many monks and nuns as already prepared, have been found overcome. So he keeps with them public affemblies in the night of extraordinary merit. They formally worship him by many mimical gestures; he imprints on them a kind of facrament; he inflicts dreadful penances on fuch as have not executed the commanded mischiefs; he teaches them odd words and figns, upon repeating of which exorcisms, he (it being his interest) effectuates the fore-pactioned operations, &c.

But though what he does of himfelf, or on the watch word or enlign of forcerers or witches, may, by collection, and artful disposal of matter and form, appear furprising; yet he cannot work against nature, or so apply actives to passives, as to overturn the course thereof; fince that is only competent to its author, who alone can do true miracles, or know immediately the thoughts of man. 'Yea, after the fall it is like, that even Satan's natural powers are come down below those of good angels; and it is certain, that he is often befooded in his designs by providence: not withstanding whereof he retains fo much as Obeing permitted) is sufficient to bring about, by unseen natural means, most of the extraordinary appearances, that the generality of the learned have attributed to him; and particularly those in the subsequent narrative: many of which, though they are beyond the efficiency of disease, deceit, or any visible cause; yet may be the effects of some such unperceived means as follow.

* That pretended to foretel deaths, reveal the defuncts, will differ ver occuit murder do other friendly offices, &c. which were subtle means of inducing to him and relying on him.

There is no difficulty in Satan's transmitting in a short time an account of things which are past; since it is known he goes to and fro in the earth: yea, he may have certainly foretold fome future events, as Alexander's fuccefs against Persia, &c. feeing he understands and may fleal the great revolutions of the world. out of the prophets; wherein they are fo graphically circumscribed; or he may discover his own resolutions whenever he is commissioned or permitted to execute a judgment; which is the case of those whom for feeking their horoscops, God gives over to him to whom they do apply; and of Saul, who got fo exact an account of his own end by the Philiftines. But without fome fuch aid, Satan can only guess like the physician by the urine, or politician by the crifis of states, which is the cause that most of his oracles are ambiguous.

His transporting of witches is elsewhere explained. He can raise hurricanes, as appears in Job, which are known to carry over tracks of lea and land, very ponder-ous bodies; as it is easy for him to condense a part of the wehicle, which may protect the breathing and yet cut the air, like the sence of dyvers, and beak of a sloop; in which also he affects the magnifying of his natural powers to be no lefs than of good angels, who transported Ezekiel and Elijah. His covering of the witches from fight, at some times, is also cleared from the difficulties which seem to attend it, in another place, where it appears very possible that his fill in optics, reflection and refraction of light, &c. to which his power and agility as a spirit subministrates materials, may effectuate all that can be proven to be true fact in the cafe.

But Glanvil, More, and others, lay another hypothesis in both, viz. That the foul is feparable from the body in some cases, without death: when by God's permission, Satan, of the parties confent, gets power over foul and body; whereby he may carry away the one from the helm of the other, and fet it back again in its feat; providing the vital spirits which make the body a fit receptacle, be well preserved by ointments, that constrict the pores till the return of its guest; but death ensues from a separation, when the organs of the body are rendered altogether unapt to obey the foul's commands in its functions. If fuch an opinion could be true, Satan might place this captivated spirit to actuate any shape he thinks sit. But there needs not fo much metaphyfics to unriddle the appearances of witches as beafts and the like: fince their real persons may be covered with a vehicle, which by disposal of the rays coming therefrom, may fascinate the eyes by the fame impressions that come from the true fight of fuch. His power of reprefenting another thing in lieu of that which is truly prefent, is fo certain that it is found he may make up the image of persons who are not present at all. For it is undoubted that spiritual devils may fometimes be permitted to represent by phantoms the most innocent and praise-worthy men, as devils incarnate do traduce them. He that accuseth the brethren and imitates an angel of light, may likewife personate the children of light by his delufions : yet the antecedents, concomitants, and confequents, of fuch providences, do readily propale the falfehood, fo as the just man, for the most part, shall not perish in his righteouiness, and God; in his ordinary providence, will not laugh at the trial of the innocent, though fometimes it fall out, that the fons of Belial may fwear away the life of an innocent Naboth.

There are feveral other things of less difficult explication. Particularly, the devil, or witches might have been heard in converse by the maid, and not by others, the fame way as a found directed through a speaking trumpet does reach the ears to which it is aimed, without dispersing towards the intermediate that are not in a straight line betwixt. The confederated devil, may, upon the witches defire, infuse poisonous humours, extracted from kerbs of the fame invisible operation with the steam of mad dogs, or the peftilence; which being joined to the rapidous course of the patient's own spirits, humours, and blood, that Satan, by ingyring himself thereunto, may, through the natural means of pulfion, fet in career, can very well produce these extraordinary motions which are mentioned in the following account. They delight much in the torture or defruction of young children, in envy of Christ, who is tender of fuch little ones; and because the crime is the greater the less the patient has offended, or can refift. They use, or make others to repeat scripture words for gaining credit, or alleviating the terror, or to difgrace the word, by fuch a mock use, as they did in the time of our Saviour, and therefore their testimony was rebuted. It is observable from many passages, that he hastens sometimes, and effects their discovery, by his malice against their present temporal enjoyments; uncertainty of their continuance; and infatiable defire for their full wreck. Yet fome of them, who are most maliciously bent, he thinks fit to keep here, as useful instruments; and providence permits others to live, that they, wilfully filling up their measure, under means, may be finally inexenfable.

As to those, whom in secret judgment, the devil is permitted to torment: but, in mercy, not to overcome: he may be carried thereunto from his design of perverting them by terror, whereof he is at last disappointed. And however, the defacing of God's image, and especially in despight of Jesus Christ, who honoured that nature by affuming it, is his chief delight: or he is constrained to make fuch flupendous appearances against his will (because he is most successful when he is least known) for a visible testimony superadded to the greater gospel proofs. in gross times, that there are spirits and a devil to torment them, as it is observable that this was denied by Mr. Aikenhead (though he died in full conviction thereof) at the time when these things fell out in the country. Or providence may tolerate such sufferings, that they though intended by the devil for an instance of malice, may, by their notoriety, be a mean of moving the discovery, and bringing to justice these miscreants, whom he made use of as his instruments in them: and who may have lived long in rebellion against heaven, and destruction of mankind, by malefices of the same fort, which fell out in this case. Finally, the abundant and efficacious grace of God is conspicuous in enabling a young girl to relist to the utmost, the best laid assaults of the evil one, as it is certain that he shews the greatest malice in countries where he is hated and hateth most, and the nearer his reign be to an end.

There are many other profitable inftructions which arife from this wonderful providence, for such dispensations have their own language, and the man of wisdom shall see God's name.

The ufages of charms for men or beafts, certain characters, words, verfes, and fpells; the observation of times and seasons as lucky, or unlucky; the belief of having success by carrying about some herbs, plants, or branches of trees, and many the like superstitions, which can have no natural casualty on the effects desired, are the very rudiments of witcheraft, and an implicit application to the devil for virtues which God has denied to things; whence they are to be abhorred as saful in themselves and sitteductory to explicit engagement. So gross ignorance, profane loofenels, flupid forgetfulnels of God, and neglect of his worthip in clofets and families; malice, envy, revenge, difcontent, opperflive fear of want, and diffrulfful anxiety of fpirit, finally, a libidinous temper, curles, imprecations, and finful curlofity, are to be evited as paying the way to the fame mifchief.

Let none inveigh against a profession of religion, because fome under that specious covert have been found in league with the devil. It is because of the glorious lustre and excellency of our holy faith, that these misses mate paint themselves with it, whereby likewife they may be lefs sufpected. And more able, fubtily to gain on others, and do their matter's work. So it was no stain on the aposities that one of their number had a devil, was a traitor and cheat; nor that Stant transforms himself into an angel of light, of design that the good ways of the Lord may be evil spoken of. Neither let us be under a slavish fear and terror of that hellish tribe, in truckling to their humour, least they should do barm, which favours of worthipping and paying homage to the devil; whereas we ought only to make the Lord of hosts our fear and our dread.

There is no just ground to reflect on particular perfons or families, upon account of fuch troubles. For no man knoweth either love or hatred by all that's before them. All things come alike to all. And suppose ye that these were finners above all the Galileans, or above all that dwelt in Jerusalem? The infinite wife God may thus try faith, patience, and Christian fortitude. Job and our Saviour were affaulted; and feven devils caft out of Mary Magdalene a chosen vessel unto the Lord. A daughter of Abraham's was bound by Satan eighteen years; and his messenger was fent to buffet the great apostle of the The woman of Canaan, Matth. xv. 22. and the godly man, Mark ix. 24. had their nearest relations vexed in this manner; and blessed be the Lord that has left fuch inftances on record for prevention of stumbling. Though it must be confessed that the same charity which judges well of all things cannot but alter its remark, when its proof is sufficiently clear from the way in which the person affected did formerly walk, since presumptions do always cede to truth, and lawyers have a maxim, that in re clara non est locus com-

jecturis. W

The things may meet with a very different reception, efpecially in this unhappy age and place of the world, where Britain may be termed the unfortunate iflanti, Afric never having been more fertile in the production of mon-fers; fince 'tis observed that through all the fucceffions of men, there was never before, any fociety or collective body of athelfs, till thefe dregs of time; though there might have been here and there fome misfhapen births. But wifdom is juffified of her children, and 'tis the feation of Sampfon to awake when Delilah gives the alarm, that the Philitines are upon him. What, peace! fo long as the whoredoms of Jezebel and her witcherafts are fo many? But good things are hoped of our magistrates, who have already to happily begun.

The apottle faid of Job's trials, ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have feen the end of the Lord. So, in this narrative you have a deplorable scheme of this maid's formidable fits, and of the powers of darkuess that combined, not only for ruining her body, but also for murdering her foul. In the meantime, the hearts of many were bleeding for her, and much application was made to God in her behalf. Divers folemn falts were observed, both in her father's family, in the parish, and throughout the bounds of the presbytery, and elsewhere; her case was expresly minded in public addresses to the throne of grace; till at length there was a general fait religiously kept, in most parts of the fynod, that God might give an effectual eheck to Satan's rage and dominion in the country. Boating of prayers is to be abhorred, yet it is our duty with all gratitude, to acknowledge God the hearer, and to proclaim to the world, the excellency of them, upon this very occasion: For he hath not turned away his ear from us, it heing the confortable refult of this hiltory, that the girl hath been perfectly well for many months: and is not this a brand plucked out of the fire; and have not the iplumers wherewith the witches thought to have defroyed her, recoiled back upon fome of themselves, and we wait execution of justice on the rest.

^{*} In this case it is evident the thing is not a conjecture.

The devil could not enter the herd of fwine, nor touch one hair of Job's head, without permission from him whose kingdom ruleth over all: whence though our enemies be very indefatigable and invifible, yet we are under the conduct of the watchman who neither flumbers nor sleeps; to whom darkness and light are both alike; and greater is he that is in us, than he that is in the world; So that unless we wilfully forfeit our privileges, there is no fear of counterpoifing the wicked ones, throwing down the gantlet to all their projects or machinations, fince neither angels, principalities, nor powers, shall be able to feparate us from the love which is in Christ Jesus our Lord; and though no argument can be drawn from any merit in us, vet we'll carry the day against all the militia of hell under the captain of our falvation, fince he will rest in his own love. Is this the manner of man, O Lord God? vet a little while the devil and his accomplices will be cast into the bottomless pit, and we transported into Immanuel's land.

It will not be a natural flurdines of temper, nor a lifeless mentioning of the name of God or Christ, that can still the first from those devourers, as appears in the seven seven fone of Seeva, Acts xix, but if the Lord be God, then follow lim; for who is he that will harm you if ye be followers of that which is good; he will give his angels charge of thee to keep thee in all thy ways. Great peace have they that love thy law, and nothing shall offend them. And they weelle most successfully against principalities and powers, who fight upon their knees, as refifting of the devil is the way to make him fice from us.

Yet whom Satan cannot obtain to be tortured hereafter he will (when permitted) torment in this fide of time; hence if poffeffions of bodies be so great a plague, how much worse is it to have him reign master of our fools? Wherefore let us watch and pray against every sin, the least of which is more pleasing to him and worse to us than the being fo corporally tormented.

If Satus, as a fpirit, may infinishe himfelf into our humours, no wonder that by having fuch advantage in the temper, he can influence the phlegmatic to floth, the choleric to anger, the fanguine to fluth and finful pleafure, the melancholic to defpair, &c. So they who think that they fland, have need to take heel left they fall, and to pray that the watchman of lifrael may make an hedge about them and their house, and about all that they have on every fide.

Let this not only rouse our diligence and sir up our gratitude for not being affected alike; but let it recal our admiration and love of Jesus Christ, who hath freed our fouls and bodies from the power and slavery of Satan, and finding ourselves too weak for him, in awarding these deluding pleasures which procure our being deferred by God, and are Satan's baits to this fearful thraidom; let us run to the rock of ages for protection and support, our fufficiency being only of God.

Seeing there are witches and devils, there are also immortal louls of the first, since the last do contract for them, and take such pains to retain them; so that the Sadducees, though they have a judicial blindness in their reason, are thereby rendered inexcussable by very sense. Evil books which stir up and ensare curious faucies, that are seldom accompanied with accurate judyments, (the foul? a looking outward diverting it from diving into the depths of truth) are to be restrained; and also such ridiculous pamphlets, as no doubt, by the infligation of Satan, have lately been seat abroad, of design to frus trate any good use which might be made of such rare providences, as are contained in the ensuing narrative, by forging others, or difguifing this.

This has been delayed so long to be published, partly that there might be the more narrow fertuiny made into the natters of fact; and partly, by some accidents which did carriery of style, because the designed shortness did occasion the wrapping up of much matter in small bounds, and the punctual exadiness of truth in every circumstance was the chief aim, so that other defects ought to be the lefs quarrelled.

The first edition of this Preface, Narrative, &c. was printed at Edinburgh, by James Watton in 1698, and entireled, "True Narrative of the fusterings and relief of a Young Girl, who was strangely molested by evil spirits and their instruments in the west. Collected from authentio tellimonies, with a preface and positeript.

Containing reflections on what is most material or euriou-, either in the history or trial of the Seven Witches who were condemned and burnt in the Gallowgreen of Paisley.

Jos ii. 6. And the Lord faid unto Satan, behold, he is in thine band; but fave his life

MATTH. xv. 22. Have mercy upon me, O Lord, thou fon of David; my daughter is grievoully vexed with a devil.

Rom xv 20 Ind the God of peace shall bruije Satan under your feet shortly."

NARRATIVE,

OF

THE SUFFERINGS AND RELIEF

OF A

YOUNG GIRL.

IT was about the end of August 1696, when the first rife and occasion was given, (so far as can be known) to these strange things that befel the child, who is the subiest of this narrative, and the manner was thus:

Christian Shaw, daughter to a gentleman of good account, called John Shaw, laird of Bargarran*, in the parish of Erskine, within the shire of Renfrew: a smart lively girl, and of good inclinations, about eleven years of age, perceiving one of the maids of the house, named Katherine Campbell, to steal and drink some milk, she told her mother of it; whereupon the maid Campbell (being a young woman of a proud and revengeful temper, and

Grawfurd & History of the Shire of Renfrews

^{* &}quot;A little towards the fouth from the calle of Britime, flands the house of Bargarran, the fact of John Shaw of Bargarran, whole ancellors, for nigh three hundred years, have polified theel lands, and derive their others from a younger brother of the faulty of the foundation of the faulty of the foundation of the faulty of the foundation of the fault of the fault much addicted to curfing and fwearing upon any light occasion, and otherwise given to purioning) did, in a most hideous rage, thrice imprecate the curie of God upon the child; and at the same time did thrice utter these borrid words. The devil harle (that is, drag) your foul through hell: This past upon Monday, August 17th, in presence of several witnesses, who afterwards made evidence of it.

Upon the Friday following, being August a sat, about fun-riting, one Agnes Naefmith, an old widow woman, ignorant, and of a malicious disposition, addicted to threatnings, (which fometimes were observed to be followed with fatal events), who lived in the neighbourhood, came to Bargarran's house, where finding the child, Christian, in the court with her younger sider, the asked how the lady and young child did, and how old the young funking, child was; to which the mass replied, what do I know? Then Agues asked, how herfelf sid, and how old five was; to which the answered, that the was well, and in the eleventh year of her age.

On the Saturday night thereafter, being Aug. 22. the child went to bed in good health; but fo foon as she fell afleep, began to struggle and cry, Help, help! and then fulldenly got up, and did fly over the top or a refting bed, where the was lying (her father, mother, and others being in the room, and to their great aftonishment and admiration) with fuch violence, that probably her brains had been dashed out, if a woman, providentially flanding by, and supported by a door at her back, had not broke the force of the child's motion; who being laid in another bed, remained ftiff and insensible as it she had been dead, for the space of half an hour; but for forty-eight hours thereafter could not fleep, crying out of violent pains through her whole body, and no fooner began to fleep or turn drowfy but feemed greatly affrighted, crying ftill, Help, help.

After this the pain fixt in her left fide, and her body was often to best and rigid, as she stood like a bow on her feet and neck at once, and continued without powerof speech, except in some short intervals, for eight dayse during which time, she had scarce half an hour's intermission together, the fits taking her fuddenly, and both coming on and going off by a fwerff or short deliquium. but appeared perfectly well and fensible in the intervals.

But about the middle of September, her fits returned in a manner differing from the former, wherein she feemed to fight and struggle with something that was invisible to fpectators, and her action appeared as if she had been defending herself from some who were assaulting or attempting to burt her, and this with fuch force that four frong men were scarcely able to hold her; and when any of the people touched any part of her body, she did cry and fereech with fuch vehemence, as if they had been killing her, but could not fpeak.

Before this time, as she was seized with the trouble, her parents had called for physicians from Paisley, viz. John White, apothecary, a near relation, and afterwards Dr. Johnstone; who took blood, and applied several things, both at first, and afterwards, without any difcernable effect upon the patient, either to the better or worse: and she all the while of these later fits being afflicted with extraordinary rifings and fallings of her belly, like the motion of a pair of bellows! and fuch strange movings of her body, as made the whole bed she lay on shake, to the great consternation of spectators.

Some days thereafter was an alteration in her fits, fo far, that she got speaking, during the time of them; and while the was in the fits, fell a crying, that Katherine Campbell and Agnes Naelmith, were cutting her fide, and other parts of her body; which parts were in that time violently tormented. And when the fit was over, the ftill averred, that she had seen the same persons, doing the fame things which she complained of, while under the ht, (it being remarkable that in the intervals she was still as well and fensible as ever) and would not believe but that others present faw them as well as she ! in this condition of a month.

the continued with fome, but not very confiderable variation, either as to the fits or intervals, for the foace

After which time she was conveyed to Glasgow, where Dr. Brisbane*, a physician deservedly famed for skill and experience, did by Mr. Henry Marshall, apothecary, apply medicine to her; after which having staid in Glafgow about ten days, and being brought home to the country, the had near a fortnight's intermission. But then her fits returned, with this difference, that the knew when they were coming, by a pain in her left lide, which she felt before they came, and in these fits, her throat was prodigiously drawn down toward her break, and her tongue back into her throat; her whole body becoming Aid and extended, as a dead corple, without fense or motion; and fometimes her tongue was drawn out of her mouth over her chin to a wonderful length, her teeth fetting together fo fast upon it, that those prefent were forced to thrust fomething betwixt her teeth, for faving her tongue. And it was oft observed that her tongue was thus tortured when she essayed to pray. And in this condition she was for fome time, with fenfible intervals wherein she had perfect health, and could give a full account of what she was heard to utter while in the fit.

For feveral days these fits continuing with some variation, her parents refolved to return her to Glasgow, that the might there have the more conveniency of being under the doctor's overlight and care, for further discerning the nature of her trouble, and making use of the most probable natural remedies. But being on her way to her grandmother's house at Northbar, the did thrust or spit out of her mouth parcels of hair, some custed, some plaited, some knotted, of different colours, and in large quantities: and thus the continued to do in several (wooning fits every quarter of an hour, both in her passage to part with her Bible as long as the lived, the would keep it in spight of all the devils."

^{*}The Son of the Reverend Divine, Mr. Matthew Brifbane, Parlon of Ersking, who was descended from the Brisbanes of Bishopton. Vide Cravefurd's History of the Shire of Renfrew.

Before we pals from this, it will be needful to give the reader advertisement of some things. I. That while she called for her Bible and a candle, the neither heard nor faw any of those persons who were then actually and discernably present in the room with her, and that Katherine Campbell, to whom she directed her speech was not discernably present to any other body but herfelf. And the pinch the got in her infentible fit, the found and complained of the pain of it in that part afterward, but knew not how the came by it, nor blamed any of her tormentors for it. 2. That these words set down as spoken by her were the very same both for words and order as nearly as they could be gathered and remembered by the hearers without any addition of their own. 3. That although she was a girl of a pregnant spirit above her age, and had much of the Seriptures, and withal had pretty good understanding, above what might be expected of one of her years, of the fundamental principles of religion taught in the Catechisms; yet we doubt not in so strong a combat, the Lord did by his good spirit gracionly afford her a more than ordinary measure of affiltance, both now and at other times in the like debates.

Sometime after the putting out of her mouth the trafil above-mentioned, the fell into extremely violent fits, with lamentable crying; four perfons being hardly able to withhold her from climbing up the walls of the chamber; or from otherways doing herfelf hurs, meantime having no power of speech while in the fit, but her back and the reft of her body grievoulty pained, in which condition the continued four or five days with the usual fenfille in the fit of the state of the continued four or five days with the usual fenfille in the continued four or five days with the usual fenfille in the continued four or five days with the usual fenfille in the continued four or five days with the usual fenfille in the continued four of five days with the fenfille in the continued four or five days with the continued for the

that for some time the knew not the name of the faid A. lexander Henderson, till one day he came a-begging to the door of the house, where the damsel was, whom she seeing, immediately cried out, "that was he whom she had seen among the crew."

After this the fell into other fits, wherein the faw the forenamed persons with some others, and heard and saw feveral things that paft among them. Particularly, she fometimes told when she was to take the fits, how often she wuld take them, (which fell out accordingly), with some discourse that were among them relating to herself

About the eighth of December, being brought home again from Glafgow, and having had fix or feven days respite from her fits, she afterwards fell into frightful and terrifying fits; the occasion whereof the declared to be, her feeing the devil in prodigious and horrid shapes, threatening to devour her, and then she would fall dead and fliff with all the parts of her body diftended and firetched out as a corpfe without fense or motion, which fits as they came fuddenly on without her knowledge, fo she did as fuddenly recover and grew perfectly well; and they ufually came on when she essayed to pray. In which time also other fits took her more fensibly, she knowing when they were a-coming, how long they would continue, and when they would return; in which fits her eyes frangely altered, and turned in her head to the admiration of spectators, with a continual painful working about her heart, fometimes her joints were complicate and drawn together, and her forehead drawn forcibly about toward her shoulders; which fits she took by first falling into a fwoon, and after her violent fits, instantly recovered after the fame manner. During this time, the fits altered again as to their times of coming and continuance; in which the fometimes endeavoured to bite her own fingers, or any thing else that came in her way, also when she faw the persons before-mentioned, one or two of them about her, pointing them out to the perfons prefent with her, though by them unfeen, and fometimes declaring that she had hold of them by their cloaths, particularly, December 17. fhe being in a fore fit, fhe cried out of feveral perfons that were tor nenting her; and being in the bed, grasped with her hands towards the foot of it, and cried out that she had got a grip of the sleeves of one J P's jerkin (or jacket) which was, as the faid, duddie, (that is ragged or tattered) at the elbows: and at that very inftunt, the damfel's mother and aunt heard the found of the rending or tearing of a cloth, but faw or felt nothing, only found in each of the damfel's hands, which were fast closewhen they got them opened, a bit of red cloth, looking as torn off a garment; of which kind of cloth there had been none in the room at that time, nor in the whole house, nor near it that any knew of. Another particular she told, was, that there was such an one among the crew going to prick her tongue, which thereupon was instantly pulled back into her throat, she lying dumb for a confiderable space. Sometimes upon her recovery from her fits, the told that the heard feveral things fpoken and communed among her afflictors, but durst not make them known; because they threatened to torment her after this, or the other manner, if the should make them known. and accordingly, when, by her mother or others, she was prevailed with to begin to tell them, inftantly the torment fell out as was threatened. She told further, that her tormentors appeared to her usually with lights and strange forts of candles, which were frightful for her to look to them.

Thus the continued till the first of January 1597, not only in the first fore-mentioned with form alterations, but fell likewife by fwooning, into light fits, wherein she continued about two or three hours together, sometimes more, formetimes lefts, with very short intervals, in which sits she did not much complain of pain; but had a great palpitation in her breast, and sometimes in other pasts of her body, strange and unaccountable motions, which constituted in a greater or lefter degree, during the whole time of the fit, wherein fine was fomewhat light, and not fo folid in her mind as at other times, though in the intervals of thefe, as of all other fits fine was infliciently composed; which fits as all the rest, came suddenly on, and went as suddenly off by a swoon or fwerf.

Before we proceed further in the relation, let it be noticed, first, that the foresaid Agnes Naismith, being brought by the parents a fecond time to fee the damfel, did, (though not defired) pray for her, viz. " That the Lord God of heaven and earth might fend the damfel her health, and try out the verity:" After which, the damfel declared that though the faid Agnes had formerly been very troublesome to her, yet, from that time forth, she did no more appear to her, as her tormentor, but on the contrary, as the apprehended, defending her from the fury of the reft. 2. It is further here to be noticed, that the forenamed Katharine Campbell, could by no means be prevailed with to pray for the damfel, but upon the contrary, when defired by fome, curfed them, and all the family of Bargarran, and in particular the damiel and all that belonged to her, withal adding this grievous impregation, "The devil let her never grow better, nor any goncerned in her, be in a better condition than she was in, for what they had done to her." Which words the fpoke before several famous witnesses. 3. That Bargarran have ing prevailed with the sheriff depute of the shire, to imprison the faid Katharine Campbell, she from the time of her imprisonment, never appeared to the damsel: (though formerly the had ordinarily appeared as one of her most violent tormentors) except once or twice, at which times, it was found upon after enquiry, that she was not in the Tolbooth, but either in the jailor's house, or had liberty granted her to go out to church. 4. That at the time when the damfel did put out of her mouth the hair and other trash, as above related, Katharine Campbell being taken into cuflody, there was found in her pocket a ball of hair of feveral colours, which was afterwards thrown into the fire, after which time the damfel put no more hair out of her mouth. And it is to be further noticed, that the faid, the heard among the crew, when tormenting her, that Katherine Campbell made that ball of hair found in her pocket, of the hair of the damfol's head which had been cut when her trouble began, and which did agree in colour, &c when compared.

Upon the first day of January, about ten o'clock at night, she fell by swoonings into fits differing from the former, in that after the swooning fit was over, she lay quiet, as if she had been dead, making no motion at all with her body in the bed; yet at the same time those prefent heard her mournful talking, but with a low and hardly audible voice, and repeating feveral stories in metre, which they thought to be expressions of the rife and progress of her own trouble; and thus she continued, (still withal naming fome of the forementioned perfons) till her parents and others offered to rouse her, by touching and moving her body; whereupon instantly she uttered; horrid screeches, and cried as if she had been pierced through with fwords, and affaulted for her life; after which she fell a finging, leaping, and dancing for a long time, laughing with a loud voice, in an unufual manner, tearing down the hangings of the bed, and pulling off her head-cloaths and neck-cloaths; in which extravagancies the was acted with fuch a force and strength, that her father and minister, though joining their whole strength together, could not get her dancing and leaping hindered. But after prayer, the minister finding her composed, inquired if the remembered what the had done in time of the fit; to which she replied, That she distinctly remembered her miscarriages, and in special her singing and dancing, faying withal, that the witches inclosing her in a ring (or circle), and dancing and finging about her, was the occasion of her dancing, which she then gladly performed with the reft. For some days after the had fits after this manner, with fome variation; in one of which fits, as the was tearing off her head-dress cloaths, her parents refolving to fee what would be the event, did make no hindrance to her; whereupon fhe ftript he-felf of all her cloaths, that were upon her, not leaving fo much as her fmock upon her body, if that had been permitted.

