PREFATORY NOTE

THE manuscript Compt Buik of David Wedderburne belonged to the late Mr. A. C. Lamb, Dundee, and a few of the historical entries were used in Mr. Lamb's volume, entitled Dundee: its Quaint and Historic Buildings. The editor assisted Mr. Lamb in the preparation of the literary portion of that volume, and it occurred to him that the Compt Buik would afford precisely the kind of material suitable for a volume such as the Scottish History Society would publish. On making the suggestion to Mr. Lamb, he at once adopted it, and placed the manuscript at the disposal of the Society. He gave free access to his extensive collection of documents relating to the history of Dundee, and rendered valuable assistance in other ways. As the Editor had made voluminous notes in the charter-room of Dundee when engaged upon his Roll of Eminent Burgesses of Dundee, 1513-1887, he was able to utilise these in identifying many of the persons mentioned in the Compt Buik. He has specially to acknowledge the courtesy of Alexander Wedderburn, Esq., Q.C., London, who kindly provided the material for the account of the Wedderburn Family, which forms a separate portion of the Introduction. Mr. Wedderburn, who has long been engaged on a volume of family history, entitled The Wedderburn Book, frankly offered to the Compt Buik this contribution, which embodies the result of elaborate researches in private repositories of the Wedderburns to which he had access. With Mr. Lamb's consent the manuscript had been transcribed by the Rev. Walter Macleod for Mr. Wedderburn's use in his volume; and the proof-sheets of the text have been compared by Mr. Wedderburn with this transcript, besides being carefully collated with the original by the Editor. The text may therefore be accepted as doubly revised.

The Scottish History Society is indebted to the late Lord Provost of Dundee, Sir James Low, and to the present Lord Provost, Henry M'Grady, for permission to transcribe the Shipping Lists of Dundee; and also to Sir Thomas Thornton, Town-Clerk of Dundee, who is official custodian of these documents, and who placed them in the hands of the Editor for transcription. The Editor has further to express his obligations to Mr. T. G. Law for many useful suggestions; to Mr. Mill of the Signet Library, for compiling the Index; and to Mr. Alexander Balharrie, Montrose, for assistance in preparing the work for the press.

INTRODUCTION

THE materials for writing a history of Scottish commerce in the reign of James VI., before and after the Union of the Crowns, have hitherto been very scanty. Some idea of the trade of Scotland with other countries in the fifteenth century may be obtained from a study of The Ledger of Andrew Halyburton, 1492-1503, edited by Professor Cosmo Innes, and published in 1867. That volume also contains the 'Table of Customs and Valuation of Merchandises, 1612,' which indirectly shows the goods imported from which rates were levied, though it affords no clue as to the quantity of goods brought into Scotland, nor does it indicate the places whence these were brought. Professor Innes was thoroughly aware of this defect, for in his Preface he thus alludes to the tariff of 1612:—

'It is certainly very carefully formed, although we may regret that it appears intended to contain and exhaust all articles of possible commerce. It would have suited our purpose, the purpose of the historian, better, if it had indicated the commodities which were habitually, or even occasionally, shipped and landed, bought, sold, bartered in Scotland, just nine years after King James had gone to fill the long-expected seat of Queen Elizabeth, and thought that he had ended the national feud which had so long interrupted the commerce of his two kingdoms.'

The present volume more than fills the space in the annals of Scottish commerce which was vacant when Professor Innes wrote his Preface, and it is the first book issued which contains authentic details of the imports, exports, and home trade at a busy Scottish seaport during the eventful period between 1587 and 1630. It thus covers sixteen years before the Union of the Crowns, and twenty-seven years after that event, in all, forty-three years of Scottish mercantile life, in a time of political and national transition. The last entry in Andrew Halyburton's Ledger is dated July, 1503. The earliest commercial entry in David Wedderburne's Compt Buik was made on 15th March 1587. The intervening period is a total blank, so far as documentary evidence of Scottish commerce is concerned, save for stray references in the Acts of Parliament, and the Records of the Convention of Burghs. The last entries in Wedderburne's book were made on 12th December, 1630 (pp. 76, 77), two years before his death. This parchment-bound volume, with its quaint flap, partly frayed by constant use, had been his continual companion for forty-three years, and to its pages he had committed the records of his commercial transactions, the register of his family, the lists of deeds relating to his properties, the books he most highly prized, the furniture and warlike graith which were most valuable to him, the portentous local and national events that seemed most worthy of notice, everything, in short, which made up the life of a thriving merchant three centuries ago. In this respect the Wedderburne volume is much more instructive than The Ledger of Andrew Halyburton; for while the latter book contains the business transactions of a fifteenth century Scottish merchant, formally arranged for commercial purposes only, the present volume gives a vivid picture, drawn unconsciously, of the domestic life of a burghess in the latter half of the succeeding century. It is the familiar note-book of an educated merchant, the representative of a notable family, moving in the best local society of the time, with a large business connection in Norway, the Low Countries, France, and Spain; and it shows what he exported and imported, how he managed his foreign traffic, the method whereby he conducted his ordinary sales in the burgh, the weights and measures of the period, the forms of charter-party in use for shipments sent abroad, the currency of the time, and many other details which throw a flood of light upon the commerce of his day, and afford information upon a subject that has hitherto been wrapt in shade. Previous to the issue of this volume, there was no authentic publication upon the subject between Halyburton's date (1503), and the Report, by Thomas Tucker, upon the harbours of Scotland, written in 1656 for the information of Cromwell, and published by the Bannatyne Club. It will thus be seen that the Wedderburne book fills a wide gap in the commercial history of Scotland, and covers a period of great interest. Indirectly, also, it shows the progress of the secularisation of ecclesiastical property. Wedderburne was factor for the Scrymgeours of Dudhope, so far as some of the chaplainries were concerned, which had fallen into their hands; and the accounts he rendered, and his lists of documents connected with these properties, are full of instruction upon an obscure subject.

While the editor was engaged upon the Wedderburne manuscript, it occurred to him that the book gave only one side of the trade of that time. The exports sent to foreign lands are detailed with considerable fulness, and the imports are shown by numerous entries. But to understand fully the import trade at a leading seaport of the period, it was necessary to have more than the record of one merchant's transactions. Researches made by the editor in the charter-room of Dundee, for another purpose, had enabled him to discover volumes which gave the Shipping Lists from 1580 till 1700, and he thought that the printing of a selection from these Lists, in which the contents of each cargo are detailed, would show, upon indisputable evidence, what were the imports to Dundee; in fact, would supply exactly the information which Professor Cosmo Innes had desiderated. With the sanction of the Council of the Scottish History Society, application was made to Sir Thomas Thornton, Town Clerk of Dundee, and with his courteous consent the editor transcribed the Shipping Lists, beginning with 1580, the date of the earliest volume extant, and continuing chronologically till 1618. It was not deemed necessary to carry the transcription further than the latter date, as the thirty-eight years included give a fair idea of the imports. Taking the two portions of this volume together, it is possible to have an adequate notion of the imports, exports, and home trade in a thriving Scottish burgh before and after the Union of the Crowns.

The Wedderburne manuscript contains 102 leaves, measuring $7\frac{3}{4}$ inches by $5\frac{7}{8}$ inches. The paper is made up in nine bundles of five double-leaves, stitched with twine, and fixed within a parchment cover (not lined), having a flap which covers the front edge of the book and extends about half-way over the back-cover; that is to say, the parchment is one piece of skin measuring 17 inches by $7\frac{3}{4}$ inches. The paper is uniform in quality, having a rough surface, and some of the sheets bear a flagon water-mark such as was common on Dutch paper of the period. The insides of the cover have been written upon, and thus the book contains 104 folios, as shown in the marginal pagination given in the text. That pagination, it must be understood, does not exist in the original, and has only been adopted by the editor for ease in reference. The book has not been used chronologically, but has been written from both ends, and entries have been interpolated at various times where a blank space could be found for a jotting or memorandum. Hence it might seem at first difficult to decide which is the beginning and which the end of the book. A little examination of the contents, however, soon settles this matter. Taking the flap, as naturally opening towards the left hand, it will be found that the title-page has originally borne merely the simple description, 'Liber Davidis Wedderburne,' with the date '1587' at the bottom of the page. At later dates the page has been scribbled over with numerous entries, and with caligraphic flourishes, interspersed with unconnected phrases, such as, 'David Wedderburne, burges of Dundie,' 'Xantho retro propria,' as shown on page 1. On turning over this leaf the original purpose of the book is disclosed on folio 2^a by the inset title: 'This is ane collectione off the effectis and daittis of certaine evidentis wryttis and tytellis apertenand to David Wedderburne sone lawfull to umquhile Alexander Wedderburne commune clerk off Dundie as followis ffirst. Als of certane his brether and sisteris tytellis and sum frendis' (p. 4). From this title it is evident that the book was begun as a record of documents relating to properties that belonged to the Wedderburne family. The first twenty-two pages (eleven leaves) are occupied with a continuous list of these documents. It might at first seem to militate against this theory as to the first purpose of the book, that while the date on the title-page is 1587, some of the charters included bear the date 1610. But it will be found that blank spaces have been left on the pages after the record has been brought up to September 1587, and the memoranda as to documents of a later date have been interpolated subsequently. When these spaces were found insufficient for other entries, the writer has put a cross-reference thus: 'ffourtie leavis hereafter followis the Inventar of the rest of my writtis' (p. 23); and a similar direction was given when folio 12^a was reached (p. 25). The purpose of the book is thus made clear.

Had David Wedderburne adhered to his first intention the value of this manuscript would have been limited. Fortunately it occurred to him that he might make use of this book for memoranda of his business transactions. He simply reversed the book and began to write upon it from the other end. The new title-page reads thus: 'David Wedderburnis Compt Buik, 9 Novembris, 1587' (p. 190). He did not begin to write up the Compt Buik chronologically. The earliest entry is dated 15th March 1587 (p. 188), a date anterior to the date on the second title-page. A glance at the text will show that the dates on the same page are often widely separated in time, thus showing that David Wedderburne kept this book for stray memoranda, which he jotted down upon any page where he found a blank space. It might have been possible to have arranged these entries in chronological order; but that would have entirely altered the book, and destroyed its value as an example of the commercial system of a merchant of the period. The whole of the book has been transcribed exactly, and is printed in the form in which the manuscript was written.

The pages of this book had been in use as a commercial record for a considerable time before it occurred to David Wedderburne that it would be convenient to make it a family register. Some time subsequent to 23rd February 1606, he jotted down (not in chronological order) the dates of the births, marriages, and deaths of his children. He began this record on a blank half-page, and continued it on the succeeding page, but as the space was limited he had to crowd the particulars in small writing within double columns (p. 47). The result must have been unsatisfactory to him, especially when there were new-comers in the family, and important additional events had to be recorded. Hence, in 1610—four years later—he began a regular family register, arranged consecutively, with the quaint heading, ‘The names of Barnis and Eild of thame procreat betuix David Wedderburne and Matild Beton his spous, with the names of thair godfatheris and godmotheris Baptisit and quhat Ministeris is as follows’ (p. 122). The appearance of these two registers shows that the writer did not regard the book as a merely commercial ‘compt buik,’ such as Andrew Halyburton’s Ledger was. It was his constant and familiar companion for at least forty-three years, and was apparently carried with him on his occasional journeyings to the Continent. From its pages much may be learned of the social life of the period which no day-book or ledger could have afforded. It shows the household furniture of a well-to-do merchant of the Jacobean time, the apparel he wore, the weapons he carried, the books he read, his piety, his superstitution, and his loyalty to the reigning monarch ; as well as the multiform currency he used, his weights and measures, his method of trading, and the kinds of goods in which he trafficked. To some of these topics attention may be directed by referring to typical examples that are to be found in the volume.

As the genealogy of the Wedderburne family is very fully detailed (and for the first time with accuracy) in a separate portion of this Introduction, it is only necessary here to give a brief outline of the life of David Wedderburne, the author of the Compt Buik. He was the second son of Alexander Wedderburne, Town-clerk of Dundee (d. 1585), and Janet Myln, and was probably born in 1562. No account of his early life has been found, but it is probable that he was educated at the Grammar-school of Dundee, and afterwards at St. Andrews University, for it is evident from his own memoranda that he had obtained a good classical education. The likelihood is that he did not graduate, as he is never referred to as 'Magister,' though that title is punctiliously bestowed on his elder brother Alexander. His admission as a Notary in 1603 (p. 130) suggests that he had been originally intended for the legal profession, and had studied with that purpose in view, though his life was chiefly devoted to commerce. On 15th May 1582, he was enrolled as a burgess of Dundee by the privilege of his father the Town-clerk. Five years afterwards, as the Compt Buik shows, he was actively engaged in commerce. In 1589 he was married to Matilda Betoun (marriage contract dated 26th Feb.), daughter of James Betoun of Westhall, and by her he had four sons and seven daughters. Besides his occupation as a merchant, David Wedderburne transacted legal business for his clients, such as making transumps of charters, examining sasines, extracting deeds from the protocol books which had belonged to his father, and other work of that kind ; and he also acted as factor to Sir James Scrymgeour of Dudhope in connection with some of the chaplainries which belonged to that nobleman. In 1596 he visited Queinsbrig (p. 46) or Quedlinburg, in Holland, and again in 1600 (p. 122), and journeyed once to Denmark (p. 174), and on these occasions he gives a list in the Compt Buik of the strange medley of coins which he took with him. He entered the Town Council in 1598, and served as Councillor in 1599, 1601, 1602, 1603. In the early years of his wedded life he rented from his brother Alexander a house on the south side of the Mercat-gait (now High Street); but at a later date he possessed a 'ludging and tenement, with yard bak and foir, lyand on the north part of the hie mercat gait of Dundee,' which he bequeathed to his wife on 11th January 1624. The latest entry in the Compt Buik is dated 12th December 1630. David Wedderburne was alive on 30th April 1632, as he was then cautioner to the confirmation of the will of Christian Lovell wife of his brother James; but his death must have taken place previous to 3rd March 1634, as appears from an entry in one of the Dundee protocol books.

The most convenient method for examining the contents of the Compt Buik will be to indicate the memorable events referred to; the books acquired or lent by David Wedderburne; and the commercial memoranda in which allusions are made to systems of trade and barter, coinage, exports, and imports, and curious domestic customs. These references will not be exhaustive, but will serve to show the kind of material which the book contains.

Saturday, 25th February 1597-8, was a memorable day in the history of Scotland. A total eclipse of the sun took place, and as the Kirk was then at a crisis in its existence, there were Presbyterian prophets who took this phenomenon to be a warning of impending danger. The event is narrated in detail by Calderwood, by James Melville, and by William Scott, and it is curious to find how closely David Wedderburne's description agrees with these three separate versions. The note in the Compt Buik (p. 32) is an excellent example of vigorous Scottish language:—

‘Upoun the xxv day of Februar being Settirday, the signe In pisces 1597 Quhilk wes accomptit the ecllips of the sone and cheynge of the mone Betuix ten and ellevin houris befor nwn that day darkness overschaddowit the face of the hail earth that nane mycht knaw ane uther perfytyl on the calsayis nor yit nicht nae persone within thair houssis haif any lycht but candill Quhilk contenewit the space of half ane houre And the peiple with gryt fair fled aff the calsayis to houssis mourning and lamenting and the crawis and corbeis and ravenois foullis fled to houssis to our steeple and tolbuith and schip tappis maist merveulously affrayit Quhilk sycht wes maist terreble and fairfull to all people young and auld And nane persone levand culd declair they ever hard or saw the lyk thame selfis in ony tyme preceeding.’

The account of this incident given by William Scott, minister of Cupar (Apologetical Narration of the State of the Kirk, Wodrow Soc. ed. p. 99) is in similar terms, though Scott regards it as having some prognostical reference to the famous Articles of Perth, which were shortly to be submitted to the General Assembly. The following is Scott’s version :—

‘Upon Saturday, the 25th of February, fell forth that fearfull eclipse of the sun, which continued the space of two hours, so fearfull that that Saturday is yet called by the people “the Black Saturday” ; a prognostick, as the tymes gave occasion to interpret, of that darknesse which was to fall upon the Kirk.’

Calderwood is even more precise in ascribing this darkness as foreshadowing some evil to the Kirk. After describing the event in words similar to those employed by Wedderburne, he remarks (History of the Kirk, fol. ed. 1678, p. 145) :—

‘The like fearefull eclipse of the sunne, and appearance of fallin starres from the heaven, was seene in France, when men of greatest estimation were intised by flatterie and gifts to agree upon a middle betuixt Papists and Protestants, which had been effectuated if God had not cut them off in a strange maner.’

James Melville was so impressed with this eclipse and its prophetic foreshadowings that he gave details of it twice in his Diary (Wodrow Soc. ed. pp. 438, 525), and even wrote a sonnet on the subject, in which he represented the moon coming between the earth and the sun as symbolical of the world coming betwixt the kirk and Christ; and in a marginal note on his manuscript he gave the names of several eminent men who died in the following year—events which he evidently believed were foretold by the eclipse. Wedderburne, being probably inclined to Episcopacy, like others of his family, did not recognise any of these portents.

David Wedderburne was not above the superstitions of his time, and was tinged with that love of astrology which then prevailed. Thus he copies into his Compt Buik a prophecy regarding James VI. (p. 140). He explains in the margin, ‘Robert my father brother gif me this quhilk he said wes giffin him in Vittemberg.’ The forecast is as follows:—

‘I. 6 Rex noster natus fuerat in carcere
Edinburgense 19 Junij 1566
Inter horas 9 et 10 Antemeridiem in anno 1575.

R. erit versutus irrequietus Consiliorum
Occultator ac fundet regni sui amplit.

Another instance of Wedderburne’s credulity is shown by his regarding what were known as ‘evil days.’ On the back of his first title-page (p. 3) he gives a double list of evil and blessed days. He writes: ‘The zeir hes 33 evill dayis. This generalie forder contenit in the Schiphirdis calender,’ and then he proceeds to detail the evil days in each month of the year. But this is not enough for him. He gives a second list of ‘evill dayis allowit be thame that wret this.’ On comparing the two tables, it will be seen that besides the first thirty-three evil days he admits thirty-one into his own calendar, and only seventeen of these coincide with the other list, thus making in all forty-seven evil days in Wedderburne’s year. ‘The blissit dayis of the zeir The quhilk wes revelit to ye gude patriarche Joseph quhen he servit Kyng Pharow in Egypt be the angell of God,’ are quoted as a set-off to the other lists. There were twenty-six blessed days, November being wholly unblest. As there is a similar list of evil days in one of the Dundee protocol books that belonged to David's uncle, Robert Wedderburne the notary, it is probable that he had taken the calendar from the same source as that from which he received the prophecy regarding James VI. It is curious that, with such a predisposition towards omens, David Wedderburne did not suggest some supernatural explanation of the eclipse.

Another interesting historical event recorded in the Compt Buik was the visit of James VI. to Dundee in 1617. When that monarch, 'saumont-like,' determined to return to his ancient kingdom, great preparations were made for the royal progress. Lord Binning (afterwards first Earl of Haddington) was intrusted with the preparations for this visit. He found that it would be difficult to cross the Tay at Dundee because of the baggage that would have to be shipped and ferried across the river. The only other method was to send the baggage by Perth and thence to Dundee, on the way to Kinnaird Castle, the seat of Sir David Carnegie, first Earl of Southesk, where the King purposed spending several days. Lord Binning wrote thus to the King: 'It is not sene how your Majestie's stuffis can be transported and in due tyme placed at Kinnaird, unless your Majestie stay two nights at Dundie on your first passage, and mak the lyke stay at Dundie in your returne from Kinnaird.' From the entry in the Compt Buik, however, it is clear that the difficulty was got over, for the king only remained one night at Dundee. The note is interesting as the record of an eyewitness. David Wedderburne's brother, the Town Clerk, was directed to read an Address to the King, written in Latin, which is printed in 'The Muses' Welcome to the King's Majestie,' and is saturated with the hyperbolical flattery that seemed ever pleasing to the King. The passage in the Compt Buik (p. 117) runs thus:—

Upoun the xv May 1617. James be the grace of God Kyng of Gryt Bretan France Iyrland defender of the faith our native King being mowit of his awin gude inclenatione to wissit Scotland and his avin people cam to Edinburgh. Thairefter cam our the wattir of Kyngorne and cam to Falkland and on the xxj of May being Weddinsday cam our the wattir of Dundie and schippit at the Sowth Ferry and landit at the rude And cam to Dudop lait and swippit [supped] thair. The morn tymous he red to Kinnaird and remanit all that day Fryday, Settirday, Sondag, Mononday Tysday Weddensday Thursday and interit into Dundie on Fryday at houris quhar than the toun gef [deleted] his greace gef to them his presence.

