FOREWORD

IN writing the foreword to Fifty Years of Amateur Athletics in Scotland, I am conscious of the value of the work both as a record of past endeavour and as a guide to future policy.

Our first introduction to athletics is generally gained at school, and it is interesting to remark the extraordinary progress that has been made in cultivating that fertile ground since the inception of the Scottish Amateur Athletic Association in 1883. At the present moment organised games and sports are as much an accepted feature of school curriculum as are arithmetic or history, and are generally admitted to be of equal importance.

There are those who consider that undue stress is laid upon the physical side of scholastic life, but for myself I cannot admit it. The average boy is full of a superabundance of energy which must find an outlet. If that energy be directed into a proper channel, it can be made a vital factor in the building of the boy's character. If it be not so directed, it will find an egress in ways altogether undesirable. The Victorians visualised high spirits as a waste product, which must be eliminated by disciplined suppression. Our modern view teaches that boyish energy is a by-product of infinite value which can be used with results altogether beneficial, and that games and athletics supply that anchor-hold, that definite background, during the critical period of adolescence, without which the majority of us would give Satan a congenial task in finding "mischief still for idle hands to do."

It is difficult to realise the extent to which sport in its many branches has influenced the character of the British nation. They have given to us, in my view, a balanced judgment, a complete immunity to panic, and a good-humoured tolerance which must surely be the despair of the agitator and revolutionary.

I hold that at the moment Great Britain is the only country where a natural democracy exists. Democracy demands a common meeting-ground, a community of interest. Sport provides that, and I know of nothing which could take its place.

If we value flattery, then we may claim that the world has accorded us the sincerest form by imitating our methods, by accepting our standards and our valuations with an enthusiasm we can but marvel at.

What the effect upon the diverse mentalities of other races than our own will be we can only surmise, for national character is not formed in a generation. Perhaps the lessons they learn from sport will differ from those we have absorbed. However that may be, I feel they cannot be bad, but, on the contrary, must be good and beneficial in the highest degree.

This book contains a record of Scotland's contribution to the world of amateur athletics—and indeed it is not a small one. In it are names honourably known far beyond the Scottish borders, names of men in every walk of life, who have upheld the high traditions of our race on the athletic field.

We can look in retrospect on that first meeting under Scottish Amateur Athletic Association rules, held in 1883, and trace the rapid growth and development in everything pertaining to the sport down to the present day.

We cannot compare the champions of old with the present day athlete—and who wants to? Their times may have been greater and their distances less, but the conditions under which they competed were inferior in every respect. Let us, then, leave them that niche they ever hold in the memory of their countrymen; for their hearts were in the right place, which, indeed, is all that matters. In achieving the position it holds to-day, the Scottish Amateur Athletic Association has had no easy road to travel, and all praise is due to those who have guided its destinies along the thorny path of control.

The Editors of this publication have earned the thanks of all Scottish sportsmen for their meticulous care in chronicling events of so great an interest, and for leaving us a record of the traditional and characteristic athletics of our country, and of those who gained fame in the fields of high endeavour.

IAIN COLQUHOUN

EDITORS' NOTE

IT has been truly written that "of the making of many books there is no end," and in issuing this volume in commemoration of fifty years of activity in the administration and development of amateur athletics in Scotland, the Scottish Amateur Athletic Association adds itself to the increasing number of those who desire through the medium of the printed page to mark an important epoch in their life-story.

Owing to the loss of the minute books of the earliest years of the Association it is not possible to give a complete narrative of its origin: nevertheless an endeavour has been made to present a coherent story of its fifty years of existence. The Editors beg to acknowledge with gratitude the contributions made to this publication by Messrs. W. Reid ("Diogenes"), J. K. Ballantyne of Walkerburn, W. Maley, and William A. Whitton, Inverness. Further acknowledgment is also gratefully made to athletic club officials and others for facilities given by them for the reproduction of many of the illustrations.

Especial thanks are also due to Messrs. J. Gilbert, T. Jack, and J. McCulloch (all ex-Presidents of the S.A.A.A.) for their valuable collaboration in the compilation of the statistical section.

To those whose privilege it is to gaze down through the mists of the past years this book may help to illumine the memories of their youth, whilst to those whose vision is directed towards the future may it prove a real inspiration to carry on a service so ably begun and to sustain a tradition so worthily created by their predecessors.

DAVID SCOTT DUNCAN

AN APPRECIATION

DAVID SCOTT DUNCAN, who for many years prior to his death was looked upon as the "father" of amateur athletics in Scotland, was born in Monkton House, Inveresk, where his father had farmed for many years. After a short term in Musselburgh Grammar School, he became a pupil in the Royal High School, Edinburgh, where he remained till he left for the University with a view to qualifying for a legal career.

While in the R.H.S. he was looked on as a sound scholar, and left with a very good grounding in Latin, Greek, English, and French. He was proxime accessit for the India Prize, and in this competition was awarded a special prize on account of the high standard reached.

While at school he competed successfully at the Annual Sports; but it was not till 1880 that he took up distance running seriously. During the following eleven years he won over 150 prizes, and, in addition to winning the Scottish Mile Championship five times, he was runner-up three times and held for a short period records for two and three miles. He competed in the A.A.A. Championships, and while never a winner, did faster time at Stamford Bridge than he had ever done in Scotland. His record for the mile race (4 min. 28 sec.) stood for some years.

After a short business career in Leith he became the Scottish representative of the Field and continued in this capacity till the Great War. He was a born journalist; his marvellous memory and his intimate acquaintance with all branches of sport gave him a pre-eminent place in the journalistic world; indeed it could truly be said of him that in these islands for many years he stood without a peer in all-round knowledge of athletics.

Two years after the founding of the S.A.A.A. he took over from Mr. A. S. Paterson, Advocate—a distance runner of distinction—the duties of Secretary, and for the long period of forty years guided the destinies of the Association. His legal training, scholarship, and above all, his retentive memory, fitted him in a high degree for the duties of Secretary, and whether in furthering the athletic contest with Ireland or in conference with sister countries he worthily upheld the interests of his own.

He was a golfer of more than average ability, being a "scratch" player when he captained the R.H.S. Golf Club, but he had a somewhat unorthodox style in driving; indeed, his method drew, on one occasion, from a champion golfer and a friend of his own the following remark: "Man, David, if you hit the ball on the back swing, you would be the longest driver in Britain!" For a time he was captain of the ancient Royal Musselburgh Golf Club. In the royal burgh by the sea members of the Club still recall his eloquence, fine diction, and humour when he presided at their annual dinner.

The Golfing Annual, of which he was editor, stands as a memorial to his research and hard work. In laying the foundation of this work he met most of the great golfers of his time, many of whom became his fast friends. But he was at his best during his visits to Ireland with the Scottish International athletic team, and while always anxious for a Scottish win, never failed to congratulate an Irish opponent on a brilliant performance. As a timekeeper and judge he excelled, and one recalls his indignation when in 1908 at the Olympic Games in London an apparently pre-arranged attempt to shoulder Captain Halswell off the track in the memorable 400 metres race was made and failed. It is no secret that in this race, which Duncan judged, it was he who broke the tape when he saw the foul, and "no race" was unanimously declared.

The sentiments of the writer, who met "D. S. D." for the first time in 1883, and those of his numerous friends, were well stated by an eminent member of the S.R.U.: "He was one of the whitest men I ever knew."

ATHLETICS IN THE BEGINNING

By KENNETH WHITTON

ALTHOUGH Scotland's records do not go back as far as the Tailtean Games in Ireland, yet what we have prove the love of athletics among the Picts, Scots, and the gregarious Celts. From the chief downwards athletics was the joy of the Gael, indeed, the chief was often the most accomplished. At his door lay the clachneart, literally, the stone of strength or putting stone, and on the arrival of a guest he was asked as a compliment to throw it. The chief's followers and those of his guests engaged in all manly sports, and as the honour of the clan was at stake it is surmised that in the strenuous contests more heads than records were broken. The Fraser chiefs were noted athletes, and the father of the late Lord Lovat—an excellent sportsman—was an expert stone and hammer thrower.

In a manuscript lately come to light entitled: "Ane breve cronicle of the Erles of Ross," an account is given of how an earldom was gained by prowess in wrestling. At the Coronation of Edward I. there was among those attached to his Court in London a famous French wrestler from Normandy, who was considered invincible. But during the gay doings he was challenged by Farquhar Ross, from the North of Scotland, a vassal of the Scottish King Alexander II, and to the amazement and delight of the Scottish king, his wife, a sister of Edward, and the Scottish guests, Farquhar overthrew and signally vanquished the unbeaten champion. So delighted was King Alexander over his countryman's "notabill vassalage," as he called it, that he conferred the Earldom of Ross upon him. To celebrate his victory and to carry out a vow that he had made, Farquhar erected an abbey, now no longer in existence, but its successor in Kincardine, Ross-shire, is still used as the Parish Church.

At the great royal hunts, which took place at Braemar and which often lasted for a fortnight, many chiefs with their followers took part. Malcolm II. started at one of these "hunts," the first recorded "Games" by offering as a prize a sword and a purse of gold to the first man to reach, in a race, the summit of Craig Choinneach. Two McGregor brothers were favourites, but a third and younger brother, who was late in starting, won after a terrific struggle.

It was not, however, till 1832 that the first organised Braemar Gathering took place. Queen Victoria was keenly interested in these sports, and in 1889 invited society to Balmoral. Later, the Duke of Fife gave the present Princess Royal Park, where the meeting is now held. The clansmen gather at the spot where the Jacobite standard was unfurled in 1715—which event is commemorated in "The Standard on the Braes o' Mar"—and march to the sports ground.

Since the year 1314 without a break, except during the Great War, the Ceres Games, founded to celebrate the return of the victorious Fife villagers from the battle of Bannockburn, have been held annually. It is remarkable that the name of the Fife agricultural village, Ceres, is that of the Latin goddess, Ceres, the protectress of agriculture and in whose honour great sports were instituted.

Carnwath, in Lanarkshire, holds annually a meeting of great antiquity. The Red Hose race is the principal event, and popular and local tradition has it that in the event of the Carnwath estate becoming heir-less, the latest winner of the "Hose" would become proprietor!

Under the shadow of the Duke of Argyll's stately castle at Inverary, a gathering of the western clans' representative pipers, strong men, and runners has been held for centuries. Running was a feature of this meeting, for the chiefs of old encouraged their gillie-ruith or running foot-men, to excel in the Geal-ruith, or running and leaping games.

Among great athletes in Scotland the two whose names were, and still are, in the mouths of every one, were Captain Barclay of Ury and Donald Dinnie. The former was a great and up-to-date landed proprietor in Kincardineshire. Sprung from an ancient and physically powerful family, he lived during the latter part of the eighteenth century and the first half of the nineteenth. Educated at Cambridge, he early joined the army and served as A.D.C. to the G.O.C. of the ill-fated Walcheren Expedition. He was, though of little more than ordinary size, possessed of great strength, speed, and remarkable powers of endurance. Of the latter, his great feat of walking 1000 miles in 1000 consecutive hours—that is, one mile for every hour, was a record to his stamina. Others who tried this feat broke down at an early stage, but he continued for a period of 42 days, and though he lost much weight, was at the finish wonderfully fit. He was a great runner, walker, wrestler, and weight-thrower, and thus resembled Dinnie, who was born in Aberdeenshire in 1837. Strange to say, Dinnie's best performances were done when he was approaching forty years of age, and when fifty-eight years old was the recognised all-round champion of New Zealand. Dinnie was undoubtedly the best athlete of his time, and in addition to being heavy-weight champion, excelled in wrestling, leaping, vaulting, running, and dancing.

