LAURISTON CASTLE
LIBRARY ACCESSION

To the MOST HONOURABLE,
WILLIAM
Marquis of LOTHIAN,
 PRESIDENT;

A N D s p

Remainent, Most Noble, Right Honourable, Reverend and Charitable Members of the SOCIETY in Scotland, for propagating Christian Knowledge.

AMONGST the many wise Purposes, for which particular Societies have been institute, none can be of a higher Value, than the great and the good End proposed by the Royal Letters patent, constituting you into a Body Politick, for propagating Christian Knowledge; and it deserves Encouragement, you not only contributing of your own Substance, but also giving so much of your Time, in attending the Service of the Society gratis, is highly Praise-worthy, and you will not want your Reward.

IT seems to have been reserved for you, to be the happy Instruments of bringing about the Reformation of the Highlands and Islands of Scotland, diverse Places of which were remote from the Means of obtaining Instruction; and indeed, when we consider the Situation of the Inhabitants, their Ignorance, their Inclinations to follow the Customs, Fashions and Superstition of their Forefathers, the Number of Popish Emissaries in many Places of these Countries; and add to these, their Way of Life, the unfrequented Passes, and the Distance of their Houses from one another, together with innumerable other Difficulties, one could not think, but, that an Attempt to reform them, would be a very arduous Task, to be brought about, even by the most probable Means.

BUT great and generous Spirits, Lovers of Religion and their Country, have nobler Aims than to be discouraged from attempting their Duty. Noble publick spirited Virtue is their peculiar Care, and the more free, great, and disinterested it appears, the liker it is to its Author, and consequently may expect the greater Share of Divine Assistance.

FROM a Perswasion of the Truth of these excellent Principles, did you, of this illustrious Society, proceed to form your Plan: You, no Doubt, foresaw the Difficulties and Discouragements which your pious Design would be attended with, and did meet with at your Beginning; yet still you hop'd they might be surmounted: And tho' all the good Effects of your Endeavours could not fully appear at first, yet you might expect that they would, by GOD's Blessing, afterwards appear; and how far your Hopes were right founded, the present Situation of your Schools, their blessed Success, will justify to the World; and, for the Satisfaction of all who are ignorant thereof, I refer to the printed State of the Society, and Rules of Management.

I could with Pleasure enlarge on the flourishing Condition your Schools are now in in many Places, I could they tell the almost miraculous Change made upon the Tempers and Lives of many of the Inhabitants, and could testify how much they are civilized, and happier than formerly; but this is not proper for me to expatiate on in this Essay, my chief Business here is, to shew how much this Galic and English Vocables may have a Tendency to further the Society's Design.

DEDICATION.

THE Instruction of the Youth in the English Language, is thought necessary to promote the charitable Purpose of this Society, and to make these, who can speak only Galic, more useful Members in the Commonwealth ; and it is certain, that if this were to be carried on, by teaching from Books intirely English, without any Mixture of the Mother-Tongue, it would not be so speedily got done.

I know, that by your Orders, we your Schoolmasters are not to carry our Scholars forward in Reading, but as they understand what they read in English, and most reasonable it is ; but then, 'tis a great Task both to Master and Scholars, and takes long Time ; whereas, we can oblige our Scholars to get these Vocables by Heart, as is done in Latin Schools, which will very much further them in their Progress, and also spread the English Language thro' the Country, and make these young Ones more useful the sooner, as Servants at Home, and also when they come Abroad to the Lowlands, and be employed in the Navy, or Army, or in any other Service in the Commonwealth.

IT is well known, that the Method of teaching any Language by Books, not written in Peoples own Language, has been very uneasy to Youth, and discouraging to their Endeavours, in the Prosecution of their Studies ; whereas a regular Vocables in both Languages, put in their Hand, is a great Help, not only to the Masters and the Scholars themselves, but also to these with whom they converse, and it makes the English Language to spread the more quickly.