There is another note in the Compt Buik that refers to a visit paid by the King to Dundee, which is not elsewhere recorded, if the date be correct. Under the heading, '7 Junij 94' the entry appears, 'Lent Alexander Peirsone x^s quhen the Kyng wes heir' (p. 42). James VI. set out from Edinburgh on 17th February 1593, at the head of the army which he was to lead to the North against Huntly. He marched through Stirling, Perth, Dundee, and Aberdeen, and the money may have been borrowed by Peirsone at that time. It is possible, however, that the note has been interpolated subsequent to 7th June 1594, and may refer to the time when the King led forth the army against Huntly for the second time, as he then passed through Dundee on 7th October 1594. If neither of these theories be correct, then the King must have visited Dundee surreptitiously; and it is curious that no charter was signed by him at Holyrood House between 4th May and 27th May, though upon 8th June 1594 he signed a charter there in favour of Alexander Ramsay, Bailie of Dundee.

The most curious historical note in the volume occurs in a strange place. The second family register was written by David Wedderburne in January 1610, as is shown by the marginal note opposite the entry of the birth of his son Henry, where he speaks of 'the 23 Januar instant' (p. 126). The marriage of his daughter Helen took place on 22nd May 1610, and he recorded this event on that day. Apparently on the same day he received intelligence by some of the ships trading from France of the tragedy which had occurred there, for he writes, evidently with the same pen, the startling sentence, '4 May 1610 The Kyng of France wes slain.' He alludes, of course, to the assassination of Henri iv. by Ravail-lac, and it shows the intimate relationship between Scotland and France at that time, when a Scottish merchant should have intruded this record into the register of his own family. The sentence is underlined in the manuscript to give it emphasis. The succeeding entry, relating to the marriage of his daughter Effie, was not made until 11th November 1610.

Another personal note may be of use as settling authoritatively a disputed point in the genealogy of the Scrymgeoures of Dudhope. Nearly every writer on the subject states that Magdalen Livingstone, daughter of the fifth Lord Livingstone, was married first to Sir Alexander Erskine of Gogar, and afterwards to John Scrymgeoure of Glaister, father of Sir James Scrymgeoure of Dudhope. It is further stated that Sir James was married to Margaret, daughter of Sir Robert Carnegy of Kinnaird, and no other wife is mentioned in connection with his name. A whole generation is omitted from the genealogy. Margaret Carnegy must have died soon after her marriage, for Sir James was unquestionably married to Lady Margaret Livingstone, who was not his mother but his wife. The initials of Sir James Scrymgeoure and his wife, Dame Magdalen Livingstone, are still visible on various portions of Dudhope Castle, which they reconstructed in 1600. The entry in the Compt Buik (p. 91) confirms this statement, and gives the exact date of the death of Sir James :

'Upoun the xiiij day of July 1612 at fyve houris in the morning The richt honourabill Schir James Scrymgeour of Dudop Knycht constable of Dundie ane verry noble and gude man deit in Cristiane Lindsays ludgeing within the abbay of Halyrud hous in Edinburgh his sone and Dame Magdalen Livingstoun his lady being with him thair.'

There are numerous charters and sasines recorded in the protocol books within the charter-room of Dundee, which prove that Dame Magdalen Livingstone survived her husband, and acted as superior of the lands of Dudhope until her son came of age. That son was Sir John Scrymgeoure, afterwards first Viscount Dudhope, whose grandson was created Earl of Dundee.

The books incidentally mentioned are interesting as showing the contents of a Scottish merchant's library in the sixteenth century. There were books in Hebrew, Greek, and Latin, and works on navigation, arithmetic, travels, history, and poetry. On 7th November 1621, David Wedderburne devoted a whole page of his volume to the recording of books which he had lent (p. 168), and the list is worthy of careful examination :

'Lent James Balfour sone to Michell Balfour of Monquhany Metamorphosis Ovidii in Laten with the pictouris bund in ane swynis skyn of werry braw binding sumtyme apertening to Robert Wedderburn my uncle with ane uther buik of Inglis of Emblemis in meter for the space of ane moneth.'

It is not easy to discover which edition of Ovid is here referred to, though the statement that it had belonged to Robert Wedderburne, the notary (born 1546), gives some clue to its date. This may have been the Leyden edition of 1519, with woodcuts; or the Leyden edition revised and published in 1524. It is possible that it may have been the Metamorphoses per Sprengium illustrata, published in 1570, of which there was a copy in the juvenile library of James VI.¹ The style of the binding suggests a continental origin, though it is quite possible that this was a copy of the famous edition revised by Andrea Navagero, the Italian poet, which was published at London in 1582. On p. 169 the book is described as 'my gilt Ovid.' The 'Buik of Inglis of Emblemis' was probably the work of Geoffrey Whitney of Nantwich (died 1603), which bore the following title, 'A Choice of

Emblems and other Devises, for the moste parte gathered out of sundrie Writers, Englished and Moralised and Divers newly Devised. Imprinted at Leyden in the House of Christopher Plantyn, by Francis Raphelengius, 1586.' This book was republished in 1866 under the editorship of the Rev. Henry Green, M.A. Raphelengius was the son-in-law and successor of Plantyn.

'Lent My Cornieclis to John Ochterlony of Murrois. . . . Mr. John Mairis Cornicle.'

The latter volume was unquestionably the Paris edition of 1521 of John Mair or Major's Historia Majoris Britanniae tam Angliæ quam Scotiæ, which was translated by Mr. Archibald Constable, and published by the Scottish History Society in 1893. The other volume of 'Cornieclis' may be either Hector Boece's Chronicles, which appears on another page described as 'Hector Boethis in laten' (p. 73), or Ralph Holinshed's Chronicles. If Boece's book be the work noted, it might either be the Paris edition of 1526, or that of 1575. Holinshed's book is usually referred to by Wedderburne as 'Chronicles of England, Ireland, and Scotland,' or 'my Inglis Cornicles,' and a curious entry (p. 189) shows how it came into Wedderburne's possession :—

'2 Apryle 97. John Nes officer at command of Peter Clayhillis bailie arestit in David Thomsonis maryneris handis ane Cronicle of Scotland Ingland Ireland sumetyme pertenant to Thomas Man now to Elizabeth Heres and Alexr. Man his sone and that for 13 lib x^s auin be the said umq^{le} Thomas to me David Wedderburn on his obligatioune.'

The volume, which would probably be the edition of 1577, had been an heirloom in Man's family, and was arrested in the hands of his son for a debt contracted by the deceased. The Greek and Latin classics in this list are as follows :—

'Lent Dr. Goldman 4 buikes Iliades Homerj, ane uther Greik buik (p. 169). . . James Crychtoun my Vergill (p. 89) Ultimo Martij 1618. Robert Betoun and my sone James hes tane up with thame to Westhall to reid on Plutarche in Laten ourgilt; Quintiliane ante signa lexicon to reid a quhyle thairin, and to bring with thame again (p. 173). Lent Mr. John Wedderburn 4 buikis Socrates besyd Moral Philosophie Erasmus in Inglis (p. 169) . . . my Fabellis of Esope.'

The first edition of Homer printed in this country was published in 1591; but as David Wedderburne had constant intercourse with the Continent, it is very likely that his copy had been brought from Holland. 'Dr. Goldman,' who borrowed Homer, was Peter Goldman, the celebrated Latinist, whose poems were published by Sir John Scot of Scotstarvit, in the Delitiæ Poetarum Scotorum. The Virgil cannot be identified, nor the Plutarch. There were three editions of Quintilian's Institutionem Oratorium in circulation before the date of the entry: the Leyden edition of 1536 by Sebastian Gryphius; the Paris edition of 1542 by Robert Estienne; and the second Paris edition of 1549 by Estienne's successor, Michel de Vascosan. Of the Fables of Æsop two editions were published before this time—one by Wynkyn de Worde in 1534, and another issued at London in 1580. In the King's library there was a copy assigned by Mr. George Warner either to H. Wykes, London, 1570, or to Robert Lekpreuik, Edinburgh, in the same year (Miscellany of Scottish History Society, p. lxii), 'Erasmus in Inglis' would most likely be the 'Enchiridion militis Christiani, or The Hansom Weapon of a Christian Knight, replenished with many goodly and godly Precepts, Imprinted by Wynkyn de Worde, London, 1534.'

'Lent Mr. Josua Dury ane Hebrew Bybell. . . . Lent Mr. William Fergusone ane buik callit Morcelphis and ane Laten New Testament with the pictour ourgilt. . . . Mr Colyn Campbell a buik the Laten Bybell. (pp. 169-170) . . . Thomas Findlason, my bressin Scriptour' (p. 166).

These entries are interesting as showing that prominent clergymen of the period came to this Dundee merchant to borrow books that ought to have been in their own possession. Joshua Dury was the son of the Reformer, John Dury (born 1537, died 1600), and was minister successively at Montrose, Forfar, Logie-Montrose, St Andrews, and Inverkeillor. His sister was the wife of James Melville, the Diarist. Dury died at Inverkeillor in 1631. Colin Campbell was minister of Kettins, from which place he was translated to the third charge in Dundee in 1620, and died there in 1638. Mr. William Ferguson was the son of another famous reformer—David Ferguson of Dunfermline, the friend of John Knox—and was a noted physician in Dundee. Thomas Findlasoun merits some notice. He was the son of James Findlasoun, Bailie and Treasurer of Dundee (1564-66), and was born in the burgh. He learned the art of printing in Edinburgh, and from entries in the Register of the Privy Council it appears that he had set up as a master printer in Edinburgh previous to 1609, as in that year he was licensed to print Skene's Regiam Majestatem in two volumes, 'the one in Latin for the use and benefit of strangers, and the other in the Scottish language for the use of subjects of the country.' In 1611 Findlasoun obtained the privilege of printing the Acts of Parliament, with a monopoly for twenty years, and later in the same year the Privy Council extended his monopoly, granting him liberty to reprint the 'Book of King Robert the Bruce,' the 'Book of Sir William Wallace,' and the 'Book of the Seven Seages,' which had been 'printed of befoir, bot nou out of print lang since.' In August 1612 Findlasoun was appointed King's Printer in succession to Robert Charteris, and had licence to print, not only the Acts of Parliament, but also 'the Buikis of Halie Scriptour, contening the Auld and New Testament in all languageis, in haill or in pairt, and in quhatsomevir volumes, grite or small; with approved Cronicleis of Scotland in Latin and Englishe.' On 19th October 1619 the name of 'Thomas Findlasoun, Typographus Regis,' was enrolled on the list of honorary burgesses of Dundee. It is probable that when he borrowed David Wedderburne's 'bressin Scriptour' in 1597, he contemplated printing 'the Buikis of Halie Scriptour,' though years elapsed before the work was accomplished. On 9th June 1608, Wedderburne lent his brother-in-law, Alexander Pierson, his 'parapris on the New Testament' (p. 141), and on the same day his 'Frensche Academy bundin in red ourgilt' was borrowed, apparently for the second time (pp. 141, 169). Considerable difficulty was experienced by the editor in identifying the latter book, as the clue to its identity was very slight. At length, after diligent search, he obtained a copy of the work in the same edition as that which Wedderburne had. The title-page reads thus: 'The | French Aca-| Demie | wherein is discoursed the in-|stitution of maners, and whatso-|ever els concerneth the good and hap-|pie life of all estates and callings, by | preceptes of doctrine, and exam-|ples of the liues of ancient | Sages and famous | men : | by Peter de la Primavdaye | Esquire, Lord of the said place, | and of Barree, one of the ordi-|narie Gentlemen of the | Kings Chamber : de-|dicated To the most Christian King Henrie | the third, and newly translated | into English by | T. B. | Imprinted at London, by | Edmund Bollifant for G. | Bishop and Ralph Newbery | 1586 |'. The book is a small quarto of 832 closely printed pages. It is dedicated to John Barne, Esquire, probably the younger son of Sir George Barne, who was Lord Mayor of London in 1552, and the brother of Sir George Barne, who was also Lord Mayor in 1586, now represented by Barne of Sotterley and Dunwich, co. Suffolk. It is a work on moral philosophy in the form of discussions. Four young men of Anjou arranged to meet together under the supervision of 'an ancient wise gentleman of great calling,' and to debate upon such subjects as philosophy, sobriety, friendship, love, marriage, monarchy, death, and similar topics. The work is somewhat overweighted with erudition, though in certain chapters it is sprightly and even mildly humorous. The name of the translator, 'T. B.,' has not been discovered. The date precludes the idea that it could have been Thomas Blount, author of 'The Academy of Eloquence,' as he was not born till 1618.

Another interesting volume in Wedderburne's library is thus referred to: 'Lent Thomas Vichtan, Smythe's Sermones, and ane uther buk' (p. 169). Richard Smythe, D.D., was a learned Popish divine, born in Worcestershire in 1500, Professor of Divinity at Oxford, and chaplain to Queen Mary of England. He preached a sermon at the martyrdom of Ridley and Latimer, choosing for his text the suggestive sentence, 'Though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.' His writings were chiefly refutations of the doctrines of Calvin, Melancthon, and other reformers. He died in 1563, and in 1572 one of his sermons was published by the Protestant party under the title, 'A Sermon by Dr. Smythe, with which he entertained his Congregation in Queen Mary's Reign.' This was probably the book lent to Thomas Vichtan, who was a notary, and whose father had been a priest, converted to Protestantism at the Reformation.

The following entry is interesting as showing the value of books at the period:—

'ix. May 1620.—Send with James Symsons my Hector Boethis in laten weill bund, and the Kyngis Apologie to Stokholme to be sauld he hes promesit to restore it or x lib thairfor or the coper guis pan Item he hes my blundewill buk cost me 6 lib.' (p. 73).'

As already explained, the Boece would probably be the Paris edition of 1575. The book referred to as the 'Kyngis Apologie' was written in Latin by James VI., and published anonymously in 1607. Evidently the copy which Wedderburne had was the English translation published in 1609, in which the king acknowledged the authorship. Its full title was 'An Apologie for the Oath of Allegiance (against the two Breves of Pope Paulus Quintus and the late Cardinall Bellarmine to G. Blackwood) First set forth without a name; and now acknowledged by the author, James, King of Great Britain.' This book was currently known as the 'King's Apology.' It is remotely possible, however, that Wedderburne may have had a copy of the book entitled 'An Apologie and Defence of the K. of Scotland against the infamous libell forged by John Cecill, English Priest, Intelligencer to Treasurer Cecill of England,' which was printed in the Miscellany of the Scottish History Society, vol. i. p. 41, et seq. In his notes on that work Mr. T. G. Law refers to three manuscript copies in the Record Office, and inclines to the opinion that the 'Apologie' had not been printed. Allusion is made by the writer to 'his last edition,' and Mr. Law says, 'Although "last edition" is a strange and unlikely term to be used of any unprinted document, there has been discovered no evidence of the "Apologie" ever having been printed. It was evidently circulated, and widely circulated, in manuscript only.' (Miscell. Scot. Hist. Soc., vol. i. p. 15.) Though it is not impossible that Wedderburne may have had a copy of this work, the probability is rather in favour of the supposition that the book sent to Stockholm was the 'Apologie for the oath of Allegiance.'

James Symson, who was Wedderburne's son-in-law, having married his daughter Eufam in 1610, was entered on the Burgess Roll as a merchant; but he was also a 'skipper,' and sailed regularly both to Sweden and to Spain. He had a special affection for this work described as 'blundewill buk.' Besides the entry quoted above, it will be found that on another page of the Compt Buik it is recorded that Wedderburne had 'lent James Symson my Blundevill buk to reid on quhill he cum out of Stokholme' (p. 148); and again the note appears, 'Lent James Symson Blundevill Drackis Voyages, and ane sie buk' (p. 169). It is not easy to tell which of Thomas Blundeville's numerous works was thus referred to. It is probable, having regard to Symson's occupation as a skipper, that it was 'A Brief Description of Universall Mappes and Cards, and of their Use,' published in 1589; or his

'Theoriques of the Planets, together with the making of two Instruments for Seamen to find out the Latitude without seeing Sun, Moon, or Stars, invented by Dr. Gilbert,' which was published at London in 1602. The volume of 'Drackis Voyages' may have been the Latin version printed by Raphe-lengius at Leyden in 1588, and entitled Expeditio Francisci Draki, Equites Angli, in Indias Occidentalis MDLXXXV; quâ Urbes Fanum D. Jacobi, D. Domenici, D. Augustini, et Carthage-na captæ fuere. Additis passim Regionum Locorumque omnium Tabulis geographicis quam accuratissimis. As Symsons was a merchant, it is quite reasonable to suppose that he had been educated at the Dundee Grammar School, which was then famous for its Latin scholars, and would be able to read Drake's book in the original. If not, then this work may have been one of the two English translations published at London in 1589. David Betoun, younger of Creich, seems to have had a fancy for geography, as the following entries show:—

'xxv September, 1613.—Memorandum. Lent my buik callit Ortelius cost me vj lib. to young Laird of Crech for xx dayis (p. 156). . . . x November, 1616, Young Creich my Ortelius (p. 105). . . . 7 November 1621. Lent Creich Ortelius (p. 169).'

This volume was either the Theatrum Orbis Terrarum, or Universal Geography, written by the famous Dutch geographer, Abraham van Oertel, or Ortelius, and published at Amsterdam in 1570, or the Thesaurus Geographicus, by the same author, also published at Amsterdam in 1596, two years before Oertel's death. Another of the technical books possessed by Wedderburne is described by him as 'Arithmetik in Inglis,' and was probably a copy of the famous work which bore the following title: 'An Introduction for to lerne to reken with the Pen and with the Counters, after the true Cast of Arithmetyke or Awgryme in hole numbers and also in broken; newly corrected, and certayne Rules and Ensamples added thereunto.' This volume was first printed in black letter in 1537, and was reprinted in 1539, 1546, 1574, 1581, and 1595. It was the standard authority on arithmetic at the time.

While Wedderburne evidently held the ancient classics in esteem, he was not ignorant of English poetry. His volume of Emblems has already been noticed. The following entries are interesting :—

‘ Henry Guthreis sone the sege of thebes (p. 89). . . . The gudwyf of Pitlathy my Chaucer (p. 105). . . . Lent young Petir Wedderburn Doctor Faustus’ (p. 169).

In the sixteenth century there were several editions of Chaucer published, with John Lydgate’s ‘Story of Thebes’ added at the end of the volumes. It seems that Wedderburne had these as separate books. Chaucer’s works were published without Lydgate’s poem in 1532, 1542, and 1559; and in editions of 1561, 1598, and 1602 ‘The Storie of Thebes’ was included. It is possible that Wedderburne used the title of his book with reference to the portion of it that the borrower wished to peruse. Lydgate’s poem was first printed with Chaucer’s works in Stow’s edition of 1561. It is difficult to tell whether the ‘Doctor Faustus’ referred to was in prose or poetry. In 1588 there was published in London ‘The History of the Damnable Life and Deserved Death of Dr. John Faustus,’ and four years afterward there appeared ‘The Second Report of Doctor John Faustus, conteaning his Appearances, and the Deeds of Wagner.’ It was from the materials afforded by these two volumes that Christopher Marlowe constructed his drama ‘The Tragical History of Doctor Faustus,’ which was first published in 1602. It is more probable that the volume lent in 1621 was the ‘History’ translated from the German, rather than the drama; for David Wedderburne, like many of his time, had a weakness for astrology and the magic arts. Several times he records the lending of his ‘buik of prophesie’ (p. 105), and he also refers to ‘my buik of Walking Sprittis’ (p. 87). The full title of the former was ‘A Discursive Probleme concerning Prophecies, how far they are to be valued or credited, according to the surest rules and directions in Divinitie, Philosophie, Astrologie, and other learning. Devised especially in abatement of the terrible threatenings and menaces peremptorily denounced against the Kingdoms and States of the World this present famous yeare 1588, supposed the great wonderfull and fatall yeare of our Age.' The other mystical book was the necromantic volume by Lavaretus of Tigurine, entitled 'Of Ghosts and Spirites Walking by Night, and of Strange Noyses, Crackes and sundrie Forewarnynges, which commonly happen before the death of Menne, great Slaughters, and alterations of Kyngdomes.' Probably Wedderburne had the English version, published by R. Watkins of London in 1572. Among the books mentioned in the Compt Buik which cannot be easily identified are these:—'Eneme to Athesme'; 'The Roten fall'; 'a buke of generositie'; 'buik of fisches in Frensche'; 'a buik of John Knoxis'; and 'Morcolphis.' The list of books is sufficient to show how diversified were the literary tastes of a Scottish merchant of the period.