After this, toward or about the 11th Jan. she fell into fits different from the former, in which the was fuddenly carried away from her parents and others that were about her, with a fudden flight, and in the first of thefe (to their great amazement) through the chamber and hall, down a long winding flair toward the tower-gate, with fuch a fwift and unaccountable motion, that it was not in the power of any to prevent her, her feet not touching the ground, fo far as any of the beholders could difcern, being heard in her motion to laugh in an unufual manner: but by divine providence, the gate being flut. her motion was flopt till fuch time as some of the family could overtake her, who endeavouring to carry her back; found her inftantly fall as one dead, and become fliff; in which posture, being brought back to the chamber, she lay for a confiderable space. And being recovered, she did declare, that there were about the number of nine or ten persons who had carried her away in a shue (as she termed it, that is, as one fwinging upon a rope) wherein the then took pleafure, her feet not at all touching the ground, to her apprehenfion.

The night following, fite was fuddenly carried away, as before, from her parents and others who were about her, through the chamber and hall, and fixteen large sleps of a winding slair, up toward the top of the houte! where she met with apparitions of strange and unaccountable things, but was carried down again, as she thoughty in, as she of twing, afferting, after her recovery, that she met upon the stair the number of fix women and four men, and by them was carried toward the gate again, where accordingly she was found, and was carried up as formerly, all the parts of her body distincted and stiff as son edad; in which softwer she large from the same and the gate again, and was carried to a special to the same should be some some dead in which so some she for some time, and when recovering, declared, that both now and formerly, file had endeavoured to open the gate, and that those he faw about her were helping her, with a defign to get her to the court, to drown her in the well, which she faild heard them Isying among themselves, they intended to do, and that then the world would believe she had deltroyed herself. It is observable that (these kind of fits continued ing with her for fome few days) in one of them she was stopped at the gate, and found in the fore-mentioned pollure, which was neither locked nor barred; yet could they not get it opened, though both she and her tor-

mentors endeavoured it.

Before we proceed in the relation, it is not to be omitted that as foon as the damfel's affliction was observed to be extraordinary and preternatural, there were (besides times formerly fet apart in a more private way) at the defire of the parents and minister, and by the presbytery's special order, a minister or two appointed to meet every week, at the house of Bargarran, to join with the family, the minister of the parish, and other good christians of the neighbourhood, in falting and praying, which usually fell to be on the Tuelday. And upon Jan. 12th, it being the turn of Mr. Patrick Simpson, a neighbour minister, to be there, when he came to the house he found both the minister of the parish, and the brother who was to join with him had been necessarily withdrawn; yet refolved to carry on the work with affiftance of three elders, fome other good people being prefent. When he first faw the damfel after he came to the house, he found her under some leffer fits which came and went off quickly. and when prayer began the was quiet and fober during the fame, but in time of finging the xciii. Pfal. the fell into a fore fit, of greater continuance, first laughing, then making fome found like finging, after that pulling her head cloaths down over her face, and lattly, turning fo outrageous in her motions that her father could fearce get her holden with his whole strength, but behoved to lie over upon the bed with her in his arms until the fir abated : after her recovery from which, she was quiet and composed all the time of prayer, and while the minister lectured on Mark ix. from 14, to 30. v. was very attentive, carefully looking in her Bible the Scriptures quoted, fo all along both in time of prayer and finging, until the whole religious exercise was ended, and some refreshment after the same taken, at the end of which she told the company, she had fomething to tell, which she had heard fome among her tormentors faying, which she tell it her mother in her ear. Then coming from the other fide of the table, and placing herfelf betwixt her mother and aunt, the began to whisper in her mother's ear; but before she got a sentence fully pronounced, she fell into a violent fit, fo as her mother and those next her could fearcely hold her till the violence thereof began to abate, and then her mother told that the was speaking of a meeting and a feast, they had spoke of in the orchard of Bargarran, but was able to fay no more, and after recovery, her mother defiring her to tell the reft of it, and the beginning to whifper in her ear, as before, could not get one word uttered till fhe was feized again of a fit as violent as the former. Whereupon the minister perceiving her torment, defired them to forbear any further troubling of her. Notice, that accordingly there was a feast and meeting in that orchard about that time, of the crew, acknowledged and declared afterwards by three of them, that confessed themselves to have been there, viz. Elizabeth Anderson, James and Thomas Lindsays, they not knowing what either the damfel had fpoken, or one of them what another had confessed relating thereunto. See No. A of the Appendix.

About or within a little after this time, she was again fuddenly carried from them in the former manner down a flair, which goes off from a corner of the chamber to a cellar just below it, where her brother and filter were providentially gone down a little before, to bring fome drink from the cellar, and already near the stair foot, with a lighted candle, which she soon put out; but they crying and holding her by the head-cloaths, quickly difcovered to the rest where she was. Upon which Mr. Alexander King, minister at Bonhill, (being then in the chamber) made hafte down flairs where he found her, but her brother and fifter had loft hold of her, the having loofed her head-cloaths and let them go; yet Mr. King having caught hold of her, kept her in his arms till a lighted candle was brought, and endeavouring to bring her up stairs, did declare that he found something forcibly drawing her downwards, but he kill keeping his hold, fhe fell stiff, as one dead upon the stair, and was in this posture carried up and laid in bed, where she lay a confiderable space. And when recovered of the fit, she declared that the occasion of her going down stairs with fuch force, was, that the crew had fuggered to her while the was in the light fits, that the devil was in the meal chell in the cellar, and that if the would go down and put out the candle, she might force him out of it. Notice here, first, that when some fits of this kind were ready to seize her, the fometimes gave advertisement thereof to those prefent with her, giving figns of her earnest defire of their help to prevent her motion, which usually proved to be of good effect, wherein the divine mercy toward her is much to be observed. 2. It is also to be noticed, that about the time when she was in these slying sits, she used to utter horrid shrieks and outcries, not like those of rational creatures; in which time there were heard for three nights together when the damfel was afleep in bed, flirieks and outcries of the same kind in the court, when none of the family was without doors, to the great affrightment of those who heard them, being that they exactly resembled the cries of, and shricks the damsel used to utter in the fits; who afterwards in one of her intervals hearing some of the family talking of these cries and shricks, and alledging they had been uttered by some wild beast or other, faid to them they were miltaken, for it was Margaret. And two others of the name of Margaret, called by the the even their Maggies, had uttered thefe shricks, the devilhaving promised to them at that time to carry her out of the house to them, that they might drown her in the well, where there were eighteen more waiting for her.

After this she fell into fretting and angry sits (as she termed them) in which her humour was crofs to all that those about her could say or do, nothing proving to her fatisfaction, but every thing displeasing, (her former fits withal now and then feizing her) but when restored to a right composure of mind, the declared that her tormentors about her, did ftill fuggeft to her and advise her, to go to fuch and fuch remote places of the house alone, and bring with her a fnood (which is a head-lace, fuch as women tie up their hair with) or a cravat or fome fuch thing, promifing her rough almonds or fome kinds of fweet meats which they named to her, and for that end, to bring her apron with her to hold them in, and accordingly when seized again with fits of this nature, did resolutely endeayour to repair to these places, having a snood or cravat and her apron with her, and would fuffer none to be in her company, which put her parents and others to a neceffity of detaining her by force, and she being thus prevented, uttered hideous foreeches and outcries, of which in this fort of fits the was feldom free.

Thursday, January 14th, at night, a young lafe or girl appeared to her with a scabbed face amongst the rest of her tormentors, telling her she was to come to the house to-morrow about ten o'clock, and forbidding her to reveal it.

The next day being Junuary 15th, in the afternoon, the damfel earnefully enquired at her mother and the reft of the family what beggars had come to the gate that day, and of what countenance and vilage they were? but the family not knowing her defign in fuch a queltion, gave no heed unto it; yet the till intifting, and being in company with her mother and another gentlewoman, about four o'clock at night, faid to them, fix thought fix might tell them fomewhat (the time being now pail) fix was forbidden to reveal it; but beginning to tell, fix perfently fell a crying, that fix ensuremented and pricked through her whole body, yet recovering from the fit, went on and told it; the thing fix had to reveal was, that a feabbed faced lafe appeared to her yeftenight, and was to be at the gate this day at ten o'clock. Whereupon the fervants being enquired at, what fort of beggars had been there that day, did declare among others, there had been a beggar wife a the door, and a young woman or lafs with her who had feabs on her face, and received their alms.

Jan. 16th and 17th, when recovered of her fwooning fits, file put out of her mouth a great number of pins, which file declared J — P — had forced into her mouth and a gentlewoman who had been one of her melt violent tormentors.

Jan. 21. her fits altered again, after this manner, file would fal in them with heavy fighs and groans, and hideous outcries, telling those about her that cats, ravens, owls, and horses, were destroying and pressing her down in the bed : and at the fame time her mother and another gentlewomen, being in the room with her, did declare, that immediately after they had taken the girl out of her bed in this condition they did see something moving under the bed-cloaths as big as a cat.

fpectators could scarce with their whole firength prevent

About this time, nothing in the world would fo difcompose her as religious exercises; if there were any discourses of God or Christ, or any of the things which are not feen and are eternal, she would be cast into grievous agonies; and when the effayed in her light fits, to read any portion of the scriptures, repeat any of the Pfalms, or answer any questions of our catechisms (which the could do exactly at other times) the was fuddenly ftruck dumb, and lay as one stiff dead, her mouth opened to fuch a wideness that her jaw appeared to be out of joint, and anon would clap together again with incredible force. The same happened to her shoulder blade, her elbow, and hand wrifts. She would at other times lie in a benumbed condition, and be drawn together as if she had been tied neck and heels with ropes; yet on a fudden would with fuch force and violence be pulled up and tear all about her, that it was as much as one or two could do, to hold her fast in their arms; but when minifters and other good christians (feeing her in fuch intolerable anguishes) made ferious application by prayer to God, on her behalf, she got respite from her grievous fits of this kind, and was ordinarily free of them during the time of prayer, though feized of them before; and albeit, usually, when ministers began to pray, she made great diffurbance by idle loud talking, whiftling, finging and roaring, to drown the voice of the person pray-

Particularly Jan. 22. fine was more turbulent than at other times fine used to be, and continued some space after the minister began to pray, singing and making hideous noise, setching surious blows with herefit, and kicks with her feet at the minister, uttering reproachful talk of him, and calling him dog, &c. Yet she being composed and her fits being over before prayer was ended, and the minister, when he had done, finding her sober and in a right composure of mind, enquired why she made such disturbance? To which the replied, she was forced to do it by the hellish crew about her; and that she thought they were none of her own words that she uttered.

Jan. 24th, She faid some things relating both to herfelf and others, had been fuggetted to her by her troublers; but that they had threatened to torment her, if she should offer to make them known. And accordingly in essaying to express her mind, she was cast into two grievous fits, in which the cried out of violent pains; all the parts of her body becoming rigid and extended like a corpfe, her head was twifted round, and if any offered by force to obftruct fuch dangerous motion she seemed to be upon, she would roar exceedingly : fometimes her neck bone feemed to be disolved; and yet on a sudden became so stiff, that there was no moving of it; and when these grievous agonies were over, she again assayed to express her mind by write, but to no purpole; for inflantly the was cast into other two very grievous fits, wherein the was ftruck dumb, deaf and blind, and her tongue drawn a prodigious length over her chin. And when the fits were over, declared, the Anderfons, I. - P - the gentlewoman, and I -D --- with the rest of the hellish crew, some of whom the could not name, had been tormenting her in the fits, and that there had been fifteen of them about the house all the last night, but were now all gone fave one, who was to stay about the house till her sits were over. And accord-

and that there had been inteen or them about the house all the last hight, but were now all gone fave one, who was to stay about the house till her fits were over. And accordingly her brother and sister diddeclare, they saw that morning a woman in the garden with a red coat about her head, fitting at the root of an apple tree; but Bargarran, with most of the servants, being abroad, the matter was not further searched

The fame day about fix at night, fite was feized with variety of grievous fits again, in which fometimes fite lay wholly fenfelefs and breathlefs, with her belly fwelled like a drum, as like a woman with child, her eyes were pulled into her head fo far, that fpectators thought fite fhould never have used them more, fometimes when the was tying her own neck-loatish, her enchanted hand would tie them fo Arait about her neck, that she had firangled hersels if spectators had not given some relief unto her; sometimes she was in hazard of burning hersels in the fire, offering with violence to throw hersels into the same. Divers times the did frike furious blows at her near relations in her fits, she would maintain discourse when the remembers, need a ship questions concerning hersels and there, received answer from them; which indeed none but hersels preceived; reasoning with one of them after this manner;

" O what ailed thee to be a witch! thou fayeft it is but three nights fince thou wast a witch. O if thou wouldest repent, it may be God might give thee repentance, if thou wouldest feek it and confess; if thou would defire me I would do what I could; for the devil is an ill master to serve, he is a liar from the beginning, he promises what he cannot perform. Then calling for her Bible, the faid I will let thee see where he promised to our first parents that they should not die; (and reading the passage, said) now thou feeft he is a liar, for by breaking the commandment, they were made liable to death here, and death everlafting. O that is an uncouth word; long eternity never to have an end, never, never to have an end; had not God of his infinite mercy, ordained fome to eternal life through Jesus Christ. The devil makes thee believe thou wilt get great riches by ferving him; but come near," and having attered this word, the loft power of her speech, her tongue being drawn back into her throat; yet beckoning with her hand to the spectre to come near her, and turning over the book, kept hereye upon that paffage of holy Scripture, Job xxvii. 18. and pointing with her finger at the place, and shaking her head, turned over the book again, and recovering her speech, said, " I'll let thee fee where God bids us feek and we shall find; and reading over the place, faid, it is God that gives us every good gift, we have nothing of our own, I submit to his will though I never be better; for God can make all my trouble turn to my advantage, according to his word, Rom. viii. 28." which place she then read, and thus continued reasoning, for the space of an hour.

Sometimes the cried out of violent pain, by reason of furious blows and fluckes, the had received from the hands of her tormentors, the noise of which fluckes, bye-flanders diffinely heard, though they perceived not the hands that gave them.

One night the guil fitting with her parents and others cried out, fomething was wounding her thigh; upon which inflantly her mother putting her hand in the damfel's pocket, found her folding knife opened, which had been folded when put in her pocket; but her uncle not trufting the thing; did again put up the knife, and leaving it folded in her pocket, on a fudden fhe cried out, as before, the knife was cutting her thigh, being unfolded by means of J. P. and others, as file faid: upon which her uncle fearching her pocket again, found the knife opened as formerly. This happened twice or thrice, to the admiration of the beholders, though they took fpecial notice that file nor any other vifible hand opened it.

Jan. 25th, the was again feized with her fwooning ftiff fits, with this remarkable variation; her throat was fometimes most prodigiously extended, and sometimes as strangely contracted; fo that she appeared in palpable danger of being choaked; and through the violence of pain in her throat, and difficulty of breathing, ftruggled with feet and hands, as if some had been actually strangling her, and could fpeak or cry none; with which kind of fits the was frequently feized for feveral days, and in the intervals, did declare, that the fore-mentioned persons and others, (whom she could not get then named) were frangling her, and that the occasion of her not having power to speak or cry in the fit. was a ball in her throat, which also was visible to spectators; for they did clearly difcern a bunch in her throat while in the fit) as big as a pullet's egg, which had almost choaked her.

Sometimes the was kept from eating her meet, having her teeth fet, when the carried any food to her mouth. Divers times allo the was kept from drinking, when at meat; for no fooner could the talle the drink, but the was in hazard to be choaked thereby, and herfelf fometimes would have held the cup to hard betwist her teeth, that it was not in the power of those with her to unloofe it. And when any thing had fallen out amis fin the place where the was, as the falling and breaking of a cup, any body's receiving harm, and fuch like, the would fall a laughing and rejoice extremely; which kind of jollity was far from the girl's temper when at herfelf.

Feb. 1st, she essaying to tell some things she had been forbidden by her tormentors to make known, was handled with intolerable torments. At the beginning of her fits, ufually she would be kept oddly looking, sometimes towards the chimney, fometimes towards other particular places in the room, but could not always tell what she saw; yet for ordinary she would name fuch and fuch perfons, who, she faid, were then come to cast her into fits. And when any defired her to cry to the Lord Jefus for help, her teeth were instantly set close, her eyes twisted almost round in her head, and the was thrown upon the floor with the fliffness and posture of one that had been some days laid for dead; and on a fudden recovered again, and would weep bitterly, to remember what had befallen her. The fame day, when her fits were over, the faid, the now perceived it was by the means of a charm, that fuch reftraints were laid upon her, that she could not tell what the witches had forbidden her to make known, but the charm might be found out (as she said) by searching for it beneath the bed where she lay; and she having quickly done this herfelf. found (to the apprehension of spectators) beneath the forefaid bed an entire egg shell open in the end, which being inflantly thrown into the fire, did melt away after the manner of wax, without any noise as egg shells use to make when burning in the fire. After this the girl faid, she would not now be handled so severely, upon effaying to make known what the witches had forbidden her to tell, only her tongue would be drawn back into her threat, which accordingly happened. She did likewife inform her friends of many things she had not liberty to do, before the charm was found out, particularly, that her tormentors had frequently folicited her to become a witch herfelf, and promifed her great riches and perfect health alfo, to induce her thereunto. Which temptation, she, through the infinite mercy of God, ftill refifted, reasoning with them after this manner : the devil promises what he cannot perform, and granting he could fulfil his promises, yet I am sure from the Scriptures, hell and the wrath of God will be the final reward of all fuch as yield to this wickedness." To which she received this reply, (which indeed, none but herfelf perceived) that, hell and the wrath of God fo much talked of, was not so formidable as was represented. She also faid, the witches had importunately urged her to give them her confent, to take away the life of her young fifter, who was at that time upon her mother's breaft; which temptation also, she was enabled through the grace of God to refift. She told her parents likewife, there had been a charm laid upon the top of the house, where her young fifter was (the child having been fent out a nursing, by reason of the continued affliction of the family) and that the charm had been placed upon the top of the house by pinched Maggy, who thereby did delign the taking away of her filter's life; and that this was the cause why she had so often, for some weeks before, defired her mother to bring home her fifter, conftantly affirming, that the shild would daily decay as long as she staid there. Whereupon her parents observing the daily decay of the infant, even to skin and bone, brought her home, where the recovered. The girl being asked how she came to the knowledge of these things ? replied, something speaking distinctly as it were above her head, had suggested these, and other things of that nature to her.

Feb. 2d The girl being in the chamber with her mother and others, was on a fudden ftruck with great fear and consernation, and fell a trembling upon the fight of John Lindsay, in Barloch, talking with her father in the hall. She faid to her mother, the foresaid Lindsay had been always one of her most violent tormentors, and that she had been threatened with extreme tortures, if she should offer to name him; whereupon she was defired to go towards the place where he was, and touch some part of his body in a way unknown to him, which having done with fome averfion, was inflantly feized with extreme tortures in all the parts of her body. After which Lindfay was put to it, and interregated thereupon; but he giving no fatisfying answer, was defired to take the damiel by the hand, which he being unwillingly induced to do, she was immediately upon his touch cast into intolerable anguilhes, her eyes being almost twisted round in her head, and all the parts of her body becoming rigid and stiff, fell down in the posture of one that had been laid for some days dead, and afterwards got up in a fudden, and tearing her cloaths threw berfelf with violence upon him, and when her fit was over, spectators did alfo take the damfel by the hand, yet no fuch effect followed.

About fix at night there came an old Highland fellow to Bargarian, who calling himfelf a weary traveller, faid, he behoved to lodge there that night, but the fervants retaining him lodging, gave him fomething by away of almost. At this time the damfel being in the chamber with her mother and another gentlewoman, faid to the bell of her apprehension; there was one of the wicked erew in or about the houfe at that time: whereupon her mother made haske with her daughter down flairs towards the kitchen. And finding there unexpectedly the Highland fellow, whom the girl then accufed as one of her tormentors, the defired the Highland fellow to take her daughter by the hand, which he being urged to do, the girl immediately upon his touch was grievoully tormented in all the parts of her body. And this falling out in divine providence, Bargarran caufed fecure him.

The next morning, the minister having come to Bargarran to wifit the damfel, and the matter being imparted to him, called for the Highland fellow, and having queftioned him to and again about this matter, without any fatisfying answer, brought the child out of the chamber, covering her face, and almost her whole body with his cloak, and giving figns to the Highland fellow to touch her in this posture, as he had ordered him before, without the damfel's knowledge, which he having done with great aversion, the girl not knowing of his touch, was instantly cast into intolerable agonies as formerly; yet others afterwards touching her, no fuch event followed. And when her fits were over, the belought the Highland fellow, to allow her the liberty for to discover and tell perfors that haunted and molefted her, whom he had forbidden her to make known: Upon which the old fellow looking at her with an angry countenance, her mouth was instantly stopped, and her teeth fet : And being dehe would or not, at length replied, she feared to do it. And when through the importunity of John Maxwell of. Dargavel and Porterfield of Fulwood, and some other gentlemen there prefent, fhe effayed to declare her mind,

Before this time, the lamentable cafe of the afflicted damfel and family, had been repreferate to His Majethy's most honourable privy council, who upon ferious application made to them, worthily and piously granted a commission to a noble lord and some worthy gentlemen, to make inquiry into the same. By vitue of this commission, some inspected performs were feized; particularly Feb. 4. Alexander Anderson, an ignorant, irreligious fel low, who had been always of evil faune, and accused by the afflicted damfel, by a special order from the commiffioners for inquiry, was apprehended and committed to prison; as was also Elifabeth Anderson his daughter, upon flagrant prefumptions of witchcraft; for the other year, fean Fulton, her grandmother, an old feandalous woman, being cited before the kirk-fession, and accused for hideous curfing, and imprecating mischief upon several persons, which had been followed with fatal events, the forementioned Elifabeth Anderson, her grandchild, who lived in the house with her, did declare before the session. the had frequently feen the devil in company with her grandmother, in the likeness of a small black man, who usually did evanish on a sudden within the walls of the house, when any body came to the door. Upon this prefumption was the faid Elifabeth Anderson seized with her father, and committed to custody; but at first most obstinately denied accession any manner of way to the sin of witchcraft, until afterwards, when feriously importuned and dealt with in the prison by two gentleman, did, before the came to Bargarran's house, confess her guilt, without Bargarran's knowledge at that time. And that fhe had been at feveral meetings with the devil and witches, and amongst others, she did declare her own father, and the forementioned Highland fellow, to have been active instruments of the girl's trouble; and gave, before she was confronted with him, exact marks of this Highland body, and though she declared she knew not his name: yet when confronted with him, did accuse him, and affirm he was the person she spoke of. See No. A of the Appendix.

February 5th, a 'quorum of the commissioner's being met at Bargarran, and the persons then delated by Elifabeth Anderson to have been at meetings with the devil, and active influencents of the dames by the stander Anderson her father, Agnes Na-simith, Margaret Fultonn, James Lindsay alias Curat, John Lindsay alias Bishop, Kathanjne Campbell were all of them (excepting John Lindsay alias Bishop, was not then apprehended), confronted with Katharine Shaw before the lord Blands and the standard st tyre, and the reft of the commissioners at Bargarran, and feveral other gentlemen of note, and ministers then prefeat, and accused by her as her tormentors. And they having all feverally touched her in presence of the commisfigners, the was at each of their touches feized with grievous fits, and cast into intolerable anguishes, others then present also touching her the same way, but no such effeet followed. And it is remarkable, when Katharine Campbell touched the girl, she was immediately upon her touch seized with more grievous fits, and cast into more intolerable torments than what followed upon the touch of the other accused persons, whereat Campbell herself being damped and confounded, though the had formerly declined to blefs her, uttered thefe words; " The Lord God of heaven and earth blefs thee, and fave thee both foul and body :" After which the damfel when the fits were over, in which she had been a most pitiful spectacle, did declare, the was now loofed, and that the might freely touch any of the accused persons, or they her after this, without trouble, which accordingly upon trial fell fo out, and being inquired how the came to the knowledge of that, answered as formerly in the like case, That something speaking diffinctly as it were above her head, fuggelted this to her; and likewife ufually gave her the knowledge of the names of her tormentors, and places in which they lived.

February 6. The girl being feized with fore fits, fome-thing was feen in her mouth, to the judgment of special tors like pieces of orange pills invifibly conveyed into her mouth, which the feemed in her agonies to be chewing, and having got down her throat, as those prefent apprehended, the did fall down dead and fiff, as is the had been cloaked, thruggling with her feet and hands, as if at the last gafe, her throat fwelling in a prodigious manner; to the affirightment of specialors, and when recovered, but yet in the light fit; she would fay, O it was a very sweet orange pill which I got from the gentlewoman, and did coalkantly affirm the same declaring also that there had coalkantly affirm the same declaring also that there had been others there present with the gentlewoman, particularly Margaret L - or pinched Maggy, whose sirname the had neither power nor liberty to express, neither durst the offer to do it, left the should be tormented as was threatened, and always fell out when she essayed to do it, either by speaking or writing, which had appeared the day before in the presence of the commissioners.

H 3

About this time, Thomas Lindfay, a young boy, not yet twelve years of age, was feized, upon flagrant prefumptions of witchcraft; he had faid before feveral credible persons, the devil was his father, and if he pleased he could fly in the likeness of a crow upon the mast of a thip. He fometimes caused a plough fland and the horse break the yoke, upon the pronouncing of some words, and turning himfelf about wider-fhins; that is turning himself round from the right hand to the left, contrary to the natural course of the fun. This he would do upon these and the like flagrant presumptions he was apprehended, who, at first, though he continued most obstinate in denial, vet afterwards confessed to the minister in his own house, before famous witnesses, compact with the devil, and that he had received the infentible mark from the devil, which is visible upon his body; as also, that he had been at feveral meetings with the devil and witches, where he faid were present, his brother James, with others, and particularly those who had been delated by Anderson. This he confessed, with some other wickedness of this kind before he was committed to cuftody in Bargarran

After this Bargarran made diligent fearch for James Lindfay, elder brother to Thomas, having been all along accused by the afflicted damsel as one of her troublers, whom the called the gley'd or fquint eyed elf (as he was indeed) for that was the name the crew about her gave him, who when he was brought upon the place, though he did at first most obstinately deny his guilt, yet at length through the endeavours of Mr. Patrick Simplon, a neighbour minifer, ingenioufly confelled the guilt he was charged with, and in his confellion did agree in every material circumflance with the other two, though he knew not what they had confelfed, he having not feen them before his confellion, nor had he any occasion of information in conference with others thereasent, being immediately brought to the place from the tolbooth of Chafgow, where he had been fome weeks before that time in prifon, as a wagabond beggar upon a defiga to have fent him to foreign plantations.

A more particular account of what they freely confelled and acknowledged before the commissioners, for inquiry, we have for the satisfaction of the reader subjoined to the marative, with an abilitact of the report made by the commissioners to the lords of his maieth'* most honourable

privy council, concerning the whole affair

February 11. There was by the presbytery's appointment, a public fast kept upon the damfel's account in the church of Erskine, in which Mr. Turner minister of the place began the work with prayer, expounding Rev. xii. from ver. 7. to ver. 13. Mr. James Hutchison minister at Kilellan took the next turn of prayer, and did preach upon 1 Pet. v 8. and Mr. Simpson concluded the work, preaching upon Matthew xvii. 20, 21 where the girl was present all day; but before she came to church that morning, she told, that while she was in one of her fits, the night before, she heard the devil speaking of that public fait, and what ministers were to be there, and that old man Mr. James Hutchison should stumble, and his peruke fall off as he went up to the pulpit, and all the people should laugh at him, and he should break his neck in going home. And when the came out of the church after the forenoon's work, the faid, the devil was a liar; for no fuch thing fell out as he had threatened She was all day very quiet in church, although being in some of her light fits, some spectres appeared in time of the public work, which she told of thereafter.