Over a century ago the Borders had a remarkable man, Will O' Phaup, so called from his farm in the Ettrick valley. Like Dinnie in the North his name was a household word. His tombstone at Ettrick Kirk records that for feats of strength and agility, he was not excelled in the kingdom.

In pre-amateur days Scotland was famous for its distance runners, and many great feats of endurance are recorded in books dealing with the origins and history of Scottish Highland Gatherings.

GENERAL HISTORICAL SURVEY

By D. A. JAMIESON

1883-1894

To undertake the task of compiling the history of amateur athletics in Scotland would require much greater space than is available within the limits of the present volume; and while there is an historical purpose in this work, it seeks rather to deal with the growth and activities of a corporate body than to trace the gradual development of a principle as applied to a form of national recreation.

For many years before the formation of the Scottish Amateur Athletic Association in 1883, sports meetings promoted upon amateur principles maintained an existence chiefly under the ægis of educational institutions. Particulars of such early gatherings held at St. Andrews, Aberdeen, Glasgow, and Edinburgh, giving evidence of athletic aspirations existing among the undergraduates of the Universities of these towns, can still be traced. In circles of less academic distinction amateur sports meetings were occasionally promoted under the auspices of local sporting organisations, such as cricket clubs or football clubs. These bodies sometimes sought to give prominence to their promotions by the inclusion of one or more "championship" events in their sports programmes. Hence there was a profusion of title-holders with more or less impressive designations, e.g. "One Mile Western Champion," "Half-Mile Northern Champion," etc., while occasionally on the occurrence of a sports meeting held in larger industrial areas, the inclusion of an "All-Scotland" championship event—either flat or field—would be adopted by more ambitious promoters.

Among those who held such titles in these early days was W. W. Beveridge, who in 1879 won a 100 Yards and 220 Yards championship. Prominent also among amateur athletes of that period was R. W. Irvine, a splendid all-round athlete, known to his contemporaries as "Bulldog Irvine." Irvine had the honour to captain the first Scottish Rugby International team against England.

Such, then, was the amateur athletic position in Scotland during the 'sixties and 'seventies of the last century. There is an interesting analogy between the origin of the sister body—the A.A.A.—and that of the S.A.A.A. in that both have their birthplace in centres of academic learning, namely, Oxford and Edinburgh. It is highly probable, however, that it was force of example that gave the desired impetus to the formation of the Scottish body.

The complete absence of minute-books pertaining to the earlier years of the Association, and the very meagre details of its activities to be found in the contemporary press, give rise to feelings of dismay in the breast of the would-be chronicler. Enough, however, has been gleaned from various sources—of a more or less authentic nature—to present a fairly coherent narrative of the genesis of the Association.

Early in January 1883 a meeting was convened in Edinburgh by a few gentlemen interested in amateur athletics for "the purpose of forming a Scottish Amateur Athletic Association similar to that recently formed in England, and to consider the promotion of an Annual Championship meeting." Letters of approval were received from various kindred organisations throughout Scotland indicating their intention to affiliate should the meeting succeed in its purpose.

One month later—26th February to be precise—the Scottish Amateur Athletic Association became an accomplished fact. Office-bearers were elected, and the first list of affiliated clubs was published. It is an interesting statement, and is given here :

A constitution was drafted, rules for competition framed, and it was decided to hold an athletic championship meeting in the month of June. It was agreed to circularise influential gentlemen with the object of raising a fund to provide challenge cups for certain events, and the Association undertook to award silver medals to the winners and bronze medals to the runners-up. The following standards were also adopted for certain events :

440 Yards	53 sec.	High Jump	5 ft. 6 in.
880 Yards	2 min. 5 sec.	Broad Jump	20 ft. 3 in.
One Mile	4 min. 40 sec.	Pole Vault	9 ft. 8 in.
		Putting the Weight	37 ft.

Favoured with bright weather the first Championship Meeting was duly promoted on 23rd June 1883, at Powderhall Grounds, Edinburgh. It met with splendid support from the public, over 3000 spectators attending, and the sport witnessed was of a very high order of merit. A perusal of the returns of this meeting (p. 68) discloses the names of many personalities, memories of whom are still cherished in Scottish amateur sporting circles. To those of the older generation, the names of the following—selected at random—will no doubt create pleasant memories and revive a “flood” of reminiscence: Dr. John Smith (Queen’s Park F.C.), whose fame as a soccer player was international; the late David S. Duncan, for so many years the Honorary Secretary of the Association; A. R. Don Wauchope, the famous Fettesian-Lorettonian Rugby Internationalist; “Charlie” Reid (Edinburgh Academicals), whose Herculean proportions and prodigious feats on the football field—both on International and lesser occasions—are still discussed by older generations of sportsmen; Harry A. Watt, later to represent a Glasgow constituency for many years in the House of Commons; Kenneth Whitton, happily still with us, and active in the production of this volume ; and W. A. Peterkin, a splendid all-round athlete, and also a Rugby Internationalist. Possessed of a rich baritone voice, Peterkin was well known on London concert platforms.

Thus, under the most propitious circumstances, the S.A.A.A. began its work of propaganda on behalf of the principles of amateurism—a labour which has continued without interruption, sometimes under times of severe stress, but always with its definite purpose clear and unshakable. The steadily increasing influence exerted by the Association becomes apparent from the augmented list of affiliated clubs published in 1885, two years later. In addition to the scholastic bodies which formed the nucleus of the Association, there was now an influx of clubs devoted to kindred sports and professing the amateur faith, e.g. cricket, football (Association and Rugby), and swimming, whilst affiliation was also effected by athletic sections of various units of Volunteer organisations of that period.

Consequent upon an ever-widening radius of the Association's authority, and with an increasing importance of territorial distinctions, a new system of local government was instituted in the form of Divisional Committees. As originally constituted these were composed of six members in the Western Division and a like number in the Eastern area. W. H. Kidston (West of Scotland F.C.), who had in turn filled the offices of Vice-President and President of the Association, became the first Convener of the Western District Committee, an office which in later years (1892) was to be reconstituted under the title of Western District Secretary, with much wider responsibilities.

Steady progress marked the early years of the Association's life. Much work of a constructive nature was accomplished, both by Divisional and General Committees, and by the close of 1886 there were 25 clubs on the roll of membership. Further distinction was added to the Association by the fact that their deliberations had been presided over by Sir John H. A. Macdonald, Q.C., M.P. (later to be raised to the Scottish Bench as Lord Kingsburgh)—one of Scotland's most eminent sons.

A substantial financial loss was incurred through the Championship Meeting held in 1887—owing to many counter-attractions being organised on the occasion of Queen Victoria's Jubilee—but the Annual Report issued in March 1888 strikes a high note of optimism. The closing sentence of that document reads : " It gives great pleasure to state that there has been an entire absence of any malpractices among competitors."

The condition of affairs was almost approaching the idyllic. Administration was proceeding so smoothly that in 1889 the General Committee had only to meet upon four occasions, and it is recorded that " their duties were not of an arduous nature."

It may be appropriate at this stage to draw another parallel between the histories of the A.A.A. and the S.A.A.A. A few years after the formation of the Southern body, they found themselves involved in a vehement dispute with the National Cyclists' Union. The point in dispute was the management of cycle races at athletic meetings, authority over which was claimed by the N.C.U. This was resisted by the A.A.A., who repudiated the right of the other body to interfere with the sports meetings promoted by clubs affiliated to the A.A.A. Nearly a year of disputation ensued, but happily terms of arrangement were concluded between the parties to the satisfaction of the respective bodies.

It was in 1889—consequent upon overtures made by the Glasgow Local Centre of the N.C.U.—that the Annual Championships of the Association were promoted under the auspices of the joint bodies. Exception to this combination of forces, however, was taken by the Scottish Cyclists' Union, who claimed to be the governing body for that sport in Scotland. To prove its contention the S.C.U. declared its willingness to submit to a plebiscite of all the cycling units in Scotland to ascertain the number of adherents to the N.C.U. and S.C.U. respectively. To this test the N.C.U. did not submit itself, and thereupon, the way being clear, agreement was entered into by the S.A.A.A. and the S.C.U. for the promotion of joint sports meetings and the supervision of amateur interests generally in these kindred sports. This proved to be a most momentous step for the S.A.A.A. It was fraught, indeed, with consequences which at a later date rent the structure of the Association and led to a disruption of its forces.

In the summer of 1890 it became apparent to the Executive of the S.A.A.A. that malpractices were being indulged in by competitors. Charges of roping were frequent, and betting was flagrantly practised at many amateur promotions. So blatant had the evil become that legal opinion was obtained as to the rights of sports-holding clubs to suppress betting at their sports. The heterogenous nature of the Association's membership roll was now becoming an embarrassment to the Executive, and there was clearly perceptible a distinct drift from the original concepts of the Association. An attempt to ban football competition of any nature whatever at sports held under S.A.A.A. laws was defeated. On the other hand, successful representations were made to the Scottish Football Association by a deputation, consisting of representatives from the Grange Cricket Club, the S.C.U., and the S.A.A.A., to impose a close season of two months upon football.

The liaison between the S.A.A.A. and the S.C.U. began to be irksome to both parties. Misunderstandings repeatedly occurred ; there was an interminable series of conferences, and a continual atmosphere of friction was prevalent both on questions of policy and principle. Late in 1893, at a meeting of the General Committee of the Association, notice was given that a discussion would be opened " on the present state of cycling in Scotland, with especial reference to makers' amateurism and also to alleged payments by way of expenses or otherwise to amateur athletes." To discuss the position raised a special meeting of General Committee was convened, and as a result of its deliberations an " Athletic Abuses Commission " was nominated with full powers to take evidence, etc. The personnel of this Commission consisted of Messrs. D. C. Brown (Vice-President), J. M. Bow, A. McNab, F. Matheson, J. Caw, and D. S. Duncan (Hon. Secretary).

The Commission held many meetings, evidence—both oral and written—was obtained from various sources. On 15th January 1894, a report was submitted to the General Committee, and, after full discussion, generally approved of. The findings which were arrived at were, briefly, as follows :

- (1) That the payment of prominent competitors' hotel and travelling expenses was prevalent in Scotland.
- (2) That, further, money payments were made to certain amateur athletes.
- (3) That the non-payment of entry-fees by competitors—especially in cycling events—was a common practice.
- (4) That open betting was prevalent in Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Paisley.

- (5) That betting and roping was demoralising amateur athletics throughout Scotland.

This was a strong indictment, and action was promptly taken upon those findings—which disclosed the parlous condition into which amateur athletics had fallen—and the offending parties dealt with.

Subsequently, however, upon appeal and submission of the argument that certain of the evidence had been obtained by the Commission upon assurances of immunity for certain witnesses—which was denied by members of the Commission—the penalties which had been imposed upon the offending parties were cancelled, and an unsavoury episode closed.

Thus, in the course of a decade of its life the Association had passed from a state of idealism to one which revealed the stark materialism which had permeated amateur sport. But still more testing times were to be experienced.

