

TACITUS
Annals IV

Mat. 7:

Angus Matheron.

Latin Ordinary, (Edinburgh University)

1930.

Pitt Press Series

THE ANNALS OF TACITUS

BOOK IV

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS
C. F. CLAY, MANAGER
London: FETTER LANE, E.C.
Edinburgh: 100 PRINCES STREET

New York: G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS
Bombay and Calcutta: MACMILLAN AND CO., LTD.
Toronto: J. M. DENT AND SONS, LTD.
Tokyo: THE MARUZEN-KABUSHIKI-KAISHA

All rights reserved

THE ANNALS OF TACITUS

BOOK IV

Edited with Introduction and Notes

BY

G. M. EDWARDS, M.A.

Fellow of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge

Cambridge :
at the University Press

1915

Cambridge:

PRINTED BY JOHN CLAY, M.A.

AT THE UNIVERSITY PRESS

PREFACE

THE Fourth Book of the Annals is an excellent introduction to Silver Age Latin and to the history of the early Principate; and altogether it is a most stimulating subject, as I found from reading it with Dr Butler in the Sixth Form at Harrow in 1874. Little did I then think that more than 'forty years on' I should receive from the Syndics of the Press a request to edit this book in their Series. There are many books of various kinds to help the editor of Tacitus in his work. I am especially indebted to Nipperdey, Halm, Furneaux, Boissier, and Ramsay.

G. M. E.

CAMBRIDGE,

March, 1915.

CONTENTS

	PAGES
INTRODUCTION
I. Life and writings of Tacitus	vi-x
II. Tacitus as a literary artist	x-xiv
III. 'Tiberius the Tyrant'	xv-xvii
IV. Germanicus and his family	xviii-xix
V. Significance of the title Princeps	xix-xxi
VI. The Senate under the early empire	xxi-xxiii
VII. The Provinces under Tiberius	xxiii-xxv
VIII. Maiestas	xxv-xxvii
TEXT	1-54
NOTES	55-136
APPENDIX ON VARIOUS READINGS	137-144
INDEX:
I. Proper names	145-146
II. Latin words	146-150
III. Grammar	150-152

INTRODUCTION

I. LIFE AND WRITINGS OF TACITUS

Cornelius Tacitus perhaps belonged to an equestrian family of Interamna in Umbria. He was born about 54 A.D. His praenomen is uncertain; possibly it was Publius. According to the elder Pliny, either his father or uncle administered the revenues of Belgic Gaul.

The Dialogus de oratoribus, generally ascribed to Tacitus, was probably written in the early years of the reign of Domitian, i.e. 81 A.D. or later¹. The dramatic date is 74–75 A.D., i.e. when Tacitus was about twenty, admodum iuuenis, as he describes himself. The treatise is a criticism of the rhetorical curriculum of his boyhood,—an explanation of the decline of oratory under the Empire. The interlocutors are Julius Secundus and other celebrated rhetoricians. Marcus Aper champions the school of Seneca. According to Boissier², Messalla, the man of action and student combined, represents Tacitus himself.

In 78 A.D. Tacitus married the daughter of Julius Agricola, already a prominent man at Rome, and consul in the previous year. Agricola left Rome to be propraetor of Britain, as successor to Frontinus. Tacitus wrote his life (or historical eulogy) probably in 98 A.D.

Tacitus sums up his public life in these words:—‘ I should acknowledge that my political career was inaugurated by

¹ See Cambridge Companion to Roman Studies, § 1002.

² Tacitus and other Roman Studies, p. 5.

Vespasian, advanced by Titus, and carried still further by Domitian' (Hist. i 1). This means that he was a candidatus Caesaris in his magistracies¹. He began his career as military tribune under Vespasian. Under Titus he was quaestor. Under Domitian he would have become either tribune or aedile; for under the Empire the tribunate of the plebs might be held as a substitute for the aedileship in the career of honores. In 88 he became praetor. He was now about 33. For a nouus homo, he had come to the front rapidly. As a protégé of three Emperors, he was by necessity a partisan of the imperial régime.

Till the year 88 A.D. we may suppose that Tacitus lived in Rome, (i) engaged in his practice at the bar; for the younger Pliny speaks of his eminence there, and (ii) perhaps already gathering materials for his historical works. From 89 A.D., i.e. immediately after his praetorship, till 93 he probably held a provincial command as legatus pro praetore. We may conjecture that it was now that Tacitus gained the knowledge necessary for the writing of his Germania. The only imperial province governed by an ex-praetor in the vicinity of Germany was Belgic Gaul. Almost certainly it was there that he spent the four years of his absence from the City. During the last three years of Domitian he was in Rome. The accession of Nerva in 96 was a wonderful relief to all good men: he joined together two elements previously hard to unite, principatus and libertas.

In 97 Tacitus was consul suffectus (after the death of Verginius Rufus) and colleague in the consulship with Nerva himself. It was about this time that Tacitus wrote the life of his father-in-law Agricola. In the same year (98) he published the Germania, in which he contrasts the native simplicity of the Germans with the vices of imperial civilisation. For literary history it is important to notice that in his preparation for this book he was training himself as a historian.

¹ Boissier, p. 26.

In 100 A.D. Tacitus (along with the younger Pliny) prosecuted in a famous case,—that of Marius Priscus, governor of Africa, who was convicted of extortion and violence. Pliny speaks of the dignity of Tacitus' eloquence.

Under Vespasian and Titus the position of Tacitus was easy. During Domitian's reign of terror it was much more difficult. He speaks of 'fifteen years—a large slice carved out of human life—during which in silence and inaction young men reached old age, and old men their full term of life' (Agricola 3). This is an exaggeration ; for the reign of terror, during which people hid themselves and held their peace, lasted only four or five years ; but it made such an impression on Tacitus as to colour his memory of the whole of the reign of Domitian (81–96).

Tacitus regards the Emperors as enemies of the Senate, which to him is representative of the virtues of old Rome. He is exceedingly jealous of imperial encroachments on the Senate's functions. So keen is he about the old republican régime that he represents his favourite Trajan as re-establishing the old constitution. But, as to his own political conduct, Tacitus walks circumspectly. He does not court death like the Stoic martyrs. His own point of view is excellently given by the words he puts in the mouth of Marcellus (Hist. iv 8) :—se meminisse quam ciuitatis formam patres auique instituerint ; ulteriora mirari, praesentia sequi ; bonos imperatores uoto expetere, qualescumque tolerare ; i.e. he is an opportunist.

It appears from an inscription found in Caria that towards the end of Trajan's reign Tacitus was proconsul of Asia, 113–116 (about)—one of the most important posts in the Empire. There is no evidence as to the time of his death. Since he did not write the life of Augustus, or the history of Nerva and Trajan, as he intended, he probably did not survive the completion of the Annals. The Histories of Tacitus, completed early in the reign of Trajan, would have covered the period from the death of Nero to the accession of Nerva,—about 14 books in all, of which I—IV and part of V are extant. The Annals were finished about 115 A.D. The title of the work in the Medicean ms. is Cornelii Taciti ab excessu diui Augusti. Tacitus calls it annales, because it is arranged according to years. It consisted originally of 16 or more books. VII—X are entirely lost, also parts of V, VI, XI, XVI. Books I—VI would have covered the reign of Tiberius. VII would have begun that of Gaius (37 A.D.). XI begins with the sixth year of Claudius (47 A.D.). XII carries us to the end of Claudius (54 A.D.). XIII—end would have given us the whole of Nero. XVI, as we have it, ceases at 68 A.D. Evidently the ambition of Tacitus was to cover the whole period from the beginning of Augustus to the end of Trajan.

II. TACITUS AS A LITERARY ARTIST

‘All of them profess great affection for letters ; it is one way of justifying and ennobling their fortune. Not only have they studied eloquence in their youth ; to speak well is an indispensable accomplishment for a Roman magistrate ; but they take an interest in philosophy or even compose elegies and epics. I do not believe that in any other period has literature been so greatly loved. Seneca even considers that it is loved too much, and that people carry their taste for it to the point of mania : litterarum intemperantia laboramus (Epist. evi 2). It was, in short, a very agreeable society, which no longer had the distinction and high bearing of the early days of the Empire, but in which were still to be found, with a less spacious life and simpler manners, much charm and wit.’

In these glowing words Boissier (p. 19) describes the society in which the young Tacitus grew up. We must think of him first as a student of oratory. He tells us in his Dialogue (c. 20), how not only the juryman, but also the chance listener in court demands a bright and beautiful style of oratory. ‘Young students also, who follow orators with a view to their own advancement, not only want to hear, but also to carry home something brilliant and memorable. They pass such things round their own circle and often send them in letters to their colonies and provinces, whether some smart and concise epigram has flashed out or a whole passage remarkable for elaborate poetical treatment. For nowadays even from the orator some poetical ornament is expected, not soiled by the rust of Accius or Pacuvius, but fresh from the treasury of Horace, Virgil, and Lucan¹.’

Tacitus must have finished his education early in the reign of Vespasian. After the terrible times through which Rome had passed, this was a happy epoch, most opportune for youthful ambition. He tells us (Dial. 3) how he devoted himself with enthusiasm to the then most famous orators of the Roman bar (celeberrima tum ingenia fori nostri), not only in the courts but also in private life. These were Marcus Aper and Julius Secundus. Of the style of the latter he says :—purus et pressus et, in quantum satis erat, profluens sermo non defuit,—probably not a bad description of Tacitus' own oratory. The younger Pliny, who began his career a few years later, tells us that Tacitus even then was 'in the prime of renown.' Unfortunately none of his own speeches have been preserved; but those which he introduces into his historical narratives enable us to form some idea of his rhetorical style; for we may conjecture that they are composed according to his own method. Moreover, Pliny gives us this additional piece of evidence. In Epist. ii 11, on his return from a meeting of the Senate, he writes to one of his friends :—'Tacitus spoke with great eloquence and, what is characteristic of his style, with dignity,'—et, quod eximium orationi eius inest, σεμνώς.

¹ Professor Summers in his interesting paper on ‘Declamations under the Empire’ (Proceedings of the Classical Association, vol. x, p. 100) ascribes to the declamation schools the encroachment of Silver Latin prose on the domain of poetry. He mentions that Seneca gives us several declamation passages which are merely prose paraphrases of Virgil, and the declamation on the poor man’s bees makes much use of the fourth Georgic. Even the loss of the Ciceronian and Livian period he ascribes to the same cause, quoting the words of Quintilian: ‘Nowadays we expect something effective at the end of every sentence, and look upon it as almost a sin to take breath where we are not likely to get applause.’

The sixth chapter of the Dialogue, which deals with the secret joys of the orator, reads like a piece of autobiography. A few words are well worth quoting :—quae in publico species! quae in iudiciis ueneratio! quod gaudium consurgendi assistendique inter tacentes et in unum conuersos!.....uulgata dicentium gaudia et imperitorum quoque oculis exposita percenseo: illa secretiora et tantum ipsis orantibus nota maiora sunt. ...extemporalis audaciae atque ipsius temeritatis uel praecipua iucunditas est.

Not only the declamation schools¹ and the practice of forensic oratory contributed to the formation of the style of Tacitus. As Ramsay says very well, the rhetorical and epigrammatic phrases with which Tacitus so often closes a chapter or a topic are doubtless due to the practice of recitation. 'We cannot doubt (he continues) that it was in the form of recitation to sympathetic audiences that the works of Tacitus were first given to the world' (vol. I, p. 337). Those epigrams, called by Seneca sententiae, hold so much sense in a few words. They were then much in fashion. Many of them are to be found in Seneca and other writers of the Silver Age. Those of Tacitus are not merely showy conceits. They come direct from life. We admire the pungent flavour he has given them ; but we are still more impressed by the profound knowledge they manifest of character and life¹.

¹ Many of the declaimers never intended to become orators at all. To such men the course served rather as a literary and critical education. When they left the schools, they became writers of epics or history or philosophy, or else the readers to whom such writers must appeal (Summers, l.c., p. 93).

Many instances of such epigrams might be quoted from the Fourth Book of the Annals. The following are some of the most noteworthy :

- cuius pari exitio uiguit ceciditque (1)
- negotia pro solaciis accipiens (13)
- huic negatus honor gloria intendit (26)
- nimis ex propinquo dinersa argueus (33)
- si irascare, adgnita uidentur (34)
- punitis ingeniis gliscit auctoritas (35)
- haec mihi in animis uestris templa (38)
- contemptu famae contemni uirtutes (38)
- inuidiam et preces orditur (53)
- idque Augusta exprobrabat, reposcebat (57)
- patuit breue confinium artis et falsi (58)
- tristibus dictis atrocia facta coniungere (71)

It is a great mistake to regard the Tacitean prose of the Annals and Histories as 'Silver Latin' and nothing more. Tacitus has not the common fault of the Silver Age,—the stilted declamatory manner, which the education of the time encouraged. A Ciceronian in his youth, later on Tacitus developed a style of his own, of which the main features are dramatic power, terse epigram, stately dignity, and a stimulating vigour natural in the first orator of the day.—When he found that the style he had created was effective and popular, he adopted it permanently.

¹ See Boissier, p. 23.

Tacitus is above all things an artist. Racine, quoted by Boissier (p. 68), calls him the greatest painter of antiquity ; and ‘some of the pictures he has left are among the finest surviving to us from ancient writers.Professional men charge him with defective information as to topography, number of combatants, distribution of troops, phases of the struggle. But let some novel or curious episode intervene ; and at once the narrative is again brisk, interesting, and full of colour’ (Boissier, p. 69).

Similarly Livy is fond of ‘pleasant little resting-places,’ as he says in ix. 17, ut...legentibus uelut deuerticula amoena et requiem animo meo quaererem. Tacitus’ love of variety of expression is very remarkable. Note how in iv 5 (a mere catalogue of provinces and legions) Tacitus constantly varies the form of expression. His frequent variety of syntax is well illustrated by iv 38:—quod ulii modestiam, multi quia diffideret, quidam ut degeneris animi interpretabantur. His vocabulary is largely made up of poetical words ; and there are many echoes of Virgilian expression : see these examples from Book IV :

nobis in arto et inglorius labor (32)

in tenui labor ; at tenuis non gloria (Georg. iv 6) quibus infaustae amicitiae grauis exitus imminebat (74)

nunc manet insontem grauis exitus (Aen. x 630)

ualido cum remige (5)

agit acri remige (Aen. v 116).

III. 'TIBERIUS THE TYRANT'

There is a very striking passage in Dio Cassius (livi 19)¹. As he approaches the history of the Empire, this writer regards himself as passing from light into darkness. Though he has before him Tacitus, Suetonius, and other authorities, yet he writes:—'From henceforth state affairs were managed privily. If anything was divulged, it was not sufficiently attested to gain implicit belief. Almost every incident is distorted from the truth. Then there is the vast extent of the Empire..... Events took place in Rome, in the Provinces, on the frontiers, of which none but the actors themselves could ascertain the exact truth; and people generally knew not that they had occurred at all.' Truth being so hard to ascertain, Tacitus loved to indulge other literary excellences. He is a stylist rather than a historian. Moreover, he has a wonderfully subtle power of psychological analysis, of which we shall see good examples in Book iv, especially in his portrait of Tiberius. He is often carried away by this faculty to the detriment of truth. He has not the historical excellences of a Thucydides,—no critical faculty, no anxious search for facts. Neither is he an imaginative historian like Livy. Rather he is a stern moralist of the old republican type.

Thus in his elaborate monograph, Tiberius the Tyrant (p. 357), Tarver writes:—'Tacitus interested himself only in recording events which seemed to him striking illustrations of good or bad behaviour,—history being to him merely a primer of morals and a collection of examples.' Compare especially Annals iii 65, praecipuum munus annalium reor ne uirtutes sileantur, utque prauis dictis factisque ex posteritate et infamia metus sit.

In the book referred to, Tarver makes a valuable attempt to defend the character and government of the Emperor,—a good example of historical white-washing. We cannot do more here than indicate some important points in the discussion. There seems to be no doubt that the attacks of Tacitus on Tiberius are overdone.

¹ See Furneaux, vol. i, p. 17.

In iv 6, Tacitus readily ascribes to Tiberius in his early time a remarkable ideal of righteous government. Public business and most important private affairs are transacted in the Senate. The Emperor acts admirably as the fountain of honour. His appointments are excellent: sua consulibus, sua praetoribus species. The lesser magistrates also exercise their proper functions.

It is in 23 A.D. that we come (according to Tacitus) to the turning-point in the reign of Tiberius,—Tiberio mutati in deterius principatus initium ille annus attulit (iv 7). These words qualify what has been said in the previous chapter. The system there described was maintained till the murder of the Emperor's son Drusus by the arch-traitor Sejanus. Tiberius still preserves his dignity especially in the striking scene of the introduction to the Senate of the boys Nero and Drusus. He is determined (he says) to seek comfort e complexu rei publicae (iv 8). He still dwells on his alleged wish to restore the old commonwealth. For Tiberius' dignity and eloquence compare a later speech (iv 38).

The following words form a lurid commentary on the situation as conceived by Tacitus:—scd quia Seianus facinorum omnium repertor habebatur, ex nimia caritate in eum Caesaris et ceterorum in utrumque odio quamuis fabulosa et immania credebantur, atrociore semper fama erga dominantium exitus (iv 11).

Then, after Bury¹, we may note a special excuse for the unhappy Emperor:—‘Tiberius was now surrounded by four imperial widows, who made his court a scene of perpetual jealousy and intrigue. There was his mother Livia and his daughter-in-law Livilla, his sister-in-law Antonia, and Agrippina. The will of Augustus had left Livia a share in the supreme power, and she desired to exert it.'

¹ Student's Roman Empire (27 B.C.–100 A.D.), p. 197.

It is important to notice that even at Capri Tiberius gave strict attention to the details of state business; and he was in constant communication with the Senate. Bury suggests that, by his retirement, 'he may have wished to give Nero, the eldest son of Germanicus, a chance of gradually taking an active part in the government and of rendering the assistance which he had himself given to Augustus.'

In iv 67, Tacitus tells us that the Emperor objected so strongly to town life,—indeed to the mainland as a whole, that he buried himself in Capri; its solitude being its main attraction for him. These words, as Ramsay remarks, imply a morbid shrinking from the public view, which would account for the retirement to Capri without calling for the grosser insinuations of iv 57, where it is alleged that the island rocks were the screen of licentiousness. Others, according to Tacitus, said he wished to conceal the deformities of old age. Others held that, as we have mentioned above, he had been driven away by his mother's imperious temper.

This is Tiberius' last phase as conceived by Tacitus in a later book:—postremo in scelera simul ac dedecora prorupit, postquam remoto pudore et metu suo tantum ingenio utebatur (vi 51). Compare vi 48 ui dominationis conuulsus et mutatus sit. Ramsay is doubtless right when, following Tarver, he says: 'Intellectually and morally he stood head and shoulders above the evil emperors of the first century. Tacitus visited upon him the sins of the worst of his successors.'

IV. GERMANICUS AND HIS FAMILY

For an adequate understanding of Book iv of the Annals it is necessary to know something of Germanicus and his family.

The early days of the reign of Tiberius were disturbed by mutinies in the armies of the Rhine and Danube. On the Rhine there was a further danger, viz. the wonderful influence of Germanicus with his soldiers, who had given him that familiar title, his only name in history. Germanicus Caesar, governor of Gaul and commander of the eight legions on the German frontier, was marked out as the successor of Tiberius, his uncle and adoptive father; and 'the troops of Lower Germany conceived the design of hastening his reign'¹. But Germanicus himself had no ambitious hopes of empire. Accordingly he took the oath of allegiance to Tiberius, and distracted his troops from thoughts of mutiny by a famous series of German campaigns, 14–16 A.D.

The third and last campaign of Germanicus was planned on a great scale. He placed his troops on board a fleet of 1000 vessels and sailed through the Fossa Drusiana (the canal of his father Drusus), and the Zuyder Zee to the Ocean, landing his forces at the mouth of the Ems. The Germans could no longer resist effectually; and Germanicus only wanted another year for the complete subjugation of the whole country from the Rhine to the Elbe. But the Emperor, maintaining the policy of Augustus that the Roman rule could not be extended to that river, recalled Germanicus to Rome. In May, 17 A.D., he celebrated a splendid triumph over the conquered Germans.

He was then sent to the East with a far-reaching command including all the provinces beyond the Hellespont.

¹ Bury, l. c., p. 167.

He arranged the long-standing difficulty of the throne of Armenia, and converted the client-kingdoms of Cappadocia and Commagene into Roman provinces. Then came a great tragedy. Germanicus died at Antioch, the victim, it was said, of foul play on the part of his rival Piso, governor of Syria. He stands out as a charming popular hero,—‘one of the short-lived loves of the Roman people.’ The death of his son Drusus in 23 A.D. was a very grievous blow to Tiberius. Nothing was left but to adopt the two eldest sons of Germanicus, Nero and Drusus. But his widow Agrippina was not satisfied even with this proceeding, which marked out these two princes as successors of Tiberius.

It is interesting to observe what vigorous language Tacitus habitually employs in writing of the family of Germanicus: e.g. iv 12 domum Germanici reuirescere occulti laetabantur: and in the same chapter, pudicitia Agrippinae inpenetrabili; and again, ut superbam fecunditate, subnixam popularibus studiis inhiare dominationi apud Caesarem arguerent. Compare also iv 15, referring to Nero, recenti memoria Germanici illum aspici, illum audiri rebantur; also iv 17, 18, 19; and 52 Agrippina semper atrox. Compare 53 peruicax irue, and the rest of the chapter.

The turning-point in the history comes when Sejanus proposes to marry the younger Livia (Livilla). Foiled in this by Tiberius, he makes up his mind to destroy the house of Germanicus.

V. SIGNIFICANCE OF THE TITLE PRINCEPS

That the title princeps is merely princeps senatus written short is the view taken by Merivale, Bekker, Marquardt, and most authorities. Pelham¹ urges that, if princeps is an abbreviation of princeps senatus, the abbreviation must have taken place remarkably early ; for no trace exists of the full title as applied even to Augustus. So far as the evidence of literature and inscriptions goes, the title is, from the first, princeps and nothing more. Ovid and Horace use princeps, but with no hint of an understood senatus.

It is extremely important (Pelham continues) to decide whether Augustus posed before the Roman people as Father of the Senate or as First Citizen,—in other words, as the leader of the Roman nobility or as the elect of the Roman people. There is nothing in the inscriptions to suggest that the title was ever anything but princeps. The employment of the term by Republican writers is in favour of Pelham's view. The use of princeps and principes applied to a citizen or citizens holding a foremost place in the state is an almost literal anticipation of the Augustan principatus. Men had already grasped the idea of placing at the head of the republican system a constitutional primate. Cicero introduced into his sketch of an ideal polity (the de re publica) a novel figure, that of a single moderator rei publicae, such no doubt as he hoped Pompey might prove himself.

In his letter ad fam. vi 6, Cicero says that Caesar might have enjoyed the great position of First Citizen (not the military despot he had since become)—esset hic quidem clarus in toga et princeps.

The idea of simple primacy appears again in ad Att. viii 9

¹ It will be seen that I have borrowed freely from his discussion ‘Princeps or Princeps Senatus?’ in his Essays on Roman History.

(written 49 B.C.), where Caesar is said to wish for nothing better than principe Pompeio sine metu uiuere.

Pelham infers from these and similar passages that the notion of a First Citizen at the head of affairs, of a princeps or princeps ciuitatis, was already familiar to the Roman public, when Augustus set to work to re-organise the state. Pelham adds that by imperial writers the term principatus is carefully distinguished from dominatio, regnum, and dictatura as a constitutional authority. Compare Ann. i 9 non regno tamen neque dictatura sed principis nomine constitutam rem publicam.

The Emperor was imperator, consul, etc. But to describe his relation to the whole citizen body—as merely the first of themselves—no term was so suitable as princeps.

VI. THE SENATE UNDER THE EARLY EMPIRE

Boissier¹ is justly surprised at modern historians, who, (i) because Tiberius one day remarked that the Emperor must be the servant of the Senate, and (ii) because Nero invited the Senate to resume its ancient functions, imagine that they really restored them. They have, he says, even invented a new word—‘dyarchy’—to designate this joint government².

¹ Tacitus and other Roman Studies, p. 139.

² Compare Stobart, ‘The Senate under Augustus,’ Classical Quarterly, vol. ii, p. 298 :—‘If we choose our term according to the spirit, then undoubtedly Monarchy is the only appropriate definition. Not only had the Princeps gathered into his hand all the functions of the executive, but the deliberative was de facto subordinate to him. When the deliberative organ becomes an advisory council selected by one man, and when the electing body merely registers the choice of that single person, then it is Monarchy, however temperately conducted. In every sense Dyarchy is an unsatisfactory term.’

Tacitus, a champion of the Senate, writing of the early part of the reign of Tiberius (iii 60), tells us how the Emperor, while strengthening the powers of the Principate, yielded to the Senate the semblance of its ancient authority, by referring to its discussion petitions from the Provinces.

A fine sight it was (writes Tacitus)—magna eius diei species fuit—to see the Senate inquiring into these matters, free as in olden days to cancel or confirm. But Tacitus knows that this power is a mere phantom. There was no joint government. It differed in no respect from monarchy,—non alia re Romana quam si unus imperitet (iv 33).

There remained (according to Stobart¹) another motive for admitting the Senate to partnership, a motive so simple and practical that it almost eludes the notice of the constitutional historian. Until a new machinery could be created, until a competent civil service could be organised, the mere burden of administration was more than one man could bear. By degrees a civil service is organised. Then, as there is less need of the Senate, its importance steadily decreases. This is the explanation of the paradox that the more Augustus seems to retire from public offices, the more business is absorbed into the imperial chancellery.

In iv 22, 34, 42, and other passages we find Tiberius presiding at the senatorial high court of justice. The power of pardon has passed entirely to the Emperor. It is proposed in the Senate (iv 30) that Serenus should be scourged to death more maiorum. The Emperor exercises his power of *intercessio*²; and Serenus is banished.

¹ l.c., p. 303.

² Compare Stobart, l.c. :—‘The tribunicia potestas was not conferred in a lump by any such formula as tribuniciam potestatem habeto, but by a series of laws,—personal sacrosanctitas and the right to sit on the Tribunes’ Bench in 36 B.C., ius auxilii in 30 B.C. and the rest in 23 B.C., when it first begins to be

But in iv 33 Tacitus laments the monotony of his task,—of prosecutions heaped on prosecutions, of the betrayal of friends, and the ruin of the innocent, of trials all ending in one way. Velleius, as usual, is fulsome in his praise of Tiberius: ‘Confidence in the Courts of Law was restored’; and ‘With what dignity does he listen attentively to cases as senator and juryman, not as Princeps and Caesar !’

VII. THE PROVINCES UNDER TIBERIUS

In iv 4 Tacitus speaks of Tiberius’ pretended wish to visit the provinces and study their defences, especially the disposition of the fleets and of the twenty-five legions on the frontiers of the Empire (iv 5).

Italy (Tacitus tells us) was protected by two fleets, one on either sea,—one stationed at Misenum, the other at Ravenna. The near coast of Gaul was protected by war-ships captured by Augustus at the battle of Aetium and sent by him to Forum Julii (Fréjus).

On the Rhine frontier lay eight legions, ‘a common defence against Gaul and Germany.’ They held the provinces of Upper and Lower Germany,—the head-quarters of the one being at Moguntiacum (Mainz), of the other at Colonia Agrippinensis (Cologne).

The Danube frontier was held by six legions,—two stationed in Pannonia, two in Moesia, and two in Dalmatia. The frontier between the Upper Rhine and the Upper Danube was marked by a limes or ‘causeway’ built later.

Thrace was under Rhoemetalees and the sons of Cotys.

reckoned as complete. The ius relationis (the right of making a motion) is merely a part of the remaining tribunician functions.¹ Stobart objects to Stuart Jones’ statement (Roman Empire, p. 3) that Augustus received in 36 b.c. the whole tribunician power, including intercessio.

See note on iv 5, 15. Colchis, Iberia, and Albania formed a belt from the Euxine to the Caspian, and were protected (says Tacitus proudly) 'by our name.'

Four legions held 'the vast sweep of country' from the borders of Syria to the Euphrates.

Egypt was held by two legions stationed at Alexandria.

Mauretania had been handed over to King Juba : the rest of Africa was held by two legions.

In Spain there were three legions. See note on iv 5, 7.

This list makes up a total of twenty-five legions for the time of Tiberius.

The City of Rome had its own garrison,—three Urban cohorts and ten cohorts of Praetorian guards.

Tacitus adds: 'At suitable points in the provinces the allied fleets were stationed, and the auxiliary horse and foot, representing a total strength not much inferior to that of our own forces.' See last explanatory note on iv 5.

In iv 13 come words which strike the key-note of Tiberius' provincial government,—preces sociorum tractabat. Tacitus gives frequent examples of his wisdom in relieving provinces which had suffered disasters. They enjoyed unwonted happiness in his time; and it is important to notice that the Imperial provinces were better treated than the Senatorial. We read of frequent prosecutions of Imperial governors and procurators; and the troops are subject to strict discipline. It was regarded as good fortune for a province to be transferred from the control of the Senate to that of the Emperor. Several proconsuls and several procurators were convicted during his reign, e.g. Granius Marcellus proconsul of Asia, and C. Silanus proconsul of the same province; Caesius Cordus procurator of Crete, and Vibius Serenus procurator of Further Spain. For other prosecutions see iv 13 and 15. The Emperor's general policy towards the provinces is given in the words put into his mouth by

Suetonius: 'It is the part of a good shepherd to shear his sheep, not to flay them.'

The following chapters in Book iv are also important for the history of provincial management,—23–26, 43, 44, 46–51, 72–74.

This passage from Tiberius the Tyrant (p. 380) is useful:—'Tiberius treated the Senate with formal respect, and did his best to make it worthy of its opportunities. If he could have avoided interfering with its administration of its own provinces, he would have done so. Tiberius, like Augustus, supplied himself with an inner Council of the Senate; and it is possible that on most occasions the inner Council represented the whole body. But he did not restrict himself to Senatorial counsellors; and we are told that, in dealing with provincial questions, he was always careful to provide himself with the expert evidence of men who knew the localities concerned. The Senate was curiously indifferent to municipal matters. The rank of senator eventually became little more than an honourable distinction. The difference between Senatorial and Imperial Provinces did not last long, the Imperial administration proving better suited to the needs of the Empire.'

VIII. MAIESTAS

Maiestas populi Romani and maiestatem minuere or laedere are phrases belonging to Republican Rome. Cicero (de inuentione ii 53) gives this definition:—maiestatem minuere est de dignitate aut amplitudine aut potestate populi aut eorum, quibus populus potestatem dedit, aliquid derogare. Compare Verres ii 88 crimen maiestatis, 'charge of treason,' and pro Cluentio 97 legionem sollicitare res est quae lege maiestatis tenetur. The scope of maiestas was strictly defined by a law of Julius Caesar. It was extended by Augustus; but he made little use of it.

See Tarver, l. c., p. 304 :—‘The history of the lex maiestatis is not absolutely clear; but it is certain that comparatively early in the Republican period the laws provided for the punishment of a Roman citizen who by his acts diminished the majesty of the Republic. Cowardice in the field, premature surrender, dishonourable breaches of faith by which the dignity of the State was impaired, were deeds punishable under this law.’

Under Tiberius maiestas gained far-reaching importance. He employed it for his own security. Any insult offered to the Emperor in speech or writing was brought under the statute. By its means he thwarted any latent opposition among the senators, who were led to fear that any hostility to the new régime might be looked upon as treason.

In iv 6 Tacitus says that the laws were well administered except proceedings for treason (maiestatis quaestio). In iv 19 it is stated that Silius and his wife could easily have been condemned on charges of repetundae (extortion); but the whole business was managed maiestatis quaestione; and Silius anticipated conviction by suicide. In iv 21 Calpurnius Piso, accused of a private conversation aduersum maiestatem, escapes condemnation by opportune death.

The scope of maiestas was extended by the patronage which Tiberius afforded to the delatores. The phrase nomen deferre is used several times in Cicero for ‘to accuse,’ ‘to inform against.’ Also he uses delatio several times as a general term for ‘accusation,’ ‘denunciation.’ In Silver Latin deferre is used with accusative of person and genitive of charge; and delator is often used for ‘informer,’ sometimes with genitive of charge, as delator maiestatis (ii 50) and delator Papiae legis (Suet. Nero 10). A quarter of the property of the convicted person went by law to the delatores (iv 20).

When Tiberius came to the throne, he regarded the system of delatio as a useful engine for the enforcing of justice.

Afterwards he saw its odious character and tried to check it by instituting a special court of fifteen senators. Then he relapsed owing to the evil influence of Sejanus; see Annals vi throughout. There was no public prosecutor at Rome. Hence it was convenient to have these private delatores,—a term originally applied to those who gave information in respect of debts due to the exchequer. In an economic crisis, which took place in 33 A.D., delatores made an attack on money-lending capitalists, who set aside two laws of Julius Caesar. Tacitus (vi 16) describes them as magna uis accusatorum. Compare iv 36 ut quis destrictior accusator uelut sacrosanctus erat.

In iv 30 we are told that it was proposed in the Senate that rewards to delatores should be abolished in the case of those found guilty of maiestas. Tiberius contra morem suum defends them as 'guardians' of justice. Tacitus' comment is: sic delatores, genus hominum publico exitio repertum,...per praemia eliciebantur. In iv 34 we read of a further stretch in the employment of the law of maiestas. It is made to reach Cremutius Cordus for a passage in a book, where the eulogy is awarded to Cassius, which had once been spoken over him by Brutus. We are told about Cordus' trial, his eloquent defence, and how he starved himself to death.

The following chapters are loci classici on the subject of delatio and maiestas :—iv 21, 42, 66.

THE ANNALS OF TACITUS:

BOOK IV.

CHAPTERS 1—16: EVENTS OF 23 A.D.

1. C. Asinio C. Antistio consulibus nonus Tiberio annus erat compositae rei publicae, florentis domus (nam Germanici mortem inter prospera ducebant), cum repente turbare fortuna coepit, saeuire ipse aut saeuientibus uires praebere. initium et causa penes 5 Aelium Seianum cohortibus praetoriis praefectum, cuius de potentia supra memorauit: nunc originem, mores, et quo facinore dominationem raptum ierit expediam. genitus Vulsiniis patre Seio Strabone equite Romano, et prima iuuenta Gaium Caesarem 10 diui Augusti nepotem sectatus, mox Tiberium uariis artibus deuinxit, adeo ut obscurum aduersum alios sibi uni incantum intectumque efficeret, non tam sollertia (quippe isdem artibus uictus est) quam deum ira in rem Rouanam, cuius pari exitio uignit 15 ceciditque. corpus illi laborum tolerans, animus audax; sui obtegens, in alios criminator; iuxta adulatio et superbia; palam compositus pudor, intus summa apiscendi libido, eiusque causa modo largitio

20 et luxus, saepius industria ac uigilantia, haud minus noxiae quotiens parando regno finguntur.

2. Vim praefecturae modicam antea intendit, dispersas per urbem cohortes una in castra conducedo, ut simul imperia acciperent, numeroque et robore et uisu inter se fiducia ipsis, in ceteros metus 5 oreretur. praetendebat lasciuire militem diductum; si quid subitum ingruat, maiore auxilio pariter subueniri; et senerius acturos, si uallum statuatur procul urbis inlecebris. ut perfecta sunt castra, inrepere paulatim militares animos adeundo, appellando; 10 simul centuriones ac tribunos ipse diligere. neque senatorio ambitu abstinebat clientes suos honoribus aut prouinciis ornandi, facili Tiberio atque ita prono ut socium laborum non modo in sermonibus, sed apud patres et populum celebraret colique per theatra et 15 fora effigies eius interque principia legionum sineret.

3. Ceterum plena Caesarum domus, iuuenis filius, nepotes adulti moram cupitis adferebant; et quia ui tot simul corripere intutum, dolus interualla scelerum poscebat. placuit tamen occultior uia et 5 a Druso incipere, in quem recenti ira ferebatur. nam Drusus, inpatiens aemuli et animo commotior, orto forte iurgio intenderat Seiano manus et contra tendentis os uerberauerat. igitur cuncta temptanti promptissimum uisum ad uxorem eius Liuiam consertere, quae soror Germanici, formae initio aetatis indecorae, mox pulchritudine praecellebat. hanc ut amore incensus adulterio pellexit, et postquam primi flagitii potitus est (neque femina amissa pudicitia alia abnuerit), ad coniugii spem, consortium regni et necem mariti impulit. atque illa, cui annus 15

 culus Augustus, sacer Tiberius, ex Druso liberi, seque ac maiores et posteros municipali adultero foedabat, ut pro honestis et praesentibus flagitiosa et incerta exspectaret. sumitur in conscientiam Eudemus, amicus ac medicus Liuiae, specie artis frequens 20 secretis. pellit domo Seianus uxorem Apicatam, ex qua tres liberos genuerat, ne pauci suspectaretur.
 sed magnitudo facinoris metum, prolationes, diuersa interdum consilia adferebat.