About fix at night, there were prefent in the chamber with the damiel, Mr. Simpson with his wife, lady Northbarr and others, discoursing and conferring about her case; and while they were conferring together, she told them, the would gladly make fome things known if the durft for her tormentors; and afterwards effaying to do it, was instantly feized with a violent fit; in which she leapt firaight up, and appeared as if she had been choaked, fo it was as much as one or two could do, to hold her fast in their arms : and when the fit was over, Mr. Simpson going about family worship, did expound Pfalm cx and speaking of the limited power of the adverfaries of our Lord Jesus Chrift, from the latter part of ver. 1. the was on a sudden feized with another grievous fit, in which she put out of her mouth fome blood, which raised grounds of fear and jealoufy in the minds of fpectators, that fomething in her mouth hurting her, had been the occasion of it yet they could not get her mouth opened, though they used means to open the same, her teeth being close fet. And in the interval of the fit, she being asked, if the found any thing in her mouth, that had been the occasion of her putting out of blood; she replied, she found nothing, nor knew the cause thereof : but opening her mouth, those present found one of her double teeth newly drawn out, but knew not what became of the tooth; for though fearch was made for the fame, it could not be found : after which the minister proceeded upon the same subject, but was again interrupted by her renewed fits, yet closed the exercise with prayer, after which without more trouble, the was taken to her bed.

February 12 Margaret Lang and her daughter Martha Semple, being delated by the three confessants, and accused by the girl to have been active instruments in her trouble, came of their own accord to Bargarrau's house, and before they came un fairs, the girl land, she was now bound up, and could not accuse Margaret Lang to her face; and accordingly the girl's mother having defired fome of those who were fitting by her, to feel fome parts of her body, and they having done it, found her body fo ftiff and inflexible, that there was no moving of it, and immediately again, found fome parts of her body fo contracted and drawn hard together, as if by cords: after this, Margaret Lang and her daughter, having gone to the chamber to the girl, did in presence of the ministers and others, defire the damfel to come to her, for the would do her no harm, and laying her arms about her, spake very fairly to her, and questioned her, if ever she had feen her or her daughter amongst her tormentors, to which the girl did positively reply, she had frequently feen her daughter; but declined through fear to accuse herfelf, faying faintly, No. After which Margaret and her daughter returning into the hall, and the minister enquiring at her why she faid No, seeing she had accused her before, the answered, take me contrary, upon which the was feized with a grievous fit; yet after her recovery, being urged again by those present, to tell her mind freely, whether or not Margaret Lang was one of her tormentors, the child thereupon essaying to say Yes, and having half pronounced the word, was calt into unexpressible anguishes; and again, in the interval of the fit, she essayed to express the same thing, and saying the word, Tint (that is loft) was on a sudden flruck with another fit, and when the fit was over, and the child returned to the chamber, Margaret Lang who was fitting near the hall door, spoke these words after her, " The Lord bless thee, and ding (that is beat or drive) the devil out of thee." A little after which words, Margaret going down stairs, the damfel came to the hall, and faid, her bonds were now loofed, and that now the could accuse Margaret Lang to her face, and declared the occasion of her being so restrained and bound up while Margaret was present, was her letting fall a percel of hair at the hall door as the came in : being a charm made by her for that end, which also had been the occasion of her uttering the word tint, in the former fit: and accordingly a parcel of hair had been found at the hall door, after Margaret Lang had gone fraight from the hall to the chamber, which immediately was caff into the fire and burned. And it is remarkable that it could be attefled, that there was no hair, or any other thing elfe in that place before Margaret Lang came in, and the girl being inquired what way she knew Margaret Lang had laid the forementioned charm upon her, replied, something speaking diffinely to her as it were above her head had suggested that to her.

About eight at night she was severely handled in her fits, much after the former manner, and while the was in her swooning fits, there was feen in her mouth a pin, wherewith she seemed almost choaked, but by divine providence it was with great difficulty got out. After this the was fomewhat composed, and did not much complain of pain; but was distinctly heard to entertain discourse with some invisible creature about her, and the replies given by her, and heard by these who took care of her, gave them ground to conclude the was tempted to fet her hand to a paper then prefented to her, with promifes that upon her yielding thereunto, the frould never be troubled any more; as also that she should get sweet meats, a drink of fack, a bonny handsome coat with filver lace; She was also diffinctly heard fay, refifting the tempter, "Thou artafile thy fow, should I obey thee; this was not the end of my creation, but to glorify God and enjoy his for ever; and thou promifeth what thou cannot perform, art thou angry at me for faying thou fow, what should I call thee, but thou filthy fow; art thou not the filthy devil, for as brave as thou art with thy filver and gold lace, wouldest thou have me renounce my baptifm. Doft thou promife to give me brave men in marriage, and fine cloaths, and fay my baptism will do me no good, because thou alledgest he was not a fufficient minister that baptized me? thou art a liar, I will be content to die, before I renounce my baptism, O through the grace of God I will never do it. And thus she continued reasoning, being both blind and deaf, for the space of two hours; and when she came to herfelf, did declare, it was the devil who first presented himself, tempting her in the shape of a sow, to renounce her baptism, as is hinted; and that he did chide her: when she called him thou sow, and immediately appeared to her again, in the shape of a brave gentleman, as having gold and filver lace on his cloaths. Still urging her to renounce her baptifm, which temptation the through the special affiltance of the grace of God, effectually relifted : She also faid; that it had been suggested to her by the spirit, speaking to her, as it were above her head, after the combat with the tempter was over, that one of her tormentors would be at the house the morrow

February 13. she was seized with a sore fit about twelve o'clock of the day, in which the continued for more than two hours space, both deaf and blind. Those in the room with her, crying to her with a loud voice, and pinching her hands and other parts of her body; but all to no purpole. And in this posture was nurried to and fro with violence through the room: And when any body by force offered to hinder the dangerous and violent motion. the feemed to be upon, the would roar exceedingly, fometimes the defired her father and mother and others to come and take her home, (Inppoling herfelf not so be in her father's house) when the girl was in this deplorable condition, Margaret Roger, who lived in the neighbourhood, came to the house of Bargarran, enquiring for the lady; and having come up flairs, the parents of the damfel remembering what the girl had faid the night before, that one of her tormenters was to come that day to the house, brought Margaret Roger to the chamber where the girl was, and fo foon as the entered the door; the damfel though the could difeern none of these who were present with her, nor answer them when they cried to her; yet prefently faw her, and ram towards her, crying, "Maggy, Maggy, where haft thou been? will thou take me with thee, for my father and mother have left me." Whereupon fpectators being aftenified, caufed Margaret fpeak to the child, which fibe having done, the girl diffinitly heard and anfwered her every word. After this, the three confelfants were also brought up to the chamber where the damfel was, and fo foom as they entered the door, file ran alfo to them laughing, as if the had been overjoyed, answering them when they fpoke to her; and Margaret Roger there prefent, being confronted with the confelfants: they did declare, that she had been a meetings with the devil and witches in Bargarran orehard, confulting and contriving Christian Shaw's ruin.

The Lord's day following, being February 14 after fome fhort intervals, she was again seized with her fits, in which the faid, " Margaret Lang and her daughter Martha Semple, were tormenting her and cutting her throat;" which words, through violence of pain, and difficulty of breathing, the uttered with a low and hardly audible voice, and upon the naming of Margaret Lang and her daughter she was tofted and dreadfully tormented in all the parts of her body, being made fometimes to fland upon her head and feet at once, fometimes her belly fwelling like a drum; and falling again in a fudden, and fometimes her head and other parts of her body were like to be shaken in pieces, so that spectators feared she would never speak more. And when the fit was over, she declared, Margaret Lang faid to her, when in the fit, 'That the would give her a tofty,' (which imports hot and fevere handling) for naming her.

At this time the was feldom free of her light fits, which for melt part were all the repite and cafe the had from the unexpetible agonies the endured in her more grievous fits, unlefs when afteep: and while the was in the fits, no body could perfuade her to pray, yet when in a right composure of mind and perfectly at lerifelt, the would weep bitterly to remember this, expressing her fears, lest that might be any evidence God would forsake her.

February 18. About two in the afternoon, she being in the light fit, faid, 'The devil now appeared to her in the shape of a man; whereupon being struck with great fear and consternation, was defired to pray with an audible voice, ' the Lord rebuke thee, Satan,' which she essaying to do, inftantly loft power of speech, her teeth being fet, and her tongue drawn back into her throat, and she effaying again, was immediately feized with another grievous fit: in which her eyes being twifted almost round in her head, she fell down as one dead, struggling with her feet and hands, and again getting up on a fudden, was hurried with violence to and fro through the room deaf and blind; yet was speaking with some invisible creatures about her, faying, " with the Lord's strength, thou shalt neither put straw nor stick into my mouth." After this, she eried in a pitiful manner, the bumbee has stinged me, then prefently fitting down and loofing her flockings, put her hand to that part which had been nipped or pinched, whereupon spectators did visibly difcern the lively marks of nails of fingers deeply imprinted on that fame part of her leg And when the came to herfelf, the did declare, 'that fomething speaking to her as it were above her head,' told her it was M. M. in a neighbouring parifh, (naming the place) 'that had appeared to her and pinched her leg in the likeness of a bumbee.' She likewise did declare, that the forementioned M. M. 'instantly after this had been suggested to her, appeared in her own shape, and likeness as she used to be at other times.' Shortly after this, being still seized with her light fit, she whispered in her mother's ear. the devil was now appearing to her again in the shape of a gentleman :' and being instantly seized with her fits. in which she was both blind and deaf, was diftinctly heard arguing after this manner, 'thou thinkest to tempt me to be a witch; but through God's ftrength thou shalt never

Me the better; I charge thee, in the name of God, to begone and thy papers too. In the Lord's firength I will not fear thee. I will fland here and fee if thou can come one flep nearer me, I think thou fearest me more than I fear thee.' Then turning herfelf again, she was hurried to and fro with violence through the room, as formerly, faying, 'fhe was bitten or pinched very fore in the hand with teeth, and nipped with fingers about twenty-four times;' which conftrained her to horrid fcreechs and outcries at every time she received them, shewing and pointing with her finger to these parts of her arm and leg which had been pinched and bitten, but neither faw mor heard any about her. And accordingly spectators did visibly discern the evident-marks of teeth and nails of angers upon her arms and legs. In this posture the girl continued from two till five in the afternoon, and when her mifery was over, the faid, ' M. M. told her in the fit, that Margaret Lang, then in cuflody, had ordered her to handle her after that manner. And that Margaret Lang had a commanding power over her.

Friday and Saturday thereafter, being Feb. 10th and 20th, she was frequently seized with the forementioned fits, and being violently bitten, pinched, and nipped, in her hands, neck, and other parts of her body, fo that the clear marks of the nails of fingers and fleads of teeth, both upper and lower, with the spittle and slaver of a mouth thereupon, was evidently feen by spectators. About this time, when ferzed with her blind and deaf fits, a crooked fellow appeared to her, having his feet deformed, his two heels wrying inward toward one another, and the foreparts of his feet outward from one another, fo that the broadfide of his feet moved foremost, and upon the appearing of this fellow her feet were put in the very fame , posture, during the time he tormented her. It is to be noticed, that there is a fellow in one of the neighbouring parishes, whose seet are exactly in that manner deformed, who has been a long time of ill fame, and given up by the confessants, to have been at meetings with the devil and the cest of the crew, in Bargarran orchard.

Saturday, being Feb. 20th, the whole family being gone to bed, they had left a great quantity of peats or turf, befide the hall chimney, which the next morning they faw them burnt to after, though there had been no fire in the chimney nor near them, fo that the plaifter and flones of the wall, where the peats or turf lay, were in a great part turned to rubbifh, through the violence of the fire, but no other damage followed, the hall floor being laid with flones, and the peats lying within the bofom of a large chimney brace.

Feb. 27th, The chamber fire having been covered with after in the chimmey, when the family went to bed, the next morning, though a good quantity of after had been left, yet they found all clean fwept away, and no appearance of after nor fire there at all; albeit none in the family that night nor next morning had been there after the fire was gathered, before this was observed.

In fits of this kind the continued for feweral days therefiter, naming the forementioned crooked fellow, J. 1. and M. A. Iving in the neighbouring parishes, which two women were delated, by the three confessions to be a mongst her tormentors, and particularly upon the Lord's day, being Feb. 21st, and the Monday following, the said Jr. appearing to her grievously vexed her, withat telling her she was commissioned to to do, the gentlewoman M. M. having a pain in her head at the time, and so not able to come forth, concerning which, it is worthy of remark, that the damiel declared M. M. to have appeared to be about two days thereafter, with her head bound up with a napkin or handkerchief, in which like habit or possure, field do not formerly appear.

Upon Thurfday thereafter, being Feb. 2 th, file continued in the former fits, weeping bitterly and complaining of pain in both her fides: the alio told in the interval of her fits, that the was that night to be in very grievous and fore fits, her tormentors being refolved to chook her, by putting pins in her mouth, which (though she emptied herfelf of all that were in her cloaths) yet accordingly came to pass; in which she was both blind and deaf, leaping up and down in an extraordinary manner, pulling down whatever came to her hand; and thus continued for fome days, putting out of her mouth a great quantity of small broken pins, which she declared, J. R. had forced in the same.

Upon the Lord's day, being the last of Feb, about five o'clock in the afternoon, she fell into grievous fits, accompanied with hideous or loud laughing, leaping, and running with violence to and fro, and thereafter wept fore, erying out of pain, that a little Highlandman (whom she knew to be fuch by his habit and speech) was now breaking her leg; which (because of pain) she scarce could get told in the fit, and putting her hand to the part of her leg affected, spectators untying her stocking, distinctly observed a fore bruise in her shin bone: which, when touched, did to pain her, that she uttered horrid screechs and cries; and when recovered, did declare, that the little Highland fellow had given her that bruise. this, fhe put out of her mouth a crooked pin, by which fhe told the forefaid Highland fellow having forced it into her mouth, defigned to choak her.

The first eight days of March, she continued in her former fits, with little variation, putting out of her mouth a great number of small pins, often fainting and falling, as dead, upon the ground on a fudden, again flruggling with feet and hands; by all which, her natural spirits were much weakened and exhausted; sometimes also she essayed to go into the fire. About this time, when ministers and other christians met in the family for prayer, she used at the beginning of the work to make great diffurbance, particularly, March 2d, which day, being fet apart for fasting and prayer in the family, prayer begun, the was for fome time very composed, until of a sudden, a strong blaft of wind forced open the windows of the room, upon which she was instantly seized with a violent sit, the migifter in the very fame time supplicating God, that she might be delivered from Satan's bonds; in which fit the being both blind and deaf as to all, except her tormentors, was hurried with violence to and fro in the room, fometimes falling down as one dead, fometimes finging and making a hideous loud noise, sometimes naming M. M. and others; who, she faid, were there present, afflicting and tormenting her, withal, naming the particular places of the room where the faw them flanding and fitting. Afterall which, when recovered out of the fit, she told that a gentlewoman and a little Highland fellow, came in with the blaft of wind which forced open the windows. This falling out upon the Tuefday, the continued in the light fit without any intermission, till the Sabbath thereafter, not being feized with any of her fore fits: and having gone to church the Lord's day following, was perfectly well for the most part of the day; yet affirmed she saw Yanet Wagh and others, in one of the windows of the church, though invisible to all others.

Tuesday, being March oth, her mother and Margaret Campbell, her cousin, took the damsel to walk with them in the orchard; and returning back to the house, her mother entering the tower gate first, the damsel being at her back, and Margaret Campbell tarrying a little while at the gate; her mother going into the kitchen, supposed they had been with her, whereas the damfel was, of a fudden, carried away in a flight up stairs with so swift and unacountable a motion, that her absence was not in the least suspected; her mother turning and missing her, cried, whither is Christian and Margaret Campbell? and instantly running up stairs to look for the damsel, heard a noise, and following the same, found the damfel leaping and dancing upon one of the stairs, being feized with fits, out of which when she had recovered she told, that J. P. had carried her away from her mother's back, as she entered the kitchen door, (her not touching the ground to her apprehension) and that with a design to strangle ber in an high wardrobe with ropes, on which the linen used to dry, but that the faid J. P. could carry her no further than the place where she was found, and did therefore leave her in such a violent st.

Upon the Lord's day thereafter, being March 14th, her fits sagin altered, in that her mouth and nofe were predigiously difforted and turning about while in the fit, her face being thereby firangely and horribly deformed. The fame day fite being in church in the forenoon, her glove falling from her, the fame was again put into her land by fome invisible agent, to the amazement of beholders. To which we add here, as that which is worthy of remark, that all this while an invisible being, haunted her on all vecasions, fuggeding many things to her, both concerning herfelf and others: but wet never heard by any but herfelf.

The fame day betwixt fermons, she told that she was to be violently tormented in the afternoon; which accordingly came to pass, and when in her fits she named one I. K. a woman living in the neighbouring bounds, of whom the faid, that the had feen her in the church : as also that the was mafter of these kind of fits the was afflicted with; withal afferting, that if the faid |. K. were not fent for, she would grow worse and worse; which her parents finding to be true, fent in the evening for the faid 1. K. threatning her, if the damfel was any further troubled with her, that the should be apprehended as others had been; after which the damfel being in the mean time in a very fore fit, the forementioned I K. prayed (though not defired) that God might fend the damfel her health; whereupon the damfel was no more troubled with thefe kind of fits: but did inftantly recover, by falling into a fwoon as the used to do before recovery out of any of her

Tuefday, being March 16th, fine was again feized with her other kind of fits, all the parts of her body being fiff and rigid; and fometimes in them was heard converting with the gentlewoman (as fine called her) vindicating herfell of what the gentlewoman alledged against her, viz. that fine had accused fome innocent persons are tromentors. To which the damfel distinctly replied, that she was a liar, faying, it was you yourself and none other ever mentioned any fuch thing.

Thus the continued until the Friday thereafter, being never free of the light fits, now and then also falling into fwoons, and appeared to be almost choaked by the means of some charms and enchantments invisibly conveyed into her mouth; which, to the apprehension of spectators, were as if it had been pieces of chessus, orange pills, whites of eggs, or such like, all which were distinctly observed, when occasionally in the fit the opened her mouth; and when spectators essayed to get them out, she kept her mouth and teeth so close, that no strength could open the same. When recovered out of the fit, she told L. M. a woman living in the neighbouring bounds, had put them in her mouth.

Upon Friday being March 19th, she was violently tormented with fore fits, in which her neck was difforted and bended back like a bow towards her heels, ftruggling with feet and hands, fometimes stiff, blind, and deaf, putting out of her mouth a great number of small pins; which she faid the forementioned L. M. had put in her mouth. And about fix o'clock that fame night being violently tormented, fell a-crying, that if the gentlewoman was not apprehended that night, it would be in vain to apprehend her to-morrow : for, faid she, I have much to suffer at her hands betwixt twelve and one o'clock in the morning. After this the damfel lifting up her eyelids with her hands, and looking upwards, faid, what art thou that tells me that the sheriff, and my father are coming here this hight ? After which the sheriff, her father, and James Guthrie, macer to the justiciary court, instantly came up stairs, to the amazement of those who remembered what the damfel jult now had faid. The damfel continuing all this while blind and deaf; yet was heard (the foresaid persons being present) distinctly to discourse with some invisible being near to her, faying, is the sheriff come, is he near me ? and firetching out her hand to feel if any were about her, the sheriff put his hand in her's, notwithstanding of which, the faid to the invisible being discoursing with her, 'I cannot feel the sheriff, how can he be present here? or how can I have him by the hand as thou fayeft, feeing I feel it not ? Thou favest he hath brown coloured cloaths, red plush breeches with black stripes, flowered muslin cravat, and an embroidered sword-belt. Thou sayest there is an old grey haired man with him, having a ring upon his hand; but I can neither fee nor feel any of them. What, are they come to apprehend the gentlewoman? is that their errand indeed?" And the girl being enquired how the came to the knowledge of thefe ftrange things; replied as formerly in the like case, something speaking diltinctly as above her head, fuggested them to her. It is very observable here, that the foresaid persons had that fame afternoon got an order from the commissioners of justiciary to apprehend the same gentlewoman, and were fo far on their way to put it in execution against the next morning; but being witnesses to the damsel's trouble, and hearing what she had told, viz. that a delay in that matter, would prove to her exceeding dangerous, they went straight on in their journey that same night to the gentlewoman's habitation, and put their warrant to exe-

As the damiel fill continued to be violently tormented, fometimes lying with her neck and other parts of her body upon the ground; as if they had been disjointed, fometimes alio ellaying to throw herfelf into the fire. About ten o'clock the fame night, the continuing in the fit, her father (who had not gone with the theriff) beginning to read a part of the word of God, the repeated the words after him though blind and deaf in the mean time, which made fpectators apprehend, that the damiel-had the fenfe of hearing in thefe forts of fits, at leaft whenthe word of God was read: to find out the truth of which, her father did ceafe from reading, which though he did; yet the damiel continued to repeat the following veries of the chapter, while none in the room were reading, and the herfelf had no book; withal being heard fay to some invisible being about her, Wilt thou teach me a part of the Old Testament as well as the New.

The damfel still continuing in the forementioned fits, faid unto the perfons prefent, that now it was twelve of the clock; oh! it is now past twelve, sometimes lying as one dead, through the violence of pain and decay of her natural spirits, sometimes again recovering, essayed to express somewhat, but could not; withal putting out of her mouth a great quantity of crooked pins, and the parts of her body being prodigiously distorted, she complained of great pain: thus the continued until half an hour after twelve o'clock at night; when on a fudden she recovered, to the admiration of beholders, telling them, the might now go to bed, being told by some invisible informer, that the sheriff and the other gentleman, to wit, the macer, had now entered the gentlewoman's house, and accordingly going to bed, was no further troubled that night. It is worthy of remark here, that the sheriff and macer, at their return, did declare, that it was just about that time they entered the gentlewoman's house, which the damfel condescended upon.

Saturday, being March 20th, about ten o'clock in the forenoon, the was of a fudden feized with fits, falling down as one dead, her eyes quite closed, sometimes again opening and turning in her head, she saw nor heard none about her, but was harried with violence to and fro through the room, crying with a loud voice when any by force would hinder her motion. She being in this posture, and deprived thus of her fenses, James Lindsay, one of the three confessants, was brought into the room, who no fooner had entered the door but was perceived by her, and the, fmiling, ran towards him, faying, Jamie, where hast thou been this long time, how is it with thee? and answered him distinctly to every word he spake, though at the fame time the neither heard nor faw any other in the room, nor could converse with them, albeit, tried by feveral experiments for that purpofe, particularly a tobacco box being held before her eyes by a perfon present in the room, she did not see it; but as soon as it was put in the hand of James Lindfay she instantly enquired at him, where he had got that box? She continuing in this posture, the sheriff and her father being prefent, thought it fit to confront M. M. who was now come, thereby to try if the damfel would hear or fee her, as she had done James Lindsay, which accordingly they did: and as foon as M. M. entered the door, the damfel (though ftill in the fit) prefently fmiled and faid, I fee the gentlewoman now, though formerly she had never feen her perfonally, but only her spectre in the fits. likewise heard her, when she spoke to her, answering distinctly some questions proposed by M. M. such as, when it was she had seen her tormenting her? to which fhe answered, she had seen her the other night in her fits, and further challenged her, why she had restrained her from making known the Highland wife's name, as also faying unto her, thou pretends thou knowed not what I fay, thou knowest well enough. Upon all which, the gentlewoman on a fudden (without being defired) prayed, that the Lord might fend the damfel her health, faying, Lord help thee, poor daft child, and rebuke the devil.' Which words were no fooner uttered than the damfel fell down as dead, and being in this posture earried to another room, inflantly recovered of the blind, deaf, and also of the light fit, becoming perfectly well and continued fo for some time, and being thus recovered, and M. M. removed into another room, the damfel was enquired at, whom she had seen in the last fit? to which she replied, the had feen the gentlewoman, though in the mean time she was altogether ignorant of the gentlewoman's ever being perfonally prefent in the room with her.

The fame day the committioners of jufficiary having come to Bargarran, M. M. and the damfel were again confronted, upon which the damfel (being in the light fit) upon the first look of the forementioned M. M. was fuddenly feized with fore fits, out of which when she recovered, the accoused her as being one of her most violent tormentors, particularly, mentioning such and such times, in which she had in an extraordinary manner afflicted her, as also what words she spoke in her hearing while in the fit, and which is yet more remarkable, did question the gentlewoman if she did not sometime in Decem. last, when she was tormenting her, remember how she went away from her in great haste, saying, she could stay no longer, being obliged to attend a child's burial at home. In consirmation of which we are very reedibly informed, that W. R. a near neighbour of her's, had a child burried that same day, and that the gentlewoman came not in due time to attend the corpse to the burial place, but the corpse being near to the church yard ere she reached the house from whence they came, she returned again to her own lodesing, and so did not accompany the burial at all.

The Lord's day following, being March 21st, she fell into fwooning fits, complaining of no pain, except near to her heart, falling down as dead, not only when the fits feized her, but also when she recovered, sometimes singing after an unufual manner, withal informing spectators that I. G. conftrained her to that kind of music, her own lips not at all moving in the mean time, which beholders faw to be true, only her tongue, for preventing of which, the frequently put her hand into her mouth. And at this time, when either she herself, or those about her, offered to read any part of the Scripture, the was violently tormented, declaring if the did but fo much as hear the word of God read that day, the would certainly be extremely tortured; in confirmation of which, when some essayed to read Heb. xi. 2, 4, 6. Ifa. xl. Pfal. iii. she uttered horrid screechs and outeries, complaining that she was pinched, in evidence of which, the prints or marks of the nails of fingers were diffiactly feen on her arms, and being thus pinched or bitten for feveral times with great violence and pain, the skin itself was feen to be torn from off those parts of her arms and fingers, where the prints of the teeth and mails were observed : fo that from the deepness of the wounds, the forefaid parts affected fell a-bleeding, which blood was both feen and handled by spectators. Moreover the damfel, while in this fad and lamentable condition, feemed to be extremely affected and oppressed with fore sickness, as one in a fever, crying fometimes, to remove thefe dead children out of her fight; which she frequently tepeated, from fix to nine in the morning, and she still continuing the rest of the day, it was observed that fome charms and enchantments were put in her mouth as formerly, of which the damfel being very fenfible, fell down on a fudden on the ground, putting her hand to some spittle which she had put out of her mouth, and lifted fome trash which she again cast down to the ground, it making some noise, but yet neither seen in her spittle nor elfewhere by fpectators, though while in her mouth, they observed something like orange pills, whites of eggs, and pieces of chefnuts.

Monday, being March 22d, the forementioned L. M. or J. G. came to Bargarran's house, and being confronted with the damfel, queltioned her if ever she had seen her in any of her fits, withal alledging that the, viz. L. M. or J. G. could be sone of her tormentors, because the damfel was not now seized with a fit, though looking upon her as she used to be, when she looked upon have as she used to be, when she looked upon any of her other tormentors when confronted with them; upon which the damfel being for sometime silent, L. M. or J. G. did again propose the same question to her; to which the damfel diffuelty replied, Yes, upon which L. M. replied, perhaps you have seen the dead in my shape.