In 1895 there were fifty-four clubs in membership of the Association, more than one-third being comprised of football clubs, the management of which was organised upon amateur principles. Two years prior to this date (1893) however, professional football in Scotland became legalised, yet many of the football clubs who adopted the professional code still retained membership of the Scottish Amateur Athletic Association. It is a remarkable fact that this anomalous position—challenged from time to time—existed until 1933, when the constitution of the S.A.A.A. was amended to restrict membership to amateur bodies only.

That there was a distinct decline in the morale of athletic sports meetings at this period is evidenced by the abnormal number of suspensions of athletes dealt with by the S.A.A.A. The betting canker, with its accompanying evils, was still eating its way into the vitals of amateurism, and no legal assistance was possible because of the existing state of the Gaming Laws.

Early in 1895 the Scottish Cyclists' Union gave notice to terminate their agreement with the S.A.A.A. on the plea that it was unworkable. Prior to this intimation, the General Council of the Union had had under consideration the amendment of the definition of an amateur cyclist.

Its purport was to create two classes of amateurs—an (A) class, which was to consist of amateurs in the absolute sense; and a (B) class, riders in which were to be qualified to receive expenses from "cycle manufacturers, tyre makers, or other persons interested in the trade or sport of cycle riding." The period in question embraced the years of the great cycle boom, when manufacturers exploited every available avenue to develop machine and accessory sales. There was further disagreement also upon rules of procedure. Later, the S.C.U. in general meeting of its membership adopted the two-class definition referred to, and thus intensified the position. It was the first task of the newly-elected Executive of the S.A.A.A. to take up the challenge offered by the Cyclists' Union on this vital question of principle. The S.A.A.A. unhesitatingly declared the (B) class cyclist to be a professional, and in this finding they were supported by the A.A.A. and the Irish A.A.A. With the refusal of the S.C.U. to allow cycle races at sports held under the S.A.A.A. until (B) class riders were recognised as amateurs a crisis was precipitated, and open rupture resulted.

Scotland was now a divided household athletically, and a new organisation entitled the Scottish Amateur Athletic Union—largely composed of seceding clubs in the Western area—came into being. Thus it was that with diminished forces the S.A.A.A. went forward to engage in its first athletic contest with Ireland, only to acknowledge defeat by a single event.

Towards the end of 1896 there were signs of a rapprochement between the S.A.A.A. and the S.A.A.U., which received further encouragement from the fact that the Cyclists' Union had now openly espoused professionalism in cycling events. A conference was arranged, and following several further conversations the following resolutions were submitted, inter alia, as a basis for amalgamation:

"(a) That it is advisable to recognise the principle that clubs have the option of having professional bicycle racing at their athletic meetings.

"(d) That a Sub-Committee of five be appointed from the S.A.A.A., with a similar number from the S.A.A.U., in the adjusting of the Rules of the Association, and in the taking of the necessary steps with a view to amalgamation."

Virtually the dispute was now at an end, and the final act of re-union took place on 23rd April 1897. It is worthy of mention that the final chord of sincerity was sounded by both parties in the election of Mr. D. Mackenzie—who had been a strong protagonist of the S.A.A.U.—to the Presidency of the newly-consolidated Association.

Agreements between the S.A.A.A. and the S.C.U. were still entered into from time to time embodying rules for granting permits to each other, and the recognition of complete individual autonomy. At a later date, a compact was agreed to that the S.C.U. "in the interests of amateurism do not grant permits for amateur cycle races at professional meetings within a twenty miles radius of Edinburgh, Glasgow, Dundee, Aberdeen, Perth, and Ayr." The Annual Athletic Championships continued to be held under joint auspices until 1899, after which date, however, the meeting became solely the promotion of the S.A.A.A.

Coincident with these momentous happenings, developments were proceeding in the sphere of international relationships, and at the instance of the Scottish body a joint conference was held at Leeds in the early spring of 1896 with representatives of the A.A.A. and the Irish A.A.A. The items submitted for discussion are noteworthy. They were: "(a) Uniform definition of an Amateur; (b) Relations of Cycling to Amateur Sport; (c) Assimilation of Rules for Competition; (d) Jurisdiction; (e) International Contests; and (f) the formation of an International Board." There is even at this distance of time a familiar note in such an agenda. It may be of interest to detail the personnel of this conference: (A.A.A.): Messrs. T. M. Abraham, C. Herbert, F. Wilkes; (I.A.A.A.): Messrs. E. McAlister, E. J. Walsh, J. T. Magee; (S.A.A.A.): W. P. Arnot, F. Matheson, D. S. Duncan. The Scottish body had the honour of providing the Chairman (F. Matheson), and the Secretary (D. S. Duncan) for this meeting.

Comparatively uneventful years followed. In 1900 the Inter-Scholastic Sports were revived after a period of abeyance for fifteen years, having been abandoned through lack of support. They have been continued, however, without interruption ever since. Four years later (1904), the Association attained its majority, and the occasion was celebrated by a dinner which was held in Edinburgh on 17th March of that year. The Lord-Justice-Clerk of Scotland presided over a large company, consisting of representatives from every branch of sport. The intervening years had been full of achievement, missionary work on behalf of amateur athletics had been undertaken throughout the country, and the fruit of these labours had been the founding of subsidiary bodies in the South (the Scottish Border A.A.A.), and also in the North (the North of Scotland A.A.A.). During this time three ex-Presidents had passed over in the persons of Messrs. J. Brewis (Royal High School), its first President, described as the founder of the Association, T. Lawrie (Queen's Park F.C.), and E. J. Comrie Thomson (Edinburgh Academicals).

There was still, however, a certain unhealthiness prevailing in the areas where sports promotions were conducted on the larger scale. Relief from the betting evil was not yet available, and gross cases of personation were proved to have taken place throughout the United Kingdom. These abuses were dealt with in a salutary fashion by the Association, and the offenders summarily treated. At last in 1906 the passing of the Streets Betting Bill gave that remedy which had been for so many years sought by sports-promoting clubs. It contained a clause which gave powers to such bodies to suppress all betting at their sports and eject from the grounds all such offenders.

The effect of this Act was immediate. There was a considerable diminution in attendances at sports meetings, but on the other hand there was a more wholesome atmosphere in the proceedings. With the removal of the book-maker and his assistants from sports enclosures, amateur athletics began a return journey to the ideals which had imbued its disciples nearly a quarter of a century earlier. In this connection it is remarkable to note that for three successive years there was not a single case of roping dealt with in Committees. Reference is made with great satisfaction in the Association's Report for the year 1906 as being one of great moment. It witnessed Scotland's first athletic success in Ireland; the winning of four flat Championships in one afternoon by Lieut. W. Halswell, and the passing into law of the Streets Betting Bill. Full acknowledgement is also made to "the services of H. A. Watt, M.P., a hurdles titleholder of the S.A.A.A.," on behalf of amateur athletics in the House of Commons.

The closing years of the third decade of the Association were characterised by a steady improvement in the tone of the sport. Many matters of minor importance were discussed, but there was no "vital" questions to engage the attention of the Executive. One item may be mentioned as of passing interest. An expression of opinion had been invited from the S.A.A.A. as to the propriety of the administration of oxygen to athletes during their progress through competitions, and one reads that the Committee were adverse to any such "scientific" innovation.

There was now a perceptible change evident in the character of athletic competition at this date. Relay racing was helping to foster a keener team spirit in the arena, scratch races were more frequent, and inter-club athletic competitions were also gaining in popularity. International competition was organised on a yet wider basis, and 1914 saw the inaugural contest of the Triangular Match between England, Ireland, and Scotland at Hampden Park, Glasgow, when the élite of the United Kingdom's athletes met in competition.

A few weeks later, the youth of the nation was hurrying to an arena wherein issues of world-wide significance were to be decided: humanity was now to date its calendar by epochs of service and sacrifice rather than by sporting and social functions.

IN common with similar national organisations the Association suffered severe losses to its personnel in the Great War, and it was with practically a new generation of athletes that a return to normal activity was made in 1920. During the War years much good work was done by promoting sports meetings on behalf of Red Cross agencies, and assisting other bodies to carry on their work of ministering to the needs of the Allied combatants. Whilst the Annual Championship Meeting was left in abeyance from 1915-18, the Inter-Scholastic Games meeting was wisely continued, the gross drawings on each occasion being devoted entirely to benevolent purposes.

The resumption of athletic activities witnessed a period of great enthusiasm in sports attendances. The long years of rigorous discipline and restriction had created a public with an overwhelming desire for entertainment and a return to their pre-war distractions. In the north, south, east, and west sports meetings were favoured with large attendances; competitors were numerous in all classes of competition, and many new athletic societies were added to the Association's membership. Especially noticeable was the activity displayed in promoting the principles of amateur athletics by Y.M.C.A. executives, Industrial Welfare Societies, and kindred bodies. Permits for open sports meetings were issued to an extent never before experienced. There was, in addition, a renewal of International relations, and delegates from the A.A.A., the Irish A.A.A., and the S.A.A.A. met to discuss matters of common interest.

This happy state of affairs, however, did not continue. Towards the end of 1923 the blight of unemployment was responsible for the abandonment of many sports promotions, and a few of the newer affiliations lapsed from Association membership. Withal, there was among the more firmly established bodies a steady trend towards the development of athletic competition upon a team or representative basis. Grants were received from the British Olympic Association to provide greater opportunities for Scottish athletes, with a view to their selection as representatives in the Olympic Games. A scheme of supervision over four territorial areas was evolved, in which paid trainers were appointed and field impedimenta provided.

Following upon these preparations and subsequent tests ten Scottish athletes, who subsequently acquitted themselves with great credit, were nominated by the British Olympic Association for the Olympic Games at Paris in 1924. The wonderful achievement of E. H. Liddell in the 400 metres race which he won in world's record time ($47\frac{2}{5}$ sec.), crowned the career of this superb athlete and shed lustre on his native country and the Association.

In 1925 the death of Mr. D. S. Duncan, who had acted as Honorary Secretary of the Association for forty years, created a feeling of profound regret throughout the amateur athletic world. Generous tribute has been paid to his memory by the inclusion in this book of an appreciation by one who knew him best, and also by portraying the man as we best knew him by way of a frontispiece. To Mr. George Hume has fallen the mantle of "D. S. D.," and he has worn the garment with the same grace and dignity that characterised the actions of his predecessor. Further heavy bereavement was sustained in the passing of Mr. M. F. Dickson, who for nearly twenty years controlled the finances of the Association, and who died shortly after his election to the office of President.

Within comparatively recent years, still further developments in the scheme of amateur athletic competition have been observed. To a large extent the sports fixture so popular in earlier years is being superseded by competitions promoted between athletic clubs on the team principle, thus cultivating the spirit of esprit de corps to an extent hitherto unapproached, and indeed also approximating more closely to the original purposes of the Association. The formation of bodies such as the Universities and F.P. Athletic Unions and the Atalanta Club has stimulated this development to an extensive degree, and inter-club contests between harrier bodies and schools former pupils' organisations form one of the chief features of the Scottish athletic season.

The question of ground facilities is closely related to these aspects of athletic culture, and further progress on such lines is still possible ; indeed the practical sympathy and co-operation of municipal bodies have been aroused on this point in many cities, and municipal sports enclosures are now a feature of both Edinburgh and Glasgow recreational schemes.