The domestic life of a burges of the period is very fully illustrated by many of the entries in the Compt Buik. To some of the more remarkable notices reference may here be made. The weapons which a merchant carried on his person or kept in his household are repeatedly referred to. Thus, under date 7th December 1596, the entry appears:—'Adame Thayn, cautioner for David Abircromby to delyver me my gilt raper [rapier] or els xx merkis' (p. 88). Among a number of miscellaneous jottings there is another allusion to this weapon, 'Adame Thayn xx^s or thairby my suird and David Abercrumby' (p. 174). It seems from earlier entries (pp. 26, 28), that Abercrumby had borrowed the gilt raper, and Thayn had become cautioner for its return. The fire-arms and furnishings mentioned are 'my gryt hakbut with the scrow,' 'my uther snap hakbut with my bandeler,' and 'my horn flass and the scrow with a key' (p. 190). The bandelier is also referred to under date 1612, besides 'tua velvit flasses coverit with Iron,' and a 'puder horn' (p. 190). A 'red puder horn flass worth xij^s' was borrowed in 1626 (p. 142). In 1592 Alexander Rychardstone borrowed 'xx lib. and the wark of the gun' (p. 28). Wedderburne seems to have trafficked in firearms, as on 8th July 1594, he records the lending of a pistolat which was bought and paid by instalments (p. 43); on 3rd October 1597 he sends 'ane pair of pistollattis cost me xij lib.' to be sold in England (p. 87), and on 22nd March 1608, he sent four pistolattis to Spain with other merchandise to be sold there. A curious entry on 9th September 1594 shows how Wedderburne paid for a pair of pistolattis, giving first 'arrels' when the order was given to the smith, and paying the account by instalments :—

'Giffin Patrik Ramsay smyth a crown of the sone in arrels of a pair pistolattis. Item xx^s. Item a crown of the sone agane. Item 3 lib. of sylver. Item gev William his man at Mr. Alexanderis yet ane crown of the sone. Item ane half merk of small sylver. Item xl^s in the buith to him selfe (p. 43).'

Again, he notes, 'I am restand awine to David Wedderburn the sowme off tenne pundis money for his pistolat' (p. 183). On page 26 allusions are made to his rapier, his crossbow, sword, gun, musket, and pistolat. The reader must carefully distinguish between the pistolat, a firearm, and the pistolat or pistole, a Spanish coin (p. 96).

The furniture and household ware were of a miscellaneous kind. There are references to a 'taffil of firn' (a table of fir), 'ane aikin fret pres with schottlles of aik,' an 'aikin kist,' an 'aikin chair,' and an 'aik cradell.' Regarding the last-named article, a curious circumstance is worth noting. On 4th March 1601, the entry appears, 'Lent James Symstone my cradell of aik' (p. 53). If this be the James Symstone who married David's daughter Effie, on 11th November 1610, then she cannot have been his first wife. The cradle was required for the last time in David's own household when his youngest son, Henry, was born in 1610, and it is curious to find in an undated entry the memorandum, 'Lent my cradill of aik to Effie my dochter' (p. 54). This would probably be in 1611, so that the family heirloom had passed at once from the father's house to receive his grandchild. The following note is remarkable as referring to another heirloom :

'Lent Johne Wedderburn sone to Robert Wedderburn a lite camp bed of aik with my father and motheris armes thairon with vj peces of a bodom this for a moneth or thairby.'

There are several allusions to 'woffin beds,' some of these having been exported. Johne Nes receives 3^s. for 'a stul.' Twice allusion is made to 'a mortar and a pestell'; and chandeliers are mentioned. Two references are made to bird-cages, one being described as 'a caidge of weir for a laverock,' and the other as a 'gryte caidge.' 'Twa Dutsche spunes' were received in pledge for the payment of lint bought from David Wedderburne (p. 82), and silver spoons are also referred to in another entry. A cup with cover is mentioned (p. 111), and money was advanced to a goldsmith on the pledge of 'a fit of a syluer coup.' Among the articles of personal adornment are a bracelet, a ring with a stone, and a sapphire ring. Articles for house decoration are a 'gilt brod with a picture,' a seal's skin coffer, a young wolf's skin, and the head and brush of a fox (tod). It is worth noting that in 1619 allusion is made to 'ane pair of sylver spectacles.' Numerous references are made to articles of clothing—schankis (stockings) wylicottis, hats, and schone. On one occasion cloth is sent to Rouen to be dyed 'fyn scarlit to be my lassis weylecottiz.' Violet powder was brought from Rochelle; murmblade (marmalade) from Spain; comfits, sugar candy, Canary sugar, syrup, aniseed oil and toffie from Flanders, France and Spain; vinegar from Bordeaux; onions (ungeoinis, wyngounis, wynzeounis) and apples from Flanders; 'oly-doly' (olive oil) and wine from France and Spain; timber from Norway; iron from Sweden, and 'tubacoo' from the West Indies by way of France. Special references to all these articles cannot be made here. There are few pages in the book which do not afford some unexpected revelations of the home-life, the export and import trade, and the commercial methods of the period.

Attention may be directed to pp. 80-81 on which the transactions in the sale of lint on 5th and 13th September 1597 are recorded. Wedderburne begins by stating the quantity of lint to be disposed of = liij stane in xxvj and a half bounds or bales. The lint had been taken to the public Weigh-house, beside the Tolbooth, and was weighed in the presence of Alexander Annand, Master of the Weigh-house, who is noted as a witness of the sale. On 13th September Annand was absent, and his wife and women-servants became witnesses of the transaction. The rate charged per stone for the lint varied according to the time when the money was to be paid. When payments to account were made, a pledge was given for the balance, sometimes a piece of money, sometimes a ring.

Another interesting custom disclosed by the Compt Buik relates to the conducting of foreign trade. The skipper of a ship was also the supercargo. Goods were delivered to him and put on board the vessel in Dundee harbour, and he was instructed to sell these articles in the best market, as profitably as he would do were they his own, and to purchase other commodities which he might either sell at another port of call or bring to Dundee. Sometimes a Dundee merchant sailed with the ship and took commissions to sell goods for other merchants; but as a rule the skipper, who was generally part-owner of the vessel, took full charge of the miscellaneous cargo, and accounted to the various merchants on his return. It was often Wedderburne's habit to write out the contract between himself and a skipper in full in the Compt Buik, which entry was signed by the skipper. An example of this method will be found on p. 55, where John Thornton, skipper, acknowledged the receipt of 21 lib. Scots, for which he undertook to deliver six barrels of Lochbroom herring. A still more curious commission was that given to Peter Man on 27th February 1591 (p. 140). Man received one last herring, which he was to sell in whatever port he came to where the sale would be profitable. The money thus obtained was to be lent by him on security, so that it might be repaid three weeks after his home-coming. But if he did not sell the herring in England, but had to take his cargo to France, and would thus not be able to lend the proceeds, he was to bring to Dundee the value of the herring in Portuguese milreis of gold, full weight. On the other hand, if he sold only one portion in England and another in Rouen, and should thus be unable to lend the money, he was to return by England, and expend the sum on 'lint hats with velvet about the brows,' on two stiks (Low Dutch, Stijk = a piece) of coloured fustian, and the remainder on 'steinings'—probably dye-stuffs, and either to bring these home in his ship, or send them overland. Thus it is apparent that Peter Man, skipper, was to act as commercial agent for the Dundee merchant.

A more complicated transaction is recorded on pp. 78-79. Alexander Renkyne, skipper, was intrusted with 18 score and 10 ells of bleached linen, made up in 20 pieces and packed in 18 paper-covered parcels. These he was to sell 'quhair he hapnit to mak mercat,' and with the proceeds he was to purchase gros-grain silk if it could be had for 10 franks or less, and send it to Dundee in the first homeward-bound ship sailing direct to the port. But if he could not effect this purchase, he was to lend the money 'for a gude frank, the best may be gottin.' Peter Imrie, uncle by marriage of David Wedderburne, was to sail for France in Renkyne's ship, and he was intrusted with several barrels of powder which he was to sell for Wedderburne at Rouen or Bordeaux, and to purchase 'sic profitable waring as he dois to himself' and send the goods home direct to Dundee. Imrie was also requested to give his 'good counsell and attendance on Alexander Renkyne' when that merchant-skipper was selling the linen sent in the same ship. Two other curious entries of a later date appear on the same page (79). In May 1610 and in August of that year, two Dundee tailors, Alexander Brown, and Patrik Cok, journeyed to London, and took with them quantities of 'bred blew clayth.' Brown was to have this cloth dyed violet, and he had also nineteen spindles of linen yarn which he was to sell, and to pay the cost of dyeing with part of the proceeds. Cok was to sell the cloth which he took with him and to purchase 'ryellis gif thay be gude chaip, utherways to be lent as he thinkis best.'

The record of another strange commission appears on p.101. It is in form of a receipt, written by Wedderburne and signed by James Kineris, for one hundred marks in cash. Kineris was about to sail for Norway, and he was there to purchase 'ane pert' or share of a ship with her out red (rigging and fittings). In case he did not make a bargain, Kineris was to expend the money in merchandise (probably timber) as carefully and wisely as if the money were his own. Entries such as this show the method of commerce pursued by Scottish merchants of the sixteenth century.

The Compt Buik not only shows how Wedderburne conducted his foreign trade, it also reveals how his agricultural bargains were made. He was tenant of land on the Dudhope estate, which he held from the Constable of Dundee. The bargains which he made with Thomas Neilson and others for manure (muk) are detailed on pp. 64, 73, and the sale of his barley, corn, and pease was frequently recorded throughout the volume. The most interesting entry, however, will be found on p. 170. It gives particulars as to the sale of growing crops on 27th July 1612. The document is drawn up in notarial form. Three witnesses were present in David Robertson's booth when David Robertson and George Brown, two Dundee maltmen, purchased the crop (of barley, probably) of seven acres, for 14 score merks less 5 merks, to be paid at Candlemas. The seller was to be free of warrandice and teind unless he obtained the teind on his two acres of pease, in which case the buyers were to be free of teind on the seven acres. Wedderburne was bound to furnish '8 heukis' (reapers) for two days in harvest. To make the bargain good, he received 8^d in arrears, which he gave 'to the puir criple man Margaret Fyfis gudeman in presens of George Brown.' The only agricultural implement besides the heuk or sickle which is mentioned in the volume is a 'pluf' (plough), which was borrowed by Patrick Gray, brother of the laird of Balgernoche (Baledgarno). As the Grays were among the wealthiest farmers in the Carse of Gowrie, nearly related to the Barons of Gray, it is curious to find one of them borrowing so necessary an implement from a Dundee merchant. From an entry on p. 112 it appears that Wedderburne exported wheat to Spain.

Much information not hitherto available may be found in the Compt Buik regarding the two subjects, the currency, and weights and measures. It is startling to find what a miscellaneous assortment of native and foreign coins a Scottish merchant required in those days to transact his business. On 24th May 1600, David Wedderburne set forth on a voyage to Queinsbrig (Quedlinburg, in Holland), and on p. 122 he recorded the money he took with him. Amongst the coins mentioned are crowns of the sun, pistolatts, cross ducats, double ducats, the King's 40-shilling pieces, angel nobles, saffrons, 8-merk pieces, gold 4-merk pieces, sitting-lyon pieces, auld dollars, ryells, English silver, Scottish 10-shilling pieces, silver merk pieces, Scottish 30-shilling pieces, and 'a pece of sylver of Kyng Erik of Suadyn's gold.' It is noteworthy that he took also with him '2 ringis of gold, brokin, weyis 4 crounis,' which he evidently intended to use as currency. This seems a strange survival of the early British ring-money current in remote times. On a previous occasion, 26th May 1596, when Wedderburne visited Queinsbrig (p. 46) he took a chain weighing fourteen crowns as currency, besides crowns, half-crowns, pistolatts, double pistolatts, rose-nobles, half dollars, half ryells (reals) and 'ryellis of xl sousis Spanes.' Reference has already been made to the purchase of Portuguese 'milreis,' showing that it was not unusual for Scottish merchants to bring foreign coins to this country for purposes of exchange. The subject of weights and measures is too extensive to be dealt with here. Suffice it to say that there are both liquid and solid measures noted in the Compt Buik and in the Shipping Lists of Dundee which are rarely found in any other published book of the period. Wine was measured by the barrell, the puncheon, the pype, and the tun. Occasionally the term 'pece' is used as denominating a wine-measure, but this seems not to have been a definite term, as on p. 284 it is explained 'all the twnes of land vine foirsaid being comptit at 4 pece the twyn.' Vinegar was measured by the knag and terce; apples and onions by the barrell; iron and steel by the ship-pund, spruis stane, barrell, kilderkin, and last; lint and hemp by the 'stik' (bundle), stone, and last; skins by the dozen and thousand; salt by the boll, and 'gryt salt' (rock salt) by the mett, sometimes by the 'mett of Sanct Mertenis,' apparently a French measure; deals, roof-spars, garrones, steyngis (short batons), knapholt (small timber) boards, and planks, by the hundred and thousand pieces; 'burnewood' by the fathom; madder by the ball or pock; void (woad) by the pock; tar by the barrell, dried fish by the thousand; herring by the last; soap by the barrell; beer by the 'tree' and barrell; 'aiss' (pearl-ash) by the barrell; ropes and rigging by the fathom; alum by the fall and tun; and lead and pewter by the centren or sentinar. These are only a few of the various measures; and it would clear up much of the obscurity that hangs over this subject were the entries in this volume codified to show the relative values of measures in daily use.

David Wedderburne's position as a notary. gave him the opportunity of making transcripts of charters and sasines in his father's protocol books, and he also made searches among legal documents for some of his clients. Instead of taking fees for this kind of work, he occasionally made very quaint bargains with those concerned. The following is a curious instance:—

'x May 1610. James Myln in Elgin hes in presens of James Fethie Alexander Myln and William Davidsone younger, promesit me yeirly induring his lyfytyme a quart of Aquavetie for the favour and cowrtesie he hes receavit fra me anent the Aprobatione of his auld infestmentis' (p. 102).

On another occasion Wedderburne made a bargain with a client by which his wife was to profit. The entry (p. 102) is worth quoting, as showing the very homely way in which business was conducted:

'xij May 1610. William Guthrie merchand is restand awand me 3 terms dewetie. Item in presens of the clerk Mr. Johne Ramsay, Master James Myln Alexander Myln Mr Johne Dynmour he offerit me xx lib. for my wyffis remembrance and for subscribing of the confirmation of his wryttis and I haif referrit to his discretione to remember hir with ane stik of grew-gren silk and a bowl of velvit pesmentis as his promes and his wyffis wes at his hame cuming fra Flanderis this present voage in presens of the saidis persones. He only gratefeit my wyf with 30 lib.'

On the same page another memorandum shows that Alexander Bower received an extract of infestment and renunciation from Wedderburne, and promised before witnesses that on his return from Queensbrig, he would give David's wife 'a fyn lynt quheill worth 3 lib.' Another time (p. 46) John Duncan, gardener, received on 10th May 1596, the documents relating to 'Andro Davidsonis Volt,' and for this service he was to pay twenty shillings and supply 'twa furris hard keill' (the blue pipe-clay used by housewives in Forfarshire) to David's wife 'quhen winter cumis.' A curious instance of converting an annual feu-duty into a payment in kind is recorded on p. 45. Ninian Coppin and his wife, Margaret Jak, occupied a house from which an annual duty of 4 lib. was due to David Wedderburne. On 9th April 1596 the bargain was made that Coppin should deliver to Wedderburne, every time he completed a voyage, a knag of vinegar and a can of olive oil (oyle doly), for which Wedderburne renounced his claim to the feu. On 4th May 1597 (p. 166), reference is made to Coppin's 'ruber of vinacre and oyldoly' and to the '2 fardis keill' from John Duncan, showing that the bargains were carried out.

There are comparatively few entries in the Compt Buik relating to the wages of servants. The custom of giving 'arrels' on striking a bargain has already been referred to; but it seems also to have been the custom to give 'bounties' to valued servants, over and above their wages. Thus on p. 182 it is noted that on 15th December 1589, Waltir Mores received 'for the first quarteris payment of the secound yeir xxxiijs^s iiij^d'. This quarter to ryn a quarter of a yeir or fourteene dayis thre oukis efter Youle nixtocum and he hes receauit a pair of brekis in bountay.' A mysterious reference is made on p. 153 to 44^s paid to Marjory Barry for 'bairnis drink,' which may either mean payment for nursing, or to make provision for 'the groanin' maut' or drink provided for visitors after the birth of a child.

Attention may be called to several very interesting entries in the Compt Buik relating to the payment by David Wedderburne of the 'tochers' or marriage portions of his daughters. David's eldest daughter, Helen, was married on 21st May 1610, to her first husband, George Auchinlek. Her tocher was one thousand merks, and it was paid in instalments. The record of the last payment (p. 129) is thus detailed :—

'Penult July, 1612. Delyverit George Auchinlek fiftie merkis in pairt payment of j^o lib. quhilk rest awin him of his tocher gude Quhilk hundreth lib. with 8^o merkis awin me on James Haliburtonis obligatione and his cautioneris complettis George Auchinlekis tocher gude. Item gef George xl merkis I gat fra Andro Mores of my Wyn syluer Item gef George 36 lib I gat fra Robert Kyd of his burgeschip Item gef his wyf 4 lib quhilk scho bocht beif with Quhilk altogidder is compleit payment of ane hundredth lib. Quhilk altogidder is ane thousand merkis for his tocher gude.'

Wedderburne's second daughter, Eufame, was married to James Symson on 11th November 1610. Her tocher was also one thousand merks, and it was completely paid by instalments on 9th June 1612. The details of payments will be found on pp. 129, 130, and need not here be repeated. Attention may also be directed to p. 178, where the widow of a slater is empowered by the Town Council to carry on her late husband's trade; the note on p. 85 declaring that David's daughter Eufame had bought the plaid of her deceased sister Janet for eleven lib; and to the proposed inscription for the family pew in the church, on p. 184. The footnotes, in which many of the persons named are identified, may be useful to genealogists.

THE SHIPPING LISTS OF DUNDEE. 1580-1618

The earliest volume of Shipping Lists of Dundee which has been preserved was begun on 21st March 1612 and ended on 26th August 1681. A very complete search in the Municipal Charter-room has failed to disclose any regularly kept volume previous to that date. This search, however, brought to light a small book which had apparently been used as a scroll register of entries from 22nd November 1580 till 17th November 1589. No regular record exists of the entries between the latter date and 21st March 1612; but the memoranda in this scroll are sufficient to show the imports during the nine years which are included. It was not deemed necessary to transcribe the entries later than 23rd September 1618, as the details given are sufficient to show the state of the import trade during the period covered by the Compt Buik. It would certainly have been interesting to have had the imports for 1602, so that they might be compared with those of the years immediately following the Union of the Crowns; but no record of these has been found. A careful study of the Shipping Lists will show the foreign countries with which Scotland traded, the places from which certain goods were brought, the kind of goods imported, the quantities declared officially, and the capacities of the ships that brought cargoes from Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Flanders, France, and Spain. No similar record of the Scottish trade of the period has hitherto been published.