As to the conference there are feveral things exceeding, yes, was immediately feized with a fit. 2dly, That however after Katherine Campbell had touched the damfel in prefence of the Commifficiers, upon the 5th of Feb. laft, file had ever fince that time, freedom to touch any of her tormentors, without being leized with her fits, as has been hinted, yet time it is, that in the room of that charm a new one took place, viz. when any time she looked upon her tormentors in the face, at the very first look she was feized with her fits : which charm she declared was laid by means of the forementioned L. M. or J. G. and also taken off again by her that very morning before the came to vifit the damfel, and this she faid, was suggested to her by some invisible being, speaking distinctly as it were above her head; and that therefore the damfel now had freedom to look L. M. in the face, without being feized with fits, which for a confiderable time before, she could not do, when confronted with any of her tormentors. 3dly, It is yet more observable, that in the same morning before ever L. M came to visit the damsel, it was told by the damfel to several persons in the family, that L. M. had taken off that charm of her being feized with fits, when looking any of her tormentors in the face; but withal, that she had laid on another in its room, viz. that as soon as the damfel should by words confer with any of her tormentors, so soon should she be seized with a fit, which accordingly was verified when the spoke to L. M. or J. G.

Tuesday, being March 23d, the damsel being asleep in the bed with her mother, about three o'clock in the morning, was on a fudden awakened (having for fomeand, being feized with her blind and deaf fits, took fast hold of her mother, declaring to her father and her, that the devil was flanding near to the bed affaulting her, upon which she cried suddenly: 'God Almighty keep me from thy meetings. I will die rather than go to them. I will never, through the grace of God, renounce my baptism; for I will certainly go to hell if I do it; thou fays I will go to hell however, because I am a great sinner; but I believe what the word of God faith; though I have many fins, yet the blood of Christ cleanseth from all fin; and I will not add that great wickedness to my other fins. which thou art tempting me to do. It is no wonder thou lie to me, feeing thou wast bold to lie in God's face. I know thou art a liar from the beginning; and the red

Mait thou promifes me, I know thou canfi not perform it.
And although I should never recover, I am never refolved to renounce my baptism. It is God that hath kept me all this time from being a witch, and I trust, he will yet by his grace keep me; not because of any thing in me, but of his own mercy; and that he who hath kept me
hitherto from being devoured by thee, I hope will yet keep me.' This conference continued near the space of an hour, her father, mother, and others being ear witnesses to the same. And after recovery the damfel declared that it was the devil, who (in the shape of a naked man with a, shirt, shaing much hair upon his hands, and his face like swine's bristles) had appeared to her tempting her as a sforsfail.

Until Sabbath following she continued in the light fit, but withal every morning and evening was still feized with her fore fits, continuing still to name M. M. (who was at this time fet at liberty.); the forementioned L. M. E. T. an Highland wife, and others as being her tormentors. It is more than remarkable here, that M. M. being fet at liberty upon bail, the very day after the went home, the appeared again to the damfel tormenting her in her fits, and continued fo to do feveral days thereafter, particularly upon the Saturday, being March 27. after The was fet at liberty; the which day, the damfel was heard name her in the fits, and fay to her, 'wilt thou fav. God he'p me, poor mad or foolish child, as thou said the other day before the judges: art thou wishing the devil to take me : where is the habit thou was cloathed in the other day?"

On Sabbath morning, being March 28th, the damfel through God's great mercy towards her, was perfectly recovered, both of all her fore and light fits; becoming as well, fenfible, and compofed as ever.

End of the Narrative of Christian Shane.

The Editors of the first Edition of the Narrative, which was printed in 1698, have subjoined the following information, &c. to the Narrative.

IF it shall be questioned, how the truth of all these frange things is attefted? There is none of those particulars mentioned in the Narrative, but had in the first draught, the witnesses inserted at the end of every particular paragraph, and attefted before the commissioners for enquirey at Renfrew, by the subscriptions of the respective witnesses. But seeing the placing of them so now, would have occasioned the repetition of feveral persons names over and over again, and would have made this Narrative fwell too much in bulk; therefore we judged it fittelb now to fet down the names altogether at the end of the Narrative; and the rather, that feeing these things fell not out in a private corner; but thousands in this country have been eye and ear witn: fi s thereof, to their admiration and raifing of their fympathy, and been fully convinced beyond all debate of a diabolical influence upon the affliction of the damfel; we shall now make mention of a few, viz. befide the father, mother, grandmother, and nearest relations of the damsel, and servants of the family, who were always prefent with her in her fits; fuch of the commissioners for enquiry and of justiciary as had occasion to be on the place of the events, particularly the Lord Blautyre, Mr. Francis Montgomery of Giffen, Sir John Maxwell of Pollok, Sir John Houstoun of that ilk, Alexander Porterfield of that ilk, the Laird of Blackhall younger, the Laird of Glanderstone, the Laird of Craigens, Porterfield of Fulwood, John Alexander of Blackhouse, Mr. Robert Semple, sheriff-depute of Renfrew: and feveral other honourable persons of good sense and prying wits; fuch as the noble Earl of Marshall, the Laird of Orbiftone, the Laird of Kilmarnock, the Laird of Meldrum, the Laird of Bishopton, elder and younger; Gavin Cochrane of Craigmure, William Denniston of Colgrain, Dr. Matthew Brifbane, &c. and meny miniflers, who kept days of humiliation and prayer weekly to the family, and fometimes in the parish-church with the congregation, viz. Mr. James Hutchison, minister of the Gospel at Kilellan, Mr. Patrick Simpson at Renfrew, Mr. James Stirling at Kilbarchan, Mr. Thomas Blackwell*, at Paifley, Mr. James Brifbane at Kilmacolm, Mr. Robert Taylor at Houttonn; and of neighbouring prefbyteries, Mr. Neil Gillies, Mr. James Brown, Mr. John Gray, minister of the Gospel at Glasgow, while the damfel was there ; Mr. John Ritchie, minister at Old Kilpatrick, Mr. Alexander King, at Bonhill, Mr. Archibald Wallace, at Cardrofs, Mr. John Anderson, at Drymmon, Mr. Andrew Turner, minister of the place, who was frequently there: belides Mr. Menzies of Cammo, and Mr. Grant of Cullen, advocates, who were eye and ear witnesses to several important passages of the damsel's affliction, and the convincing evidences of its flowing from the operation of the devil, and his instruments. The truth whereof is further adminiculat by the progress and iffue of the trial, at which were present at several occasions, not only Sir John Shaw of Greenock, Commiffar Smollet, at Bonhill, Mr. John Stewart, advocate, who were concerned in the commission, with these others before-mentioned: but also great confluence of several nobility and gentry out of the country, fuch as the Earl of Glencairn, the Lord Kilmaurs, the Lord Semple, &c.

And now we are fure, that after all the pregnant evidences of the truth of this relation, as to matter of fack, they muit be persons very hard of belief that can allow themselves to deay credit thereunto: and must need conclude, that there is nothing credible in the world that ever hath been delivered to mankind or posterity; and that they resolve to believe nothing though never fully attelled which they do not see with their own eyes, and perhaps, there are some hardened in their prejudicate conceits that will not believe even these for say they may have influence to convince them of their errors: but wisdom is, and will be justified of all her children. Among all ingenuous perfons, we are hopeful this Narrative, (which plainly relates things as they fell out without any kind of difguise), will obtain such entertainment as it is truly defigned for, viz. That we be hereby more and more confirmed in the faith of the being of God and invifible spirits, and admire and adore the wonderful works of God in the depths of his judgements, and that there is really a hellish hierarchy and combination of infernal spirits, enemies to God; and working all the mischief they can to men; whereby also, there is an evident testimony given to the truth of what is related in the Scriptures concerning the fame, and withal, to lament, that through the just displeasure of our holy and righteous God, those devils get leave to break forth with fo much rage and fury, and gets fo many among profelt christians into a hellish confederacy with themselves, to be the instruments of their malice, and the actors of so many tragedies in the christian world; to stir us up also to bless and magnify our God, that those devils and their inflruments are chained and limited, that they cannot work all the evil they would, and as long as they will : and therefore to join in thankfgiving to God for his deliverance to that afflicted family and damfel. Finally, as we are to fubmit to fuch afflictions as the Lord may think fit to measure out unto us, by whatsoever instruments, as in the case of Job; so we are called to watch and pray that we enter not into temptation, while we have fuch adverfaries going about still feeking to devour us, and to rejoice that we have a strong protector, the bleffed Captain of our falvation, the Lord Jefus Christ, who hath obtained the victory over all the devils in hell, and hath promifed all his faints a share in his victory, which they begin to have in time, 1 epiftle John, iv. 4. And he hath given us hope, even through grace of a speedy and certain accounplishment thereof. Luke xxi. 22. Let us lift up our beads, because our redemption draweth nigh-

^{*} Author of the Schema Sacrum and Ratio Sacra, and afterwards Professor of Divinity in the University of Aberdeen.

L 3

APPENDIX, No. A.

THE subscribed attestations of Dr. Matthew Brisbane, Physician, and Mr. Henry Marshall, Apothecary in Glasgow, did influence the belief of an extraordinary cause of these events

The doctor, on the 31. December 1696, tells, that at first fight, when he was brought to the girl she appeared fo brisk in motion, fo florid in colour, fo chearful, and in a word every way healthful, that he could hardly be perfuaded the had need of a phytician; but within ten minutes he found himfelf obliged to alter his thoughts, for the rofe from her feat, and advertifed the was inflantly. to be feized with a fit, according whereunto he observed a confiderable diffention in her left hypochondre, which in a trace falling, the was forthwith taken with horrid convultive motions and heavy groans at first; which afterwards as foon as the was able to frame words, turn. ed into expostulatory mourning against some women; particularly Campbell and Naelmith. Yet he thought these symptoms were reducible to the freaks of hypochondriac melancholy, and therefore put her in fuch a courfe proper against that kind of malady. Upon which being freed, for fome time : he was alarmed that the child was returned to town worfe than ever for having his affiltance. He then was frequently with her, and observed her narrowly, fo that he was confident she had no visible correspondent to subminister hair, straw, coal cinders, hav, and fuch like trash unto her; all which upon feveral occasions he saw her put out of her mouth without being wet; nay, rather as they had been dried with artifice, and actually hot above the natural warmth of the body; fometimes after fevere fits, and other times without trouble when discoursing with him. When she had only light convultive motions, but to a high degree, fuch rigidity of the whole body, as we call *1700, fhe did not fancy as at other times, the faw thefe perfons already named about her: but the upcasting of the trash abovementioned, did no fooner cease, than in all her fits, when file was able to fpeak any, file always cried out they were pricking or pinching her. He faw her also when free of fits fuddenly feized with dumbness, &c. And this he folemally declares himself to have feen and handled, and were it not for the hay, firaw, &c. he should not definar to reduce the other fymptoms to their proper classes, in the catalogue of human diseases.

Mr. Marshall the apothecary concurs with the doctor : and gives fome particular inflances of his own observation; and among the reft, that the girl having fallen headlong upon the ground, as she had been thrown down with violence, fell a reafoning very diffinctly thus : ' Katie what ails thee at me, I am fure I never did thee wrong; come let us gree, let there be no more difference betwikt us, let us shake hands together (putting forth her hand faid, well, Kafie, I cannot help it, ye will not gree with me:' And immediately she cried, fell into a swoon, and out of that into a rage, wherein the continued without intermission for about half an hour; and perfectly recovered. Then she told him that she saw Katie Camp. bell, Nancy Naefmith, &c. and many more; Campbell was going to thrult a fword into her fide, which made her fo defirous to be agreed with her; and when the girl told him this, the inftantly fell into another fit as formerly, in which she continued another half hour, &c. dated ift Jan. 1607.

"The lamentable case of the afflicted damsel and family had been perpetented to, his M-jethy's noth knoonable privy council "?" and on the 1911 of Jan 1697, a warrant of Privy Council was iffued +, which let forth, that there were pregnant grounds of suspicion of Witcheraft in the shire of Rensew, especially from the affilicted and extraordinary condition of Christian Shaw, daughter of John Shaw of Bargarran. It therefore granted commission to Alexander Lord Blaatyre, Sir John Maxwell

^{*} Page 91. † Vide Records of Privy Council, 19th Jan. 1697.

ef Pollok, Sir John Shaw of Greenock, William Cinnyngham of Craigens, Alexander Porterfield of Duchall, — Caldwall of Glanderfloun, Gavin Cochrane of Thoraly-muir, Alexander Porterfield of Fulwood, and Robert Semple, Sheriff depute of Renfrew, or any five of them, to interrogate and imprifon persons suspected of Witcheraft, to examine witnesses, &c. but not upon oath, and to transmit their report before the 10th of March 1697. The act of Privy Council is subscribed thus, "Polwarth, Camediar, Argyle, Leven, Forfar, "Raith, Belhaven, Ja. Stewart, J. Hope, W. Anstruther, "J. Mexwell, Ro. Sinclair."

An Abbreviate of the Precognition and Report made by the Commiffioners appointed by his Majefly's Privy Council for enquiry: and the confellions of Elizabeth Anderlon, James and Thomas Lindfay, transfitted by thefe Commiffioners, and prefented to the Privy Council, on the 9th of March 1697.

The Commissioners for enquiry, having met at Bargarran in February 1697, did choose the Lord Blantyre, Prefes, and took the confession of Elizabeth Anderson, aged about feventeen years, as follows, Declares, "that about feven years ago, the flaid with Jean Fulton her grandmother, and playing about the door she saw a black grim man go in to her grandmother's house : after which. her grandmother came to the door, called her in, and defired her to take the gentleman (as she named him) by the hand, and which she did, but finding it very cold, became afraid; and immediately he vanished. About a month thereafter, her grandmother and she being in the house together, the faid gentleman (whom she then sufpected to be the devil), appeared to them, and fell a talking with her grandmother, by rounding in one anothers ears; upon which the grandmother defired her to take him by the hand, being a friend of hers; but Elizabeth refuling, the grandmother threatened, that she would get none of the cloaths promifed to her, unless the should obey : yet Elizabeth withstood, faving, 'the Lord be between me and him,' whereupon he went away in a flight; but she knew not how. Elisabeth was not troubled for a long time thereafter, till her father defiring her to go with him a begging through the country ; and the faying, that the needed not to feek her meat, feeing the might have work; her father pressed her to go along ft, and took her to a moor in Kilmalcolm, where were gathered together, at that and other subsequent meetings, Katherine Campbell, Margaret Fulton (her grand aunt), Margaret Lang, John Reid, fmith, Margaret and Janet Rodgers, the three Lindsays, (besides the two confessant ones) &c. and feverals whom she did not know, and the foresaid gentleman with them He came to Elifabeth, biding her to renounce her baptifm, promiling that if the would confent thereunto, the thould get better meat and cloaths, and not need to beg. But, (as the declared) the would not confent. Then he inquired what brought her hither, she answered, that she came with her father: whereupon the devil and her father went and talked together apart : but she knew not where about. Declares, that in that meeting was concerted the tormenting of Mr. William Fleeming, minister at Innerkip, his child. Elifabeth confesses she was at another meeting with that crew above the town of Kilpatrick, with the forefaid gentleman, whom they called their lord: and that she went with her father to the ferry boat of Erskine; where the devil with the rest of the band overturned the boat, and drowned the Laird of Brighouse, and the ferrier of Erskine, with several special circumstances thereanent; particularly that some of the crew would have faved the ferrier, but one of them, viz. his mother-inlaw gainstood it, in regard he had expelled her out of his house a little while before the meeting. Acknowledges, she was present with them at the destroying of William Montgomerie's child, by ftrangling it with a fea napkin : where they having entered the house, lighted a candle, which was fomewhat bluish, and Agnes Naesmith faying, what if the people awake? Margaret Fulton replied, ye need not fear; as also declares, that about five weeks before the date, her father brought her on foot to Bargarran orelard; into which they entered by a flap in the dyke, and where were present the persons beforenamed &c. and the devil, who told that nobody would fee them, at which they laughed. At this meeting, they, with their lord, contrived the destruction of Christian Shaw: fome being for flabbing her with a touck, others for hanging her with a cord, a third fort for choaking her, and some intended to have her out of the house to destroy her: but fearing they might be taken before the next meeting to that effect, their lord (as they called him), gave them a piece of an unchristened child's liver to eat, (but the declarant and the other two confessionts slipped the eating of it), telling them, that though they were apprehended, they should never confess, which would prevent an effectual discovery : and further, feverals of them being afraid that the declarant would confels, and tell of them as the had done formerly on her grandmother, they threatened to tear her all in pieces if the did fo; and particularly, Margaret Lang threatened her most. After two hours or thereby, they disappeared in a flight, except the declarant, who went home on her foot. Confesses likewise, that one night her father raifed her out of her bed, and they having gone to the water fide, took her on his back, and carried her over the river in a flight; from whence they went on foot to Dumbarton, and in Mr. John Hardy, minister, his yard, the erew and their lord being met, they formed the picture of Mr. Hardy, and dabbed it full of pins, and having put it amongst water and ale mixed, roasted it on a ipit at a fire, &c. After which her father and herfelf returned in the fame manner as they went. Declares the particular persons that were employed and most industrious in the feveral facts before mentioned, &c."

James Lindfay, aged 14 years, declares, "That one day he met with the deceast Jean Fulton his grandmother, at her own house, where she took from him a little round cape and a plack; but being grieved, he required them from her again, and she refusing, he called her an old witch and ran away, upon which she followed him and eried that the should meet him with an ill turn. About three days thereafter, he being a begging in the country, he met his grandmother with a black grim man, &c. whom the defired him to take by the hand, which James did, but found it exceeding cold, and was firaitly griped, whereupon the faid gentleman (as she termed him) asked the declarant if he would ferve him, and obey him, and he should have a coat, hat, and several other things, to which James answered, "yes, I'll do it." And after this the forefaid gentlemen (whom the declarant knew thereafter to be the devil), and his grandmother went away. but knows not how. Acknowledges he was frequently thereafter at meetings with the devil and witches, particularly thefe mentioned in Elizabeth Anderson's confession : that their lord came to James at the first public meeting, took him by the hand, and forbade him to tell : that they contrived before-hand at the faid meeting, the drowning of Brighouse, and concurs with Elizabeth Anderson anent the design of saving the ferrier, which his mother-in law did divert. He being interrogate, declared he did not fee J. K. and J. W. at committing of the forefaid fact : (and indeed they were then in prison) that they with a cord strangled Matthew Park's shild, and that the person who waited on the child. finding it ft ffled, cried out, Matthew! Matthew! the bairn is dead : Elifabeth Anderson concurs in this particular; and tells, that when they had done, they took the gord with them. Declares, that he was prefent at strangling William Montgomerie's child with a sea napkin, and heard Agnes Naelmith lay, 'draw the loup,' &c. That about five weeks fince, he was carried to them in Bargarran's orchard, and concurs with Elizabeth Anderfon in what was treated there, anent deflroying Christian Shaw, and the charm against confessing. Likewise the meeting in Dumbarton, anent Mr. Hardy, is acknowledged by him: and that he has feveral times appeared to Christian Shaw both in Glafgow and Bargarran, with the others that did forment her, and put in her mouth, coal cinders, bones, hay, hair, filess, &c. intending thereby to cheak her; that he and they did oftentimes prick and flab her in this manner, viz. he had a needle, which if he put in his cloaths, her body would be pricked and flabbed in that place where he faced the needle, and if he put in his hair, that part of her head would be tormented: that he faw her put out the pins they had put in, at which time he cried thefe words, Help J. D. who was also then prefent: that when the ministers began to pray in Bargarran's house a feveral occasions, the devil and they immediately went away," &c.

Thomas Lindfay being below pupilarity, declares, "the fame Jean Fulton his grandmother, awaked him one night out of his bed, and caufed him take a black grim gentleman (as fhe called him) by the hand; which he felt to be cold; and who having enquired if Thomas would ferve him and be his man, and he would give him a red coat, the declarant confented: and the gentleman (whom he knew thereafter to be the devil) gave him a nip in the neck, which continued fore for ten days. Thereafter, one day after his grandmother's deceafe. coming by her house, he thought she appeared to him elapping his head, and defiring him to be a good fervant to the gentleman to whom the had gifted him, and forbidding him to reveal it. Declares, that one night lying in bed in the house of one Robert Shaw, he was awakened out of his fleep and carried in a flight to Matthew Park's house, where were present the particular persons named by him, and concurs to the manner of frangling of the child with James Lindfay his Brother : and that another night, being in the house of Walter Alexander, he was brought to the ftrangling of William Montgomerie's child, and agrees likewife in the manner of it with his brother, only he fays, the fea napkin with which they committed the fact, was speckled. He likewise concurs as to the meeting in Bargarran's orchard, about five weeks ago, and what was acced therein; as also anent Mr. Hardy; with this addition, that himbild tuned the fight whereon the picture was roafted, 2°. &c.

It is to be noticed, that the three confesiants were feparately apprehended upon feveral occasions, fo they (after the obstinacy to discover was abated) did emit these confessions in several distinct places, without communication with, or knowledge of another's confession in manner mentioned in the preceding Narrative. The commissioners did examine them upon other trying questions that were new, thereby to make experiment of their confonancy or difagreement; but still found them strangely to accord. The facts did fall out in the manner declared by them, particularly the strangling of the children, death of the minister, drowning of those in the boat, and torture of Bargarran's daughter mentioned in the confessions before expressed. Further, the commissioners did confront them both with Christian Shaw, the afflicted girl, and the persons declared, (whom they caused apprehend) and both the girl and confessants did accuse these to their faces, and bind them in circumstances with great fleadiness and congruity, though separately brought in, The commissioners did also try some experiments anent the girl, her falling in fits on approach of the accused, as is expressed in the Narrative; and examined her, with those who staid commonly about her upon the particulars of her fufferings: they tried to cause her write, (fince the could not far out) the name of a person whom the first called Margaret or pinched Maggie, and afferted to be one of her chief bourriers; yet upon writing Margaret, and the letter L of her firname, the girl was prefently taken with a fearful convultion, the pen being ftruck out of her hand, and herfelf falling as dead, with groans heavier and forer than ordinary: after fome recovery, whereof some ministers pointed to her a paffage of the Bible, but upon effaying to cast her eyes on it, she fell into whement pangs, till one of the commifioners defired the book might be closed, and that being done, fine immediately came to herfelf, &c. Laftly, the commifioners called before them those persons who had figured the passages of the feveral days in the written journal of the girl's sufferinges; and having examined them thereupon, transmitted the fame with the declarations of the three confessions, and several of the passages that occurred in the precognition, to his Majestly's privy council, by whom they were appointed for that effect.

The commissioners represented that there were twentyfour persons male and semale suspected and accused of Witchcraft, and that suther enquiry ought to be made into this crime +.

Agreeable to this report, a new warrant was iffued by the Privy Council on the 5th April 1697 , to most of the commissioners formerly named, with the addition of Lord Hallcraig, Mr. Francis Montgomery of Giffen, Sir John Houston of that ilk, Mr. John Kincaid of Corfbalket, Advocate, and Mr. John Stewart younger of Blackhall, Advocate, or any five of them to meet at Renfrew, Paifley, or Glasgow, to take trial of, judge, and do juffice upon the forefaid perions; and to fentence the guilty to be burned, or otherwise executed to death, as the commissioners should incline. It further ordained the commissioners to transmit to the court of justiciary an authentic extract of their proceedings, to be entered upon its records; and contained a recommendation to the Lords of the Treasury to defray the expences of the trial. The Act of Privy Council is Subscribed thus, " Polwarth, " Cancellar, Douglas, Lauderdale, Annandale, Yester, " Kintore, Carmichael, W. Anstruther, Arch. Mure."

Hugo Arnot Esq; Author of a Collection of celebrated Criminal Trials in Scotland, from which I have taken the copy of the warrants, dated 19th Jan. 1697 [†] Vide Records of Privy Council, 9th March 1697.

* Vide Records of Privy Council, 3th April 1697.

and 5th April 1697, fays, "The commissioners, thus empowered, were not remiss in acting under the authority delegated to them. After twenty-hours were fpent in the examination of witnesses, who gave testimony that the malefices libelled could not have proceeded from natural causes, and that the prisoners were the authors of these malefices -after five of the unhappy prisoners confessed their own guilt, and criminated their alledged affociates -after counsel had been heard on both fides. and the counfel for the profecution had declared that 'ho would not press the jury with the ordinary severity of threatning an affize of error *,' but recommended to them to proceed according to the evidence; and loudly declared to them, that although they ought to beware of co idemning the innocent, yet if they should acquit the prisoners, in opposition to legal evidence, 'they would be accessory to all the blasphemies, apostacies, murders, tortures, and feductions, whereof these enemies of heaven and earth should hereafter be guilty.' After the jury had speat fix hours in deliberation, feven of those miserable persons were condemned to the flames."

Mr. Arnot fays, "The order of Privy Coincil for recording the commilliners proceedings in the books of julticiary was not complied with. I am therefore unable to give any further particulars of the catastrophe of these miterable perfons, or of the criminal absording of those who committed them to the flames."

Mr. Arnot further fays, "Thefe inflances afford a fufficient fpecimen of the mode of profecution against the multivade of miferable persons who were facrificed at the alter of the stati filters—Ignorance, Soperstition, and cruety. But it is impossible to form an estimate of the number of the victims. For not only the Lords of justicary, but ballies of regalities, sheriffs of counties, and the endless tribe of commissioners appointed by the Privy [.] Vide the Advocate's freech to the inquest.

Council, and sometimes by Parliament, officiated as the Priests who dragged the victims to the altar."

Mr. Arnot further fays, "The laft perfon who was profecuted before the Lords of Juliciary for Witcheraft, was Elfpeth Rule, who was tried at Dumfries, in 1709. "The laft perfon who was brought to the flake in Scotland for the crime of Witcheraft was condemned by Captain David Rois of Little Daan, Sheriff-depute of Sutherland, A. D. 1722."

Doctor Brithane being adduced upon oath in the trial, he adheres to his former fubferibed atteflation, and in respect of what is mentioned in that atteflation, sad some other specialities, the Doctor depanes, that in his opinion the things mentioned in his atteflation, did not proceed from natural causes arising from the patient's body.

The fum of the confessions of Margaret and Janet Rodger, who confessed during the trial of the rest beyond expectation.

During the dependence of the trial, Janet and Margaret Rodgers confessed in this manner; the commissioners had adjourned for two feveral diets, and though they were to meet on the third, yet it was not expected that they would proceed till providence might clear the prisoners guilt by further testimonies of those who might come to confess. The very morning of the third term, the Rodgers did confess, which was a furprize to every one that came up to attend the court, fince thefe, as they were women, and were not formerly noticed as others were: fo they confessed of free motion, without any person's defiring it of them at the time; they had not fuch means of instruction as were administered to others: and the conjuncture of many circumstances were altogether lingular. Their confessions did coincide as to the meetings and things acted therein, with the three former confessants, and the other evidences of the visible matters of fact: Only they were so pointed as to condescend upon fome of the pannels whom they did not fee at these rendezvouses; and great care was taken, to compare their testimonies which had been already discovered, and to expifcate their certain knowledge, by new interrogators, when they were seperate from one another, &c The whole crifis had fuch an evidence, that now the commissioners, with the general approbation of the most intelligent of the country, who came in to attend the court, allowed the going on of the process to debate of the relevancy, and putting feven of the best known criminals, for whom an advocate appeared, to the knowledge of an' inquest: according whereunto there were some days allowed for the pannels giving in their informations upon the relevancy; and at the term, there was a great time fpent in adducing the probation, an account whereof is referred to Appendix No. B.

APPENDIX No. B ..

An account of Two LETTERS, which were written after the persons were condemned, and before they were executed, which contain a Summary of what appeared most Material or Curious, in the Trial of the Seven Witches, who were condemned to be burned on the Gallowgreen of Paifley,

THE truth of the strange things, mentioned in the preceding Narrative was at first, carefully searched into only by private persons; but at last became so notour, that, upon application founded on a journal of these extraordinary events, atteffed by many of the gentry in the country, the council gave a commission for enquiring thereanent.

The honourable perfons to whom this was recommended, did, with great impartiality and exactness, make a report, which, in providence, proved a mean of moving the government to notice the execution of justice on some of these witches, who otherwise might have lurked without being discovered.