4. Interim anni principio Drusus ex Germanici liberis togam uirilem sumpsit, quaeque fratri eius Neroni decreuerat senatus repetita. addidit orationem Caesar, multa cum laude filii sui, quod patria benevolentia in fratris liberos foret. nam Drusus, 5 quamquam arduum sit eodem loci potentiam et con-cordiam esse, aequus adulescentibus aut certe non aduersus habebatur. exin uetus et saepe simulatum profiscendi in prouincias consilium refertur. multitudinem ueteranorum praetexebat imperator et 10 dilectibus supplendos exercitus: nam noluntarium militem deesse, ac, si suppeditet, non eadem uirtute ac modestia agere, quia plerumque inopes ac uagi sponte militiam sumant. percensuitque cursim numerum legionum et quas prouincias tutarentur. 15 quod mihi quoque exsequendum reor, quae tunc Romana copia in armis, qui socii reges, quanto sit angustius imperitatum.

5. Italianam utroque mari duae classes, Misenum apud et Rauennam, proximumque Galliae litus ros-tratae naues praesidebant, quas Actiaca uictoria captas Augustus in oppidum Foroiuliense miserat 5 ualido cum remige. sed praecipuum robur Rhenum iuxta, commune in Germanos Gallosque subsidium, octo legiones erant. Hispaniae recens perdomitae tribus habebantur. Mauros Iuba rex acceperat donum populi Romani. cetera Africae per duas

 10 legiones parique numero Aegyptus, dehinc initio ab Suriae usque ad flumen Euphraten, quantum ingenti terrarum sinu ambitur, quattuor legionibus coërcita, accolis Hibero Albanoque et aliis regibus, qui magnitudine nostra proteguntur aduersum externa im-15 peria. et Thraeciam Rhoemetalces ac liberi Cotyis, ripamque Danuuii legionum duae in Pannonia, duae in Moesia attinebant, totidem apud Delmatiam locatis, quae positu regionis a tergo illis, ac si repentinum auxilium Italia posceret, haud procul accirentur, 20 quamquam insideret urbem proprius miles, tres urbanae, nouem praetoriae cohortes, Etruria ferme Vmbriaque delectae aut ueteri Latio et coloniis antiquitus Romanis. at apud idonea prouinciarum sociae triremes alaeque et auxilia cohortium, neque 25 multo secus in iis uirium; sed persequi incertum fuerit, cum ex usu temporis huc illuc mearent, gliscerent numero et aliquando minuerentur.

6. Congruens crediderim recensere ceteras quo-que rei publicae partes, quibus modis ad eam diem habitae sint, quoniam Tiberio mutati in deterius principatus initium ille annus attulit. iam primum 5 publica negotia et priuatorum maxima apud patres tractabantur, dabaturque primoribus disserere, et in adulacionem lapsos cohiebat ipse; mandabatque honores, nobilitatem maiorum, claritudinem militiae, inlustres domi artes spectando, ut satis constaret non alios potiores fuisse. sua consulibus, sua praetoribus ¹⁰ species; minorum quoque magistratum exercita potestas; legesque, si maiestatis quaestio eximeretur, bono in usu. at frumenta et pecuniae nectigales, cetera publicorum fructuum societatibus equitum Romanorum agitabantur. res suas Caesar specta- ¹⁵ tissimo cuique, quibusdam ignotis ex fama mandabat, semelque adsumpti tenebantur prorsus sine modo, cum plerique isdem negotiis insenescerent. plebes acri quidem annona fatigabatur, sed nulla in eo culpa ex principe. quin infecunditati terrarum aut asperis ²⁰ maris obniam iit, quantum impendio diligentiaque poterat. et ne prouinciae nouis oneribus turbarentur utque netera sine auaritia aut crudelitate magistratum tolerarent prouidebat; corporum nerbera, ademptiones bonorum aberant. rari per Italiam ²⁵ Caesaris agri, modesta seruitia, intra paucos libertos domus; ac si quando cum priuatis disceptaret, forum et ius.

7. Quae cuncta non quidem comi uia, sed horridns ac plerumque formidatus, retinebat tamen, donec morte Drusi uetererentur; nam, dum superfuit, mansere, quia Seianus incipiente adhuc potentia bonis consiliis notescere uolebat, et ulti metuebatur ⁵ non occultus odii, sed crebro querens incolumi filio adiutorem imperii aliud uocari. et quantum superesse ut collega dicatur? primas dominandi spes in arduo; ubi sis ingressus, adesse studia et ministros. exstructa iam sponte praefecti castra, datos in ¹⁰

manum milites; cerni effigiem eius in monumentis Cn. Pompei; communes illi cum familia Drusorum fore nepotes: precandam post haec modestiam, ut contentus esset. neque raro neque apud paucos 15 talia iaciebat, et secreta quoque eius corrupta uxore prodebat.

8. Igitur Seianus maturandum ratus deligit nenenum, quo paulatim inrepente fortinus morbus adsimularetur. id Druso datum per Lygdum spadonem, ut octo post annos cognitum est. ceterum
5 Tiberius per omnes ualetudinis eius dies, nullo metu an ut firmitudinem animi ostentaret, etiam defuncto necdum sepulto, curiam ingressus est. consulesque sede uulgari per speciem maestitiae sedentes honoris locique admonuit, et effusum in lacrimas senatum
10 uicto gemitu simul oratione continua erexit; non quidem sibi ignarum posse argui, quod tam recenti dolore subierit oculos senatus; uix propinquorum adloquia tolerari, nix diem aspici a plerisque lugentium. neque illos inbecillitatis damnandos; se tamen
15 fortiora solacia e complexu rei publicae petinisse. miseratusque Augustae extremam senectam, rudem adhuc nepotum et nergentem aetatem suam, nt Germanici liberi, unica praesentium malorum leuamenta, inducerentur petiuit. egressi consules fir-20 matos adloquio adulescentulos deductosque ante Caesarem statuunt. quibus adprensis ‘patres conscripti, hos’ inquit ‘orbatos parente tradidi patruo ipsorum precatusque sum, quamquam esset illi propria suboles, ne secus quam suum sanguinem foueret, 25 attolleret, sibique et posteris conformaret. erepto

Druso preces ad uos conuerto disque et patria coram obtestor: Augusti pronepotes, clarissimis maioribus genitos, suscipite, regite, nestram meamque uicem explete. hi uobis, Nero et Druse, parentum loco.
ita nati estis, ut bona malaque uestra ad rem publicam 30 pertineant.'

9. Magno ea fletu et mox precationibns faustis audita; ac, si modum orationi posuisset, misericordia sui gloriaque animos audientium impleuerat: ad uana et totiens inrisa reuolutus, de reddenda re publica utque consules seu qnis alius regimen susci- 5 perent, uero quoque et honesto fidem dempsit.
memoriae Drusi eadem quae in Germanicum decernnuntur, plerisque additis, ut ferme amat posterior adulatio. funus imaginum pompa maxime inlustre fuit, cum origo Iuliae gentis Aeneas omnesque 10
Albanorum reges et conditor urbis Romulus, post Sabina nobilitas, Attus Clausus ceteraeque Clau-diorum effigies longo ordine spectarentur.

10. In tradenda morte Drusi quae plurimis maximaeque fidei auctoribus memorata sunt rettuli;
sed non omiserim eorundem temporum rumorem, ualidum adeo, ut nondim exolescat. corrupta ad scelus Liuia Seianum Lygdi quoque spadonis ani- 5 mum uinxisse, quod is aetate atque forma carus domino interque primores ministros erat; deinde inter conscos ubi locus ueneficii tempusque composita sint, eo audaciae prouectum, ut uerteret et occulto indicio Drusum ueneni in patrem arguens moneret 10 Tiberium uitandam potionem, quae prima ei apud filium epulanti offerretur. ea fraude captum senem, postquam conuiuium inierat, exceptum poculum Druso tradidisse; atque illo ignaro et inueniliter 15 hauriente auctam suspicionem, tamquam metu et pudore sibimet inrogaret mortem quam patri struxerat.

11. Haec nulgo iactata super id quod nullo auctore certo firmantur prompte refutaueris. quis enim mediocri prudentia, nedum Tiberius tantis rebus exercitus, inauditio filio exitium offerret, idque
 5 sua manu et nullo ad paenitendum regressu? quin potius ministrum ueneni excruciaret, auctorem exquireret, insita denique etiam in extraneos cunctatione et mora aduersum unicum et nullius ante flagitii conpertum uteretur? sed quia Seianus facinorum
 10 omnium repertor habebatur, ex nimia caritate in eum Caesaris et ceterorum in utrumque odio quamuis fabulosa et immania credebantur, atrociore semper fama erga dominantium exitus. ordo alioqui sceleris per Apicatam Seiani proditus, tormentis Eudem ac
 15 Lygdi patefactus est. neque quisquam scriptor tam infensus extitit ut Tiberio obiectaret, cum omnia alia conquerirerent intenderentque. mihi tradendi arguendique rumoris causa fuit ut claro sub exemplo falsas auditiones depellerem peteremque ab iis, 20 quorum in manus nostra nenerit, ne dinulgata atque incredibilia auide accepta ueris neque in miraculum corruptis antehabeant.

12. Ceterum, laudante filium pro rostris Tiberio, senatus populusque habitum ac uoces dolentum simulatione magis quam libens inuebat, domumque Germanici reuirescere occulti laetabantur. quod principium fauoris et mater Agrippina spem male 5 tegens perniciem adcelerauere. nam Seianus, ubi uidet mortem Drusi inultam interfectoribus, sine maerore publico esse, ferox scelerum, et quia prima prouenerant, uolutare secum quonam modo Germanici liberos peruerteret, quorum non dubia successio. 10 neque spargi uenenum in tres poterat, egregia custodum fide et pudicitia Agrippinae inpenetrabili.

 igitur contumaciam eius insectari, uetus Augustae odium, recentem Liniae conscientiam exagitare, ut superbam fecunditate, subnixam popularibus 15
 studiis inhiare dominationi apud Caesarem arguerent.
 atque haec callidis criminatoribus, inter quos dele-gerat Iulum Postumum, per adulterium Mutiliae Priscae inter intimos auiae et consiliis suis peridoneum (quia Prisca in animo Augustae ualida) 20 anum suapte natura potentiae anxiam insociabilem nurui efficiebat. Agrippinae quoque proximi inli-ciebantur prauis sermonibus tumidos spiritus perstimulare.

13. At Tiberius nihil intermissa rerum cura, negotia pro solaciis accipiens, ius ciuium, preces socrorum tractabat; factaque auctore eo senatus consulta, ut cinitati Cibyratice apud Asiam, Aegiensi apud Achaiam, motu terrae labefactis, subueniretur 5 remissione tributi in triennium. et Vibius Serenus pro consule ulterioris Hispaniae, de ui publica damnatus, ob atrocitatem morum in insulam Amorgum deportatur. Carsidius Sacerdos, reus tamquam frumento hostem Tacfarinatem iuuisset, absoluitur, 10 eiusdemque criminis C. Gracchus. hunc comitem exilii admodum infantem pater Sempronius in insulam Cercinam tulerat. illic adultus inter extores et liberalium artium nescios, mox per Africam ¹⁵ ac Siciliam mutando sordidas merces sustentabatur; neque tamen effugit magnae fortunae pericula. ac ni Aelius Lamia et L. Apronius, qui Africam obtinuerant, insontem protexissent, claritudine infausti generis et paternis aduersis foret abstractus.

14. Is quoque annus legationes Graecarum ciuitatum habuit, Samiis Iunonis, Cois Aesculapii delubro netustum asyli ius ut firmaretur petentibus. Samii decreto Amphictyonum nitebantur, quis ⁵ praecipuum fuit rerum omnium iudicium, qua tempestate Graeci conditis per Asiam urbibus ora maris potiebantur. neque dispar apud Coos antiquitas, et accedebat meritum ex loco; nam ciues Romanos templo Aesculapii induxerant, cum iussu regis ¹⁰ Mithridatis apud cunctas Asiae insulas et urbes trucidarentur. uariis dehinc et saepius inritis prae- torum questibus, postremo Caesar de inmodestia histrionum rettulit: multa ab iis in publicum seditione, foeda per domos temptari; Oscum quondam ludicum, ¹⁵ leuissimae apud uulgum oblectationis, eo flagitorum et uirium uenisce, ut auctoritate patrum coercendum sit. pulsi tum histriones Italia.

15. Idem annus alio quoque luctu Caesarem adfecit, alterum ex geminis Drusi liberis extingendo, neque minus morte amici. is fuit Lucilius Longus, omnium illi tristium laetorumque socius ⁵ unusque e senatoribus Rhodii secessus comes. ita quamquam nouo homini censorium funus, effigiem apud forum Augusti publica pecunia patres decreuere, apud quos etiam tum cuncta tractabantur, adeo ut procurator Asiae Lucilius Capito accensante prouincia causam dixerit, magna cum adseueratione principis, 10 non se ius nisi in seruitia et pecunias familiares dedisse; quod si nim praetoris usurpasset manibusque militum usus foret, spreta in eo mandata sua: audirent socios. ita reus cognito negotio damnatur. ob quam ultionem, et quia priore anno in C. Silanum 15 uindicatum erat, decreuere Asiae urbes templum Tiberio matrique eius ac senatni. et permissum statuere; egitque Nero grates ea causa patribus atque auo, laetas inter audientium adfectiones, qui recenti memoria Germanici illum aspici, illum audiri 20 rebantur. aderantque iuueni modestia ac forma principe uiro digna, notis in eum Seiani odiis ob periculum gratiora.

16. Sub idem tempus de flamine Diali in locum Serui Maluginensis defuncti legendo, simul roganda noua lege disseruit Caesar. nam patricios confarreatis parentibus genitos tres simul nominari, ex quis unus legeretur, netusto more; neque adesse, ut olim, eam 5 copiam, omissa confarreandi adsuetudine aut inter paucos retenta (pluresque eius rei causas adferebat, potissimum penes incuriam uirorum feminarumque; accedere ipsius caerimoniae difficultates, quae consulto uitarentur) et quod exiret e iure patrio qui 10 id flamonium apisceretur quaeque in manum flaminis conueniret. ita medendum senatus decreto aut lege, sicut Augustus quaedam ex horrida illa antiquitate ad praesentem nsum flexisset. igitur tractatis

15 religionibus placitum instituto flaminum nihil demutari; sed lata lex, qua flaminica Dialis sacrorum causa in potestate uiri, cetera promisco feminarum iure ageret. et filius Maluginensis patri suffectus. utque glisceret dignatio sacerdotum atque ipsis promptior
20 animus foret ad capessendas caerimonias, decretum Corneliae uirginis, quae in locum Scantiae capiebatur, sestertium uiciens, et quotiens Augusta theatrum introisset, ut sedes inter Vestalium consideret.

CHAPTERS 17—33 : EVENTS OF 24 A.D.

17. Cornelio Cethego Visellio Varrone consulibus pontifices eorumque exemplo ceteri sacerdotes, cum pro incolumitate principis uota susciperent, Neronem quoque et Drusum isdem dis commendauere, non tam caritate iuuenum quam adulazione, quae 5 moribus corruptis perinde anceps, si nulla et ubi nimia est. nam Tiberius haud umquam domui Germanici mitis, tum uero aequari adulescentes senectae suae impatienter indoluit; accitosque pontifices percontatus est num id precibus Agrippinae 10 aut minis tribuissent. et illi quidem, quamquam abnuerent, modice perstricti; etenim pars magna e propinquis ipsius aut primores ciuitatis erant. ceterum in senatu oratione monuit in posterum, ne quis mobiles adulescentium animos praematuris 15 honoribus ad superbiam extolleret. instabat quippe Seianus incusabatque diductam ciuitatem ut ciuili bello; esse qui se partium Agrippinae nocent, ac, ni resistatur, fore plures; neque aliud gliscentis discordiae remedium quam si unus alterue maxime 20 prompti subuerterentur.

18. Qua causa C. Silium et Titium Sabinum adgreditur. amicitia Germanici perniciosa utriusque, Silio et quod ingentis exercitus septem per annos moderator partisque apud Germaniam triumphalibus 5 Sacrouiriani belli uictor, quanto maiore mole procederet, plus formidinis in alios dispergebatur. credebant plerique auctam offensionem ipsius intemperantia, immodice iactantis suum militem in obsequio durauisse, cum alii ad seditiones prola- 10 berentur; neque mansurum Tiberio imperium, si iis quoque legionibus cupido nouandi fuisse. destrui per haec fortunam suam Caesar inparemque tanto merito rebatur. nam beneficia eo usque laeta sunt, dum nidentur exsolvi posse; ubi multum anteneneret, 15 pro gratia odium redditur.

19. Erat uxor Silio Sosia Galla, caritate Agripinae inuisa principi. hos corripi dilato ad tempus Sabino placitum, inmissusque Varro consul, qui paternas inimicitias obtendens odiis Seiani per decus suum gratificabatur. precante reo breuem moram, dum accusator consulatu abiret, aduersatus est Caesar; solitum quippe magistratibus diem priuatis dicere; nec infringendum consulis ius, cuius uigiliis niteretur, ne quod res publica detrimentum 5 caperet. proprium id Tiberio fuit scelera nuper reperta priscis uerbis obtegere. igitur multa adseueratione, quasi aut legibus cum Silio ageretur aut Varro consul aut illud res publica esset, coguntur patres. silente reo, uel, si defensionem coeptaret, non 10 occultante cuius ira premeretur, conscientia belli Sacrouir diu dissimulatus, uictoria per auaritiam

foedata et uxor Sosia arguebantur. nec dubie repetundarum criminibus haerebant, sed cuncta quaestione maiestatis exercita, et Silius imminentem damnationem uoluntario fine praeuertit. 20

20. Saeuitum tamen in bona, non ut stipendiariis pecuniae redderentur, quorum nemo repetebat, sed liberalitas Augusti auulsa, computatis singillatim quae fisco petebantur. ea prima Tiberio erga pecuniam alienam diligentia fuit. Sosia in exilium 5 pellitur Asinii Galli sententia, qui partem bonorum publicandam, pars ut liberis relinqueretur censuerat. contra M'. Lepidus quartam accusatoribus secundum necessitudinem legis, cetera liberis concessit. hunc ego Lepidum temporibus illis grauem et sapientem 10 uirum fuisse comperior; nam pleraque ab saeuis adulationibus aliorum in melius flexit. neque tamen temperamenti egebat, cum aequabili auctoritate et gratia apud Tiberium uiguerit. unde dubitare cogor, fato et sorte nascendi, ut cetera, ita principum 15 inclinatio in hos, offensio in illos, an sit aliquid in nostris consiliis liceatque inter abruptam contumaciam et deforme obsequium pergere iter ambitione ac periculis uacuum. at Messalinus Cotta haud minus claris maioribus, sed animo diversus, censuit 20 canendum senatus consulto ut quamquam insontes magistratus et culpae alienae nescii prouincialibus uxorum criminibus perinde quam suis plecterentur.

21. Actum dehinc de Calpurnio Pisone, nobili ac feroci viro. is namque, ut rettuli, cessurum se urbe ob factiones accusatorum in senatu clamitauerat et spreta potentia Augustae trahere in ius Vrgulaniam

5 domoque principis excire ausus erat. quae in praesens Tiberius ciuiliter habuit; sed in animo reuoluente iras, etiam si impetus offensionis languerat, memoria ualebat. Pisonem Q. Granins secreti sermonis incusauit aduersum maiestatem habiti, adiecitque in 10 domo eius uenenum esse eumque gladio accinctum introire curiam. quod ut atrocius uero tramissum; ceterorum, quae multa cumulabantur, receptus est reus, neque peractus ob mortem opportunam. relatuum et de Cassio Seuero exule, qui sordidae originis,
15 maleficae uitae, sed orandi ualidus, per immodicas inimicitias ut indicio iurati senatus Cretam amoueretur effecerat; atque illic eadem actitando recentia neteraque odia aduertit, bonisque exutus, interdicto igni atque aqua, saxo Seripho consenuit.

22. Per idem tempus Plautius Siluanus praetor incertis causis Aproniam coniugem in praeceps iecit; tractusque ad Caesarem ab L. Apronio socero turbata mente respondit, tamquam ipse somno grauis atque
5 eo ignarus, et uxor sponte mortem sumpsisset. non cunctanter Tiberius pergit in domum, uisit cubiculum, in quo reluctantis et impulsae uestigia cernebantur. refert ad senatum, datisque iudicibus Vrgulania Siluani auia pugionein nepoti misit. quod perinde
10 creditum, quasi principis monitu, ob amicitiam Augustae cum Vrgulania. reus, frustra temptato ferro, uenas praebuit exsoluendas. mox Numantina, prior uxor eius, accusata inieccisse carminibus et ueneficiis uaecordiam marito, insons iudicatur.

23. Is demum annus populum Romanum longo aduersum Numidam Tacfarinatem bello absoluit.

nam priores duces, ubi impetrando triumphalium insigni sufficere res suas crediderant, hostem omittebant; iamque tres laureatae in urbe statuae, et adhuc raptabat Africam Tacfarinas, auctus Maurorum auxiliis, qui, Ptolemaeo Iubae filio iuuenta incurioso, libertos regios et seruilia imperia bello mutauerant. erat illi praedarum receptor ac socius populandi rex Garamantum, non ut cum exercitu 10 incederet, sed missis leuibus copiis, quae ex longinquo in maius audiebantur. ipsaque e prouincia, ut quis fortunae inops, moribus turbidus, promptius rnebant, quia Caesar post res a Blaeso gestas, quasi nullis iam in Africa hostibus, reportari nonam 15 legionem iusserat, nec pro consule eius anni P. Dolabella retinere ausus erat, iussa principis magis quam incerta belli metuens.

24. Igitur Tacfarinas, disperso rumore rem Romanam aliis quoqne ab nationibus lacerari eoque paulatim Africa decedere, ac posse reliquos circumueniri, si cuncti, quibus libertas seruitio potior, incubuissent, auget uires positisque castris Thubus- 5 cum oppidum circumcidet. at Dolabella, contracto quod erat militum, terrore nominis Romani et quia Numidae peditum aciem ferre nequeunt, primo sui incessu soluit obsidium locorumque opportuna permuninit. simul principes Musulamiorum defectionem 10 coeptantes securi perentit. dein, quia pluribus aduersum Tacfarinatem expeditionibus cognitum, non grani nec uno incursu consecrandum hostem nquam, excito cum popularibus rege Ptolemaeo quattuor agmina parat, quae legatis aut tribunis data; et 15

praedatorias manus delecti Maurorum duxere. ipse consultor aderat omnibus.

25. Nec multo post adfertur Numidas apud castellum semirutum, ab ipsis quondam incensum, cui nomen Auzea, positis mapalibus consedisse, fisos loco, quia uastis circum saltibus claudebatur. tum 5 expeditae cohortes alaeque, quam in partem ducerentur ignarae, cito agmine rapiuntur. simulque coeptus dies et concentu tubarum ac truci clamore aderant semisomnos in barbaros, praepeditis Numi-darum equis aut diuersos pastus pererrantibus. ab 10 Romanis confertus pedes, dispositae turmae, cuncta proelio prouisa. hostibus contra omnium nesciis non arma, non ordo, non consilium, sed pecorum modo trahi, occidi, capi. infensus miles. memoria laborum et aduersum eludentes optatae totiens pugnae, se 15 quisque ultione et sanguine explebant. differtur per manipulos, Tacfarinatem omnes, notum tot proeliis, consectentur; non nisi duce imperfecto requiem belli fore. at ille deiectis circum stipatoribus ninctoque iam filio et effusis undique Romanis, ruendo in tela 20 captitatem haud inulta morte effugit. isque finis armis impositus.

26. Dolabellae petenti abnuit triumphalia Ti-berius, Seiano tribuens, ne Blaesii auunculi eius laus obsolesceret. sed neque Blaesus ideo inlustrior, et huie negatus honor gloriam intendit; quippe minore 5 exercitu insignes captiuos, caedem ducis bellique confecti famam deportarat. sequebantur et Garamantum legati, raro in urbe uisi, quos Tacfarinate caeso perculta gens, sed culpae nescia ad satis

faciendum populo Romano miserat. cognitis dehinc Ptolemaei per id bellum studiis, repetitus ex uetusto 10 more honos, missusque e senatoribus qui scipionem eburnum, togam pictam, antiqua patrum munera, daret regemque et socium atque amicum appellaret.

27. Eadem aestate mota per Italiam seruulis belli semina fors oppressit. auctor tumultus T. Curtius, quondam praetoriae cohortis miles, primo coetibus clandestinis apud Brundisium et circumiecta oppida, mox positis propalam libellis ad libertatem 5 uocabat agrestia per longinquos saltus et ferocia seruitia, cum uelut munere deum tres biremes ad pulere ad usus commeantium illo mari. et erat isdem regionibus Cutius Lupus quaestor, cui prouincia uetera ex more calles euenerant: is disposita class- 10 iariorum copia coeptantem cum maxime coniurationem disiecit. missusque a Caesare propere Staius tribunus cum ualida manu ducem ipsum et proximos audacia in urbem traxit, iam trepidam ob multitudinem familiarum, quae gliscebat immensum, minore 15 in dies plebe ingenua.

28. Isdem consulibus miseriarum ac saeuitiae exemplum atrox, reus pater, accusator filius (nomen utrique Vibius Serenus) in senatum inducti sunt. ab exilio retractus inlunieque ac squalore obsitus et tum catena uinctus pater oranti filio comparatur. 5 adulescens multis munditiis, alaci uultu, structas principi insidias, missos in Galliam concitores belli index idem et testis dicebat; adnectebatque Cae- cilium Cornutum praetorium ministrauisse pecuniam; qui taedio curarum, et quia periculum pro exitio 10 habebatur, mortem in se festinanit. at contra reus, nihil infracto animo, obuersus in filium quatere nincla, uocare ultores deos ut sibi quidem redderent exilium, ubi procul tali more ageret, filium autem quandoque 15 suppicia sequerentur. adseuerabatque innocentem Cornutum et falsa exterritum; idque facile intellectu, si proderentur alii; non enim se caedem principis et res nouas uno socio cogitasse.

29. Tum accusator Cn. Lentulum et Seium Tuberonem nominat, magno pudore Caesaris, cum primores ciuitatis, intimi ipsius amici, Lentulus senectutis extremae, Tubero defecto corpore, tumultus hostilis et turbandae rei publicae accerserentur. sed hi quidem statim exempti: in patrem ex seruis quaesitum, et quaestio aduersa accusatori fuit. qui scelere necors, simul nulgi rumore territus, robur et saxum aut parricidarum poenas minitantium, cessit 10 urbe. ac retractus Rauenna exsequi accusationem adigitur, non occultante Tiberio uetus odium aduersum exulem Serenum. nam post damnatum Libonem missis ad Caesarem litteris exprobrauerat suum tantum studium sine fructu fuisse, addideratque 15 quaedam contumacius quam tutum apud aures superbas et offensioni prioniores. ea Caesar octo post annos rettulit, medium tempus uarie arguens, etiam si tormenta peruicacia seruorum contra euenissent.

30. Dictis dein sententiis ut Serenus more maiorum puniretur, quo molliret iniuidiam, intercessit. Gallus Asinius cum Gyaro aut Donusa claudendum censeret, id quoque aspernatus est, egenam aquae utramque insulam referens dandosque uitae usus cui 5 uita concederetur. ita Serenus Amorgum repor-tatur. et, quia Cornutus sua manu ceciderat, actum de praemii accusatorum abolendis, si quis maiestatis postulatus ante perfectum iudicium se ipse uita priuauisset. ibaturque in eam sententiam, ni durius 10 contraque morem suum palam pro accusatoribus Caesar inritas leges, rem publicam in praecipiti conquestus esset: subuerterent potius iura quam custodes eorum amouerent. sic delatores, genus hominum publico exitio repertum et ne poenis 15 quidem umquam satis coërcitum, per praemia eli-ciebantur.

31. His tam adsiduis tamque maestis modica laetitia intericitur, quod C. Cominium equitem Romanum, probrosi in se carminis conuictum, Caesar precibus fratris, qui senator erat, concessit. quo magis mirum habebatur gnarum meliorum, et quae 5 fama clementiam sequeretur, tristiora malle. neque enim socordia peccabat; nec occultum est, quando ex ueritate, quando adumbrata laetitia facta imperatorum celebrentur. quin ipse, compositus alias et uelut eluctantium uerborum, solutius promptiusque 10 eloquebatur, quotiens subueniret. at P. Suillium, quaestorem quondam Germanici, cum Italia arceretur conuictus pecuniam ob rem iudicandam cepisse, amouendum in insulam censuit, tanta contentione animi ut iure iurando obstringeret e re publica id 15 esse. quod aspere acceptum ad praesens mox in laudem uertit regresso Suillio; quem uidit sequens aetas praeotentem, uenalem et Claudi principis amicitia diu prospere, numquam bene usum. eadem 20 poena in Catum Firmium senatorem statuitur, tamquam falsis maiestatis criminibus sororem petiuisset.

 Catus, ut rettuli, Libonem inlexerat insidiis, deinde indicio perculerat. eius operae memor Tiberius, sed alia praetendens, exilium deprecatus est; quo minus 25 senatu pelleretur non obstitit.

32. Pleraque eorum quae rettuli quaeque referam parua forsitan et leuia memoratu uideri non nescius sum; sed nemo annales nostros cum scriptura eorum contendere, qui ueteres populi Romani res compos-5 uere. ingentia illi bella, expugnationes urbium, fusos captosque reges, aut si quando ad interna praenerterent, discordias consulium aduersum tri-bunos, agrarias frumentariasque leges, plebis et optimatum certamina libero egressu memorabant.
 10 nobis in arto et inglorius labor; immota quippe aut modice lacessita pax, maestae urbis res et princeps proferendi imperi incuriosus erat. non tamen sine usu fuerit introspicere illa primo aspectu lenia, ex quis magnarum saepe rerum motus oriuntur.

33. Nam cunctas nationes et urbes populus aut primores aut singuli regunt: delecta ex iis et consociata rei publicae forma laudari facilius quam euenire, uel si euenit, haud diuturna esse potest.
 5 igitur ut olim plebe ualida, uel cum patres pollerent, noscenda uulgi natura et quibus modis temperanter haberetur, senatusque et optimatum ingenia qui maxime perdidicerant, callidi temporum et sapientes credebantur, sic conuerso statu neque alia re Romana 10 quam si unus imperitet, haec conquiri tradique in rem fuerit, quia pauci prudentia honesta ab deterioribus, utilia ab noxiis discernunt, plures aliorum euentis docentur. ceterum ut profutura, ita minimum oblectationis adferunt. nam situs gentium, narietas proeliorum, clari ducum exitus retinent ac redin- 15 tegrant legentium animum. nos saeva iussa, continuas accusationes, fallaces amicitias, perniciem innocentium et easdem exitu causas coniungimus, obvia rerum similitudine et satietate. tum quod antiquis scriptoribus rarus obtrectator, neque refert 20 cuiusquam Punicas Romanasne acies laetius extuleris; at multorum, qui Tiberio regente poenam vel infamias subiere, posteri manent. utque familiae ipsae iam extinctae sint, reperias qui ob similitudinem morum aliena malefacta sibi obiectari putent. etiam 25 gloria ac uirtus infensos habet, ut nimis ex propinquuo diuersa arguens. sed ad inceptum redeo.

CHAPTERS 34—45: EVENTS OF 25 A.D.

34. Cornelio Cocco Asinio Agrippa consulibus Cremitius Cordus postulatur, nouo ac tunc primum audito crimen, quod editis annalibus laudatoque M. Bruto C. Cassium Romanorum ultimum dixisset. 5 accusabant Satrius Secundus et Pinarius Natta, Seiani clientes. id perniciabile reo, et Caesar truci uultu defensionem accipiens, quam Cremitius, relinquentiae uitae certus, in hunc modum exorsus est: ‘Verba mea, patres conscripti, arguuntur; adeo 10 factorum innocens sum. sed neque haec in principem aut principis parentem, quos lex maiestatis amplectitur: Brutum et Cassium laudauisse dicor, quorum res gestas cum plurimi composuerint, nemo sine honore memorauit. Titus Liuius, eloquentiae ac 15 fidei paeclarus in primis, Cn. Pompeium tantis laudibus tulit ut Pompeianum eum Augustus appellaret; neque id amicitiae eorum offecit. Scipionem, Afranium, hunc ipsum Cassium, hunc Brutum nusquam latrones et parricidas, quae nunc uocabula 20 inponuntur, saepe ut insignes uiros nominat. Asinii Pollionis scripta egregiam eorundem memoriam tradunt; Messalla Coruinus imperatorem suum Cassium praedicabat; et uterque opibus atque honoribus perniguere. Marci Ciceronis libro, quo

Catonem caelo aequauit, quid aliud dictator Caesar 25
 quam rescripta oratione, nelut apud indices, respondit? Antonii epistulae, Bruti contiones falsa quidem in Angustum probra, sed multa cum acerbitate habent; carmina Bibaculi et Catulli referta contumeliis Caesarum leguntur; sed ipse diuus Iulius, 30 ipse diuus Augustus et tulere ista et reliquere, haud facile dixerim, moderatione magis an sapientia.
 namque spreta exolescunt: si irascare, adgnita nidentur.

35. ‘Non attingo Graecos, quorum non modo libertas, etiam libido impunita; aut si quis aduertit, dictis dicta ultus est. sed maxime solutum et sine obtrectatore fuit prodere de iis, quos mors odio aut gratiae exemisset. num enim armatis Cassio et 5 Bruto ac Philippenses campos obtaintentibus belli ciuilis causa populum per contiones incendo? an illi quidem septuagensimum ante annum perempti, quo modo imaginibus suis noscuntur, quas ne uictor quidem aboleuit, sic partem memoriae apud scriptores 10 retinent? suum cuique decus posteritas rependit;
 nec deerunt, si damnatio ingruit, qui non modo Cassii et Bruti, sed etiam mei meminerint.’ egressus dein senatu uitam abstinentia finiuit. libros per aediles cremandos censuere patres; sed manserunt 15 occultati et editi. quo magis socordiam eorum inridere libet, qui praesenti potentia credunt extingui posse etiam sequentis aeui memoriam. nam contra punitis ingenii gliscit auctoritas, neque aliud externi reges aut qui eadem saeuitia usi sunt, nisi dedecus 20 sibi atque illis gloriam peperere.

36. Ceterum postulandis reis tam continuus annus fuit ut feriarum Latinarum diebns praefectum urbis Drusum, auspicandi gratia tribunal ingressum, adierit Calpurnius Saluianus in Sextum Marium; 5 quod a Caesare palam increpitum causa exilii Saluiano fuit. obiecta publice Cyzicenis incuria caerimoniарum diui Augnsti, additis violentiae criminibus aduersum ciues Romanos. et amisere libertatem quam bello Mithridatis meruerant, circumcessi nec 10 minus sua constantia quam praesidio Luculli pulso rege. at Fonteius Capito, qui pro consule Asiam curauerat, absoluitur, couperto facta in eum crimina per Vibium Serenum. neque tamen id Sereno noxae fuit, quem odium publicum tutiorem faciebat. nam, 15 ut quis destrictior accusator, uelut sacrosanctus erat: lenes, ignobiles poenis adficiebantur.

37. Per idem tempus Hispania ulterior missis ad senatum legatis orauit ut exemplo Asiae delubrum Tiberio matrique eius exstrueret. qua occasione Caesar, ualidus alioqui spernendis honoribns et 5 respondendum ratus iis, quorum rumore arguebatur in ambitionem flexisse, huiusce modi orationem coepit: ‘ Scio, patres conscripti, constantiam meam a plerisque desideratam, quod Asiae cinitatibus nuper idem istud potentibus non sim aduersatus. ergo et 10 prioris silentii defensionem, et quid in futurum statuerim, simul aperiam. cum diuus Augustus sibi atque urbi Romae templum apud Pergamum sisti non prohibuisset, qui omnia facta dictaque eius uice legis obseruem, placitum iam exemplum promptius 15 secentus sum, quia cnltui meo ueneratio senatus adiungebatur. ceterum, ut semel recepisse ueniam habuerit, ita omnes per prouincias effigie numinum sacrari ambitiosum, superbū; et uanescat Augusti honor, si promiscis adulatio[n]ibus nulgatur.