The scroll volume is itself an interesting document, apart from the lists it contains. The book consists of fifty-four folios, each page measuring 10 inches by $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches. It has originally been used by Alexander Wedderburne, town-clerk of Dundee (brother of the author of the Compt Buik) as a Latin exercise-book, and the first four pages have carefully written descriptions, in dictionary form, of the Roman deities. The front page has an obliterated and imperfect inscription, Liber Alexandri Wedderb . . . burgess Deidonam. There are several Latin sentences scrawled over this page, such as Vivit post funera virtus; Vive vitam vitantem viam vitrorum; and also several incoherent words in Greek character. The second page is headed Nomina et officia Romanorum, and describes briefly the official duties under the heads, Rex, Senatus, Consilium, Dictator, Imperator, Tribunum, Prefectus, Episcopus, Censores. On the blank portion of this page the following sentences have been scrawled at a later date:—‘Sir Alexander Wedderburne, finis coronat opus; Nemo sine Crimina vivit.’ Page 3 continues the list of Roman officers thus:—‘Quæstores, Interreges, Ediles.’ The fourth page has the heading ‘Nomina deorū quos romani Colverint,’ and the persons described are Saturnus, Jupiter, Sol, Bacchus, Mercurius, Mars, Vulcanus, Venus, and Diana. The list is thus continued on the fifth page:—Neptunus, Pluto, Juno, Pallas, Naiades, Driades, Amadriades, Pereaes, Dodona, Lucina, Astrea, Themis, Senecta, Juventor. The intention has been to extend the list over the sixth page, but only these entries have been made: 'Lachesis dea vita; Atropos dea mortes; Clotho dea creationis; Medusa.' It will be seen from these headings that the Latin is of the school-boy kind; and it is very likely that the book was first used by Alexander Wedderburne when he was attending the Dundee Grammar School.

The book was begun as a record of Shipping on folio 5 and the entries are consecutive for twelve folios. The succeeding order is as follows:—3 fol. blank; 7 fol. consecutive; this portion after fol. 4 being merely memoranda with few dates; 14 fol. blank; one page under date 17 November 1589; rest of book blank. The fifth fol. has the heading 'Ane Buik conteanand the Intressis of Schippis dischairgeand at ze port of Dundie begynning in ye moneth of Nouember in Anno Dⁿⁱ 1580.' The entries begin on p. 195 of the present volume.

The first regular register of ships, as already explained, begins on 21st March 1612 and extends to 26th August 1681. The title-page describes the volume as 'The Buik of ye entresis of Schippis arryvand at ye port and Heavin of Dundie Begun in ye moneth of March Anno Dⁿⁱ 1612.' On this page there are various scrawled sentences, such as:—'Sir Alexander Wedderburne Clerk of Dundee his book of shippis entries, 1651.' The well-known epitaph on Mary, Queen of Scots, which is written in the Compt Buik (p. 188) is here begun but left incomplete, though a quaint Scots translation is given of the first four lines. It may be explained that the Latin both here and in the Compt Buik is very dubious, but it has been carefully transliterated:

EPITAPHIUM MARIA REGINA SCOTORUM

Regibus orta auxj Reges Reginaque vixj
Nupta tribus, tribus orba viris, Tria Regna reliquj
Gallus opes, Scotus cunas, habet Anglia sepulchrum.

IDEM SCOTICAE

I came of Kings, I Kingis maryet, my stait a croun did crave, Thrice weddit, and als wedow thryis, Three kingdomes here I leave, France hes my welth, Scotland my birth, and England hes my grave.

The method adopted for assessing the dues upon ships entering the harbour of Dundee is clearly shown by the Shipping Lists. The skipper or the clerk of the ship had to appear before some of the bailies and (occasionally) the Dean of Guild, and had to render a detailed account of his cargo, giving the names of the merchants to whom the goods belonged. As the first volume was only the scroll, these details were not all entered, the note being made that the Dean of Guild, who collected the dues, had the 'partikler tiket' or list of merchants. On one occasion it is noted that the master of the ship had 'made his bodelie aith' that he had rendered a true and full account of the cargo. The Lists show where the goods were brought from, and this is a point of very considerable interest. Norway supplies nearly all the timber, though there are several ship-loads of trees and bark from England. The Norwegian timber consisted of trees measuring from nine to twelve ells, pieces of oak, 'crukit timmer' used for building the prows of ships, 'steingis' or batons, roof-spars, knapholt, and burnwood. Salt was brought from Rochelle and St. Martins in France. Woad (waid, vayd) and other dye-stuffs came from Dieppe and Bordeaux. Iron of two kinds, 'oismont' and 'gaid' was imported from Stockholm; and 'dry-ware geir' (probably iron pots and similar hardware) came from Flanders. The most notable import was wine, which was brought in great quantities from France and Spain—such quantities, indeed, as show that Dundee must have been one of the principal ports for distributing wine throughout Scotland. The cargoes from France were sometimes very miscellaneous, including wine of two kinds, described as 'wyne' and 'land wyne,' paper, passementerie, hats, belts, playing-cards, toys for children, pens, and ink-horns. Plum-damas, Dutch beer, English 'drinking beir' (to distinguish it from barley), ale, figs, onions, apples, corn, rye, pease, pitch, vinegar, 'kists of glass' and 'cradills of glass,' were among the imports.

A very interesting subject is opened up by examining the names of the various vessels that either belonged to the port of Dundee or entered there from foreign ports with special cargoes. In the Preface to Andrew Halyburton's Ledger, Professor Cosmo Innes alludes to the names of ships entered in some of the customars' reports for 1617-22, and it is curious to find quite a number of the strange names prevailing in other ports than Dundee. It will be noted that several of the ships mentioned by him are included in the Dundee Shipping Lists. By referring to the index of the present volume, a full list of the names of ships will be found. Among the odd names the following may be mentioned:—Bark Allane, Blessing of God, Claynge Coist, Klynkebellis, Dragon, Falcon, Fleing Hart, Fortoun, Gift of God (a translation of Dei Donum the mythical origin of the name Dundee), Godsend, Grace of God, Hope for Grace, Mary Galland (sometimes Merrie Gallant), Nychtingall, Onlie, Hope Weill, Preittie Jhane, Reid Lyone, Seahors, Sancto Willo, Thrie Kyngis, and Unikorn. It may be mentioned that several of the names are found alike in 1580 and in 1680; whether the vessels were the same or not it would be difficult to say. In the Compt Buik several entries appear which show that ships were owned in half, quarter, eighth, and sixteenth parts, and from the prices of shares quoted, it is sometimes possible to estimate the total cost of a crear or vessel. The smaller ships were kept for coasting trade, some of them bringing dried fish and butter from Orkney, and herring from the Hebrides. It is also shown in the Compt Buik that David Wedderburne exported salmon from the Tay. Indeed, the study of this volume will throw a flood of light upon the export and import trade of Scotland during the fifty years covered by the entries.

There is another point of considerable importance that might have been explained fully in this Introduction, had space permitted; viz., the secularisation of ecclesiastical property. The Scrymgeoures of Dudhope had been munificent benefactors of the Church in pre-Reformation times, and Sir James Scrymgeoure managed to maintain his hold upon some of the revenues which had been gifted by his ancestors. Annual rents had been granted from various tenements in Dundee for the support of chaplains at some of the altars in the Church of St. Mary. David Wedderburne was factor for the chaplainry of St. James Minor (Littil St. James), and his accounts of intromissions with the revenue are detailed explicitly. In 1646—fourteen years after Wedderburne's death—James Scrymgeoure, second Viscount Dudhope, disposed of all the chaplainries which he held to the Town Council; and dues are still levied by the Town Chamberlain from various properties in Dundee that were charged with annual rents for the support of the Church. It would be impossible here to treat this matter exhaustively; but the Compt Buik furnishes much material bearing directly upon this subject. This Introduction is merely intended to indicate briefly how the Compt Buik and the Shipping Lists may be utilised by students of social and commercial life in Scotland in the sixteenth century.

THE WEDDERBURN FAMILY

IN common with many other old Scotch families, that of Wedderburn finds the earliest recorded mention of its name in the famous Ragman Roll, or instrument of homage, by which, in 1296, the great nobles and lesser barons of Scotland swore fealty to Edward I. of England. Among the latter was Walter de Wedderburn, whose seal, bearing his name and a seven-rayed star, is still attached to the ancient document. Beyond this, nothing is known of him, but it is clear that the Wedderburns were an important border family in the fourteenth and earlier part of the fifteenth centuries. The 'vill' or township, manor-place, or tower of Wedderburn is constantly mentioned in the documents of the time, and there are occasional, though infrequent, references to persons of the name. John de Wedderburn is one of those sitting on an inquisition in regard to the 'vill' of Lumsden in 1364, and attaches to the record (still extant) the seal of his arms, 'a chevron engrailed between three roses or cinquefoils pierced.'¹ William de Wedderburn is often named from 1375 on. Among the Douglas Charters² is a resignation (in 1375) by Robert Ayr to Margaret Stewart, Countess of Mar and Angus, of the lands of Fastforland, co. Berwick, the attestation clause of which recites that 'since the seal of the grantee is less well known, he has got leave to attach to the resignation that of a nobleman, William of Wedirburn.' Unfortunately the seal is gone from the document, and its bearings, therefore, are not known. Other mentions of William of Wedderburn are to be found in the Exchequer Rolls of Scotland, the Great Seal Register of Scotland, etc. Perhaps, having regard to the period they cover, the earlier and later entries refer to different individuals of the name. William of Wedderburn is named as making a payment to the customars of Edinburgh in 1407-8 (Exch. Rolls, iv. 42); as a witness, in 1424 (Great Seal Reg., 1424-1513, § 195); and (1426) as the grantee of lands in the vill of Blacater, 1426 (ib. § 79). So again William of Wedderburn, 'scutifer,' is mentioned in 1426-34 as the tutor of John Swinton of that Ilk (The Swintons of that Ilk: Edin., 1884, passim), while among the papal dispensations at the Vatican is one, dated 1431, for the marriage of William of Widderburn (sic) with Catharine de Stane.¹ In 1452 also William of Wethirburn (sic) witnesses a grant to Patrick Dunbar of lands in the county of Berwick (Great Seal Reg., 1424-1513, § 547).

From this Berwickshire family, tradition has it, the Forfarshire house of the name branched off. The connection of the one with the other is, at present, almost entirely traditional. According to Douglas's Baronage of Scotland, the lands of Wedderburn devolved on an heiress who married a Home, and so founded the family of Homes of Wedderburn, who have ever since owned the lands of that name. Some have asserted that this heiress was one Alice, wife of Sir David Home, who obtained royal charters of the lands of Wedderburn in favour of himself and his wife, dated 19th April 1430 and 16th May 1450. This can hardly be correct, as the Homes of Wedderburn were established a century earlier than these grants. Sir David Home of Wedderburn is named in a document dated 16th September 1341, extant among the Coldingham Charters (Raine's North Durham, App. p. 99, No. DLXV). Tradition apart, the evidence of connection between the Wedderburns in Berwickshire and Forfarshire consists of the identity of a somewhat uncommon name, and of the above-named arms of John of Wedderburn (1364) with those which members of the Forfarshire family are found bearing a century later,¹ and on the fact, indicative of a change of county, that while there is no record of any such family of importance in the county of Berwick after 1450, there is no doubt that soon after that date there was already established in Forfarshire, and chiefly at Dundee, a numerous and active family of the name. The rise of the family in Dundee immediately follows the decline of the Berwickshire house, and though tradition is in error in suggesting that the lands of Wedderburn first passed to the Homes by a marriage in 1430-50, it may be correct in asserting that the male representative of the Wedderburns of the Border travelled north and founded the family in Dundee.

The origin of the Dundee family, like the decline of that in the county of Berwick, cannot be clearly traced. The one rises, as the other dwindles down, indistinctly. No common ancestor can be found for the Dundee house. Douglas in his Baronage provides one in the person of 'James Wedderburn, who, in the reign of James III., was designed merchant-burgess of Dundee,' and though he adds, 'as will be shown hereafter,' he does not show it. James III. reigned from 1460 to 1488, and there seems to be no document as early as the latter date, naming a James Wedderburn, burgess of Dundee. The earliest document naming any one of the name in the county of Forfar is a retour of an inquest, held at Kirriemuir, 16th April 1464, finding Marjorie de Strazawquhyn heir to her sister, Elizabeth, in the lands of Kingennie. On this inquest is David Wedderburn, whose seal, bearing a chevron between three cinquefoils, is attached to the document. Other early mentions of a David Wedderburn are to be found, 1476-95, in the Great Seal Register. He is named as witnessing two documents at Abernethy, one in 1476, the other in 1480-81, as well as four grants, made at Dundee in 1485-90-95.¹ Similarly, the two earliest references to the name in the charter-room at Dundee are both to a David Wedderburn. Of these, one is in the Book of the Church (printed as an appendix in Maxwell's History of Old Dundee, 1884), and names a David Wedderburn as on the council of the burgh, while the other is a resignation, 8th July 1497, of a S. Murraygate land, made by one William Newman in favour of Christian Anderson, relict and executrix of the late David Wedderburn.² This David, however, cannot be the common ancestor of the Wedderburns in Dundee. Later documents, from 1500 on, make it clear that he had contemporaries of his name, possibly his brothers, or at least his more or less near cousins. Douglas's endeavour to trace all the Wedderburns of whom he had note to one common ancestor has been fruitful of error, and led him, and others after him, to assign to other members of the family an altogether erroneous place.

The fact is that from about 1450 there were flourishing in Dundee some four different branches of the name, all, without doubt, closely related to each other, but whether descended of a common father, grandfather, or still more remote progenitor, it is impossible to say.

These four branches may be described as those of—

- I. James Wedderburn and Janet Barry, and their descendants at Leith and in Moravia.
- II. Walter Wedderburn, in the Welgait of Dundee, and his descendants at Cupar-Fife, and at Kilmarnock, co. Ayr.

² Dundee Charters, etc., Box XIV. ix, 7.

- III. David Wedderburn, in the Murraygait of Dundee and his descendants, proprietors of Craigie; and lastly,
IV. Robert Wedderburn, who married Janet, daughter of David Froster of Methven, and their descendants, including a son, Robert Wedderburn, who married Janet Kyd, and was the progenitor of the Wedderburns of Kingennie, Easter Powrie and that Ilk, Blackness, Balindean, and Gosford.

As it is to the last of these four branches that David Wedderburn, the author of the Compt Buik, belongs, brief accounts of the other three may be sufficient.

I. James Wedderburn, who married Janet Barry, may have been born about 1450. He died 1513-14, and his son, James, was retoured heir to him 28th September 1521. He left five sons: James, John, and Robert, the authors of the Gude and Godlie Ballates, Henry, and Gilbert; and (probably more than) one daughter, Elizabeth, who is named in 1527 as the relict of Robert Ferquhar. The three elder sons were among the earliest Scottish Reformers. James attacked the errors of the time by writing satirical plays, none of which, however, have come down to us, while John and Robert produced a famous work, the Gude and Godlie Ballates,¹ long known as the Dundee Psalms, which has survived, and holds a distinct and interesting place in the history of Scottish literature and the Scottish Church. Their zeal led them into difficulties, of which Calderwood (Hist. of the Church, i. 142) gives an account. James and John were declared heretics, and had to leave Scotland. James went to Dieppe, where he traded as a merchant, while John travelled in Germany, and, after returning home, in 1542, fled to England in 1546, and there died in 1556. 'Pulsus in exilium an. 1546. Exul in Anglia moritur 1556,' is the heading of a Latin poem upon him by John Johnston, professor at St. Andrews, 1593-

1611. Robert, the third brother, was more fortunate, for, after studying in Paris, he came home and succeeded his maternal uncle, John Barry, as Vicar of Dundee. He was, there is little doubt, the author of 'Vedderburn's Complaynt of Scotland' (as it is termed in the Harleian Catalogue), although efforts have been made to claim it for Sir James Inglis or Sir David Lindsay of the Mount.¹ He died between October 1554 and November 1560, and though, of course, as a churchman, he was unmarried, he left two sons, David and Robert, for whom he obtained letters of legitimation under the Great Seal, dated 13th January 1552-53. Their mother was Isobell Lovell, who afterwards married David Cant, of Dundee. The priority of these two sons is not quite certain, but is of no moment, since it is clear that David died, unmarried, before 28th December 1585, when his brother, Robert, is named as his heir. Robert was long a merchant in Dundee. He was admitted a burghess, 14th December 1580, and lived on the south side of the Flukergait. Robert Wedderburn, merchant, as he is constantly called to distinguish him from his namesake, the notary (post, p. lxxv), married Euphame, daughter of John Coustoun, of Dundee, and relict of Robert Scott. Both he and his wife are named in the Compt Buik. She died in the autumn of 1612, while he survived her some years. By her he had two sons, David and John, both mentioned in the Compt Buik, and a daughter, Elizabeth, who was thrice married—(1) to Robert Murray, one of his Majesty's Guard; (2) to Thomas Moncur of Seggieden; and (3) at Dundee, 27th Feb. 1647, to James Lovell of Kinneuchie. She erected a monument in the Howff of Dundee to her first husband, on which she describes herself as 'ex antiqua Wedderburnorum oriunda' (Monteith's Theater of Mortality). Of her brothers, David, who seems to have settled at Burntisland, where he became a burghess, married Alison Watson, and died in 1627, leaving two sons, Andrew (died 1639) and Alexander (died 1628), both of them unmarried. Their uncle John must also have died without descendants, as on 31st Dec. 1642 their aunt Elizabeth Wedderburn was retoured heir to her brother, David.

In addition to these three elder sons, of whom an account has thus been given, James Wedderburn and Janet Barry had two other sons, Henry and Gilbert, of whom less is known. Henry married Matilda Carncross, and had issue (besides three sons who died young) two daughters, Janet (married Thomas Nichol) and Margaret (married Thomas Davidson). His widow married, secondly, Robert Anderson. Gilbert is named several times in the Register of the Privy Seal, as (1538) getting a gift of his goods escheated on his conviction for heresy; as (1543) being at the horn for the slaughter of David Rollok; and again (1544-45) as obtaining a remission for his art and part in the slaughter of George Rollok, and in that of David Rollok 'committed an old feud and forethought felony.' He was a merchant in Leith, and died in 1559, leaving by his wife, Isobell Dykesoun (who married secondly John Brown), three sons, Henry, Thomas, and John. Of these only Thomas seems to have married and had issue, as his daughter, Agnes (married Abakuk Bisset) is named in a decret of 6th July 1609 as Gilbert's 'oy and heir.'¹ The eldest son, Henry, was in the army, and is named as present at the sieges of Dumbarton and Leith.

It remains to give an account of James Wedderburn (eldest son of James Wedderburn and Janet Barry) and his descendants. He had, as we have seen, to fly from Scotland, and lived at Dieppe, where he died, 1550-53. Calderwood says that on his deathbed he admonished his son thus: 'We have been acting our part in the theater, you are to succeed, see that you act your part faithfullie.' He had married Janet, daughter and heiress of David Forrester, in Nevay, and with her had obtained a Great Seal charter, 20th Jan. 1528, to themselves and their son, John, of the lands of Trosco and Tullohill, which they resigned, however, in 1533. The son, John, was retoured heir to his father, 5th Nov. 1553, having no doubt at length found it possible to return home from abroad to Dundee. He is constantly named in the Dundee Records, and was twice married—(1) to Agnes, daughter of James Hoppringill, and (2), in 1569, the year of his death, to Christian, daughter of John Wischart of that Ilk. By his second wife he had no family, but by his first he left two sons, James and John, and two daughters, Christian, who married (1569) Alexander Auchterlounie, and Grisild, who married George Lindsay, of Dundee. Of the sons, James survived his father, and was retoured heir to him in July 1570, but died unmarried before July 1578, when his brother, John, was retoured his heir. John was a shipowner, and is called ‘nauclerus’ or ‘nauta’ in the Dundee Records, and is also mentioned as ‘heretable owner of the free-lands of Abirbothrie.’ He is twice named in the Compt Buik, in 1589 and 1593, and on the second occasion is called ‘John Wedderburn in Kirkstyell.’ He died 1603, having married, about 1582, Margaret Lindsay (of the Achnady family), who predeceased him on 12th Aug. 1599. By her he had three daughters, Agnes who married Gilbert Ramsay, Margaret who married Robert Halyburton, and Helen who died unmarried, besides two sons, both of whom reached distinction. The younger, James (born 1585), was a student at St. Andrews, and afterwards doctor of theology there.¹ He entered the Church, and became a favourite of Archbishop Laud, through whose influence he obtained various preferments in England, and was ultimately (1636) appointed Bishop of Dunblane and Dean of the Chapel Royal of Scotland. He was one of those who drew up the new liturgy, and for this, and 'introducing Popish ceremonies,' was excommunicated by the General Assembly at Glasgow, and had, like his great-grandfather before him, to leave Scotland. He retired to Canterbury, died there in 1639, and was buried in the cathedral, where the inscription on a plain slab over his remains describes him as 'antiquæ probitatis et fidei magnumque ob excellentem doctrinam patriæ suæ ornamentum.'

