

From HENRY ASTON BARKER'S Panorama, Leicester Square, London.

The NEVA RIVER, in its course through St. Petersburg, is divided into two Branches, by the Island of Vassihostoff, on which are the Exchange, the Colleges of Commerce, Academy of Sciences, seen on the Right, when facing the Imperial Dock-Yard, and the Museum, seen on the Left, in the fore ground. The Observatory is in the centre of this range of Buildings, but is not seen in the Panorama, being under the Spectator.

