AN IRISH-ENGLISH DICTIONARY,

INTENDED FOR THE USE OF STUDENTS AND TEACHERS OF IRISH.

“Est quidem lingua Hibernica, et elegans cum primis, et opulenta; sed ad eam isto modo excolendam, (sicuti reliquas fere Europæ linguas vernaculas intra hoc sæculum excultas videmus) nondum extitit hactenus qui animum adjiceret; nullum adhuc habemus hujus linguæ Lexicon, sive per se factum, sive cum aliâ linguâ comparatum.”—*Epist. PREFACE.

THE want of a Dictionary as a Manual for Students of the Irish Bible has been long felt; as those hitherto published not only omit many words which occur in the Irish Scriptures, but are deficient in some of the essentials of a good Dictionary, not giving the inflections and genders of nouns, the comparisons of adjectives, or the roots and infinitives of verbs.

This want having become still more apparent to me, when I entered on the discharge of my duties as Professor of the Irish Language in the University of Dublin, I suggested to the Committee of the Irish Society the propriety of publishing a new Dictionary.—My suggestion was at once attended to, but the execution of the design proceeded slowly, until the work was expedited by the liberal assistance and hearty co-operation of the University Auxiliary Association, whose peculiar province it seemed to be, to foster such an undertaking.

The superintendence of this work having been intrusted to me, I undertook it with pleasure, hoping thereby to facilitate the study of a language which is still the vernacular tongue of between two and three millions of the Irish people. Anxious as I have been to make the work as complete as possible, it is not without considerable diffidence that I now bring it before the public, in as much as the labour and superintendence that I wished to have bestowed upon it, have been too often broken in upon and restricted by many pressing avocations of a Collegiate, Ministerial, and Missionary nature. It is hoped, however, that imperfect as it may be, as a Dictionary for general purposes, it will be found by those, at least, for whom it has been compiled, to be an improvement on the Dictionaries already published. In addition to the inflections, genders, &c. given in the present work, the student will find Scripture references attached to those words that occur in the Bible, which will enable him to compare them in their various relative connexions, and to observe their idiomatic use.

For antiquarian and philological purposes a complete Thesaurus of the Language is still a desideratum: such a work, besides requiring too much time and involving too large an expenditure of money, was not comprehended in the simple but important object contemplated by the Irish Society, and the University Association, which was to promote the knowledge of the Irish Language amongst the Divinity Students, and also to furnish the Masters employed by the Irish Society with a cheap and useful Manual in teaching their countrymen to read “in their own tongue the wonderful works of God.”

I would here acknowledge, with pleasure, the efficient services rendered me in the details of this work, by the persons engaged for that purpose. Nor would I omit to notice the valuable assistance afforded me, throughout the progress of the work, by Mr. Robert Maguire, Vice-Principal and Resident Master of the Connaught Irish Missionary School, Ballinasloe.

With these few requisite explanations the present work is submitted to the public, in the humble trust that it may prove instrumental, under the Divine blessing, in spreading the knowledge of God's word, among those of our countrymen, who speak the Irish Language.

The Reader will please to observe, that after nouns substantive the genitive case singular and nominative plural are given; after nouns adjective the comparative degree, and after verbs the infinitive mood. It may be necessary likewise to apprise the Reader that the usual mode of giving the verb in the indicative mood present tense, is departed from in this Dictionary, and that the imperative mood, (which is the root,) has been substituted for it.