38. ‘Ego me, patres conscripti, mortalem esse et hominum officia fungi satisque habere, si locum principem impleam, et uos testor et meminisse posteros uolo; qui satis superque memoriae meae tribuent, ut maioribus meis dignum, rerum uestrarum 5 prouidum, constantem in periculis, offensionum pro utilitate publica non pauidum credant. haec mihi in animis uestris templa, hae pulcherrimae effigies et mansurae. nam quae saxo struuntur, si indicium posteriorum in odium uertit, pro sepulcris spernuntur. 10 proinde socios ciues et deos ipsos precor, hos ut mihi ad finem usq[ue] uitae quietam et intellegentem humani dininique iuris mentem duint, illos ut, quandoque concessero, cum laude et bonis recordationibus facta atque famam nominis mei prosequantur.’ perstititque 15 posthac secretis etiam sermonibus aspernari talem sui cultum. quod alii modestiam, multi, quia diffideret, quidam nt degeneris animi interpretabantur. optimos quippe mortalium altissima cupere; sic Herculem et Liberum apud Graecos, Quirinum apud nos deum 20 numero additos; melius Augustum qui sperauerit. cetera principibus statim adesse: unum insatiabiliter parandum, prosperam sui memoriam; nam contemptu famae contemni uirtutes.

39. At Seianus, nimia fortuna socors et muliebri insuper cupidine incensus, promissum matrimonium flagitante Liuia, componit ad Caesarem codicillos;

moris quippe tuū erat quamquam praesentem scripto 5 adire. eins talis forma fuit: benenolentia patris Augusti et mox plurimis Tiberii indiciis ita insneuisse ut spes uotaque sua non prius ad deos quam ad principum aures conferret. neque fulgorem honorum umquam precatum; excubias ac labores, nt unum e 10 militibus, pro incolumitate imperatoris malle. ac tamen quod pulcherrimum adeptum, ut coniunctione Caesaris dignus crederetur: hinc initium spei. et quoniam audiuerit Augustum in conlocanda filia non nihil etiam de eqnitibus Romanis consultauisse, ita, 15 si maritus .Liuiāe quaereretur, haberet in animo amicum sola necessitudinis gloria usurum. non enim exuere inposita munia; satis aestimare firmari domum aduersum iniquas Agrippinae offensiones, idque liberorum causa; nam sibi multum superque uitae 20 fore, quod tali cum principe expleisset.

40. Ad ea Tiberius, laudata pietate Seiani suisque in eum beneficiis modice percursis, cum tempus tamquam ad integrum consultationem petiuisset, adiunxit ceteris mortalibus in eo stare consilia, quid 5 sibi conducere putent; principum dintersam esse sortem, quibus praecipua rerum ad famam dirigenda.
 ideo se non illuc decurrere, quod promptum rescriptu, posse ipsam Liuiam statuere, nubendum post Drusum an in penatibus isdem tolerandum haberet; esse illi 10 matrem et auiam, propiora consilia. simplicius acturum, de inimiciis primum Agrippinae, quas longe acrius arsuras, si matrimonium Liuiæ uelut in partes domum Caesarum distraxisset. sic quoque erumpere aemulationem feminarum, eaque discordia nepotes snos conuelli; quid si intendatur certamen 15 tali coniugio? 'falleris enim, Seiane, si te mansurum in eodem ordine pntas, et Liuiam, quae Gaio Caesari, mox Druso nupta fuerit, ea mente acturam ut cum equite Romano senescat. ego ut sinam, credisne passuros qui fratrem eius, qui patrem maioresque 20 nostros in summis imperiis uidere? uis tu quidem istum intra locum sistere: sed illi magistratus et primores, qui te inuitum perrumpunt omnibusque de rebus consulunt, excessisse iam pridem equestre fastigium longeque antis se patris mei amicitias non 25 occulti ferunt perque inuidiam tui me quoque incu-sant. at enim Augustus filiam suam equiti Romano tradere meditatus est. mirum hercule, si cum in omnes curas distraheretur immensumque attolli prouideret quem coniunctione tali super alios ex- 30 tulisset, C. Proculeium et quosdam in sermonibus habuit insigni tranquillitate uitiae, nullis rei publicae negotiis permixtos. sed si dubitatione Augusti mouemur, quanto ualidius est quod Marco Agrippae, mox mihi conlocauit? atque ego haec pro amicitia 35 non ocultaui; ceterum neque tuis neque Liuiae destinatis aduersabor. ipse quid intra animum uolutauerim, quibus adhuc necessitudinibus inmiscere te mihi parem, omittam ad praesens referre: id tantum aperiam nihil esse tam excelsum quod non 40 uirtutes istae tuusque in me animus mereantur, datoque tempore uel in senatu uel in contione non reticebo.'

41. Rursum Seianus, non iam de matrimonio, sed altius metuens, tacita suspicionum, uulgi rumorem, ingruentem inuidiam deprecatur. ac ne adsiduos in domum coetus arcendo infringeret 5 potentiam aut receptando facultatem criminantibus praebet, huc flexit, ut Tiberium ad uitam procul Roma amoenis locis degendam impelleret. multa quippe prouidebat: sua in manu aditus litterarumque magna ex parte se arbitrum fore, cum per milites 10 commearent; mox Caesarem uergente iam senecta secretoque loci mollitum munia imperii facilius trmissurum; et minui sibi inuidiam adempta salutantium turba, sublatisque inanibus ueram potentiam augeri. igitur paulatim negotia urbis, populi ad-15 cursus, multitudinem adfluentium increpat, extollens landibus quietem et solitudinem, quis abesse taedia et offensiones ac praecipua rerum maxime agitari.

42. Ac forte habita per illos dies de Votieno Montano, celebris ingenii uiro, cognitio cunctantem iam Tiberium perpulit ut uitandos crederet patrum coetus uocesque, quae plerumque uerae et graues 5 coram ingerebantur. nam postulato Votieno ob contumelias in Caesarem dictas, testis Aemilius e militaribus uiris dum studio probandi cuncta refert et quamquam inter obstrepentes magna adsementatione nititur, audinit Tiberius probra, quis per occultum 10 lacerabatur, adeoque percussus est ut se uel statim uel in cognitione purgaturum clamitaret precibusque proximorum, adulacione omnium aegre componeret animum. et Votienus quidem maiestatis poenis affectus est: Caesar obiectam sibi aduersus reos 15 inplementiam eo pernicacius amplexus, Aquiliam adulterii delatam cum Vario Ligure, quamquam

Lentulus Gaetulicus consul designatus lege Iulia damnasset, exilio puniuit Apidiumque Merulam, quod in acta diui Augusti non intrauerat, albo senatorio erasit.

20

43. Auditae dehinc Lacedaemoniorum et Mes-seniorum legationes de iure templi Dianaे Linnatidis, quod suis a maioribus suaque in terra dicatum Lacedaemonii firmabant annalium memoria natum-que carminibus, sed Macedonis Philippi, cum quo 5 bellassent, armis ademptum ac post C. Caesaris et
M. Antonii sententia redditum. contra Messenii uetarem inter Herculis posteros divisionem Pelopon-nesi protulere, suoque regi Denthaliatem agrum, in quo id delubrum, cessisse; monumentaque eius rei 10 sculpta saxis et aere prisco manere. quod si uatum aut annalium ad testimonia nocentur, plures sibi ac locupletiores esse; neque Philippum potentia, sed ex uero statuisse: idem regis Antigoni, idem imperatoris Mumii iudicium; sic Milesios permisso 15
publice arbitrio, postremo Atidum Geminum praetorem Achaiae decreuisse. ita secundum Messenios datum. et Segestani aedem Veneris montem apud Erycum, uetustate dilapsam, restaurari postulauere, nota memorantes de origine eius et laeta Tiberio. 20 suscepit curam libens ut consanguineus. tunc trac-tatae Massiliensium preces probatumque P. Rutilii exemplum; namque eum legibus pulsum ciuem sibi Zmyrnaei addiderant. quo iure Vulcatius Moschus exul in Massilienses receptus bona sua rei publicae 25 eorum ut patriae reliquerat.

44. Obiere eo anno uiri nobiles Cn. Lentulus et

L. Domitius. Lentulo super consulatum et triumphalia de Getis gloriae fuerat bene tolerata paupertas, dein magnae opes innocentia partae et modeste 5 habitae. Domitium decorauit pater ciuii bello maris potens, donec Antonii partibus, mox Caesaris misceretur. annis Pharsalica acie pro optimatibus ceciderat. ipse delectus, cui minor Antonia, Octavia genita, in matrimonium daretur, post exercitu flumen 10 Albinum transcendit, longius penetrata Germania quam quisquam priorum, easque ob res insignia triumphi adeptus est. obiit et L. Antonius, multa claritudine generis, sed improspera. nam patre eius Iulo Antonio ob adulterium Iuliae morte punito hunc admodum 15 adolescentulum, sororis nepotem, seposuit Augustus in ciuitatem Massiliensem, ubi specie studiorum nomen exilii tegeretur. habitus tamen supremis honor, ossaque tumulo Octaniorum inlata per decretum senatus.

45. Isdem consulibus facinus atrox in citeriore Hispania admissum a quodam agresti nationis Termestinae. is praetorem provinciae L. Pisonem, pace inceniosum, ex inprouiso in itinere adortus uno 5 vulnere in mortem adfecit; ac perniciitate equi profugus, postquam saltuosos locos attigerat, dimisso equo per derupta et ania sequentes frustratus est. neque din fefellit; nam, prenso ductoque per proximos pagos equo, cuius foret cognitum. et repertus 10 cum tormentis edere conscos adigeretur, noce magna sermone patrio frustra se interrogari clamitauit: adsisterent socii ac spectarent; nullam vim tantam doloris fore ut neritatem eliceret. idemque cum postero ad quaestionem retraheretur, eo nisu proripuit se custodibus saxoque caput adfixit ut statim ¹⁵ exanimaretur. sed Piso Termestinorum dolo caesus habetur; quippe pecunias e publico interceptas acrius quam ut tolerarent barbari cogebat.

Chapters 46—61: Events of 26 A.D.

46. Lentulo Gaetulico C. Caluisio consulibus decreta triumphi iusignia Poppaeo Sabino contusis Thraecum gentibus, qui montium editis incultu atque eo ferocius agitabant. causa motus super hominum 5 ingenium, quod pati dilectus et ualidissimum quemque militiae nostrae dare aspernabantur, ne regibus quidem parere nisi ex libidine soliti, aut, si mitterent auxilia, suos ductores praeficere nec nisi aduersum accolas belligerare. ac tum rumor incesserat fore 10 ut disiecti aliisque nationibus permixti diuersas in terras traherentur. sed, antequam arma inciperent, misere legatos amicitiam obsequiumque memoratueros, et mansura haec si nullo nouo onere temptarentur; sin ut uictis seruitium indiceretur, esse sibi ferrum 15 et iuuentutem et promptum libertati aut ad mortem animum. simul castella rupibus indita conlatosque illuc parentes et coniuges ostentabant bellumque impeditum arduum cruentum minitabantur.

47. At Sabinus, donec exercitus in unum conduceret, datis mitibus responsis, postquam Pomponius Labeo e Moesia cum legione, rex Rhoemetalces cum auxiliis popularium, qui fidem non mutauerant, 5 uenere, addita praesenti copia ad hostem pergit, compositum iam per angustias saltuum. quidam audentius apertis in collibus uisebantur, quos dux Romanus acie suggestus haud aegre pepulit, sanguine barbarorum modico ob propinqua suffugia. mox castris in loco communis ualida manu montem 10 occupat, angustum et aequali dorso continuum usque ad proximum castellum, quod magna uis armata aut incondita tuebatur. simul in ferocissimos, qui ante uallum more gentis cum carminibus et tripudiis persultabant, mittit delectos sagittariorum. ii, dum 15 eminus grassabantur, crebra et inulta uulnera fecere; proprius incidentes eruptione subita turbati sunt receptique subsidio Sugambrae cohortis, quam Romanus promptam ad pericula nec minus cantuum et armorum tumultu trucem haud procul instruxerat. 20

48. Translata dehinc castra hostem propter, relictis apud priora munimenta Thraecibus, quos nobis adfuisse memorani. iisque permisum uastare, urere, trahere praedas, dum populatio lucem intra sisteretur noctemque in castris tutam et uigilem 5 capesserent. id primo seruatum; mox uersi in luxum et raptis opulentii omittere stationes, lascinia epularum aut somno et uino procumbere. igitur hostes, incuria eorum conperta, duo agmina parant, quorum altero populatores inuaderentur, alii castra Romana ad- 10 pugnarent, non spe capiendi, sed ut clamore, telis suo quisque periculo intentus sonorem alterius proelii non acciperet. tenebrae insuper delectae augendam ad formidinem. sed qui uallum legionum temptabant, facile pelluntur; Thraecum auxilia repentino incursu 15 territa, cum pars munitionibus adiacerent, plures extra palarentur, tanto infensius caesi, quanto per fugae et proditores ferre arma ad suum patriaeque seruitium incusabantur.

49. Postera die Sabinus exercitum aequo loco ostendit, si barbari successu noctis alacres proelium auderent. et postquam castello aut coniunctis tumulis non degrediebantur, obsidium coepit per praesidia 5 quae opportune iam muniebat; dein fossam loricam que contexens quattuor milia passuum ambitu amplexus est; tum paulatim, ut aquam pabulumque eriperet, contrahere claustra artaque circumdare; et struebatur agger, unde saxa hastae ignes propinquum 10 iam in hostem iacerentur. sed nihil aequa quam sitis fatigabat, cum ingens multitudo bellatorum in bellum uno reliquo fonte uterentur; simul equi armenta, ut mos barbaris, iuxta clausa, egestate pabuli examinari; adiacere corpora hominum, quos 15 uulnera, quos sitis peremerat; pollui cuncta sanie, odore, contactu.

50. Rebusque turbatis malum extremum discordia accessit, his ditionem, aliis mortem et mutuos inter se ictus parantibus; et erant qui non in ultum exitium, sed eruptionem suaderent. neque 5 ignobiles tantum his diuersi sententiis, uerum educibus Dinis, prouectus senecta et longo usu uim atque clementiam Romanam edoctus, ponenda arma, unum afflictis id remedium disserebat, primusque se cum coniuge et liberis uictori permisit. secuti 10 aetate aut sexu inbecilli et quibus maior uitae quam gloriae cupidio. at iuuentus Tarsam inter et Turesim distrahebatur. utriusque destinatum cum libertate

occidere, sed Tarsa properum finem, abrumpendas pariter spes ac metus clamitans, dedit exemplum demisso in pectus ferro; nec defuere qui eodem 15 modo oppeterent. Turesis sua cum manu noctem opperitur, haud nescio duce nostro; igitur firmatae stationes densioribus globis. et ingruebat nox nimbo atrox, hostisque clamore turbido, modo per nastum silentium, incertos obsessores effecerat, cum Sabinus 20 circumire, hortari ne ad ambigua sonitus aut simulationem quietis casum insidianibus aperirent, sed sua quisque munia seruarent immoti telisque non in falsum iactis.

51. Interea barbari caternis decurrentes nunc in uallum manualia saxa, praeustas sudes, decisa robora iacere, nunc uirgultis et cratibus et corporibus exanimis complere fossas, quidam pontes et scalas ante fabricati inferre propugnaculis eaque prensare, 5 detrahere et aduersum resistentes comminus niti. miles contra deturbare telis, pellere umbonibus, muralia pila, congestas lapidinm moles prouolnere. his partae uictoriae spes et, si cedant, insignitius flagitium, illis extrema iam salus et adsistentes ple- 10 risqne matres et coniuges earumqne lamenta addunt animos. nox aliis in audaciam, aliis ad formidinem opportuna; incerti ictus, uulnera in prouisa; suorum atque hostium ignoratio et montis anfractu reper- cussae uelut a tergo noces adeo cuncta miscuerant 15 ut quaedam munimenta Romani quasi perrupta omiserint. neque tamen peruasere hostes nisi admodum pauci. ceteros, deiecto promptissimo quoque aut saucio, adpetente iam luce trusere in summa

20 castelli, ubi tandem coacta deditio. et proxima sponte incolarum recepta: reliquis, quo minus ui aut obsidio subigerentur, praematura montis Haemi et saeuia hiemps subuenit.

52. At Romae, commota principis domo, ut series futuri in Agrippinam exitii inciperet, Claudia Pulchra sobrina eius postulatur, accusante Domitio Afro. is recens praetura, modicus dignationis et quoquo facinore properus clarescere, crimen impudicitiae, adulterum Furnium, ueneficia in principem et deuotiones obiectabat. Agrippina semper atrox, tum et periculo propinquae accensa, pergit ad Tiberium ac forte sacrificantem patri repperit. quo initio inuidiae non eiusdem ait mactare diuo Augusto uictimas et posteros eius insectari. non in effigies mutas diuinum spiritum transfusum; se imaginem ueram, caelesti sanguine ortam, intellegere discrimen, suscipere sordes. frustra Pulchram praescribi, cui sola exitii causa sit, quod Agrippinam stulte prorsus ad cultum delegerit, oblita Sosiae ob eadem adflietae. audita haec rara in occulti pectoris nocem eliciuere, correptamque Graeco uersu admonuit non ideo laedi, quia non regnaret. Pulchra et Furnius damnantur.

20 Afer primoribus oratorum additus, diuulgato ingenio et secuta adseueratione Caesaris, qua suo iure disertum eum appellauit. mox capessendis accusationibus aut reos tutando prospere eloquentiae quam morum fama fuit, nisi quod aetas extrema multum etiam eloquentiae dempsit, dum fessa mente retinet silentii inpatientiam.

53. At Agrippina peruicax irae et morbo corporis

implicata, eum uiseret eam Caesar, profusis diu ac per silentium lacrimis, mox inuidiam et preces orditur: subueniret solitudini, daret maritum; habilem adhuc iuuentam sibi neque aliud probis quam 5 ex matrimonio solacium; esse in ciuitate qui diu Augusti neptem, Germanici coniugem ac liberos eius recipere dignarentur. sed Caesar non ignarus quantum ex re publica peteretur, ne tamen offensionis aut metus manifestus foret, sine responso 10 quamquam instantem reliquit. id ego, a scriptoribus annalium non traditum, repperi in commentariis Agrippinae filiae, quae Neronis prineipis mater uitam suam et casus suorum posteris memorauit.

54. Ceterum Seianus maerentem et inprouidam altius pereulit, immissis qui per speciem amicitiae monerent paratum ei uenenum, uitandas soecri epulas. atque illa simulationum nescia, cum propter discumberet, non uultu aut sermone fleeti, nullos 5 attingere cibos, donec adnertit Tiberius, forte an quia audiuerat; idque quo acerius experiretur, poma, ut erant adposita, laudans nurui sua manu tradidit. aucta ex eo suspicio Agrippinae, et intacta ore seruis traxit. nec tamen Tiberii uox eoram secuta, sed 10 obuersus ad matrem non mirum ait, si quid seuerius in eam statuisset, a qua uenefieii insimularetur. inde rumor parari exitium, neque id imperatorem palam audere, secretum ad perpetrandum quaeri.

55. Sed Caesar, quo famam auerteret, adesse frequens senatui legatosque Asiae, ambigentes quanam in ciuitate templum statueretur, plures per dies audiuit. undecim urbes certabant, pari ambitione,

5 viribus diversae. neque multum distantia inter se memorabant de uetustate generis, studio in populum Romanum per bella Persi et Aristonici aliorumque regum. uerum Hypaepeni Trallianique Laodicenis ac Magnetibus simul tramissi ut parum ualidi; ne 10 Ilienses quidem, cum parentem urbis Romae Troiam referrent, nisi antiquitatis gloria pollebant. paulum addubitatuum, quod Halicarnasii mille et ducentos per annos nullo motu terrae nutanisse sedes suas uinoque in saxo fundamenta templi adseuerauerant. 15 Pergamenos (eo ipso nitebantur) aede Angusto ibi sita satis adeptos creditum. Ephesii Milesiique, hi Apollinis, illi Dianae caerimonia occupauisse ciuitates uisi. ita Sardianos inter Zmyrnaeosque deliberatum. Sardiani decretum Etruriae recitauere ut consan- 20 guinei; nam Tyrrhenum Lydumque Atye rege genitos ob multitudinem diuisisse gentem; Lydum patriis in terris resedisse, Tyrrheno datum nouas ut conderet sedes; et ducum e nominibus indita uocabula illis per Asiam, his in Italia; auctamque adhuc 25 Lydorum opulentiam missis in Graeciam populis, cui mox a Pelope nomen. simul litteras imperatorum et icta nobiscum foedera bello Macedonum ubertatemque fluminum suorum, temperiem caeli ac dites circum terras memorabant.

56. At Zmyrnaei repetita uetustate, seu Tantalus Ioue ortus illos, siue Theseus diuina et ipse stirpe, siue una Amazonum condidisset, transcendere ad ea quis maxime fidebant, in populum Romanum officiis, 5 missa nauali copia non modo externa ad bella, sed quae in Italia tolerabantur; seque primos templum nrbis Romae statuisse, M. Porcio consule, magnis quidem iam populi Romani rebus, nondum tamen ad summum elatis, stante adhuc Punica urbe et ualidis per Asiam regibus. simul L. Sullam testem adferebant, grauissimo in discrimine exercitus ob asperitatem hiemis et penuriam uestis, cum id Zmyrnam in contionem nuntiatum foret, omnes qui adstabant detraxisse corpori tegmina nostrisque legionibus misisse. ita rogati sententiam patres Zmyrnaeos 15 praetulere. censuitque Vibius Marsus, ut M'. Lepido, cui ea prouincia obuenerat, super numerum legaretur qui templi curam susciperet. et quia Lepidus ipse deligere per modestiam abnuebat, Valerius Naso e praetoriis sorte missus est. 20

57. Inter quae, diu meditato prolatoque saepius consilio, tandem Caesar in Campaniam, specie dedicandi templa apud Capuam Ioui, apud Nolam Augusto, sed certus procul urbe degere. causam abscessus quamquam secutus plurimos auctorum ad 5 Seiani artes rettuli, qnia tamen caede eius patrata sex postea annos pari secreto coniunxit, plerumque permoueor, num ad ipsum referri uerius sit, saeuitiam ac libidinem cum factis promeret, locis occultantem. erant qui crederent in senectute corporis quoque 10 habitum pudori fuisse; quippe illi praegracilis et incurua proceritas, nudus capillo uertex, ulcerosa facies ac plerumque medicaminibus interstincta; et Rhodi secreto uitare coetus, recondere uoluptates insuerat. traditur etiam matris inpotentia extrusum, 15 quam dominationis sociam aspernabatur neque depellere poterat, cum dominationem ipsam donum

eius accepisset. nam dubitauerat Augustus Germanicum, sororis nepotem et cunctis laudatum, rei 20 Romanae imponere; sed precibus uxoris euictus Tiberio Germanicum, sibi Tiberium adscivit. idque Augusta exprobrabat, reposcebat.

58. Profectio arto comitatu fuit: unus senator consulatu functus, Cocceius Nerna, cui legum peritia, eques Romanus praeter Seianum ex inlustribus Curtius Atticus, ceteri liberalibus studiis praediti, ferme 5 Graeci, quorum sermonibus lenaretur. ferebant periti caelestium iis motibus siderum excessisse Roma Tiberium, ut redditus illi negaretur. unde exitii causa multis fuit properum finem uitae conjectantibus uulgantibusque; neque enim tam in 10 credibilem casum prouidebant, ut undecim per annos libens patria careret. mox patuit breve confinium artis et falsi, ueraque quam obscuris tegerentur. nam in urbem non regressurum haud forte dictum: ceterorum nescii egere, cum propinquo rure aut 15 litore et saepe moenia urbis adsidens extremam senectam compleuerit.

59. Ac forte illis diebus oblatum Caesari anceps periculum auxit uana rumoris praebuitque ipsi materiem cur amicitiae constantiaeque Seiani magis fideret. uescebantur in uilla cui uocabulum 5 Speluncae, mare Amunclanum inter et Fundanos montes, natiuo in specu. eius os lapsis repente saxis obruit quosdam ministros; hinc metus in omnes et fuga eorum qui conuiuium celebrabant. Seianus genu uultuque et manibus super Caesarem suspensus 10 opposuit sese incidentibus, atque habitu tali repertus est a militibus qui subsidio uenerant. maior ex eo, et quamquam exitiosa suaderet, ut non sui anxius, cum fide audiebatur. adsimulabatque indicis partes aduersum Germanici stirpem, subditis qui accusatorum nomina sustinerent maximeque insectarentur ¹⁵ Nerонем proximum successioni et, quamquam modesta iuventa, plerumque tamen quid in praesentia conduceret oblitum, dum a libertis et clientibus, apiscendae potentiae properis, exstimulatur ut erectum et fidentem animi ostenderet: uelle id populum ²⁰ Romanum, cupere exercitus, neque ausurum contra Seianum, qui nunc patientiam senis et segnitiam iuuenis iuxta insultet.

60. Haec atque talia audienti nihil quidem prauae cogitationis, sed interdum uoces procedebant contumacees et inconsultae, quas adpositi custodes exceptas auctasque cum deferrent neque Neroni defendere daretur, diuersae insuper sollicitudinum ⁵ formae oriebantur. nam aliis occursum eius nitare, quidam salutatione redditā statim auerti, plerique incepturn sermonem abrumpere, insistentibus contra inridentibusque qui Seiano fautores aderant. enim uero Tiberius toruus aut falsum renidens uultu: seu ¹⁰ loqueretur seu taceret iuuenis, crimen ex silentio, ex uoce. ne nox quidem secura, cum uxor uigilias somnos suspiria matri Liuiae, atque illa Seiano patefaceret; qui fratrem quoque Neronis Drusum traxit in partes, spe obiecta principis loci, si priorem ¹⁵ aetate et iam labefactum demouisset. atrox Drusi ingenium super cupidinem potentiae et solita fratribus odia accendebat inuidia, quod mater Agrippina promptior Neroni erat. neque tamen Seianus ita 20 Drusum fonebat ut non in eum quoque semina futuri exitii meditaretur, gnarus praeferocem et insidiis magis opportunum.

61. Fine anni excessere insignes uiri Asinius Agrippa, claris maioribus quam uetustis uitaque non degener, et Q. Haterius, familia senatoria, eloquentiae quoad uixit celebratae: monumenta ingeni eius haud 5 perinde retinentur. scilicet impetu magis quam cura uigebat; utqne aliorum meditatio et labor in posterum ualescit, sic Haterii canorum illud et profluens cum ipso simul extinctum est.

Chapters 62—67: Events of 27 A.D.

62. M. Licinio L. Calpurnio consulibus ingentium bellorum cladem aequauit malum improuisum; eius initium simul et finis exstitit. nam coepto apud Fidenam amphitheatro Atilius quidam libertini generis, quo spectaculum gladiatorum celebraret, 5 neque fundamenta per solidum subdidit, neque firmis nexibus ligneam compagem superstruxit, ut qui non abundantia pecuniae nec municipali ambitione, sed in sordidam mercedem id negotium quaesiuisset. adfluxere audi talium, imperitante 10 Tiberio procul uoluptatibus habitu, virile ac muliebre secus, omnis actas, ob propinquitatem loci effusius; unde grauior pestis fuit, conferta mole, dein conulsa, dum ruit intus aut in exteriora effunditur immensamque nim mortalium, spectaculo intentos 15 aut qui circum adstabant, praeceps trahit atque operit. et illi quidem, quos principium stragis in mortem adfixerat, ut tali sorte, cruciatum effugere; miserandi magis quos abrupta parte corporis nondum uita deseruerat; qui per diem nisu, per noctem 20 ululatibus et gemitu coniuges aut liberos noscebant. iam ceteri fama exciti, hic fratrem, propinquum ille, aliis parentes lamentari. etiam quorum diuersa de causa amici aut necessarii aberant, pauere tamen; 25 nequedum comperto, quos illa uis perculisset, latior ex incerto metus.

63. Vt coepere dimoueri obruta, concursus ad exanimos complectentium, osculantum; et saepe certamen, si confusior facies, sed par forma aut aetas errorem adgnoscentibus fecerat. quinquaginta 5 hominum milia eo casu debilitata uel obtrita sunt; cantumque in posterum senatus consulto, ne quis gladiatorium munus ederet, cui minor quadringentorum milium res, neue amphitheatrum imponeretur nisi solo firmitatis spectatae. Atilius in exilium actus 10 est. ceterum sub recentem cladem patuere procerum domus, fomenta et medici passim praebiti, fuitque urbs per illos dies quamquam maesta facie ueterum institutis similis, qui magna post proelia saucios largitione et cura sustentabant.

64. Nondum ea clades exoleuerat, cum ignis uiolentia urbem ultra solitum adfecit, deusto monte Caelio; feralemque annum ferebant et ominibus aduersis susceptum principi consilium absentiae, qui 5 mos nulgo, fortuita ad culpam trahentes, ni Caesar obuiam isset tribuendo pecunias ex modo detrimenti.
 actaeque ei grates apud senatum ab inlustribus famaque apud populum, quia sine ambitione aut proximorum precibus ignotos etiam et ultro accitos 10 munificentia inuerat. adduntur sententiae, ut mons Caelius in posterum Augustus appellaretur, quando cunctis circum flagrantibus sola Tiberii effigies, sita in domo Iunii senatoris, inuiolata mansisset. euenisse id olim Claudio Quintae, eiusque statuam uim ignium bis elapsam maiores apud aedem matris 15 deum consecrauisse. sanctos acceptosque numinibus Claudios et augendam caerimoniam loco, in quo tantum in principem honorem di ostenderint.

65. Haud fuerit absurdum tradere montem eum antiquitus Querquetulanum cognomento fuisse, quod talis siluae frequens fecundusque erat, mox Caelium appellatum a Caele Vibenna, qui dux gentis Etruscae cum auxilium portauisset, sedem eam acceperat 5 a Tarquinio Prisco, seu quis alius regum dedit; nam scriptores in eo dissentient. cetera non ambigua sunt, magnas eas copias per plana etiam ac foro propinqua habituisse, unde Tuscum uicum e uocabulo aduenarum dictum. 10

66. Sed ut studia procerum et largitio principis aduersum casus solacium tulerant, ita accusatorum maior in dies et infestior uis sine leuamento grassabatur; corripueratque Varum Quintilium, diuitem et Caesari propinquum, Domitius Afer, Clandiae 5 Pulchrae matris eius condemnator, nullo mirante quod diu egens et parto nuper praemio male usus plura ad flagitia accingeretur. P. Dolabellam socium delationis extitisse miraculo erat, quia claris maioribus et Varo conexus suam ipse nobilitatem, 10 snum sanguinem perditum ibat. restitit tamen senatus et opperiendum imperatorem censuit, quod unum urgumentum malorum suffugium in tempus erat.

67. At Caesar, dedicatis per Campaniam templis, quamquam edicto monuisset, ne quis quietem eius inrumperet, concursusque oppidanorum disposito milite prohiberentur, perosns tamen municipia et 5 colonias omniaque in continenti sita, Capreas se in insulam abdidit, trium milium freto ab extremis Surrentini promunturii diiunctam. solitudinem eius placuisse maxime crediderim, quoniam importuosum circa mare et uix modicis nauigiis pauca subsidia; 10 neque adpulerit quisquam nisi gnaro custode. caeli temperies hieme mitis obiectu montis, quo saeuia uentorum arcentur; aestas in Fauonium obuersa et aperto circum pelago peramoena; prospectabatque pulcherrimum sinum, antequam Vesuuius mons 15 ardescens faciem loci uerteret. Graecos ea tenuisse Capreasque Telebois habitatas fama tradit. sed tum Tiberins duodecim nillarum nominibus et molibus insederat, quanto intentus olim publicas ad curas, tauto occultiores in luxus et malum otium resolutns.

20 manebat quippe suspicionum et credendi temeritas, quam Seianus augere etiam in urbe suetus acrius turbabat non iam occultis aduersum Agrippinam et Neronem insidiis. quis additus miles nuntios, in-troitus, aperta secreta uelut in annales referebat, 25 ultroque struebantur qui monerent perfugere ad Germaniae exercitus uel celeberrimo fori effigiem diui Angusti amplecti populumque ac senatum auxilio uocare. eaque spreta ab illis, uelut pararent, obiciebantur.

Chapters 68—75: Events of 28 A.D.

68. Iunio Silano et Silio Nerua consulibus foedum anni principium incessit tracto in carcerem inlustri equite Romano, Tito Sabino, ob amicitiam Germanici; neque enim omiserat coniugem liberosque eius percolere, sectator domi, comes in publico, post 5 tot clientes natus eoque apud bonos laudatus et granis inquis. hunc Latinus Latiaris, Porcius Cato, Petilius Rufus, M. Opsius praetura functi adgrediuntur, cupidine consilatus, ad quem non nisi per Seianum aditus; neque Seiani uoluntas nisi scelere 10 quaerebatur. compositum inter ipsos ut Latiaris, qui modico usu Sabinum contingebat, strueret dolum, ceteri testes adessent, deinde accusationem inciperent. igitur Latiaris iacere fortuitos primum sermones, mox laudare constantiam, quod non, ut ceteri, florentis 15 domus amicus afflictam deseruisse; simul honora de Germanico, Agrippinam miserans, disserebat. et postquam Sabinus, ut sunt molles in calamitate mortalium animi, effudit lacrimas, iunxit questus, audentius iam onerat Seianum, saenitiam, superbiam, 20 spes eius. ne in Tiberium quidem conuicio abstinet; iisque sermones, tamquam uetita miscuissent, speciem artae amicitiae fecere. ac iam ultro Sabinus quae-rere Latiarem, nentitare domum, dolores snos quasi 25 ad fidissimum deferre.

69. Consultant quos memorau, quonam modo ea plurium auditu acciperentur. nam loco, in quem coibatur, seruanda solitudinis facies; et si pone fores adsisterent, metus uisus, sonitus aut forte ortae 5 suspicionis erat. tectum inter et laquearia tres senatores, haud minus turpi latebra qnam detestanda frande, sese abstrudunt, foraminibus et rimis aurem admonuent. interea Latiaris repertum in publico Sabinum, uelut recens cognita narraturus, domum 10 et in cubiculum trahit; praeteritaqne et instantia, quorum adfatim copia, ac nouos terrores cumulat.
eadem ille et dintius, quanto maesta, ubi semel prorupere, difficilis reticentur. properata inde accusatio, missisque ad Caesarem litteris ordinem frandis 15 sunmqne ipsi dedecus narranere. non alias magis anxia et pauens cinitas, tegens aduersum proximos; congressus, conloquia, notae ignotaeque aures uitari etiam muta atque inanima, tectum et parietes cir-cumspectabantur.

70. Sed Caesar sollemnia incipientis anni kalendis Iannariis epistula precatus, uertit in Sabinum, corruptos quosdam libertorum et petitum se arguens, ultionemque haud obscure poscebat. nec mora quin 5 decerneretur; et trahebatur damnatus, quantum obducta ueste et adstrictis fancibns niti poterat, claimitans sic incohari annum, has Seiano uictimas cadere. quo intendisset ocnlos, quo uerba accide-rent, fuga uastitas, deserit itinera, fora. et quidam regrediebantur ostentabantque se rursum, id ipsum 10 pauentes, quod timuissent. quem enim diem uacuum poena, ubi inter sacra et uota, quo tempore uerbis etiam profanis abstineri mos esset, uincla et laqueus inducantur? non imprudentem Tiberium tantam inuidiam adisse, sed quaesitum meditatumque ne 15 quid impedire credatur quo minus noui magistratus, quo modo delubra et altaria, sic carcere recludant.

 secutae insuper litterae grates agentis quod hominem infensem rei publicae puniuissent, adiecto trepidam sibi uitam, suspectas inimicorum insidias, nullo 20 nominatim compellato; neque tamen dubitabatur in Neronem et Agrippinam intendi.

71. Ni mibi destinatum foret suum quaeque in annum referre, auebat animus antire statimque memorare exitus quos Latinus atque Opsiis ceterique flagitii eius repertores habnere, non modo postquam Gaius Caesar rerum potitus est, sed incoluni Tiberio, 5 qui scelerum ministros ut perverti ab aliis nolebat, ita plerumque satiatus et oblatis in eandem operam recentibus ueteres et praegraues adfixit; uerum has atque alias sontium poenas in tempore trademus.
 tum censuit Asinius Gallus, cuius liberorum Agrip- 10
 pina matertera erat, petendum a principe, ut metus suos senatui fateretur amouerique sineret. nullam aequa Tiberius, ut rebatur, ex uirtutibus suis quam dissimulationem diligebat; eo aegrius accepit recludi quae premeret. sed mitigauit Seianus, non Galli 15 amore, uerum ut cunetationes principis opperiretur, gnarus lentum in meditando, ubi prorupisset, tristibus dictis atrocia facta coniungere.