John Wedderburn, the bishop's elder brother, was eminent in the profession of medicine. He was for some time resident in Padua, where he entertained the traveller Lithgow, who records his kindness. 'In Padua,' he writes, 'I staid three months, learning the Italian tongue, and found there a country gentleman of mine, Doctor John Wedderburne, a learned mathematician, but now (1628) dwelling in Moravia, who taught me well in the language, and in all other respects exceeding friendly to me.' Dr. Wedderburn, who is termed 'protomedicus in regione Moraviæ,' was returned heir to his brother, the bishop, on 23rd Aug. 1641. There is still extant¹ a letter, dated at Brinthe, 29th July 1647, from him to his cousin of Kingennie, whom he addresses as 'primm of our neam.' [From this document it appears that he was twice married, and by each wife had a son. The elder, John James Wedderburn (born 1627), designed 'of Drohanavitis in Moravia,' was retoured heir (2nd Jan. 1654) to his father, his uncle, the bishop, his grandfather, and great-grandfather (Dundee Burgh Records, vol. 30 s.d.). The other son, William, was born in 1639, and was living in 1652. A descendant of one of these brothers was living in 1709, when (6th Jan.) there is a decreet (Mackenzie's Office, vol. 170) on a summons by Sir James Kinloch, 'owner of Wedderburn's aikers or the freland' v. to be void. The late Mr. John Wedderburn of Auchterhouse (died 1839), who published (1824) a brief account of his family, states, in a later ms. enlargement of his book, that the descendants of the doctor were flourishing in Moravia under the name of 'Wetterborn' in 1816, and, if this was the case, the line of James Wedderburn and Janet Barry may still be represented by their Moravian descendants.

II. Of the next branch of the family but few members are mentioned in the Compt Buik. Walter Wedderburn in the Welgait, who died before 1524, had by, it is believed, Janet Nicholson three sons, David, William, and Andrew. Of these, Andrew died, unmarried, before 6th Oct. 1524, when his brother, William, is named as his heir. 'This William was a monk in Aberbrothock, and is called 'dominus' (Sir) in his ecclesiastical capacity. David, the eldest brother, or at any rate the only one who married, carried on the line of the family, and died 1559-60. He married twice—(1) before 1524, Elizabeth Dog, and (2) Elizabeth Strathauchin who survived him, and married, secondly, William Lochmalony. By his second wife he had issue, two sons, Robert and Alexander. Of these the former died s.p., while Alexander (named in the Compt Buik, pp. 47, 59 n, 126), who was born about 1552, settled in Fife, and became a burghess of Cupar, as well as of Dundee. He acquired the estate of Pittormie, county of Fife, and died at Cupar, 15th Feb. 1627, leaving by his wife, Christian Fairny, who survived him, three sons and three daughters—Margaret, married Andrew Bennet, minister of Creich; Beatrix, married John Lessells; and Cristean, married (1) C. Cunningham and (2) David Robertson. She and her first husband are once named in the Compt Buik (p. 165). The sons were—1. John, who got sasine of Pittormie on the death of his father, but of whose subsequent career little is known. 2. William, regent of philosophy in the old college of St. Andrews, and minister first of Pittenweem, and later in Dundee. He married (1611) Magdalen, daughter of Alexander Wedderburn of Kingennie, and left as his heir an only surviving child, Margaret, who married (1) Dr. Andrew Bruce, Principal of St. Leonard's College, St. Andrews, and (2) Alexander Forrester. Her mother married, secondly, George Haliburton, afterwards a lord of session under the title of Lord Fodderance. 3. James, minister of Moonzie county of Fife, who died in May 1616, leaving (besides two daughters, Elizabeth, died unmarried, and Beatrix, married Patrick Crombie) three sons, of whom—(1) James, succeeded his father as minister of Moonzie, and died in 1687, æt. fifty-two, after a career chequered by the ecclesiastical difficulties of his time. He had married, in 1660, Jean Inglis, and by her had (besides three sons, John, Alexander, and William, who all died young) a son, David, who was living in 1699, and possibly some other son or sons also, together with six daughters, Isobel, Helen, Beatrix, Margaret, Mary, and another, all of whom died unmarried, 1666-90. (2) Andrew, minister of Liff, who was imprisoned for 'keeping a conventicle.' He married Elizabeth Daw, and by her had issue several children, but his male line became extinct, and his daughter, Margaret, was retoured heir to him in 1703. She married James Halsone of Anstruther Wester, and died in 1708, leaving issue. The third son of James Wedderburn was (3) Alexander, minister of Forgan, and later of Kilmarnock, county of Ayr, who was the author of various sermons published after his death. He died in 1678, from the effects of a blow dealt him with the butt of a musket by one of the Highland host in the town of Kilmarnock, leaving by Helen, daughter of Thomas Turnbull of Boghill, a numerous family of three sons and five daughters. The sons were Robert, William, and John, but their careers have not been traced.

III. Of yet another branch of the Dundee family there may be added an equally brief record. David Wedderburn in Murraygait, who died before Nov. 1518, left by his wife, Cristian Anderson, two sons, James, who died unmarried, and David.

III. DESCENT FROM DAVID WEDDERBURN IN MURRAYGAIT [1450-1636]

Elizabeth, m. circa 1604, James Kynnaird, of Elsinore, Denmark.

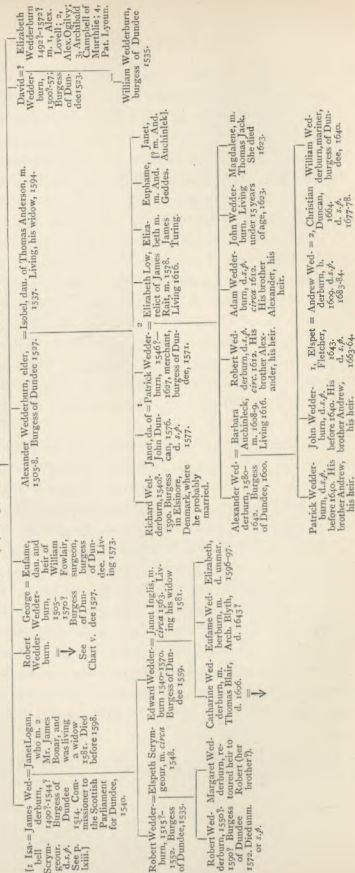

The latter, born probably about 1490, and died 1559-60, is constantly named in the Dundee Records, as of the Murraygait and of Craigie, of which he got a Great Seal charter in 1539. He was twice married—(1) to Cristian Jameson, who died 1532-3; and (2) to Helen Lawson, who survived him, and was living in 1568. It is from this David and Helen Lawson that Douglas, in his Baronage, derives the Kingennie branch of the family, most erroneously, for David had but two sons,¹ both by his second marriage, and their male lines soon became extinct. They were James and William, and are both constantly named in the Dundee Records. William (died 1592-97) married Margaret Rollok, and had issue two sons, James and William, both of whom went to sea, and are little heard of; and a daughter, Magdalen who (married (1) William Myln, (2) — Henderson, and (3) — Mitchell, whose son, John Mitchell, is named, in 1610, as one of the heirs of his grandfather, William Wedderburn, the extinction of whose male line is thus established.

James Wedderburn of Craigie, the eldest son of David Wedderburn and Helen Lawson, was born probably about 1534, and died in Sept. 1575. He married Margaret Dundas, and by her (who survived him, and married, secondly, William Fotheringhame) had two sons and three daughters. The latter were Helen, Elizabeth, and Euphame, of whom little is known. Of the sons, the eldest, John Wedderburn of Craigie, was born about 1556-57, and seems to have been bred to the law. He is 'my eme John Wedderburn wryter' named in the Compt Buik (p. 165). He sold Craigie to Sir John Scharp of Houstoun in 1594. He married, in 1582, Margaret Strathauchin, relict of Robert Jaksone, by whom he had one child, Elizabeth, who married James Kynnaid, and with him went to Denmark, where they were living in 1616. The second son, Walter, ¹ He had also two daughters, Isobel, who married Alexander Kyd, and Magdalen, who married Mark Barrie.

IV.—DESCENT FROM ROBERT WEDDERBURN, GREAT-GRANDFATHER OF THE AUTHOR OF THE COMPT BUIK.

ROBERT WEDDERBURN, bailie of= JANET, dau. to David Froster in Methven.
Dundee. 1460?-1518? | Married before 1500; living a widow in 1531.

married Marjorie Bruce, relict of David Bruce of Lynmyln, but he died s.p. about 1605, when his niece, Elizabeth, was retoured heir to him. The extinction of the male line of James of Craigie is thus clear, and as that of his brother, William, has also been shown, it seems certain that by 1605 the male line of old David Wedderburn of Murraygait had died out.

IV. Three branches of the family in Dundee have now been dealt with, the progenitors of whom were no doubt nearly related. From none of them, however, descended the far more important and enduring branch of the family to which David belonged, and of which an account has now to be given. Robert Wedderburn, possibly a brother of James Wedderburn (who married Janet Barry) and his contemporaries, Walter in Welgait and David in Murraygait, is early mentioned in the Records of Dundee. He married Janet, daughter of Robert Froster in Methven, who is named as his relict in 1530-31. By her he had five sons and certainly one daughter, Elizabeth, who married no less than four times—(1) Alexander Lovell, (2) Archibald Campbell of Murthlie, (3) Alexander Ogilvie, provost of Dundee, and (4) Patrick Lyoun, burgess there. Her brothers were: 1. James, who married (1) Isobell Scrymgeour, and (2) Janet Logan, and left by his second wife two sons, Robert and Edward, of whom the younger married Janet Inglis, by whom he had three daughters,¹ while the elder married Elspeth Scrymgeour, and died 1551-52, leaving two children, Robert and Margaret. Of these the son was living in 1577, but died before 19th Sept. 1580, when his sister is named as his heir. 2. Robert, progenitor of the lines of Kingennie, Blackness, and Gosford (see below and Chart v). 3. Alexander, a merchant in Dundee, who married Isobell Anderson, by whom he had two sons, Richard and Patrick, both named in the Compt Buik, and three daughters, Euphame (married Andrew Geddes), Janet (married Andrew Auchinlek), and Elizabeth (married James Turing). Richard went to Denmark, and became a well-to-do burgess in Elsinore; Patrick remained in Dundee, married Elizabeth Low, and by her had several children, of whom, however, only one son, Alexander (married Barbara Auchinlek), carried on the male line of his family. He in his turn had more than one son, but only one who survived,¹ Andrew, who, though twice married (1, to Elspet Fletcher; 2, to Christian Duncan), died s.p., 1683-84. 4. George, married Euphame Fowlair, but died s.p. about 1673. 5. David, of whom little is known. He seems to have had a son William,² who may have gone north to Aberdeen, and there founded the Aberdeenshire family of the name, of whom David Wedderburn, the grammarian, was a distinguished son.

There yet remains one other son, probably the second, of old Robert Wedderburn and Janet Froster. This was Robert, the grandfather of the author of the Compt Buik, in which he is thrice mentioned (pp. 15, 17, 18). He married Janet Kyd, died 1575-77, leaving issue, three sons, Alexander, Peter, and Robert, and three daughters, Barbara, Elizabeth, and Janet.³ Of the sons, Peter is sometimes named in the Compt Buik (see index). He was a merchant, and died in 1604, having had (by Margaret Kinloch) two sons, Peter and George, and three daughters, Margaret (married George Blak), Barbara (married E. Christone), and Janet (married William Davidstone), of whom only the last is mentioned in the text (pp. 47, 125). Of the sons, Peter is often mentioned (pp. 78, 88, etc.), while George is but once referred to, in an agreement by David and his brother, Alexander, to make a payment to 'Petir Wedderburne's tua sons, efter his deceis' (p. 187). David's other uncle, Robert, was a notary in Dundee, and the author of six large protocol books and twelve small minute-books, now in the Charter-room there. He was born in 1546, and died in 1611. He married, in 1583, Margaret Myln, and had issue, but none who survived him. There is a family register of his, in one of his minute-books at Dundee, in which he records the births of three sons, Robert, James, and (again) Robert, in 1584-5-6, and notes the zodiacal signs under which they were born, and the exact hours of their births. He had also a son, Alexander, living in 1608, and two daughters, Janet and Elizabeth, but none are named as living in his will (Brechin Test. vol. ii.), and his heir was his nephew, Peter. He is often mentioned in the Compt Buik (see Index). At one time he was in Vittemberg, and brought home from thence a prophecy about King James VI. (ante, p. xviii). He seems to have had a taste in such things, as the title-pages of his Dundee protocol-books are written over with mottoes and 'tags' of verses, such as

² William, son and heir of David Wedderburn, was admitted burgess of Dundee in 1535.

'Virschip we suld, obey, and knaw,
Ane God, ane king, ane fayth, ane law.'

His favourite motto, written in all his books, is 'patior ut potiar,' 'through suffering strength.'

The remaining son of Robert Wedderburn and Janet Kyd was Alexander, clerk of Dundee, 1557-85, and father of the writer of the Compt Buik, which contains several references to him and his wife, Janet Myln (see Index). He is the first recorded clerk of Dundee of his name, though there is ground for suggesting that some of the Wedderburns were clerks at a still earlier period. He was certainly the first of a long line of clerks of the name who held the office in unbroken succession for one hundred and sixty years, and whose protocol-books, etc., now line the walls of the Dundee Charter-room. There are six of the books of this Alexander, which once belonged, by disposition, to his son, David (p. 74), but were 'borrowed' from him by the town and never returned: perhaps, in the interest of 'the commonweill,' it was never intended to return them. The matter is duly noticed in the Compt Buik, in a 'memorandum to persew' the provost, and get back the 'sex greyt bukis,' but it would seem that nothing was done. Alexander died in 1585, three years after his wife, and was buried, no doubt, in the Howff of Dundee, under a stone which bore, or was intended to bear, an epitaph, preserved in the Compt Buik of his son. He had a numerous family, all of whom are mentioned in the text—1, Alexander, of Kingennie, progenitor of the lines of Kingennie, Blackness, etc.; 2, David, of the Compt Buik; 3, Robert, a merchant in Dundee, who died 1593, leaving by his second wife (he had three¹) a daughter, Helen, who married Andrew Boyd, and a son, Alexander, who married Janet Newton, and had two daughters, Helen (married, 1, William Gascoyne; 2, Bartholomew Bilsone) and Elizabeth (married John Gardyne). Robert, his first two wives, and both his children, are sometimes named in the Compt Buik.

James (another brother of David) was a prominent merchant in Dundee. He married Cristina Lovell, and died s.p. in 1644. His will is dated 2nd April in that year, and is an elaborate document, containing many legacies to members of his family, and one of 400 merks for a silver basin for the use of the kirk in Dundee, to be engraved with his and his late wife's arms, and such an inscription as Mr. Alexander Wedderburn of Blackness shall think fit (Brechin Test.). His arms were carved on his house in the Overgate, and a modern panel bearing them and the date 1642 is still to be seen in the wall of the house. Peter (another brother) was also a merchant in Dundee; he married, but died s.p. William died 1603-4, apparently by violence, as in the Register of Acts and Decrees (vol. 279, 228; registered 21st July 1613) there is a contract between his surviving brothers and James Kyle and George Traill, whereby Kyle and Traill are 'bound to abandon and never have ado with James Traill, alleged committer of the slaughter of William Wedderburn.'

David's sisters were Margaret, who married Peter Clayhills (progenitor of the Clayhills of Invergowrie). Both she and her husband, 'gud-brother' to David, are named in the Compt Buik, and in one of the Dundee minute-books there is a curious entry, dated 5th June 1583, before her marriage, and signed by her and David, by which she agrees to give him 'thrie elnis of Frensche Fleming,' to make him 'ane cloik the day of my marriage,' and David promises to pay her 'tua crwnes of the sone in caise scho be nocht mareit or paie cum a year.' Katharine, the other sister, is also often named in the text. She married (1) William Duncan, a surgeon in Dundee, from whom the Duncans of Lundie, Earls of Camperdown, are descended; (2) William Ferguson of Balbeuchlie, sometime Dean of guild in Dundee.

David Wedderburn himself is very constantly named in the Dundee Records. The year of his birth is not quite certain, but as his elder brother was born in 1561, it may be assumed that he was born about 1562. The Compt Buik is the record of his numerous affairs from 1587 to 1630. This is the latest date mentioned in it, but he was living 30th April 1632, when he was cautioner to the confirmation of the will of Christian Lovell, wife of his brother, James (Brechin Test. vol. v.). He died, however, before 3rd March 1634, at which date he is named as deceased in one of the Dundee Protocol Books (vol. 269). He was a merchant, and later on (1603) to some extent followed the family profession of the law, and, having got admitted as a notary, did business in 'transumptis' and extracts from his father's protocol-books, as well as in other documents. He has left an elaborate family register, from which it appears that, having married Matild, daughter of James Beaton of Westhall, he had a family of four sons and seven daughters, of whom we know but little beyond what the Compt Buik tells us. Of the daughters, the eldest, Helen, married (1) George Auchinlek, and (2) James Ross; the second, Eufame, married James Sympsone; while of the other five we know nothing, except what their father's register tells us, unless the youngest, Magdalen, is to be identified with a Magdalen Wedderburn, wife of George English, who is mentioned in the Dundee Burgh and Head Court Records, 3rd Nov. 1652 (vol. 32). Of the four sons, it is clear that the eldest, David, born 1599, died before 11th Nov. 1623, when the second, James, is termed his father's heir (Dundee Protocol Book, vol. 268); the third, Alexander, born 1602, died 1616; and it is probable that the fourth, Henry, died young and unmarried, as there is no reference to him, or to descendants of his, in the Dundee Records. James, the second son, was in the army, and rose to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1644, when he is so named in the will of his uncle, James, and a 'great silver cup' is left to him, or, in event of his not returning to Scotland, to James Sympsone. He was thus abroad at this time, probably on foreign service, and possibly in that of Sweden, as a Colonel Wedderburn of that date is said to be buried in the Cathedral of Abo. He is believed to have died unmarried; at any rate, there is no record of his marriage, or of any descendants of his. The male line of the author of the Compt Buik is thus, presumably, extinct.

David's eldest brother, Alexander Wedderburn of Kingennie, clerk of Dundee, and one of the most remarkable men who ever held that office, is often mentioned in the Compt Buik, together with his wife, Helen Ramsay, and several of his children. He was clerk of Dundee from 1585 to 1626, and was prominent in the affairs of the burgh. In particular, he constantly represented Dundee in the Scottish Parliament, and was one of the commissioners for treating of a union between England and Scotland. James VI., whom he accompanied to England in 1603, held him in high esteem, and on Kingennie's return presented him with a ring, still preserved in the family.¹ He died in 1626, leaving five sons, Alexander, afterwards of Kingennie; James, who succeeded him as town-clerk; Peter, who married Helen Lovell, but died s.p.; William, who married Jean Pierson, but also died s.p.; John, afterwards Sir John of Gosford, physician to the King; as well as several daughters, of whom one, Magdalen, has been already mentioned, while another, Elizabeth, married Peter Bruce, Principal of St. Leonard's College, St. Andrews, and had a daughter, Elizabeth, who married Simon Mackenzie, and was mother of the famous Sir George Mackenzie of Rosehaugh.

The history of David's family is thus brought up to the close of David's life, partly in order to make clear the position in it of all the persons named in the Compt Buik, and partly because the printed genealogies of the house are very full of error. For its later history a few lines will here suffice. Kingennie's eldest son, Alexander (clerk of Dundee, 1627-33), succeeded his father in his lands, and was the progenitor of the Wedderburns of Kingennie, Easter Powrie, and that Ilk, co. Forfar, whose male line became extinct on the death of David Wedderburn of Wedderburn, seventh proprietor of Kingennie, in 1761. His lands passed to his sister, Grizel, who died unmarried in 1778, when she was succeeded, under a deed of tailzie, by the descendants of Magdalen (eldest daughter of Alexander Wedderburn, third of Kingennie), who had married, in 1659, John Scrymgeour of Kirkton. From this marriage descend the family of Scrymgeour-Wedderburn now headed by Mr. Henry Scrymgeour-Wedderburn of Wedderburn, who is the twelfth owner (of his name) of the lands of Kingennie, acquired by the brother of David (author of the Compt Buik) in 1600.