For, hereupon, the council directed a fecond commission, M 3 for trial of those who appeared to them to be most loaded by the preliminary probation adduced on the first. Several of these judges were not only persons of honour, but also of fingular knowledge and experience; conform whereunt they did proceed with singular cautions, and were so far from precipitancy in the affair, that, after several diets of court, they adjourned to a longer term, that, in the mean time, the prisoners might be provided of advocates.

Accordingly an advocate compeared for them, and managed their defence with all the accuracy that could be expected. There were about twenty hours employed at one diet, in examination of witnelfes; and the inquest being inclosed, did consume about six hours in comparing the probation. Whereupon seven of the most notorious criminals were convicted and condemned.

The crimes libelled and found proven againft them, were not more spectral imaginations, but open and obvious facts, viz. The murders of some children and persons of age; and the torturing of several persons, particularly, Bargarara's daughter; and both these, not at a dislance, but contiguously by natural means of cords, pios, and the like; besides the other ordinary works of Witcherast, such as renouncing baptism, entering in contrast with, and adoring the devil under a corporeal shape, &c. which could not but be suffained relevant in Scotland, fince there is an express statute, Parl, 9th Act 73. Queen Mary, appointing the pain of death to such.

To make the probation the more convincing, it was adduced orderly in three periods. The first confided of unfuspected witnesses, who proved facts. From whence it was necessarily inferred that there was Witcherast in the case. The second did include, also unexceptionable witnesses, who deponed upon sacts; which made it probabe, if not necessary, that the pannels were the Witches. The third did comprehead fix positive testimonies of these witnesses.

the malefices libelled.

The only valuable subject of debate, was anent the import of these last testimonies; five whereof were-by confessants, who had been at the meetings in which were committed the crimes libelled; and the fixth of Bargarran's daughter, who was one of the perfons maleficiat. The antecedent part of the probation was by witnesses beyond exception; and the judges upon a long debate did fustain four of these fix only cum nota, and two of them to be examined without oath, fo nice were they in favours of the pannels lives, fince some of these witnesses might have been admitted in fuch a crime without any quality by the most scrupulous judicatory in Europe. But all things were carried on in this procedure with tenderness and moderation: for even the advocates, who were fent to profecute the indictment by his majefty's council and advocate, did not act with the bias of parties: but on the contrary shewed an equal concern to have the pannels affoilized, if it could be found compatible with

This is the reason for which the publisher doubts ot, but the two, following Letters (the one whereof gives a compend of the advocate's speech to the jury, and the other of their answers to the objections against the confessant witueslies) will associate a faisiying view of the chiefest part of the trial; since the objections which were on might have been made, are therein stated and answered, or anticipate and prevented, and the intended brevity would not permit to print at this time the whole process, which being extent upon record, any who are curious may have easy access thereunto.

There is fearcely need to take notice of a late fearrilous pamphlet, that had been printed in England, and pretends to give an account of those proceedings; for any who reads, it may easily find that the author has been either fool, knave, or both, there being neither good language, fense, nor truth, in the most part of it.

The above Preface to the Letters was printed in 1698.

LETTER I.

SIR,

You having told me, that the odd paflages which cocur in the welf, have put many of your neighbours and yourfelf, upon reading all the books you can get, treating of Witcheraft; and therefore defired me to transfinit to you my observations at the court. I shall not pre-occupy your opinion by giving them in may own form; but herein I lend to you the exacted duplicate of the advocate's speech to the inquest that I could obtain; and by the next post you shall have something more curious, viz. A collection of their answers to the objections against the fix slat witnesselfes, that were adduced for concluding the proof; having these, you will want little that could be agreeable to such an accurate gulf as yours is.

The Advocate's Speech to the inquest was of this import.

Good Men of Inquest,

You having fitten above twenty hours in overhearing the probation: and being incloled, where, it is like; you will take no small time to reconsider and compare it; we shall not detain you with summing up the same in particular; but shall only loggest some things, whereof it is fit you take special notice in your perusal of it, viz. 1st. The nature of your own power, and the management thereof. adly, The object of this power which lies before you, wherein you are to consider in the first place, whether or not there has been Witchersft in the malesices libelled? and in the next place, whether or not these pannels are the Witchers?

As to your power, it is certain that you are both judges and witneffes, by the opinion of our lawyers and custom; therefore you are called out of the neighbourhood, as preformed best to know the quality of the panels, and the notoricry of their guilt or innocence. Your oath is, that you shall all truth tell, and no truth conceal; which does plainly imbly, that you are to condems or aboil, conform to your proper conviction. Such is the excellent conflictution of juries in England; and ought to hold more specially in this circumstantiate case, where there is such a chain of different kinds of probation coacurring against the same pannels, as will appear by the review thereof in its proper place.

We are not to prefa you with the ordinary feverity of threatning an affize of error, in cafe you should abfolve; but wholly leave you to the conduct of God and your own conscience, and defire that you proceed with all the care of the pannels lives that is possible for you, as the honourable judges have fet to you a defirable pattern, in their great caution thereinent.

As to the probation itself, you see, that it is divided in three parts, viz. The extraordinariness of the malefices; the probability of the concurring adminicles; and the clearness of the positive probation.

As to the first part, the malesces, or corpora delisi, are proven by unexceptionable witnesses, to have fallen out in such as odd and extraordinary a manner, that it points out some other causes than the ordinary course of nature, to have produced these effects.

For clearing of this, particularly in relation to the torments of Bargarran's daughter, you may confact not only the extraordinary things that could not proceed from a natural difeate, which lie proven before you; but allo feveral other matters of fact, which is notour, have been feen by force of yourfelves, and lie here in a journal of her fufficings; every article whereof is attefted by the fubferiptions of perfons of entire credit, before the hohourable committioners appointed by his Majetly's Privy Council, for making enquiry thereanent.

This girl's throwing out of hairs, pins, and coals of greater heat than that of her body or blood; as allo fo dry that they appeared not to have come out of her Romach; nor had the any prefs of vomiting at the time; that the declared the fame to have been put in her mouth by her tormentors; is deponed by Doctor Brilbane, in his opinion, not to proceed from a natural cause.

She was not tormented by any of the pannels after their imprisonment; except two nights by Katherina Campbell; which being a surprize, it was thereafter discovered, that these two nights the julior's wife had got out Katherine Campbell to spin in her house.

She having been speaking to one of her tormentors as present, (though invisible to the bye-standers) and asking how her tormentors had got these coloured red sleeves; the suddenly gets up, takes hold of them, the company hears a shrief, and she pulls away two pieces of red cloths, which all the bye-standers beheld with amazement in her hands; nor was there any other piece of this kind of sloth to be found in the room at that occasion.

She told that her tormentors were giving her a glafs of fack, an orange pill, &c. (threeby enfanting her to accept of a favour from them) and accordingly file was feen to move her lips, and to have an orange pill bewirk her teeth; though there was no vifule hand that could have done it.

She advertifed before hand that one of her tormentors was to be at the door at a particular hour; and that another of them was in the kitchen before any did tell her thereof; which accordingly fell out. And these being brought to her presence, became obnoxious to the ordinary means of discovery

When her glove fell down from her, at a time when feveral persons were about her; it was lifted again by a hand invisible to them.

She was not only transported through the hall and down stairs without perceiving her feet to touch the ground; but also was hurried in a slight up stairs; and when a minister endeavoured to retain her, he found a sensible weight, besides her own strength, drawing her from him.

When she complained, that her tormentors had bitten and feratched her, the steads of the nails and teeth were feen upon her fkin, with blood and fattle about the wounds, which were above twenty-four; while neither her own, or any other teeth that were visible, could have done it.

She was most rehemently distorted upon attempting to tell or even write the names of her tormentors; yet that ceased as to any of them, how soon the person was delated; and particularly the had liberty, after many painful attempts, to accuse Margaret Lang, how soon a charm of hair to restrain her, which Margaret had left behind the door, was found and brined; the girl having told it to have been tint, in manner mentioned in the deposition. She did throw out no more hair after the finding the ball of hair, of the fame colour and kind with that thrown out by the girl, in Katherine Campbell's pocket, with pins in it, and the burning of it.

After Agnes Naesmith had prayed for her, she did appear to ber, but not torment her.

She foretold, that her tormentors had concerted to hrow her in a fit, (whereof they did premonish, of defign to fright her to renounce her haptim by the terror) at a certain hour, and had left one of their numher to execute it; according whereunto, there was a woman with a red coat feen under a tree in the orchard, and the torment was brought on at the time appointed.

When she told there was something tormenting her under the cloaths, the spectators saw the bed-cloaths move in an extraordinary manner, after the girl had been aifed out of them.

When the complained the was beaten : the bye-flanders heard the noise of the strokes.

She cried out at a time, that her thigh was hart; and are of the company having fearched her pocket, found knife; but unfolded; however, having folded up the ame, and put it is a fecond time, file cries of new; and upon the fecond feareh, (it, though fecured by the pring) is found open, to the great wonder of beholders;

fince they did watch, that no visible thing could have possibly opened it.

She told of a charm under the bed : and accordingly it was found in the shape of an egg, which melted away being put in the fire; she told also that her sister, who was boarded abroad, had charms put above her in the house, and would not recover of the decaying sickness till she was brought out of it. According whereunto the child being brought home, she straightway recovered.

She told of their meeting in the yard of Bargarran, for confulting anent the defiroying of her; and accordingly the confessants have deponed, that they did meet and confult her ruin in that place.

The flory anent her telling, that the commiffioners, though at three miles diffance, had granted a warrant to the sheriff, to apprehend one of her tormentors; her telling so perfect an account of the sheriff and of Mr. Guthrie who was with him, while her eyes were tied and fast; her being in excessive torments, (as she foretold) till that person was apprehended, and immediately thereupon, though at many miles distance, her telling that her tormentors were now taken, betwixt twelve and one o'clock in the morning, and the sheriff, when he returned, did declare the seizure to have been about that time; is so notour, and so well attested, that we need only to put you in mind thereof.

Her falling in fits upon the fight or touch of her tormentors, was no effect of imagination; for fine was fully hood-winked with a cloak, so as the faw mebody whatfoever; yet upon the approach of her tormentor, the immediately fell down as dead; whereas the remained no ways flartled upon the touch of any other; which experiments were tried for affect taking this mean of discovery,

I inally, the is naturally fagacious and observant and the predictor asked, whether or not the knew one of the panuel's name that was to be pricked? the anivered, that though the knew her well enough of herfelf; yet one had told her the name of this pannel, when she was fent for to be confronted with her: fo far did this girl discover her aversion from any thing that might feem intended to aid unfairly the natural evidence of truth; and her sirmness to the outmost against temptations of becoming a witch : particularly against the last assault of Satan; wherein he perfuaded her at least to go to their meetings, and the answered, that the would not follow such a base fallen creature; and he rejoining, that she would go to hell however for her other fins; and she answering, that he was a liar from the beginning; and the blood of lefus would cleanfe her from all iniquity; whereupon he disappeared, and she perfectly recovered upon the Sabbath thereafter; was an happy end put to this fearful tragedy of witchcraft, and confirms to conviction

the reality of it.

As to the murdering of the children, and the minister libelled : you may observe several extraordinary things appearing in them; particularly, the witnesses depone, the minister to have been in excessive torments, and of an unufual colour, to have been of found judgment; and vet he did tell of feveral women being about him, and that he heard the noise of the door opening, when none elfe did hear it. The children were well at night, and found dead in the morning, with a little blood on their nofes, and blaes at the roots of their ears; which were obvious fymptoms of stranglings: besides that it is teftified, that the keeper of one of them, cried out, " Matthew! Matthew! the child is dead.' And the house of the other was whitened within, with fifting of meal the night before. Both which particulars were told and discovered by the confessants, before the witnesses which now concur with them in it, were examined.

The fecond part of the probation confilts of feveral adminicles, proven by unsuspected witnesses, which lead us to suspect those pannels to be Witches, as so many lines drawn from a circumference to a center, and as an avenue to the positive probation thereafter adduced; and these either Brike at the whole pannels in general, or fome of them in particular. In general we need not enumerate all these adminicles, but remit you to the probation, which is fo full thereanent; only you will be pleased to notice, that it is clearly proven, that all the pannels have infentible marks, and fome of them in an extraordinary manner; that most of them have been long reputed Witches, and some of them delated in 1687, by a confessing Witch, whose subscribed confession has been produced, you fee that none of them doth shed tears; nor were they ever discovered to do it fince their imprisonment, notwithstanding of their frequent howlings; fo that it is not a fudden grief or furprise. And finally, that the girl fell into fits of torment upon the pannels approaches to her, and that she did name them all frequently, either out or in her fits.

In particular, you fee how Katherine Campbell was provoked by this girls' afficovering her theft; whereupon the has brought in the rest of her confederates to act the following mischiefs; how thereupon Campbell did curse and imprecate in a terrible manner; how the staid out of her bed at night, and was frequently droufy in the morning; how the was named by the girl, particularly the two nights that she was out of prison. The ball of hair was taken out of her pocket and burned; whereupon the girl's throwing out of hair did cease; she could not express one word, even when on her knees, of prayer, for the girl's recovery; and the nischalble marks on her

were remarkable

Agnex Nacimuh did not torment the girl after the had prayed for her; the was reputed a Witch, and hath the marks. See ame early in the moning to Bargarran's side, when by her refuting to go in, it appeared the had as buffinely, yea, it is plann, that the had a refensment, for her not getting a greater alms the last time the was there. The girl declared, ex menitument, that Nacimith asked her heath and age; which in the eccumilances was a firewed pretumption of her evil defign; and the ncknowledged herfelf to have done this, when she asked the age of another child; wherein by providence she was befooled, since that which she thought would have been an excuse, tended to discover her guilt. And lastly, after this appearance of Agnes Nachmith, the girl did take hen first fit, and nominate her among her sift tormentors.

Margaret Lang, that great impostor, has been a great. mafter-piece of the devil; the has confessed unnatural lust. which is known to some of your number : she sat near the door where the charm of hair was found, which the girl declared did keep up her tongue; and upon burning thereof, it was loofed. The girl fell in fits upon her approach; the has notable marks; particularly one, which the confessants declared she lately received; and by inspection, it appears to be recent. When she came from her private conversation (no doubt with the devil) she raged as if the had been poffeffed, and could not but declare, that she expected a violent death. She looked in the face of James Millar's child, and asked her age. whereupon that child fickened the fame night, and named Margaret Lang on her death-bed. It appears fire was ready to show to Janet Laird a fight of her mother, who had been three years dead. And finally, she has been taken in feveral lies and grofs prevarications; particularly you may remember how fix hours ago, when the witneffes were examined on the ball of hair found with Katherine Campbell, a gentleman, (Mr. Stewart of ----) heard her fay to Katherine in the ear, 'this is well waird on you, because you would not put it away when I defired you,' &c. Which the faid Mr. Stewart did openly testify in court upon oath; notwithstanding whereof, this impudent wretch had the confidence to deny it, though Katherine Campbell also confessed, that she had pulled at her, and had spoke somewhat to her, to which the did not advert. This was no wonder, the witnesses deponing at the same time being close against Katherine.

Margaret Fulton was reputed a Witch, has the mark of it, and acknowledged in presence of her husband, that the made use of a charm, which appeared full of small flones and blood. That her husband had brought her back from the fairies; and her sepute of being a Witch is of an old date, besides her being often named by the maleficiate girl.

As to the Lindfays, they all have the mark, and were all of a long time reputed to be Witches. John Lindfay, in Barlock, was accidently discovered by the girl's taking a fit upon his coming to the honfe. John and James Lindfay were delated by a confessing Witch in anno 1687, which confession is publicly read before you, and there was money given to the Sheriff-depute for delaying of the pursuit. James Lindfay appeared to William Semple fuddenly, and flew about like a fowl, for an opportunity to firike him, in revenge of the quarrel mentioned in the deposition, and at last prevailed to strike him dead over a dyke. And finally, which is a remarkable indication both to truth and providence, the very witnesses adduced in the exculpation, for the Lindsays, deponed so clearly against them, even beyond the pursuer's witnesses, that their advocate was flunned thereat; and thereupon defifted from craving any more witnesses to be examined on the exculpation.

It is true, some of these indications may be in one, and others of them in another, either from nature or accident, and yet that person not be a Witch : but it was never heard nor read, that all these indications, which are fo many discoveries by providence, of a crime that might otherwife remain in the dark, did ever concur in one and the fame individual person that was innocent: yea, on the contrary, they, by the wisdom and experience of all nations, do also convincingly discover a Witch, as the fymptoms of a leprofy concerted by all phylicians, do unfold the person affected with the same to be leperous, but effo, they are not fufficient of themselves, yet their tendency and meaning, being cleared and applied to their proper cause, by a liquid and positive probation, there wants no more to determine you anent the pannel's guilt: And therefore.

Thirdly, As to the third part of the probation, we remit the politive depolitions of the confessants, and against whom they do concur, wholly to your own perusal or examination; only you would be pleased to notice. aft. Something which do very much furtain the credibility of their tellimonies, arifing from their examination in court. 2dly, We shall explain to you the import of the word Nota, which is added to the interlocutor of the judges admitting thefe last witnesses.

First, Elizabeth Anderson is of sufficient age, being Seventeen; but so young and pointed, that her deposition appears no effect of melancholy: the accused her father to his face when he was a-dying in the prison, as now there are two of her aunts in the pannel, which certainly must proceed from the strength of truth, fince even dives retained a natural affection to his relations: the went on foot to the meetings with her father, except only that the devil transported them over the water Chyde: which was eafy to the prince of the air, who does far greater things by his hurricanes, the tells that Montgomerie's house was meally when his child was strangled ; and declares, that she never renounced her baptism, but was carried along by the concussion of the parent; fo that nothing can be objected against her testimony in any indgement, much less an excepted crime.

James Lindsay, it is true, is of less import; yet by his weeping when he came in and was admonshed of the greatness of his guilt, it appears that he had a tense of it : he hath a natural precipitancy in what he fpeaks, yet that is commonly the concomitant of ingenuity, as importing his expressions not to be forethought. He concurs in most things with the others, and yet he has declared, that he saw not Margaret Fulton at Dumbarton, &c. Which implies that he does not file the pannels all at random, but tells what occured to his fenses, &c.

Janet and Margaret Rodgers are initances of a fingular N 3

providence; for they did confest the fame morning that the court did last fit, of their own proper motive, there being neither ministers nor judges beside them at the time. Agnes Nacsmith is Janet's relation, and she tells that she never saw Katherine Campbell, as Margaret declares, that she did not see John Lindsay in Barloch; which plainly demonstrates that they tell only the dictates of their natural conscience, arising from differention and knowledge of the true matters of fact; they both professed their repentance last Sabbath in the church; and do persil with great farantsis, as you see their deportment in deponing to the congruous and exact.

Thomas Lindfay and Christian Shaw, being under pupllarity, we did not prefs their being put to an oath; yet you saw that they did declare in court against those pannels in such an harmony with the rest of the deponents, and gare such a caste of their knowledge, that it is certain their own youngness in years, adds extrenely to the credit of their testimony; because thereby it is incredible, that they could have contrived or executed the afting of concert.

As to the fecond, fince these witnesses are admitted by the judges; it necessarily implies, that they meant them to be probative; only they adjected the words, cum nota; that is you must notice, or notandum est, that there must fomething else concur to prove the guilt of the pannels, by and atour the depositions of any two such witnesses: but fo it is that all the adminicles on which you have feen probation led, for more than fixteen hours of your time, are ftrengthening evidences, of those witneffes credibility, and cannot but have been noticed by you, as illative of the fame things which they depone. Whereby the nota is fully taken off by the concurrence of four other politive testimonies, agreeing with that of two of these witnesses; by the extraordinariness of the corpora delidia by the probability of the adminicles; and finally by the whole chain of this affair, and the sparkles of an infernal fire which in every place bath broken out of it.

It is true, there are some few of the adminicles that are proven only by one witness, but as to this you may consider, 1st, That a witness deponing de fado proprio, is in law more credited than any other fingle witness. And this is the prefent cafe as to some of the adminicles. adly, The antecedent concomitant and fubfequent circumftances of fact, do fuffain the testimony and make the femi plenary probation to become full. But 3dly, The other adminicles undoubtedly proven by concurring witnessels, are per fe, fushicient; and therefore you faw us, at the defire of the judges, forbear to call the far greatest part of our witnesses; because the time had already run to fo great a length, and it was thought that there was already enough proven of prefumptions; for it may also reasonably be imagined, that the most regular and curious feheme had emerged from the fortuitous concourse of atoms, roving without rule, as that so many indication should concenter against each of these pannels, and yet they remain innocent of witchcraft.

Now upon the whole, you will take notice, that prefumptions being vehement, make a more certain probation than witnesses; because prefumptions are natural emanations of the thing itself, which cannot be bribed; whereas witnesses are obnoxious; fo in our law there was one condemned for theft, another for falshood, and a third for murdering of a child, merely upon prefumptions, as is related by M'Kenzie in his Criminal Treatife, much more may prefumptions abstruct the faith of, and take off the nota from positive witnesses: for it is a gross mistake, that feveral proofs which have each of them fome import, may not be joined to make a full evidence, the fame way as two fmall candles in a dark room, will not fuffice, yet feveral others being added to them, will make a fufficient light, to discover the murderer; two boys will be able to carry a weight which one of them would not be able to fultain, as two units make a full number : one witness of whatsoever dignity proves nothing; yet out of the mouth of two or three witnesses, every truth fault be established. And finally, though one coal make not a fire that can do the work; yet feveral coals added to it, increase the flame, which is hoped will be fufficient for the operation.

We shall therefore leave you with this conclusion, that as you ought to beware of condemning the innocent, and ought to incline to the fafest fide: fo if these pannels be proven legally guilty; then quad bygones, your eye ought not to spare them, nor ought you to suffer a Witch to live; and as to the future, you in doing otherwife, would be accoffery to all the blafphemies, apostasies, murders, torture, and feductions, &c. whereof thefe enemies of heaven and earth shall thereafter be quilty. when they have got out. So that the question feems fimply to come to this, whether upon your oath de fideli, you can fwear, that the pannels, notwithstanding of all that is proven against them, are not guilty of witchcraft; in the determination whereof, we pray God may direct you to the right courfe.

The inquest being inclosed near fix hours, brought in their verdict to court that they found the libel proven.

LETTER II.

SIR.

I have collected, according to my promife, what appeared to me most specious in the reasonings, either in court or private conversation, anent receiving of the confessants as witnesses. You are not to imagine, that the pannels were condemned on the faith of these; for I do believe the probation by unexceptionable witnesses, led antecedent to this laft, was fo pregnant that the pannels might have been condemned on it, though thefe laft had not been adduced.

I may have misled the energy of the argument sometimes, in a case which in itself is abstruse : however, you have it in fuch a manner as I was able to penetrate thereunto as follows.

In order to the more fatisfactory answering of the objections made against these last witnesses, we shall first, lay before you the state of the case; and then clear up the determination of it.

As to the first, the question is not, whether partners in the crime, or others mentioned in the objections can be a concluding proof of themselves, though two of them would concur as to the fame act of witchcraft; but whether the corpora delicii appearing already to imply witchcraft, and the extrinsic adminicles being so pregnant, to infer that these pannels are the Witches; their concurring fuch characters, as by observance of all nations and ages, are the fymptoms of a Witch; particularly the marks, fame, not sheding of tears, &c. which are difcoveries of providence of fuch a crime, that like avenues lead us to the fecret of it. And finally, when fix perfons of different ages and stations, five confessants and the girl, do, when feparately examined, agree in their answers to every material question that is put to them, even though it be new; fo that it could not be concerted; we fay, whether or not in fuch a cafe, may witnesses be received to put the capeltone on the evidence by a politive probation, of a matter of fact, which is the object of fenfe, though otherwise they be liable to exception, if fuch extraordinariness of the corpora deliai, clearness of the adminicles, and of the diagnostics of Witches, did not precede them as you have feen proven before you that

The cafes is not, whether these witness would be habile in an ordinary crime, which commonly falls to be exposed to other witnesses, than those concerned in it; but whether they can be received in this extraordinary, occult and excepted crime of Witcherast, wherein there are two special cases to be noticed, viz. Sometimes the acts thereof are open and admit the choice of witnesses; such as charms used in the day timesewhen the actor is visible. But that part of witcherast, whereby Witchess meet in the night time, adore their lord, contrive their malchies, and accordingly thereafter execute them when other witneffes are afleep, or the witches themfelves are covered from fight; we fay, that this can be no otherwife proven than by thefe that are intimate to it, joined to the pofitive proof and adminisels before mentioned:

We do not alledge, that perfons altogether defitted of knowledge and natural conficience, are not to be admitted in any cafe, fucil as infants, furious, fatuous, &c. Neither do we contend, that Thomas Lindfny and Christian Shaw, who are under pupilarity, hould be put to an oath; for they are only to be examined feperately before the court, upon interrogators, by which it may appear, whether or not they coincede with the four other coafefants, that are to depone before them; and this is the pannels advantage in eafe of diagreement. But we infift, that any perfon above pupilarity, giving evidences of confiderable knowledge and natural conficience (which is a fufficient fund for all the credit that we need in this cafe, that is already almost fully proven) it is to be received as a witnefs.

As to the fecond, we shall make this as clear as noon, ist. From reason and the nature of the thing. 2dly, Our own customs and decisions. And 3dly, The singularity of the circumflantiate cafe.

As to the first, the going to and coming from meetings, especially on foot; the falling down and worshiping, the devil there, under a corporeal shape (which he had when he tempted our Saviour to do it). The actual murdering of children by a cord and napkin; and the tormenting of others by pins, &c. are plain objects of fense; and therefore the sense are to be believed anent them. For a usufon hat things intelligible and faith things supernatural: so the sense have things corporal for their objects, whereanent they are to be trusted, aye and while it be proven, that the appearance is impossible, or that the winnels of it, is an impossor. It is a part of the Witches purchase from the devil, that they cannot be feen at fome occasions: fo that the abominations committed then would remain unpunished, if such witneffes were not admitted. It cannot be thought that Witches (who of all criminals are the most obstinate to confess) would venture the loss of their own lives, by deponing against others, against whom they have no special pique; yea, for whom they have particular affection, as feveral of the pannels are some of the withesses relations. Nor has the devil any peculiar interest to instigate them thereunto : for feveral of the pannels have confessed other execrable crimes; whereby it cannot be supposed, that Satan would be divided against himself. God in his ordinary providence has taken fuch care of public judgements, that the enemy of justice, his special power ceases thereabout, as appears by the witches not being able either to do more harm, or escape after God's ministers being to counteract Satan's inftruments by imprisonment. And finally, the oddness of the malences, the concurrence of the adminicles, and the existence of matters of fact wherein these confessants (though not knowing the same otherwise) do agree with other unexceptionable witnesse, &c. do fufficiently ability their credibility. For as fallhood being a crime, is never prefumed; so a perfon found true in many things, is still prefumed to continue fuch till the contrary be evinced.

As to the fecond, we have the tellimony of our famous K. J. 6th, Demon libs 2. C. ult. telling us, that it is our law, that hoys, girls, infamous persons, &c. are not to be rejected any more in witcherast, than in human lefe majethy, even though they affert others to have been present at imaginary meetings: because this supposes where having entered into a precontract; he say a shat Satan's mark and the want of tears, are pregnant aids to the discovery. He gives an inflance of a girl, who having named witches in ther fits, they were all oundemend upon other concurring administs. This not a soummon auth r, but a man who pic curious, was exact; as prudent did not publish such things without the approach the say of the same say of the say of probation of the best divines and lawyers; as a prince is to be credited anent the law of his own country; and as a king has determined any dubiety that might have remained in this point, as far as the law of our government will permit.