I therefore presume so far, as to offer the following Galic English Vocabulary to your Protection, and the rather, that such an Undertaking being first suggested in your Honourable Society itself, and by you recommended to the then Presbytery of Lorn, now that of Mull, who laid it on me to prepare such a Vocables for the Use of your Schools, which is certainly one good Mean to carry on

on the glorious End of your Erection, as I know by Experience in the Post I serve you in, I did cordially undertake to give my Assistance therein, in order to introduce the English Language over the whole Highlands and Islands of Scotland, and have executed this Work with all the Care I could: I have followed the Method of the most approved Vocabularies, and rang'd the Words in a natural Order, have added many Words, particularly such as relate to Divinity, that the Youth, and others in the Highlands and Islands, may the more readily learn the first Principles of Christian Knowledge, in an easy and familiar Way. And tho' I was brought up with the Galic Language, as my Mother-Tongue, yet I thought fit, to lay this my Performance before Reverend Ministers of the Presbyteries of Mull and Lorn, who may be presumed to understand the Galic Language, as well as many others, and they having revised the same, have approuen thereof. And if any who are known in the Galic Language, shall discover any Errors, wrong Syllabifications, Defects or Omissions, which may happen in transcribing, thro' my Absence, and not overseeing the Press, they may take Notice thereof, and the same may be amended in another Impression; this being the first of this Kind, that I know of, I commit to your Patronage and Use.

IF this Attempt of mine shall contribute to advance your good and pious Design, and if it shall be esteemed useful by your Honourable Body; and if my honest Endeavours are favourably interpreted, it will be a great Pleasure to me, and shall always be my Care and Study, how best I can to deserve the Continuance of your Favour, which I esteem very much; and to bear, in my Station, the Name and Character of being

Your most devoted,
most humble,

and obedient Servant.

ALEXANDER M'DONALD.

THE Author's Absence from the Press, and the Difficulty of reading his Manuscript, together with the Want of a constant Corrector, who understood the Galic Language, have been the Occasion of several Errata's in this Vocabulary; which, 'tis hoped, the Remarks of the Ministers and School-Masters, &c. conversant in these Matters, to whose Hands this Treatise may come, will enable us to correct in the next Edition. And here we cannot also but acquaint the Reader, that all or most of the Verbs in this Vocabulary, from Page 143, to Page 162, are expressed, in the Galic, by single Words; tho' our Author, generally, expresses them by a needless Circumlocution.

INTRODUCTION.

NATIONS by nature situated in the midst of the world, whatever their origin be, if they make any figure, and become considerable in peace or war, have their history, either by their own writers or those of other countries, transmitted to posterity ; whilst the actions of people more remote, though perhaps not inferior in power, nor less considerable in peace, are lost in the oblivion of time, and their name and language almost annihilated or extinct. Of the latter sort is the Celtic nation. Situated early west of Greece and Rome, their learning and history, such powerful rivals having sprung up to the east of them, either remained with themselves, or emigrated from the continent to Britain and the adjacent islands.

Greece, at one time, subjecting the East, and Rome afterwards becoming mistress both of the East and West, the Galic power either decreased or retreated, and, in room of Galic, Roman learning succeeded. Rome, like every other great and wealthy state, by its own weight and unwieldiness, dropt into non-existence ; and now its language lives only in books. An inundation of Barbarians from the northern parts overwhelmed the European continent. Letters, as affrighted, fled to the Hebrides and Ireland for an asylum, where they flourished for some centuries.

Saxon innovation, however, both in the northern and southern parts of Britain, proved fatal to the Galic power and language. The Cambrian and the Galic, formerly the same, but now different dialects of the Celtic, retreated, the one into Wales, and the other into the Highlands and western parts of Scotland. At the revival of letters, and afterwards at the Reformation in religion, the Galic, being unfortunately the provincial language of but a part of Scotland, and having ceased to be fashionable at court, did not partake of the advantages that other languages derive from the invention of printing. Under these disadvantages, however, it still is spoken with much purity, on a great part of the continent and islands of Scotland, and exists, at this day, one of the greatest living monuments of antiquity.

The human mind, with great longing, looks back into the past, less interested in many particulars of the present, which it overlooks, and of the future, which it enquires not after. The actions and connections, the fortune and habitations of our ancestors, the fields they walked on, their prudent conduct, and even foibles, we delight to hear recited, with an interested attention. The fields on which Cæsar, Alexander, and Fingal fought their battles ;
the

the ruins of antient Rome, Carthage, Athens, or Palmyra ; the contents of Herculaneum, a Grecian temple, an Egyptian pyramid, or Druidical circle ; inspire the mind of every visitant with the ardent enthusiasm of inquiry, and a multitude of sorrowful thoughts on the instability of the highest temporal grandeur, which, attended by a pleasing melancholy, leaves the mind calmly pensive, and gently perplexed. But when I look back into the former times of the Gael, whose history a native might be supposed more immediately fond of, finding it so much involved in obscurity, or suppressed and obliterated by the policy of a neighbouring monarch, I could sit down and weep over its fall, execrating the policy of usurping invaders, ever destructive to letters, humanity, and its rights.