In the sphere of International athletics, the S.A.A.A. has always been prominent, and the part played by the Association in the first British Empire Games, held at Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, in 1930, is well worthy of mention. Under the auspices of the Scottish National Sports Federation—a body representative of the main amateur Sports Associations—a sum of £1200 was raised for this purpose, and representatives of Scottish athletics, swimming, and boxing maintained worthily the prestige of their native land. Associated with the Committee of this Federation who undertook the onerous work of organising this project was Sir Iain Colquhoun, Bart., D.S.O., whose influence and personality contributed in large degree to the success of their labours—labours which were more than recompensed on witnessing the joy of the Scottish colony in Hamilton at the wonderful victory of D. McL. Wright in the Marathon race.

Following a certain regrettable misunderstanding in 1932, the amicable relations which existed between the A.A.A. and the S.A.A.A. became somewhat strained, with the result that the Scottish Association—desirous of a “place in the sun”—lodged an application with the I.A.A.F. for independent membership. However, after a most harmonious conference between representatives of the two Associations, the formation of an International Board—to embrace the re-constituted North of Ireland A.A.A.—was suggested and subsequently unanimously adopted by each of the three bodies without impairing in any way the domestic autonomy of the respective Associations. This resulted in the withdrawal of the S.A.A.A. application for independent recognition by the I.A.A.F., and, with a direct representation of three on the newly-formed International Board, Scotland now has a share in the promotion and control of International athletics. The relationship between the three Associations has now been cemented to an extent which augurs well for the future.

Reference was made at the outset of this general review to the necessity for confining the survey to that concerning the activities of the S.A.A.A. rather than to attempt the task of tracing the origins of amateurism in Scottish athletics, yet even the present treatment of the subject seems fragmentary and inadequate, and does but bare justice to the memory of those pioneers who “builted better than they knew.”

With the passing years the administration of the Association's affairs has become increasingly exacting in its demands upon the time and energies of those who undertake the responsibilities of office, and an unwearied devotion and zealous guardianship of amateur athletic interests has ever been a strong characteristic of the Association's policy.

To the future generation of amateur athletes—for whom the foundations have been so well and truly laid—there is great inspiration in both the deeds and service herein recorded, and probably at no time in the history of the Scottish Amateur Athletic Association has it approached more closely to the ideals of its founders, or has its administrators viewed with greater confidence and pride the qualities of those who are the immediate heirs and successors.

A CHRONOLOGICAL RECORD

THE following outstanding items regarding the S.A.A.A. Championships, Scottish athletes, and other facts relative to the Association's history may prove of general interest.

1883. First Championship Meeting of the Scottish Amateur Athletic Association held on Saturday, 23rd June, at Powderhall Grounds, Edinburgh. There were 90 entrants, and the promotion resulted in an athletic and financial success.

1884. Among the entrants at the Championship Meeting this year was J. M. Cowie, holder of the A.A.A. 440 yards title in 1883-1884. He won the 100 yards (10 sec.) and the 440 yards ($51\frac{1}{5}$ sec.). This was his first appearance in Scotland. The following year Cowie won the A.A.A. 100 yards title for the third successive year.

Throwing the Cricket Ball item was omitted from the list of future Championship events.

1885. A Challenge Cup was presented by A. Duncan Esq., Glasgow, for the 880 yards race. The 440 yards title was won this year by S. Henderson, a pupil of George Watson's College in $51\frac{1}{2}$ sec. Henderson was only seventeen years of age, and is probably the youngest athlete to gain championship honours. He won the 880 yards title the following year.

1886. The Ten Miles race was introduced this year. It was decided on the Monday following the Championship Meeting (28th June), at Powderhall Grounds.

1887. The Championship Meeting was held this year for the first time at Hampden Park, Glasgow (i.e. Old Hampden Park). Press reports state that 500 persons paid for admission. The Four Miles race was introduced at this date.

1888. D. S. Duncan created a Scottish native record for One Mile (4 min. 28 sec.).

1889. Following upon a series of conferences between the National Cyclists' Union and the S.A.A.A. a Joint-Championship Meeting was promoted, when cycling events were included in the programme. A feature of this Meeting was the triple event accomplished by J. L. Greig (Fettesian-Lorettonian Club) who won the 120 Yards Hurdles ($16\frac{2}{3}$ sec.), Broad Jump (20 ft. 4 in.), and High Jump (5 ft. 6 in.).

Local officers first appointed.

Election of A. S. Blair as President. While at Oxford A. S. Blair had a distinguished career as an athlete, representing his University in the 100 Yards and 440 Yards for three years, 1884-5-6, and winning the 440 Yards in 1885 against Cambridge.

1890. North of Scotland A.A.A. formed.

1891. A. Hannah (Clydesdale Harriers) created a new Scottish record when winning the Ten Miles Championship in 54 min. $18\frac{3}{5}$ sec.

1892. 220 Yards race introduced. The first holder was N. A. Macleod (Glasgow University A.C.) in $23\frac{4}{5}$ sec. Macleod also won the 120 Yards Hurdles race on this occasion.

Three Challenge Cups were provided by the Association for the following Championship events: Four Miles, Ten Miles, and 120 Yards Hurdles.

1893. Triple honours were won in flat events this year by A. R. Downer (Edinburgh Institution F.C.) in 100 Yards ($10\frac{3}{5}$ sec.), 220 Yards ($23\frac{2}{5}$ sec.), and 440 Yards ($53\frac{2}{5}$ sec.). A. Hannah (Clydesdale Harriers) achieved a similar success in winning the One Mile (4 min. 36 sec.), Four Miles (21 min. $36\frac{2}{5}$ sec.), and Ten Miles (55 min, $12\frac{3}{5}$ sec.). In addition to his successes in these S.A.A.A. events, Hannah was also the Scottish Cross-Country champion in this year.

1894. Owing to lack of support from athletes the Three Miles Walk event was omitted from the Championship programme. Contemporary press reports of this Championship Meeting state that "the proceedings opened before a gathering of 200 spectators"!

Athletic Abuses Commission appointed to inquire into alleged malpractices by sports promoting clubs and amateur athletes.

1895. First International Contest with Irish A.A.A. This was held at Celtic Park, Glasgow on 20th July, and resulted in a win for Ireland by the odd event in eleven. No fewer than four Scottish records were established and two were equalled.

A new Ten Miles Scottish record was established by A. Hannah in winning the Championship race in 53 min. 26 sec.

A rupture took place between the Councils of the S.A.A.A. and the Scottish Cyclists' Union upon a policy of definitions regarding professional and amateur cyclists.

No agreement on the point was arrived at, and a split took place. A new athletic body was formed under the title of the Scottish Amateur Athletic Union to act in co-operation with the S.C.U. For two years the new body held a separate Championship Meeting (1895-1896) details of which are to be found on pp. 81-2.

1896. Scottish Border A.A.A. instituted.

1897. H. Welsh (Watson's College A.C.) broke the native record in winning the One Mile race (4 min. 24 $\frac{1}{5}$ sec.), after gaining the 880 Yards title in 2 min. 2 sec. During his brief career as an athlete Welsh gained many honours. His best performance was achieved in 1898 when he won the A.A.A. One Mile Championship in 4 min. 17 $\frac{1}{5}$ sec., retaining this title in 1899 in 4 min. 25 sec. Never fully tested, Welsh had great potentialities as a runner, and was probably the greatest miler Scotland ever produced.

1899. From this date the Championship Meeting was promoted under the sole jurisdiction of the S.A.A.A., embracing purely athletic items, and no further Joint Championships with the Scottish Cyclists' Union were held.

J. Paterson (Watson's College A.C.) won the Four Miles Championship for the third year in succession. He also held the N.C.C.U. individual title for three successive years (1898-1900).

1900. Inter-Scholastic Games resuscitated after a lapse of fifteen years. Eight schools entered, and the Schools Championship was won by Watson's College.

1903. The chief feature of this year's Championships was the unique performance of John McGough (Bellahouston Harriers) who won the 880 Yards (2 min.

1 $\frac{3}{8}$ sec.), One Mile (4 min. 27 $\frac{3}{8}$ sec.), and Four Miles (20 min. 30 $\frac{1}{8}$ sec.).

1904. After a period of ten years the Three Miles Walk event was reintroduced to the Championship programme. This race was won by R. Quinn (Bellahouston Harriers) for seven years in succession (1904-1910).

In winning the High Jump Championship R. G. Murray (West of Scotland Harriers) cleared 6 ft. 0 $\frac{1}{2}$ in., creating a Scottish native record which still remains unbeaten.

George Hume, Esq., Edinburgh presented a Challenge Cup for the Three Miles Walk.

1906. A feat, unparalleled hitherto, was accomplished in this year's Championships by Lieut. Wyndham Halswell (H.L.I.), in winning four flat events: 100 Yards (10 $\frac{2}{5}$ sec.), 220 Yards (23 $\frac{1}{5}$ sec.), 440 Yards (51 $\frac{2}{5}$ sec.), and 880 Yards (2 min. 0 $\frac{2}{5}$ sec.). Lieut. Halswell created athletic history on many occasions during his brilliant career as an athlete, and was an Olympic Games winner in the 400 Metres race in 1908. He fell in action at the battle of Neuve Chapelle on 31st March 1915.

1907. John McGough (Bellahouston Harriers) won the One Mile race for the sixth year in succession on this occasion, and so far as Championship titles are concerned capped an extraordinary successful career as an athlete. In handicap events he probably won more races from the scratch mark than any other Scottish athlete. On the other hand, he had the unenviable experience of running second three years in succession in the A.A.A. One Mile Championship.

T. Jack (Edinburgh Southern Harriers) created a new record in the Ten Miles Championship race. His time was 53 min. 4 sec.

Principle of registration numbers for athletes adopted. The total number of athletes registered this year was 1196, of whom 397 were in the Eastern District and 799 in the West. Complete records of each competitor's performances were made available for reference.

1908. A Challenge Cup was presented by the Scottish National Exhibition Committee for the High Jump Championship. The Hammer was thrown from a

- 7-foot circle this year, and a similar condition was observed also in the Putting the Weight Championship.
1912. T. Jack (Edinburgh Southern Harriers) won the Ten Miles Championship for the seventh time—five of them in succession. He gained the Scottish Cross-Country Union title also on three occasions (1907, 1908, 1912).
1913. Tug-of-War event introduced.
Challenge Cup presented by C. D. Paton, Esq., for 220 Yards race.
G. C. L. Wallach (Greenock Glenpark Harriers), won the Ten Miles Championship in 53 min. 1 sec. thus creating a new Scottish native record.
1914. The "Crabbie Cup," presented by the late George Crabbie, Esq., first awarded. This trophy is awarded to the competitor whose performance in the Championships is considered by the General Committee of the S.A.A.A. to be the most meritorious.
First Triangular Contest held at Hampden Park, Glasgow.
1915. No chronicle of events would be complete were it not recorded
| opposite these fateful years the Association's most cherished
1918. remembrances of that great team of Scottish athletes who gave their lives for their country.
1919. First post-War Championship Meeting. One Mile Relay race introduced
1921. Points Medal presented by Glasgow Police A.C. to be awarded to the competitor who scores the greatest aggregate of points. Points awarded thus: First, 5 points; Second, 3 points. This Medal was gained by T. R. Nicolson (West of Scotland Harriers) for the first three years of its existence.

Challenge Cups were presented for the following events: Broad Jump (by Lieut.-Col. J. A. Hope, V.D.); Throwing the Hammer (wire handle) (by A. M. Bryson, Esq., Glasgow); One Mile Relay race (by T. K. Fair, Esq., Glasgow).

This year witnessed also the introduction to Scottish amateur athletics of E. H. Liddell (Edinburgh University A.C.), whose great achievements will be found in detail in the statistical section. Many great runners have gained Scottish Championship honours, but both by the time test and the test of performance Liddell has proved himself the greatest of them all.