But further our judges and lawyers have followed his majefty: for in all the processes in the journals, same and delation, and the mark, are still fustained, as most pregnant prefumptions; whereupon, and a very small probation befides, witches have been frequently condemned. So in the processes against the bewitchers of Sir George Maxwell of Pollok, and Hamilton of Barnes, Anno 1677, focius criminis, though under age, is sustained to be a witness: and witnesses are adduced before the inquest for proving, that the mark was found upon some of the witches. Women and minors have been received by multitudes of decisions cited by M'Kenzie, Tit. prob. by witnesses, and Tit, witcheraft. And he also eites decision, where in parallel cases, socii criminis, and others inhabile, were admitted; particularly in treason and in falshood; and all lawyers conclude, that witchcraft is as much an excepted crime as thefe.

As to the third, whatever inhability these witnesses might be under, it is fully made up, and they rendered unexceptionably habile by the chain of this whole bufinels, It is true one man through the concurrence of corrolive humours, may have an infenfible mark; another be enviously defamed; a third may through fudden grief or melancholy, not be able to weep, &c a fourth may be loaded with suspicious circumstances, when extraordinary things fall out in the country; a fifth may be deponed against by two falfe witnesses, though neither of these feparately be truly witches But by the known observation and experience of mankind, none except witches have had the unhappy medley and concourse of all or most of these indicia, and ordinarily, and for the greater part, witches have them: fo that fince the rules of judgement are established upon that quod plerumque fit which does obtain till an exception be apparent in a fpecial cafe, the conjunction of these in one person does as plainly give his character, as the most certain symptoms of the plainest difease, being universally concerted in all parts of the world, points out to us that the haver of them is a person truly affected with that disease, whereof he hath the concurrent diagnosties. In a word, one or other of these may concur in the innocent; but no writers do atteft, that all of them have concentred in any other person in the world but a Witch : and on the other hand, they taking place in Witches, through all parts in the world, must proceed from a common, and not from a peculiar humour or caufe.

The specific aptitude, of some of the nicest of the Indicia. which appeared from the probation already led to discover a Witch, do ferve to clear the ground of the world's observation anent them. Particularly the devil as aping God, imprints a facrament of his covenant; besides that. commonly this mark being given at the first meeting, does by its intolerable pain force the Witch to a fecond rendezvous for curing it, at which the poor wretch being under this furious necessity, fixes the paction by renewing it with deliberation, having been diverted in the mean time from confidering the horridness of the first engagement by the pain. I he inhability to shed tears may be characteristic of hardening, though not always in the case of Christians; yet in those who have ceased to be such, least the devil giving them such words of scripture and prayer as many have, it should be impossible to discover their hypocrify; and that is not Satan's own interest, fince by this discovery, occasion is given to buffoon the profession of holmess. A report often arises without ground, but a constant repute that keeps footing, implies for the most part a furer cause, especially when it is of persons below envy; and by persons above calumny. The girl falling in hits at approach of the pinnels, might proceed from antipathy, arifing from the poilonous fleams of the Witch accustomed to produce that effect through a virtue affixed thereto by the devil, by conjunction of natural casefs (the same way as the invisible pelilience does operate) or his promife of casting the girl in fits at the Witch's presence, might have been general; whereby the Witch was eventually befooled and discovered as it often falls out: for Satan envise even their temporal felicity, and fears, left by continuing here, they should be reft out of his hands by conversion, when they come to perceive the delution of his promise to make them rich, &c.

There was one thing further which was tried before your lordships, viz. none of the pannels that were tried (though most fagacious and knowing, and perfect in memory, fo that it could not proceed from ignorance or forgetfulnels) could make out the attempt of faving the Lord's Prayer; which may either be a fectet judgement for renouncing their first Lord, after whom it is peculiarly denominate, or by restraint of their new lord, who may think that too special an homage to his adversary. But we have hindered you too long with that which is not necessary: for this being incontrovertible law and custom, there needs no philosophy to support it; fince legislators do reason, but subjects must obey : and both the fool and lazy (who have neither read nor thought enough to understand this subject) are to be left to their own chimeras; yet left they should infult, we shall answer in their fashion, such of the objections as the pannels advocate thought anywife worthy to be repeated in this place.

Whereas it is objected, that Delrio, feet 5 § 4. lays, that focii are not to be admitted witnesses ad condemnandum, especially, considering that the probation ought to be luce meridiana clarior.

It is unlivered, that the place itself conflicts this inference in the prefent case: I or it lays on his folis non of proceedendum and condemnationem five contrarium communius teneri U in praxi obtance, U.s. so it is evident, 18, The common opinion and cultem is in the contrary, even where there is no other probation, but by the partners of of the crime. Yet, adly, W ear not to straitened, but fublume in his very words, ex his folis, we do not desire the panels should be condemned; but your lordships see these witnesses we are to adduce are not foli or alone; for the probation led these last fixteen hours, are so many concomitants and discoveres of providence, which shiruck and make up any defect in their credit that can be defiderate. 3dly, Hence the meaning of that maxim (which is metaphorical, as appears by the words clarier luce meridians, an equal clearness being sufficient) is fully answered, and takes place in the present esses; for the extraordinarines of the coepros desses, pregnancy of the adminicles and pointedness of the positive probation, being conjoined; there is not a clearer proof upon record in any nation, than that to which it is hoped these will amount.

Whereas this allegance is enforced, by pretending it were of dangerous confequence to allow such witnesses to prove meeting with the devil, since Satan might have represented others by their false shapes.

It is answered, 1st, That we are not straitened in this; because there are many other articles proven, which could not have been falfified. But if we give some scope to reasoning, even in this point, it is to be considered, that the rules of judgement are established upon that which for the most part does still obtain, and rules are to be followed, till an exception be proven in a particular circumstantiate case. But so it is, by the experience and observation of the wifest divines, lawyers, philosophers, phyficians, statesmen, judges, and historians, at home and abroad (that are too wife to be imposed upon, and too ingenuous to deceive us, when they all concur in the fame matter of fact) beside the testimony of Witches themselves everywhere, makes the apparitions of Witches to be commonly and mostly real; and therefore the testimony of the fenfes is always to be credited anent them, aye and while it be canvelled. For fingle or few instances of falle representations to the senses esteeming them to be true, or a possibility of appearances being false, can nowife invalidate the rule established upon experience, which is common, and for the most part, whereby no exception is to be prefumed till it be proven in a special case; since a wonder does not subvert the proof drawn from the common course of nature: logic admits not to argue a particulari, or from possibility to existance; law puts the burden of proving simulation on the essential that which seldom occurs, is not considered by the legislators.

For illustrating of which, it is further to be considered, that for the most part and ordinarily, the Witches are personally existent in the places where they appear, because it is more easy for the prince of the air to transport them in his hurricanes which he can raile, as is plain in the instance of Job (who was put in his power, i. e. his natural power without delegation) forming a fence upon their face, whereby the violence of the air may be diverted from choaking them, then to form the curious miniature of fuch various transactions on their brain : the difficulty whereof is the greater, that all their fancies are not disposed at all times the same way, and they have not the feeds of this work, unless they had once acted it in reality. It is both the greater crime and pleasure to act in truth; which therefore the devil and Witches do rather chuse (unless the place be far distant, or the party indisposed) and this de fallo is attested to be fo, by the Writers and Witches in all nations and ages, as faid is.

adly. Notwithstanding that the rule must hold, till an exception of exculpation be evinced, guesd a particular person, by evidencing that the real appearance was in that special case a true mistake; yet this exception is officient for sefety of the misrepresented; since the same providence which permitted the smitistion, will order the outgate and exculpation, either by the ziral bodies not biding the touch, or some other distinction, as providence commonly allows the devil to personate only with a cloven foot; or that the apparition was folly to one single with

ness, who cannot be a proof; or that the innocent ean prove alibi; or finally, the notour character of a Samuel will purge and dispel the aspersions of Satan, contrived of purpose to discredit the evidence of sense, by which alone his instruments can be discovered. Especially this character being joined to the other circumstances of the providence : fuch as, when good men are difguifed they are mostly passive in the scene and outwith thereof: whereas Witches are personally active in their common life by fuch words and deeds as (in conjunction with these appearances) conspire to make us know and distinguish them from the truly good; fince these Witches open profanity, naughtiness, or unveiled hypocrify, being cleared by fame, fealed by the mark, and confirmed by the other discoveries of the adminicles that lie proven before you, do still make a land mark betwixt the children of darkness and light. So Delrio, lib. 5. sect. 16. N. 5. tells of Athanafius and St. Germanus, against whom probation was adduced for forcery, but providence did canvel it. It is a famous instance of Susanna, represented by the elders; which though not in the case of spectre, yet agrees in the rational. The representation by Pharoah's magicians had concomitants, by which they were discovered and confounded. But laftly, suppose that God, in the depths of his wifdom (to convince the error of nimious felf-confidence) should permit all necessary pros bation to concur against an innocent; yet the judge, following the faith of proofs established by divine and human laws, is altogether innoxious: fince this case being very rare, the evil is lefs than the establishing a principle, by which most of all these monters could not be cut off.

Upon the whole, it is certain, that as though oft-times false witnesses fet on by the devil, have taken awaya harm-lefs life, by according it of other crimes; yet the testimony of witnesses must still be credited till they be redargued; to these appearances of Witches with the other specialities before expresses, being proven, ought to be effected the trailing the stabilished. Especially feeing

there are examples in ancient and modern history, of Satan's reprefenting the belt of men, as committing murder, buggery, &c. in effigy. So Delrio, lib. 5. fect. 16. N. 5. relates, that St. Sil-anus was reprefented by the devil, as committing a common capital crime; and the like of a mount; whereof there are feveral modern parallel inflances; yet this cannot enervate the rule and faith of public judicatures, founded on no more but upon the fight of the like appearances; and any argument against the probation in witcherast, will equally hold against the probation of any other crime whatfomever; wherefore the rules of them both must be common, as to believing the sense fortified us supera, till their error be individually discovered.

Finally, the certainty is noways diminished by the extraordinarines of the appearance to the senses; for in law and nature reality, and not simulation, is presented, till the contrary be made appear, that it is actually falle. This is answer enough to those who place a great part of their small wit in sonsensical arguing against all divine authority: but writers further illustrate that the extraordinarines of a matter of fact, does not exclude its realities being the subject of the testimony of witnesses in our Saviour's shiracles, transfiguration, walking on the waters, slanding in the midd of the disciples while the doors were flust, and arguing affurance by their sinese, that a spirit land not slick and bones, though indeed the surer word of prophely did put these beyond doubt.

Nor could it be alledged for the pannels (though they had the lait word as perhaps they have not, in objections against witnesses, fince therein rei finat assers by attacking the witnesses presumed hability) that it is not conciveable, how the girl or winnesses could see what the bye-standers could not behold: beside the impossibility of the real bodies entering at close doors and windows, or not intercepting the fight of what is at its back.

For this it would be answered, Ift, Proven facts must not be denied, though philosophers have not yet certainly reached the invifible manner of their exiftence; for in nature the loadflone draws the iron, the compafs turns always to the poles, &c. In Scripture the angels (and the devil was once fuch, retaining as yet his natural powers) fines the Sodomites, that they could not fee the door, though they faw the house. Bahaam's as perceived, the angel that thood undifeovered to himself; and the rot thrown down by the magicians of Egypt, was no doubt feen by themselves, though invifible to the bye-flauders, which holding of their eyes, interpreters explain to have been done by natural means; and yet the manner thereof is certainly difficult.

However it is also certain, that if a possible way can be proposed, the reality of a proved fact is not to be contradicted and this can be done in the present case. For, 2dly, Satan's natural knowledge and acquired experience, makes him perfect in the optics and limning: befides that, as a spirit, he excels in Grength and agility. whereby he may easily bewitch the eyes of of others; to whom he intends that his instruments should not be feen in this manner as was formerly hinted, viz. he constricts the pores of the witches vehicle, which intercepts a part of the rays reflecting from her body, he condenses the interjaceat air with groffer meteors blown into it, or otherwise does violently agitate it, which drowns another part of the rays; and lattly, he obstructs the optic nerves with humours ftirred toward them; all which joined together, may eafily intercept the whole rays reflecting from these bodies, so as to make no impression upon the common fense; and yet at the same time, by the refraction of the rays gliding alongst the fitted fides of the volatile couch, wherein Satan transports them, and thereby meeting and coming to the eye, as if there were nothing interjacent, the wall or chair behind the same bodies may be feen; as a piece of money lying out of fight in a cup becomes visible, how foon the medium is altered by pouring in some water on it. Several of your number do know, that the girl declared, that she saw and heard the doors and windows open at the witches entry, when, no doubt, the devil had precondensed a soft postage on the eyes and ears of others, to whom that was unperceived.

So Apolonius escaped Domitian's flight; and Giges became invisible by his magical ring. John of Sarisberrie tells us of a Witch, that could make any thing not to be seen; and Mejerus relates another that had the like power. Some Italian Witches of greater than ordinary wit, confessed to Grilandus, the devil opening doors and windows for them, though the more ignorant, by a facination, think themselves actors of this. Whence it ought not to be doubted by any reasonable man, what in all times and places is so inconcellible fact.

Finally, the pannels could not infit, that these confessions are to depone only on their imagination, which can prove no more against themselves or others than a dream.

For flill it is to be minded, that there are other proofs to which this is only necessary as a confonant adminicle. But further, Arg. caula. it is answered, that the allegiance is a miftake; feeing they are plain matters of fact obvious not only to one, but feveral of their fenfes, viz. fome of them went the greatest part of the way to these meetings on foot; they there faw and touched their confederates; they heard their combinations to destroy, and torture the infants, girl, and ministers: they returned on foot again, and even when they were carried fore or back, they knew on the next day that it was no dream. the same way as all other morta's discover the difference. But moreover, this is adminiculate by some real effects of a personal presence, as you have seen in the probation: and yet it is further cleared by the journal of Bargarran's daughter's fufferings; which was attested before the former commissioners, and is notour in the country, particularly, the glass of fack and orange pill, the pieces of the clouted fleeves, the words expressed by the keeper on the fudden murder of the child; which are constantly told by some of the confessate; as also the house being meally that night; the girl, though hoodwinked, her falling in fits at their approach, &c. and others which shall be pointed at to the affize, conjoined together, eaa be ascribed to no other cause than the real existence of the Witchea persons in the place; unless it be faid, that Satan might possibly have foiled and suborned all these, and thence it be concluded, that the devil did actually so, in which case the objectors are the persons that bottom their opinion on imagination, without any positive ground of the reality of what they fancy; yea, against positive grounds of belief in the contrary, which arguing from possibility to existance, is already sufficiently exploded.

Whereas for sustaining the objection, it is likewise alledged, that the confessants having been in the devil's service, and renounced Christ, they are not capable of the religion of an oath.

aft, In the rules of charity, &c. the confessants, though once Witches, yet now they, at least the majority of them, have ceased to be such, having had the use of means by the ministers and word, and actually declared their repentance, and the devil ceasing to moleft them; particularly Elizabeth Anderson was only carried alongst violently by her father, and stood out to the last against her renouncing of her baptism, or confeeting to these crimes which were contrived in their meetings. Janet and Margaret Rodgers do tellify a great remorfe, and avowed the fame last Sabbath, in the face of the congregation. So those three are sufficient, what soever it might he faid against the other two, especially if we join the improbability either of hazarding their own lives, or the devil's fending them out against the pannels, of their destroying their own relations, as was remarked before.

But, adly, Whether they remain Witches or not, it is aertain, by reason and experience, that the deal's peauliar influence ceaseth in and about judgement: by the common course of providence; and therefore the authors before cited admit Witches whether nonitent or not.

adly, All the defects of their hability is supplied, and the entireness thereof compleated, by their tellimonies being fo wonderful adminiculate; particularly the confesfants are constant from the first discovery; uniform in fo various circumstances, not only with themselves, but with the girl: they declare nothing but what is probable, most of the pannels have been reputed Witches, all of them having the mark; and one or other of them, (to whom the affociates delighted in mischief, never missed to join) having had particular irritation to take revenge by the torture and deaths libelled : befides the other adminicles of guilt already proven before you. The confessants were threatened to retract by the pannels themselves and their friends; besides the bad usage from others in the country. They concur with the maleficiat's testimony, and amongst themselves, even when interrogate lingly; and upon new things, as feveral of your number have tried the experiment : the reiteration of the acts which they declare anent fome persons whom they never saw except in these congreffes; yet whom they know now on the first fight, is unaccountable if they were falfaries. And that they are not fuch, is further abitructed by some of the pannels being delated by a confessing Witch in anno 1687. And you know that others delated by these confessants were lately brought in guilty by the verdict of a former inquest, &c. which are to many joint proofs of these witnesses integrity, and makes a chain of evidence and moral demonstration, both against error in themselves, and delusion in relation to others. &c.

There were fome things objected out of the law of Scotland, of which I shall give you some touch.

Whereas it was alledged, that irreiti criminibus capitalibus, and so under the pursuers power, cannot be admitted to be witnesses; conform to a statute in Regiam Maieslatem.

To this it was answered, that we need not say, that these statutes have not the force of law, except in so far as they are received by custom, unless consorm thereto.

A laik cannot witness against a clerk, or e contra, &6. Nor need we make use of that which is obvious, viz. that these statutes are only common rules in ordinary crimes. fuch as witchcraft, &c. Nam omnu regula subversi potest, and particularly this rule is actually fo reflricted in the case of witchcraft, by the opinion of lawyers and cultoms before-mentioned, which are the best interpreters of laws: for if this application should hold, Jocius criminus could never be admitted; but we positively deny, that those confessants are under our power or influence; seeing Elifabeth Ander on is not guilty of witchcraft for any thing that does appear; the Lindfays were never indicted for it; and the diet was deferted against the Rodgers; as the whole commission is to expire against the first of June, betwixt and which time, they are to proceed no further than this particular trial So that this objection van thes to fmoke.

Whereas it is pretended, that the Rodgers cannot be received, because not given out in the lift of witness, conform to the regulation, whereby the paonels might have proven their objections by their exculpation.

It was answered, 1th, This objection ought to be repelled, because, besides that the act speaks only of criminal libels, and not indictments, which with the lift of the witnesses may be given in far shorter time than the additional lift has been given to the pannels, being prifoners; this act is interpreted by the common cuflom of the fullice court; of giving additional lifts after the first. upon shorter time than this has been given; as is particularly attelted by James Gutherie, macer, who has given them, and who being a person in office, his testimony is to be credited in what relates to his office; fo that the old custom confirmed by a decision, August 3d 1661, where Alexander Forreller was cited apud adla against a Witch, continues quoad this point, as is related by M. Kenzie page 529 But, 21ly, Any objection that the pannels pretend against these witnesses, is in fure, or may inflantly appear. 3dly, The case is altogether extraordinary and circumfantiate; for the witners, meffer had not consessed; and so were not existent, under that redublication when the principal lift was given out; whereby the act of parliament can only be understood of witnesses that were then existent. And finally, the pannels got a general warrant of exculpation for citing of any witnesses they pleased, and they have had several days since they got this additional lift, so that they might have cited witnesses to their objections, were it not, the truth is they have none before these that are common, and before answered.

This I have given you hints that your own reasoning (which I know to be refined) may improve and apply, so as to dissolve the quibbles which the peety wita, who have not soul enough of themselves to penetrate into the true light of what is recoudite, may raise against it; it being their common talent either to skip over the surface of mines, or otherwise to tear assume form appurersances of a scheme, and then presently pronounce it mortally maimed.

I muft confefs, that noue could be more feeptical ament the truth of fuch odd things as I have heard; nor inquifitive for convasing the reality and explications of them; than I was betore my attendances on Bargarran's house, and the feveral diets of court, and my converfation with fome of those concerned thereanent. But now, after all I have feen, reasoned, and heard, I do acknowledge myself entirely explicate by the dictates of natural understanding and common sense, into a found mind and perfusion, that, as there is such a thing as witcheraft, so it was eminent in its forementioned effect; and the seven pannels were some of the Witches.

I have troubled you little with my proper observations; yet left you should think me either too lazy or peevish, I shall make one, and it is, that I do not think the greater part of the condemned prisoners will ever fully confess; of which conjecture I have two chief grounds, viz. ethat they are neither ignorant nor melaacholic; but as the.

on the contrary, some of them would feem to have been once enlightened before they fell away, so that, if this be a fin unto death, there is no appearance that they will glorify God by acknowledgement.

Several of them are of fingular knowledge, and acuteness beyond the common level of their station : particularly, Margaret Lang did make harangues in her own defence, which neither divine nor lawyer could reasonably mend: yet I thought that when they spoke in a matter of any concern, their eyes flood fquint and fixed, as if they had been turning their ears and attentive to a dictator. Their answers to the the trying interrogatories put to them, were furprifingly fubtile and cautious; though indeed, by the industry of some of the judges and lawyers, they were at occasions involved in lies, prevarications, and contradictions; which might have proceeded either from natural or preternatural causes. Some of them were effeemed in the country very fagacious and exact in their bufiness; Margaret Lang having been a midwife, and one of the Lindlays having acquired a confiderable fortune by his tillage and trade; yet it was noticed, fomething odd either of iniquity or affectation; and Lindsay did finely get off from the sheriff when he was formerly accused in 1687.

Melancholiaus are lovers of folitude; Witches of feety and feafls; those are commonly pale and heavy; many of these corpulent and voluptuous. Witches are hard to confess as knowing their guilt; melancholians delight to discover their horridest damps, because they think them no crime; the one's confessions everywhere are uniform; it no their's phastalms are a various as their humours. Finally, Witches teach their trade; whereas conceits would die with them, and could be no more conveyed than the humour which is the specific cante the cof. As these distinguishing characters do hold in general; so it is already manifest, that the real effects in teveral passages of Bargaran's daughter, were not pessibly producible by any imagination or humour; and "ala".

in this cafe, that neither the pannels nor confessants were distempered by being kept from sleep, tortured, or the like, which were too usual in former times; but all the measures were strictly observed, that are the requisites of a truly impartial judgement.

Indeed not to have fent unto you the doubles of the depositions themselves; because it is not denied that the depositions are such as they are experiented in the pleadings; the chief question being anent the hability of the last deponents. Neither was you to expect the defender's part of the debate, separately by itself, in respect that what was dispersed here end there for them, is faithfully repeated and implied in what you have, as to those points which I thought worth to notice.

Upon the whole, I do believe, that there is fearcely a a more rare providence of this nature in any true history a more exact caution in any enquiry or trial of this kind; a more clear probation, without confession of the pannels themselves, or a more just featners, putting together all circumstances upon record.

APPENDIX No. C.

An account of the Confession and Death of John Reid Smith in Inchinnan, who made a discovery confort to the former witnesses after the trial was over.

Upon the 21st of May 1697, after the trial of the feven Witches, there is an attestation subscribed by Martick Simplon, minister at Renfrew, Walter Scott, ball there, &c. of this import, John Reid, smith in Inchinua prisoner, did in presence of the said persons and for others, declare, that about a year ago the devil (who he knew to be such thereaster) appeared to him when was travelling in the night time, but Topke nome to hat the first encounter. At the scoon appearance he galing a better or in his loin, which he found painful as fortnight. That the third time he appeared to him a black man, &c. defired him to engage in his fervice. upon affurance of getting gear and comfort in the world; fince he should not want any thing that he would ask in the devil's name : and then he renounced his baptism, putting the one hand to the crown of his head, and the other to the fole of his foot, thereby giving himfelf up to Satan's fervice, after which the pain of the bite or nip ceased. He told that hitherto there were no others prefent : but thereafter he was at feveral meetings, particularly that in Bargarran's yard, about the time when there was a fast for Christian Shaw; where the devil appeared in the same kind of garb as he first appeared to him, and they confulted Christian's death, either by worrying or drowning her in the well; and the devil faid, he should warrant them, that they should neither be heard, seen, nor confefs; to which end he gave every one of them a bit of flesh, that the declarant got, but let it fall and' did not eat it. Thereafter in the presence of the laird of Jordanhill, the minister, Mr. Andrew Cochran, town-clerk, and bailie Paterfon, he owned his former confessions: and being enquired of Jordanhill how they were advertised of their meetings, he faid that ordinarily at their meetings the time of the next was appointed; but for particular warning there appeared a black dog with a chain about his neck, who tinkling it, they were to follow, &c. And being enquired by the minister, if he did now wholly renounce the devil (for he had formerly told how Satan had not performed his promife) and give himfelf to Jesus Christ, and defire to find mercy of God through him : he affented thereunto. It is to be observed that John Reid, after his confession, had called out of the prison window, defiring bailie Scott to keep that old body Angus Forrester, who had been his fellow prisoner, close and secure; whereupon the company asked John, when they were leaving him, on Friday's night the 21st of May, whether he defired company, or would be atraid alone, he faid he had no fear of any thing. So being left till Saturday's forenoon, he was found in this posture, viz. fitting upon a fool, which was on the hearth of the chimney, with his feet on the floor and his body ftraight upward, his shoulders touching the lintel of the chimney, but his neck tied with his own neckcloth (whereof the knot was. behind) to a small flick thrust into a clift above the lintel of the chimney; upon which the company, especially John Campbell, a furgeon, who was called, though at first in respect of his being in an ordinary posture of fitting, and the neckcloth not having any run loup, but an ordinary knot, which was not very fliait, and the lick not having the firength to bear the weight of his body or the flruggie, that he had not been quite dead; but finding it otherwise, and that he was in such a situation. that he could not have been the actor thereof himself, concluded that fome extraordinary cause had done it, especially, considering that the door of the room was fecured, and that there was a board fet over the window, which was not there the night before when they left him.

APPENDIX No. D.

I am much obliged to John Stewart, near Neiliton, for favouring me with the curious old manufeript volume, from which the following Sermon is extracted. I understand that this curious old manufeript volume came into Mr. Stewart's possession of the forestanding the property of A Mathie, who probably was a Student in the University of Glasgow between the versa 1707 and 1709, for the dates are written on it.

In this Sermon, befiles fuch sencient orthography, as, and for an and-one, due for do, but for bee, bigh for bighoff, &c. a great number of contractions also occur, as 7. X for 7-few Chrift, qch and esc. for cubich, go, for whom, yn. for whom, and then, yn. for them, ym for the and then, yn. for this jie. for thefe, and yt. for that.

A SERMON,

Preached by Mr. David Brown*, at Paifley, on Wednefday the 9th of June 1697 years, being the day before the execution of feveral perfons condemned for witcheraft.

t. Timothy i. Chap. 16. v. Howbeit, for this cause I obtained mercy, that in me first Jesus Christ might shew forth all long suffering, for a pattern to them that should bereaster between in him to life everlasting.

MAN by nature, fince the fall, is a guilty creature, and being guilty is ready to be jealous of God, as if all his defigns were defigns of wrath against him; yea, oftentimes fo suspicious is man of God, that he is jealous of the hardness of his design in that which is one of the greatest instances of his love in the world, and that is in fending his Son Jesus Christ into the world to fave finners. To obviate this, the Apottle tells us, John iii. 17. God fent not his Son to condemn the world, but that the goorld might be faved through him. Even Luther himself, as is reported of him, was to fuspicious of God this way, miltaking that place of Scripture, Rom. iii. 25, 26. Whom God bath fet forth to be a propitiation, and through faith in his blood to declare his righteou[nefs, he understood it as if the words, to declare his rightcoulnels, had been that God fent forth his Son to the world, to fet forth his judgements upon the world. I fay, fometimes man comes fo great a length in this, that he thinks it impossible God can find in his heart to forgive, and therefore the Apoltle fhews, in opposition to this, that Christ had put him in the ministry, in the 12th verse, and that notwithstanding of the bad life he had lived before his convertion, in the 13th verse, and that the grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant, in the 14th verfe, which was the matter of his joy and rejoicing, 15th verfe. And here he gives account why God was pleafed to call and julify him, and that is, that he might fet him forth as an instance of the glory of God, and be an encouragement to others, who were great sinners, to believe in Chiri to life everlasting.

