PREFACE

THE great difficulty the Editor has experienced in compiling the present volume affords the chief justification for its existence. It appears to be in the nature of athletic records quickly to lapse into oblivion ; and till quite a recent date even the early history of the boat-race was unknown.

Unfortunately club records in passing from hand to hand frequently become lost, and the writer has had to rely for them to a great extent on the files of the daily papers ; but in all cases the various records have been most carefully compared and every name has been verified wherever possible, either in that noble work Foster's 'Alumni Oxonienses,' or in the various Cambridge Calendars. Identification has been less difficult in the former case, and it is greatly to be regretted that no modern list of Cambridge matriculations exists.

That this volume is entirely free from error one cannot hope. In a case where one has to deal with some five thousand names and some seven hundred and fifty contests mistakes are inevitable ; but one can claim that the present is the most complete and the most perfect list of the University contests which has yet been published. It is hardly necessary to ask the critic who knows the difficulties which beset such a volume as this 'to be to its virtues very kind, and to its faults a little blind.' The Editor would be especially obliged to anyone who would point out any mistakes or omissions.

Doubtless some will cavil at the title of this book. Let them consider before doing so if they can suggest a better. The 'full blue' was first awarded to those who took part in the boat-race. It was then extended to the cricketers. It was granted to athletes by the cricketers and rowing men. In 1883 the blue was given to Oxford footballers, both Rugby and Association. The same boon not having been granted at Cambridge, the full blue was assumed there on December 10, 1884. This action was approved (by a majority of two hundred and forty-one) by the members of the University at a meeting held in the Union in the following term. The importance of the matter is shown by the fact that nearly twelve hundred voted.

The notes appended to this book have purposely been made as short as possible. The Editor has sought to avoid opening any matter of dispute. The times given are those of the judges at the various contests.

The Oxford and Cambridge Steeplechase is the only contest which has to the Editor's knowledge been omitted from this record. It has been found impossible to obtain a complete record of the races which have taken place, and it certainly stands on a different footing from all the other matches. However, the Editor will consider the question of publishing accounts of this event in a future edition if anyone will furnish him with a complete record.

The Editor must express his indebtedness to Messrs. Longmans, Green and Co., the owners of the copyright of the Badminton Library, who gave him permission to make use of the records of the boat-race contained in their volume on 'Boating'; to Mr. W. B. Woodgate, the author of the same volume, who kindly ratified this permission and also gave much valuable help; and to the officials of various University clubs. The Master of the Rolls has also kindly made several corrections in the proofs. But especial thanks are due to Mr. J. Le Fleming, who long since planned a similar volume. He has very generously placed at the Editor's service the whole of the very extensive material he had collected, and but for the invaluable help he has rendered this book would have been far less complete than it is at present. He has also kindly allowed the editor to make use of the idea of the analysis of results which will be found in this volume, and has looked through the proof-sheets. Reference has also been made to the Rev. F. Marshall's 'Rugby Football,' and considerable assistance derived from a volume known as Mudge's 'Athletic Records,' but the writer has been unable to obtain a copy which contained a title-page. Lastly, he would thank Mr. Henry Perkins, late Secretary of the M. C. C., for kindly allowing the reproduction of the foot-notes in his little book giving the scores of the University cricket matches from 1827.

The finish of this match was most extraordinary. Oxford in their second innings had 3 wickets to go down, and wanted 3 runs to tie and 4 to win, with one batsman well set. Mr. Hill received the first ball from Mr. Cobden's over, and hit it so hard that it would have gone to the boundary, but Mr. Bourne with one hand so nearly stopped it that one run only resulted. Mr. Bourne caught Mr. Butler off the next, and Mr. Cobden bowled the last two batsmen each first ball.

An incident occurred in this match which provoked an angry demonstration on the part of the public and the occupants of the Pavilion. Oxford in their first innings had lost 9 wickets and still required 12 runs to save the follow-on. Mitchell then directed Shine to bowl no-ball to the boundary, which he did. Whether Mitchell's management was correct is open to grave question, but he was perfectly within his rights, and nothing could justify the unseemly behaviour of the members in the Pavilion.

SHOOTING.

THE HUMPHRY CUP.

The Humphry Cup is a match in which teams of four from each University compete. Fifteen shots are fired at each range—800, 900, and 1,000 yards. Any rifle the calibre of which does not exceed .315 may be used. The Cup was presented by Mr. A. P. Humphry in 1880, but the match was originally started in 1869. It first took place at Wimbledon in 1879. Coaching was permitted in 1873, and in 1874 there were only three men in each team. The highest possible score was 720 till 1872, 560 in 1873, 675 in 1874, and 900 since then. The matches from 1869-79 inclusive appear not to have been reported, but the results are given below.

1869. Cambridge won, 33 points (540—507).
 1870. Oxford won, 25 points (505—480).
 1871. Cambridge won, 4 points (589—585).
 1872. Cambridge won, 24 points (581—557).
 1873. Oxford won, 9 points (423—414).
 1874. Cambridge won, 7 points (555—548).
 In 1875, 1876, and 1877 there was no match.
 1878. Oxford won, 1 point (660—659).