Per idem tempus Iulia mortem obiit, quam neptem 20 Augustus conuictam adulterii damnaverat, proieceratque in insulam Trimerum, hanc procul Apulis litoribus. illic uiginti annis exilium tolerauit Augustae ope sustentata, quae florentes priuignos cum per occultum subuertisset, misericordiam erga ad-25 flictos palam ostentabat.

72. Eodem anno Frisi, transrhenanus populus, pacem exuere, nostra magis auaritia quam obsequii impatientes. tributum iis Drusus iusserat modicum pro angustia rerum, ut in usus militares coria boum 5 penderent, non intenta cuiusquam cura, quae firmitudo, quae mensura, donec Olennius e primipilaribus regendis Frisiis inpositus terga urorum de legit quorum ad formam acciperentur. id, aliis quoque nationibus arduum, apud Germanos difficilius tole-
 10 rabatur, quis ingentium beluarum feraces saltus, modica domi armenta sunt. ac primo boues ipsos, mox agros, postremo corpora coniugum aut liberorum seruitio tradebant. hinc ira et questus, et, postquam non subueniebatur, remedium ex bello. rapti qui 15 tributo aderant milites et patibulo adfixi. Olennius infensos fuga praenenit, receptus castello cui nomen Fleum; et haud spernenda illic ciuium sociorumque manus litora Oceani praesidebat.

73. Quod ubi L. Apronio inferioris Germaniae pro praetore cognitum, uexilla legionum e superiore pronicia peditumque et equum auxiliarium delectos acciuit ac simul utrumque exercitum Rheno de-
 5 uectum Frisiis intulit, soluto iam castelli obsidio et ad sua tutanda degressis rebellibus. igitur proxima

aestuaria aggeribus et pontibus traducendo grauiori agmini firmat. atque interim, repertis uadis, alam Canninefatem et quod peditum Germanorum inter nostros merebat circumgredi terga hostium iubet; 10 qui iam acie compositi pellunt turmas sociales equitesque legionum subsidio missos. tum tres leues cohortes ac rursum duae, dein tempore interiecto alarius eques inmissus,—satis ualidi si simul ineubuisserint, per interuallum aduentantes neque constantiam addiderant turbatis et pauore fugientium auferebantur. Cethego Labeoni legato quintae legionis quod reliquum auxiliorum tradit. atque ille dubia suorum re in anceps tractus missis nuntiis uim legionum inplorabat. prorumpunt quintani ante 20 alios et, acri pugna hoste pulso, recipiunt cohortes alasque fessas uulneribus. neque dux Romanus ultum iit aut corpora humauit, quamquam multi tribunorum praefectorumque et insignes centuriones cecidissent. mox compertum a trans fugis nongentos 25 Romanorum apud lucum, quem Baduhennae uocant, pugna in posterum extracta confectos, et aliam quadringentorum manum occupata Crutorigis quondam stipendiarii villa, postquam proditio metuebatur, mutuis ietibus procubuisse. 30

74. Clarum inde inter Germanos Frisium nomen, dissimulante Tiberio damna, ne cui bellum permitteret. neque senatus in eo cura an imperii extrema de honestarentur. panor internus occupauerat animos, cui remedium adulazione quaerebatur. ita, quam- 5 quam diuersis super rebus consulerentur, aram Clementiae, aram Amicitiae effigiesque circum Caesaris

ac Seiani censuere, crebrisque precibus efflagitabant uisendi sui copiam facerent. non illi tamen in urbem aut propinqua urbi degressi sunt; satis uisum omit-tere insulam et in proximo Campaniae aspici. eo nenire patres, eques, magna pars plebis, anxxii erga Seianum, cuius durior congressus atque eo per ambitum et societate consiliorum parabatur. satis constabat auctam ei adrogantiam foedum illud in propatulo seruitium spectanti; quippe Romae sueti discursus et magnitudine urbis incertum quod quisque ad negotium perget: ibi campo aut litore iacentes nullo discrimine noctem ac diem iuxta gratiam aut fastus ianitorum perpetiebantur, donec id quoque uetitum; et reuenere in urbem trepidi, quos non sermone, non uisu dignatus erat, quidam male alacres, qnibus infaustae amicitiae grauis exitus imminebat.

75. Ceterum Tiberius neptem Agrippinam Ger-manico ortam cum coram Cu. Domitio tradidisset, in urbe celebrari nuptias iussit. in Domitio super uētnstatem generis propinquum Caesaribus san-guinem delegerat; nam is auiam Octauiam et per eam Augustum auunculum praeferebat.

NOTES

ABBREVIATIONS

N.= Nipperdey's Edition.	F.= Furneaux's Edition.
P.F.= P. Frost's Edition.	R.= Ramsay's Translation.
C. and B.= Church and Brodribb's Translation. Roby= Roby's Latin Syntax.

1

1. consulibus. The full names of these consuls were Gaius Asinius Pollio and Gaius Antistius Vetus.

nonus. He began the ninth year of his reign in the previous August.

Tiberio, dat. of person. Cf. vi 45 supremi Tiberio consules.

2. compositae rei publicae, 'of a tranquil commonwealth.' See note on line 18.

3. Germanici. See Introduction iv.

inter prospera ducebat, 'he counted among his blessings.'

4. turbare, absolute,—'run riot.' Cf. iii 47 si una alteraue ciuitas turbet; Cie. ad Att. xiii 26 metuo ne turbem et irruam in Drusum; ad fam. viii 8 M. Seruilius omnibus in rebus turbarat.

saeuire, 'to be cruel,' as often in Tacitus.

5. causa penes Seianum. Cf. c. 16.

6. Aelium. This name shows that he had been adopted by one of the Aelian gens.

cohortibus praetoriis praefectum, lit. 'set over the praetorian guard.' Cf. praefectus urbi, the original title of the Prefect of the City.

7. potentia, undue influence; sometimes real power (c. 4, 41). supra memoriaui. N. refers to i 24, 69, iii 29, 35, 72.

8. quo facinore, i.e. the murder of Drusus.

raptum ierit, 'set out to seize.' Cf. c. 66 perditum ire, c. 73 ultum ire. Notice also the frequent Silver Age use of the perf. subj. as an aorist.

9. Vulsiniis. The modern name of Vulsinii is Bolsena. Juvenal calls Sejanus Tuscus in x 74.

Seio Strabone equite Romano. Ramsay has a useful note:— 'Velleius calls Sejanus princeps equestris ordinis (ii 127), and ascribes to him consular brothers, cousins, and uncles. Thus Sejanus was by no means the upstart that Tacitus would make him out to be. His position was not unlike that of Maecenas, very different from that of freedmen favourites of later emperors.'

10. Galum Caesarem, adopted in 17 B.C., when he was two years old.

11. diui Augusti, often overdone in translation. 'The Emperor Augustus' is sufficient.

sectatus, 'having attached himself to.'

mox, 'subsequently,' its usual meaning.

12. obscurum aduersum alios, 'reserved towards others.'

14. isdem artibus, i.e. sollertia 'cunning.' 'Sejanus, however wily, was at last no match for the superior wiliiness of Tiberius. He was hoist with his own petard' [P.F.]

15. cuius...uiguit ceciditque, 'on which he brought disaster alike in his power and in his fall.'

pari exitio, sociative,—lit. 'with equal ruin to which....' Cf. c. 30 publico exitio repertum.

16. laborum tolerans...sui obtegens. Many present participles take the genitive, especially in Tacitus. In this passage he is evidently thinking of Sallust Catiline 5 corpus patiens inediae uigiliae algoris, supra quam cuiquam credibile est; animus audax...

17. iuxta, 'side by side.'

18. compositus, either (1) 'quiet' (as in line 2); or (2) 'assumed,' the common Tacitean meaning of the word. Perhaps N. is right in thinking that the sense of artificiality is sufficiently given by the contrast between palam and intus.

19. summa apiscendi libido. summa must be neut. plur,—‘the highest position.’ Cf. parando regno (below); also xi 26 summa adeptus.

2

1. praefecturae, ‘the praetorian command.’

intendit, lit. ‘stretch tight,’ i.e. ‘increase,’ ‘enhance,’—very favourite word with Tacitus in this sense.

2. dispersas. N. quotes Suetonius Augustus 49 neque tamen umquam plures quam tres cohortes in urbe passus est easque sine castris; reliquas in hiberna et aestiuua circa finitima oppida dimittere assuerat.

una castra, between the Porta Collina and Viminalis, outside the Agger of Servius.

3. numeroque...oreretur. The sense is well brought out by R.,—‘while the sight of their own strength and numbers would give confidence to the soldiers, and overawe the rest of the citizens.’

6. si quid subitum...pariter subueniri, ‘if any emergency befell, greater support was given by joint action.’ For this use of pariter cf. i. 32 pariter ardescerent pariter silerent, ‘as one man.’

7. seuerius acturos, ‘they would live stricter lives.’

uallum, i.e. the praetorian camp.

procul must not be pressed; it frequently denotes ‘at some distance.’ The camp was just outside the walls. And, as F. says, to live in camp at all was a separation.

8. inrepere, ‘began to insinuate himself.’

9. adeundo, appellando, ‘by mixing with them and calling them by name.’ The modal use of the abl. gerund is very frequent in Tacitus; also in Livy. It is often best translated by the English pres. partic. Cf. conducendo (line 2).

10. centuriones ac tribunos, previously appointed by the Emperor himself.

neque senatorio ambitu...ornandi, ‘nor did he refrain from courting senators in the way of securing for his creatures public distinctions or provincial offices.’ Sejanus wished to make it felt that he was the fountain of honour. For ornandi, gen. of definition, cf. iii 63 cultus uenerandi ‘worship consisting in honouring.’

12. facili...prono, ‘compliant and indulgent.’

13. socium laborum. Dio Cassius says that Tiberius called Sejanus ‘sharer in his thoughts’ and ‘my Sejanus.’

apud patres et populum, explained by c. 40 uel in senatu uel in contione.

15. fora, ‘public squares.’

inter principia legionum, ‘at the head-quarters of the legions.’ Cf. i 61 castra lato ambitu et dimensis principiis trium legionum. For the sanctity of the principia cf. i 39 signa et aquilam amplexus religione sese tutabatur, and Hist. iii 10 conuersus ad signa et bellorum deos.

3

1. ceterum, ‘however,’ often after a digression, like the Greek δ' οὖτος.

plena Caesarum domus, i.e. there was no lack of heirs in the Caesarean house. There was Drusus the son of Tiberius (iunior filius), and the sons of Germanicus (adopted son of Tiberius), Nero, Drusus, Caligula (nepotes adulti), and Tiberius and Germanicus, sons of Drusus (the son of Tiberius), ii 84; vi 46 [P.F.].

6. inpatiens aemuli, ‘not brooking a rival.’

animo commotior, ‘more hot-tempered.’ Cf. vi. 45 commotus ingenio.

7. intenderat, ‘had raised his hand against Sejanus,—another frequent use of this verb in Tacitus. The meaning of the rest of the sentence is: ‘when Sejanus resisted Drusus had struck him in the face.’

9. promptissimum, ‘the most practicable course.’ Cf. Cic. Or. i 237 facilis et prompta defensio.

uxorem eius Liuiam, often called Livilla.

13. primi flagitii potitus est, ‘he succeeded in the first shameful act.’

neque...alia abnuerit, ‘can refuse nothing else.’ For this construction cf. c. 5, 6, 10, 11. The aoristic perf. subj. is used very frequently in modest assertions and in negations of possibility [F]. See Roby 1540.

15. regnum, sometimes loosely used by Tacitus for imperium or principatus.

cui auunculus Augustus. She was really great-niece of Augustus.

17. municipali adultero, abl. instr. municipalis ‘from a petty town,’ ‘provincial’ (not in the Roman sense), i.e. from Vulsinii.

18. ut pro honestis...exspectaret, ‘preferring a guilty and uncertain future to a safe and honourable present.’

19. sumitur in conscientiam, ‘is taken into their guilty secret.’ Cf. xiii 12 assumptis in conscientiam.

20. specie artis, ‘under guise of his profession.’ Note the various meanings of ars and artes in Tacitus.

frequens secretis, ‘often present at their private interviews.’ Cf. Hist. iv 69 frequens contionibus, and Cic. Rosc. 16 erat ille Romae frequens.

23. diuersa consilia, ‘conflicting plans.’

4

2. quae, i.e. the honours which.... N. quotes the following inscription : Druso Caesari, Germanici Caesaris filio, Ti. Augusti nepoti, diui Augusti pronepoti, pontifici d. d.

3. repetita, ‘revived.’ Cf. refertur (line 9).

addidit orationem Caesar. ‘Caesar added a speech’ would be a stiff rendering. Say rather, ‘the Emperor threw in some remarks of his own.’

4. patria benevolentia, abl. of description.

6. quamquam sit, the ordinary construction in Silver Latin.

eodem, locative abl. loci, partitive gen. Cf. Cic. ad Att. i 13 res eodem est loci. For potentiam ‘real power’ cf. c. 41.

7. aequus adulescentibus, dat. of person concerned,—‘kindly towards the boys.’

10. multitudinem...sumant, ‘he gave as his reasons the large number of time-expired veterans, and the necessity of filling the vacancies by fresh levies. Volunteers, he said, were not sufficiently numerous, and any who came forward were not of the same quality and readiness to obey, being generally men without money or settled home.'

11. dilectibus, i.e. among provincials who were Roman citizens.

voluntarium. Voluntary enlistment was generally sufficient, especially as the area of Roman citizenship was being continually extended.

17. quanto sit angustius imperitatum, 'how much narrower than now were the bounds of the empire.' Tacitus is complimenting Trajan, who by his campaigns from 114 A.D. had enlarged the boundaries of the Roman empire. He made Dacia a Roman province; and in the East pushed forward the limits of the empire to the Mare Rubrum [P.F.].

5

1. utroque mari, i.e. mare superum and inferum.

2. Misenum apud et Rauennam. For the position of the prep. called anastrophe, cf. c. 5. These two fleets were called classis praetoria Misenensis and Rauennatium.

proximum litus praesidebant. For the syntax, cf. c. 72 and iii 39 proximum exercitum praesidebat.

3. Actiaca uictoria, 31 B.C.

4. oppidum Foroiuliense, the modern Fréjus. Cf. ii 63 Forum Iulium, Narbonensis Galliae coloniam.

5. ualido cum remige, a Virgilian touch, as so often in Tacitus. Cf. Aen. v 116 agit acri remige.

sed praecipuum robur. 'The army under the empire was a standing one (στρατιῶται ἀθάνατοι) quartered in fixed districts and provinces, each legion or group of legions having definite garrison or police duties to perform.' (Camb. Companion to Latin Studies, § 721).

7. Hispaniae. The two Spains here meant are Hispania Tarraconensis and Lusitania.

recens perdomitae. Cf. Livy xxxviii 17 beluae recens captae and Virg. Georgic iii 156 sole recens orto. Note the emphatic perdomitae. Spain was the first transmarine province entered by the Romans; the last to be thoroughly subdued, as Livy points out in xxviii 12. The Cantabri were finally conquered by Agrippa in 19 b.c.

8. Mauros, i.e. the kingdom of Mauretania.

Iuba rex, son of the Juba who was defeated at Thapsus,
46 b.c.

9. donum populi Romani, from Augustus in 25 b.c.

10. initio ab Suriae. Cf. line 2 (above) and iii 72 ornatum ad urbis.

11. quantum ingenti sinu...ambitur, 'all the vast sweep of country,' i.e. the whole eastern frontier of the empire. The word sinus does not necessarily refer to sea-coast; cf. Germ. 29 sinus imperii [F.]

13. Hibero. The Hiberians were south of the Caucasus and north of Armenia.

Albano. The Albanians bordered west on the Hiberians.

aliis regibus, e.g. of Cilicia and Armenia Minor.

15. Rhoemetalces. This prince must not be confused with the son of Cotys mentioned in the next note.

liberi Cotyis. The sons of Cotys were named Rhoemetalces, Cotys, and Polemo. They were kept at Rome till the death of Tiberius.

16. Pannonia, bounded on the east and north by the Danube, included the eastern states of Austria and nearly the whole of Hungary.

17. Moesia, extending from Pannonia to the Black Sea, included modern Bulgaria and Servia.

Delmatia, maritima pars Illyrici (Vell. ii 125), including modern Dalmatia, Bosnia, Herzegovina, and Montenegro.

18. quae positu...accirentur, 'which on account of their position could act in support of the latter army, and also, in case of a sudden call for help coming from Italy, were within easy reach of that country.'

20. quamquam insideret. See note on c. 4 quamquam arduum sit.

21. Etruria Vmbriaque, abl. of place whence,—‘recruited from Etruria and Umbria.’

22. uetere Latio, i.e. the communities which had Latin rights before 90 B.C., when the Lex Julia gave them full citizen rights.

coloniis antiquitus Romanis, ‘original Roman colonies,’ as opposed to the later transmarine colonies [F.]

23. idonea prouinciarum, ‘suitable points in the provinces.’ The neut. pl. adj. with genitive is a very favourite Tacitean usage.

24. sociae triremes, i.e. on the Rhine, Danube, and Black Sea.

alae et auxilia cohortium, i.e. cohortes alaeque sociae, ‘the infantry and cavalry of the allies.’

neque multo secus uirium, ‘whose strength was not far inferior to our own.’

25. persequi incertum fuerit, ‘no certain details can be given.’ For fuerit cf. c. 32 and xv 41.

26. ex usu temporis, ‘in accordance with temporary requirements.’ Cf. xi 8 ex usu praesenti.

gliscerent numero, ‘increased in number.’ For the abl. cf. saepe numero. glisco is a favourite Tacitean word.

Frost gives a useful summary: ‘The legions here mentioned are 25 in number. Supposing them to be at their full complement, to contain 6100 foot soldiers, with a cavalry force of 776 attached to them, the total amount would be in round numbers, 170,000 men. Besides these there were auxiliary troops stationed in the provinces, about equal in strength to the legionaries (neque multo secus in iis uirium); so that the forces of the Roman empire would be about 340,000 men.’

6

1. congruens crediderim, ‘I should think it appropriate.’ Cf. Hist. v 2 congruens uidetur. For the tense cf. c. 3 neque... abnuerit.

2. rei publicae partes, ‘departments of government.’

quibus modis habitae sint, ‘how they were conducted.’

5. apud patres tractabantur. See Introduction vi.
7. mandabatque honores...spectando. This requires care in translation: 'and in the bestowal of offices of state he paid regard to a candidate's ancestry, military distinction, and high qualities in civil life.' For artes 'accomplishments,' cf. Horace Odes iv 1 centum puer artium.
9. potiores fuisse, 'had more influence (with the Emperor).'
10. sua...species, 'kept their old prestige.' Cf. Cic. Piso 24 magna species, magna dignitas, magna maiestas consulis.
11. exercita potestas, 'the authority was maintained.'
12. si...eximeretur, 'excepting the process for high treason.' See Introduction viii.
13. bono in usu, 'well enforced,' i.e. neither too strict nor too lax.
- frumenta, supplies of grain collected from the Provinces in return for military protection and the maintenance of state officials.
- pecuniae uectigales, including portoria, decumae, scriptura, etc.
14. cetera...fructuum, i.e. woods and forests, mines, salt-works, etc. For the neut. plur., cf. c. 5.
- societatibus...agitabantur, 'were managed by companies of Roman capitalists,' i.e. publicani. Their business was under the control of presidents (magistri) in Rome, and vice-presidents (pro magistris) in the provinces. Cf. xiii 50 uectigalium societates.
15. res suas, probably not the fiscus or 'privy purse' of which the Emperor was only the trustee; but the private property alluded to in c. 15 non se ius nisi in seruitia et pecunias familiares dedisse. Such agents were called procuratores patrimonii [F.].
16. ex fama, 'according to their reputation.'
18. plerique, here 'most.' 'Many' is the more usual signification of the word in Tacitus.
19. acri annona, 'by the high price of food.' Tacitus uses with annona metaphors from winter or storms. Cf. ii 87 saeuitiam annonae.
20. quin, 'on the contrary.'

21. asperis maris. Cf. ii 26 aduersa maris.

25. aberant, 'were unknown,'—an exaggeration.

rari per Italianum. He had larger estates in the Provinces.

26. modesta seruitia, 'his slaves were well-behaved.' Some editors take modesta as 'moderate in number.' With seruitia (res pro persona) cf. c. 40 propiora consilia.

intra paucos libertos domus, 'his household staff was limited to a few freedmen,'—in contrast to the enormous influence of the imperial freedmen under Claudius.

27. disceptaret, 'he had a dispute' i.e. on a fiscal question.

forum et ius, 'there were the courts of justice to settle it.' Cf. Acts xix 38 (R.V.). forum et ius is hendiadys.

7

1. quae cuncta, 'all this system' (of government).

comi uia. Cf. i 54 morum uia.

horridus, 'rough.' Cf. c. 16 horrida antiquitas.

2. plerumque, 'often' here, not 'generally.'

3. donec morte Drusi uerterentur. This was the turning-point in the reign of Tiberius.

5. ultor, i.e. Drusus.

6. non occultus odii, 'who made no secret of his hatred,' lit. 'not hidden in respect of hatred.' Cf. vi 36 occultos consilia, and notice the frequency of the genitive of respect in Tacitus after adjectives and participles.

7. quantum superesse ut collega dicatur? 'how small the further step that Sejanus should be called a colleague (of the Emperor)?'

9. ubi sis ingressus. N. understands dominandi spes, and compares Cic. ad Fam. xii 25 in spem libertatis ingressus sum.

studia, 'party spirit,' 'party support.'

10. sponte praefecti, 'at the Prefect's bidding alone.'

11. in monumentis Cn. Pompei, explained by iii 72 censuere patres effigiem Seiano quae apud theatrum Pompei locaretur. The theatre of Pompey was now being rebuilt.

12. communes nepotes, referring to the project of marriage of his daughter with the son of Claudius. See iii 29.

13. precandam...modestiam, ut contentus esset, 'we must pray for moderation on his part, that he may be satisfied.' Cf. xii 65 robur aetatis precari. Others (comparing xv 17 sic quoque optimam fortunam orandam, ut pedes alacrem equitem adsequeretur) translate, 'Moderation (as a kind of goddess) must be prayed for.' But this seems fanciful [P.F.]. N. quotes another parallel,—Seneca contr. xxv 2 ut salua prouincia sit, optemus meretrici bonam mentem.

15. talia iaciebat. Drusus is the subject.

8

2. quo...adsimulateatur, final.

4. octo post annos. See c. 11.

5. nullo metu, 'either because he felt no fear.'

8. sede uulgari, 'the ordinary benches' of the senators, instead of their curule chairs on a platform. Cf. Lucan v 16 Lentulus e celsa sublimis sede profatur.

honoris locique, 'their office and rank.'

10. non quidem...senatus, 'he was well aware, he said, that he might be criticised for meeting the gaze of the Senate, while his bereavement was so fresh.'

15. e complexu rei publicae, 'by throwing himself into affairs of state.' Cf. xv 9 dum amplectitur rem publicam and xiii 1 negotia pro solaciis accipiens.

16. Augustae extremam senectam. She was now 80. She lived to be 86.

rudem, 'inexperienced.' Cf. c. 3 nepotes adulti. But the two referred to were only 18 and 15 years old.

17. uergentem. Tiberius was now 65.

18. Germanici liberi. Only two are meant, viz. Nero and Drusus. See line 29.

20. deductos, 'led in,' 'escorted.'

24. ne secus quam...conformaret, 'to cherish them as his own flesh and blood, to exalt them in the state, and to fashion them for himself and for posterity.'

25. attolleret. Cf. iii 72 attollere triumphi insignibus.

26. disque et patria coram. For the anastrophe cf. c. 5.
 29. hi, 'these Senators.'
 30. bona malaque uestra, 'any good or evil in you,' referring to character rather than fortune. This harmonises better with the context.

9

3. gloria, 'pride' in the minds of the Senators at the picture drawn by the Emperor.

impleuerat, after si posuisset. This rhetorical use of the indic. for subj. in the apodosis of conditional sentences is frequent in Tacitus. Cf. vi 9 contremuerant patres, ni Celsus Appium discrimini exemisset.

4. de reddenda re publica. See Introduction v.

utque consules. Tacitus delights in changes of construction. We have another in line 7, memoriae Drusi...in Germanicum.

6. uero dempsit, 'he robbed of their credit even true and honourable feelings.'

8. plerisque must mean 'many things' here.

amat. Cf. the similar use of $\phi\imath\lambda\epsilon\omega$.

10. origo, 'founder.' Cf. Virgil, Aen. xii 166 hinc pater Aeneas Romani stirpis origo.

12. Attus Clausus. According to the generally received tradition, the Claudii were descended from the Sabine noble Attus Clausus, who migrated to Rome. Cf. Suet. Tib. 1 patricia gens Claudia orta est ex Regillis, oppido Sabinorum.

10

1. plurimis...auctoribus, 'most numerous and most trustworthy authorities.'

3. non omiserim, 'I must not omit.' See note on c. 3 neque abnuerit. ~~Anoxicis perf. subj. is used very frequently in modest assertions in negations of possibility.~~

5. scelus, used often of murder, especially by poison. For corrupta ad scelus cf. ii 62 corruptis ad societatem.

6. uinxisse, 'bound down to his service.' Cf. vi 45 pacto matrimonii uincire. deuincio is commonly used in this sense.

9. eo audaciae prouectum. Cf. ii 55 eo usque corruptionis prouectus.

uerteret, ‘he quite shifted the look of things,’ ‘turned the matter quite round’; so that Drusus, instead of being the victim, was made to appear a schemer against the life of another [P.F.].

occulto indicio, ‘by a covert hint.’

13. postquam...inierat. The interposition, in the midst of oratio obliqua, of a subordinate clause in the indic. is not uncommon in Tacitus. Cf. quam...struxerat (below). There are several instances with dum (with present).

15. auctam suspicionem tamquam...inrogaret, a thoroughly Tacitean form of speech. Translate, ‘and thus enhanced his father’s suspicion that he was inflicting on himself....’ Cf. c. 13.

11

1. super id quod...firmantur, ‘apart from the fact that they are supported by no trustworthy authority.’

2. prompte refutaueris, ‘the reader may readily reject.’ Cf. note on c. 3.

3. nendum...exercitus, ‘much less one trained in high affairs of state like Tiberius.’

4. exitium offerret, ‘would offer a deadly poison’ [R.]. Cic. has mortem alicui offerre in two passages.

5. nullo ad paenitendum regressu, ‘leaving himself no means of retreat to a change of purpose’ [F.]. Cf. Livy xxiv 26 neque locus paenitendi aut regressus ab ira relictus and xlii 13 unde receptum ad paenitendum non haberent.

6. ministrum ueneni, i.e. the attendant who handed the cup. auctorem, ‘who had prompted him.’

8. aduersum unicum, ‘towards an only son.’

flagitiū conpertum, ‘found guilty of misconduct,’ also used by Livy; by Tacitus again in i 3. Analogy of accusatus?

11. ceterorum...odio, ‘the hatred of the rest of the world towards them both.’

quamuis fabulosa, ‘ever so fabulous.’ For this use of quamuis see Roby 1627.

12. atrociore...exitus, 'rumour being always inclined to the horrible when dealing with the deaths of priuces.' For erga...exitus cf. c. 20 and 74.

13. ordo...sceleris, 'all the details of the crime.' Cf. Livy iii 50 ordine cuncta exposuit and xl 55 ordinem omnem facinoris exposuit.

alioqui, 'besides.' The word usually means 'in other respects' or 'in general.'

14. Apicatum Seiani. For uxor understood cf. Virgil's Hectoris Andromache (Aen. iii 319); Cic. ad Att. xii 20 Seruiliae Claudii. Tacitus (in xii. 1) has Lolliam Paulinam M. Lollii consularis, where we must understand filiam.

17. conquirerent, 'raked up.'

intenderent, 'exaggerated.' See note on c. 2.

19. auditiones, abstract for concrete. Cf. Cie. pro Plancio 56 fictae auditiones.

20. cura nostra uenerit, 'my work may fall.' cura is again used for 'literary work' in iii 24; and N. quotes Ovid ex Ponto ii 4, 16 hoc pretium curae dulce recentis erat.

22. in miraculum corruptis. Cf. Thuc. i 21 ἐπὶ τὸ μυθῶδες ἐκνευτικῆτα.

12

2. habitum, 'bearing,' 'demeanour.'

dolentum. So also in c. 41, according to the Medicean. N. compares xi 22 salutantum and vi 50 gratantum.

3. libens, 'voluntarily,' 'from the heart.' Cf. c. 58 and xiv 61 libens quam coactus.

induebat, 'put on,' 'assumed,'—a very frequent metaphor in Tacitus. So too is exuo.

4. quod principium...adcelerauere, 'but this beginning of popularity and the ill-concealed hopes of their mother Agrippina only hastened their ruin.'

5. mater spem male tegens. This idiomatic use is very common with the past participle, but rare with the present. Cf. c. 34 id perniciabile reo et Caesar truci uulta defensionem accipiens.

7. inultam interfectoribus, ‘was unavenged on the murderers,’ ‘brought no punishment on the murderers.’

8. ferox scelerum, ‘bold in crime.’ Cf. c. 53 peruicax irae, c. 7 occultus odii, i. 32 animi ferox, where perhaps animi is locative. In Hist. i 35 we have linguae ferox.

prima prouenerant would be in Greek τὰ πρώτα προνηστέν.

9. uolutare, historic infin. Cf. insectari...exagitare (below). With uolutare secum cf. Virg. Ecl. ix 37 mecum ipse uoluto.

11. spargi uenenum, perhaps borrowed from Cic. Cat. ii 23 sicas uibrare et spargere uenena didicerant. This verb often has the meaning ‘distribute.’

12. fide et pudicitia, abl. of cause.

14. recentem Liuiae conscientiam, ‘Livia’s new and guilty knowledge.’ Augusta had always hated Agrippina and her family; whilst Livia’s consciousness of her recent guilt made it impossible for her to shrink from any suggestion that might be made for realising the fruits of her crime [R.].

exagitare, ‘work upon.’

15. ut...apud Caesarem arguerent, ‘bidding them attack her before the Emperor as....’

superbam fecunditate, ‘pluming herself on the number of her children.’ On this Merivale writes brilliantly (Romans under the Empire, c. 45): ‘Like a true Roman she exercised without fear or shame the national licence of the tongue—illa lingua Romana (Tertullian)—and in a court where no whisper was not repeated proclaimed aloud to every listener the wrongs of which she deemed herself the victim. The fertility with which her marriage had been blest had been long a source of jealousy to the morbid self-love of the empress-mother, which even in extreme age was piqued by the maternal taunts of this Niobe of the Palace.’

16. inhiare dominationi, ‘was setting her heart on sovereignty.’ Cf. Hor. Sat. i 1 71 congestis undique saccis inhians.

17. atque haec, ‘and Livia (i.e. Livilla)....’ So Ritter rightly without doubt, taking haec as feminine sing. Cf. c. 3 atque illa....

callidis criminatoribus, a Tacitean extension of the abl. of instr. to a personal agent,—‘by means of cunning slanderers.’ Cf. ii 79 corruptoribus temptare.

19. consiliis suis, i.e. Livia's plans.
 20. in animo...ualida, 'was strong in Augusta's affections.' Cf. xiv 51 ualidior Tigelliuus in animo principis. For the omission of the verb sum, which is very common in Tacitus, cf. line 10.
 21. potentiae anxiam, objective gen.,—'solicitous for undue power.' Cf. ii 75 incerta ultiōnis, anxia sui and Ov. Met. i 623 anxia furti.

insociabilem nurui efficiebat, 'she (i.e. Livia) was bringing about a thorough estrangement between Augusta and her granddaughter-in-law' (i.e. Agrippina). For nurui the editors quote from the Digest nurus appellatione non tantum filii uxor, sed et nepotis et prouepotis continetur, licet quidem has pronurus appellant.

23. prauis sermonibus...perstimulare, 'to incite her rising ambition by wrong-headed suggestions.'

13

1. nihil, acc. of extent used adverbially.
rerum cura, 'attention to public business.'
 2. ius ciuium...tractabat, 'he dealt with the trials of citizens and petitions from allied communities.' Examples of both follow. See Introduction iii.
 4. ciuitati Cibyraticeae. Cibyra was a town in the south-western corner of Phrygia. Cf. Hor. 1 Epist. vi 33.

Aegensi. Aegium on the gulf of Corinth was the chief city of Achaia. It was the meeting place of the Achaean League (Livy xxxviii 30).

7. ulterioris Hispaniae, i.e. Baetica at this time. Its seat of government was at Corduba.

ui publica, 'violence in a public capacity,' i.e. the execution, scourging, etc., of a Roman citizen who had appealed to the Emperor. This was regulated by the lex Iulia de ui publica.

8. atrocitatem morum, 'his savage temper.'

Amorgum. Amorgus is one of the Cyclades, south-east of Naxos.

9. reus tamquam...iuuisset, 'accused on the ground of having helped,'—a thoroughly Tacitean usage. Cf. c. 10 and 13; also i 12 inuisus tamquam...agitaret. Note that tamquam in such passages does not imply the falseness of the allegation.

13. insulam Cercinam, in the lesser Syrtes off the north coast of Africa.

14. artium, ‘accomplishments.’ Cf. c. 6.
mox, ‘subsequently,’ not ‘soon.’

15. mutando sordidas merces, ‘by engaging in petty trade.’ Cf. Cic. de off. i 150 inliberales et sordidi quaestus. Livy (xxi 63) says that all trade (quaestus) was looked upon as indecorus for senators.

16. magnae fortunae, ‘of high rank,—the ordinary meaning of fortuna in Tacitus.

17. Aelius Lamia, addressed by Horace (Odes i 26, iii 17).

L. Apronius had served under Germanicus in Germany (i 56).

qui Africam obtinuerant, ‘who had held Africa,’—i.e. as governors. The verb is very frequent in this sense.

18. claritudine infausti generis, ‘on account of his illustrious and ill-starred name’ [R.]—alluding to the celebrated Gracchi.

19. foret abstractus, ‘would have been ruined,—lit. ‘would have been hurried off.’ Supply ad perniciem. Cf. Hist. iv 2 nec perinde prosperis sociis quam aduersis abstractus.

14

1. quoque, i.e. like the previous year.

2. habuit. We say ‘saw.’ Cf. xiii 33 idem annus plures reos habuit.

Samiis...petentibus, ‘the Samians petitioning that the old rights of sanctuary should be confirmed to the temple of Juno, the people of Cos making the same request for their temple of Aesculapius.’

Iunonis. For the famous Heraeum of Samos see Herodotus ii 148, iii 60.

Aesculapii. Cos was the great centre of this cult. The ‘sons of Aesculapius’ had a famous medical school there; and the great doctor Hippocrates was born and lived there.

3. firmaretur would be confirmaretur in the best Latin.
4. Amphyctyonum, the Amphyctyonic Council, of which we read so much in Demosthenes, meeting in the spring at Delphi and in the autumn at Thermopylae
- quis...iudicium, 'who had the supreme decision in all such matters.'
5. qua tempestate, 'at the time when...,'—found also in this sense in Cicero, Sallust, and Livy; also in poetry.
8. accedebat meritum ex loco, 'besides there was a special service connected with the place.'
9. templo induxerant. For the dative cf. v 1 penatibus suis induxerit.
- iussu Mithridatis, in 88 b.c., when 80,000 Roman citizens were massacred. Many sanctuaries were violated on this occasion.
11. uariis...questibus, 'after various complaints.'
- praetorum, who had the ius ludorum, i.e. charge of public games.
12. inmodestia, 'misconduct.'
13. rettulit, i.e. drew attention to the subject in the Senate.
14. Oscum Iudicum. By the 'Oscan Drama' is meant the performance of the Fabulae Atellanae, comedies originally performed by amateurs, but now taken up by the professional pantomimi. See Livy vii 2.
15. Ieuissimae...oblectationis, gen. of quality,—'characterised by the most frivolous amusement.'
16. uirium, 'violence,' not 'influence,' as some take it.
17. pulsi histriones Italia. They were restored by Caligula. According to Suetonius, the punishment was not so universal. He says (Tib. 37): caede in theatro per discordium admissa, capita factionum et histriones, propter quos dissidebatur, relegauit. But Dio Cassius makes it more general.

2. alterum ex geminis, about four years old.
extinguendo. See note on e. 2.

5. Rhodii secessus comes. Two knights also accompanied him (vi 10).

6. censorium funus, a synonym for funus publicum ‘state funeral.’ Though censors were no longer appointed, this technical term was retained. Under the republic they had the control of state funerals. Cf. xiii 2 decretum Claudio censorium funus et mox consecratio.

7. forum Augusti, north-east of the Forum proper, between the Capitol and the Quirinal.