Throwing the 56 lb. Weight and Throwing the Hammer (Standing Style) added to list of Championship events.

1922. J. K. Ballantyne, Esq., of Walkerburn, presented a Challenge Trophy for the Tug-of-War event.

1923. Seven Miles Walk introduced. In winning this event for the third year in succession (1923-5), C. McLellan (Shettleston Harriers) created a Scottish Native Record of 51 min. 42 $\frac{2}{5}$ sec. This is still a record performance.

D. McPhee won the 880 Yards and One Mile races for the fourth successive year (1920-1923). In 1922 he won the A.A.A. One Mile Championship. The One Mile race in the Triangular Contest was also won by McPhee in 1914-20-21.

1924. In winning the Throwing the Hammer event this year T. R. Nicolson (West of Scotland Harriers) completed a winning sequence extending to 19 years (1902-1924). His complete record of Championship titles reads as follows :

	FIRSTS
Throwing the Hammer (Wire Handle)	. 19
Throwing the Hammer (Standing Style)	. 3
Putting the Weight	. 14
Throwing the 56 lb. Weight	. 4

In addition to the above Nicolson also won the Hammer event at the A.A.A. Championship on six occasions, gaining also the Putting the Weight title in 1903. He had also many successes in International contests. There is no other record in athletic history to compare with Nicolson's extraordinary achievement.

1925. Throwing the Javelin and Throwing the Discus adopted as Championship events. The former event was won by an Anglo-Scot—J. Dalrymple—1925-26-27, and A. Smith (Glasgow Police A.C.) appropriated the latter honour 1925-26-27-28.

D. S. Duncan, Esq., who had acted for forty years as Honorary Secretary of the Association, died in March of this year.

1926. D. McL. Wright who won the Ten Miles title for the second successive year, was pre-eminent as a long-distance runner. During his career he won many races of the type known as Marathon, showing extraordinary powers of endurance. Wright also won the N.C.C.U. individual honour on four occasions.
1928. Amended Rules for Competition relative to Broad Jump Measurements, 120 Yards Hurdles, Putting the Weight, and Throwing the Hammer first applied.
1929. In winning the Ten Miles Championship J. Suttie Smith (Dundee Thistle Harriers) established a new Native Record (51 min. $37\frac{4}{5}$ sec.).
1930. Registration scheme abandoned.
1931. 100 Yards and 880 Yards Youths' races introduced as Championship events.
1932. Honorary Life Vice-Presidents first appointed.
First two-day Championship Meeting held.
J. F. Wood (Heriot's (F.P.) A.C.) achieved a remarkable performance by winning the S.A.A.A. Ten Miles Championship (52 min. 13 sec.) and also the A.A.A. Ten Miles title (52 min. $0\frac{1}{5}$ sec.) in the same year.
1933. New Rule introduced restricting membership of the S.A.A.A. to Amateur bodies only.
J. Suttie Smith (Canon Athletic Sports Club), winning the Ten Miles Championship for the fourth time (51 min. $41\frac{2}{5}$ sec.), set up a unique standard of merit for this event. His average time for the series of wins in this race is 52 min. $10\frac{4}{5}$ sec., a standard which is not excelled by any other similar title-holder in the United Kingdom.
T. Blakely (Maryhill Harriers) created two new Scottish native records in May of this year by running 2 miles in 9 min. $19\frac{4}{5}$ secs. and 3 miles in 14 min. 33 secs.

AMATEUR ATHLETICS IN THE BORDERS

By J. K. BALLANTYNE

FIFTY, or even forty, years ago, amateur athletics practically did not exist in the Scottish Borders. Between Berwick, Edinburgh, and Carlisle, the triangle that roughly includes the territory now administered by the S.B.A.A.A., not a single amateur athletic meeting was held; professionalism had the field to itself. Annual Games were, and still are, held in most of the towns and villages of the Borders, but it was only the pervading holiday spirit and the fun of the fair that made some of them even tolerable. The presence of the bookmakers shouting their cramped odds, and the fact that a few shillings might sway the result of a race, did not tend to hold the interest of the looker-on; nevertheless, these games were the only outlet for the budding aspirations of a young athlete, and whatever his first ambitions as to athletic glory might be, they were likely to become subordinate to the sordid considerations of £ s. d. Many resented this, but in the total absence of amateur meetings they were helpless, and drifted into the professional ranks.

Therefore, in 1895, when Mr. D. S. Duncan first cast his eyes on the Borders as a prospective field, the ground was really ripe for some amateur effort. What perhaps was at the back of the enthusiastic Secretary's mind, as well as spreading the amateur gospel, was the strengthening of his own Association, between whom and the seceding body, the S.A.A.U., the quarrel was now at its height.

A small circumstance had also perhaps some influence in directing Mr. Duncan's gaze to the Borders. In that same year, 1895, there was formed in Innerleithen an athletic club under the title of "The Scottish Pelicans." This club included in its limited membership several names still familiar in the Borders, W. Lindsay Watson, Tom Scott (Langholm), J. K. Ballantyne, and last, but not, least A. R. Downer. It is not generally known that Downer spent a great deal of his boyhood on the banks of the Tweed, and that his first races were run on Caberstone Haugh against the boys of Walkerburn Public School.

The meeting at which the S.B.A.A.A. was formed was held in the Tower Hotel, Hawick, on Saturday 18th January 1896. Mr. Duncan himself took the chair, and successfully launched the new venture. There was a fair attendance, and several of those present did yeoman service for the cause in the early days of the Association.

The Rev. J. M. Mann, Langholm, was elected first President, but he never, we think, acted in that capacity, and John Wightman, junior, occupied the chair at the earlier meetings. J. K. Ballantyne was the first Secretary and David Redpath, Kelso, the Treasurer.

The title first proposed for the new body was the Border Amateur Athletic Association, but it was pointed out that there were two sides to the Borders and over one of them we had no jurisdiction, so the word Scottish was added. The Committee included James Thomson (Hawick), W. E. Ballantyne (St. Boswells), M. Craig-Brown (Selkirk), and others representative of the large stretch of country under its government.

That territory first included the counties of Berwick, Roxburgh, Peebles, Selkirk, Dumfries, Kirkcudbright, and Wigton, but in the following year the latter two, and part of Dumfriesshire, were handed back to the parent body to administer, as their geographical position and lack of good railway connections made it difficult to control them from St. Boswells, the first headquarters of the Association.

Prior to the days of motor-cars, St. Boswells, being an important railway junction, was the usual meeting-place for anything of general interest to the Borders.

In those early days the workers were few, but they made up in enthusiasm and hard work for their lack of numbers. Some of them are no longer with us, but were they living they would surely feel that their pioneer efforts had not been in vain.

From the beginning the Melrose Football Club has always proved a good friend to the Association, and it was at their annual football sports in 1896 that the first race, a 440 yards handicap, was run under the auspices of the new body.

The Association itself held two meetings in the first year of its existence, one at Melrose in May and the other at Hawick in the autumn. Both these were highly successful from a sporting point of view, and did a great deal to encourage amateur athletics. Since then, so well has the work been taken up by the affiliated clubs that it has not been necessary for the Association to hold sports of its own except the Championship Meetings, which have been instituted in the last few years.

The first sports at Melrose were a bit of a blow from a financial standpoint. In pre-motor days the railway was the only means of transport in a widely scattered district, and as the sports were intended to cater for the Borders as a whole special trains had to be arranged for and the necessary guarantees given. A. R. Downer had promised to run, and, with his then immense drawing power, give the new Association a good send-off. Unfortunately, the English Northern Counties A.A.A. stepped in at the last moment and issued an ultimatum that if he did not run at their championships on the same day he would probably be suspended.

Downer had been well billed all over the Borders, and the Secretary felt that in justice to the public he had to make the fact known that the great runner would not appear. In consequence, the attendance was only about one-third of what it might have been. On several of the trains the guarantee had to be paid up. Those who did attend, however, had no cause to be dissatisfied with the sport.

The meeting at Hawick, fortunately, paid its way well, and thanks to some of the early patrons, amongst whom were Sir Richard Waldie-Griffith, the late Earl of Dudley, Lord Glenconner, Major Thorburn of Scottish rifle fame, and Mr. S. Strang-Steel of Philiphaugh, the Association was soon out of the financial shoals.

To turn from patrons to the work of the clubs, the Association should be grateful to the Hawick Football Club, who, as well as Melrose, have always included a foot-race in their football sports programme. But the two pillars of the Association have been the Teviotdale Harriers and the Gala Harriers. The healthy rivalry that has always existed between the two Border burghs has been carried into the realm of athletics, and, as rivalry is the essence of sport, so athletics in the Borders have profited by it. Other clubs, too, have arisen, some of which have not survived, but even so their efforts still bear fruit, and although the list of affiliated clubs is not long, no large district is without one, and all are in a healthy condition. The Border athlete is well catered for during the season.

But the greatest feather in the cap of the Association is perhaps the fact that two great representative organisations, the Hawick Common Riding Committee and the Galashiels "Braw Lads" Council, at their annual festivals hold important meetings under its rules. Indeed, so successful have these meetings been in interesting the public that in Hawick, for this year at least, the Committee are holding a Junior Amateur Meeting instead of catering for the professionals, as they have hitherto impartially done on one of the two days of their holiday.

Mention of junior sports reminds us of the good work that has been accomplished by the Education Committees of Selkirkshire and Peeblesshire in holding sports for their school children.

These meetings are most attractive, no one attending them can fail to be impressed by the keenness of both the competitors and the officials, drawn chiefly from the school staffs, the excellent quality of the sport and the splendid organisation which gets through a most formidable programme in the course of a little over three hours.

As a nursery for pure amateurism and young athletes they could not be bettered. Unfailing obedience is given to orders, and never a murmur against a decision is heard.

We have said a good deal about Hawick and Galashiels, but it would be a grave omission not to mention the fine efforts of the clubs in Duns and Kelso, indeed it can be said that amateur meetings have been held at one time or another during the past thirty-seven years in every burgh in the Borders.

From the clubs to the athletes themselves is a very easy transition. The Borders have produced five Scottish Champions :

100 and 220 Yards	J. K. Ballantyne	1896
220 Yards	W. R. Sutherland	1913
880 ,,	R. Burton	1908, 1909, 1910
100 ,,	Ian Sutherland	1927
High Jump (tie)	P. A. Macintosh	1908

Of these, R. Burton was a record holder. All have represented their country as well as W. Pollock, who ran against Ireland in 1896.

Early in its career the Association instituted Championships of its own. These were for many years farmed out to the sports-holding clubs, but latterly a successful Championship Meeting has been run annually, and the list of winners, which we append, includes the names of most of the athletes of class that the Borders have produced.

The War took its inevitable toll, notably W. H. Lawson and W. R. Sutherland, whose pleasing personalities will always be remembered by their friends—and they were many—in two great branches of sport.

Of the officials past and present, it is perhaps sufficient to say that most of them have been unsparing in their efforts for the cause, and none perhaps has put in more spade work than the present Secretary, A. D. Lawson, who, together with J. K. Ballantyne, has had the honour of presiding over the Councils of the S.A.A.A.

Amongst the donors of the Trophies that go with the various Championships are Sir Richard Waldie-Griffith (Hendersyde Bowl), W. Strang Steel, J. B. Scott (Langlands Trophy), Lord Dunglass, and the patrons of Berwickshire and Peeblesshire.