James Wedderburn, second son to Kingennie, was clerk of Dundee from 1626 till his early death, in 1627. He married, in 1608, Margaret Goldman, and left three sons, Alexander, William, and Peter, of whom the eldest and youngest both reached marked positions. The eldest,¹ afterwards Sir Alexander of Blackness, was clerk of Dundee, 1633-75, and was a man of much importance in the affairs of his time. He married Matild Fletcher, and by her was father of a very numerous family, including two eldest (surviving) sons, John, created a baronet, with remainder to his heirs male, in 1704, and James, who succeeded his father as clerk of Dundee (1675-96), and was himself succeeded in that office by his eldest son, Alexander. This Alexander, who also became (1723) fourth baronet of Blackness, was the last clerk of Dundee of his name. He joined the Stuarts in the rising of '15, for his share in which he was deposed from his office by the Council of the burgh in 1717. He married Katharine

¹ The youngest son, Peter, was admitted an advocate, and rose to be Clerk to the Privy Council, and a Lord of Session, under the title of Lord Gosford, which he took from the estate of Gosford, county of Lothian, purchased by him from Sir Alexander Auchmuthie in 1659. He died twenty years later, leaving, among other children, (Sir) Peter, of Gosford, created a baronet in 1697, who married Janet Halkett, heiress of Pitfirrane, co. of Fife, and took the name of Halkett. From him have descended the Wedderburns, Halketts of Pitfirrane, from about 1700 on, now represented in male line solely by Sir Arthur Halkett of Pitfirrane, eighth baronet of Gosford. Another son of Lord Gosford was Alexander, who was much concerned in effecting the union between Scotland and England. He was a commissioner of Excise, and died in 1730. His eldest son, Peter, went to the Scottish bar, became a Lord of Session, under the title of Lord Chesterhall, and died in 1756, leaving two sons, of whom the younger, David, fell at the taking of Baroach, in 1773; while the elder, Alexander, passed from the Scottish to the English bar, and rose to be Lord Chief-Justice of the Common Pleas, and later, Lord Chancellor, under the title of Lord Loughborough, Earl of Rosslyn, etc. He died in 1803, without surviving issue, when his honours passed (under special remainder) to the son of his sister, and the male line of his grandfather became extinct.

Scott, and left issue, including three sons, John, Robert, and Thomas, all of whom fought for the Stuarts at Culloden. Sir John was taken prisoner, conveyed to London, imprisoned in Southwark Gaol, tried in London, and executed on Kennington Common in November 1746. His sons had to leave the country, and went to Jamaica, where they lived and prospered for many years. The eldest of them, (Sir) John, returned home in 1779, and purchased the estate of Balindean, co. Perth. He was one of the last of his name to be buried in the Howff of Dundee. His eldest son, David, was created a baronet (of Balindean), under a new patent, in 1803, and he is now represented by Sir William Wedderburn, Bart., M.P. Other branches of the family, descended of the eldest son of the fourth baronet, are the Wedderburn-Ogilvys of Ruthven, co. Forfar; the Wedderburn - Maxwells of Glenlair, co. Kirkcudbright; while from the second son, Robert Wedderburn of Pearsie, co. Forfar, descend the Webster-Wedderburns and (in female line) the MacLagan-Wedderburns of Pearsie. The third son, Thomas Wedderburn, married Katharine Dunbar, and was grandfather to the late John Wedderburn of Auchterhouse, to the work of one of whose three grandsons we owe the material from which this account of the family has been compiled.¹

¹ For fuller details of the Wedderburn family, see The Wedderburn Book by Alexander Wedderburn, Q.C., where the documentary evidence upon which the above account is founded has been printed very completely.

² John Scrymgeour of Kirkcoun was son of James Scrymgeour of Kirkton, by Elizabeth, daughter of Sir James Scrymgeour of Dudhope, whose male line became extinct in 1546. John Scrymgeour married Agnes Bruce, and was great-grandfather of John Scrymgeour, who married, in 1659, Magdalene Wedderburn, and was thus progenitor of the Scrymgeour-Wedderburns of Wedderburn and Birkhill.

² Thomas Monorgound, son of Gilbert Monorgound, admitted burghess 11th Nov. 1538. This property was long known as 'Monorgunds Croft.'

⁴ Robert Wedderburn, notary, was brother to Alexander Wedderburn, the father of David. He was a notary in Dundee, and in the municipal archives there are still preserved six protocol books and twelve small minute-books in his handwriting. His admission as notary is copied into the first of the former. It is dated 13th March 1574, and recites that he was then twenty-eight years old, and had served Alexander Guthrie, common clerk of Edinburgh, for three years, and Alexander Wedderburn, common clerk of Dundee, for seven years. He married, about 1583, Margaret, daughter of Robert Myln, and had issue four sons and two daughters, all of whom it seems died young and unmarried. He died in Oct. 1611, and by his will, confirmed at Brechin 7th June 1612, he nominated his nephews, James and Peter Wedderburn, to be his executors. No children of his own are named in the will.

⁵ William Duncan, surgeon, born 1556, married David Wedderburn's eldest sister, Katharine. He died 1608, and she married secondly William Ferguson of Balbeuchlie (Dundee Burgh and Head Court Records, vol. 26, under date 1615). She died 1644-48, and was buried with her first husband in the Howff of Dundee. The inscription on their tombstone, though restored at one time by John Myln of Woodhill, is much decayed. The date of Katharine's death seems to read 160-, but this must have been an error in the restoration, as she was alive in 1644. See Millar's Roll of Eminent Burghesses of Dundee, p. 29.

² James Halyburton, grandson of Walter and Catherine de Halyburton, who were settled at Pitcur, Kettins parish, Forfarshire, in 1432. He was born in 1518, studied at St. Andrews University, and took his M.A. degree in 1538. Amongst his fellow-students were George Wishart, Peter Young, David Straitoun, and John Erskine of Dun, and under their influence Halyburton became one of the leading Protestant reformers. In November 1540 he obtained a charter from James v. to himself and his 'affianced wife,' Margaret of Rossy, of certain lands in the Carse of Gowrie, and about the same time he was enrolled as a burgess of Dundee. In 1548 he led a troop of horse against Broughty Castle and expelled the English invaders. His brother Andrew, laird of Pitcur, died leaving an infant son—afterwards Sir George Halyburton, knight—and James was known as the 'Tutor of Pitcur.' He was elected provost of Dundee in 1553, and held that office for thirty-three years. He took a prominent part in the military operations of the Reformers; led the Dundee burgesses to Cupar Muir against the Queen Regent; was present at the burning of the Abbey of Scone; and distinguished himself at the siege of Leith. He sat as member for Dundee in the Parliaments and Convention of Estates from 1563 till 1581. He opposed the marriage of Queen Mary with Darnley, and joined the revolt led by the Earl of Moray in 1565, with whom he fled to England. Two years later he was restored to his office as provost. He was one of those chosen to administer the affairs of Scotland after the abdication of Queen Mary in Lochleven Castle. He was present at the battle of Langside, and afterwards quelled the abortive rising of the Gordons in the north. In August 1571 he was captured at Leith and narrowly escaped execution in revenge for the death of the assassins of the Regent Moray. In 1574 he was made Commendator of Pittenweem, and became a member of the Privy Council. He resigned the Priory on 31st July 1583, and gave up the office of provost of Dundee in 1586. He died in February 1588-9, and was buried within the Church of St. Mary of Dundee, at the expense of the burgh. The monument erected to his memory was completely destroyed in 1841, when the church was burned. See Millar's Roll of Eminent Burgesses of Dundee, p. 24.

² Alexander Wedderburn, father of David Wedderburn. These protocol books are now in the Dundee Charter-Room. It seems that David, who was admitted a notary in 1603, found his father's books a useful stock in trade, and gave extracts from them, but eventually gave up the 'sex gryt buiks' to the Provost for payment of 1000 merks, though it is doubtful if he ever was paid.

⁵ Peter Clayhills, son of Robert Clayhills (burgess, 1524), was entered on the roll of burgesses in 1551. He was chosen Dean of Guild in 1587, and was councillor 1588 to 1591, 1593 to 1597, and 1599 to 1603. He held the office of bailie in 1592 and 1598, and died circa 1610. His son, Peter Clayhillis, junior, whose name appears in the Burgess Roll on 22nd September 1588, was a town councillor at the same time as his father, his name occurring in the Council Minutes from 1588 till 1595. Peter Clayhillis, junior, was married to Margaret Wedderburn, David's sister. The estate of Baldovie, Forfarshire, was acquired by the Clayhillis family, and their representative is Captain George D. Clayhillis-Henderson, R.N., of Invergowrie. See post, p. 67.

² Alexander Scrymgeour, son of David Scrymgeour, baker, was admitted burgess in 1552. He was nearly related to the Scrymgeours of Dudhope. He held the office of bailie of Dundee frequently between 1568 and 1590, and was dean of guild in 1576, 1579-80, and 1583-85.

³ Patrick Lyoun, admitted burgess, 24th October 1575. He entered the council in 1587, and continued to serve until 1607, having been eight times bailie and once shoremaster.

² James Auchinlek, shipowner, admitted burgess 7th February 1570; councillor 1588-89, 1591-94, and 1595; bailie 1590 and 1592; provost 1592-93. He obtained the estate of Woodhill in 1590 from his brother Alexander Auchinlek. His eldest son, William, was provost of Dundee from 1614 till 1625.

² Balruddery belonged in early times to the Maules of Panmure, and was held by Radulphus de Dundee, knight, from 1292 till his death in 1312. In 1368 this property was in the possession of the Scrymgeours, Constables of Dundee. By a charter, dated 17th August 1543, Cardinal Beatoun granted these lands to Archibald, fourth Earl of Argyll, 'for the protection of the Roman Catholic Church by the Earl, in opposition to the Lutheran heresies, and for the like services to be rendered to the Church in time to come.' Though the Earl became one of the Lords of the Congregation he retained the lands under the superiority of the Scrymgeours, and there were Campbells of Balruddery up till the seventeenth century. Balruddery passed by marriage to Lord Gray, and was sold by him in 1764 to the Earl of Strathmore. The trustees of the Earl sold the estate in 1782 to Alexander Baillie of Dochfour, and by the successor of the latter it was sold in 1806 to James Webster, Dundee. Robert Webster, his son, disposed of the estate in 1849 to David Edward, flax spinner, Dundee, whose brother James purchased the estate at David's death. From the trustees of James Edward the estate was acquired in 1879 by the late James F. White, merchant, Dundee, whose son, J. Martin White, late M.P. for Forfarshire, is now (1897) proprietor.

Graham of Claverhouse, Viscount Dundee, and was given by William III. to the Marquis of Douglas, and came by succession to the Earl of Home, the present proprietor.

² William Graham of Claverhouse (afterwards Sir William) was the son of John Graham of Claverhouse by Anne, daughter of Robert Lundin of Balgonie, Fife. He succeeded to the estate circa 1580, and survived till 1642. He was made a burgess on 25th July 1603 'for his many services to the commonweal.'

¹ Richard Wedderburn was a cousin of David Wedderburn. He was eldest son to Alexander Wedderburn, elder, and Isobel Anderson, and thus was brother of the Patrick Wedderburn already mentioned (see ante, p. 13). He is often named in the Dundee Records from 1560 onwards, and seems to have settled early at Elsinore, from which place he is recorded to have supplied timber for the roof of the kirk of Dundee in 1590 (Council Minutes of Dundee, vol. ii. pp. 52-66). He must have been a person of some importance in Elsinore, as when Sir Patrick Waus went there as Scottish ambassador on 8th June 1587, he slept 'that nycht at Richardus Weddyrburn's housse,' and contracted, it seems, some friendship with him. See Correspondence of Sir Patrick Waus of Barnbarroch, pt. ii. pp. 396, 404, 448.

² Robert Fyf was Conservator at Campvere, appointed by the Convention of Royal Burghs. In 1589, Magister Robert Dennistoun took violent possession of this office, and was called in question by the Convention and ordered to desist from his usurpation. On 30th September 1590 Dennistoun produced a letter from James VI. under the Privy Seal appointing him to the office of Conservator, and on 15th June 1593 he undertook to pay the balance of a sum of money owing to Walter Cowane, burgess of Stirling, by 'the relic and executrice of umquhile Robert Fyfe, factoure in Campheir.'—Records of Convention of Royal Burghs, vol. i. pp. 322, 343, 412.

² Robert Seres belonged to a family that took the territorial title from the lands of Ceres, in Fifeshire. One of the first of the family connected with Dundee was Robert de Seres, who was burgess of Dundee in 1408. At that time he obtained lands in the Meadow of Dundee, afterwards known as Seres Haugh, and still later as Monorgunds Croft (see ante, p. 2). Robert Seres mentioned above was town clerk of Dundee for over half a century. Previous to 1492 this Robert and his brother, Thomas, founded an altar in the parish church of Dundee dedicated to St. Magnus the Martyr. Thomas Seres was for a long time one of the principal bailies. In The Book and Register of Armes prepared by Sir David Lyndesay of the Mount in 1542, the arms of 'Seres, Lord of Dunde of auld,' are blazoned.

Dundee, by his wife Margaret Jak, and left issue three sons : 1. Sir Alexander, born 1610, afterwards clerk of Dundee and proprietor of Blackness, progenitor of the family so designated, and now represented in unbroken male descent by Sir William Wedderburn, Bart. ; 2. William, who died s.p. ; 3. Sir Peter, Lord Gosford of Session, died 11th Nov. 1679, now represented also in unbroken male line by Sir Arthur Halkett of Pitfirrane, Bart. In the Roll of Eminent Burgesses of Dundee, p. 38, the name of James Wedderburn's wife is given as Mary on the authority of her tombstone, but this stone was only erected in 1788, and her name is wrongly given. The marriage contract, in which she is called Margaret, is now in the possession of Sir William Wedderburn, Bart.

¹ Monquhany came into the possession of Michael Balfour on the death of his father, Andrew, in 1592. Michael was enrolled as a burgess of Dundee on 16th Oct. 1583, and Andrew Balfour had a similar honour conferred upon him 29th Oct. 1565.

² Balumbie came into possession of John Lovell in 1579, after the death of his father, Henry Lovell. The family long held an important place in the annals of Dundee. Henry Lovell was admitted a burges on 20th June 1559, and John Lovell's name was enrolled in 1568. A portion of the lands of Ballumbie had been alienated by Henry Lovell in 1571, and another portion by John Lovell in 1583. After the death of James Lovell in 1607, the direct male line of the family became extinct.

³ David Tendel, baker, son of David Tendal, baker, was admitted burges 4th Feby. 1578. The Tendals or Tendalls were long connected with the civic history of Dundee. The first of the name, John Tendall, was admitted a burges in 1525. His son, David, was enrolled in 1551, and took an active part in the affairs of the baker craft. He acquired a house on the south side of the marketgait, at the corner of Skirling's Wynd, and that passage then acquired the name of Tendall's Wynd, which name it still bears.

² Lady our mother (sic in orig.). For 'Lady Westhall, our mother,' i.e. mother to David's wife.

³ Thomas Trel (Traill), merchant, admitted burges 26th Sept. 1576, town councillor, 1590-1603. Though described above as dean of guild, he never held that office, but was harbour-master in 1590-91.

² St. Servis Chaplenry, i.e. the chaplainry of the altar of St. Severus or St. Severane. An altar dedicated to this saint was in existence in the parish church of Dundee previous to 1454. James III. granted 'the land of the Hundman-hyll' in Dundee to this altar. In 1492 the weaver craft founded a chaplainry at this altar 'for the honour of St. Severus the bishop, the patron saint of the said trade,' and in 1512, when the statutes of the weaver craft were ratified by the town council, the craft undertook to uphold and repair 'the altar of Sanct Severane in Our Lady Kirk.' The presentation to the altar was vested in the Scrymgeours of Dudhope, constables of Dundee, and the patronage remained with that family till Viscount Dudhope disponed it to the town council in 1643.

cillor from 1594 to 1599. On the death of George Spens in 1591, William Spens obtained possession of the property in this close that had belonged to his brother, and the name of Spens's Close was used to designate the passage until about 1750. Sir Patrick Lyon of Carse, Senator of the College of Justice, had a house in this close. He was an ardent royalist, and in 1660 he erected a tablet on the

There is a decret registered at Edinburgh, 21st July 1613, in regard to 'the alleged slaughter of William Wedderburn, brother of Mr. Alexander Wedderburn,' by one James Traill.

¹ Magister William Fergusone of Balbeuchlie, physician, was admitted burgess 21st May 1592, by the privilege of David Fergusone, minister of Dunfermline, his father. David Fergusone, who figures prominently in the history of the Scottish Reformation, was born in Dundee in 1533, and was one of those Dundee burgesses summoned in 1558 to appear in the Tolbooth of Edinburgh, to answer the charge of 'wrongus using and resting of the Scripture, and disputting upoun erroneous opinions, and eiting of flesche in Lenterone and utheris forbidding tymes, contrair the actis of Parliament.' In 1560 he was appointed first Protestant minister of Dunfermline, which position he held till his death on 23rd Aug. 1598. He was member of thirty-nine assemblies, and was twice moderator. In literature he is known as the compiler of a collection of Scottish proverbs, and his Diary forms the foundation of the Historie of the Kirk of Scotland, written by his son-in-law, John Row of Carnock. William Fergusone was born at Dunfermline in 1563, and settled in Dundee. He entered the town council in 1601, and served almost continuously until 1626, frequently holding the offices of bailie, dean of guild, and kirkmaster. He was the second husband of David's sister, Katharine, daughter of Alexander Wedderburn and Janet Myln, and he died on 26th March 1627. A splendid monument was erected to his memory in the Howff, Dundee, and still exists, though much defaced. The Latin inscription commemorated William Fergusone and his wife, Eupham Kinloch, and was erected by their son, William Fergusone, merchant, and his wife, Helen Duncan. This Helen Duncan was the daughter of Katharine Wedderburn by her first husband, and married the son (by first marriage) of her mother's second husband.

¹ Alexander Wedderburn, younger. This was a member of a branch of the family distinct from that to which David Wedderburn belonged, and descended from an ancestor earlier in date than David's grandfather. Walter Wedderburn, living in the Wellgait of Dundee, circa 1500, and dying about 1522, had three sons: David, admitted burghess 16th Oct. 1523; William, who became a monk in Arbroath; and Andrew, who died before 6th October 1524, when William was named his heir. David married, first, Elizabeth Dog, and second, Elizabeth Strathauchin, and had by the latter two sons: Robert, who died unmarried, and Alexander, born probably about 1550, who settled in Cupar Fife. Alexander married about 1570 Christian Fairney, and died at Cupar 15th Feb. 1627. The confirmation of his will at St. Andrews, 9th Aug. 1627 (vol. viii.), describes him as Alexander Wedderburn of Pittormie, and states that his wife was his executrix. He had three sons: John, named as his father's heir in 1627; James, minister at Moonzie, (Reg. Mag. Sig. 1612, June 17), who married, and had issue; and William, minister first at Pittenweem, then at Dundee, who married Magdalen Wedderburn, daughter of Alexander Wedderburn of Kingennie (David's brother), and died in 1616, leaving an only surviving child, Margaret, who married Dr. Andrew Bruce, principal of St. Leonard's College, St. Andrews. This William Wedderburn was made a burghess of Dundee on 9th July 1611, by the privilege of Alexander Wedderburn, 'once bailie of this burgh' (Roll of Eminent Burghesses of Dundee, p. 102). His widow, Magdalen, married Sir George Haliburton of Fodderance, President of the Court of Session.

¹ Robert Stibillis (or Stibbles), son of 'the late John Stiblis,' baker, was admitted burghess on 10th September 1593. In 1608 he was 'reader in the West New Kirk,' and when James Robertson, minister of Dundee, renounced the office of vicar, on consideration of receiving a fixed stipend, the Town Council presented the vicarage to Robert Stibbles on condition that he should 'exercise his office of reader within the kirk, and that he sall content and pay the treasurer nine score merks yearly during the time that he sall uptak the fruits and profits of the vicarage.' During the Presbyterian rule the position of vicar of Dundee was not an important one, and Robert Stibbles was put into the place more for the purpose of collecting the revenue for the Town Council than of exercising the duties of his office. When Episcopacy was established the Bishop of Brechin, in 1626, formally approved of Stibbles as vicar, and gave him charge of 'the books of marriage and baptism,' and settled upon him an annual stipend of £20, afterwards increased to £24. In 1637, when disputes again arose betwixt the Episcopalians and Presbyterians, the latter attempted to thrust Stibbles out of his office, but Colin Campbell, minister of Dundee, interposed, and protested that no harm should be done to this aged servant of the kirk. The Town Council, however, had determined to lay hold upon the revenues of the vicarage which had greatly increased in value, and they strove to compel Stibbles to sign the Solemn League and Covenant. He resisted on the plea that the Bishop of Brechin would deprive him of his office if he did so, but the Town Council agreed to protect him from any violence on the part of his ecclesiastical superior. He signed the Covenant, but afterwards recanted, and although Episcopacy was abolished in 1638 Stibbles was permitted to retain the vicarage, the dues of which had again dwindled away. In 1642 the Council set in tack to Robert Stibbles and his heirs the vicarage teinds of Dundee for three years for one hundred pounds yearly, and empowered him to collect the duties for the three previous years on payment of two hundred merks. The date of his death is not recorded, but it must have taken place about 1645.