8. apud quos etiam tum, in contrast to the later practice of a private trial before the Emperor. Here we have his own procurator (or fiscal officer) put on his trial before the Senate.

9. accusante prouincia. Tacitus often speaks of the victimised province as prosecutor. Cf. xiii 33 accusante prouincia Asia; xiv 17 accusantibus Cyrenensibus.

10. ut...causam dixerit, i.e. before the Senate, supplied from apud quos above. For the use of perf. subj. as an aorist cf. c. 1 ierit, c. 20 uiguerit.

11. non se ius...dedisse, ‘he had given no authority to Capito except over his own slaves and revenues’—called by Dio τὰ αὐτοκρατορικὰ χρήματα ‘the imperial property.’ The epithet familiares also covers seruitia.

12. uim praetoris, ‘the authority of a governor,’ a general term. The Proconsul of Asia was always of consular rank.

usurpasset, not ‘usurped,’ but ‘employed.’

13. audirent socios, ‘let the Senate hear the evidence of the allies,’ i.e. the provincials.

14. damnatur, i.e. to banishment.

15. in C. Silanum vindicatum erat, a construction found also in Cicero and Caesar.

17. permissum statuere, ‘leave was given to build it.’ Cf. c. 48 iisque permissum uastare, urere, trahere praedas.

18. Nero. Young princes of the imperial house often acted as patroni of the Provinces.

19. laetas...adfectiones, ‘amid the delighted feelings of his audience.’

20. recenti...rebantur, ‘with still fresh memories of Germanicus, they thought it was his form they saw....' recenti memoria is sociative abl.

22. principe uiro. Cf. iii 6 non eadem decora principibus uiris et imperatori populo.

16

1. flamine Diali. Some extracts from Warde Fowler's Religious Experience of the Roman People will form a useful commentary on some points in this chapter. He gives a long list of taboos or disabilities to which the Priest of Jupiter was even in historical times subject. He was forbidden to touch a dog, a goat, raw meat, etc., etc. He might not walk under a vine (p. 34). The Flamen was a survival of those magician-kings who make rain and do other useful things, but would lose their power if they were exposed to certain contingencies. The number of possible contingencies increases till the unfortunate owner of the powers becomes powerless by virtue of the care so painfully taken of him (p. 108).

Warde Fowler illustrates this by a 'most extraordinary story' from Livy (xxvii 8). In 209 B.C. C. Valerius Flaccus, the black sheep of a great family, was inaugurated against his will as Flamen Dialis by the Pontifex Maximus, P. Licinius. Livy expressly tells us that it was ob adulescentiam neglegentem luxuriosamque; and it is pretty plain that the step was suggested by the relations to keep him out of mischief. For the disabilities on this ancient priesthood were, as we have seen, numerous and strict; and among the restrictions laid on its holder was one which forbade him to leave his house for a single night (p. 342). The strange thing in the case of Flaccus is that this office had such a wholesome disciplinary effect that the libertine became a model youth, the admiration of his own and other families (p. 343). See however note on line 13 (below).

2. roganda noua lege, 'a proposal of a change in the law.' Tacitus not unfrequently speaks of the passing of leges. Cf. lines 12 and 16. Their enactment by the comitia must have been purely formal.

3. confarreatis parentibus, i.e. married according to the solemn sacramental rite. Warde Fowler says (p. 130): ‘As farreus, Jnupiter gave his sanction to the solemn contract entered into in the ancient form of marriage by confarreatio, where his flamen had to be present, and where in all probability the cake of far was eaten as a kind of sacrament by the parties to the covenant. The bride must enter the family in such a way as to share in its sacra.’

4. ex quis unus legeretur. The final choice lay with the Pontifex maximus, who had a ‘compelling’ power. Cf. Livy xxvii 8 flamen captus, i.e. ‘taken’ for the office against his will.

7. pluresque...uitarentur. ‘The parenthetical sentence gives two explanations of the first cause, namely, natural negligence of a cumbrous ceremony and deliberate avoidance of its accompanying impediments’ [F.].

8. potissimam penes incuriam, ‘the chief one concerned with indifference to the rite.’ Cf. Horace A. P. 71 quem penes arbitrium est. The preposition is generally restricted to persons.

9. accedere, ‘were added.’

difficultates, especially the complicated process of diffareatio, the only means of dissolving such a marriage.

10. exiret e iure patrio...conueniret, i.e. when a man became flamen, both he and his wife passed out of the patria potestas, the woman coming under that of her husband.

11. flamonium, office of flamen or flaminica, the correct spelling, supported both by inscriptions and manuscripts.

12. ita medendum...lege, ‘accordingly he held that some remedy should be applied either by law or decree of the Senate.’

13. sicut...flexisset, ‘as Augustus had accommodated certain relics of a rude antiquity to the modern spirit’ [C. and B.]. Especially, we learn from iii 71 that he had relaxed the rule forbidding the flamen to be absent from home for a single night.

14. tractatis religionibus, ‘after a discussion of religious difficulties.’

16. sed lata lex. Part of Frost’s useful note may be quoted:—‘The matter was settled by a compromise; that is to say, she was to be so far in manu uiri as to enable her to perform all rites which could only be performed by one who was so circumstanced; but in other matters she was to be on the same footing as other women, i.e., I suppose, there was not, as a matter of necessity, to be in manum conuentio, as there had been up to this period, by reason of her marriage *per confarreatio*nem.'

faminica Dialis was not priestess of Juno as is commonly supposed; but assisted her husband in the cult of Jupiter. She also was subject to certain taboos or disabilities; e.g. on three occasions in the religious year she might not appear in public with her hair 'done up'; and she might only wear shoes made from the skin of a sacrificial victim [Warde Fowler, pp. 35, 36].

17. cetera, acc. of respect with ageret, 'should live in all other respects.' This use of ago is very common in Tacitus.

promisco...iure, 'with the ordinary rights of women.'

18. patri suffectus. Cf. in locum defuncti (line 1) and the phrase consul suffectus.

19. glisceret, 'be increased.' Cf. c. 5.

20. ad capessendas caerimonias, 'to undertake religious duties.'

21. capiebatur. See note on line 4, and cf. ii 86 capiendam virginem in locum Occiae.

22. sestertium uiciens, 'two million sesterces,' i.e. about £17,000 in our money.

23. sedes inter Vestarium. For the anastrophe cf. c. 8.

17

1. Visellio Varrone. He was one of the 'conservators' of the Tiber,—curator riparum et aluei Tiberis, as we learn from an inscription quoted by N.

3. pro incolumitate principis, offered regularly on Jan. 3rd, to be distinguished from those offered for the State on Jan. 1st. See c. 70.

5. caritate...adulatione, abl. of cause.

quae moribus...nimia est, 'and in a corrupt age flattery is equally perilous, whether it is non-existent or excessive.' For si...ubi cf. i 44.

8. tum uero, 'now especially.'

aequari...indoluit. He complained that to join them with himself in this prayer for the imperial family was to make as much of their health, young and vigorous as they were, as of the grave infirmity of years under which he felt himself to labour [Merivale].

10. num id...tribuissent, 'whether this was a compliment paid....'

12. quamquam abnuerent, 'though they denied the imputation.' For the syntax cf. c. 4.

etenim...erant. This sentence explains the gentleness of the rebuke.

pars magna, i.e. pontificum. The young Drusus was himself a pontifex.

13. ipsius, i.e. of the Emperor.

15. mobiles, 'giddy.'

16. instabat...ciuitatem, 'for Sejanus was urgently insinuating that the State was torn asunder.'

19. neque aliud...subuerterentur, 'the only remedy for the growing schism was to put away one or two of the most active spirits.'

18

3. Silio et quod, 'to Silius it was also ruinous that....' It is in 14 A.D. that we first find him in command of the army of Upper Germany. He remained in the same post till he conquered Sacrovir in 21 A.D.

ingentis exercitus, i.e. the four legions on the Upper Rhine.

4. triumphibus. He gained the triumphalia insignia for his services in Germany in 15 A.D. The insignia consisted of the triumphal dress and ornaments; they could be displayed at the public games. The triumph proper could only be celebrated by a member of the imperial house.

5. quanto maiore...dispergebatur, 'the greater his fall, the greater the panic it would spread to others.'

7. plerique, πολλοί, not οἱ πολλοί.

9. cum alii...prolaberentur, 'when others were prone to mutiny.'

10. mansurum, sc. fuisse.

si iis...fuisset, 'if disaffection had spread to his own legions.'

11. destrui...Caesar, 'the Emperor felt that by such pretensions his own position was lowered.' fortuna often denotes 'position,' 'rank' in Tacitus, especially imperial rank.

13. beneficia...posse, 'benefits are only welcome so long as it seems possible to discharge them.'

14. ubi multum anteuenerent, 'when they have far exceeded that limit.' Notice how fond Tacitus is of ending a chapter with a pungent epigram like this. The word anteuenio is not found elsewhere.

15. pro gratia odium redditur. Ritter quotes Seneca Epist.

19 quidam quo plus debent magis oderunt; leue aes alienum debitorem facit, graue inimicum.

19

1. caritate Agrippinae. The gen. is objective.

2. principi. See Introduction v.

hos corripi...placitum, 'it was determined to attack both Silius and Sabinus.'

3. Sabino, i.e. the trial of Sabinus. See c. 68-70.

inmissus, 'let loose,' 'set on,' i.e. to prosecute. The metaphor is from letting loose animals. Cf. Suet. Nero 43 urbem incendere, feris in populum inmissis.

qui paternas...gratificabatur, 'who on pretence of having some quarrel of his father's to avenge was ready to sacrifice his own honour to abet the animosities of Sejanus' [R.]. See iii 43. The elder Varro had disputed with Silius the right of commanding against Sabinus.

6. dum...abiret, final,—'to give time for the prosecutor (Varro) to vacate his office.'

7. solutum quippe, 'for it was customary, he urged....'

8. cuius uigiliis niteretur, 'on whose vigilance he depended....'

10. proprium id Tiberio, 'it was a peculiarity of Tiberius.'

11. priscis uerbis. He had alluded to the old term senatus consultum ultimum: i.e. darent operam consules ne quid res publica detrimenti caperet—, establishing a kind of martial law. Also, F. suggests that uigiliis may be a reference to an old phrase uigilia consularis. See Cie. Phil. i 1; and, generally, for Tiberius' preference for old constitutional formalities, see i 7 Tiberius per consules cuncta incipiebat tamquam ueteri re publica.

multa adseueratione...coguntur patres, 'with this profound solemnity he convened the Senate'; 'with repeated protestations' of the urgency of the case, etc. [P.F.]. Cf. ii 31 accusatio apud patres adseueratione eadem peracta.

quasi...ageretur, 'as if Silius were being dealt with according to law.' lege agere is a commoner phrase.

aut Varro consul, 'or Varro were really consul,'—seeing that the various departments of government were being gradually handed over to the Emperor. See Introduction v.

13. aut illud res publica esset, 'or that state of things were really a commonwealth.' For the syntax cf. i 49 non medicinam illud appellans. For res publica in the sense of 'ordered commonwealth' cf. i 43 quotus quisque reliquis qui rem publicam uidisset? also xiii 28 manebat quaedam imago rei publicae. In these passages it does not mean a republican form of government as opposed to a monarchy.

15. non occultante...premeretur, 'making it clear whose displeasure was bearing him down.'

conscientia belli...arguebantur, 'he was charged with having connived at the movement of Sacrovir, and with sullying his victory by rapacity. The conduct of his wife Sosia was also brought up against him' [R.]. For the syntax cf. Livy xl 54 stimulabat animum et alter filius haud dubie rex conuersique in eum omnium oculi et destituta senectus; and xl 24 fuga per Paeoniam praeparata arguebatur et corrupti quidam.

16. Sacrouir diu dissimulatus, lit. 'the fact that he had long ignored the proceedings of Sacrovir.' Cf. xv 71 Aelilia...dissimulata. For conscientia belli, 'through privity to his rebellion,' cf. xii 31 conscientia rebellionis. Sacrovir and Florus, two Romanised provincials in Gaul, engaged in a conspiracy to throw off the Roman yoke. Florus undertook to gain over the Belgae and Treviri; Sacrovir intrigued among the Aedui and other tribes; the Aedui had seized Autun. But the rising was premature; and both leaders died by their own hands. The name Sacrovir points to his holding some religious office.

per auaritiam, apparently by extortions from those who had not joined the rebellion [F.]

17. uxor Sosia, i.e. not kept in proper order, and receiving bribes.

nec dubie...haerebant, 'and clearly they (Silius and Sosia) could not free themselves from the charges of extortion.'

18. cuncta...exercita, 'the whole trial was conducted as if on the charge of treason.'

19. maiestatis. See Introduction viii.

20. praeuertit, 'anticipated.' Cf. Lucan viii 30 praeuertit tristia leto.

20

1. saeuitum in bona, 'a cruel raid was made on his property.' Cf. c. 1.

tamen, i.e. although he had anticipated condemnation by suicide. See Introduction vi.

stipendiariis, tribute-payers in the province of Silius.

2. repetebat, 'made claim for restitution,'—a technical term. Hence the phrase in c. 19 (rerum) repetundarum crimina 'charges of extortion.'

3. liberalitas Augusti auulsa, 'grants made to Silius by Augustus were abstracted from his estate.' Tacitus uses liberalitas specially in this sense.

4. computatis...petebantur, 'the claims of the imperial treasury being reckoned up in detail.' singillatim would refer to various special grants.

6. sententia, often of a motion in the Senate.

partem bonorum, 'half of Sosia's property.'

7. publicandam...ut relinquatur. Tacitus is fond of such changes of construction.

8. M'. Lepidus, i.e. Manius Lepidus.

9. legis. This is the lex Iulia de maiestate, which was passed by Augustus, and stated the minimum to be allowed to informers.

11. pleraque...flexit, ‘he modified many sentences in an opposite direction to the cruel servility of others’ [F.].

12. neque tamen...egebat, ‘and yet (though so independent) he was not wanting in discretion.’

13. aequabili, ‘uniform,’ i.e. without a break.

14. uigerit. The use of the perf. subj. in an aoristic sense is very common in Silver Latin. Cf. c. 1 and 15.

unde dubitare...vacuum. Merivale (Romans under the Empire, c. 45) has some useful comments on this passage:—‘Tacitus, as a disciple of the school of the fatalists, is constrained on this occasion to enquire whether the favour or hostility of princes is a matter of mere chance and destiny, or whether there may not still be room for prudent counsel and good sense in the conduct of human affairs; whether a secure path of life, however hard to trace, might not still be discovered amidst the perils of the times, between the extremes of rude independence and base servility. The great defect of the Romans of this period lay in their want of the true self-respect which is engendered by the consciousness of sober consistency. Bred in the speculative maxims of Greek and Roman republicanism, they passed their manhood either in unlearning the lessons of the schools, or in exaggerating them in a spirit of senseless defiance.’

20. animo diuersus, ‘different in character.’

21. quamquam insontes. Cf. note on c. 11 quamuis fabulosa.

22. alienae, explained by uxorum.

23. perinde quam suis, ‘just as if they had been committed by themselves.’

21

2. feroci, ‘high-spirited,—the meaning which it usually bears in the best writers. Thus in Livy the Roman army is called ferociissimus. Cf. c. 12.

ut rettuli. See ii 34. This was eight years previously.

3. factiones accusatorum, ‘the intrigues of informers.’

4. potentia, as usual, of real power, undue influence. Cf. c. 41.

Vrgulaniam, grandmother of Plautius Silvanus. See c. 22 and ii 34.

6. ciuiliter habuit, ‘took as a citizen should,’ i.e. in a popular spirit, not as an emperor (non ut principis, iii 12). Cf. iii 76 quod ciuiliter acceptum; Hist. ii 21 comitia ciuiliter celebrans; also Juvenal v 112 poscimus ut cenes ciuiliter. Later writers are fond of the antithesis, e.g. Capitolinus, adepti imperium ita ciuiliter se ambo egerunt.

habuit. N. quotes xii 48 cum laetitia habendum; xv 28 cum hostili odio habebatur.

7. impetus...languerat, ‘the first access of ill-feeling had faded away.’

8. secreti sermonis aduersum maiestatem. Note the extension of maiestas to spoken words. See Introduction viii.

10. gladio accinctum. It was forbidden by law to wear a sword in the city.

11. atrocious uero, ‘too outrageous to be true.’ For the idiom N. quotes Hor. Epist. i 10, 43 calceus pede maior; Livy ii 27 curatio altior fastigio suo.

12. ceterorum...reus, ‘he was indicted on the remaining counts heaped up in large numbers.’

13. neque peractus, ‘but his trial was not brought to a conclusion.’

ob mortem opportunam. Cf. Agric. 45 felix opportunitate mortis. relatum, ‘a motion was made’ in the Senate.

14. Cassio Seuero. Cassius was an able and elegant rhetorician, of whom Quintilian writes, plus bilis habet quam sanguinis (x 1, 117).

15. orandi ualidus, ‘a forcible speaker at the bar,’ lit. ‘strong in pleading.’ For the Tacitean genitive of the thing in point of which cf. the genitives with occultus (c. 7), peruicax (c. 53), praeclarus (c. 34).

16. iudicio iurati senatus. For voting on oath cf. c. 31 ut iure iurando obstringeret e re publica id esse; and Livy xxx 40 patres iurati censuerunt. It was to give greater solemnity.

18. aduertit, ‘drew on himself.’ Cf. Pliny Epist. ix 26 omnes aduertit quod eminet et exstat.

bonis exutus, a frequent Tacitean metaphor,—‘stripped of his property.’

interdicto igni atque aqua, impers. abl. abs., lit. ‘fire and water having been forbidden him.’

19. saxo Seriphō, contemptuous. It was a small island, one of the Cyclades (now Serphō), a frequent place of banishment. Cf. Juv. x 170 ut Gyari clausus scopulis paruaque Seriphō.

22

1. praetor. He was praetor urbanus.

2. in praeceps, either from the window or down the stairs. Cf. vi 49 iacto in praeceps corpore. In vi 17 we have praeceps dare.

3. tractus ad Caesarem, in the first instance. Afterwards Tiberius remits the case to the Senate.

4. tamquam ipse, sc. fuisset. Translate: ‘alleging that he had been fast asleep.’ P.F. quotes Germ. 39 superstitio respicit tamquam inde initia gentis.

7. reluctantis et impulsae uestigia, lit. ‘traces of one struggling and thrown by violence.’

8. refert ad senatum, ‘he remitted the case to the Senate,’ after some investigations of his own.

datis iudicibus, ‘the case having been sent for trial,’ i.e. before a commission (quaestio). The full phrase is dare actionem et iudices.

10. quasi principis monitu, sc. factum. Translate: ‘this was taken as a hint from the Emperor himself.’

12. uenas praebuit exsoluendas, a very common method of suicide at this time.

13. Numantina accusata iniecissee. For this use of the nom. and infin. cf. xiii 23 deferuntur consensisse Pallas ac Burrus.

23

1. longo...bello. The war with Tacfarinas began in 17 A.D. See ii 52. He was a Numidian who had served among the auxiliaries of the Roman army, and, having gained a knowledge of military science, deserted, and collected a body of freebooters. He was chosen as leader of the Musulamii, a powerful people in the interior of Numidia, on the southern side of Mount Aurasius.

The Musulamian war gave much trouble. Tacfarinas defied the Roman arms for some years. The insurrection spread westward into Mauretania, and eastward to the country of the Garamantes. The Roman commanders sent out for some years proved incompetent, till in 24 A.D. Blaesus was appointed on the Emperor's intervention.

3. ubi...crediderant, 'when they thought that their achievements were sufficient for the winning of triumphal honours.' For triumphalium insigni, cf. c. 18.

5. tres...statuae, won by Furius Camillus 17 A.D., L. Apronius 20 A.D., and Junius Blaesus 22 A.D. Cf. Agricola 40 inlustris statuae honorem.

6. Africam, the Roman Province of Africa.

7. iuenta, causal,—'negligent owing to youth.'

8. libertos regios et seruilia imperia, hendiadys. Translate: 'had chosen war rather than submit to be ordered about like slaves by the king's freedmen' [R.].

10. rex Garamantum. The Garamantes are generally placed in Fezzan.

non ut...incederet, 'not so far as to take the field' [F.].

11. quae...in maius audiebantur, 'the strength of which was exaggerated by distance.' This sense of audio ('hear of') is frequent in Tacitus, e.g. ii 68 audita regis fuga; Germ. 37 cum primum Cimbrorum arma audita sunt.

13. moribus turbidus, 'turbulent in character.'

14. ruebant, 'were flocking to his standard.'

res a Blaeso gestas. See iii 73, 74.

quasi nullis...hostibus. Cf. the more frequent Tacitean use of tamquam.

15. nonam legionem. See v 4.

24

2. lacerari, 'was being worried.'

5. incubuissent, 'made an effort.' Cf. c. 73 si simul incubuissent.

Thubuscum, or Thubursicum, a town lying a little to the north of Mount Aurasius.—

8. primo sui incessu. sui (for suo) is emphatic,—‘when he advanced in person.’ Cf. ii 13 fruitur fama sui.

9. solutus obsidium. We say ‘raised the siege.’

locorum opportuna permuniuit. Cf. Kitchener’s ‘blockhouses’ in the last stage of the South African war.

12. non graui nec uno incursu, ‘with a single attack in heavy marching order.’

14. cum popularibus, ‘and his people.’

15. agmina, ‘columns.’

16. ipse consultor aderat omnibus, ‘he himself directed the operations as a whole’ [R.].

25

3. positis mapalibus. Cf. iii 74 mutantem mapalia Tacfarinatem. These moveable huts are mentioned by Livy xxix 31 cum mapalibus pecoribusque suis persecuti sunt regem.

4. saltibus, ‘forests.’

5. expeditae cohortes alaeque, ‘infantry and cavalry of the allies in light order.’

6. simulque...et. Cf. i 65 simul haec, et scindit agmen.

8. aderant in barbaros, just as we say vividly ‘they were upon them.’

praepeditis, ‘hobbled.’ The equivalent Greek word is πεποδισμένος.

9. diuersos, ‘far off.’

ab Romanis, ‘on the Roman side.’ Cf. the phrases a tergo, a fronte.

10. dispositae turmae, ‘their cavalry were posted at proper intervals’ [R.].

12. consilium, ‘plan of battle.’

13. trahi, occidi, capi, i.e. those who were dragged away were slain or made prisoners [F.].

infensus, ‘infuriated.’

14. et aduersum eludentes...pugnae depends on memoria. Translate: ‘and of battle so often longed for against an enemy foiling them.’ For the absolute use of eludere cf. iii 74.

15. differtur...consectentur, 'word is passed along the lines, let all make for Tacfarinas.'

18. delectis circum stipatoribus, 'when his guards had been struck down around him.'

19. effusis, 'pouring in from every side,' 'closing in.'

26

2. Seiano tribuens ne...obsolesceret, 'paying thereby a compliment to Sejanus, to prevent the glory of his uncle Blaesus being dimmed.' Cf. vi 50 quasi honori abeuntis amici tribueret.

3. neque...et. For the antithesis pointed by this construction cf. ii 34 neque Piso inglorius et Caesar maiore fama fuit.

4. huic negatus honor...intendit, 'the refusal of the distinction enhanced the credit of Dolabella.'

negatus honor. For the construction cf. c. 12, 34, 44.

intendit. Cf. c. 2 uim praefecturae intendit.

minore exercitu. He had one legion only, the third, the ninth having been withdrawn. See c. 23.

6. caudem...famam deportarat. Note the zeugma.

10. studiis, i.e. loyalty to Rome.

repetitus, 'revived.'

12. togam pictam, worn in triumphs. Livy (xxx 15) gives a longer list of presents made to a king, — Masinissam aurea corona, aurea patera, sella curuli eburnea et scipione eburneo, toga picta, et palmari tunica donat.

27

1. mota, 'scattered.'

2. oppressit, a strong word, 'crushed.' The metaphors are mixed.

tumultus, 'rising,' as usual.

5. libellis, 'proclamations,' 'placards.'

6. per longinquos saltus, 'in distant forest districts,' i.e. in the Appennine country.

ferocia seruitia, 'savage slaves' probably. But possibly ferox may here have its strictly classical sense of 'high-spirited.' See note on c. 12.

7. tres biremes, i.e. Liburnian galleys, as distinct from triремes, from the Ravenna Fleet (see c. 5), told off to protect trade in the Adriatic.

ad pulere, ‘put into harbour,’ i.e. at Brundisium. Cf. ii 24 triremis terram ad pulit.

8. ad usus commeantium, ‘for the requirements of traders.’

9. quaestor. From early times there appear to have been four quaestors with spheres of duty (prouinciae) in Italy, chiefly concerned with trade. One of these had the prouincia Ostiensis charged with important duties with regard to the corn-supply. Ashby in Recent Discoveries at Ostia, J. R. S. vol. ii, p. 155, writes:—‘It seems probable, as Vagliari and Carcopino have conjectured independently, that the foundation of Ostia on its present site may be connected with the institution of the four quaestores classici in 267 b.c. and the assignment of one of them to Ostia.’

Another had the prouincia Gallica (i.e. Cisalpine Gaul). A third was stationed in South Italy; but we do not know the name of his prouincia. Lipsius would read Cales euenerat here, and thinks that this is the name of this prouincia. More probably Brundisium was the station of this quaestor; and, if calles is the right reading, Ramsay thinks he may have had charge of ‘the rough pasture-land of the interior’ as well. Suetonius (Iulius 19) speaks of prouinciae minimi negotii, hoc est siluae callesque. But this passage has no reference to the prouinciae of the quaestors.

10. classiariorum, ‘marines,’ i.e. from the biremes.

11. coepitatem cum maxime, ‘at the very beginning,’ ‘just as it was breaking out.’ Cf. iii 59 lacus cum maxime peragratem ‘traversing at the very time.’ The full expression would be nunc ut cum maxime [F.]. We have nunc cum maxime ‘at this moment’ in Cicero and Livy, and tum cum maxime ‘at that moment’ in Livy. See Roby 1641.

13. tribunus, i.e. an officer of the praetorian guard.

15. familiarum, ‘households,’ often, as here, in the sense of ‘slave establishments.’ Cf. iii 53 familiarum numerum et nationes.

gliscerat immensum, ‘was increasing enormously.’ Cf. c. 5. For the adverbial immensum (really a cognate acc.) cf. iii 30 domus illa immensum uiguit.

28

3. Vibius Serenus. The father had been banished to the island of Amorgus ob atrocitatem morum (c. 13).

in senatum inducti sunt. See Introduction vi.

4. inluuie ac squalore obsitus. Cf. vi 43 (where we have inluuie obsitus again) and Livy xxix 16 obsiti squalore et sordibus.

et tum, 'and now' in our idiom.

5. oranti filio comparatur, 'is matched with the oratory of the son.' The metaphor is from matching pairs of gladiators.

6. multis munditiis, abl. of manner—'with much elegance' (of dress and manner), in strong antithesis to inluuie ac squalore. Cf. iii 30 per cultum et munditias.

7. missos in Galliam concitores belli. Serenus the elder was governor of Baetica about the time of Sacrovir's rebellion three years previously.

8. adnectebat, used absolutely, so also in ii 26.

9. praetorium, 'an ex-praetor.'

10. taedio, abl. of cause.

14. ubi...ageret, 'where he might live far from fashions like these.'

quandoque, 'sooner or later.' Cf. vi 20 et tu, Galba, quandoque degustabis imperium.

16. falsa exterritum, 'that his alarm was groundless,' Greek οὐκ ὄντα ἐκπεπληγμένον. P.F. quotes Cic. ad Att. ix 2 ingrati animi crimen horreo. Somewhat similar is arguitur pleraque (vi 5). See Appendix.

17. si proderentur alii. 'Probably proderentur is ironical. If the names of others were divulged, they would clear themselves and thus discredit the whole charge' [F.].

29

1. Cn. Lentulum. See c. 44.

Seium Tuberonem. See ii 20, where he is legatus under Germanicus.

2. magno pudore, abl. of circumstance.

4. senectutis extremae...defecto corpore. Note how fond Tacitus is of linking together dissimilar constructions.

5. turbandae rei publicae accerserentur, 'accused of disturbing the commonwealth.'

6. exempti, 'released from the charge.'

in patrem ex seruis quaesitum, 'the slaves were examined (by torture) for evidence against the father.'

7. quaestio. Cicero (pro Sulla 76) uses quaestiones et tormenta for 'examination by torture.'

8. rumore, 'murmurs.' Cf. xiv 11 aduerso rumore, iii 29 secundo rumore.

ulgi...minitantium, a sense construction.

robur, i.e. the Career or Tullianum at the foot of the Capitol, in which criminals were strangled. See iii 50 neque career neque laqueus; Hor. Odes ii 13 catenas et Italum robur; Luer. iii 1017 uerbera carnifices robur; Livy xxxviii 59 in robore et tenebris expiret; and the description in Sallust Cat. 55. The following explanation of the term is quoted from Paullus: robus in carcere dicitur is locus, quo praecipitatur maleficorum genus, quod ante arcis robusteis ineludebatur.

9. saxum, the Tarpeian rock, on the west side of the Capitol. Cf. ii 32 saxo deiectus. The full expression saxum Tarpeium is given in vi 19.

parricidarum poenas. A good locus classicus on this subject is Cicero pro Rose. Amer. 70–73. Cf. Digest 48–9, parricida virgis sanguineis uerberatus, deinde culleo insuatur cum cane, gallo gallinaceo et uipera et simia. deinde in mare profundum culleus iactetur. If there is no sea near, then, according to Hadrian's ordinance, he is to be thrown to wild beasts. Note that parricidium includes the murder of any near relation. Nero is the arch-parricide in Roman literature. He deserved not once, but many times to die the parricide's death, as Juvenal says (viii 213, 4):

*cuius suppicio non debuit una parari
simia nec serpens unus nec culleus unus.*

A bag was hung round the neck of one of Nero's statues with the inscription: ego quid potui? sed tu culleum meruisti (Suet.).

Seneca de Clementia 23 (addressed to Nero!) writes: pessimo loco pietas fuit, postquam saepius culleos uidimus quam crucis [Mayor]; who (on Juvenal l.c.) adds these particulars from other writers: 'Sewn up in a sack with impious animals, the impious man is carried down to the sea on a wagon drawn by black oxen. Excluded from the air of heaven and from burial in earth, the criminal is shut up, like with like, with the parricide viper, the ape that squeezes its young to death, and impious creatures that fight with their parents.'

10. exsequi accusationem adigitur, a poetical and Tacitean use. Cf. c. 45.

13. exprobrauerat, 'had thrown in his teeth.'

17. medium tempus uarie arguens, 'bringing various charges with regard to the interval.'

18. etiam si tormenta...euennissent, 'even though, owing to the obstinacy of the slaves, the examination by torture disproved his guilt.'

30

1. dictis sententiis, i.e. in the Senate.

2. more maiorum, i.e. by scourging to death. Cf. ii 32 more prisco aduertere.

quo molliret inuidiam, 'in order to mitigate the odium.'

intercessit. The Emperor had the power of veto by virtue of his potestas tribunicia. See Introduction v.

3. Gyaro, one of the Cyclades, a common place of exile.

Donusa, a small island near Naxos, either the modern Stenosa or Heraclia.

4. aspernatus est, 'rejected.'

5. uitae usus, 'means of living,' 'necessaries of life.'

8. de praemiis accusatorum abolendis. See c. 20, and Introduction vi. (VIII (?)).

maiestatis postulatus. Cf. c. 31.

10. ibatur in eam sententiam, 'the motion was being carried,' i.e. 'on the point of being carried.'

11. contra...palam, 'with unusual openness.'

12. inritas leges, sc. fore.

in praecipiti, 'on the brink of a precipice.'

14. custodes eorum, a high compliment to a wretched class.
delatores. See Introduction vi.
- genus...repertum*, ‘a tribe of miscreants called into being to the public ruin’ [R.].
- publico exitio*, abl. of circumstance.
16. eliciebantur, ‘were stimulated.’

31

1. his tam adsiduis...intericitur, ‘this succession of gloomy events was broken by a ray of pleasure’

3. carminis conuictum. Cf. c. 30 maiestatis postulatus.

5. gnarum meliorum et quae fama...sequeretur. Mark the thoroughly Tacitean change of structure.

6. tristiora, ‘a harsher policy.’

7. neque socordia peccabat. The abl. is causal,—‘he did not err from dulness.’

8. adumbrata, ‘fictitious.’

9. compositus alias, ‘at other times artificial,’ i.e. in look and address. See note on c. 1. Cf. also Thuc. vi 58 πλασάμενος τῇ ὄψει πρὸς τὴν ξυμφοράν.

10. uelut eluctantium uerborum, a curious gen. of quality,—‘with words seeming to struggle for utterance,’ atting his words escaped him with a ringing clangor. Cf. xiv 18 dicta solitiora.

11. quotiens subueniret, ‘whenever he stepped in to help.’ The subjunctive of frequency occurs often in Silver Latin, sometimes in Livy, hardly ever in Caesar or Cicero. Cf. c. 60 and 70.

12. cum arceretur. Mark the tense,—‘when it was proposed to banish him from Italy.’ Cf. c. 20.

13. conuictus cepisse. For the ‘nom. and infin.’ see c. 22.

pecuniam...cepisse, the ordinary expression for receiving a bribe.

ob rem iudicandam, ‘to influence a judicial decision,’—technical term used also in Cicero.

15. iure iurando. For the custom of voting on oath cf. c. 21.

obstringeret, 'bound himself.' Cf. i 14 iure iurando obstrinxit.

e re publica id esse. See Pliny Epist. v 13, whence it appears that one senator could make another swear e re publica esse quod censuisset.

16. aspere, 'with indignation.'

mox in laudem uertit, 'subsequently redounded to his credit.'

20. eadem poena...statuitur tamquam petiuisset. For the force of tamquam 'on the ground that,' see c. 13.

22. ut rettuli. Cf. ii 27.

23. indicio, 'by turning informer' or 'king's evidence' as we say.

25. senatu pelleretur. See Introduction vi.

32

1. pleraque, 'much,' not 'most.' ||
2. leuia memoratu. Our idiom is 'too trifling to be recorded,' Cf. Hist. ii 73 uix credibile memoratu.

3. annales nostros. See iii 65.

4. contenderit, 'can compare.' Cf. xiii 3 uetera ac praesentia contendere. Cicero too uses the word in this sense. For the syntax cf. c. 3 crediderim.

6. si quando...praeuerterent, 'whenever they turned by preference to home affairs.' The deponent is more usual in this sense. Cf. Hor. Sat. i 3, 38 illuc praeuertamur [P.F.].

9. libero egressu, 'with free scope,' ~~forderessu~~, i.e. ranging at large over a theme of stirring events and making ample room for stylistic art [N.]. The meaning seems fixed by in arto which follows [P.F.].

10. nobis in arto et inglorius labor, 'my work lies in a narrow field and lacks distinction'—one of Tacitus's many echoes of Virgil. Cf. Georgic iv 6 in tenui labor; at tenuis non gloria. In Hist. iii 13 he has in arto commeatum.

12. proferendi imperi incuriosus, 'without interest in the expansion of the empire' [R.].

non sine usu fuerit, 'it may serve some good purpose' Cf. c. 5 incertum fuerit.

14. magnarum saepe rerum motus oriuntur, ‘great events often take their rise.’ Cf. Aristotle’s famous words, γίγνονται αἱ στάσεις οὐ περὶ μικρῶν ἀλλ᾽ ἐκ μικρῶν (Politics v 4. 1); also Livy xxvii 9 ex paruis rebus saepe magnarum momenta pendent.

Ramsay has some useful remarks on this chapter:—‘Tacitus does not appeal here to a high conception of history. He takes the popular view that it reaches its highest interest in telling of wars and conquests. Even the interest of such subjects as the conflict between the Orders, and the battles over Agrarian and other laws, does not consist in the fact that they raise great constitutional questions, but that they give scope for picturesque and stirring narrative. His own task is inglorious, because he has no wars to tell of; and the climax in its dulness is that Tiberius was what we should now call a Little Englander.’

33

1. nationes, here ‘countries.’ In the best Latin natio generally denotes ‘tribe,’ and it is very often used contemptuously in metaphor.

2. delecta ex iis...forma, ‘a constitution framed by selection from these three elements.’ Cf. Cic. de Rep. i 45 ex his quae prima dixi moderatum et permixtum tribus; and 54 recte quaeris quod maxime e tribus, quoniam eorum nullum ipsum per se separatum probo, anteponoque singulis illud quod conflatum fuerit ex omnibus. Cicero considers such a constitution to be the best possible. Cf. also Polybius (vi 11) who holds that the Roman constitution of his time is the best realisation of this ideal.