Amateurism in the Borders is of healthy growth; it has always been kept clean, and there is every prospect that it will endure.

THE NORTH OF SCOTLAND A.A.A.

By WILLIAM A. WHITTON

SEVEN years after the first S.A.A.A. Championship took place at old Powderhall Grounds—1890 to be exact—a deputation of three gentlemen deeply interested in amateur athletics—one of them being the late Mr. Tom Fraser—visited Inverness to confer with some well-known North-country sportsmen on the state of athletics in the North, and with a view to establishing a body to govern this branch of sport in their district.

At that time there resided in Inverness Mr. J. D. Finlayson, who, while resident in Glasgow was one of the best distance runners in the South, and Mr. C. F. Thomson, a very good all-round athlete. These gentlemen with Mr. H. D. Thomas, of the Inverness College, and a few young men of considerable potential athletic ability, issued a circular to schools, clubs, and individuals interested in amateur sport, with the result that the heartening replies received led to the formation of the North of Scotland A.A.A., which has since that time, with the exception of the Great War period, functioned very successfully.

The objects of the Association as stated in the circular were briefly as follows : “ For the purpose of encouraging pure athletics amongst amateurs, to rid them of all abuses by the holding and promoting of purely amateur sports, in which only amateur competitors will be allowed to enter, and also for the purpose of regulating amateur athletics in the North, which hitherto has been without a guiding body.”

That such action was necessary is evidenced from the fact that nearly half a century prior to the formation of this body a race of the middle-distance type was held at the Northern Meeting in Inverness for “ gentlemen amateurs.” Six competitors entered, and the winner was a Mr. Douglas Moffat, an excellent all-round sportsman.

The Association was fortunate in having for its first President Mr. J. Douglas Fletcher of Rosehaugh, who was a keen sportsman, and interested in many branches of physical development. He presented a Challenge Cup to be given to the competitor securing the greatest number of points in flat and field events. Following Mr. Fletcher as President were the following gentlemen: Messrs. J. D. Finlayson, Alex. Sanderson, W. G. Mackay, and D. Fraser.

Among others who have held office in the Association and who have worked whole-heartedly in its interests are the following: Messrs. W. Reid, Major H. R. Dewar, J. M. Reid, W. R. Christie, C. G. H. Greaves, R. G. Stewart, Angus McIntosh, R. G. Cameron, J. P. Brodie, A. S. Brodie, Jas. Christie, D. F. McDonald, Harry Wynne. (Hon. Treasurer), and Archd. McGillivray, who acted as Hon. Secretary from 1893 to 1914

It says much for the whole-hearted interest in athletics of the aforementioned gentlemen that the Association still flourishes, for it lies in the centre of Highland Gatherings, where amateur sports are rare. The inducement for country lads to have a "try-out" against famous itinerant athletes, especially the heavy-weight men, is great: but there is the corresponding disadvantage that having committed themselves as professionals, they find themselves debarred from competing as amateurs in the South. The Association has thus done much in keeping many lads out of the ranks of professionalism.

From among the many athletes who have competed at Inverness mention may be made of the following, and this not solely on account of their personal prowess, but also for their long and valued assistance: Donald Ross, now of Glencannich, who was an S.A.A.A. hammer champion; W. A. Ogilvie, Dingwall, who was a capital leaper and hammer thrower; Angus McIntosh, now resident in Thurso, a first-class all-rounder; Geo. T. Cornet, an excellent sprinter and an Olympic water-polo player; Alex. Carter, a good half-miler; Alex. Fraser, a fine sprinter; W. Dewar of Dingwall; A. Grant, now of Elgin; Andrew Gordon, Dan Munro, and Willie Crawford, all distinguished in their several ways. Finally, there is Donald Dallas who in '98 won a Half-Mile Challenge Cup, open to Scotland, in the fine time, considering the heavy grass track, of 1 min. 59½ sec. For years he has been the official starter, and his services are still cheerfully given to the Association.

A JOURNALIST'S REMINISCENCES

By WILLIAM REID ("Diogenes")

I HAVE been asked to give a journalist's survey of the period in which I have been, as a newspaper man, associated with Scottish athletics. I propose to do it in my own fashion, taking point after point as they appeal to my journalistic sense. For instance, I find my collection of Championship Meeting programmes goes back to 1900. I had been reporting the Championship Meetings for ten good years prior to that date, but it must have been with the beginning of a new century that I acquired horse-sense enough to start a collection. Though what, after all, does a collection of programmes amount to? Nothing at all compared with what one stores up in his recollection of outstanding events: the advent of a Downer, the emergence of a Halswell, the debut of a Liddell. Still, an odd programme or two refreshes the memory. I find, for example, in my 1900 programme a notable succession of Edinburgh victories, and in those days the Championship Meetings provided a rare contention between the Scottish Capital and "the Capital of the other side of Scotland."

"A TALE OF TWO CITIES"

Edinburgh had Powderhall, Glasgow had Hampden, Ibrox, and Parkhead. Glasgow was progressive, Edinburgh was content with what had served its athletic father, almost grandfather; but Powderhall was buttressed by Myreside and Craiglockhart, and in such a year as 1900 Edinburgh carried off the honours with W. H. Welsh at the three short distances, Jack Paterson at the half-mile and mile, and A. R. Gibb at four miles supplementing Paterson's previous win at the long-distance race in the spring. That grand all-round athlete, R. S. Stronach, like Welsh, a Scottish Rugby cap, credited Glasgow with the hurdles, Hugh Barr, entering from the Edinburgh and Clydesdale Harriers, split the broad jump title between the rival cities, J. B. Milne took the high jump back to Dundee and D. J. M'Rae conveyed the weight to Aberdeen. Edinburgh enthusiasts rejoiced and, I daresay, accentuated the not over kindly feeling between the athletic circles in the two cities. The previous decade had been a stormy period.

DOWNER'S FIRST "HAT TRICK"

It had seen A. R. Downer rise to amateur athletic greatness and decline into professional commonplaceness; the Athletic Abuses Commission; the dispute with the Scottish Cyclists' Union; and the existence, for two seasons, of rival athletic bodies, the S.A.A.A. and the S.A.A.U. The glamour of Downer still subsists in the minds of a few old-timers, myself among the number. I can recall the air of mystery that attached to Downer when it got about, as the summer of 1892 drew to an end, that Edinburgh had a rod in pickle as against the following season in the form of a young runner whose start was quickly shortening as his powers were rapidly developing. He had been at two public schools in Edinburgh, the Institution and Watson's College, and he opened the season of 1893 by winning a sprint handicap at a schools' meeting in Edinburgh off a short mark. Then he ran second to D. R. McCulloch, the sprint champion of 1892, in Glasgow, and beat him over 100 and 220 yards in the Vale of Leven. Still, Glasgow was hard to convince. But, at the Championship Meeting at Hampden, Downer had the opposition at the sprint and furlong beaten at half distance. In the quarter, he stumbled at the start and lost yards of running, lost ground through a collision at the second bend, and then tore up the winning straight, to pass the post three yards in front of the second man.

I question if anything finer was ever seen in amateur athletics in Scotland. Edinburgh enthusiasts went mad over Downer, a number of Edinburgh sportsmen banqueted the young hero. Some of us, I daresay, that evening read handwriting on the wall.

THE FIRST INTERNATIONAL

It is not my business to discuss the "split" which rent Scottish amateur athletics in twain. It began in 1895. The S.A.A.A. (or Edinburgh, as it largely was for the time being) could not do without Downer, and he was induced to have a tilt at Ireland in the athletic International. The match originated in July 1895 and the first meeting was held at Parkhead, where Scotland, handicapped by the split, lost by six points to five. The attendance was limited—what a “write up” the event would have had to-day. And there was Downer, a sick man on the morning of the meeting, doing level time in the sprint, winning the furlong in record time, and beating a dashing Irishman in the quarter. For some reason the S.A.A. never credited Downer with the tie with record in their official list. I wonder if this will be rectified in the book. When next, by the way, I saw Downer, he was running in a little country meeting in a field belonging to a hotel in Penicuik, rain falling in torrents. Downer’s dressing-room was part share of a bell tent which offered a wretched shelter from the storm.

LIKENED TO TINCLER

Ere the “split” was healed and the S.A.A.U. was absorbed in the older body, the S.A.A. championships had revealed a great athlete in the making in Hugh Welsh, a member of a famous athletic family with Watson’s College and Merchiston connections. Welsh was likened by followers of the sport to G. B. Tincler, a great Irish professional runner, whose style was a model for all time. So Welsh was a stylist. He was deceptive at the initial stages of a race, and gave the impression that he could not break 4 min. 30 sec. What he really could do was never known. Welsh, even more than Downer, made amateur athletics a real proposition to the Press in Scotland. I am speaking wholly from memory, but I should say that his great race with A. E. Tysoe—the winner of the English Mile Championship in 1897, when Welsh was spiked—at Powderhall in the summer of 1898 was amateur athletics’ “best seller” for the Edinburgh evening papers. The “gate” was big: as for the race, old hands in Edinburgh recall nothing more lovingly than a slow-run race and a tearing finish by Welsh, who literally ran the Englishman off his feet.

THE GIFT OF PERSONALITY

soundest of milers, had not, nor had Paterson, nor W. H. Welsh, this gift. A short time ago I got a letter from Jimmy Curran, a Galashiels man, who has, for almost quarter of a century, been one of the most distinguished athletic coaches in American school and college athletics. He was in South Africa with the H.L.I. during the Boer War, and when out there he found young Halswell. When the battalion came home and was brought to Edinburgh Castle, Curran induced the then Lieutenant Halswell to get into training and, running in the 440 yards championship in the Championships of 1905, Halswell revealed that a bright and shining star had risen in the Scottish athletic firmament in the person of this gallant son of an English father and a Scottish mother. I went to Edinburgh Castle to interview the young officer. He refused to talk. It was not the thing to do on the part of an officer. But, with a quiet chuckle, he handed me a scrapbook, sent him by a relative of his mother, in which he said I would find everything there was to know of him athletically. "I must return it," he said, bidding me good-bye. This little action was worthy of the man who, when appealed to by a Press representative as to how he spelt his name—Mr. D. S. Duncan refused to acknowledge a final "e," and I took my cue from the S.A.A.A. secretary—wrote that he spelt his name this way. But the recipient of his letter to this day cannot determine whether it is a final "e" or a flourish of the pen.

HALSWELL'S LAST RACE

Halswell "made history" in Scottish athletics in 1906. He won four running titles in one afternoon. It was freely prophesied that the like would never be seen again. It has never been attempted, and may stand as a record for all time. The last time I spoke to Halswell was to commiserate with him on the unseemly proceedings in connection with the Olympic Games 400 Metres race. The entire circumstances distressed the high-minded military athlete. He hated the idea that a conspiracy had been engaged in, and he hated still more the fact that the re-run was not taken part in by the American athletes, acting under orders. The fact was Halswell cared far more for athletic expression than for results. It was felt in the battalion that his reputation was being, as it were, traded in by sports promoters. He said he would end his career with the quarter-mile in the Scoto-Irish International, and did so. Some one gave me a copy of a photograph of Halswell starting in the race. I had it copied and mounted, and years after E. H. Liddell took away the second copy as one of many souvenirs of his stay in this country.