⁶ It is probable that this Minister was the David Brown who was Minister of Neilklen between 1689 and 1693, and was afterwards translated to an ther Parish and who was an eider brother of Thomas Brown, Mr. Blackweil's colleague at Pailley.

In the words ye have two things confiderable. (1) In the great merey conferred upon this Apollle Paul, in this exprellion, Howbeit, I obtained merey; and no doubt he speaks here of pardoning merey; for mercy supposes misery on the sinner's part, and free savour on God's part, and here it supposes such each of the one and the other too in (2.) Ye have the reason of this disponsation of mency in these words, that in me furly Jesus Obrish might shows forth all long-suffering, for a pattern to them that should bereaster believe on him to life everlasting; in which ye have three things. First, the author of this pardoning mercy, Jesus Obrish. Second, the end for which he obtained mercy, and that is, that in me he might show forth all long suffering for a pattern. Thard, the end for whom, and that is, for a pattern to them that should hereafter believe on him to life everyling.

Paul's cafe

I return to the first of these. The author of this pardoning mercy Jesus Christ. Ye know Jesus Christis not only the neritorious cause of pardoning mercy, but the author also of eternal salvation to as many as believe on him. John xvii 2. that he should give coveledging sife, by his death, to as many as show has given him: to that he bath promised everlating life by his death; yet he hath also power to give verifiating life, and to longive fin.

Again, fecondly, ye have the end for which he obtained mercy; that in me fight he might flew forth all long-fuffering for a pattern, where ye have three things.

1. That he might flew forth all long-fuffering. 2. That he might flew it forth for a pattern.

3. That he might flew forth yellong-fuffering. 3. That he might flew it forth in me first. First, That he might flew forth all long fuffering, ye have three things. 1. That he might hew forth, that is, that he might make manifed. There are fome fovereign keps of his grace and mercy hid, and out of the common observation of men, and therefore he fays that he might the worth all long fuffering. 2. That he might they forth all long fuffering. 2. That he might there for the that had finned fo long. 3. That he might these forth all long fuffering, that is, that he might have forth all long fuffering, that is, that he might these forth all long fuffering, that is, that he might these forth patience to me, in a great and emisent degree : a patience becoming, and like unto God.

2. Ye have in this part of the verse, "I'hat he might show it so the for a pattern," that is, for a copy, that others might take me for an example of God's patience, that they might take me for a copy to encourage them

that will believe on Christ to I fe everlating

Again, that in me first, that is, in me the chief of finners, as in the 13th verfe, or me, that is among the first rank of finners, or, in me first, that is, that having put me into the ministry, he might make of me a special instance of grace, who was a gross finner; therefore he piched on such as one as me to fend among the Gentiles who were gross finners.

Again, we have the end for whom the Apolle was made an inflance of grace, and that is, for them that flouid hereafter belowe on Chrift to life eweraffing; where ye have fomething implied, and fomething expressed. That which is implied is in these two things. 1. That there are some who shall believe, that do not yet believe on Chrift l.fus. 2. That everlasting life is attainable by them that, believe on him. That which is expressed in that the reason of making him an instance of grace, was to be a pattern for the encouragement of great finners to believe on Chrift selfus to life everlasting.

The observation I make on the werfe, That God is pleased to give some rare inflances of his mercy, for the encouragement of the worlt of sun-rato believe on Christ Jesus to obtain life everlating. This ye see exfaulta the fabitance of this yets, that the Lord is plusted to give fome rare inflances of his grace and fuperabundant merey for the encouragement of the world of finners to believe in Chriti Jefus to obtain life everlating. In clearing of this doctfine, I would, 1. Give you fome inflances of the great riches of his grace. 3 What way thele inflances of grace may have influence upon the greateft of finners to believe on Jefus Chrift to life everlating. 3 I would flew you why God is pleafed to give Inch inflances of grace for the encouragement of the greateft of finners to believe on Jefus Chrift to life everlating. 4. I would flew you what it is to believe on Chrift Jefus, which these inflances of grace calls finners to do in order to obtain life everlating. 5. What everlating the inflances of grace calls finners to do in order to obtain life everlating. 5. What everlating life is, which is the consequent of believing on Jefus Chrift.

Now, for the first of these, To shew you some inflances of the great riches of his grace, I shall begin with the same Apostle, and lead you to one place where he gives a full account of himfelf. Aets xxvi, 10, 11, in which ye have feven or eight fad aggravations of his own cafe. There he tells you, that he gave his voice against them that were put to death; that he compelled the faints to blafpheme; that he perfecuted them to ftrange cities; and that he had authority from the highpriett against them; and that he perfecuted them in a conftant track, and yet he obtained mercy, because he did it ignorantly; but all that this will far, is, that therefore his fin was pardonable, because he had not finned wilfully against the knowledge of the truth; but certainly this made him a great inflance of the grace of God, that yet he obtained mercy.

2. Another inflance you have in Acts xix. 18, 19. Ye fee there that many of them that believed came and confeffed their deeds, and many of thefe were fuch as uted curious arts, devilith magical arts, and yet the grace of God brake in upon them. There is a great inflance of the grace of God.

3. Another inflance you have Luke vii. 37, where you fee a woman who was a finner comes to Christ. Now a finner in the New Tellament fenle is a grievous finner, a vile strumpet and whore, and yet Christ himself tells us, ber sins which are many are forgiven ber. Because she loved much, the Lord forgave her. 4. Ye have the instance of Manasseh, which is very suitable to the ease of these 1 am now speaking to " 2. Chron. xxxiii. 2. Where ye find he did evil in the fight of the Lord, like the abominations of the heathen, whom the Lord can out before the children of Ifrael. Ye will find he built high places, made groves, and fet up altars in the house of the Lord, and caused his children to pass through the fire to Moloch, and used inchantments, and consulted with them that had familiar spirits, and yet behold an instance of the sovereign grace of God, that he that made Ifrael to fin above the abomination of the heathen, that he greatly humbled himself, and the Lord pardoned him, and was intreated of him. Here is a great instance of the grace of God, which is a great encouragement for all fuch finners to close with Christ in order to life everlafting. I might give you more inflances, as the instance of the producal, and these, I Corinth, vi. 10. where the Apollle, speaking of these that shall not inherit the kingdom of God, Idolaters, Fornicators, Adulterers, Drunkards, &c. fays he, and fuch were fome of you, but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus. One inftance more, Acts ii. 36, 37. the Apollle Peter fays, He whom ye crucified is both Lord and Christ; as if he had faid, ye are the folks that have crucified the Son of God, and yet there came a work of grace on their hearts, that made them cry out, Men and brethren, what shall we do to be faved? If ever Christ would have flood upon it and not forgiven, [&]quot;It is evident from this, and other places of this Sermon, that the feven perfons condemned for witcheraft, were prefent during Mr. Brown's discourts.

it would have been such as were guilty of such an atrocions crime, and yet behold the riches of the grace of God, in that they obtained mercy; certainly this is a great instance now, I tell you, the Lord hath set up such instances, for the encouragement of the world of sinners to believe on Christ to life everlating.

In the second place, I come to shew you, what way these instances of grace ought to have instance upon great sinners to encourage them to believe on Christ to life everlasting.

And, first, from these instances ye may draw this conclusion, that fure it is not from any inherent worth that God pardons, which may have instence on you to believe. If it had been intrinste worth, would he ever have forgiven them that emicsied him? would he ever have forgiven Paul or Manassich? what excellency or worth was in them? should we not therefore reason thus with ourfelves, "Thou that forgives, because shou will forgive, will thou not have pity upon us?"

Second, ye may from these instances draw this conclusion, that he hath no reason out of himself to forgive, and this is a great foundation to close with Christ, there is no worth in us, therefore all the goodness must be in himself. He hath mercy, became he will have mercy; he shewesh compassion, because he will shew empry the and if it had not been something in his own bosons, none had ever obtained mercy.

A third conclusion is, that fure there is not ground to think, that God cannot find in his heart to foregive. For Chrilt fays, Mat. xii. 31. All manner of fin and blaphony shad be fergiven to you. No fin is unpardonable except the fin against the Holy Ghost. I cannot determine whether any of you be guilty of the sin against the Holy Ghost, but except it be that, all manner of sin may be forgiven, and this may have influence on us to make us hatle into Jefus Christ.

A fourth conclusion is, that the Lord here acts as God; he acts like himself. When ye read such instances of grace as I have been naming to you, you may draw this conclusion, that he acts like himfelf, Isiah xhii. 24. Thou half bought me no fauest cane with money, neither bost thou filled me with the fat of thy facrifices, but thou bost made me to ferve with thy fine; thou host warded me with thine iniquities. I am he that blotteth out thy transferfoom for mine own fake, and will not remember thy fin. I am, says he, like mylelf; I am he, and as he says elsewhere, beside me there is none. So much for the second thine.

In the third place, I shall shew you why the Lord is placed to give such instances of grace, for the encouragement of the greatest of sinners to believe in Christ to life everlatting. And the first reason is, because great sinners have oftentimes a secret despair, and Satan is ready to fuggest that prayers, exhortations, and means are needless, and that now their case is past cure and remedy, and this is ready to occasion either desperation, that they think God cannot find in his heart to forgive them.

Second, because though there be not a secret despair, yet at least there is some extraordinary jealously, and kind of suspicion, and likening God to themselves, thinking they could never forgive others, if others had done to them, what they have done to God, and that therefore God will not forgive them. But let such consider, John vi. 37. He that cometh to me I will in nowife coff out; and this is very fignificant with respect to the doubt of poor suners, and the doubt lies here. If would come he would flust the door upon me. No, says he, him that cometh I will in nowise cast out; that is, I will receive him, I will open the door and let him in and make him welcome.

Third, the Lord gives such inflances of his grace for the encouragement of great sinners to believe on Christ to life eventalting, because that oftentimes when sense sense sin, and sear of wrath lights upon the conscience, and when there is a sight of the holiacis and justice of God, shey are extraordinarily damped, and this doth fo feire upon them that it renders them incapable for any duty, and therefore the Lord has fet out such inflances of his grace, and the Aposlle Paul fays experfuly. God hash fet me up as a pattern to them that should hereafter believe on Christ to life everlasting. God has fet me up as a nonument of grace, that to whoshfoever the found of this gospel comes, after me never one needs to dispair, for God hath thewed mercy to me, and has fet me up as a beacon of mercy, that never one needs question God's good will to pardon them after mysfelf.

In the fourth place, I come to thew you what this believing in Chrill is, which thefe inflances of grace do encourage great famers to, and there are four things in this believing. I. Knowledge. 2. Affent to the tuth of the gofpel. 3 Confent to take Chrill Jefus. And,

4. Recumbency and refting upon him.

I. I say knowledge. And though knowledge be true, yet it may be without faith, but there can be no faith without knowledge, and fometimes faith is expressed by knowledge. John xvii. 3. It is life eternal to know thee, the only true God and Jesus Christ whom thou hast fent. This believing supposes the knowledge of a man's felf, the knowledge of his fin, the knowledge of Jefus Chrift in his natures and offices. Take heed to this, for I tell you what it supposeth, that ye may not think it the eafiest thing in the world to believe. For the Apostle tells us that no less is requifite to it, than the mighty power that raifed Chrift from the dead. The finner muftle know the abominableness of his own heart, know his loft flate and condition, know how matters fland betwixt God and him, he must know these peculiar evils to which he is fubject, he must know Christ Jesus in his fulnefs, in his willingness to fave finners, he must know ! him in what he hath done for finners, he must know him in his excellency, in his aufwerablenets to him and all the wants he can be trylled with.

11. Again, in this faith there is an affent to the truthe of the gospel, and neither is this faving: for there may be an affent where there is not grace. The devits, it is faids, believe and tremble, and this is a great evidence of many, folk's flapidity then, that they have lefs faith than the devils themselves have; but there mult be an affent to the! truths of the gospel, because of the authority of God interposed. Thus a man must believe the Bible and the records God hath given of his Son, and that these things, that he present and the things are absolutely necessary in point of observations.

ience.

III. Again, there is a confent, and this is the heart of this is the heart of this is the Again, and must be content to take Jefus Chrift, Ifaish xliv. 5. One float! Joy, I am the Lord's, and another. Ifall fubbrithe with his band to the Lord's, and juname binaries of light by the name of Jirael. And is that confent, there is this, to take him for our portion, that we flall not place our happines in the world, that Chrift float! get our hearts, that we flall take his law for our rule, and confent to the firictness of holiness, and that he flall rule our life, and enquerfation. In a word, to take Chrift for all, and to take all. Chrift, and to take him for ever; and to make an everlafting coverant with him never to be forgotten; this is, indeed, the nature of faith, and ye that have given your confent to be the devil's, must be no more his, but confent to be Chrift's.

IV. In this believing, there is also a recumbency and refing upon him: the man, when he hath declared this confent to take Christ, when he hath confidered the offers of the gospel, he is content with the whole device, and crits there, and there he casts all his burden; now he ansawers all his challenges in Jesus Christ, now he fice from his own righteousness, and refis in the righteousness, of Christ by faith, he renounceth his own righteousness, and therefore the Pialmist says. Enter not into judgment with the prevent, for in the fight on the judgment. Thus, I have told you what this believing takes in the consequent of which is life everlasting. I might consider it as opposed to eternal death, and as it includes the high est happiness, and the eternity of it. Everlasting life is a freedom from the wrath to come. Ye will never be able to dwell with everlasting fire and devouring burnings, and seeing ye may have Christ and his fulness, will ye, to please the devil, forego your inheritance. What will you be able so say, when you are brought before the tribunal, ere the general judgment come, if you resuse to take Christ for your pattern, and believe on him to life everlasting.

· 8

But I come to one use of this doctrine. If it be so, that the Lord hath been pleased to give such instances of grace, for the encouragement of the worft of finners to close with Christ, in order to life everlasting, then you may fee that instances of grace are not given you to encourage you in fin, it is, that it may be a pattern to them that believe. The reason is not, that we should continue hard and secure, and delay your confession, but that you may believe; for I affure you, the riches of the grace of God has no tendency at all to make folk fecure, if you confider thefe three things : 1. That it is the fwesteft cord in the world to draw folk from fin. Some have fuch undaunted spirits, that nothing but the greatest revelation of wrath can have influence upon them; but, if there be any true generofity in a foul, there is no greater encouragement to close with Christ than the riches of his grace and mercy. 2. If any thing be able to break a rocky heart, it is the riches of his grace, and when I come to tell you before you go to eternity, of the riches of his graces will ye remain so hard that your hearts cannot be broken fo far as to come to Jefus Chrift for life everlafting. 2. If ye confider, that we offer Christ and salvation upon honourable terms. Christ is as a noble prince, that fuch as are content to subject themselves to him, he is willing to fave them. The lion of the tribe of Judah is willing to make peace, but he will make peace upon honcurable terms. You must forfake fin and Satan, and have no correspondence with them, and we can offer you Christ upon no other terms than thefe, that you lay down the wesponsof rebellion sgainft Jelus Chrift indeed.

A fecond ufe of this doctrine. Is it to indeed, that the Lord hath been pleafed to give fuch inflances of his grace for encouragement of the world of finners to believe on Chrift to life everlating, then how fad mut their cafe be that cannot be brought to Chrift, and I am come to tell you this day, that the offers of the grace of God will be amonght the heavielt of their aggravations at that day. I fiall first let you fee what great finners you are, that you may fee your need of closing with Chrift to othis life everlating. 2. Let you fee your dangerous condition, if you believe not on Chrift to life everlating.

And, first, to let you see something of the greatness of your fin. And now confider I am speaking to you that are under the fentence of death for the fin of witchcraft, and not in suspence, as if you were not guilty; for since ye are found guilty by found evidence, we do not quellion it, to let you fee then the great evil of witcheraft, that ye may fee the great need ye have to believe or close with Christ to life everlasting. 2. It is the highest act of rebellion against the God of heaven and earth, you have drawn up with God's greatest enemy, who is the head of the rebellion of the whole world, and therefore called rebellion. Rebellion is as the fin of witchcraft. Befides, it is a great apollacy from God. Ye were given away to God in baptism, and possibly some of you have given away yourselves to him, and now you declare you rue it, and all the deed of gift in baptifm, you declare you rue it : and besides, your an hath in it an eminent trampling under-foot the blood of Christ, and if he that sinned under Mofes' law died without mercy, of how much forer punishment must be be worthy, that bath trampled under foot the blood of the covenant. You have finned under the gospel many a day, you have fitten in the house of God and put on a mask of religion, and have been deep diffemblers with God and man And is not this an eminently grievous trampling under-foot the blood of the covenant. Again, in your fin, there is a renouncing of Christ, heaven, and glory. And you have declared by your practice and Epeping company with the devil, and being his fervants, at you care not for Christ, heaven or glory. There is your fin! and have ye not need to close with Christ in or-der to life everlasting Again, you have waged war against Christ, against the faints, and against the world, and flated yourselves enemies to Christ, heaven, and the world; for where you had access, you have wrought milchief upon children, ministers and others *, so that ye may be looked upon as enemies to the whole creation, except the devil, with whom ye have affociated yourselves, and now, by your obstinacy, you declare you are content to dwell with the devil, and with everlaking burnings; and fince you are in the devil's fervice, what can ye expect but the devil's reward, as long as your hearts are hardened from God's fear.

Second, I come to let you fee your danger. Will it not be fed, that your heart should be hardened now, when ye are come to your extremity, and when it might be expected that messengers of grace should be acceptable to . you. We are come to you, when ye are within a few hours of eternity, to intreat you, before ye perift for ever, to embrace the offers of Christ. For, first, ve go aback from the remedy, if ye close not with Christ. Again, you lay a foundation for a great many challenges through eternity, if ye close not with Christ; for though now conscience be fecure, yet it will rise like a roaring lion at the last, and though ministers would weep over you, as if we were feeking from you fome great thing for ourselves, yet ye will stand it out. What will conference fay, when the devil will be at the gallows + foot, ready to harle you down to hell? and no fooner in hell, but conscience will say, when God sent his ministers to you, ye believed the devil, and would not yield to Jesus Christ, and what will ye fay to conscience then? when conscience will fay, Now this is your lodging for ever; now eternity! eternity! what will ye do through eter-

Vide Narrative, Confessions &c. + This flows that the witches were first hanged, and then burneds

afty? ye are laying a foundation of challenges through eternity. Another thing that makes your cale dangerous, ye declare you will not be in Christ's reverence for mercy. I will tell how fo, if you will be in his reverence, why will ye not confess your fin, and renounce the declared ignit to the devil? ye declared your denial in the face of courts, and frequently fince ye have done. O how deadful, will your condition be if you die in fuch a cafe!

I come to the third use of this doctrine. If it be to that the Lord is pleased to give such rare instances of his grace; then, the exhortation runs, that ye should come this day and embrace Jesus Christ. As long as ye are impenient, I can but threaten heavy judgements to you, but if you will confess and repent, and come unto Christ, I come to you with the best news ever were heard. The Apostle Paul, I Tim. i. 15, was much taken with these news, This is a faithful Javing, and worthy of all acceptation, that he best news to you. The offer of Christ is come to you this day before the execution. And I will tell you two or three things, to confirm you, that there is mercy for you if ve improve it aright.

First, God hath proclaimed his name to be merciful and gracious, if you will come to Christ, ye will find that he is merciful. Again, Christ was called a friend of publicans and finners, when he was in the world, because he shewed mercy to all, and never put away any that came to him, and though he be now in heaven, yet he retains his bowels of mercy ftill. Again, his name is Saviour, and he left his Father's glory, and came to the world in the likeness of finful fleib, to fave finners. Sure then, if he had done great things, he will not refuse any thing to those that come to him. Again, to let you fee he is merciful, he commands his disciples to preach remisfion of his in his name, beginning at Jerufalem, the very place where he was crucified; and further, the laft words he faid, are, He that believeth shall be faved : fo that ve fee, there is mercy for you, if ye believe to life everlasting,

Q 3

I would fpeak to two things here, I Offer you forfe motives to close with Christ. 2. Give you some direetions. And, I. For the motives to close with Christ, There are two notions of faith fuitable to your cafe, the first is a flying to the city of refuge; and there are two things fuitable for you. 1. You are guilty of blood, you have murdered your own fouls and others, therefore run to the city of refuge. 2. You have little time, your time is nigh a close, your glass is nigh run, therefore make haste unto Jesus Chrift, it is a pity you should put it off to the last. If ye had confessed in time, ye might have had the prayers of many of the godly. II. Another notion of faith fuitable to you, is coming to the market of grace and buying. Ho! every one that thirfleth, come ye to the waters and buy. Now this is suitable to you, for it is said buy without money, but ye have fpent your money for that which is not bread, Isaiah ly 2. Wherefore do ye fpend money for that which is not bread, and your labour for that which fatisfieth not. What truit have ye now of those things whereof ye may be ashamed. How aged are some of you, and now what comfort have ye in the meetings ye had with Satan, or in your correspondings and actings with him. When ye go to eternity, you will fay, alas! what fatisfaction have I now in Satan's fervice ' Another part of this notion is coming, and that supposeth a term from which, and a term to which ye come : away then with fin and Satan, and come to Chrift, and remember him.

A fecond thing is, to flew you the necessity ye have of closing with chrift. It is most necessary for you to embrace the Son of God, or ye are undone. It is most necessary for you, for ye will never be able to endure the wrath of God. Who can dweet with drewuring fire? O first can ye hold out against the Almighty? Are ye resolved to fight it with the Lord? Can ye be able to encounter with the wrath of God, and enter into the fea of wrath? Can ye endure the wrath of God world without end? O! therefore, come and close with Chrift. Observe the providence of God that has brought to your handa difcovery of your cafe, and in telling you yeare in the finare of the devil, and that hath tryfled you with a difcovery of the remedy, and now ye are inexcufable, and if ye perifh, ye perifh juffly. I come now to the directions, and intreat you to look upon them as the last directions ye will have in public in this world for any thing, we know.

What would ye have us to do? I fay that ye ought to confess your fin, Acts xix. 18 Many of them that had used magical arts came and confessed their deeds It is impossible ye can give a convincing evidence of your repentance, if ye do not confess. But say ye, what need we confess our deeds to men, if we repent between God and us? What needs us trouble the world with confession? we will but lofe our name, and put a ftain upon our pofterity and friends But I answer, when folk have flumbled the church of God they have confessed their deeds; even David himself confessed his fins. Again, it is all the folly in the world not to confess your deeds, because they will be brought out before angels and men : and even in point of policy ye ought to confess your deeds, for ye are captives in fatan's fnare, and ye have loft your wills, Ye should confess, therefore, that God's people may pray for you If ye would be out of the claws of the devil, it will take all the prayers you can get.

The fecond direction is, to be deeply humbled for

The recond direction is, to be deeply humbled for your fib. Ye enember whit is fail of Manafileh, a Chron, xxxiii, chap Manafieh humbled himfelf greatly. And though your heart wee like to break, and your forrow like to bring you to the grave, it were little wander; great fin mult have great humilation: and fur if ever God grant you repentance unto life, and ficey you mercy, there must be deep humiliation with you

The third direction is, you must have more than ordinary prayer, ye must have more frequent and ferrein prayer, ye must be more importunate with God. and if ye ask, what should we' pray for ' I answer, a discovery of the displaces of this fin of witchersaft. For if ye has it, t would be in hazard to diffract von. Pray for brokers nels of heart, and that these hard and rocky hearts of yours may be made hearts of flesh. Pray for pardon of fin Bleffed is the man that bath bis iniquities pardoned and bus fins forgiven. Wo to you! if ye get not your fin pardoned. Pray for a fight of your loft effate, that ye may fee yourselves under the sentence of the wrath of God, as well as under the fentence of men. Pray for a discovery of Jesus Christ in his fulness, in his tuitable. nels to you, in his offices, and in his glory a that ye may think shame that ever you thought so little of him. Pray that ye may not go to the grave with a lie in your right hand. Be importunate then fince your work is fo great, the time to thort, and eternity to long ; be not affeep or unconcerned, for if ye would put off never to confidently, you will have the colour of hell upon you in that day when ye appear before the tribunal of Christ.

The fourth direction is this, renounce your feed of gift to the devil, and if ye would fatisfy the people of God, give a declaration that you are grieved for giving yourfelf to fatan, and give away yourfelf to the Sun of God from head to foot. this is certa; all most fuitable for

TOU

But further, another direction is, that though ye do remounce your deed of giv to the devil, and give yourfelf to Chrift, yet do not give yourfelf to him only in a formal manner, faying. I give myleft to felso Chrift, but my the finecrity of your hearts in it, and confider ye mult have indignation at yourfelf for your fin as long as ye live: 2. Co. ii, 1: Left falan flowed get an advantage of ur: for we are not ignorant of his devices. There will be fuch indignation in your bolom, if ye be finence, that ye will be under that ye are not fent down to the pit ere now. There will be an uncoust fight between hope and fear in your boloms.

One word further, and that is, delay no longer. Ye have put it off before, and fince the fentence; ye have been emuch dealt with, and now it comes within a day of your Repping into eternity, and we are come to you the day before your death, intreating you to put it off no longer, O be ferious! God hath exercifed a great deal of longs fuffering towards you, and ye have ha dened your hearts, and no we are come to you in your advertive at last, to defire you to take Jefins Christ, and now we take God to record that we have offered to you Jefins Christ, and if yeu will not take him, we are free of your blood, and Jefus Christ is free of your blood, and jefus Christ is free of your blood, and if ye should endure a thousand hells, ye yourselves are only to be blaned tor the flighting the great falvation.

The End of the Sermons

APPENDIX No. E.

Some paffages which fell out before, and at, the execution of the feven perfous, who were condemned and burned for Witchcraft, on the Gallowgreen of Pailley, First printed at Edinburgh, in the year 1698.

There shall be little added aneat what past at the exeoution of the feven witches, (on Thursday the 10th of June 1697",) because there is no subscribed attestation thereauset; and the design of the publishers has been to advance nothing but what stands warranted by tellimmics of known credit beyond contradiction. Yet this much is notour; that when they were going to the stake, one of the Lindsay was overheard to lay to the other, "Now," brother, it is time that we confeis, saccour keeping it up will serve us no purpose," or the like expersion; to which the other answered, that they should never do that; &c. And Mingaret Lang, before and about execution, let drop at musters of the devil's inadvertence. That when the devil first appeared, she knew him not to be fuck till afterwards ; that he gave her the infenfible marks found on her body : She yielded to engage herfelf in his fervice by a covenant; and befides public meetings, she had been above eighty times in private conferences with him. Being enquired by a near relation of her own, anent her being in Bargarran's house, tormenting Christian Shaw, the answered in these words. ' The devil having an absolute power and dominion over me, carried my hape whither he would : and it is known how the confeffed unnatural luft, and profound hypocrify, &c though truly it did appear from her concurring mien and circum-Rances, that these things fell from her at seasons, when natural ingenuity, and the vigour of truth, got the flart of Satan's manacles. So Agnes Naelmith, &c. frequently told the minister, that their heart and tongue were bound up in fuch a manner, that they could not exprefs what they would; and fometimes it appeared by ocular inspection of their vilages, that convulsive damps did feize their heads upon getting out the initial words of any fuch attempt.

[&]quot;Vide Semples Hiltory of Realiswhire, and Mr. David Brown's Sermon, Appendix No. D.