6. noscenda uulgi natura, sc. erat.

quibus modis. Before these words we must supply noscendum.

temperanter haberetur, ‘might be wisely controlled.’ Tacitus makes but a poor contribution to political philosophy. His one idea is that we must study the nature and doings of the dominant power in a state.

8. callidi temporum, lit. ‘cunning in the times,’ i.e. ‘shrewd observers.’ The gen. is on the analogy of that with peritus. (also followed by)

9. neque alia...unus imperitet, ‘the Roman state being nothing else than a monarchy,'—though it was not so in form. Formally things went on tamquam ueteres re publica (i 7),—the names of the old magistrates being preserved. Cf. c. 20 quasi Varro consul aut illud res publica esset.

10. haec conquiri tradique, referring to the first words of c. 32. He attaches the chief importance to insignificant doings of Emperor and Senate, especially the record of prosecutions. He cares nothing for the grand operations of imperial government.

in rem fuerit, 'may prove useful.' Cf. c. 5 incertum fuerit; c. 32 non sine usu fuerit.

11. prudentia, 'by their own wisdom.'

13. aliorum euentis docentur. euenta means 'experiences.' Cicero has euenta nostra in ad fam. i 7. 'The idea seems to be that it is the business of the historian to select proper instances as examples or as warnings....He has so to marshal his facts that his readers may draw the proper conclusions from them' [R.].

ceterum...adferunt, 'however, such enquiries, although sure to be profitable, yet bring very little entertainment.' This is the force of ut...ita.... For the thought cf. Thuc. i 22 καὶ ἐσ μὲν ἀκρόστιν ἵσως τὸ μὴ μιθῶδες αὐτῶν ἀτερπέστερον φανεῖται.

14. uarietates, 'vicissitudes.'

15. exitus, 'deaths,' as often in Tacitus.

16. continuas accusations, 'an unbroken record of prosecutions.'

18. coniungimus, 'we string together.'

easdem exitu...satietate, 'trials all ending in one way, with a uniformity as monotonous as it is revolting' [R.]

22. Tiberio regente. rego is rarely used of an Emperor.

23. ut, 'though.' Cf. c. 40.

25. aliena sibi obiectari, 'that the record of the misdeeds of others is aimed at themselves.'

26. ut nimis...arguens, 'as criticising from too close a point of view the opposite qualities' [F.]. 'How admirable is Tacitus when he sums up in a perfect phrase some painful human characteristic!' [R.]. Condemning as they do, their opposites by too close a

27. ad inceptum redeo. We should say, 'I must return to Context my subject.' Cf. xv 36 deseruit inceptum. [C.B.]

34

2. postulatur. Cf. c. 30 maiestatis postulatus.

tunc primum, 'now for the first time.' Afterwards Domitian encouraged similar prosecutions.

3. editis annalibus. As Seneca tells us, Cordus wrote the history of his own time only,—unius saeculi facta. Probably it was limited to the reign of Augustus.

4 Romanorum ultimum. No doubt Cordus would have quoted the words of Brutus himself on the death of Cassius.

6. id perniciabile et Caesar... accipiens, 'this was fatal to the accused' as well as the fact that the Emperor listened to the defence with a forbidding look.' For the construction cf. c. 12, 26, 44.

"This was brought to ruin
the accused."
7. relinquendae uitiae certus, 'resolved to die.' Cf. xii 66 sceleris olim certa; Virg. Aen. iv 54 iam certus eundi. Contrast c. 57 certus procul urbe degere.

14. eloquentiae ac fidei praclarus. fides means 'candour,' 'impartiality.' Seneca calls Livy candidissimus omnium magnorum ingeniorum aestimator. For the genitive construction cf. c. 21.

16. Pompeianum. Cf. i 10 Pompeianae partes and contrast i 2 Iulianae partes. Pompeianus denotes a champion of the legitimate republic, and an enemy of imperialism.

17. Scipionem. He is referring to Metellus Scipio, father-in-law of Pompey and his colleague as consul in 52 B.C.

18. Atranium, consul in 60 B.C. and legatus of Pompey in Spain.

19. parricidas. Cf. Val. Max. vi 4, 5 M. Brutus suarum prius uirtutum quam patriae parentis parricida.

20. ut insignes uiros, 'as one would speak of distinguished men.'

Asinii Pollionis scripta, i.e. his history in 17 books beginning with 60 B.C., alluded to by Horace motum ex Metello consule ciuicum (Odes ii 1). Cf. also Virg. Ecl. iii 84.

22. Messalla Corvinus, the orator, wrote the history of the wars after the death of Julius Caesar. He fought under Brutus at Philippi.

24. peruiguere, 'flourished to the end.' The word occurs nowhere else. Cf. c. 1 uiguit ceciditque.

Ciceronis libro, called Cato, not extant; answered by Caesar in two books called Anticato.

25. dictator Caesar, a frequent description of Julius Caesar in Tacitus.

quid aliud quam...respondit? For the ellipse N. compares xiii 40 nec amplius quam decurio audentius progressus ceteros ad obsequium firmauerat; Suet. Claudius 16 nihil amplius quam monuit.

27. Antonii epistulae. Suetonius quotes from them in his life of Augustus.

29. carmina Bibaculi. He was M. Furius Bibaculus of Cremona, a contemporary of Catullus. His poems were noted for their rancour and turgidity.

referta contumeliis Caesarum. See Suet. Iulius 73 Valerium Catullum, a quo sibi uersiculis...perpetua stigmata imposita non dissimulauerat, satisfacientem eadem die adhibuit caenae; hospitioque patris eius, sicut consueuerat, uti perseuerauit. For Catullus' attacks see especially poem xxix, e.g. 24, 25 eone nomine, imperator unice, socer generque perdidistis omnia?

also liv irascere iterum meis iambis immerentibus, unice imperator?

also xcii nil nimium studeo, Caesar, tibi uelle placere nec scire utrum sis albus an ater homo.

30. Caesarum, i.e. Julius and Augustus. Catullus, of course, attacked Julius only. Bibaculus may have libelled Augustus also.

31. reliquere, 'left them alone.'

haud facile dixerim. Cf. c. 10 non omiserim.

33. si irascare. For the general use of the second person cf. c. 11 refutaueris.

adgnita, 'recognised as true.'

35

1. non attingo, 'I do not mention.'

2. etiam. For the omission of sed cf. i 77 non modo e plebe, etiam militibus.

aduertit, for animaduertit,—‘noticed,’ ‘punished’ Cf. ii 32 more prisco aduertere.

3. dicta, in its ordinary sense of ‘jokes,’ ‘satire’ solutum, ‘free from punishment.’

4. prodere, ‘to speak freely.’ //

5. num enim...incendo. ‘am I, forsooth, in arms with Cassius and Brutus on the plains of Philippi, or] inflaming the people to civil war by my harangues?’ [R.] ^{Are Cassius & Brutus now in arms holding the plains of Philippi & am I with them inflaming etc}

6. obtinentibus. This verb is here used in its strictly classical sense of ‘hold.’

7. an illi quidem...perempti. We must begin the translation of this sentence thus: ‘is it not the case that, though slain more than seventy years ago...?’ Cf. Cic. de leg. ii 2 numquid duas habetis patrias, an est una illa patria communis?

8. septuagensimum, round number for sixty-sixth.

9. noscuntur, ‘are recognised,’—a Virgilian use.

ne uictor quidem aboleuit. A bronze statue of Brutus at Milan was preserved by order of Augustus.

12. nec deerunt qui..., a frequent form of expression in Tacitus.

11. ingruit, ‘presses on me,’ ‘hangs before me.’ //

16. occultati, ‘concealed for a time and then published.’

This was done by his daughter Marcia, as Seneca tells us in the Consolatio ad Marciam.

19. punitis ingeniis gliscit auctoritas, ‘the punishment of genius heightens its influence.’ Cf. c. 5.

36

That year was a continuous succession of prosecutions. 1. postulandis reis continuus, lit. ‘unbroken in prosecutions,’—abl. of respect. Cf. xi 5 continuus et saevis accusandis reis.

praefectum urbis, an honorary office (merely a survival) held during the absence of the consuls at the Latin Festival. It had no connexion with the Prefecture of the City established by Augustus.

3. auspicandi. It was usual for a magistrate on the first day of office to discharge some function of the post he held by way of inaugurating it. Some trifling matter was generally selected for this purpose [P.F.].

4. adierit...in Sextum Marium, 'approached him with an accusation against Sextus Marius.' For the syntax of adierit cf. c. 1, 15, 20. ~~Request Silver Age use of the perf subj-as an assist.~~

5. palam increpitum, i.e. because the introduction of a criminal charge on this religious occasion was a bad omen.

causa exilii fuit, 'prompted a decree of the Senate to banish him' [F.].

6. objекта publice Cyzicenis, 'was preferred against the people of Cyzicus as a community,' i.e. τῷ κοινῷ τῶν Κυζίκηνῶν. Cf. Suet. Tib. 37 Cyzicenis publice libertatem ademit.

incuria caerimoniarum. They had failed to complete the temple of Augustus which they had begun.

9. circumsessi, 74, 73 B.C.

10. sua constantia. The reflexive pronoun is used, because mentally the Cyzici are regarded as still the subject of the whole sentence, although grammatically they have ceased to be so [P.F.].

11. Fonteius Capito, consul in 12 A.D. with Germanicus.

12. ficta, sc. esse.

13. Vibium Serenum, i.e. the son. See c. 28.

15. ut quis destrictior...sacrosanctus erat, 'the more menacing informers were, in a way, inviolable.'

destrictior, 'keener,' 'more ready to strike.' The metaphor is from a drawn sword. Cf. Horace Odes iii 1 destrictus ensis; also Pliny, Epist. ix 21 destrictus minatus. Valerius Max. is fond of the word, e.g. destricta censura (ii 9), reum destricto testimonio insecurus est (v 2).

sacrosanctus, strictly two words,—'consecrated with a curse,' i.e. inviolable, especially of the persons of the Tribunes.

37

1. Hispania ulterior. See c. 13. This request from Spain was probably in gratitude for the condemnation of the elder Serenus.

2. exemplo Asiae. See c. 15.

3. qua occasione, causal abl.,—'taking this opportunity.'

abl. of respect

4. ualidus...spernendis honoribus, 'strong in his contempt for honours.' Cf. postulandis reis continuus (last chapter).

alloqui, 'besides,' 'generally.' Cf. Hist. iii 32 ditem alloqui coloniam maiore opum specie complebat.

6. in ambitionem flexisse, 'that he had vain-glorious leanings.'

7. constantiam..desideratam, 'that many missed my usual firmness.'

11. sibi atque urbi Romae. P.F. quotes from an inscription, Romae et Augusto Caesari.

12. templum apud Pergamum. See c. 55.

13. qui...obseruem, 'I who keep as a law to myself....' Strabo (vi 4) tells us that Tiberius made Augustus his standard (kavóv) of government.

14. placitum, 'thus approved.'

16. ut semel...habuerit, 'though to have accepted this honour once may be excused.' But then it may be pardonable to leave accepted his honour once.

19. si promiscis vulgatur, 'if it is vulgarised by indiscriminate flatteries.' For promiscus see c. 16.

[C & P]

38

This chapter gives us a very fine example of Latin Rhetoric. 'If this speech or anything like it was indeed delivered by Tiberius, it must rank as one of the noblest and most dignified utterances ever made by a great sovereign' [R.].

2. officia fungi. Cf. iii 2 munia fungerentur. This construction is frequent in the comic poets. 'In these two places it is perhaps preserved as an archaic purism of Tiberius' [F.].

5. ut...credant, 'supposing that they believe.'

6. offensionum...non pauidum, 'not fearful of animosities.' Cf. Hist. v 14 nandi pauidus.

10. pro sepuleris spernuntur, i.e. have no more sanctity than neglected tombs. They are not shrines of the immortal. Cf. Ovid heroides iii 98 at mea pro nullo pondere uerba cadunt.

12. intelligentem..iuris, 'with clear vision of the rights of gods and men.'

13. daint, an archaism suitable to the language of prayer. Optative form quandoque concessero, 'whenever I pass away.' = 'daint'.

15. perstitit aspernari, 'persisted in rejecting,'—a construction found also in Cic. de fin. ii 107.

17. quod alii...interpretabantur, 'some explained this as modesty, many as due to self-distrust, some as the sign of a poor spirit.' The changes of construction are thoroughly Tacitean. Cf. c. 29.

19. Herculem...Liberum...Quirinum...Augustum. The allusions are taken almost literally from Horace, Odes iii 3. Cf. Suet. Aug. 71 where we are told that Augustus wrote to Tiberius, benignitas mea ad caelestem gloriam efferet.

21. melius, sc. egisse. Cf. i 43 melius et amantius ille qui gladium offerebat.

22. cetera principibus statim adesse, 'all else Emperors have as a matter of course,' i.e. on assuming the principate.

23. contemptu, sociative,—'with contempt of fame comes contempt of merit.' To despise fame is to despise merit

39

1. nimia fortuna socors, 'dazed by excessive prosperity.'

2. promissum matrimonium. See c. 3.

4. moris tum erat. moris is possessive gen.
praesentem, i.e. in Rome.

5. eius, scripti understood, which takes the place of codicillorum.

6. iudiciis, 'favourable opinions,' 'marks of favour.' Cf. Hist. i 15 iudicii mei documentum.

11. quod pulcherrimum...crederetur, 'he had attained the fairest prize of all,—to be thought worthy of alliance with the Emperor.' Cf. iii 29 filio Claudi sacer Seianus destinaretur Claudius.

13. quoniam audiuerit. Cicero or Caesar would have written audiuisset.

14. ita, i.e. following the example of Augustus.

15. haberet...usurum, 'let him think of a friend who would gain nothing but glory from the alliance.'—i.e. Sejanus would seek no political advancement. He was content with the command of the Praetorians. He had no wish to give it up and become a Senator. Cf. equitibus Romanis (above).

17. exuere, se understood. exuo is a favourite metaphor with Tacitus. Cf. c. 21. bayride, put off, take off.

satis aestimare. ‘This is not the same thing as satis existimare; at least, I can find no undoubted instance of the use of aestimare in the sense of ‘thinking.’ Tacitus always, I think, uses the word in the sense of ‘valuing,’ ‘rating,’ ‘appraising’.... The sense here therefore is that Sejanus valued at its full worth the security obtained for his family by the proposed arrangement. He gave the proper value to it, and, so to say, did not want more for his money’ [P.F.]. He refers to these and other passages: Agric. 40 magnos uiros per ambitionem aestimare; Germ. 6 in uniuersum aestimanti; xii 42 an grauius aestimandum?

19. multum superque, the only instance of this expression. satis superque (c. 38) is a common phrase.

20. quod...explueisset, ‘completed while such an Emperor still reigned.’

Far as for himself, enough & more than enough for him would be life completed while such a sovereign still reigned. 40

1. ad ea, ‘in answer to this.’

2. tamquam ad integrum consultationem, ‘as though it was etc still an open question.’ integer often has the sense of ‘open,’ ‘unprejudiced.’ Cf. iii 8 integrum iudicium; iii 12 integris animis. So in Cicero’s Letters ‘I have not committed myself’ is expressed several times in slightly varying phrase: omnia sunt integra—in integrō res nobis est—mihi integrum est facere aut non facere. Cf. ad Att. ix 2 ii quibus integrum est, qui nondum ad honores accesserunt.

adiunxit, i.e. in a second letter.

4. in eo stare consilia, ‘their deliberations depended on the question...’

6. praecipua rerum, ‘important business.’ See c. 5.

ad famam dirigenda, ‘must be guided with a view to public opinion.’ Cf. Tac. de or. 5 ad utilitatem dirigenda.

7. promptum rescriptu, ‘the obvious answer.’ Cf. Hist. ii 76 promptum effectu.

8. nubendum...tolerandum haberet, ‘whether she should marry again, now that Drusus was gone, or live on in the same home.’ Cf. xiv 44 si nunc primum statuendum haberemus.

9. esse illi...consilia, 'Livia had a mother and grandmother—Antonia and Augusta—more intimate counsellors than himself.'

10. consilia, res pro persona. Cf. c. 6 seruitia.

simplicius acturum, 'he would use greater frankness.' First then, there was the hostility of Agrippina to be considered. The marriage of Livia would but add fresh fuel to that hostility; it would, so to say, rend in two the family of the Caesars.'

13. sic quoque, 'even as it was.'

15. conuelli, 'were being torn asunder.'

quid si...coniugio, 'what would happen if the rivalry were aggravated by the proposed marriage?' For this sense of intendatur see c. 2.

16. falleris enim. Tacitus likes the sudden change into or. recta.

17. in eodem ordine, i.e. the Order of Knights.

19. ego ut sinam, 'though I were to permit it....'

20. fratrem...patrem...maiores, i.e. Germanicus, the elder Drusus, and the Claudi and Drusi of old days.

21. quidem...sed, μὲν...δέ. Translate: 'though...yet....'

22. sistere, poetical for stare.

23. te inuitum perrumpunt, 'break in upon you against your will.' Cf. c. 67 quietem inrumpere. 'intend upon you against your will'

24. excessisse...non occulti ferunt, 'openly allege that you have long ago soared above a knight's position.'

25. fastigium, often used of imperial power, a metaphor derived from the meaning of 'gable-end,' 'pediment.' Cf. xiii 17 familia sumnum ad fastigium genita.

patris mei amicitias, alluding to Augustus' friends of equites rank, Maecenas, Proculeius, etc.

26. per inuidiam tui, 'out of ill-will to you.'

27. at enim, $\delta\lambda\lambda\alpha\ \nu\eta\ \Delta\lambda\alpha$, anticipating an objection. See c. 39 Augustum de equitibus Romanis consultauisse.

29. immensum. See c. 27.

31. C. Proculeium. See Horace Odes ii 2 uiuet extento Proculeius aeuo notus in fratres animi paterni.

quosdam, i.e. 'others.'

34. quanto ualidius...conlocauit? ‘how much more weighty is the fact that he gave his daughter first to Marcus Agrippa, and then to me?’ [R.], i.e. his ultimate decision is far more important than his previous thought [F.].

37. destinatis, ‘purposes.’

38. quibus adhuc.. parem, ‘by what further ties I purpose to unite you to myself.’

42. in contione, i.e. by an edict.

41

2. altius metuens. Cf. xvi 29 altior pauor.

tacita suspicionum. See c. 5. ^{Next plur.adj. with Hist. is a very favourable} Tacitea usage.

3. ingruentem inuidiam, ‘the gathering odium’ Cf. c. 35. II | deprecatur, ‘beseeches him to disregard.’

4. adsiduos in domum, i.e. the stream of visitors pouring into his house. Cf. xiv 56 prohibet coetus salutantium.

5. receptando. Tacitus is very fond of frequentatives. He uses despecto, aduecto, appellito, emptito, mansito, queritor, recurso, redempto [P.F.].

7. amoenis, ‘pleasant’ generally (not pleasant to the eye,—the strictly correct use of this adjective). Cf. xiii 3 ingenium amoenum (of Seneca’s literary gifts).

8. aditus, ‘audiences’ by the Emperor.

litterarum...arbitrum fore, ‘he would have the control of dispatches.’

10. commearent, ‘were coming and going,’ i.e. ‘were conveyed.’ Subject litterae. Cf. ii 28 sermones commeare.

11. secreto loci. Cf. Hist. i 10 secretum Asiae. It is originally a Virgilian use, e.g. Georg. iv 403.

13. sublatis inanibus, ‘by the sacrifice of its empty show,’ Cf. xiii 8 specie inanum ualidus ‘strong in the show of qualities really valueless.’ With ueram potentiam cf. c. 4.

16. abesse...agitari. The correct oratio obliqua here would be abessent...agitarentur.

17. praecipua rerum. Cf. c. 40.

42

2. celebris ingenii. He was a well-known orator.
cognitio, 'investigation,' 'trial.'

cunctantem iam, 'already hesitating,' i.e. he was already considering the matter.

4. coetus uocesque, hendiadys,—'meetings where remarks were made.'

quae...ingerebantur, 'which often offensive as well as true were flung in his face.'

5. postulato. The verb postulo as a legal term refers strictly to the preliminary proceedings,—the ἀνάκρισις of Attic law—as distinguished from cognitio (the actual trial) used twice in this chapter. Cf. c. 21.

7. cuncta refert, 'repeats every detail.'

8. inter obstrepentes...nititur, 'amid angry clamour struggles on with strong assertion.'

adseueratione. Cf. c. 19.

9. per occultum, 'behind his back.' For the modal use of per cf. the frequent phrases per ludum, per otium, per uinum.

11. purgaturum. We must supply probra. Cf. iii 13 si recentia purgaret.

15. inclemantium...amplexus, 'clinging with all the more determination to the harshness....'

16. adulterii delatam, 'accused by informers of an intrigue.' The gen. with defero is Tacitean.

quamquam...damnasset. Cf. c. 4 quamquam sit. We have the correct syntax in this chapter, quamquam nititur.

19. in acta...non iurauerat. According to Dio Cassius, Tiberius enforced an annual repetition of the oath to respect the acts of Augustus [P.F.].

11. albo senatorio erasit. This register was first posted up by Augustus in 9 B.C.

17. The Julian law passed B.C. 17, condemned an adulterer to lose half his dowry, a third part of his property, and to be forever banished [relegatio in insulam].

1. auditae, i.e. by the Senate.

2. de iure templi, 'about their claims to the temple.'

Limnatidis, 'of the Marshes.' The temple took its name from the place called Aluvai on the confines of Laconia and Messenia. The site of the temple is on the western slope of Mount Taygetus.

4. firmabant carminibus, 'asserted on the authority of historical records and the hymns of poets.'

5. Macedonis Philippi, referring to his invasion of the Peloponnese after Chaeronea.

6. C. Caesaris, i.e. Iulii.

8. Herculis posteros, i.e. Temenus, Cresphontes, and the sons of Aristodemus.

9. Denthaliatem agrum, on the bank of the river Nedon, opposite to Limnae.

10. cessisse. Supply dicebant out of protulere.

12. plures...locupletiores esse, 'they had authorities more numerous and more trustworthy.' Cicero often uses locuples in this sense, e.g. de off. iii 2 testis locuples Posidonius.

14. Antigoni. Antigonus, king of Macedon, played a leading part in the war of Cleomenes, and occupied Sparta after the battle of Sellasia in 222 B.C.

15. Mummii, in his arrangement of the affairs of Achaia in

146 B.C.

Milesios permisso publice arbitrio. 'This reference to a public arbitration entrusted to the city of Miletus has been most happily confirmed by the discovery of an inscription on the base of the famous statue of Victory by Paeonius at Olympia, which records the whole transaction. The case was decided by a body of 600 jurors, who voted in favour of the Messenian claim by a majority of 586 to 14.' [R., after Hicks, Greek Inscriptions, No. 200.]

16. praetorem, 'governor.'

17. ita...datum, 'accordingly judgment was given in favour of the Messenians.'

18. montem apud Erycum, 'on Mount Eryx,' as it is usually called, near Drepanum, on the extreme western point of Sicily. Cf. Virgil Aen. v 759:

*tum uicina astris Erycino in uertice sedes
fundatur Veneri Idaliae.*

The Segestans, in whose territory it stood, claimed a Trojan origin. Hence Tiberius calls himself consanguineus. Cf. also Thuc. vi 46 οἱ δὲ Ἐγεσταῖοι ἐς τὸ ἐν Ἔρυκῃ ἵερὸν τῆς Ἀφροδίτης ἀγαγόντες αὐτοὺς ἐπέδειξαν τὰ ἀναθήματα, and Strabo xiv 2 ἦν δὲ καὶ ἡ ἀναδυομένη Ἀφροδίτη, ἡ νῦν ἀνακεῖται τῷ θεῷ Καλσαρὶ ἐν Πύρωμῃ.

21. suscepit curam, 'undertook the work,' i.e. of restoration.

22. preces, 'a petition' with regard to the will of Vuleatius Moschus (mentioned below).

probatum...exemplum, 'the precedent of Rutilius was allowed.'

See iii 66.

23. legibus pulsum, 'banished according to law,' i.e. by a judicial decision.

24. quo iure...receptus, 'with the same privilege admitted a citizen of Marseilles.'

26. ut patriae, 'as being now his native country.' 1.

44

1. Cn. Lentulus. See c. 29.

2. L. Domitius, belonging to the third generation of the distinguished family of Domitii Ahenobarbi.

super, 'over and above.'

3. de Getis. The same people were known as Getae and Daci. In the reign of Augustus there were several small wars against them on the Danube. Their king was Cotiso. Cf. Hor. Odes iii 8 occidit Daci Cotisonis agmen.

bene tolerata paupertas. For the syntax of these and the following words cf. c. 12, 26, 34.

5. Domitium...maris potens, 'Domitius derived lustre from a father who was master of the sea.' [C & B]

7. auus, consul 54 B.C., a very energetic opponent of Caesar.

8. minor Antonia, a mistake. Tacitus should have written major here and in xii 64.

10. Albim transcendit, 'crossed the Elbe.' This must be the upper Elbe in Bohemia.

quam quisquam priorum. Supply penetrauerat. N. quotes Cic. ad Att. ix 11 eandem me salutem a te accepisse putaui quam ille.

15. seposuit Augustus. This verb is often used by Tacitus of a mild type of exile. Merivale writes (c. 45): ‘The treatment of exiles seems generally to have been sufficiently mild. They were allowed to a great extent the choice of locality; and when Augustus forbade them to settle at any spot within 50 miles of the continent, he excepted the pleasant retreats of Cos, Rhodes, and Lesbos. He also confined them to a single ship of 1000 amphorae and two pinnaces for the voyage and conveyance of their families, which further were limited to 20 slaves or freedmen.’

16. specie studiorum. Marseilles was a noted home of Greek culture. Agricola studied there. Cf. Strabo iv 1, 5 (writing of Augustus) ἐν δὲ τῷ παρόντι καὶ τοὺς γνωριμωτάτους Ρωμαῖων πέπεικεν ἀντὶ τῆς εἰς Ἀθήνας ἀποδημίας ἔκεισε φοιτᾶν φιλομαθεῖς ὄντας.

17. habitus supremis honor, ‘honour was paid to his remains.’

45

1. citeriore Hispania, i.e. Hispania Tarraconensis.
2. nationis, ‘tribe,’ the ordinary meaning of the word. See note on c. 33.
3. praetorem, ‘governor,’ often as here in a general sense. His proper title would be legatus Augusti pro praetore.

I pace incuriosum, ‘travelling carelessly in time of peace.’ //

5. in mortem adfecit. See c. 62.

6. saltuosos, ‘hilly.’ Cf. c. 25, 27.

dimisso equo, ‘having turned his horse loose.’ ..

10. edere adigeretur. For the construction cf. c. 29. A poetical &

14. postero, sc. die. Cf. c. 73 in posterum. Poetical use:

16. caesus habetur. habeor is seldom used with inf. or part. in this sense. N. quotes xv 15 Bosporum inuasurus habebatur.

17. e publico, i.e. Terrestinorum,—frauds of its citizens or magistrates on their own community [F.].

46

1. Lentulo. Cf. c. 42.
 2. Poppaeo Sabino, governor of important provinces for 24 years, and grandfather of Nero's wife Poppaea.
- contusis, ‘crushed.’ Cf. xii 31 proeliis contusi.

Antiochus Hierax gentilis : for a crushing defeat of some Illyrian tribes

3. montium editis. See c. 51. And for the syntax cf. c. 41 tacita suspicionum.

sine cultu. incultu, 'without refinement.' Cf. iniussu; and Sallust Iug. 19 incultius agitare. See also Roby 1239.

6. militiae nostrae dare, i.e. to the auxiliary forces. 'This passage shows that the dependent kingdoms had to furnish troops to the Roman armies, but that the obligation had been hitherto enforced in a modified form' [F.]

10. disiecti, 'broken up.' The auxiliaries might be called on to serve in any part of the empire.

12. *misere legatos...memoratu*ros, 'sent envoys to call to mind.'

15. uentum, 'warriors.'

promptum libertati aut ad mortem. For the juxtaposition of dissimilar constructions cf. ii 6 *acciendi copiis et transmittendu*m ad bellum opportuna.

18. impeditum, lit. 'entangled,' 'involved,' i.e. 'dangerous.'

47

1. donec...conduceret, 'to give himself time to concentrate....'

3. Labeo, governor of Moesia for eight years after his praetorship cum legione, 'with a legion.' We learn from c. 5 that Moesia had two legions rex Rhoemetalces. See c. 5.

4. popularium, 'of his own people.'

5. praesenti copia, 'the force on the spot,' i.e. in the province of Macedonia.

6. per angustias saltuum, 'in narrow mountain passes.' Cf. Caes. B. C. i 37 Pyrenaeos saltus occupari iubet; Liv. xlvi 53 saltu angusto superatis montibus; xxviii 1 angustiae saltibus crebris inclusae; xxxvi 15 saltus Thermopylarum.

7. audentius...uisebantur, 'some with greater boldness showed themselves.'

8. sanguine...modico. Cf. Hist. iii 16 modica caede.

9. suffugia, 'places of retreat.'

10. in loco, 'where he was,' κατὰ χώραν.
11. angustum...continuum, 'a narrow summit extending in an unbroken ridge' [F.]. Cf. Horace's continui montes (1 Epist. xvi 5).
12. uis armata aut incondita. F. points out that an intelligible contrast can be drawn between forces organised after their own fashion and a mere rabble, who could only throw stones, etc.
13. ferocissimos, 'the most high-spirited.' Cf. c. 12.
16. dum eminus grassabantur, 'as long as they moved at a distance.' The verb grassor is often used, as here, of threatening motion. Cf. c. 66.
18. recepti, 'enabled to fall back.' Cf. c. 43.

Sugambræ cohortis. The Sugambri were a tribe on the Sieg opposite Cologne. They were conquered by Tiberius in 8 B.C., and transplanted to the west bank of the Rhine. The Romans found them excellent soldiers. 'As in other mixed empires it would be a part of Roman policy to garrison one country with troops raised in another' [R.]. N. refers to inscriptions, one of which shows that a Sugambrian cohort was stationed in Moesia as late as 134 A.D.

48

1. hostem propter, 'near the enemy.' For the anastrophe cf. lucem infra (below), and c. 50 Tarsam inter et Turesim.

2. munimenta, i.e. the camp mentioned in c. 47.

Thraecibus, i.e. Rhoemetalces and his men.

3. memoraui, in c. 47.

4. trahere praedas, 'to plunder.'

dum populatio...capesserent, 'provided that their ravaging should be limited to daylight, and that they should keep careful watch over the camp through the night.'

7. raptis...stationes, 'enriched by plunder they neglected their outposts.' [gaedi, C & B.]

lasciuia...somno...uino, abl. of manner.

9. *altero...ali*i. Frost can find no other instance of this sequence. He supposes that the second band (*ali*i) is regarded simply as different from the first (altero), without taking into account that there were but two bands in all.

10. adpugnarent, a Tacitean word, used of a feint, as here.

11. clamore, telis, abl. of cause, with non acciperet [N.].

12. suo periculo, dat. depending on intentus.

16. munitionibus adiacerent, i.e. they were lying listlessly along the ramparts, instead of standing on guard.

17. tanto infensius...incusabantur, 'they were cut down without mercy; the enemy taunting them with being renegades and deserters, who had taken up arms for their own and their country's enslavement' [R.].

quanto, often used without a comparative in the second member.

18. ferre...incusabantur. For the nom. and infin. cf. c. 22.

49

2. si, 'if perchance,' 'hoping that,' εἰ πῶς. Cf. xv 13 propius incedens si hostem in proelium eliceret.

3. castello...coniunctis tumulis...praesidia, 'fort...adjoining heights...fortified posts.'

5. opportune, 'in suitable places.'

muniebat, 'had begun to establish.'

fossam loricamque contexens. Notice the zeugma. Translate: 'connecting these by a ditch and breast-work (or stockade).'

6. passuum. The Roman passus was two gradus, i.e. five English feet.

ambitu, 'circuit.'

Realition 8. contrahere...circumdare, 'drawing his lines closer and closer in' [R.]. And by degrees contracted & narrowed his lines."

10. aeque quam, a Silver age construction, occurs again in ii 52. Cf. Suet. Claudius 35 nihil aeque quam timidus ac diffidens fuit. sed nihil aequa sum eis fatigabat: It was thirst however which chiefly disturbed them.

11. bellatorum in bellum. Dräger takes this as an oxymoron. It is surely better to explain it as asyndeton (with N.). Cf. the previous sentence and equi armenta (immediately following).

13. ut mos barbaris. Lanciani (quoted by R.) shows how in early Italian towns, such as Antemnae, and the first settlement on the Palatine, space was included inside the walls for the cattle, which were driven in from their pastures at night. Each family was provided with an agellus and a sheepfold.

16. contactu, 'contagion.' Cf. vi 7 infecti quasi ualetudine et contactu.
'infection'

50

1. rebusque turbatis...discordia, 'and to their troubrous state was added the crowning misery of dissension.' discordia is of course nominative.

3. et erant qui...suaderent. The meaning is well brought out by R.: 'others again proposed that they should make a dash for it and sell their lives dearly.'

4. neque ignobiles...sententiis, 'it was not the common herd only who dissented from these views.' and there were all men of spirit though they differed in their plans

5. his sententiis, the two opinions held by the party of resistance [F.].

6. uim atque clementiam...edoctus. Cf. Livy vi 32 Latinae legiones longa societate militum Romanam edoctae; and see Roby 1122.

8. disserebat, 'maintained that....' //

10. aestate aut sexu inbecilli, neatly rendered by C. and B.

// whom age or sex unfitted for war //

12. utriusque destinatum...occidere. In English we should say: 'both had determined not to outlive their freedom.' //

13. properum finem...clamitans. The sentence is designedly exclamatory, to express the agitation of the speaker; and, as F. says, the sense of such a verb as suadens can easily be supplied from the gerundive and clamitans. R.'s translation is very vigorous: 'Tarsa wished to make short work of it, and, crying out that they should have done with hope and fear alike, showed the way by plunging a sword into his own breast.'

16. oppeterent. The use of this verb without mortem is Virgilian.

17. firmatae stationes...globis, 'he strengthened his outposts with denser masses of men.'

18. ingruebat nox...atrox, 'night was falling with ugly storm-clouds.'

19. modo. N. refers to the similar omission of modo in the first clause in vi 32 Artabanus tardari metu, modo cupidine uinctae inardescere.

per uastum silentium, ‘amid an awful silence.’ For the modal use of per cf. c. 42; and for the change of construction c. 46.

20. cum circumire, a Tacitean structure. Cf. ii 31 cum Libo uocare percussorem, prensare seruorum dextras, inserere gladium. See Roby 1733.

21. ad ambigua sonitus, ‘in the face of a babel of noise.’ Cf. i 44 supplices ad haec and Hist. iii 56 ad omnes nuntios.

22. casum...aperirent. Notice this Tacitean use of casus, ‘chance’ or ‘opportunity.’ Translate: ‘lay open an opportunity for surprise.’

23. in falsum, ‘on a false alarm,’ ‘aimlessly.’ ||||.

51

1. barbari. We should say ‘natives.’

cateruis. Notice how frequently the ablative of manner is used in describing military formations. N. quotes ii 80 ueterani ordinibus ac subsidiis instructi; Hist. ii 42 comminus eminus cateruis et cuneis concurrebant; v 16 Ciuilis haud porrecto agmine sed cuneis adstitit.

2. uallum, i.e. the lorica of c. 49.

manualia saxa, the $\chi\epsilon\rho\pi\lambda\eta\theta\epsilon\varsigma\lambda\iota\theta\omega\iota$ of Xen. Anab. iii 3 17.

4. pontes, ‘gangways.’

5. propugnaculis, ‘turrets.’

7. miles, i.e. the Roman soldiers.

8. muralia pila, ‘siege javelins,’ longer than the ordinary pila used in line of battle.

pila...lapidum moles prouoluere, an instance of zeugma.

9. insignitus flagitium, ‘more flagrant disgrace.’ Cf. iii 70 insignitior infamia. This comparative form seems to be more often used in a bad sense than insignior.

10. extrema iam salus, ‘the forlorn hope.’

13. incerti ictus, ‘random shots’

suorum...ignoratio, ‘they could not distinguish friend from foe,’ failure to recognise friend or foe.

14. montis anfractu, 'from the winding valleys.'
15. uelut a tergo uoces, to be taken closely together,—'the sound of voices seeming to come from behind.'
- miscuerant ut...omiserint. For the syntax see c. 15.
16. ut...omiserint, 'that the Romans abandoned part of their fortifications, thinking that they had been broken through.'
17. peruasere, 'found their way in.'
19. adpetente luce. Cf. Livy's iam uer adpetebat.
20. castelli. See c. 49.
- coacta, 'enforced.' The verb cogo is not often used of things, as here. Cf. xiii 43 nullam accusationem ab eo coactam; xvi 19 coacta mors.
- proxima...recepta, 'the neighbouring districts were taken over with the consent of the inhabitants.'
21. sponte incolarum. For this construction cf. ii 59 sponte principis. It is a Silver age usage.
22. montis Haemi...hiemps, 'the early and severe Balkan winter.'