TOM NICOLSON

In Halswell we had another Downer and in Liddell another Halswell. We may have another Liddell, but it is not likely that we shall ever have another Tom Nicolson, most modest of great athletes, most lovable, may I say, of sportsmen. He will ever rank as the greatest heavy athlete Scottish amateur athletics ever boasted. His best individual achievement may be beaten by a brother Scot, as it has been beaten by Irishmen, but there surely never will be a career so long and full of honours as that of the genial Kyles farmer. He had not the commanding figure of some of the great Irish-Americans. He was not, in fact, a striking figure in his ordinary garb: it was when he stripped that one saw his great breadth of shoulders. Like the man himself, his work was always distinguished by his extraordinary straightness. He did not appeal to one's sense of the romantic as, perhaps, Downer did, nor of the bizarre as an old opponent of his, the late Dennis Horgan; but Tom will be remembered for his sterling qualities, and not as the hero of stories that tend to become legends.

MEMORIES OF A SPORTS PROMOTER

By WM. MALEY

JUST by way of a foreword. This is not a biography. Business as usual still finds place in my itinerary. Tell how I got mixed up with athletics? A short story. Pride of place must be given to the lads of the village—Cathcart the village. You will notice I am cutting out the hereditary stuff. We lads used up all our spare time on athletics. My strong suits were football, quoiting, and running. I had even a short-lived reputation as cricketer. It began and ended “all on a summer’s eve.” Among the sporty adults who did us the honour of joining in was an individual who had been a very distinguished batsman in a crack Lanarkshire club. I was called on to bowl. The light was none too good: his sight was like unto the light. Pace, not pitch, characterised my bowling. Up to the crease I sped, overhead swung my arm viciously, and strongly swung his bat at the ball— Yes, you have guessed aright—which had never left my hand! Owing to luridness and bad light, stumps were drawn at this stage.

One of the chiefs in my office further advanced me. He was a big noise in the Clydesdale Harriers—Andrew Dick. My all-round abilities, no doubt, convinced him that I was a suitable subject for his club, which had fast been gaining fame for the infinite variety of its productions. I found myself among the starters in a junior cross-country race. I enjoyed the novelty: was rather pleased in being placed. Despite the fact that I had touched wood and missed the water, I was soon able to walk normally.

To the track was the next command. On the Abercorn ground, Paisley, I appeared with other sprinters and carried off the prize. Cathcart was en fête that night—having no band or Provost, neither turned out. Pot-hunting I have ever abhorred, so I confined myself to winning an odd prize here and there. As a matter of fact, I kept on doing that sort of thing until one breezy afternoon I varied things by winning the 100 Yards Championship (S.A.A.U.). I mustn't go ahead of the pistol. As I had been pushed into it, so I pushed my brother Tom, and right well he responded. He made his debut at Queen's Park Sports and collared the open hundred. That is how we celebrated the Jubilee year (1887).

Celtic, the new football club, absorbed me and my time ever since. Hence the foreword. Why not sports for the new club? Why not, indeed! The MacLeans had their own boat, we will have our own sports. Hard work it was to convince the committee, but ably backed up by brother Tom and the late J. H. McLaughlin I succeeded. Some audacious deed was that. Our old enclosure at Dalmarnock Street was all right as a football ground, but as a sports-holding enclosure it left much to be desired. Willing workers had made the ground; they did their best to produce a track. Certainly it did look well—so long as it was not used. It bore strong kinsmanship to a garden path. I am mindful, of course, that there were very few good tracks at that period. In the Western area, Hampden stood out as the best. The bare mention of Hampden and its track recalls dear old Arthur Geake, who had no greater hobby than the care and attention of that track and the enclosure.

At Westmarch, Paisley, then St. Mirren ground, Bob Hindle had brought the track to a pretty high state of perfection. Two Saturdays had been allotted for my first venture as sports promoter. Filling the bill was the next problem. The five-a-side stuff for junior and senior players was all right, so, too, the confined events for players; but what of track events? Would the cyclists face the risks that our primitive track presented? Could we induce the pedestrians to patronise our maiden effort? The answers were in the affirmative.

Just when the difficulty of apportioning the events had come into being, came also a message of help from a good friend of mine in the Manchester area, a member of the Salford Harriers. " 'Sonny' Morton, Kibblewhite, and Parry will run at your preliminary meet if you can arrange an event." "Arrange an event! most surely; come along with them," was my reply. I am constrained to say the visit of this famous trio was the forerunner of circumstances of like nature which made our sports the great feature they were. Great success were these runners. Morton's wondrous finishing sprint simply carried the crowd off their feet, and made the doubting Thomases on my committee have faith. A picturesque wee figure was Morton, and his colour scheme of green and gold charmed and delighted.

Our second meeting was made a success before we had even displayed the entrants. Our cycling friends faced the risks; the harrier organisations, kindly disposed, saw to it that we got their men, and from across the Channel came the famous Irish champion, D. D. Bulger. A great sprinter, hurdler, and "lepper" was Dan. Busy man I was that day. Oh, yes; I figured in some of the events. Busy, too, was my brother Tom, and we felt that if we could just get this meeting over as successfully as the meet of the preceding Saturday the future was assured. I have turned up the programme of the meeting. Interesting it is to read the names of the officials. The scythe-bearer has removed many; their memories he cannot touch.

Judges: W. W. Tait, W. Brown. Referee: Farquhar Mathieson. Football Referee: Jas. Robertson. Handicapper: R. Livingstone. Starter: R. Hindle. Clerk of the Course: Tom Maley. Secretary: Wm. Maley.

The Lancashire Fusiliers provided a musical programme throughout the afternoon, and an after-social brought into being friendships that time has not impaired. I have ever been a great believer in the cultivation of the social side, and time but tends to strengthen my faith. One more audacious endeavour on our garden path, as successful and as attractive as our first, and then hied we to our present abode. No longer "crimped, cabined, and confined," we could expand, we had tracks—cycle and pedestrian—and we had accommodation for competitors and spectators. In good truth we had need for both.

Our sports in 1892 were—well, mammoth is the best term of description. I best remember them by the trick that the weather clerk worked on us. Opened the day, sultry and warm. Trooped through the 'stiles in their thousands the spectators. What a bill of fare was to be at their disposal! The world's best in many of the items—cycling as well as running. Out of the heat came an electric storm—as the Yanks call a severe lightning and thunder effort—mercilessly the rain clouds let loose their contents, and it was a badly soaked crowd which saw the sports from this intervention until the end. It was simply unbelievable the grip that the sports had on them, for despite the weather they waited to the end. No words are necessary to tell of the fare and the men—tribute enough was thus given.

I can never forget our first meeting on our present ground. Here is the bill of fare for the second. A galaxy of talent : Charlie Bradley, E. C. Bredin, F. E. Bacon, Geo. Crossland, Godfrey Shaw, A. J. Gould, J. King, C. Pearce, Teddy Messenger, with the home talent supplying Alf Downer, D. R. McCulloch, Tom Donovan, A. Hannah, S. Duffus, H. Barr, J. R. Gow, J. Campbell, J. Rodgers, together with cyclists of best type from all three countries. The evening meet on the Monday following found them all ready at their posts—some meeting for sports lovers. Thus was laid the foundation of our sports ; and in the promotion of them, and all through the succeeding years, we aimed at faith with the public, a good standard of events, and competitors to engage in them, with prizes of the best. These three features were ever maintained, and thus we staked our claim as having the sports of the season.

I have set out to tell how I came into the sports vortex as competitor and as sports promoter. My appearance as legislator and President I may not tell, that is with the members of the S.A.A.A.

If in such capacity I fell short, or in any way lacked the brilliance of former occupants of that high office, I can at least claim that I gave of my best for the best, and for the general good of amateur athletics.

CROSS-COUNTRY RUNNING IN SCOTLAND :

ITS ORIGIN AND DEVELOPMENT

By GEORGE DALLAS

CROSS-COUNTRY running in Scotland, as we know it to-day, began with a meeting which was held in Glasgow on 4th May 1885, at which it was decided to form a Club to be known as the "Clydesdale Harriers." Previously some of the Scottish public schools had held occasional "paper chases," but although there were plenty of athletes competing at sports meetings in the summer months, the winter months were allowed to pass in idleness, except by those who played football. While waiting for the cross-country, season the C.H. ran off several handicaps on the track at Kinning Park, the old ground of the Rangers F.C.

The first cross-country run was held at Milngavie in September 1885. On that occasion the "hares" were very strong, and covered a distance of thirteen miles, running for nearly two hours.

On 30th September 1885 the late D. S. Duncan called a meeting in Edinburgh, at which the Edinburgh Harriers club was brought into being, and in November 1885, an inter-club run was held at Coltbridge, Edinburgh. During the winter of 1885 the Lanarkshire Bicycle Club and the Langside Bicycle Club formed harriers sections and held several runs, but they found the sport too strenuous, and the sections faded out. In December of that year the Edinburgh Harriers held the first cross-country handicap ever run in Scotland over a distance of four miles. D. S. Duncan and W. M. Gabriel ran off scratch, with a handicap limit of four minutes.

In February 1886 an inter-club run between the Edinburgh Harriers and Clydesdale Harriers was held at Govan, when a field of twenty-seven runners took part! At the convivial gathering which followed, D. S. Duncan made a strong appeal on behalf of the S.A.A.A. for further support for that body.

The first Cross-Country Championship was held on Lanark Racecourse. It was a challenge match between the C.H. and the E.H. The venue was unsuitable for the C.H., and out of fourteen nominations only four contested the race. The E.H. had seven men forward. A. P. Findlay (by far the oldest runner in the field) won from D. S. Duncan, who was at that time considered the best long-distance athlete in Scotland. Findlay was a stonemason to trade, and a very hardy athlete. When the news reached Ayr (his home town), preparations were made to greet him on the arrival of the train at 9.12 p.m. He did not turn up, and a still larger crowd met the 11.20 p.m. train, but again there was no Findlay. At 7.40 on the Sunday morning he arrived at Ayr, footsore and weary, having walked from Barrhead to Kilmarnock to catch the mail train for Ayr. He had no special preparation for the race, which had been arranged only three weeks before it was run. There are only two survivors of those who competed in this first Championship—John Clelland of Larkhall and James Campbell of Helensburgh—both of whom ran in C.H. colours.

When Findlay won again in 1888 all the runners went off the trail, and Findlay was blamed (probably unjustly) for leading the field astray. He could keep going indefinitely, and the competitors ran about sixteen miles that day—some arriving back in cabs and other conveyances. One or two had to have their shoes cut off in the main street of Ayr, and finished barefooted in the snow and slush and darkness.

In September 1886 the West of Scotland Harriers Club was formed, the membership of which at the beginning was mostly composed of cyclists and rowing men.

Outside the three principal clubs—the C.H., E.H., and W.S.H.—the sport did not make much progress for the first couple of years, and it was only when the C.H. started to develop branches or sections in different parts of the country that it began to take hold. Sections were formed in different towns in Dumbartonshire, Stirlingshire, Renfrewshire, Lanarkshire, and Ayrshire, and these were carefully nursed by the parent body. When the sections were strong enough to stand alone they formed themselves into separate clubs, and so the movement spread.

The pioneer work was very exacting, but the founders had great faith in the future of the sport, and the result has justified their efforts. It is of interest to mention that in the C.H. the whipper-in of the main pack carried a hunting-horn slung over his shoulder, and made appropriate noises with it during the course of the run.