There are not, however, wanting, at this day, proofs sufficient to shew the Gael were once a very considerable people. As late as the Roman invasion, all that part of Britain north of the Tweed and Solway Frith, with several counties of South Britain, and all Ireland, with the adjacent islands, was inhabited by the Gael. When the Romans retired, and ceased to be a people, other invaders infested their coasts. The Danes, at different times, either invaded or conquered different parts of Britain, and as often were repulsed. The Saxons, however, having gained a settlement on the eastern coasts of South and North Britain, the Gael by degrees retreated to the north and western parts of Albion, as their invaders, the Scotti of the Low Countries, gained ground.

The

The different kingdoms of England, after some time, uniting and forming one great monarchy, became too powerful for the inhabitants of the Low Countries of Scotland, and obliged the Gael and the Gaill, or the strangers of the Low Countries, for the general security, likewise to become one, in opposition to the English. The seat of government, which fled before the Romans to the west and the islands, where the Palladium had hitherto remained secure, at this period having no enemy north of the Tweed, was removed to Scone, afterwards to Dunfermling, thence to Edinburgh, and at last is arrived at Westminster. The Kings of Scotland, with the court, now residing in those parts where a dialect of the Saxon was spoken, and having in times of peace greater intercourse with the English, the Scots at length became the court language. From this period we may date the decline of the Galic.

All charters, deeds, records, and laws were now written in Latin or Scots. And the monasteries being pillaged by Edward, whatever was valuable in literature was entirely lost. Ireland, which hitherto was subjected by no foreign lord, nor distressed by the encroachments of a neighbouring state, except some temporary invasions by the Danes, quietly enjoyed the use of its laws, language, and liberties. It was at this juncture that the Irish Seanchies and annalists (when the Scots having thrown off their extorted allegiance to England, their annals and records being irrecoverably destroyed by Edward, wished to have some account of their own origins)

gin) invented their hyperbolic and incredible Milesian expedition from Egypt and Spain to Ireland, and thence to Scotland by the promontories of Gal-loway and Ceantire. Fordun, having no other materials, at once adopted this system, which gained universally in Scotland, until the ingenious Mr Macpherson published his Introduction to the History of Great Britain and Ireland. Whilst Roman learning, by the medium of a dialect of the Saxon, now flourished in Scotland, the Galic and Roman in some degree grew together in Ireland, which, for some centuries, was deemed the greatest school for learning in Europe. There letters and learned men, from all countries, found a secure retreat and asylum. Its happy situation, however, did not perpetuate these blessings. Ireland was invaded by the Danes, and, in a subsequent age, made subject to the Kings of England. Though there were English colonies in Ireland, the Gael of that country enjoyed their own laws and customs till the reigns of Elizabeth and James I. when the English laws were universally established. Then, for the first time, the Galic ceased to be spoken by the chiefs of families, and at court; and English schools were erected, with strict injunctions, that the vernacular language should no longer be spoken in these seminaries. This is the reason why the Iberno-Galic has more MSS.
and books than the Caledonian. In Scotland there has been a general destruction of ancient records and books, which Ireland escaped. It enjoyed its own laws and language till a later date, whilst the Scots-

English very early became the established language in North Britain.

In this situation I found the Galic, with few books, and fewer MSS. in the living voice of many thousands who entirely neglected it. The first Galic printed book ever known in Scotland, is the Irish translation of the Bible and New Testament. It underwent two impressions, one in the Irish, and the other in the Roman letter, but is now to be met with only in the libraries of the curious. Though the Bible be the common book of Christians, and to be met with in the language of every Protestant country, yet in Ireland and the Highlands of Scotland, it is at this day a curiosity. Notwithstanding that one-third of the ministers of the Church of Scotland, since the Reformation, daily preached in Galic, so little zeal for their own language prevailed, that the Bible is not yet translated; and it is within these ten years the New Testament has been attempted by one of their ministers. The Confession of Faith, and the Psalms in metre, both imitations of the Irish dialect, have been translated by the Synod of Argyle; and since, there have appeared three collections of songs and poems, all of which, though there be merit in the composition, are, however, wretchedly orthographied. By Mr Macdonald there has been a Vocabulary published at the expence of the Society for propagating Christian Knowledge in the Highlands, in which most things are expressed by circumlocution.