52

1. commota, 'shaken,' i.e. by the death of Drusus and the intrigues against the family of Germanicus.
3. Pulchra sobrina eius. She was Agrippina's second cousin.
4. recens praetura. praetura is pure abl.,—'fresh from the praetorship.' Cf. i 41 recens dolore et ira; Hist. iii 77 recens uictoria; Virg. Aen. vi 450 recens a uulnere Dido. He had just laid down the praetorship, and was hoping for the consulship, which he gained in 39 A.D.
- modicus dignationis, lit. 'moderate in respect of esteem.' Cf. ii 73 modicus uoluptatum.
5. quoquo facinore, 'by any crime whatsoever.'
- properus clarescere, the only instance of this construction of properus.
7. deuotiones, 'incantations, 'imprecations.'
- atrox, 'rigorous.'
8. tum et, 'and now also.'

9. quo initio inuidiae, sociative abl., —‘with this as the text of her bitter attack.’ Cf. i 16 eo principio lasciuire miles. For this sense of inuidia cf. iii 67 inuidiam et præces miscuerat.

12. imaginem, ‘representative.’

13. intellegere discrimin, suscipere sordes, ‘saw that the danger was her own, took to herself the suppliant's garb’ [F.]; ‘accepted her humiliation’ [P.F.].

14. praescribi ‘is offered as a pretext.’ Cf. Hist. iii 13 praescriptum Vespasiani nomen.

15. stulte prorsus, ‘all too foolishly.’

16. ad cultum delegerit, ‘chose as the object of her worship.’ oblita Sosiae. Cf. c. 19.

17. audita haec...elicuere, ‘these words had the rare effect of drawing a retort from that close-locked breast’ [R.].

18. correptam, ‘interrupted.’ rebuked

Graeco uersu, ‘by a Greek quotation,’ thus given by Suetonius Tib. 53, si non dominaris, filiola, iniuriam te accipere existimas.

20. Afer primoribus...additus. Cf. Quintilian x 1 118 eorum quos uiderim Domitius Afer et Iulius Africanus longe praestantissimi. arte ille et toto genere dicendi praeferendus, et quem in numero ueterum locare non timeas.

21. adseueratione...qua...appellauit. Cf. Hist. iii 39 audita est Vitellii vox, qua iactauit.

suo iure disertum, ‘an orator in his own right.’ ‘His claim to eloquence was beyond cavil; he had as much right to it as a man has to his own estate, as it were’ [P.F.]. So Cicero (Archias 18) appears to quote Ennius as calling poets iure suo sancti [F.].

23. prosperiore fama fuit, abl. of description.

24. nisi quod...dempsit, a Ciceronian use. It is found in several other passages in Tacitus.

25. dum fessa aetate...inpatientiam, very well rendered by R.—‘for, though his powers failed him, he was unable to resign himself to silence.’ Quintilian (xii 12 3) describes how he now saw Afer as a very old man aliquid ex ea quam meruerat auctoritate. He had once been undisputed princeps fori ‘Leader of the Bar.’ Now people said malle eum deficere quam desinere.

53

1. peruicax irae, ‘persisting in her resentment.’ Cf. Hist. iv 5 recti peruicax. The genitive is on the analogy of propositi tenax and similar expressions. design

3. mox inuidiam et preces orditur, ‘then beginning in a tone of mixed entreaty and reproach’ [R.]

4. habilem, i.e. for marriage. Cf. Hor. odes iii 19 non habilis Lyco. She was now about 40.

6. esse in ciuitate, i.e. there were plenty of nobles ready to espouse her cause.

8. non ignarus...peteretur, ‘seeing the importance of her request politically.’ F. points out that to give a new husband to the grand-daughter of Augustus and mother of the natural heirs to the principate was a very grave matter.

9. offensionis...manifestus, ‘clearly convicted of resentment or alarm,’—on the analogy of reus. Cf. ii 85 delicti manifesta.

11. quamquam instantem, ‘however pressing.’ quamuis is commoner in this sense. Cf. c. 11, 20.

12. commentariis Agrippinae filiae, ‘the memoirs of Agrippina the younger.’ Merivale states (c. 45) that ‘it is natural to surmise that the revelations of the palace, which our historians relate, are derived in a great measure from these family memoirs; and it is impossible to overlook the probability that the conduct both of Tiberius and Sejanus would be seriously misrepresented by an hereditary enemy to both.’

54

1. maerentem...percudit, well rendered by R.,—‘taking advantage of Agrippina’s distress and her unsuspecting nature, Sejanus now dealt her a more deadly blow.’

2. immissis. Cf. c. 19.

per speciem. For the modal use of per cf. c. 53 per silentium, c. 56 per modestiam.

3. soceri, since Tiberius was the adoptive father of her husband.

4. cum propter discumberet, ‘reclining next to the Emperor.’

5. uultu. ‘There is some little ambiguity as to whose looks are intended; most probably those of Agrippina. She could not be induced to alter her gloomy aspect or change the style of her conversation’ [P.F.J.]. There can be no doubt that uultu and sermone are ablatives of respect.

6. aduertit, ‘noticed.’ Cf. vi 40 ut atrox aduertebatur.

7. quo acrius experiretur, ‘to make a more searching experiment.’ Do test her more closely.

8. ut erant adposita, ‘as soon as they had been put on the table.’

10. tramisit, ‘passed them on.’

coram, ‘personally’ or ‘openly’ addressed to her. Cf. vi 8 spectamus porro quae coram habentur.

11. matrem, who was reclining on the other side of the Emperor.

non mirum, sc. fore.

si quid seuerius...statusset, ‘if he took stronger measures.’

14. secretum, ‘a secret method.’

55

1. quo famam auerteret, ‘to divert the gossip’ (mentioned at the end of the last chapter).

3. templum. Cf. c. 15. The temple which the etiarch has built condemnation of Cato, proconsul 4. pari...diuersae, ‘with equal eagerness, but differing in the strength (of their claim).’

7. Persi. The usual form of the gen. is Persei. The war with Perseus was the Third Macedonian war, 171–168 B.C.

Aristonici. This war lasted from 131 to 129 B.C. He claimed the Kingdom of Pergamus after the death of Attalus.

8. Hypaepeni, etc. The people of Hypaepa lived in Lydia on the southern slope of Tmolus. Tralles is in Caria on a tributary of the Macander. The Laodicea here referred to was on the borders of Phrygia and Caria, on the river Lycus. Magnesia is probably the one on the Maeander. The Ilienses were the people of New Ilium, an Aetolian settlement at Hissarlik. Halicarnassus (in Caria), destroyed by Alexander, was chiefly famous in later times for the Mausoleum, of which there are considerable remains in the British Museum.

14. uiuo in saxo, from Virg. Aen. i 167.

fundamenta templi, sc. fore. Concrete foundations would not be required.

15. Pergamenos. Cf. c. 37.

eo ipso nitebantur, ‘that was the very thing on which they rested their claim.’ But it told against them; for it was not thought good to have temples to two Emperors in the same city.

Augusto, ‘in honour of Augustus.’

17. caerimonia occupauisse...uisi, ‘were thought to have engrossed the interests of their cities in the worship of Apollo and Diana.’ They had no interest to spare for a new temple.

19. Etruriae, i.e. of the old Etruscan league.

20. Tyrrhenum Lydumque. This account of the oriental origin of the Etruscans is found first in Herodotus i 94. It is supported by some arguments philological and ethnological, and also by the remains of Etruscan art.

Atye, abl. of Atys.

26. Pelope. Pelops is a Lydian in Pindar Ol. i 37.

litteras imperatorum, ‘documents given them by our generals.’

27. bello Macedonum, i.e. the war with Perseus mentioned above.

28. ubertatem fluminum, i.e. the Pactolus and the Hermus.

56

1. Zmyrnaei, i.e. the envoys of Smyrna at Rome.

repetita, ‘having retraced’ or ‘recounted’.

2. illos should strictly be se,—‘had founded them (the people of Smyrna).’

3. una Amazonum, named ‘Smyrna,’ according to the legend. condidisset. The subj. is oblique.

transcendere, historic infin.,—‘they passed on’.

ad ea quis fidebant...officiis, ‘what they most relied on, namely their services’ [F.]. For this curious attraction N. quotes Cic. ad Q. F. ii 3 de iis, quae in Sestium apparabantur crimina; Livy xl 20 de iis, quorum Perseus Demetrium insimulasset sermonum; and other parallels.

5. externa ad bella, i.e. the war with Antiochus, 191–188 b.c. Their help in this war is mentioned several times by Livy.

6. in Italia, i.e. the Social war, 90–87 b.c. R. has an interesting note:—‘Among the preparations made by Rome to resist the Italians was the collecting of a fleet from cities in Greece and Asia Minor. A decree of the Senate of 78 b.c. is still extant bestowing rewards on sea-captains from Asia Minor for services in this war.’

7. M. Porcio consule. Cato the censor became consul in 195 b.c.

~~11.~~ grauissimo in discriminē, i.e. in the First Mithridatic war, 84 b.c.

ob asperitatem hiemis, when Sulla had gone over to Asia after the battle of Orchomenus.

13. omnes qui adstabant. F. points out that ‘*Tacitus carries much further the usage, very rare before Livy, of interposing, in the midst of oratio obliqua, a parenthetical or explanatory relative clause in the indicative.*’ The parenthetical clauses are found chiefly with dum. The relative clauses are generally very brief ones.

15. Zmyrnaeos praetulere. N. mentions a coin of Smyrna bearing a figure of Tiberius inside a temple, with the legend Σεβαστὸς Τιβέριος, and on the reverse Σεβαστή (i.e. the mother of Tiberius) and Σύνκλητος (Senate).

16. M'. stands for Manio.

17. ea prouincia, i.e. the province of Asia, in which Smyrna was.

super numerum legaretur, ‘a supernumerary legate should be granted.’

19. deligere, ‘to appoint’ a legatus.

per modestiam. In the best Latin modestia means ‘law-abidingness,’ ‘good conduct’; in Tacitus sometimes ‘modesty’ as here.

Valerius Naso would be sent out as praefectus fabrum or ‘master of works’ to Lepidus [R.]. e praetoriis, ‘an ex-praetor.’ Cf. c. 58 praetura funetus.

1. meditato, passive.

2. Caesar in Campaniam may possibly be right. N. quotes xiv 8 anxia Agrippina, quod nemo a filio; Livy xli 3 tum demum nuntius ad tertiam legionem reuocandam; and other passages. But his examples are mostly from rapid, vigorous narratives. So perhaps Halm and others are right in introducing abcessit or some other verb of motion here.

3. apud Nolam, on the site of the house where Augustus died.

4. certus...degere, a poetical construction. Cf. Virg. Aen. iv 564 certa mori.

causam...rettuli. Cf. vi 49 causa ad matrem referebatur.

7. sex...coniunxit, 'he spent the next six years (31-37 A.D.) in similar seclusion.' Tacitus is fond of coniungo in this sense.

plerumque, 'often.' Cf. c. 6, 9. 18. "~~I am often in doubt whether~~ permoueor num, 'I am disturbed by doubts whether....'

N. quotes an exactly similar use of perturbor from Caes. B. G. iv 14. The words which follow are well rendered by C. and B.:—'whether it is not more truly to be ascribed to himself, and his wish to hide by the place of his retreat the cruelty and licentiousness which he betrayed by his actions.'

11. praegracilis...proceritas, 'his figure, though tall, was stooping and very slender.'

13. medicaminibus interstincta, 'patched here and there with plasters.' Cf. Suet. Tib. 68 facie honesta, in qua tamen creibri et subiti tumores. R. points out that 'the well-known statue of Tiberius in the Vatican has every mark of personal beauty and dignity about it; and it would appear to have been a faithful likeness. But there is an unmistakeable look of evil temper in the bust of Tiberius in the British Museum.'

15. inpotentia, 'headstrong temper.' Cf. Vell. ii. 11 Marius immodicus gloriae, insatiabilis, impotens.

18. dubitauerat, 'had thought about' [F.]. N. quotes Cic. ad Att. xii 49 eum dubitet Curtius consulatum petere.

21. Tiberio...adsciuit, 'he adopted Tiberius himself, and made Tiberius adopt Germanicus.'

22. exprobrabat, 'used to throw the gift in his teeth,' 'used to taunt him with it.' Cf. xiii 21 exprobrare beneficium.

58

1. arto comitatu, sociative abl., 'with a scanty retinue.'

2. Cocceius Nerua, grandfather of the Emperor Nerva.

4. ferme Graeci. Cf. Suet. Tib. 56 comites Graeculos, quibus uel maxime acquiescebat; id. 70 maxime tamen curauit notitiam historiae fabularis, usque ad ineptias atque derisum. He asked such questions as 'who was Hecuba's mother?' 'what song used the Sirens to sing?'

6. periti caelestium, 'the astrologers.' Tacitus sometimes calls them Chaldaeī.

iis motibus siderum, abl. of circumstance,—'under such planetary conjunctions' [F.]

11. libens patria careret. Merivale (c. 45) writes: 'Harsh, indeed, and unreal the historian's phrase may appear to our notions, to abandon one's country, thus applied to a citizen quitting the walls of Rome to reside in a suburban retreat on the coast of Campania. Doubtless we may trace in it something of an affectation of antique sentiment, from which Tacitus is by no means always exempt.'

breue confinium artis et falsi, 'the narrow line of demarcation between science and imposture.' Cf. Tac. dial. 30 angustis et breuibus terminis clauditur.

14. egere, 'lived on,'—a very frequent use of ago in Tacitus.

15. moenia...adsidens, a construction chiefly poetical. Sallust (fragm.) has Amisum adsideri audiebat. Cf. Virg. Aen. xi 304 muros adsidet hostis.

16. compleuerit, aorist use of the perf. subj. Cf. c. 15, 20.

59

2. uana rumoris, a very frequent form of expression in Tacitus. Cf. c. 67 saeua uentorum.

5. Speluncae, probably dative, attracted into the case of cui. P.F. is inclined to take it as genitive, comparing Hist. iv 18 castra quibus ueterum nomen est. The name is preserved in the modern Sperlonga.

mare Amunclanum, ‘the bay of Amyclae’ between Caieta and Terracina. This place was deserted in Pliny’s time.

Fundanos, ‘of Fundi,’ now Fondi.

9. genu...suspensus, i.e. protecting Tiberius with his body, on his hands and knees, and with his face to his [F.].

10. habitu, ‘attitude.’

12. quamquam...suaderet. See c. 4.

non sui anxius. Cf. ii 75, where we have the same expression. It is gen. of object.

13. adsimulabat...partes, ‘he assumed a judicial attitude.’

F. compares xv 65 speciem iudicis induere.

16. modesta, here in its correct sense of ‘well-behaved.’

17. plerumque, ‘often’ (evidently here).

in praesentia, ‘at the present juncture.’ See Appendix.

19. apiscendae potentiae properis, ‘hurrying to obtain power.’

The gen. is on the analogy of that after words of desiring. Cf. xiv 7 properus uindictae; xii 66 oblatae occasionis propera.

erectum...ostenderet. The omission of se is awkward, but not impossible in Tacitus. Cf. ii 71.

20. animi, ‘in mind,’—a true locative. Cf. Virg. Aen. ii 61 fidens animi.

21. neque ausurum contra, ‘Sejanus would not venture to move a hand against him.’ For this use of audeo (absolute) with adverb N. quotes Hist. ii 25 unde rursus ausi; v 11 longius ausuri.

22. qui nunc patientiam...insultet, ‘though he could now play alike on the long-suffering of the old man and the supineness of the young one’ [R.].

60

1. audienti, i.e. Neroni.

~~peravali~~ nihil...cogitationis, ‘no treasonable designs.’

4. exceptas auctasque, ‘caught up and exaggerated.’ excipio is frequent in the sense of ‘catch,’ e.g. Horace’s excipere aprum.

5. diuersae...formae, ‘various types of annoyance.’

7. plerique, ‘many’ (again).

8. insistentibus, 'would stand their ground' [C. and B.]
So also F., who takes the word in contrast to uitare and auerti, i.e. 'they scornfully called his attention to the behaviour of his friends.'

9. enimuero, 'indeed.'

10. toruus, 'would look grimly on' [R.].

falsum renidens. Horace has dulce ridentem and perfidum ridens.

seu loqueretur seu taceret. The subj. of frequency, not uncommon in Livy, occurs often in Silver Latin.

12. uxor, i.e. Julia, daughter of Drusus and Livia.

15. traxit in partes, 'drew to his side.' Cf. xiii 2 habebat in partibus Pallantem.

16. atrox...ingenium, 'savage temper.'

17. solita fratribus odia, a favourite thought with Tacitus. Cf. xiii 17 antiquas fratrum discordias; xv 2 uetera fratrum odia.

19. promptior, 'more inclined to.' 'partiality towards', neque tamen...meditaretur. The meaning is well brought out by R.—'yet even in encouraging Drusus, Sejanus plotted how to sow the seeds of his future ruin.'

21. praeferocem, 'very impetuous.'

22. opportunum, 'exposed to.'

61

Council in AD 25.1. Asinius Agrippa. See c. 34. His grandfathers, Asinius Pollio and M. Agrippa, were noui homines [N.]. F. notes the use of two positives, due to the desire to avoid the juxtaposition of magis, or a comparative, with maioribus.

3. familia senatoria, eloquentiae celebatae. The linking together of dissimilar constructions is thoroughly Tacitean.

4. monimenta, 'memorials,' 'specimens.'

haud perinde retinentur, 'are not commensurately sustained in admiration' [F.]. are not admired as gold.

5. scilicet, 'the truth is.'

impetu magis quam cura. Cf. Seneca exc. contr. B. iv pr. 7 solus omnium Romanorum, quos modo ipse cognoui, in Latinam linguam transtulit Graecam facilitatem. tanta erat illi uelocitas orationis, ut uitium fieret. itaque diuus Augustus optime dixit: Haterius noster suflaminandus est, ' requires the brake.'

7. Haterii...extinctum est, 'the sonorous and fluent style of Haterius perished with him,'—borrowed from Cic. de or. iii 28 profluens quiddam habuit Carbo et canorum.

62

1. M. Licinio L. Calpurnio. They were M. Licinius Crassus and L. Calpurnius Piso.

3. initium...exstitit, 'it began and ended in a moment' [F.]. coepit...amphitheatro, dative depending on subdidit below.

4. Fidenam. The singular is found in Virg. Aen. vi 773 and a few other passages.

6. per solidum, 'on firm ground,'—modal use of per. Cf. c. 54.

8. abundantia...ambitione, ablatives of manner.

municipali ambitione, 'to gain favour with his fellow-towns-men.' he had neither --- nor real for public popularity uirile ac muliebre secus, adverbial accus. of description. Cf. Hist. v 13; Livy xxvi 47 liberorum capitum uirile secus ad decem millia capta. See Roby 1104.

11. procul uoluptatibus habiti. 'Tiberius hated games of all kinds; so did Cicero, who speaks of the necessity of having to attend such shows, for popularity's sake, as one of the greatest bores of life' [R.].

12. ob propinquitatem, five miles from Rome, now Castel Giubileo.

13. grauior pestis fuit, 'the calamity was all the more serious.' [C & B.]

conferta mole, 'when the huge building was packed.' | conuulsa, 'collapsed.'

14. in exteriora effunditur, 'bulges outwards.'

16. praeceps, adverbial. Cf. vi 17 famam praeceps dabat. But in praeceps is more common.

18. ut tali sorte, 'considering the terrible circumstances.' Cf. Tacitus Germ. 30 multum, ut inter Germanos, rationis.

21. noscebant, 'were recognising.'

25. nequedum...quos, 'and as it had not been discovered who....'

uis, of fire. Cf. c. 64 uim ignium.

latiōr, 'more widespread'—used again of fear in xii 43 dum latius metuitur; Hist. iv 33 latiorem terrorem faciunt.

63

1. obruta, 'the ruins' or 'débris.'

3. si confusior facies...fecerat, 'if, in spite of a face which baffled recognition, likeness of shape or age had deceived those who sought to identify them' [F.]

4. quinquaginta milia, an absurd exaggeration [R.]

5. debilitata 'maimed.' Cf. xiii 14 debilis Burrus 'crippled Burrus'; Cie. pro Flacco 72 membra quae debilitauit lapidibus fustibus ferro.

7. gladiatorium munus ederet, 'should give a gladiatorial show.'

cui minor...res, 'whose means fell below 400,000 sesterces,' i.e. the equestrian rating. For the syntax cf. Suet. Aug. 38 maiores annorum quinque et triginta.

9. solo firmitatis spectatae, 'on a foundation of approved solidity.'

10. sub recentem cladem, 'just after the recent disaster.' See Roby 2129.

64

3. feralem..absentiae, 'men began to say it was an ill-starred year, and that the Emperor's design of leaving Rome had been entered on against the auspices.'

ferebant...ni obuiamisset. Cf. c. 9 and Roby 1574.

5. fortuita ad culpam trahentes, 'interpreting misfortune as guilt,'—a frequent use of traho in Tacitus. trah misfortune to guilt ni Caesar...detrimenti, 'had not the Emperor checked them by making grants according to the amount of each man's loss.'

8. fama apud populum, 'he was applauded by the populace.' [C & B] sine ambitione, 'without respect of persons' [F.]

without perturbity [C & B.]

9. ignotos...ultra accitos, 'even inviting applications from persons unknown to himself.' strangers whom he had himself caught out. [C & B].

10. sententiae, i.e. decrees of the senate.

11. Augustus, Mount Augustus. But there is no evidence to show that the proposed name was used.

14. Claudiae Quintae. In 204 b.c. the ship conveying the image of Cybele from Phrygia ran aground in the Tiber. Claudia proved her high character by hauling it off; and her statue was set up in the temple of the Mother of the Gods.

uim ignium...elapsam. Tacitus has the accus. after elabor again in i 61; after erumpo in xii 63; after exeo in vi 49. Cf. Virgil's erumpere nubem. See Roby 1121.

16. acceptos, 'acceptable.' "numbered among the deities"

17. caerimoniam, 'sanctity.'

loco, dat. of possessor.

18. ostenderint. See note on c. 58.

65

1. haud fuerit absurdum, 'it will not be out of place.' The perf. subj. is often used by Tacitus, as here, in negations of possibility. Cf. c. 3 neque alia abnuerit; c. 32 nemo contenderit.

2. Querquetulanum, 'Oak hill.'

cognomento, a synonym for nomine; so also uocabulo (line 9).

3. talis siluae frequens fecundusque. This construction of frequens (found nowhere else) is assimilated to that of fecundus.

4. appellitatum. See note on c. 41.

5. Caele Vibenna. The account here followed agrees with that given in the speech of the Emperor Claudius on the Adlection of Gallic Senators (see E. G. Hardy in Journal of Philology, vol. xxxii, p. 79):—'According to Tuscan writers, Servius Tullius was once the loyal and devoted retainer of Caelius Vivenna, whose every fortune he shared, and when by changing fortune he was driven to leave Etruria with all that was left of the army of Caelius, he occupied the Caelian Mount, giving it this name from his leader Caelius, and changing his own name from the Tuscan form Mastarna, assumed that by which we know him.'

8. magnas eas copias, i.e. of Etruscans.

9. Tuscum uicum, extending from the Forum to the Velabrum.

66

- 1. ut...ita, ‘though...yet.’ Cf. c. 71. — studia...procerum. Cf. c. 63. a strage & procerhost informata*
2. accusatorum...infestior uis, ‘a more menacing host of informers.’
3. sine leuamento grassabatur, ‘relentlessly pursued its way’ [R.]. The verb is frequently used for ‘to go about, or go to work, with some evil design.’ Cf. iii 39 ueneno grassari; Hist. iv 16 dolo grassari. It is especially used of highwaymen. So Nero plays the highwayman in xiii 25 Caesarem esse qui grassaretur pernotuit. Cf. Juv. iii 305 ferro subitus grassator agit rem; xiv 174 ferro grassatur. For the metaphorical use cf. xiii 4 pauorum potentia grassaretur. See also c. 47.
5. Domitius Afer. See c. 52.
6. condemnator, ‘successful prosecutor’ [C. and B.]. Cf. iii. 36.
8. plura ad flagitia accingeretur, ‘was girding himself for fresh iniquities’.
9. claris maioribus, sociative abl.
11. suum sanguinem. We say ‘his flesh and blood.’ perditum ibat. Tacitus has also raptum eo (c. 1) and ultum eo (c. 73).
12. opperiendum, i.e. wait for his return to Rome.

67

1. dedicatis...templis. See c. 57.
2. ne quis quietem eius intrumperet. Ordinary syntax would demand quietem suam. N. compares Hist. ii 9 ut eum in Syria aut Aegypto sisterent, orabat. ‘Of course eius is the more strictly correct of the two; but usage is in favour of suam’ [P.F.].
5. Capreas se in insulam abdidit. Cf. xiii 51 Hiberos ad patrium regnum.
7. Surrentini, i.e. of Sorrento.
9. subsidia, ‘places of refuge.’ ‘Two small coves exist on the north and south, on either side of the modern town of Capri, which lies in the depression between the eastern and western precipices' [F.].

10. neque adpulerit quisquam. For this use of the perfect subj. cf. c. 65. Perfectly qd used in modest assertions & negations of possibility saeua uentorum. Cf. c. 59 uana rumoris.

11. objectu montis. Cf. Virg. Aen. i 160 objectu laterum.

12. aestas...peramoena, 'its summer climate, as it faces the west and has open sea around, is very lovely' [F.]

14. pulcherrimum sinum. Cf. Hist. iii 56 beatos Campaniae sinus.

16. Telebois. See Virg. Aen. vii 735 Teleboum Capreas cum regna teneret (Telon).

17. duodecim...insederat, 'had taken up his position on the names and ruins of twelve villas,' i.e. those of former owners, now absorbed into his own grounds. So F. is inclined to take this difficult passage (after Bötticher). R. points out that Tiberius had no taste for extravagant buildings (vi 45); and that the meaning probably is that he united in some way and adapted to his use twelve previously existing villas. One of his villas was called Villa Iouis (Suet. Tib. 65).

P.F. writes:—'It is not very clear what case nominibus is. In ii 16 Tacitus has the accus. after the verb, soli Cherusci iuga insedere. Perhaps the accus. is understood, and nominibus and molibus are instr. abl.;—Tiberius had occupied (the whole island) with the names and vast structures of his villas. These villas, I suppose, from the way in which Tacitus speaks of them, had demesnes attached to them, and so entirely filled up the island. Wherever you went, you were in the grounds of some villa or other.'

18. quanto intentus. Cf. i 68 quanto inopina, tanto maiora.

20. manebat quippe. See Introduction iii.

23. introitus, 'visits paid to them' [F.]

24. uelut in annales referebat, 'drew up formal reports as it were.'

25. ultra struebantur, 'people were actually set on.' Cf. xi 12 quo minus strueret crimina et accusatores.

26. celeberrimo fori. Probably tempore is to be understood,—

'at the most crowded hour of the day.' For the syntax cf. xiv 2 medio diei. P.F. says: 'in the most crowded part of the Forum.'

28. eaque...obiciebantur, 'these schemes, though scorned by them, were laid to their charge, as if they were concocting them.'

68

2. incessit. Cf. xv 37 tenebrae incedebant.

tracto, an aorist participle,—'by the dragging of a knight into prison.'

5. sextator domi, 'their visitor at home.'

7. grauis inquis, 'a terror to wrong-doers.'

8. praetura functi, 'ex-praetors.' Cf. c. 56 e praetoriis.

9. cupidine consulatus. R. has a useful note:—'The motive here assigned gives the key to many of the prosecutions of this time. Apart from any special desire to curry favour with Sejanus, every ex-praetor was burning to gain the consulship. As in days of yore, the necessary distinction could only be gained by oratory; and the only field for oratory, as well as the only avenue to imperial favour, lay through conducting prosecutions in the law-courts.'

12. modico usu, 'slight acquaintance.'

strueret dolum, 'hatch the plot.' Contrast the use of the verb at the end of c. 67. "after dropping some casual remarks."

14. iacere...sermones, 'was letting fall some casual expressions.'

15. florentis...adfectam. We have the same antithesis in c. 71.

16. honora...disserebat, 'he made some complimentary remarks.' "He also spoke highly of Germanicus & Conspicuously."

18. molles, 'impressionable.'

20. onerat, a strange absolute use of the verb,—'he loads (with abuse).'
having ed

22. tamquam uetita miscuissent, 'uniting them as it were in an unlawful secret' [C. and B.].

23. ultra, here in a strong sense,—'returning the compliment.' Sometimes ultra means as much as 'turning the tables on.'

69
ca phorium audiens

1. quoniam modo acciperentur, 'how these conversations could be brought within the hearing of several people.'

3. seruanda solitudinis facies, 'they must preserve the appearance of secrecy.'

4. metus uisus...erat, 'there was the fear of being seen or being heard or of some chance suspicion.'

5. tectum inter et laquearia, 'between the roof and ceiling.'

Cf. Appian B. C. iv 44 ἐπὶ διπλῆς ὁροφῆς μεταξύ.

tres senatores. This heightens the disgrace.

6. turpi latebra...fraude, abl. of manner.

7. foraminibus et rimis, i.e. the open work of the ceiling [F.]

8. in publico, 'in the street.'

9. recens cognita. For the adverbial use of recens cf. c. 5 recens perdomitae.

10. praeterita et instantia. Cf. Hist. iii 36 praeterita instantia futura; Cic. Tusc. iv 11 quae uenientia metuantur, eadem afficiunt aegritudine instantia.

11. quorum adfatim copia, 'of which there was ample abundance.'

12. eadem ille et diutius, 'he spoke on the same topics and at greater length.' Cf. vi 27 neque nobilitas diutius demonstranda est; Hist. i 16 mouere diutius.
as before quanto, 'in as much as.'

14. ordinem fraudis, 'the details of the plot.'

15. non alias...proximos, 'never was Rome so agitated, so terror-stricken; men kept their counsel even from their nearest' [R.]. For tegens see Appendix.

18. circumspectabantur, 'were jealously regarded.' N. quotes Hist. iv 8 uultus ac sermones omnium circumspectans.

70

1. solemnia, the usual prayers pro incolumitate rei publicae.

2. epistula precatus. He sent his good wishes in a letter to the senate.

3. libertorum, i.e. of the Emperor.

4. nec mora quin decerneretur, 'he was condemned immediately.'

5. trahebatur, i.e. to execution. Cf. Juv. x 66 Seianus ducitur unco; 99 huius qui trahitur.

quantum...poterat. These words must be taken closely with clamitans. Translate;—'as far as he could make effort with his face muffled in his cloak and his throat in tight grin.' Cf. Juv. x 88 cervice obstricta dominum trahat.

7. sic incohari annum, 'see how the New Year begins!'

uictimas cadere, alluding to the New Year sacrifices. Sejanus is the god.

8. quo intendisset...quo uerba acciderent. For the subj. of frequency see c. 60. deseritina

9. fuga nastitas...fora, 'there was flight and desolation; the streets and squares were forsaken.'

10. id ipsum...timuissent, 'afraid of the very fact of their fear.' Shuddering at the mere fact that they had betrayed alarm. [C+B]

11. quem enim diem. The oratio obliqua begins here (in the mouth of the people), introducing the reason for the general panic.

12. uerbis etiam. Cf. the formula fauete linguis.

13. uincla et laqueus inducantur, 'chains and halter were brought on the scene.' The verb is frequent in Cicero in this sense. The metaphor is from bringing on the stage.

14. non imprudentem...adisse, 'not with his eyes shut had Tiberius courted such odium.'

15. quaesitum meditatumque...recludant, 'he had done it deliberately and of set purpose, to let people understand that nothing was to prevent newly elected magistrates from opening the doors of the prisons as freely as those of shrines and altars' [R.J.]. Cf. Suet. Tib. 61 nullus a pena hominum cessavit dies, ne religiosus quidem et sacer.

19. adiepto...uitam, 'adding that he trembled for his life.'

22. intendi, 'that these remarks were aimed.'

The chain & halter are introduced.
[C+B]

// 1. ni destinatum foret...auebat animus, 'had it not been my fixed resolve—I should (and do) feel a strong desire to anticipate events.' F. notes that 'what is spoken of was not merely on the point of occurring, but did and still does occur to the mind.' He quotes (after Dräger) Cie. de qf. ii 67 admonebat me res ut deplorarem, ni uererer.

3. exitus, 'ends,' 'deaths,'—a favourite use of the word with Tacitus.

5. Gaius Caesar, i.e. Caligula.

rerum potitus est, a common expression in Tacitus for ascending the throne.

6. ut...ita. Cf. c. 66. though --- yet.

7. plerumque...adfixit, 'often, when sick of them, on new agents offering themselves for the same services, he threw over the old, now a mere incubus.'

9. in tempore, 'in due course.'

victibus

13. ut rebatur, to be taken closely with mitigauit.

14. eo aegrius...premeret, 'he was therefore all the more put out at the disclosure of what he was trying to conceal.'

15. mitigauit, 'smoothed him down.'

16. cunctationes...opperiretur, 'he might wait for the tardy vengeance of the Emperor.'

17. gnarus...coniungere, 'well aware that he was slow in making up his mind, but when once he broke through his reserve he made the cruel deed follow hard on the ominous word.'

19. Iulia, the younger Julia, daughter of the elder Julia and Agrippa, and therefore grand-daughter of Augustus. It is generally supposed that she involved the poet Ovid in her ruin.

21. Trimerum. Trimerus is one of the Diomedian Islands, north of Garganus. The modern name of the group is Isole di Tremiti.

22. uiginti annis. The abl. of time throughout which is almost entirely post-Augustan. See Roby 1184, 1185.

23. priuignos, 'step-children' here.

24. adfectos, 'the stricken survivors.'

17. "Knowing, as he did, that though slow in forming his purpose, yet having once broken through his reserve, he would follow up harsh words with terrible deeds": [C. & B].

72

1. eodem anno Frisi. Bury's paraphrase (Student's Roman Empire, p. 185) is a good commentary on this chapter:—'Against a revolt of tributaries on the northern boundary of the Empire, the arms of Rome were not so successful. The Frisians, who had been subdued by Drusus in 12 B.C., had for forty years paid the tribute which he had imposed on them. This tribute consisted in ox-hides, which were required for military purposes; and the officers who levied it never examined too curiously the size or thickness of the skins, until in 28 A.D. Olennius, a primipilar centurion, who was appointed to exact the tribute, chose the hides of wild bulls as the standard. As the domestic cattle of the Germans were of small size, the Frisians found the innovation hard. In order to meet the demands of Olennius, they were forced to give up, first their capital, then their lands, finally to surrender their wives and children as pledges. As their complaints led to no redress, they rose in revolt. The soldiers, who were collecting the tribute, were impaled on gibbets; and Olennius himself was obliged to escape to the fortress of Flevum—probably in the island of the same name, now Vlieland, near the Texel—which was a Roman coastguard station.'

Frisii, occupying the low lands between the mouth of the Rhine and the Ems, surrounding the Zuyder Zee.

2. pacem exuere, a very frequent metaphor in Tacitus.
Cf. iii 12 obsequium exuit.

nostra auaritia, causal abl.

3. tributum iis iusserat...ut penderent. For the construction N. quotes xiii 15 Britannico iussit exsurgeret; xiii 40 quibus iusserat ut...resisterent.

4. angustia rerum. The singular is rare; but it is found in Cic. N. D. ii 20.

6. e primipilaribus, i.e. centurio primi pili. He would be a praefectus under the legatus pro praetore of Germania inferior. R. remarks that to such a governor the epigram of Tacitus (i 20) would apply, eo immittior quia tolerauerat. After their successful revolt the Frisii remained independent until overcome by Corbulo in 47 A.D.

7. terga, 'hides.' tergora is more usual in this sense. But cf. xv 44; Virg. Aen. i 368 taurino circumdare tergo; Ovid Met. xii 97 terga nouena boum.

urorum. Cf. Caes. B.G. vi 28 hi (uri) sunt magnitudine paulo infra elephanton, specie et colore et figura tauri. magna uis eorum est et magna uelocitas...hos studiose foueis captos interficiunt. They were probably the aurochs, the wild oxen of Germany now extinct [R.]. Cf. Pliny N. H. viii 15 excellenti ui et uelocitate uros. F. compares the Italian buffaloes of Virg. Georg. ii 374; iii 532.