Not till the season of 1887-8 did the real missionary work begin. With the advent of Andrew Dick as Joint-Secretary things began to hum. When James Erskine took office in 1888 the C.H. membership had risen to about 200, and in 1900 it went up to 1000 paying members, who had the benefit of a private club-room in Dundas Street, Glasgow, where runners could meet at any time and get all the athletic and other newspapers, as well as a manuscript magazine (monthly), run by Clydesdale's own members. There was, in addition, a gymnastic and boxing section, with premises at Garnethill. Mr. Erskine still takes a lively interest in the affairs of the sport.

The two chief protagonists of cross-country running in the early days were Andrew Dick in the West and D. S. Duncan in the East. Another survivor of the first season, 1885-6, is T. W. Young (C.H.). Although a sprinter of much ability on the track, Young seldom missed a run across country.

In season 1890-91 Andrew Hannah (C.H.) was champion. He had a stern opponent in Wm. Thomson (C.H.) of Larkhall, a well-known runner also on the track. "Big Wull" was a forester for many years on the Hamilton Ducal Estates. Popular wherever he went, he is now resident in Paisley. Hannah is still hale and hearty, and located in the city of St. Mungo.

Missing a sequence of years, we now come to that well-known schoolmaster, Tom Jack (E.S.H.), who won in 1907-8 and again in 1912. Mr. Jack is still very much to the fore, and now discharges his duties as Eastern District Handicapper with characteristic thoroughness.

The years 1922-3-4 brought out that wonderful distance runner, Duncan McLeod Wright. In 1922 he ran in the colours of the C.H. and 1923 and 1924 in those of the Shettleston Harriers. He is, however, perhaps better known under the Maryhill colours. Two of his greatest honours were the victories in the A.A.A. Marathon (Windsor to Suttie Smith, who was five times champion, in the sequence of years 1928-1932 inclusive. Surely this is a record that will be difficult to equal—let alone excel.

What is one to say of the present champion, only a novice of recent discovery? J. C. Flockhart (Shettleston Harriers) has set the whole athletic universe talking. To win the Midland, Junior, and National Championships in one year is indeed something to be proud of. Veterans predict a brilliant future for this youth, who, like many of the veterans of the past, has raised the level of cross-country running in Scotland to an international standard.

STATISTICS OF CHAMPIONSHIP
MEETINGS HELD UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE S.A.A.A.

1883-1932

PRIOR to 1883 amateur athletic meetings with "Championship" events included in the sports programme were promoted by local bodies, e.g. "West of Scotland Amateur Athletic Association," etc. Complete details of such meetings are not now available. The tabulated results given in the following pages begin with the first Championship Meeting promoted by the Scottish Amateur Athletic Association in 1883.

It will be observed in many instances that third placings are not given. Officially only the first two placings are recorded in all Championship events, but an endeavour has been made wherever possible by means of research among Annual Reports of the S.A.A.A., contemporary Press reports, and annotated sports programmes to make the tabulations as complete as possible.

Up to the year 1892 the best Championship performance recorded in each event is that over the period 1883-1892.

Wherever appropriate, footnotes have been appended relating to records. A particular record printed in small capitals indicates that the performance has been subsequently bettered. The use of Clarendon type means that the record still stands at the date of publication.

Whilst every care has been taken to ensure the accuracy of the following data, errors may have occurred. The Editors therefore claim the indulgence of their readers, and will be grateful for any corrections where such may appear necessary.

SCOTLAND v. IRELAND :

A RETROSPECT

By D. A. JAMIESON

IN July 1891 a special meeting of the General Committee of the Scottish A.A.A. was convened to consider a proposal which had been received from the Irish A.A.A. inviting a team of representative Scottish athletes to take part in a series of races against selected representatives of the Irish Association. The distances suggested for competition were 100 Yards, 440 Yards, and One Mile, and it was further suggested that this series of races should form the crowning feature of the Irish All-Round Athletic Championship Meeting which was to be held at Balls Bridge, Dublin, on 15th August of that year. The proposed conditions of the contest were that the Irish Association should provide the prizes, whilst the Scottish body were to defray their own expenses.

In spite of its allurements, however, this invitation was declined by the Scottish A.A.A. ; but the potentialities of such a contest were perceived by the Scottish executive, and accordingly the Honorary Secretary was instructed to open up negotiations for the institution of an International contest on a broader basis than the original suggestion—namely, to embrace all the recognised championship events. The question of guarantees was also raised, and it was suggested that these should be given by each country in turn. In this manner, then, was laid the foundations of an International athletic contest with Ireland, which was to continue without interruption for nearly twenty years. But although the foundations were truly laid in 1891, through force of circumstances the edifice itself was not erected until four years later.

It was not until December of 1894 that overtures were again made by the I.A.A.A. to the S.A.A.A. with regard to instituting an annual athletic contest between the countries on the lines of the Oxford v. Cambridge match, in which the odd event in eleven items was to decide the winner.

This proposal was cordially accepted by the S.A.A.A.

executive with the following suggestions : (1) That the first contest be held in Scotland ; (2) That a guarantee be given to the visiting team to cover expenses ; (3) that the programme of events to be decided should be the Scottish Championship events—the Ten Miles race excepted ; each country to have two representatives in each event, with three in the Four Miles race ; and (4) that in Scotland the Hammer to be thrown in the Scottish style and in Ireland under Irish rules.

In the main, agreement was reached on all these points, save that the guarantee condition was waived upon a counter-proposal from the I.A.A.A. that there should be an equal division of the net proceeds of the drawings. The way was now cleared for both parties to implement these proposals, and thus on 20th July 1895 the first International Contest with the Irish A.A.A. took place at Celtic Park, Glasgow, which resulted in a win for Ireland.

Many famous Irish athletes were introduced to Scotland through the medium of the Scoto-Irish contest, and it may prove of interest to recall those whose personality and charm endeared them to their Scottish friends. Throughout the years of these International contests no Irish sprinter stands out with such clarity in one's memory as Denis Murray, probably the most graceful sprinter who ever pulled on a running pump. The second of a famous trio of brothers which included John—a good all-rounder, and pre-eminent in field events, and Willie, also a first-class sprinter—Denis Murray won the 100 Yards race four years in succession for Ireland, in addition to winning the 220 Yards in three successive years. His was the perfection of style, and he ran his races without the least suggestion of stress or strain.

It is a remarkable circumstance that fifteen years were to elapse ere Scotland was able to register a win in the High Jump event ; but when one ponders the names of the "leppers" who wore the shamrock emblem during the years 1895-1909 one's feelings of disappointment give way to a mood of resignation. Here is the list : J. M. Ryan, P. J. and Con Leahy, P. O'Connor, and T. J. Ahearne. Truly these men rose literally to heights unattainable by the Scottish representatives—good jumpers as they were.

Similarly, in the Broad Jump event, it was only the sterling performances of Hugh Barr (Scotland) which broke the monopoly of Irish victories on two occasions over a period of fifteen years. One recalls with keen appreciation how Barr, with practically his last effort in the Broad Jump event, on the occasion of the fifth contest of the series at Powderhall Grounds, Edinburgh in July 1899, created a new Scottish native record, incidentally winning both the event and the contest for his country. It was in the fourth match of the series that W. J. M. Newburn—a veritable giant of an athlete—created a world's record of 24 ft. $\frac{1}{2}$ in. in the Broad Jump. A remarkable feat also falls to be related in connection with a high jump performance by P. O'Connor on the occasion of an International at the Exhibition Grounds, Gilmorehill, Glasgow. The judges were so impressed with the prodigious bound taken by O'Connor when clearing the height of 6 ft. $\frac{5}{8}$ in. that measurements were taken from his take-off to his landing-spot, and the distance was found to be 17 feet. This was not only high jumping—it was literally a steeplechase performance!

Memory quickens also at the names of Dennis Horgan, Tim Kiely, J. J. Flanagan, and J. Barrett in the field events. A great personality was Dennis Horgan, who toyed with the putting ball in the most leisurely manner conceivable. He, to the huge amusement of the spectators, often sought inspiration from a black bottle—carefully enwrapped with accompanying tumbler in the folds of his jacket—invariably placed at a convenient distance from the putting-circle. This egg and brandy flip—for such it was—formed a most important item in the genial Irishman's field equipment.

And what of the duels between Tom Nicolson, T. F. Kiely, and P. Ryan in the Hammer event! How these great exponents used to hurl their implements through space until it seemed as if the confines of the ground itself would surely be exceeded in some of their mighty efforts.

Athletic horizons were extending, however, and with the inauguration of the Triangular Contest between England, Ireland, and Scotland, the Ireland v. Scotland contests came to an end in July 1913 at Belfast, when Ireland finished as she had begun by winning the match by 7 events to 4.

On 11th July 1914 was decided the first of the Triangular Series, at Hampden Park, Glasgow. England signalled her entry into this competition by a win, the scores reading: England, 6 pts.; Scotland, 3 pts.; Ireland, 2 pts. Then followed the blight of war, and to the generation of that day athletic Internationals and such-like distractions passed into the limbo of forgotten things.

THE INTER-SCHOLASTIC GAMES

By THOMAS JACK

TO the present generation the following details—given by way of introduction—may prove interesting. Traces of the origin of the Inter-Scholastic Games are to be found in the early reports given of the “Edinburgh University-School Games.” In a descriptive account given of one such meeting, one reads: “The scene was particularly pleasing, large marquees being erected on the sports ground, each flying the colours of the schools whose representatives were striving to maintain their athletic traditions on the grassy arena nearby.”

These “athletic traditions,” be it noted, date back many years before the founding of the S.A.A.A. Indeed, it is probable that the founders of the Association gained inspiration from this sports meeting held under University auspices hard by Corstorphine in the 'seventies of last century, and in which the competitors still preserved the associations of their schools, such as Merchiston, Loretto, Fettes, Blair Lodge, etc.

Later, with changing conditions, the Schools featured no longer in the 'Varsity Sports. As a separate promotion the Inter-Scholastic Games had a chequered existence, and after languishing for a few years in an atmosphere of apathy they disappeared from the sports calendar in 1885. An attempt to revive their former glory was made five years later (1890), but met with little success.

It was not until 1900 that Mr. E. J. Comrie Thomson, then President of the S.A.A.A., stimulated by the enthusiasm of Mr. D. S. Duncan, the Hon. Secretary, succeeded in inaugurating the present series of the Games. No break has occurred since that year, although endeavours have been made from time to time to discontinue the meeting upon two grounds: (1) That they did not fulfil their object of introducing schoolboy competitors to senior athletics; and (2) That the yearly deficit incurred by the Games was too heavy to be borne by the Association's finances.

When one recalls such names as L. J. Dunn, J. Crawford, T. Riddell, J. G. McColl, R. D. Allison, A. M. Murray, A. F. Clark, J. B. Bell, in connection with Inter-Scholastic athletic honours, the first contention of the above argument seems disproved, while the financial burden incurred must be regarded as a necessary expenditure in the best interests of amateur athletics.

On the suggestion of J. G. Ker, LL.D., an ex-President of the Association, the Schools Championship feature was omitted from the scheme of competition in 1906. Later, in 1912, Mr. C. Symington, Stewart's College, was successful in his proposal to raise the third grade of the competitions from 13 years to 14 years, at which it still remains.

The practice of athletics is an item in the scholar's curriculum which has developed to an extraordinary degree during the last ten years, and the standard of merit attained by many of the schoolboy athletes in the highest grade at times approaches that obtaining in senior athletics, as a glance at the returns given on the following pages will show