There are two remarkable instances in the case of Katharine Campbell, who was chief instrument and author of the girl's trouble, v z an eminent minister discoursing before famous witnesses to Katharine, and enquising if the did not diffinctly remember the godly counfels and gracious admonitions, which Christian Shaw, while in a fit mentioned in the Narrative, pages 70, 71, 72, gave her a certain time, and inftancing fome particulars thereof, Her answer was with heavy groans, Yes, I remember, But being urged wherefore the would not confels the reft as well as that paffage; and finding herfelf to be gravelled, she began to retract and feemed damped, not being able to extricate herfelf, answered before-mentioned. This occurred while she was in prison, before the trial; and after it, the, in presence of leveral witnesses, did get out these words, That the doom pronounced on her was full, and that the gould not free herfelf of whitchcraft,

But upon fuch attempts the fell down dead firangely distended, and that fix be feven times fuecassively, with a foddenness that was both furpy fing and convincing to the spectators; at which occasion it was observed, that immediately before her falling into these firs, and upon her essential consequence, her much seemed to contract; and she uttered heavy monns; whereupon did follow her convulsions, but after rising out of them, she turned to be obstitute and inflexible; and whenover there was any appearance of her being more plant, the forefaid fits did avertake her.

There is one thing further, which does abstruct the credibility of what these consessions women in the country, who have consession at the case from others, both men and women in the country, who have consessed and told the same things before some of the best gentry and others, whose care could proceed no further for want of authority, which in due time will, no doubt, not suffer these witches to live, whom divine and human laws have so justily ordained to be cut off. Wherefore, till the event of a further discovery, there shall only be added some passages which were omitted in the Narrative, though they be attested by some of the same persons that were witnesses to the other matters mentioned therein.

Particularly, the girl declares, that in one of her comilicits with the devil, I e told her how a certain minifeer (for whom the had a special respect) did compile his fermons through the week, what books he chirtly made use of, and several other matters anen his method of sludy in his closer, that no mortal could know by ordinary means: By which, no doubt, Satan did partly defiga (though by a very falle argument) to raise the eltern of books above fermons collected out of them; concealing in the mean time, both the gift of improving helps, and the bletting promised to the hearer of the word preached. When the lady Bargarran received the two pieces of red clust the gift had ton from one of the witches sleeves, as is above narrated; she locked up the same and kept the key notwithstanding of which caution, some friendshaving come to vifit the girl, and being defirous to fee the forefaid pieces of cloth, the being in one of her fits, laughed, and told, that her mother needed not to feek for them in the place where they were locked up; the witches having taken them away, and laid them in a corner of the cellar; and accordingly being fearched for, they were found in the particular place condescended on. There was another like paffage which occurred to a friend, who came in with Bargarran for foliciting a commission from the council: for he having brought along t with him those pieces of cloth, and buttoned his pocket on them at night, and put it in figurity as he thought; behold they are amiffing in the morning ! but after fearch, are found in a good diffance from the pocket, though none visible had been in the room to open it and carry them off Finally, this girl did in discourse, discover a great fagacity, yet accompanied with extraordinary modefly: and among other inflances. fhe did observe the doors and windows open and shut again, upon the witches entry thereat. There was at no time fuch a number of them about her as the room might not very well contain, with the visible perfons that were prefent therein. She observed them to thift their place with great agility, when any other came into it, or attacked upon her pointing to them And the often averred from the inflance of the fpirit that Ipoke to her above her head, told their names, and gave her, other means of discovering of them, &c. That 'atan' does often contrive their ruin, by the most undiscernable methods he can, because an open deed would scar others to undertake with fo fathlels a mafter, &c.

APPENDIX No. F.

Hugo Arnot Efq: Advocate, author of a Collection and Abridgement of Celebrated Criminal Trials in Scotland, from A. D. 1536 to 178, calls the title of this trial in aby, Impostor of Bargarran . As he tokes the opposite side of the subject, I think it fair to give it a place here.

He fays, "An impostor appeared, in the character of a perion tormented by witches, Christian Shaw, daughter of John Shaw of Bargarran, a gen lenan of some note in the county of Renfrew She is faid to have been but eleven years of age; and althought it a probable, that hyserical affections may in part have occasioned her thapsoides the proceed from real illusion, as well as accounted for the contortions which agritated her body; yet the seems to have diplayed an artifice above her years, an address superior to her situation, and to have be in aided by accomplices, which dulnels of apprehension, or volence or prejudice, forbade the bye-slanders to discover.

• This actrefs was abundantly pert and lively; and her shallenging one of the house-maids for drinking, perhaps for flealing, a little milk, which drew on her as angry retors, was the simple prefude to a complicated and wondered feen of artifice, and delution, of funaticism and barb-rity.

In the month of August 1695 f within a few days after her quarter with the house-maid, the girl was feized with hysterical convultions, which in repeated fits displayed that variety of fymptoms which characterife this exprisons disease. To these, other appearances were speedly added, which could only be attributed to supernatural influence, or to fraud and imposition. She put out of her mouth quantities of egg fiells, or orange-

^{*} Leik it is proper to apprife the reade from what furces M. Arme, took handoursten concerning Christians fiber. This I am each of to do very early for M. Arme always giv. It is much of to do very early for M. Arme always giv. It is more than the control of the read of the pare, and fire, authorite the gastes for the account of this trial are. The narraive fittle fillerings, and received y u.g. givl. Industry the property of the fillerings, and received y u.g. givl. Industry the property of the property o pill feathers of will, and bones of tane fowl, hair of we rions colour, hut coal cinders, firaws crooked pins, &c. t.

" Having by the fe fenfible objects impressed the public with the most complete and fearful conviction of her being grieveully vixed with a devil t the found herfelf; capable to command the implicit affent of the feedtators in matters that were repugnant to the evidence of their own fenses. For this pu pose, the fill upon the device? of feeming to poffers the faculties of feeing and hearing, in a manner opposite to that of the rest of mankind She would address some invible beings as if actually prefent ; at other times, in her converfations with those invisible beings, the would rail at them for telling her that perf. n. actually prefent were in the room; protesting that the did not fee them, yet at the fame time, minusely defuiling their drefs For inflance, the fp ke as follows to the chief of her alledged tormentors, Katharine Campon bel, with whom the had the quarrel; and who to use the language of those times, was not differnibly prefent : hou fitteff with a tick in the band, to put into my mouth, but through God's frength, thou shalt not get leave. Thou art pe metted to torment me, but I truft in God thou fhalt never get my life f. I'll let thee fee, Kattie, there is no repentance in hell O what a led thre to be a wit h! Thou faven it is but the e nights fince thou wift a witch . O, if then wouldest repent, it may he God might give the repentance, if thou would ft feek it and confest; if they would defire me, I would do what I could; for the devil is an ill mafter to ferve," &c &c #. After that, the took up ber Bible, read paffaces and expounded them , and, upon one's offering to ta it from her, the threek d herr bly, exclaiming, . She would keep her Bible in fpite of all the devils in hell " !" Then the for ght, and k cked, and writhed herfelf, as if Aru gling with fome invible tormentor When the ⁺ Par. 167 68 4 + M . xv. 21.

"These reiterated and awful x roises of the dominion of Satan, (for fuch they were univerfally deemed.) unpreffed ail ranks with amagement and terror. The clerry as was their duty, were the foremost to em wasee the cause of a disciple that was engaged in more than spiritual warfare with the grand enemy. Clergymen, by rotation, attended the afflicted damiel, to affit the minifter of the parish, the family of Bargarran, and other prous Chrismans, in the expiatory offices of falling and prayer. public fatt was ordained by authority of the prefbyters. Three popular clergymen fuccessively harangued the trembling audience; and one of them chose for his thenie his awful text. . Wo to the inhabitants of the earth and . f the lea, for the devil is come down unto you, having great wrath, because he knoweth that he hath but a short time. And when the dragon faw that he was cast down unto the earth, he perfecuted the woman' And the prayers and exhortations of the church were speedily seconded with the weight of the fecular arm."

* P. e 1 and 103.

APPENDIX No. C.

Written by Dr Walter Young, Minister of Erkine, M. A. F R. S. Edinburgh, in 1702, extracted from his Statistical Account of the Parish of Erskine

" One of the last tria s for Witchcraft, which happened in Scotland, had its origin in this parish in 1606-7. person supposed to have been bewitched, or tormented by the agency of evil fpirits, or of those who were in compact with them, was Chriftian Shaw, daughter of John Shaw of Bargarron, then about 11 years of age A short account of this trial may be feen in Arnot's Col-Iccion of Criminal Trials *.

"Three men and four women were condemned to death. as guilty of the crime of witchcraft, and were executed at Pailley t. A particular account or journal of the extraordinary circumftances of this case was drawn up at the time when it happened: every parag aph of which is affirmed to have been originally subscribed by witnesses, among whom we find the names of almost all the poblemen and gentlemen, and many of the miniflers of the neighbourhood. The narrative was afterwards printed t without thefe fubiciptions, along with a very pious and decently written preface, by the publisher. There were Subjoined to it the attefations of a physician and surgeon. the judicial confessions of some of the persons accused of witchcraft, and an abfract of the pleadings of the advocates on the part of the crown, and of their charge to the jury. Thefe laft, in their reasonings upon the nature of the evidence, and the credibility of the facts, and in the answers to objections, discover much learning and [&]quot; All that Mr. Arnot fars about this trial is printed in this volume. t They were first hauged for a tew minutes, and then cut down and put into a fire prepared for them, into which a barrel of tar was put in order to confume them more quick y.

In the year 1698, by James Watfon Einburgh, and entitled, 4 I rue Natrative of the fufferings and relief of a young girl." &c ability. A few copies of the original publication are full extant, and a new edition of it was, a few years ago, printed in Paility* It may furnith ample matter of fpeculation to those whose object it is to trace the progress and variation of manners and opissons among men. The subsequent history of this lady is, however, more in-

terefting to the political inquirer

" Having acquired a remarkable dexterity in spinning fine yarn, the conceived the idea of manufacturing it into thread. Her first attempts in this way were necessarily on a small scale She executed almost every part of the process with her own hands, and bleached her materials on a large flate placed in one of the windows of the house. She succeeded, however, so well in these essays as to have fufficient encouragement to go on, and to take the affiltance of her younger fifters and neighbours. The then Lady Blantyre carried a parcel of her thread to Bath, and disposed of it advantageously to some manufacturers of face, and this was, probably, the hift thread made in Scotland that had croffed the I'weed. About this time, a perfou who was connected with the family, happening to be in Holland round means to learn the fecrets of the thread mar ufacture, which was then carried on to great extent in that country, particularly the art of forting and numbering the threads of different fizes, and packing them up for fale, and the confirmation and management of the twifting and tw ning rachines bis knowledge he communicated on his return to his friends in Bargarron, and by means of it, they were enabled to conduct their manuf clure with more regularity and to a greater extent. The young women in the neighbourhood were taught to To n fine yarn, twining mills were erecter, correspondencies were established, and a profitable bufinels was carried on. Bargarron thread became extensively known, and, being aftertained by a flamp, bore a good price. From the influctions of the family of Bargarron, a few families in the neighbourhood engaged in the fame business, and continued in it for a number of years. It was not to be expected, however, that a manufacture of that kind could be confined to fo finall a diffrict, or would be allowed to termain in for few bands for a great length of time. The fecrets of the business were gradually divulged by apprentices and affidants. A Mr Pollock in Paisley availed himself of these communications, and laid the foundation of the well citabilished manufacture of thread, which has ever fince been carried on in that town. From that time the women in this neighbourhood have continued to practife the spinning of fine yara, which they disposed to the Paisley manufacturers."

By Verander Wair in 1775.

APPENDIX No. H.

Christian Shaw was married to a Mr. Miller, the parift minister of Kilmaurs, about the year 1718 The follows ing quotation from Mr. Alex. Millar's statistical account of the Parish of Kilmaurs speaks of Chr stian Shaw's husband. " A disposition to secede from the established church hath long subfitted among the Inhabitants of Kilmaurs : and this disposition was first excited by the following circumstance. About the year 1712, Mr. Hugh Thomson, then minister of this parish, demitted, upon the expectation of being called to Stewarton, but was somehow disappointed; and either his pride would not permit him to folicit a re-admission, or a majority of the people, disobliged with his giving them up, refused it. He retired to a small property of his own in the parish, and on Sabbaths preached fometimes at his own fire-fide, and fometimes from a tent in the fields, to as many of his friends as would hear him. Five or fix years elapfed before another minister was elected; during which time Mr Thomfon had frequent opportunities of reconciling I mfelf to many of his former congregation. After Mr. Miller was chosen and ordained, Mr. Thomson still contiqued to preach in his own barn, or in the fields, to as thate as were willing to hear him Inconflair, which always attends the multitude, disposed some to go one way and some another; directed by humour, local convenience, or the influence of one upon another, they attended semeitimes Mr. Miller at other times Mr. (bomfon,

Christian Shaw's husband came to pay his friends a vifit at Bargarron, Cometime before the year 1725, when he took badly and died there, and was buried in Erskine Church He was univerfally lamented by his parishioners, great numbers of whom attended his funeral. After his death Christian Shaw and her family came and resided in Bargarron. Mr. Semple in his Hiftory of Renfrew lays, " About the year 1725, the making of white fliching thread was introduced into the west country by Mrs. Millar of Bargarran, who, very much to her own honour. imported a twift or thread mila, and other necessary utenfils from Holland, and carried on a small manufacture in her own family" The Editor faw on the 10th May 1800, a William Jamieson, an old man, who told him that he had wrought three years and a half, on the original thread milu at Bargarran, that he came to Bargarran in the year 1743, and at that time none of the family of Bargarran was alive, but old Mrs haw, lean haw. (the old fifter,) and Mr. Ferguffon her hufband, who was factor to Lord Blantyre.

APPENDIX No. I.

Mr. Robert Wodrow, Minister at Eastwood, in his History of the fufferings of the Church of Sectland, from the refloration to the Revolution, well peped at to Book 2d. No 4th, in William Sutherland Declaration and Examination, there is mention made of a person being executed for a Witch about the year 1061, William Sutherland fays, "I being come of puop parents in Strethneet, (the wildest part of the north Highlands) who were not able to keep me, I washired with a milker who feat me to bring back a hosse that Colonel More and party had taken from him; which party I followed till the enemy fell betwixt me and home, and being afraid to To back, and having a defire to learn the Lowland Tongue. I came alongst in a fad condition with the faid party, till I came to Spey fide, where I herded cattle for a year in the parish of Boharm, at a place called the New kirk; from thence I came to the parish of Fyvie in Buchan. where I herded cattle for another year; from that place I came to the bridge of Stirling, where I followed the Same employment a third year, which was the year the king came home; (1660) and from thence I came to Paifley, where, after herding cattle a fourth year, I fell in extreme want, and that by the reason, the maffer whom I ferved being owing to one of the bailes, called John Weres, the bailie frized upon my mafter's Goods, to that he ran away, and I loft my tee, and was engaged by the counfel of tome bonent men, from that fcripture, Juffer not a Wirth to live, to execute a Witch, and to cleanfe chimney heads, whereby I gained fomewhat for livelihood; a d having a mind to learn to read, I bought a question book but finding the people there to fear at "my company, fo that none would give me a leffon, I cam's from Pailley to livine, about five years fince," &c that is five years before 1666, which makes it to be 1661 the sime he was in Paifley.

Mr. Burn, in the Chronological part of his English Deltionary, under the article Pasiley, tays, That five women were burned there for witcherait, anno 1667. I suppose this a milake as I can fine no historical account it that "Hugo Arinot Frig. tays, "For formetime after the refloration, the records of Privy Council are in a manner engined with commissions to take trial of witches. There is an influence of the council, at one federunt, graving fourteen feperate comm flows to take trial of witches. Records of Privy Council, November 7, 1661. January 23, 1662." I intend at Jone future period to motifee this of Mr. Burn's, and what Mr. Sound leads to the profession of Mr. Burn's, and what Mr. Sound leads to the profession of Mr. Burn's, and what Mr. Sound leads to the profession of the Burn's, and what Mr. Sound leads to the profession of the Burn's, and what Mr. Sound leads to the profession of the Burn's, and what Mr. Sound leads to the profession of the Burn's, and what Mr. Sound leads the profession of the Burn's, and what Mr. Sound leads the profession of the Burn's, and what Mr. Sound leads the profession of the Burn's, and what Mr. Sound leads the profession of the Burn's, and what Mr. Sound leads the profession of the Burn's, and what Mr. Sound leads the profession of the Burn's and the Mr. Sound leads the profession of the Burn's and the Mr. Sound leads the profession of the Burn's and th concerning the burning of the Witches, on the Gallows green of Pailley, in his History of Renfrewshire.

APPENDIX No K.

Having show how the laws and practice of this country, concerning witchcraft, shood before A. D. 1736, it is certainly needfary to let the Public see what the law is at present on witchcraft.

ANNO NONO.

GEORGII II. Regis. 1735.

CAP V.

An Act to repeal the flatute made in the first year of the Reign of King James the first, initialed, An Act and Caling Conjuration, Withbrash, and dealing with evil and violed spirits, except so much thereof as repeals an Act of the first year of the Reign of Quen Ehitabeth, Aguing Conjurations, Imbaniment, and Witcherafts, and to repeal an Act pissed in the Parliament of Scotland in the ninth Parliament of Queen Mary, initialed, daintie Witcherafts, and for pushifting such persons as pretend to exercise or use any kind of Witcheraft, Sorcery, Inchantment, or Conjuration.

Be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majest by and with the advice and confent of the Lord's pritual and temporal, and Commons, in this prefeat Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the fame, that the Rature made in the first year of the Reign of King James the first, initialed, An AB orainst Conjuration, Witchroft, and dealing with eval and wicked Spirits, fault, from the twenty fourth day of Jame next, be seen pealed and utterly void and of none effect (except to much thereof as repeals the flatute made in the fifth year of the Reign of Queen Elifabeth, initialed, An all against Conjurations, Inchesionals, and Witcherafts.)

11. And he it further enacted by the authority forefaid, that from and after the faid twenty-fourth day of June, the Act passed in the Parliament of Scotland in the ninth Parliament of Queen Mary, initialled, Anniis

Witcherafts, shall be and is hereby repealed.

III And be it further enacted, that from and after the faid twenty-fourth day of June. no Profecution, Suit, or Proceeding, that he commenced or carried on against any person or persons for Witcherast, Success, Inchantment, or Conjuration, or for charging another with any toch offence, in any Count whatforwer in Great Britam.

IV And for the more effectual preventing and punishing any pretences to fuch arts or powers as are beforementioned, whereby ignorant persons are frequently de-Inded and detrauded; be it further enacted by the authority aforefaid, that if any person shall, from and a ter the faid twenty-fourth day of June, pretend to exercise or use any kind of Witchcraft, Sorcery, Inchantment, or Conjuration, or undertike to tell fortunes, or pretend from his or her skill or knowledge in any occult or crafty science to discover where or in what manner any Goods or Chattels, Supposed to have been Rolen or loft, may be found ; every person so offending, bring thereof lawfully convicted on indictment or information in that part of Great Britain called England, or on indictment or libel in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, thall for every fuch off-nee fuffer imprifonment by the space of one whole year without Bail or Mainprize, and once in every quarter of the faid year, in market day, there fland openly on the Pillory for the space of one hour, and also shall (if the Court by which fuch judgement thall be given, thall think fit) be obliged give inteties for his or her good behaviour, in fuch fem, and for fuch time. as the faid Court hall fudge proper, according to the circumfunces of the offence, and in fuch eafe shall be further imprisoned until such furcties be given.

APPENDIX No. L.

Hugo Arnot Efq: in his collection of celebrated Criminal Crials in Scotland, when speaking of the above A&. fays, " Locke had written upon government, Fletcher had been a patriot flatesman, Bolingbroke had been a minifter in the augustan age of Queen Anne, ere this fystem of legal murder and torture was abolish de This was an honorir which the tardy humanity of their countrymen referred, alm it to the middle of the prefent eentury , for Mr. Conduit, Alderman Heathcote, and Mr. Croffe. These gentlemen brought a bill into the House of Commons, which was paffed into a law, repering the former Ratutes against witcheraft. Scots as well as English, and discharging prosecutions for that crime. or for accusing others of that offence. On the enacte ment of this flatute vanished all thos- imaginary powers. to abfurdly attributed to women oppieffed with age and poverty. "While we reflect upon the blind and barbarous fupere fittion of our ancel vis. while we beltow the tribute of appl use on those humane and liberal senators who straind duced this law, we cannot help la neuting that a set among us looks upon the abolition of the penal flattice against witcheart not only as an evil, but a sin. The secretes published an act of their affectate prefix tery at Edinburgh A. D 17.32. This act has reprinted at Collassow so late as the year 1766. In it there is contained the annual confission of fan, which to this day they acad from the pulp t. Among the sins national and perfonal there confessed, are the act of Queen Anne's parliament for tolerating the Episcopal religion in Scotland, the act for adjourning the Court of Session during the Chrismas helidays; as also the penal's tutes against Mitches have been repealed by parliament, contrary to the express law of God." (Exod. xxii. 18.) "The secences comprehend a very large body of the populace in Scotland."

*Eighteenth Century.

† Ad for renewing the Covenant, p. 16. 27. 34.

‡ 1. anted in 1763.

APPENDIX No. M.

Having got my hands on an old folio volume of acts of the General Affembly of the Kirk of Scotland, which were p-fied between the years 16.9, and 1649. The following extracts are curious.

I fee in the year 1640, the General Affembly paffed an of against Witches and Charmers as follows, " The flembly ordaines all Ministers within the kingdome, earcfully to take notice of Charmers, Witches, and all fuch abusers of the people, and to urge the Acis of Parliament to be executed against them; and that the Commissioners from the Affembly to the Parliament, shall recommend to the faid supreme judi atory, the care ; of the execution of the lawes against such persons in the melt hehoovefull way " Alfo 5th. Aug. 1642, " The ! Affembly doe therefore ordain all Preforteries to give to the luttice, the names of the Adulterers, incelluous perfons, Witches, and Sorceress, and others, guilty of : such profie and fearfull fins within their bounds, that they may be processed and punished according to the Laws of this kingdome ; and that the Prefbyteries and Synods be carefull herein, as they will antwer to the General Affemblies, &c. alfo Sels ult Aug io 1643, I find overtures agent Witchcraft, and Charming, &c. 3 which occupy a page and a half and beginning with, the abundance and increase of the fin of Witcherait, in all the forts and degrees of it in this time of Reformation, is to be taken to heart by this reverend Affembly. who would to that end confider," &c. and ending with, " he fins aforefaid of Witchcraft, Charming, and confulting with Witches, or Charmers, and fuch like wickednefs, may be tried, reftrained, and condignely confured and punished cooleliatically and civally," and in the year 1649 there is a "Commiffion for a conference of Ministers, Lawyers, and Physitians, concerning the tryal and punishment of Witchcraft, Charming, and Consulting" and runs thus. The General Affembly taking to their ferious confideration the growth of the fins of Witchcraft, Charming, and Confulting, notwithstanding the frequent recommendations for reftraining thereof; and remembering that the General Affembly 1647, did propose a good way for the tryall and punishment of these sinnes, by appointing conferances with fome Ministers, Lawyers, and Physicians in that matter which hath never yet taken effect; therefore the Affembly doth appoint Matters, Robert Dowglas, Robert Blair, Mungo Law, James Hamilton. John Smith, Robert Traill, George Leflie, John Hamilton, John Dancan, Samuel Rutherfoord, James Wood, John Leviston, James Guthrie, Andro Cant, David Calderwood, John Moncrieff, Frederick Carmichael, James Durhame, Patrick Gillespie, Robert Ker, Ephraim Melvill, Ministers", to consider seriously of that matter, and to confult and advise therein among it themselves, as also with sir Archibald Johnston of Warifton, Clerk Register; Mr. Thomas Nicolfon, his Maiefties Advocate; Mr. Alex. Peirson, one of the ordinary Lords of Seffion; Sir Lewes Stewart, Mr. lex. Colvill, and Mr. James Robertson, Justice deputes: Messrs. Rodger Mowet, John Gilmoir, and John Nifbet, Lawvers; and with Doctors Sibbald, Cunninghame, and Purves, Physitians, severally or together as occasion shall offer; and the Affembly carnetly requests and considently expects from thee learned and judicious Lawyers and Phythians before-named, their bett endeavours and concurrence with their brethren of the Ministrie for advife and counfell herein, and for conference in the faid matter; and Ordaine the faid brethren to make report of the refult of their confultations and conferences from time to time as they make any confiderable progredic to the Commiftion for publick affaires, and the faid Commission fall make report to the next Generall Affairembly."

[&]quot; See the Scots Worthies for an account of these M nifters,

APPENDIX No. N.

Upon Sunday the 28th of March 1697, after Sermon, intimation was made by Mr. Thomas Blackwell, the Minifler, of a fait to be kept by the Congregation of Pailey the ending Wedneiday, the Caufes whereof are below.

My friends, we have been preaching of Chrift to you, we are now about to speak of the Devil to you, the greatest enemy that our Lord and his kingdom hath in the world. The thing I am about to intimate to you is this, the members of the Presystery laving taken to their consideration how much Satan doth rage in these bounds, and which is indeed very lamentable in our bommds, and in ours only. They have thought fit to appoint a day of fasting and humiliation, that so he who is the Lyon of the tribe of Judah, may appear with power against him who is the angel of the bottomless pit, and throw him down, who is now come out in great wrath; O! that it may be because his time is short.

As to the causes of the fast, I shall but hint a few things to you, the thing being so well known in the bounds, the Prespytery did not think it needful to be any, way large or formal in drawing up of causes; however, I may say in the first place, the causes of our preceding staff * remain yet not softisciently mourned over, so that though we had no other causes but these, we have ground to observe more falls than one or two.

[&]quot; This was at least the feennd fast kept on Christian Shaw's account.

But yet a little more close to the purpose. First, Satan is greatly raying in our bounds; he hath in all probability erjoyed a long and old flock of subjects, even among the hearers of the gospel; it may be, some of them are hearing me just now, conscience being best judge in that matter, and now he hath come that length, no doubt, being permitted of God, that his power is not only to be perceived in keeping many hearts from closing with Christ, but also in tormenting a family extraordinary in our bounds, fo that it is known to be the Devil and and his instruments, and none elfe, therefore Satan who is raging, and who hath gotten many in all probability to devote themselves soul and body to him.

Again, 2dly, There is the impenitency and obflinacy of perfons fuppofed upon many accounts truly to be guilty, their continuing oblinate, and impenitent, and refusing to confess guilt in that matter, that God who hath the power of conscience, by the power of his spirit. in the use of other lawful means for the finding out of the truth, may make these means effectual, and may win in upon their confciences to make them confels guilt.

adly, The great affi ction of that poor child (Christian Shaw,) and that family in whom the is to nearly interested, none of us knows her affliction, and her father's, fo as it is in itself. It is easy to look upon one so tormented as the is, be what it would be if we were fo tormented ourfelves, or yet any one in our family. We would remember them that are in bonds as bound with them, and therefore our petitions have a special respect to them of that family, that is fet up as a beacon on the top of a mountain for all to take warning.

Again, in the fourth place, Another reason is, the mysteriousness and difficulty of the process of Witcheraft. fo that it is the process of all others, that requires most prudence, folidity, and feveral other things, to name which, many of you would not understand me; but in a word, it requires much of the presence of the spirit of God to guide the Judges, and work upon the consciences of the Pannels, that so the truth may be found out, and judgement accordingly execute; thus we offer prevalence on why it is necessary for us to observe a day of fasting and humiliation before God

And now my friends, all I add is, this in the first place. I am fure ministers, and I am fure the godly are called to be very importunate with God in this matter. Would ve know, my friends, why we preach in vain to them that have devoted themselves to the devil, it is that that makes the gospel so barren, and who knows but in this congregation, there be many, who may have these many years hence been under vows to Satan, and as for your that are the people of God, ye pray in vain for the fuccels of the gospel to them, for till once they be brought to fee the evil of their fin, and to be convinced of the evil thereaf, and to lothe themselves upon account of the same, neither will the gospel, nor your prayers do them any good, fo it is the ministers and people of God's duty. and interest, not only to pray that God would find out the guilty among these that are apprehended, but that God would discover all others that are guilty, and who are not apprehended, that the kingdom of Christ may run and be glorified, and the kingdom of Sacan destroyed,

FINIS.

7. NEILSON PRINTER