¹ David Abercromby was the grandson of Andrew Abercromby of Pittelpie or Pitalpin, who was Provost of Dundee in 1513. Andrew Abercromby belonged to the old Fifeshire family of Abercrombys of that ilk, and was a prominent merchant in Dundee, his name being attached to the Letter of Guildry granted in Oct. 1515. He founded the altar dedicated to S. Barbara in the parish church, Dundee, and in 1521 he executed a charter granting an annual rent from fourteen different tenements which he had in Dundee, and from his estate of Gibliston, in Fife, to furnish the annual fee of the chaplain. This fee was restricted to twenty merks for the chaplain, the remainder to be distributed among the poor of Dundee. He also founded the monastery of Blackfriars in Dundee, the last religious institution of the kind established in the burgh. This building must have been destroyed previous to 1561, as in that year Queen Mary conferred the lands and endowments upon the Town Council. Andrew Abercromby's wife, Elizabeth Barry, survived him, for in 1526 she consented to the payment of an annual sum to the Collegiate Kirk of Crail for masses to be said for the repose of the soul of her late husband. David Abercromby of Pitalpin, mentioned above, was admitted burgess on 18th February 1584 on payment of 10 lib. He had a son, Captain Andrew Abercromby, who died previous to 1637, as in that year his son Andrew was retoured his heir. James Abercromby, mariner, was the younger brother of David, and was admitted burgess on 7th August 1582. He had one daughter, Elizabeth, married to William Walker, and his grandson, James Walker, was retoured as his heir in 1631.

³ This and the following memoranda were not made on 5th July 1620, that date referring only to the entry before the first memorandum. The latter cannot have been written till after 1627, as it is clearly subsequent to the death of Alexander Wedderburn of Kingennie, brother of David, who died in 1626, and to that of his second son James, who succeeded him in the clerkship, and died in 1627. His successor in the clerkship from 1627 to 1633 was his brother Alexander Wedderburn, second laird of Kingennie, who filled the office during the education of James's son Alexander, afterwards Sir Alexander Wedderburn of Blackness. The persons named in this paragraph are thus Alexander Wedderburn (David's father), clerk of Dundee 1557 till his death in 1585; his son Alexander Wedderburn (David's brother), clerk 1585-1626; and his son (David's nephew), clerk 1627-33, who died in 1637.

¹ John Traill, admitted burgess 2nd March 1570; was councillor 1588-1590; was thrice treasurer, and thrice bailie. His official career was terminated in 1603. When the guildry put up the 'Holy Blood Silver' to auction in 1595, John Traill bought it for 49 lib, 'his offer being found most profitable for the weall of the gild.'

² William Low, gunsmith, son of James Low, smith, was entered in the Burgess Roll 30th Sept. 1588.

² Petir Rolland, merchant, son of Robert Rolland, was admitted burgess 9th March 1583.

¹ Sir James Scrymgeour of Dudhope succeeded his father, John Scrymgeour of Glastre, in 1575, and had the office of constable of Dundee confirmed to him at that date. On 6th Feby. 1576, he was made a burgess of Dundee, and for more than thirty years afterwards he took an important share in municipal affairs. He had exaggerated notions of his baronial power, and several times was denounced by the privy council for imprisoning burgesses in the castle of Dudhope. By ancient charters the constables of Dundee had obtained the right to control the annual fairs in the burgh, and Sir James attempted to enforce his privileges. For this purpose he thrust himself into the office of bailie, and though Provost Halyburtoun restrained the constable, Sir James ultimately succeeded to the provostship, which he held from 1586 till 1590, and again from 1593 till 1609. He frequently represented Dundee and Forfarshire in Parliament, and also sat as a minor baron in various conventions. In 1582 he joined the Gowrie party and was banished, but four years afterwards he was restored to the king's favour. Sir James was one of the Scottish noblemen sent to Denmark to arrange the marriage of James VI. with the Princess Anne, and was knighted upon his return. His death took place on 13th July 1612. His son, mentioned above, was John Scrymgeour, afterwards Viscount of Dudhope, whose grandson was created Earl of Dundee.

² Quhittinghame, Archibald Douglas, younger of Whittinghame, was the son of William Douglas, Lord Whittinghame of Session. On the resignation of his father, Archibald Douglas was appointed an Ordinary Lord of Session on 1st August 1590, at the king's request. He was knighted, and admitted a privy councillor in 1603, and resigned his seat on the bench in 1618.

¹ James Myln, merchant, son of Thomas Myln, merchant, burges of Elgin, was enrolled as a burges of Dundee on 15th December 1596. He was a maltman in Elgin, but was closely connected with Dundee through his mother, Margaret Spalding. One of his brothers was married to a daughter of John Piersoun, and was thus related by marriage to David Wedderburn. Another brother, Alexander Mylne, mentioned in the text, born 1583, was killed at the siege of Dundee in 1651, along with his son, Thomas Mylne, and both are buried in the Howff of Dundee, where a monument still exists, erected by Alexander Mylne, elder brother of Thomas Mylne, to the memory of his father and brother. This Alexander Mylne (born 1618, died 1665) was minister of Longforgan, and afterwards of the South Church, Dundee. He was the founder of the Mylnes of Muirton and Mylnefield. To the same family belonged the Mylnes who for centuries were Master Masons to the Kings of Scotland. James Mylne, in Elgin, died in 1652.

² William Guthre, merchant, was enrolled as a burges on 24th October 1594, 'for having paid the usual sum to James Auchinlek, provost, as his stipend for the past year.' He was treasurer of Dundee from 1612 to 1615.

⁴ Gudeman of Rannkeler. James Sibbald was retoured heir of his father, Andrew Sibbald, on 6th October 1602. He was Keeper of the Great Seal under the Earl of Kinnoul, and died in 1660, aged 71 years. His nephew was the famous Sir Robert Sibbald, the historian of Fife.

³ Charles Goldman was a member of a family long notable in the mercantile annals of Dundee. It is supposed that the Goldmans came from Flanders. The first mentioned in Dundee records is James Goldman, who was admitted burgess 15th April 1562, and acquired much property in the burgh, besides purchasing the estate of Sandfurd (now St. Fort) in Fifeshire. he had a numerous family. William Goldman, the eldest son, entered the council in 1590, and remained actively engaged in public services till his death in 1613. For twelve years—1601-1613—he represented Dundee in the Convention of Royal Burghs, and on one occasion was sent by the Convention to Campvere for the purpose of 're-establishing the stapill of the natioun at the said toun.' John Goldman, the second son, was admitted burghess 15th December 1596, and died of the plague in Dundee. The third son, Robert, was thrown from his horse and instantly killed. Patrick Goldman was overtaken by a sudden squall and drowned, in a harbour in Batavia. Charles Goldman, mentioned in the text, was admitted burghess 6th July 1612. He was Boxmaster of the Weaver Incorporation in 1624. James Goldman, younger, merchant, died in September 1632, and was buried in the Howff, Dundee, where his tombstone may still be seen. The youngest son, Peter Goldman, was distinguished among the Latinists of his time, and several of his poems are included in the Delitiae Poetarum Scotorum, published by Sir Robert Scot of Scotstarvit, in 1637. One of Peter Goldman's poems is entitled Margaretæ Iacchæ matris suæ super tristi et immatura morte quatuor filiorum Lachrymæ, and describes the manner of the decease of his four brothers. Referring to Charles Goldman, the poet writes :

Vivat, mea maxima cura,
Carolus, afflictæ spes et solatia matris.'

David's nephew, James Wedderburn (town-clerk of Dundee, d. 1627), married, in 1608, Margaret, daughter of James Goldman and Margaret Jak. Many years later (1677) an Elizabeth Goldman became the third wife of Sir Peter Wedderburn, Lord Gosford (Edin. City Par. Reg.).

James Fethie had three sons, who were all enrolled in the Lockit Book of burgesses on 9th October 1632. John Fethie and Robert Fethie followed the trade of their father. The third son was Magister Henry Fethie, who graduated at St. Andrews in 1621; was presented to the parish of Benvie in 1627; translated to Mains parish in 1633, and deposed in Sept. 1649, with seventeen other ministers, in the Synod of Angus, by the Committee of the Assembly for Visitation. See ante, p. 77.

² Mr. Patrik Lyndsay, son of Lieut.-Colonel John Lindsay of Downie, student at St. Leonard's College, graduated at St. Andrews in 1587, and was presented to the parish church of Guthrie in 1588. He was translated to St. Vigeans parish in 1593; was a prominent member of the General Assembly for many years, and was promoted to the Bishopric of Ross in 1613, which he held in conjunction till 5th Oct. 1630. In 1633 he was advanced to the Archbishopric of Glasgow, but was deposed by the General Assembly in 1638. He fled to England, and died at York in June 1644, being then in the seventy-eighth year of his age. At the time of his death he was 'in such utter destitution that he had to be buried at the expense of the Town-Governor.'

³ Alexander Lyndsay of Pitairlie was laird from 1609 till 1639. His son, Alexander Lyndsay, was retoured as his heir on 29th May 1655.

¹ Henry Ramsay of Ardowny. The lands of Ardowny, in the parish of Monifieth, came into the possession of Sir William Monypenny in 1458, and were held by his successors till 1495. In that year Alexander, Lord Monypenny, exchanged this barony with Sir Alexander Bruce, of Earlsball, Fife, for certain lands in France. The Ramsays were in Ardowny previous to 1560, and the name of Henry Ramsay of Ardowny appears on an assize in 1568. The estate was divided about 1594, when one half of it was acquired by Thomas Maule of Pitlivie.

⁵ David Yeamen, merchant, son of Patrick Yeaman, was admitted burgeson 14th March 1592. He belonged to the family which afterwards acquired the estate of Dryburgh, near Dundee. His tombstone, in the Howff of Dundee, bears the following inscription: 'Heir lyis ane godlie and honest man, David

⁴ Sir James Haliburtoun of Pitcur, son of Sir George Haliburtoun of Pitcur and Elizabeth, daughter of Sir James Leirmonth of Balcomie. He was married to Lady Margaret Scrymgeour (not Mary, as given in Douglas's Peerage), younger daughter of Sir John Scrymgeour, first Viscount Dudhope. His daughter, Katherine, was married to John Beatoun, son of David Beatoun of Balfour. See Reg. Mag. Sig. 13th May 1618. His son James was retoured as his heir on 21st April 1619.

² James Ogiluy of Dyntroun. The Ogilvies of Duntrune were a branch of the Easter Powrie family, and acquired the estate in the latter half of the fourteenth century. The date when they disposed of Duntrune to a branch of the family of Graham of Fintry is not recorded, and little is known of their connection with the estate during the sixteenth century. The name of James Ogilvy of Duntrune appearing in the text under date 1606 shows that the estate was then held by that family. By a charter dated 20th Feb. 1612, the King confirmed certain lands in Perthshire and Forfarshire in fee to Patrick Landlands, junr., of Colpace, and his intended wife, Agnes Ogilvy, daughter of the deceased John Ogilvy of Duntrune. She was probably the sister of James Ogilvy, mentioned in the text. Walter Graham, first laird of Duntrune of that name, was in possession in 1629, and the estate is still held by his representative on the female side.

² Mr. William Reat or Rait was admitted minister of Mains 1590, and had Strathmartine under his charge conjointly. In 1593 he was translated to Lundie, but returned to Strathmartine and Mains two years afterwards. Along with Henry Duncan, minister of Murroes (see supra), he signed the protest against Episcopacy in 1606. He remained in charge of Mains parish until his death, which took place shortly before Feb. 1633.

³ Mr. David Lyndsays is supposed to have belonged to the Lindsays of Edzell. He studied at St. Andrews University, and graduated there in 1593. He was appointed master of the Grammar School of Montrose, and in 1597 he removed to a similar position in the Dundee Grammar School. In 1599 he was presented to the parish of Guthrie, in the Presbytery of Arbroath, holding that charge in conjunction with his scholastic appointment. He was enrolled as burgess of Dundee on 17th Feb. 1602, being then designated 'Schoolmaster.' When Robert Howie was removed from the pastorate of Dundee by decree of the Privy Council, in 1605, Lindsay was promoted to this charge, and endeavoured to retain the mastership of the Grammar School, but ultimately consented to resign it, in 1606, for a consideration. His success as a teacher and minister was so great, that, in 1613, the Town Council granted to him the sum of 500 merks for his faithful services 'as weil in the education and information of the youth in letters and gude manners, as in his dischaarge of his office and calling of the ministry.' About this time he became proprietor of the estate of Dunkenny, in Forfarshire. In 1615 he began to take an active share in the work of the General Assembly; and he attracted the special notice of the King at 'the disputations in divinity' held before His Majesty at St. Andrews, in July 1617. His book, entitled Reasons of a Pastor's Resolution touching the Reverent Receiving of the Holy Communion, was published in 1618, and was so well received that he was promoted, in November 1619, to the see of Brechin. He officiated at the coronation of Charles I. at Holyrood, in 1633, when he was accused of a leaning towards ritualism. In 1634 Lindsay was consecrated Bishop of Edinburgh, and it was he who officiated on the memorable 23rd July 1637, when an attempt was made to introduce the Liturgy, on which occasion he was mobbed, and narrowly escaped with his life. The abolition of Episcopacy by the General Assembly of 1638 forced Lindsay to flee to England, where he found protection with Archbishop Laud, and where he remained till his death, in 1640. He has been described as 'a learned and able divine, of high and irreproachable character.'

¹ Patrik Chalmeris, mariner, was admitted burgess on 9th March 1583, on payment of 10 lib, the remainder of the burgess fee being paid on 1st June 1592.

² Anthone Halyburtoun was enrolled as a burgess, 'gratis,' on 1st Oct. 1582, and was then described as 'natural son of the deceased Alexander Haliburton.' His father was Captain Alexander Haliburton, brother of Provost James Haliburton, and was slain at the siege of Leith, in 1559. An error was made by Tytler, in his History of Scotland, when, referring to this siege, he confused Captain Alexander Haliburton with the Provost, and stated that the latter was slain on this occasion. There is absolute proof in the Dundee Charter-Room that Provost Haliburton long held his office as civic ruler subsequent to the siege, and died in Feb. 1588-9.

¹ Patrik Kyd, son of Archibald Kyd, merchant, was enrolled burges 20th Oct. 1591. He entered the town council in 1606, when he held the office of harbour master. He was bailie in 1613-15-17-18-19-21-23-27-29, and 1637. Beside these offices he was kirkmaster in 1614-16-22, and 1628, and dean of guild in 1620.

² John Renkyn, mariner, was admitted burges on 16th Jan. 1620.

³ Mr. Robert Mongumry graduated at St. Andrews in 1618, and was presented to the vicarage of Kinnaird by James VI. on 24th May 1628. In Scott's Fasti, vol. iii. p. 707, it is stated that Montgomery's predecessor, Robert Sommer, 'died prior to 24th May 1628,' but he seems to have made a confusion between this Robert Sommer and Robert Seymmer, who was vicar in 1607, and translated to Holyrood House in 1620. The entry in the text shows that Montgomery was minister of Kinnaird in 1624, so that it is likely that he succeeded Seymmer in 1620, and that the Robert Sommer mentioned by Scott had no existence. Montgomery's official entry as vicar did not take place till 1628, but he had evidently been acting as minister four years earlier. He was translated to St. Quivox in 1633, and died

² Besse Wedderburn was a distant cousin of David Wedderburn. She was the only child of John Wedderburn (died 1599), eldest and only surviving son of James Wedderburn (died 1578) and Margaret Dundas. This James Wedderburn who married Margaret Strathauchin was the eldest son of David Wedderburn and Helen Lawson, whom Douglas in his Baronage makes the progenitor of the Wedderburns of Kingennie, Blackness, etc. This is, however, an error. David Wedderburn had one other son, William, who married Margaret Rollok, and had issue, though his male line is almost certainly extinct. Their daughter, Elizabeth (Besse), married in 1604 James, son of Patrick Kynnaird, and they emigrated to Denmark, as in 1616 he is described as 'now indweller in Alsownoir' (Elsinore).—Dundee Burgh and Head Courts Record, vol. xxvi. 8th Nov. 1616.

A Knag of Vinacre

¹ Robert Wedderburn was one of the two sons of Mr. Robert Wedderburn, vicar of Dundee in 1550. The vicar was one of the three sons of James Wedderburn who were remarkable for their share in the Reformation, and was, with little doubt, author of The Complaynt of Scotland. He was precluded by his calling from marriage, but he had two sons by Isobell Lovell (afterwards wife of David Cant), viz. David and Robert. Both were legitimatised, by letters under the Great Seal, 13th Jan. 1552. David died unmarried 1585, while Robert married Eufame Coustoun (relict of Robert Scott), and died about 1620. He left issue: David, burgess of Burntisland; John, merchant in Dundee; and Elizabeth, who was thrice married, firstly, to Robert Murray; secondly, to Thomas Moncur of Seggieden, and thirdly, to James Lovel of Kinneuchie. She was buried in the Howff of Dundee, beside her first husband. David Wedderburn had two sons who died young, and James seems never to have married, as in 1642 Elizabeth was retoured heir to David.

² David Ostlar, maryner, admitted burgess, 26th March 1587, 'for the sum paid to the Provost in 1585.' About this time there were several burgesses enrolled because of claims they had for money paid to James Halyburton, provost.

⁴ Eme is here used for 'cousin,' not 'uncle,' though the latter is the usual meaning of the word. James Thomson's mother, Elizabeth Wedderburn, was David Wedderburn's aunt.

³ Roger Meluill, or Melville, was the son of Richard Melville of Baldovy and Gillis Abercrombie, and was an elder brother of the famous Andrew Melville, and uncle of James Melville, the diarist. He was enrolled burgess of Dundee on 19th Oct. 1566, 'for services at Perth with Provost Halyburtoun.' There are numerous references to him in James Melville's Diary. He took a prominent part in forwarding the Reformation, and endured imprisonment at Blackness, along with his brother Andrew, in 1583. He died previous to 1593, as on 28th Nov. of that year his son, David Melville, dyer, was enrolled burgess, and described as 'son of the late Roger Melville.' James Melville described his uncle as 'a man of singular giftes of nature and God's grace, bot was nocht traned up in lettres.' He adds, 'I haiff hard Mr. Robert Bruce say oft of Roger, that giff he haid haid Mr. Andro's lerning, he wald be the oddest man in Europe.'

² Constable of Dundie. John Scrymgeour, son of Sir James Scrymgeour and Magdalen Livingstone, was admitted burgess on 23d Sept. 1599, and succeeded his father in 1612. He represented Forfarshire in the Parliaments of 1612, 1617, and 1621; and Argyllshire from 1628 till 1633. He was one of the Forfar barons who welcomed King James at Kinnaird Castle on the occasion of his Majesty's visit to Scotland in 1617; but he did not take any active part in public affairs. On 15th Nov. 1641 he was created Viscount of Dudhope and Lord Scrymgeour, on the occasion of a visit paid by Charles I. to his northern kingdom, but he did not long enjoy that title, as he died on 7th March 1643. By his marriage with Margaret Seton of Parbroath, he left two sons, James, second Viscount of Dudhope, and Captain David Scrymgeour; and two daughters, Jean, married to Sir Thomas Thomson, Bart. of Duddingstone, and Mary, married to Sir James Haliburton of Pitcur.

² James Wedderburn is often mentioned in the Dundee Records. He was a merchant in Dundee, and lived in the Overgate, where his coat of arms, with the date 1642, may still be seen carved on a stone inserted in the wall of a house which was rebuilt about 1800 on the site of his mansion. He married, about May 1597, Christina, daughter of William Lovell, in Murroes (by his wife, Margaret Roche), but by her, who died 26th May 1631, he had no issue. By her will (Breachin Test. vol. v. 30 April 1632) she left everything to her husband except a legacy of 100 merks to the town of Dundee. James Wedderburn himself died s.p. in 1644. By his will he left 400 merks for a silver basin for the use of the kirk of Dundee, to be engraved with the names and arms of himself and his wife.