Mr Macfarlane, late minister at Killinvir, Argyleshire, translated Baxter's Call to the Unconverted. He understood the Galic well, and was a Grammarian; but his poetry is more forced than natural. Had others, however, been equally zealous, the language would have had many books, and been better understood by those who every day speak it. But at present I much doubt whether there be four men in Scotland that would spell one page the same way; for it has hitherto been left to the caprice and judgment of every speaker, without the steadiness of analogy or direction of rules. The taste, at this day, of the clergy, a lettered and respectable order, is to understand the English, content with what Galic enables them to translate a sermon they originally wrote in English. And although they are obliged to speak in public once in seven days, there are not five ministers in Scotland who write their discourses in their own tongue; yet there are several ambitious to be reputed the translators of a few lines of Galic poetry,

The improvement of the country, as well as the minds of the inhabitants, has been strangely neglected, in an age when every other country emerges from obscurity and ignorance, till some changes were forced upon them by a late law, I shall not say how politic. To see a people, naturally capable of every improvement, though once misled by ignorance, stripped of their ancient habits and customs, and deprived of the Scriptures in their own tongue, the right of Christians, never denied to the most savage Indians,

Indians, is at once a complication of inhumanity and imprudence. Better slay their bodies to secure their affections, as Rome was wont to do with heretics to bring their souls to heaven, than keep them in ignorance, with the expectation that, after some generations, the English manners, language, and improvements, may begin to dawn. At this day, there is no equal number of people in Britain so useful to the state. Upon every emergency they supply our navy with good seamen, and our armies with valiant soldiers. But strip them of their dress, language, the name and honour of Gael, and they soon degenerate. Their habit, language, life, and honour, they always kept or parted with at once. The honour of the name, their habit, and a Galic speech, have always inspired them more than the consecration of the colours. Government, by preserving these privileges, to them sacred as their aræ & foci, might have at least one part of the community of whom they, on any emergency, might say with the Roman general, “ I know the tenth legion will not ‘desert me.’ ” From this I would infer, that the Gael should be taught to read the Scriptures in their own language, by which Popery, that ever grows in the soil of ignorance, might be for ever extirpated. Is there no Bishop Bedel, no Robert

Boyle in our days? and is the Society galing Christian knowledge only Conceiving an early taste for Galic, on account of its peculiar beauties, when at the University, I thought, for my own private amusement, of subjecting

ing it to certain rules, to be observed when I had occasion to speak it, an undertaking which, without any precedent, I thought at first impracticable.— Upon a more close attention, however to its peculiar genius, and the general philosophy of language, I found that

Nil tam difficile quod non solertia vincat;

and afterwards considering a Galic Grammar as an addition to the stores of literature, much wished for by many both in Scotland and England, I was encouraged to persevere in attempting to do what was never done before.

On the Iberno-Galic there have been written grammars by different hands. The Scots and Irish Galic, though not radically different, are two separate dialects of the same language. The words are almost always the same, but differently orthographified. The Irish, in their grammars, have a more uncertain and various inflection in the termination, which the Scots Galic has not; and this inclines me to think the Scots is the original, and that this inflection of termination in Irish grammars is the mark of an attempt by the monks to polish it, after the manner of the Greek and Latin.

Father O'Malley published his Grammatica Latina-Hibernica in 12mo at Rome, 1677; and Macurtin, his Elements of the Irish, at Louvain, 1728: both of which merit only to be mentioned. There are many many in MS. by various authors ; but that published by the indefatigable Major Vallencia, in 1773, at Dublin, is the most satisfactory that has appeared.

In this treatise I have entirely confined myself to the Scots Galic, and think I have accounted for every phenomenon in its structure. To reduce to rule a language without books, and having no standard but the judgment of every speaker, is an undertaking perhaps adventurous ; but finding the alphabet consisting of eighteen letters, in which it has hitherto been written, so well adapted, that, with a very few combinations, every sound in the language may be easily accommodated, it remained for me, after considering its genius, to raise this system on that foundation. If, nevertheless, it be found defective, it is altogether my own. I cannot, like other Grammarians, be called a compiler or transcriber ; what I have delivered is the result of attentive observation. The books I found of most use are, Harris's Hermes, Sciopius's Grammat. Philosoph. and particularly Mr Elphinston's ingenious Analysis of the English.