10. beluarum feraces saltus...modica domi armenta, a good instance of parataxis. The antithesis would have been brought out in Greek by $\mu\epsilon\nu$ and $\delta\epsilon$. Translate: 'for though their forests abound in wild animals of great size, their domestic cattle are small.'

13. seruitio. Cf. Livy viii 28 ut pecuniae creditae bona creditoris, non corpus obnoxium esset...ita nexi soluti. He is referring to the lex Poetelia of 326 B.C.

15. tributo, dat. of purpose, not depending on aderat. F. compares xii 69 cohortem quae excubiis adest.

16. infensos...praeuenit. We say, 'escaped their indignation.'

18. litora Oceani praesidebat, sense construction,—'was protecting the northern sea-board' [R.]. Cf. iii 39; xii 14.

73

2. pro praetore, i.e. legato Augusti pro praetore.

uexilla, 'detachments' [F.]. R. says 'veteran detachments,' i.e. ueterani sub uexillo (i 17); so also Bury. But, as P.F. points out on i 17, 'all uexilla were not uexilla ueteranorum'. The word uexilla denotes bodies of troops, detached from their own legions, and serving apart when occasion required. See Caes. B.G. vi 36. Cf. such phrases as uexillum tironum (Ann. ii 78); uexillum delectorum (xv 26); uexillum equitum (Hist. ii 11). If Tacitus does not refer to uexillarii or uexilla veteranorum, he adds a phrase such as tironum or the like, to show that he means only separate bodies detached under a flag on service.' Cf. Camb. Companion to Latin Studies § 722:—'the terms uexillum and uexillarii were applied to any detachment from the main body despatched under a centurion or higher officer to perform some special service.'

3. peditum et equitum auxiliarium. They are often called cohortes alueque, e.g. line 21 (below).

4. utrumque exercitum, i.e. his own troops from Lower Germany and those from the Upper province.

5. castelli, i.e. of Flevum mentioned in c. 72.

6. degressis. degredior has often much the same meaning as digredior, and often the reading is doubtful.

7. aestuaria, 'the tidal marshes' of the Zuyder Zee.

aggeribus, 'causeways.' limes is often found in this sense.

grauiori agmini, i.e. the legionaries.

9. alam Canninefatem. They lived in the 'island' of the Rhine adjoining the Batavi. They are often mentioned by Tacitus in the Histories.

11. turmas sociales, i.e. the ala just mentioned.

equites legionum, apparently those of the four legions of the lower army, who would be in all 16 turmae or 480 men [F.]

12. subsidio missos. Cf. c. 72 tributo aderant.

14. alarius eques, the main body of auxiliary horse, as distinct from the single ala mentioned above [F]. 'Soon all the auxiliary forces were engaged' [Bury].

23. ultum iit, a favourite expression with Tacitus. Cf. vi 36 tota mole regni ultum iit.

24. praefectorum, commanders of auxiliaries.

25. mox compertum. The mention of two minor disasters follows.

26. Baduhennae, probably the name of a goddess.

27. in posterum extracta, 'after prolonging the fight to the next day.'

29. quondam stipendiarii, 'formerly a soldier in our pay' [R.]. Cf. Livy viii 8 (Romani) postquam stipendiarii faeti sunt,

*the Loyal Cavalry,
[C.B.]*

scuta pro clipeis fecere. Contrast the ordinary meaning of the term, which we find in c. 20. ‘These events probably confirmed Tiberius in his determination to regard the Rhine as the limit of the Roman Empire; and he thought it a good opportunity to abandon the last relic of the conquests of his brother beyond that river’ [Bury, p. 186].

74

1. inde, ‘from these operations.’ Tacitus notices these two things,—(1) the silence of Tiberius about the campaign; (2) the indifference of the Senate. The meaning is well brought out by R.:—‘Tiberius made no mention of the disaster, not wishing to entrust any one with the prosecution of the war. As for the Senate, they cared nothing for loss of honour upon distant frontiers.’

4. internus, ‘at home.’

6. Clementiae is gen. probably. Cf. i 14 aram adoptionis [P.F.]. F. quotes the legend on a medal of Tiberius struck about 18 A.D. bearing on the reverse Clementiae S.C.

7. circum, ‘on either side.’ Cf. xiv 34 leuis circum armatura.

8. illi, Tiberius and Sejanus.

9. degressi, i.e. from Capreae. Cf. c. 73 degressis rebellibus. omittere insulam. Cf. vi 36 omissa Armenia.

10. in proximo Campaniae, ‘on the adjacent shore of Campania.’ Cf. i 53 in prominenti litoris.

11. eques, ‘body of knights.’ Cf. miles ‘soldiery.’

anxii erga Seianum, ‘with nervous glances towards Sejanus.’

12. durior, ‘more difficult.’ sc. erat.

atque eo...parabatur, ‘and an audience could only be obtained by intrigue (i.e. by undue influence over officials) and partnership in his designs.’

15. sueti discursus, ‘hurrying crowds are a usual sight.’

17. campo aut litore. Cf. such Tacitean uses of the ablative as medio, uicino, plano, toro.

18. iuxta, with noctem ac diem,—‘by night and day alike.’

21. male alacres, ‘foolishly eager,’ or ‘disastrously triumphant.’ The meaning of the epigram is explained by the following words. Merivale, in his paraphrase, takes male alaeres as 'dejected,' i.e. he gives male its negative force (Roby 2234). But this cannot be. P. F. has a good note, comparing Ovid Ars Am. iii 699:

coningis ad timidas aliquis male sedulus aures auditos nemoris detulit ore sonos.

75

1. Agrippinam Germanico ortam. See Introduction iv.

2. coram, 'in person' (i.e. in Campania). Cf. e. 54.

Cn. Domitio. This was Gnaeus Domitius Ahenobarbus, consul 32 A.D. According to Suet. Nero 5, he was omni parte uitae destabilis. He died during Nero's infancy.

tradidisset, 'had betrothed'

6. auunculum, 'great-uncle' here and in several other places in Tacitus, ii 44, 53, iv 3, xii 64; just as amita is used for great-aunt in ii 27 [P.F.].

praeferebat, 'he could show' or 'boast.' N. quotes xiv 53 nobiles et longa decora praferentes; xvi 32 auctoritatem Stoiae sectae praeferebat.

APPENDIX ON SELECT VARIOUS READINGS.

The textual criticism of the Annals of Tacitus, Books I—VI, is a comparatively simple matter. These books are found in one manuscript only, and that a good one—the Mediceus primus, now in the Laurentian Library at Florence. It was probably written in about the middle of the ninth century (see C. D. Fisher's edition in Bibliotheca Oxoniensis). It is generally considered to be the best as well as the oldest manuscript of any part of Tacitus. Lost for a very long time, it was found at the beginning of the sixteenth century in the Abbey of Cörrvey in Germany, and it was brought to Rome in 1509 by Cardinal Giovanni de' Medici, afterwards Pope Leo X, who added it to the Medicean collection, when it was still in Rome.

In 1515, in obedience to a brief from the Pope, the ‘newly found books’ were published by Beroaldus of Bologna (1472–1518), nephew and pupil of the far more prolific editor of the same name (see Sir John Sandys' History of Classical Scholarship, vol. ii pp. 86, 108). Beroaldus' editio princeps purged the text of many obvious blemishes. Leo, in his brief, forbade the publication of rival editions for a period of ten years. Yet we find editions published at Milan in 1517 and at Basel in 1519. Before the end of the sixteenth century much excellent work had been done on the text by Beatus Rhenanus, Muretus, Lipsius, Ursinus, and others. Lipsius was much helped by the valuable notes of Pichena, which, published separately at first, were incorporated in a Variorum edition of 1607.

To the seventeenth century belongs the work of Vertranius, N. Heinsius, and Freinsheim. I. F. Gronovius died in 1671, before the publication of his edition, which was completed by his son, Iac. Gronovius, also editor of the Variorum edition of 1721. In 1687 came Theodorus de Rycke. Ernesti's useful Variorum edition was published in 1752. The nineteenth century editors of the Annals include Walther, Ruperti, Heraeus, Orelli, Baiter, Ritter, Halm, Nipperdey, Haase, Döderlein, Dräger. Furneaux died in the last year of the century.

In the textual notes which follow, Med. denotes the Mediceus primus; Med. 1 and 2 denote corrections by the first and second hands respectively.

1. raptum ierit Pichena and edd.: raptum perit Med. | Vulsiniis Beroaldus: uulgus sinis Med.,—buried proper name. Cf. Thuc. i 61 ἐπέστρεψαν codd. for ἐπὶ Στρέψαν.

2. oreretur Orelli and Halm after Faërnus: credetur Med. (note common confusion between or and cr): crederetur Beroaldus: cresceret Muretus | diductum Beroaldus: deductum Med. For the same corruption see c. 17.

3. et quia: Nipperdey omits et.

5. constratae, ‘decked,’ Nipperdey. | Suriae Muretus: suria Med. | fuerit Lipsius, followed by Orelli, cf. xv 41: fuit Med. and most edd.

6. plebis agri Med.: plebes Beroaldus: aci Rhenanus. See explanatory note.

7. odii set Döderlein: odiis et Med.,—wrong division and confusion due to set (= sed) as often.

8. ac tolleret Beroaldus: attolleret Med.

10. maximaeque fidei Ritter: maximaeque fideis Med.: maximeque fidis Beroaldus. | prima ei Rhenanus: prima et Med.,—a frequent source of corruption. | captum Muretus: cum Med. : tum Beroaldus: deceptum Heinsius.

11. ne ins. Rhenanus before diuulgata. | incredibili Med.: neque incredibilia Haase: diuulgata incredibilia atque a. acc. Oncken: Nipperdey brackets incredibilia: but the word is wanted [Furneaux].

12. multam Med., inultam Beroaldus,—a frequent confusion;

'ductus litterarum' very similar. | atque haec Med. and edd.: alitque haec Madvig.

13. morum Lipsius and edd. : temporum Med.,—due to repetition of last syllable of preceding word, called 'dittography.'

14. uetustum Beroaldus : uetustus tum Med.,—'dittography' again. | qua Lipsius : ea qua Med. (ex qua Weissenborn, ea tempestate qua Rhenanus) | incluserant Madvig | ut om. Med. : ins. Med. 1 before auctoritate.

15. adfecit Ritter, adfcit Med.

16. accedere Med. 2: accederet Med. : accedere et Iac. Gronovius. | After uitarentur Lipsius suspects a lacuna; but see Madvig adu. crit. ii 546. | et quod Rhenanus : et quo Med. : et quoniam is accepted by Nipperdey as right reading of Med. | flamonium Med. (giving correct spelling); cf. xiii 2. This spelling is supported by inscriptions.

17. perinde Rhenanus : proinde Med.,—frequent confusion; cf. c. 20. | diductam Beroaldus : deductam Med.,—substitution of commoner word.

18. Others punctuate uictor. quanto. | more procideret Rhenanus : procederet Med. | imparemque se tanto Pichena.

19. Others punctuate patres. silente reo—premeretur. conscientia. | socia Med., which gives sosia before and after [Ritter].

20. M' Lipsius : M. Med. See explanatory note. | ut temporibus illis, C. F. W. Müller. | comperior Med. : comperio Beroaldus; but see Sallust Iug. 45. | perinde Beroaldus followed by most edd. : proinde Med. defended by Nipperdey.

21. Pisonem Q. Granius Lipsius : pisonemque grauius Med. : Pisonemque Granius Ritter,—good example of buried proper name. | Seriphio Beroaldus wrongly.

23. ubi impetrando Lipsius : sub Med. Before Lipsius the reading was sibi. | fortune Med. : hence fortunae most edd. : fortuna Halm without comment, followed by Furneaux.

24. Thubursicum Nipperdey. | sui Med. : statim Acidalius. | rege Ptolemaeo Beroaldus : recepto leameo Med.,—buried proper name and wrong division. | aut tribunis Med. not ac the reading before Iac. Gronovius.

25. deiectis I. F. Gronovius : deletis Pfitzner : delectis Med.—

a frequent confusion. | offusis Lipsius : circumfusis Haase. | multa Med. for inulta. See c. 12.

26. set culpae nescia Halm : et c. nescia Med. supported by Orelli : ut c. nescia Haase : et c. non nescia Iac. Gronovius : et c. socia Nipperdey. See Halm's note. | more honos missusque Döderlein followed by Orelli and Halm (Heraeus comparing c. 16) : more omissusque Med. : mos missusque Lipsius.

27. mota : moti Pluygers. | calles Med. supported by Orelli : Cales Lipsius and many edd. See explanatory note. | euenerant Haase and many edd. : euenerat Med. supported by Orelli.

28. utrique Lipsius : uirique Med.,—another example of confusion of i and t. | pater oranti filio comparatur Halm : peroranti filio praeparatur Med. : peroranti filio pater comparatur Madvig : pater orante filio : praeparatus Orelli. | falsa Med. supported by Nipperdey and Dräger : falso Ursinus followed by Orelli, Halm and Furneaux. See explanatory note.

30. cum, not in Med., must be inserted before Gallus, or somewhere in this clause. | Amorgum Rhenanus : amor cum Med.,—buried proper name again. | ne poenis : ne, not in Med., is inserted by Bekker. | umquam : nunquam in margin of Med.

31. iureiurando Ritter followed by Orelli and Halm : eiurando Med.,—‘haplography,’ i.e. syllable written once instead of twice. | indicio Vertranius and most edd. : iudicio Med.,—a frequent confusion.

32. uetoris, Freinsheim ; cf. i 1. | cōposiuere Med. appears to show trace of an archaic form [Furneaux] | praeuerterentur preferred by Nipperdey.

33. consciata Med. : consociata Ernesti, before whom the reading was constituta. | re Romana Lipsius : rerum Med.,—a corruption from the abbreviation re Rom. | exitu Med. retained by Halm : exitii Pichena, followed by Ritter and Orelli. No reason for change. See explanatory note. | Romanasne Halm after Nipperdey : Romanasue Med. | reperies Med. and edd. : reperias Halm after Madvig. Cf. vi 22. | nimir Muretus : animis Med. | ad incepturn Halm and Orelli : ad incepta Beroaldus : antecepto Med. See explanatory note.

34. uocabula imponuntur Beroaldus : uocabulum ponuntur

Med. | insignis Beroaldus: insigni Med. | opibus Acidalius: opibusque Med. supported by Nipperdey. | relinquere Med.

35. num enim Halm: num eum Med. | ne—quidem I. F. Gronovius: nec—quidem Med. | repentit nec deerunt Beroaldus: rependunt nec derunt Med.,—an error due to assimilation. | sedet etiam mei Med. It appears possible that the true reading is sed et and etiam a gloss [Furneaux]. | set (sed) manserunt Lipsius: et Med.,—a very common confusion.

36. destructior Med. : districtior Beroaldus. But Halm and Furneaux retain the spelling of Med.

37. facta Beroaldus: ficta Med. from dicta which follows. per omnes per prouincias Med.—a ‘dittography.’ One per must be omitted.

38. deos ipsos Pichena supposing a ‘dittography’: deos et deos ipsos Med. 1: deos et deas ipsas Med. 2.

40. inuitum Heinsius: inuite Med. by assimilation after preceding te: inuito Beroaldus, old edd. and Nipperdey.

41. non iam Muretus: non tam Med. We have had several examples of this confusion. | ueram potentiam augeri Halm and Orelli after Marcilius: uera potentia augere Med.: uera potentiae augere Ryck and Heinsius: Fisher would prefer uera potentiae augeri. uera potentiae means ‘realities of power.’

43. Limnatidis Lipsius (see explanatory note): Limnatidis Med. Cf. λιμενοσκήπος in Callimachus. | regi Denthaliatem Nipperdey: recident heliatem (haliatem Med. 2),—showing the faithfulness of the Medicean scribe. | impotentia Madvig. But potentia ‘arbitrarily’ is quite satisfactory. | delapsam Med.: dilapsam Ernesti: cf. Livy iv 20. | rulgatius, buried proper name Vulcarius. See xvi 8.

44. degetes Med.: de Getis edd. | partae Lipsius followed by Halm and Orelli: paratae Med. | delectus Pichena: deiectus Med.,—a frequent error. | Iulo Lipsius: Iulio Med.: Iullo Andresen.

45. frustra se Med. 2: frustra si Med.: Fisher suggests frustra sic. | quaestionem Ritter: quaesitionem Med. | quippe Bezzenger: qui Med.: quia Pichena.

46. incultu Med. defended by Nipperdey: inculti Beroaldus:

sine cultu Bezzemberger, followed by Halm, Orelli, Furneaux. inecltius Georges. See explanatory note.

47. conducetur Pichena. | postquam—uenere Iac. Gronovius : quam—uenire Med.

49. degrediebantur Pichena : degrediebatur Med. | simulque Ursinus followed by Nipperdey : simuleque Med. : simul equi Lipsius and most edd.

50. tantum his Madvig (adu. crit. ii 548) followed by Halm and Nipperdey : quamvis Med. followed by Ritter and Orelli, who however bracket it. | properandum Ricklefs ; properum per Haase. No alteration is needed. See explanatory note.

51. deieeto Halm after Orelli : delecto Med. : deleto Beroaldus and Nipperdey,—frequent errors. | incolarum Beroaldus : incorum Med.,—error due to abbreviation. Cf. xiii 39.

52. reperit Ernesti,—to harmonise with pergit. | se imaginem Muretus : sed maginem Med., arising from set maginem in the change of i and t, which is very frequent.

53. probis Med. and edd. : probris Petersen. | After ciuitate there is a lacuna in Med. Haase supplies it by the words qui diuo Augusto ortam. | ex re p. Med., usually read as ex re publica : ex se Wurm followed by Dräger and Halm. ea re, ‘on that account,’ Madvig.

54. sua manu Rhenanus : sue manu Med.

55. hypae penitrali tanique Med., corrected by Beroaldus. | aedem—sitam Med. | in Graeciam Med. and edd., perhaps a marginal gloss [Furneaux] : in insulam Urlichs | ieta Rhenanus : dicta Med.

56. Marsus Rhenanus : Marcus Med.

57. After in Campaniam Halm inserts abcessit : concessit Otto and Haase : recessit Ritter. See explanatory note. | num : ut Probst. | occultantem Rhenanus : occultantis Med.,—error due to similarity of termination.

59. genu : sinu Probst. | in praesentia. See explanatory note. Med. has in praesentia rum (thus divided). Ritter thinks rum due to plerumque above. Most editors read in praesentiarum here and in Agricola 39. It seems to be a barbarous form, unlikely to have been used by Tacitus. It occurs as early as Cato, and is found once in Cornelius Nepos. It is most frequent in Appuleius. | animi Med. See explanatory note. Halm reads animum after Pichena: animi se Ritter.

60. procedebant Med.: procidebant Haase. | promptior: Ernesti preferred pronior.

61. et Q. Med. has et quae (atque in margin). | quaad. Med. has qua ad (also in vi 51). So Orelli gives quaad as a possible spelling.

62. in sordidam mereedem Pichena followed by Orelli, Halm, and Nipperdey, cf. xi 6: in sordida mereede Med. | uirilis et muliebris sexus Beroaldus. | effusius Lipsius: effusus Med. | moles Ritter. | aut qui Pluygers. | perculisset Beroaldus: periculis sed Med.,—error due to wrong division and to set (= sed).

63. et par Beroaldus. | munus : manus Med.

64. ominibus Beroaldus: omnibus Med.,—error due to preference for a commoner word. | ostenderint Lipsius: ostenderent Med.

65. tulisset Lipsius: appellatum tauisset Med. (appellatum a mere repetition of appellitatum above): portauisset Döderlein (cf. Sallust Cat. 6, 5), followed by Halm and others.

66. eusus N. Heinsius: casum Med.

67. abdidit Beroaldus: addidit Med. | gnaro Beroaldus: grano Med. (showing the scribe's limited range). | oeuctiores Halm after Weissenborn: oeuctior Med.: occultos (with common ellipse of magis) I. F. Gronovius.

68. Petilius Lipsius: petitius Med. | fccere Faernus: facere Med.

69. metu (i.e. metui)—suspiciones erant Ernesti. | erat Rhenanus: erant Med. | suumque ipsi Beroaldus: suumque ipse Med. | tegens Lipsius: egens Med.: reticens Weissenborn, followed by Halm. se tegens Vetranius. Some suppose a lacuna. We have spem male tegens in c. 12.

70. acciderent Rhenanus: acciperent Med. | imprudentem Rhenanus and edd.: prudentem Med. | adisse, quaesitum Beroaldus: adisset quaesitum Med.: adisse, set quaesitum Wurm.

71. opperiretur Muretus followed by Orelli and nearly all edd.: aperirentur Med., supported by Halm. | Tremetum Freinsheim.

72. urorum Med. and edd.: taurorum Nipperdey without sufficient cause. | subueniebatur Rhenanus: subueniebat Med. |

73. castelli Rhenanus: castello Med.—corruption due to assimilated termination. degressis Med. supported by Nipperdey: digressis Beroaldus and most edd. sua tutanda. Hence Ptolemy probably introduced the bogus Σιατοντάνδα as the name of a town in North Germany (Hall, Companion to Classical Texts, p. 182). | alarius Freinsheim: aerius Med.

74. internus Rhenanus: internos Med. | degressi Med. generally retained: digressi Beroaldus. | id quoque Muretus and most edd.: idque Med.

INDEX.

I. PROPER NAMES.

- | | |
|---|--|
| Actium, 5 | Cordus, 34 |
| Aegium, 13 | Cos, 14 |
| Aesculapius, 14 | Cotys, 5 |
| Afer, 52 | Cyzicus, 36 |
| Afranius, 13 | Dalmatia, 5 |
| Agrippina, 12, 17, 19, 39, 52, etc.: (the younger), 53, 60 | Dictator Caesar, 34 |
| Albanians, 5 | Dolabella, 23, 24, 26 |
| Albis, 44 | Domitius, 44, 75 |
| Amphyctyons, 14 | Drusus, 3, 7, 8, 9, 10, 15: (the younger), 3, 4, 17, 36 |
| Amyclae, 59 | Eryx, 43 |
| Antigonus, 43 | Etruscans, 55, 65 |
| Apicata, 11 | Fidenae, 62 |
| Asinius Pollio, 34 | Forum Augusti, 15 |
| Attus Clausus, 9 | Forum Iulii, 5 |
| Augusta, 8, 12, 16, 22, etc. | Frisii, 72 |
| Augustus, passim | Gaius Caesar, 1, 40, 71 |
| Bibaculus, 34 | Garamantes, 23 |
| Blaesus, 23, 26 | Germanicus, 1, 3, 8, 12, 15, etc. |
| Brundisium, 27 | Getae, 44 |
| Brutus, 34, 35 | Gracchus, 13 |
| Caele Vibenna, 65 | Gyarus, 30 |
| Caesares, 3 | Haemus, 51 |
| Capreæ, 59, 67, 74 | Halicarnassus, 55 |
| Cassius, 34, 35 | Herculis posteri, 43 |
| Cassius Seuerus, 21 | Hiberians, 5 |
| Catullus, 34 | |
| Cicero, 34 | |
| Claudius, 31 | |

- Hispania, 5, 13, 37, 45
 Ilienses, 55
 Iuba, 5
 Iulia, 71
 Laodicea, 55
 Latium uetus, 5
 Limnatis, 43
 Liuia (i) see Augusta : (ii) often called Liuilla, 3, 12, 39, 40
 Marcia, 35
 Massilia, 43, 44
 Mauri, 35
 Messala Coruinus, 34
 Miletus, 43
 Misenum, 5
 Mithridates, 14
 Moesia, 5, 47
 Mummius, 43
 Musulamii, 23
 Nero, 17, 60
 Nola, 57
 Olennius, 72
 Oscean drama, 45
 Pannonia, 5
 Perseus, 55
 Pharsalia, 40
 Philip, 43
 Philippi, 35
 Piso, 45
 Pompeianus, 34
 Proculeius, 40
 Rauenna, 5
 Rhodes, 15
 Rhoemetalces, 5, 47
 Sabinus, 18
 Sacrouir, 18, 19
 Samos, 14
 Scipio, 34
 Seius Strabo, 1
 Seianus, passim
 Serenus, 28, 30, 36
 Seriphus, 21
 Silius, 18, 19
 Siluanus, 22
 Smyrna, 56
 Social war, 56
 Sosia, 19, 20
 Sugambri, 47
 Suillius, 31
 Tacfarinas, 23, 24, 25
 Thracians, 47, 48
 Thubuseum, 24
 Tiberius, passim
 Vrgulania, 21
 Varro, 19
 Vulsinii, 1

II. LATIN WORDS.

- | | |
|---|--------------------|
| absurdus, 65 | adflictus, 68, 71 |
| aceingor, 66 | adpello, 27, 67 |
| acusante prouincia, 15 | adpeto, 51 |
| acusator, 66 : accusatorum factiones, 21 | adpugno, 48 |
| acris annonae, 6 | adscisco, 57 |
| adfatim, 69 | adsueratio, 42, 52 |
| adfectiones, 15 | adumbratus, 31 |
| | aequabilis, 20 |

- aestimo, 39
aestuaria, 73
agger, 73
agito, 6
ago, 2, 16, 58 ala, 5, 25, 73
alarius eques, 73 album senatorium, 42
alioqui, 11, 37
ambitio, 35, 55, 64
ambitus, 2, 49
amoenus, 41
anfractus, 51
angustia, 72 : angustiae, 47
annalium memoria, 43 anxius, 12, 74
appellito, 65
ars, artes, 1, 3, 6, 13, 58 artus, 58 : in arto, 32 : arte, 49 atrox, 11, 50, 52, 60
auctor, 10, 11
audeo, 59
auditio, 11
auunculus, 75
auxilia cohortium, 5

biremes, 27

caerimonia, 64
capiro, 16
castellum, 49
casus, 50
censorium funus, 15
ciuiliter habeo, 21
classiarii, 27
claustra, 49
coactus, 51
codicilli, 39
cognitio, 52
cohortes, 25 : cohortes alaeque, 73 colloco, 40
commentarii, 53
commeo, 27, 41
commotus, 3, 52
communes nepotes, 7

comparo, 28
comperior, 20
complexus rei publicae, 7 compositus, 1, 31, 73
condemnator, 66
coufarreati, 17
confertus, 52
confinium, 58 congruens, 7
coniungo, 33, 57
conscientia, 3, 12, 19
consilia, 40
contactus, 49
contendo, 32
continuus, 36, 47
contione, in, 40
contundo, 46
conuulsus, 62
coram, 54, 75
corripio, 19, 52
cura, 11, 43

debilito, 63
deduco, 8
defero, 42
degredior, 49, 73
delator, 30
destinatus, 40, 70
destrictus, 36
deuotio, 52
differtur, 25
dilectus, 4, 46
discumbo, 54
dispergo, 18, 24
dissero, 50
dissimulo, 19
diuersus, 3, 25
duint, 38

effundo, 62
egressus, 32
eluctor, 30
euenta, 34
exagito, 12
excipio, 60
exitus, 11, 33, 71

- expeditus, 25
 exprobrio, 57
 exuo, 21, 72 facies, 67, 69 familia, 27
 fastigium, 40
 feralis, 64
 ferax, 72
 ferox, 12, 21, 27
 fiscus, 20
 flamen dialis, 16
 flaminica dialis, 16
 flamonium, 16
 fora, 2, 70
 foramen, 69
 fortuna, 13, 18
 forum et ius, 6
 frequens, 3, 55, 65
 glisco, 5, 16, 27
 gnarus, 71
 grassor, 47, 66
 habeo, 14, 21, 33, 45
 habilis, 53
 habitus, 12
 haereo, 19
 histriones, 14
 honorus, 68
 horridus, 7, 16
 iacio, 68
 impeditus, 46
 inceptum, 33
 incoho, 70
 incolumitas, 17
 incultu, 47
 indicium, 10, 31
 induco, 70
 induo, 12
 infensus, 25, 72
 ingenia, 33, 35
 ingruo, 2, 35, 41, 50
 inhio, 12
 in manum, 16
 inmitto, 19, 73
 inmodestia, 14
 inpotentia, 57
 inrepo, 10
 insignitus, 51
 insisto, 60
 instantia, 69
 integer, 40
 intendo, 2, 3, 11, 26, 40, 70, 72 intercedo, 30 interdico, 21 intericio, 31
 iudices do, 22 iudicia, 39
 iuratus senatus, 21
 ius do, 15
 ius patrium, 16
 iuuentus, 46, 50 iuxta, 1, 74
 lacero, 24 laqueus, 70
 legibus pulsus, 43
 legor super numerum, 56
 leuamentum, 66
 libellus, 27
 locuples, 43
 lorica, 49
 maiestas, 6, 19, 30, 31
 male alacres, 74
 manualia saxa, 61
 mapalia, 25
 medeor, 16
 medicamen, 57
 meditatus, 70
 mobilis, 17
 modestia, 7 moles, 62, 67
 munditiae, 28
 municipalis, 3
 munus edo, 63
 muralia pila, 51
 natio, 24, 45, 46
 nosco, 35, 62

- nurus, 12
ob rem iudicandam, 31
obruta, 63
obstringo, 31
obtineo, 13, 35
oppeto, 50
opportunus, 60
ordo, 11, 69
origo, 9

parricidarum poenae, 29
pars bonorum, 20 : partes, 40, 44 patibulum, 72
patria careo, 58
peractus, 21
peramoenus, 67
perinde, 20, 22
peritus caelestium, 58
permoueor, 57
perrumpo, 140
peruigeo, 32
plerique, 6, 8, 9, 18, 20
plerumque, 7, 57, 59
pons, 59
populares, 24
postulo, 30, 34, 42
potentia, 1, 4, 7, 21 : uera potentia, 41
praeceps, 62
praeceps, in, 22
praecipiti, in, 30
praefectura, 2
praefectus, 1, 7 ; praefectus urbis, 36
praefero, 75
praeferox, 60
praegracilis, 57
praepeditus, 25
praescribo, 52
praesentia, in, 59
praesidium, 59
praetor, 43, 45
praetore, pro, 73
praetoriae cohortes, 1, 5

praetorius, 28, 56
praeuerto, 19, 32
prauus, 12
premo, 71
primipilaris, 72 principia, 2
priuignus, 71
proceritas, 57
prodo, 35
promiscus, 16
promptus, 3 pronus, 2
propatulo, in, 74
propugnaeulum, 51
prouenio, 12
publice, 36, 43

quaesitus, 70
quaestio, 29
quaestor, 27

raptum eo, 1
recens, 5, 52, 69
refero, 14, 21, 67
regnum, 3
religiones, 16
reluctor, 22
remige, cum ualido, 5
repeto, 4, 19, 20
rerum potitus, 71
res publica, 19
robur, 29
rogo legem, 16
ruo, 23

sacrosanctus, 36
saeuio, 1, 20
saltuosus, 45
saltus, 25, 27, 47, 73
saxum, 29
scelus, 10
secretum, 3, 41, 57 sector, 1
secus (i), 5, 8
secus (ii), 62
senatu pello, 31

- sententia, 64
 sententiam, eo in, 30
 sepono, 44
 seruitia, 27
 sestertium uiciens, 16 seuere, 2
 simplicius, 40
 singillatim, 20 sinus, 5
 societas equitum, 6
 socors, 39
 sordes, 52
 spargo, 12 species, 6 spectatus, 63
 statio, 50
 stipatores, 25
 stipendiarii, 20, 73
 subsidia, 67
 suffectus, 16
 suffugia, 47
 suo iure, 52
 tegens, 12, 69
- tempestas, 14
 tempore, in, 71
 toga picta, 26
 tormenta, 25
 traho, 64, 70
 tribunus, 27
 tristis, 31, 71
 triumphalia, 18, 23, 26, 44:
 triumphi insignia, 45
 tumulus, 49
 turbo, 1
 turmae sociales, 73
- uastitas, 70
 uallum, 2
 uastum silentium, 50
 uectigales pecuniae, 6
 uexillum, 73
 uigeo, 1, 20
 uis, 66 : uis publica, 13
 ultro, 64, 67, 68
 urus, 72
 usus uitae, 30

III. GRAMMAR.

CASES:

Accusative:

- Cognate (including adverbial acc.), 13, 27, 40, 60
 Description, 62
 Respect, 16
 With adsideo, 58
 ,, elabor, 64
 ,, fungor, 38
 ,, praesideo, 5, 72
 With passive verbs, 28, 50

Genitive:

- After adjectives, 3, 12, 21, 33, 34, 38, 65, 72
 After participles, 1, 7, 38
 ,, neuter pl. adjectives, 5, 6, 50, 59, 67

CASES:

Genitive (cont.):

- After neuter sing. adjectives, 71
 Definition, 2
 Objective, 12, 19, 34, 59
 Partitive, 4, 10, 60
 Possessor, 11, 29
 Quality, 14, 31
 Thing in point of which, 7, 21, 34, 52, 53
 Words denoting accusation, 11, 21, 29, 30, 31, 40, 42, 53

Dative:

- Depending on praefectus, 1
 ,, induco, 14
 ,, intentus, 48

CASES :Dative (cont.) :

- Person concerned, 4
Possessor, 1, 54
Purpose, 72, 73

Ablative :

- Absolute (impersonal), 21, 70
Cause, 12, 17, 23, 28, 31, 37, 48, 72
Circumstance, 29, 30, 58
Description, 4, 52
Instrument, 3 : (extended use), 12
Manner, 28, 48, 51, 62, 69
Place, 4, 74
Place whence, 5
Pure ablative, 52
Respect, 5, 36
Sociative, 1, 15, 38, 52, 58, 66
Time, 14, 45, 67 : (within which), 71

Locative :

- animi*, 59
domi, 68

VERBS :Conditional sentences :

- Noteworthy, 9, 30, 64, 71

Imperfect :

- Force of, 30, 31, 49
In conditional sentences, 30, 64, 71

Infinitive :

- After adjective, 52
Historic, 12, 56 : with cum, 50
Nominative and infinitive, 22, 31, 48
Poetical construction, 29, 57

Middle use :

- Accingor*, 66

Gerund :

- Ablative, 2, 15
Genitive, 2

VERBS (cont.) :Gerundive :

- Accusative, 40
Genitive, 32, 34, 59

Supine :

- In -um, 1, 66, 73
In -u, 32, 40

Participle :

- Future (in final sense), 46
Idiomatic use, 19, 26, 34, 44

Subjunctive :

- Concessive, 33, 37, 40
Final, 8, 19, 47
Frequentative, 31, 60, 70
Oblique, 56
Optative, 38
Perfect subjunctive (mainly Silver Latin usages), 3, 5, 6, 10, 15, 20, 32, 33, 34, 36, 37, 39, 51, 54, 58, 61
Second person (general use), 34
With quamquam, 4, 5, 17
,, quasi, 19
,, si (in final sense), 49
,, tumquam, 10, 13, 21
,, ut after inbeo, 72

ORATIO OBLIQUA :

- Noteworthy, 7, 10, 15, 50, 56, 70

PREPOSITIONS (idiomatic uses) :

- a*, ab, 25
ad, 40, 50, 64
aduersum, 11 apud, 64
e, ex, 5, 6, 31
in (with acc.), 33
penes, 1, 16
per, 42, 50, 51, 54, 62
sub (with acc.), 63
super, 11, 44

ADVERBS AND CONJUNCTIONS :

- aequem quam*, 49
alioqui, 11, 37
at enim, 40

ADVERBS AND CONJUNCTIONS

(cont.):

- ceterum*, 3, 33
eoram, 54, 75
eum maxime, 27
enimvero, 60 intra, 6 iuxta, 1, 74
male, 74
mox, 1, 13
pariter, 2
perinde, 20, 61
plerumque (Silver Age use), 7, 57, 59, 71 procul, 2
quamquam (with subj.), 4, 5, 17, 59 : with adj., 53
quamuis (with adj.), 11
quandoque, 28, 39
quasi, 23
quid aliud quam..., 34
quin, 6
recens, 5, 69
scilicet, 61
secus, 8
sponte (with gen.), 7, 51
tamquam, 10, 13, 31, 40 ultra, 64, 67, 68

ADVERBS AND CONJUNCTIONS

(cont.):

- ut...ita*, 33, 66
ut (idiomatic), 62

FIGURES OF SPEECH :

- Abstract for concrete, 11
 Anaphora (rhetorical repetition), 15, 49
 Anastrophe (with preposition), 5, 8, 16, 48, 50
 Asyndeton, 49
 Attraction, 56, 59
 Ellipse of sum, 12, 22, 33, 54
 .., other verbs, 57
 .., pars, c. 20 : uxor, c. 11
 Ellipse of pronoun after propter, c. 54
 Hendiadys, 6, 23, 42
 Parataxis, 72
 Parenthesis, 55
 Res pro persona, 40
 Sense-construction, 29
 Variation of expression in corresponding clauses, 9, 20, 28, 31, 46, 61
 Zeugma, 26, 49, 51

9-