² Thomas Vichtan or Wichtane was a notary public in Dundee, and his name appears in several charters in Reg. Mag. Sig., where he is described as servitour to Mr. Alexander Wedderburn, town clerk of Dundee.

¹ William Wedderburn was a younger son of David's eldest brother, Mr. Alexander Wedderburn of Kingennie, clerk of Dundee. He was admitted burgess 1st March 1625, and was living at the date of the will of his brother Peter (1628), who left him a legacy. There is a curious mention of him in the Dundee Records (Protocol Books, vol. 270, p. 19), where he witnesses the handing over by Thomas Halyburton, provost (1626-31), at Woodhaven, of James Forbes, lately apprehended in Dundee as a Jesuit, 19th Dec. 1626.

² David Corfitt, mariner, enrolled burgess 21st Sept. 1602.

³ Adame Balmanno, mason, was enrolled burgess 23rd Sept. 1589, 'in recompense for his labours in building the New School in the Churchyard of St. Clements, Gratis.'

² These were the parents of David Wedderburn, author of the notebook. The father, Alexander (son of Robert Wedderburn and Janet Kyd), was appointed clerk of Dundee in 1557, and the deed of his appointment, dated 6th Feb. in that year, is preserved in the Dundee Charter-room. He died 28th June 1585, his will being confirmed at Edinburgh 13th May 1587, together with that of his wife, who had died 19th June 1582.—See Edinr. Test. vol. xvii. They were probably buried in the Howff of Dundee, and the epitaph here given may have been on their tombstone. In the Howff there is still extant a table tombstone, with fielded panels, erected in memory of William Ramsay, merchant, 1640, his son-in-law, James Ramsay, and his wife, Grisell Ramsay. It bears the following verse :—

‘ In on bed ve both did keip,
In on grave ve both doe sleip ;
I hope the grave sal us restor,
Both agane to his heavnly glor.’

This form of epitaph seems to have prevailed in various parts of the United Kingdom. In St. Nicholas Church, Abingdon, Berks, there is a mural monument showing a sculptured group of a man, his wife, and two children, all kneeling, the figures being carved in high relief, and painted in natural colours. The inscription is as follows :—

‘ Here rest in assurance of a joyfull resurrection the bodies of John Blacknall, Esquire, and Jane his wife, who both of them finished an happy course upon earth, and ended their days in peace, on the 21 day of August, in the year of our Lord 1625.

He was a bountiful benefactor to this church, gave many benevolences to the poor, to the glory of God and to the example of future ages.

When once they lived on earth one bed did hold
Their bodies which one minute turned to mould ;
Being dead, one grave is trusted with that prize,
Until the trump doth sound, and all must rise.
Here death's stroke did not part this pair,
But by this stroke they more united were ;

Hic vno quos vita thoro coniunxerat, vno
Mors vna tumulo condidit
Vna Ambos donec reddat Lux vnus olim
Beatitatis computes

Tua, quhome on lyve ane Bed did keip ane dead
In ane grave dois include
Quhill on ane day pairtaikeris they be maid
Of ane Beatitude

And what left they behind you plainly see,
One only daughter and their charity.
What though the first by death's command did leave us,
The second we are sure will ne'er deceive us.'

[NOTE.—At this time the municipal year ended in September, and it was usual in writing the Shipping Lists to leave a blank folio after the last entry in September so that the certificate of the Auditors regarding the accounts of the Shoremaster might appear at the close of the year to which they referred. The above entry is interpolated, having been written in July 1614 on the blank folio. The regular entries of ships were begun on the page succeeding the folio left blank.]

THE END

REPORT OF THE ELEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE SCOTTISH HISTORY SOCIETY

THE ELEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE SOCIETY was held on Tuesday, November 23, 1897, in Dowell's Rooms, George Street, Edinburgh—The Earl of Rosebery in the chair.

The HON. SECRETARY read the Report of the Council, as follows:—

Since the last General Meeting of the Society the members have received (1) The Itinerary of Prince Charles Edward, edited by Mr. W. B. Blaikie, as a supplement to The Lyon in Mourning, a volume belonging to the issue of 1895-96; (2) Wariston's Diary and other Papers, presented by Messrs. T. and A. Constable as a gift to all members on the roll of the Society in the current year 1896-97.

The two volumes belonging to the ordinary issue of this year are: (1) The Memorials of John Murray of Broughton and (2) The Compt Buik of Bailie David Wedderburne, Merchant of Dundee. Both of these works have been unexpectedly delayed, but not without some compensation. Mr. Fitzroy Bell has had the good fortune to discover, during the past year, a number of important papers, in the British Museum, Public Record Office, and elsewhere, illustrating the affairs dealt with in Murray's narratives. These supplementary documents, which make 150 pages of print, add considerably to the interest as well as to the bulk of the volume so long expected. The whole is in type except the editor's introduction, and it should be in the hands of members before the end of the year.

Mr. A. H. Millar, as was intimated at the last meeting, has also made material additions to Wedderburne's Compt Buik, supplementing the merchant's private record by the Shipping Lists of the Port of Dundee for 1580-1618. These lists involved careful and laborious editing. The greater part of the volume is, however, through the press, and will be ready for issue with Murray's Memorials.

The works in preparation for next year, 1897-98, are—

I. The first volume of The Papers relating to the Scots Brigade at the Hague, consisting of (1) Extracts from the Resolutions of the States General; Resolutions of the Council of State; Portfolios of Requests, of Diplomatic Correspondence, and of Military affairs, etc., and (2) Regimental Papers, kept in the several regiments during the eighteenth century, and now preserved among the municipal archives in the Town Hall of Rotterdam.

The documents from the archives of the Hague will alone make two of the Society's volumes. A break, however, occurs naturally at the Revolution of 1688, when the regiments passed, for about ten years, into the direct service of Great Britain under William III. This first volume is ready to go to the printer at once. A subsequent volume will carry on the foreign history of the regiments from the period of the Revolution until the final merging of the Brigade in the Dutch national troops, and the consequent departure of the British officers in 1783.

The Rotterdam papers, which are of an entirely different character, being chiefly registers of births, deaths, and marriages within the regiments, will form a volume apart.

II. The second publication to be issued next year will be the first volume of the Montereul Correspondence, for this also will consist of two volumes. More than half of Montereul's letters, beginning with August 1645, and dealing with his negotiations between the Scots Commissioners and Charles I. in the interests of France, and ending with the surrender of the king to the Scots army, were written from London, Newcastle, and Newark; but after the withdrawal of the Scots from England, and their abandonment of Charles, Montreuil took up his residence in Edinburgh as accredited agent of the King of France. His letters from Edinburgh (eighty in number) date from February 1647 to July 1648. With these are incorporated the letters of De Bellièvre, the French ambassador in London, and some few other papers on Scottish affairs of the time. The French papers will in all cases be accompanied with an English translation.

The Society has lost during the past year eleven members, nine by death and two by resignation. The vacancies will be immediately filled up, maintaining the roll of individual members at its full complement of four hundred, and leaving eighty names on the list of applicants for admission.

It is desirable that it should be generally known that, although the number of private subscribers has been, for good reasons, limited to four hundred, there is no such limit placed on the subscription of public libraries. All public libraries, or libraries belonging to public bodies, at home or abroad, are free to become members of the Society at any moment. During the past year five such libraries have taken advantage of this rule, bringing the total number of libraries, now subscribing, to fifty-six.

It is proposed by the Council that the Rule, No. 7, regarding the date of the Annual General Meeting be altered, by substituting the words 'at the end of October or at an approximate date to be determined by the Council,' in place of the words, 'on the last Tuesday of October.'

Three members of the Council retire by rotation: Mr. J. R. N. Macphail, the Rev. A. W. Cornelius Hallen, and Sir Arthur Mitchell. The Council propose that Sir Arthur Mitchell be re-elected and that Mr. W. K. Dickson, Advocate, and Dr. David Patrick be appointed in the place of Mr. Macphail and Mr. Hallen.

The accompanying abstract of the Hon. Treasurer's accounts shows that the income for 1896-97 has been £489, 18s. and the expenditure £369, 2s. 9d., an excess of income over expenditure of £120, 15s. 3d. There is a balance due by the bank as at 27th October 1897 of £195, 9s. 3d.

There has been paid out of the Reserve Fund for transcripts of papers relating to the Scots Brigade in Holland the sum of £91, leaving the amount of that fund now at £61, 10s.

The EARL OF ROSEBURY, in moving the adoption of the Report, said—Ladies and gentlemen, It gives me sincere pleasure once more to be in my proper place in the chair on the occasion of our annual meeting, even although I understand that it has been necessary to break a rule in order to secure my presence, an alteration of the rule which is dimly hinted at in the Report to which you have listened. I myself do not know why it was felt that the Scottish History Society should only meet at the end of October. It is a rule which has never been explained to me, and which I think we would do well to expunge. With regard to the matter of the Report, there is a paragraph immediately before that to which I call attention, which I think is of some importance. We limit ourselves as regards private members, but we do not limit ourselves as regards public libraries; therefore no one can say that we are dilettantes or obscurantists with regard to the information which we provide. We place it at the disposal of public libraries, but we reserve to ourselves the limitation of our own membership. Well, gentlemen, what is the prospect that the Report holds out to us as regards publications. In the first place, we have the books for next year, The Papers relating to the Scots Brigade at the Hague, which is a subject of singular and original interest, and which I am sure we shall all welcome. Then there comes the Montereul Correspondence, which will throw light on what I think all will acknowledge to be a very obscure part of Scottish history, and which will furnish invaluable material to the historian. Then we have closely upon us The Compt Buik of Wedderburne, during the end of the sixteenth and part of the seventeenth century, which I think falls closely within the scope of what we had in view when we founded this Society—to throw light on the life of the country and the people ; and I am sure nothing can do that so much as the Scottish account books which we have been privileged to inspect and to publish. But, if I may say, the bonne bouche in my opinion of all that is held out to us is The Memorials of John Murray of Broughton. We all remember the famous story of Sir Walter Scott's father and the mysterious stranger who partook of tea in Sir Walter Scott's father's house, and the father Scott throwing the teacup out of the window and saying, 'No man shall ever taste out of a cup that has been used by Murray of Broughton.' That is a singular and sinister incident, and the memory of Murray of Broughton is not altogether savoury in the nostrils of history. But for all that that only makes the publication of his own apologia the more interesting. I have been privileged, owing, I suppose, to my official position, to have a private taste of this publication, and I can assure you that your anticipations will not be disappointed, and that you will not regret the delay which has enabled Mr. Fitzroy Bell to add a considerable number of original papers from the Record Office and from Her Majesty's collection at Windsor to that book. The only part I have not seen of the book is perhaps that which we will all like the best, which is the introduction by Mr. Fitzroy Bell ; but that is a part which cannot be hurried, and I am assured it is in good progress, and it will make the volume additionally welcome when it comes. Now, gentlemen, will you forgive me if I say one or two words, as I have not been here for some time, owing to this nefarious rule of which I complain—one or two words on the general scope and work of our Society. In doing so I feel rather reminded of the speech by the late genial Sir George Harvey, the President of the Royal Scottish Academy, which I heard him make at one of the banquets of the Academy, which have unfortunately fallen into abeyance. Sir George Harvey was delighted with the exhibition, and he made a speech which amounted in brief to this—There never was such an Academy, and there never were such pictures. Well, that is my view of our Society, (Hear, hear.) I shall express it quite frankly—there never was such a Society, and there never were such publications. I very much doubt if any one can find any serious fault with anything that the Society has done or with any publication that the Society has put forward, and I venture to ask you of what other society known to you can so much be said? What is it that we have been privileged to do? What is the gap that we have been enabled to fill up? I think all our publications are valuable ; I am sure they are. But some epochs and some subjects appeal more especially to some than to others, and I think that we may say that on two subjects of great importance we have been enabled to do a good work—work which perhaps no other Society could have done. But besides that I flatter myself,—but here I cannot carry my contention into the region of proof—I flatter myself that we have done much more than simply instruct by our publications. We have done something in the way of inspiration to writers and of inducing many to tread the field of Scottish history who might not have been so attracted except by our publications. I will take one book, the author of which is personally unknown to me, and which I have read, and which I daresay you have read, with the greatest admiration and delight, The Bye-ways of Scottish History, by Dr. James Colville, of Glasgow. I cannot say for certain, for I have absolutely no knowledge on the point, that that book has derived any inspiration from our work, but I like to think that it has. Well, what are the two subjects on which I think it has been the privilege of this Society to do the most important work ? The first is the history of the Stuart family after the abdication of James II., and that is a period of history which is still open to the historian. The history of the Stuarts after the abdication of James II., in spite of the invaluable material that exists both at Windsor and elsewhere, and in spite of the very valuable monographs on the various rebellions which they inspired which have been written, remains yet I think to be properly put in shape. Now, we have done a good deal in that way. I myself have been privileged to co-operate by the publication of some lists of those who took part in the rebellion of '45. I do not mention that fact as an encouragement to others, but I mention it because of the warning that it gave to me, which will last me as long as my life. In a preface to that book I put in an extract which I duly copied from a veracious authority, but when I was challenged as to my authority I have never been able to put my hand on it from that day to this, or to find the pamphlet from which I extracted it. Therefore, it is only one more confirmation of the invaluable advice given by an aged sage to one who sought his guidance in life—'Always wind up your watch at night, and verify your quotations.' But, gentlemen, I also like to think that if I have not been able to do very much myself, I made a suggestion at the last meeting which I was able to attend which bore instant fruit. I don't believe the result was due to my suggestion. I am not so vain as to think so, but I am happy to think that two minds came together, and the result was that the suggestion that I made that we might have an itinerary of the wanderings of Charles Edward after the battle of Culloden has borne fruit, and has been admirably carried out by Mr. Blaikie in a volume which is now published. Now, let me make another suggestion, which I hope will be equally fruitful. Before the history of the Stuarts can be written there is a book which must be compiled, and will not be easily compiled. I suppose you all know Haydn's Book of Dignities, which has been continued in a later edition by a Mr. Ockerby, and published by Messrs. Allen and Co. It contains all the prominent honours, and dignities, and ministries which have been conferred by the monarchy during the whole period of our history. But what is wanted is a book of those dignities which were conferred by the Stuarts after their departure from England in 1689. During almost all that time they had their secretaryships of state and their peerages, their knighthoods, and their various dignities, and a list of that kind would be a most valuable assistance to an historian of the Stuarts. I quite admit that the first edition might not be a very complete book, because, I say, there would be some difficulty in the compilation, but the first edition would bring out so many suggestions, and put the editor on the track of so many papers, that the second and the third and fourth editions would be works of incalculable value to historians. Now, I dare say, you might say—What is the use of any such book? the dignities died with the people, and they were not of much interest when they existed. But that is not the fact. Historians, with all respect be it said to them, are not sufficiently careful in matters of detail. They do not give us the actual date of resignations of power and accessions to power, and in the majority of histories, if anybody wishes to read them accurately, he has to read them with some sort of calendar of dignities, with the exact dates by his side, and with the book which I suggest. There is also this to be said, that whereas dignities and ministries are perhaps of ephemeral interest when conferred by dynasties that are actually existing, there is an element of sympathetic pathos about them when they represent nothing but a faded, an abdicated, and a banished power. I am not sure that the whole calendar of the melancholy Court of the Stuarts, their shadowy secretaries of state, and their purely nominal dignities, would not have a greater interest both for the historian and the student of human nature than that book of Haydn's to which I have referred, which tells you of those who enjoyed power and substantial rank. Well, gentlemen, I pass from that subject, the history of the Stuarts, where I am sure we have laid a sure foundation for the future historian, and I come to another subject on which a history has also to be written, and where I think we shall some day be recognised as having done an incalculably good work—I mean the history of Scotland in the eighteenth century. The history of Scotland in the eighteenth century has, I think, by all avowal, never been written. You have had the history of the two or three rebellions that were stirred up by the Stuarts or by their agents. You have had copious histories of the Union. You have had the history of the Porteous Mob told in great detail, and by a great master of fiction as well. You have had the Darien scheme told in great detail. Wherever the history of Scotland in the eighteenth century has touched politics it has been told, but the history of Scotland in the eighteenth century only in a very rare and indirect degree did touch politics at all. After the Union I think we may say that Scotland determined to take with the disability of the laws of her separate government the full advantage of it. She gave herself up to fitting herself for the great part that she was destined to play in the government of the British Empire. She recovered by a long period of repose the exhaustion of the political part of her history, which was all excitement and which was no repose, and as the affluent forces of nature gathered themselves together under the uniform and impassive covering of the snow, so under the apparent deadness and moderatism of the eighteenth century Scotland was collecting her strength for the effort which she has put forward in the nineteenth. But there is even more to be said than this. She gained not merely by her reserve and recuperation of strength in the eighteenth century, but by the removal of the Court and of the Parliament and of the fashion of Scotland to the Southern Metropolis. She was enabled to develop in her rural districts types of independent character, which, I am sorry to say, under the influence of the more successful nineteenth century, with its railways and its hurry and its newspapers, are rapidly disappearing, and which it will be the privilege of the historian of the eighteenth century carefully to record. Well, I have been much longer than I intended to be, but I was anxious to call attention to the two fields in which I think we have done specially valuable work, and which, I think, may encourage the historian of the future. I think the historian of the eighteenth century will not be able perhaps to confine his researches to that century. He will have to carry it on to the first quarter of the nineteenth century, for the period of which I speak has hardly ceased till the Ministry of Mr. Canning, and, indeed, some of us have been able to see in our lifetimes survivals of these rare types of lairds and of divines, and of the servants of divines, which are specially racy and characteristic of the Scottish nation and of Scottish soil. Well, as long as we do this good work, I wish more power to our arm. In fact, as long as the Scottish History Society exists I look forward with a certain confidence to the future. Of the history of the present we know nothing whatever. In despite of the invaluable agencies which report to us almost every event as soon as it occurs, we can only learn partially and imperfectly the real history of our times. What we get from day to day is, as it were, a kodak view—limited, narrow, and piercing—but so limited that for the purposes of history it is of little value. It will be a century hence before the large and serene gaze of history can focus itself sufficiently on the events of the day to be able to place them in their true relation and their true proportion; and I trust, and I firmly believe, that a hundred years hence the Scottish History Society will be still active and vigorous, and perhaps pointing its focus towards the somewhat distracting and distorted events of the age in which we live.

MR. RALPH RICHARDSON seconded the adoption of the Report, which was agreed to.

The usual vote of thanks was accorded to the Council; and

SHERIFF MACKAY moved a vote of thanks to the Chairman, which was acknowledged by Lord Rosebery.

RULES

1. THE object of the Society is the discovery and printing, under selected editorship, of unpublished documents illustrative of the civil, religious, and social history of Scotland. The Society will also undertake, in exceptional cases, to issue translations of printed works of a similar nature, which have not hitherto been accessible in English.

2. The number of Members of the Society shall be limited to 400.

3. The affairs of the Society shall be managed by a Council, consisting of a Chairman, Treasurer, Secretary, and twelve elected Members, five to make a quorum. Three of the twelve elected Members shall retire annually by ballot, but they shall be eligible for re-election.

4. The Annual Subscription to the Society shall be One Guinea. The publications of the Society shall not be delivered to any Member whose Subscription is in arrear, and no Member shall be permitted to receive more than one copy of the Society's publications.

5. The Society will undertake the issue of its own publications, i.e. without the intervention of a publisher or any other paid agent.

6. The Society will issue yearly two octavo volumes of about 320 pages each.

7. An Annual General Meeting of the Society shall be held at the end of October, or at an approximate date to be determined by the Council.

8. Two stated Meetings of the Council shall be held each year, one on the last Tuesday of May, the other on the Tuesday preceding the day upon which the Annual General Meeting shall be held. The Secretary, on the request of three Members of the Council, shall call a special meeting of the Council.

9. Editors shall receive 20 copies of each volume they edit for the Society.

10. The owners of Manuscripts published by the Society will also be presented with a certain number of copies.

11. The Annual Balance-Sheet, Rules, and List of Members shall be printed.

12. No alteration shall be made in these Rules except at a General Meeting of the Society. A fortnight's notice of any alteration to be proposed shall be given to the Members of the Council.
