TWOLETTERS FROM THE PRESBYTERY

of CARRICK-FERGUS, to the Lord Ards, And his answer to the first of them.

Right Honourable

He present strange alteration of affaires, moves us to write our minde freely to your Lordship: Especially since (as it appeares now clearly) you have been the chief author of all these present calamities. Wee would first put your Lordship in minde of the hazard you were in before the Covenant was renewed, and how ye complyed with us then for your owne satety, with solemnity and forwardnesse ye renewed the Covenant of the first moved and framed a Declaration in opposition to Malignant courses, and all the present entires of the Cause of God. In the propositions to be offered to the King, you agreed that these concerning Religion, should be first offered, and if these were not granted, no other should be presented: Your Declaration also beares very large profession both in generall, that ye would do nothing in reference to Religion without our consent and advice, and that least God should leave you to tall in error, and particularly that ye would acknowledge the Kings Demands, when he should give satisfaction in securing Religion before he were admitted to the exercise of his Royall Power, you all along shew your selfe ready to subscible all orders against Malignants, and so by ample professions, engaded us the more deeply to give credite to your Declarations, and trust your satisfaction in securing Religion before he were admitted to the exercise of his Royall Power, you all along shew your selfer ready to subscible all orders against Malignants, and so by ample professions, engaded us the more deeply to give credite to your Declarations, and trust your satisfaction in securing Religion before he were admitted to the exercise of his Royall Power, you all along them, and all this time hes been dealling substilly in your heart, professions, and intending another; which hes been a most notorious deceit to infinare the people of God, to advance your most sinstitutions, and intending another; which hes been a most notorious deceit to infinare the people of God, to advance your most sinstitutions ends, Who could have

At Carrickfergus June 29. 1649.

Your Lordships servants in all duty, the Ministery of the Presbyterie.

Reverend Friends,

Cannot but w th unexpressible grief resent the bitter expressions and ill grounded wrong aspersions you are pleased to call upon me in fyour Letter, as is I had secretly brought in Sir Georg Monroe his partie into this Countrey, and so have been the chief Author of all these present distractions, whereof God the searcher of hearts is my witnesse, I am free (not with standing of the jealousies raised upon some expressions in that Letter of Sir George Manroe to Sir Robert Steware which was intercepted) and that among other many prevalent reasons and motions (too long heere to expresse) inducing at this time to own his Majesties commission. It was not the betraying, but the securing of these Garisons frows is George his party; which in our distracted & disjoynted condition for want of authority, and by reason of the Souldiours affection to their former Officers were likely to be rendered to him. The Lord he knows that the preservation of the established Church government your peace, the good and quyet of this poor corner, and the advancement of Religion according to the Covenant, (all which by privat undermyners to your own knowledge were in apparent hazard of ruine) are the chief reasons which induces me to this course of making use of that Authority as the only mean to secure us, (being so united under command from the violence of opposers hereunto. I request you therefore, and untill my carriage (after that now I am clothed with Authority,) may witnesse whether my intentions and resolutions be not according to my profession, you wold be pleased to have more charitable thoughts of me and rest assured that I am, Revereud Friends,

Belfast, June 30: 1649.

Your affectionatly faithfull Friend and Servant, MONT GOMERY.

Right Honourable,

EE receaved yours wherein you with griefe resent our bitter expressions, and ill grounded wrong aspersions (as much as to call them false) which you say we cast upon your Lordship. Truely our expressions showeth from the bitternesses of griefe and sorrow, and not disasted the total towards you: You have otter known our aboundant affections, and endeavour to serve your Lordship in our stations. These which your Lordship colones agree with the sorrow of that which is now clear, with many other circumstances of your Lordships latter carriage, and the e-exact correspondance between Colones Momoris motions and yours dos evince the reality of our affertions as well as his own letter, which we believe spake neither affection nor a conjecture of your Lordships designe being writen to such a close friend. It is a sad jest to your Lordships to tell us that it was the securing of these Garrisons from Colonals George Momore that moved you to put on that commission; whereas by the conjunction of your Lordships forces and command, hee lyes before this Garrison to destroy it. It were a good proofe of the reality of your purpose: If yee should withyour whole power urge him to remove, which if yee were cordial in, were easy to do. Neither know wee how to believe that your Lordships present course is intended for the good of Religion and the Covenant, when yee are not only associate with the enemies of both, but your commission, as we are informed, subjects you to the immediate commands of the Marquesse of Formond, whose infamous and irreligious peace made with the Rebels, may easily tell us what establishment to the Covenant, or Presphering government wee may expect from his Orders and Authority, his own printed speach to the Counsell of Kilkenny, explaines to us his reall resolutions conterning Religion, to maintain Christian Religion in the large extent, and not under a strict notion of new invented names, and before them, James Grabame and the Malignamirin England were of old pursually and the consideratin Right Honourable,

At Carrick fergus the 2 of July, 1649,

Tour Lordships servants in all destifull observance the Ministers of the Presbyterie,

· 27.1. 1840