Being the first that has offered the public a grammatical account of the Galic, it was recommended by several persons to frame a new alphabet, consisting of letters or combinations, to express all the sounds in the language, without any mute letter. This is impracticable ; but though it could be effected, it would only render the etymology more perplexing. It was recommended to write v instead of bh and mb, and y instead of dh and gh; which if I had done, the inflections of words beginning with b and m, &c. would be indistinguishable. Thus, it could not be known whether voladh was praise, from mladb, praising; or bholadh, the dative of boladh, smell. Rejecting, for these and other reasons, all remarkable changes, I have only thrown away some useless consonants, retaining what are necessary to preserve the etymology and express the sounds. Excepting words that begin with certain consonants, the initial consonant before the aspirate h, there are no silent letters in the language. Unlike the Irish, the Scots Galic delights to pronounce every letter, and is not bristled over with so many useless and quiescent consonants. The English and French are infinitely more difficult to read and pronounce, and have many more silent and mute letters. In the Galic there are no such ugly looking words as thought, through, strength, &c. nor found so different from what the letters at other times express. How far I may have reduced it to a fixed system, founded on the general philosophy of language, and its own particular genius, others must determine; I only claim the indulgence always shewn to a juvenile attempt, especially of a passage through mountains never trod before. It was not the mercenary consideration of interest, nor perhaps the expectation of fame among my countrymen, in whose esteem its beauties are too much faded, but a taste for the beauties of the original speech of a now learned nation, that induced me either to begin, or encouraged me to persevere in reducing to grammatical principles a language spoken only by imitation ; while, perhaps, I might have been more profitably employed in tasting the various productions of men, ornaments of human nature, afforded in a language now teeming with books. I beheld with astonishment the learned in Scotland, since the revival of letters, neglect the Gallic ; as if it was not worthy of any pen to give a rational account of a speech used upwards of two thousand years by the inhabitants of more than one kingdom. I saw, with regret, a language once famous in the western world, ready to perish without any memorial, by the use of which Galgacus, having assembled his chiefs, rendered the Grampian Hills impassable to legions that had conquered the world ; and by which Fingal inspired his warriors with the desire of immortal fame. I wished an account given to the world of a language, through which, for so long a period, the benefits of knowledge, and the blessings of religion were communicated to savage clans and roving barbarians, who, in past ages becoming civilized, sung the praises of Him who taught both the tongue to sound, and the thoughts to soar within the walls of the illustrious Iona.

Originally moved by these considerations, and at the request of many of the Literati, I have been encouraged to offer to the world what once I intended only for my own private use. A copy of the manuscript was desired by the Earl of EGLINTOUN, who has a taste for the language, as well as an attachment to to the people. I had the honour of presenting the original to his Lordship, without any expectation of its ever being published. Mr Boswell, whose manners as a gentleman, and taste for polite learning, have gained him the esteem and friendship, as well of one of the most renowned Heroes of the age, as of the learned at home, hearing from his Lordship of the existence of these sheets, obtained a perusal of them, which he afterwards left with Dr Samuel Johnson. To the advice and encouragement of Dr Johnson, the friend of letters and humanity, the Public is indebted for these sheets.

An acquaintance with the Galic, being the mother-tongue of all the languages in the west, seems necessary to every Antiquary who would study the affinity of languages, or trace the migrations of the ancient races of mankind. Of late it has attracted the attention of the learned in different parts of Europe ; and shall its beauties be neglected by those who have opportunities, from their infancy, of understanding it ? Antiquity being the taste of the age, some acquaintance with the Galic begins justly to be deemed a part of the Belles Lettres. The language that boasts of the finished character of Fingal, must richly reward the curiosity of whoever studies it. Of this Sir James Foulis is a rare instance, who, in advanced years, has learned to read and write it ; and now drinks of the Pierian spring untainted, by reading fragments of Poetry in Fingal's own language.

If in these sheets I have afforded any gratification for curiosity, or any help to the Gael, in the improvement and study of the language of their infant years, or prevented its dying without even a sigh, I shall think my labour well bestowed, and every attending trouble amply compensated.

IN the Scots Galic are only eighteen letters, viz. a, b, c, d, e, f, g, h, i, l, m, n, o, p, r, s, t, u, divided into vowels and consonants. The Irish * wrote their dialect of the Celtic with these characters :

Ql a, b b, Cc, ð ð, Ee, Ff, ð ð, 11, Ll, w m, Nñ, Oo, Pp, Rr, Sr, Tt, Uu, Hh.

The vowels are five, a, e, i, o, u, and are either broad or small: a, o, u, are broad, e and i are small.

* See Major Valencia's Grammar of the Irish.

C H A P. II.

Of the Sounds of the Vowels.

A is founded as with the Latins, broad ; or as in the English words fall, tall, call ; thus, mall, flow ; dall, blind ; cam, crooked ; aran, bread.

Ao is founded as u in the French une ; thus, aon, one, une ; aonach, a fair or market, unach.

O is read as in the English lord, opposite ; thus, olc, evil ; dorn, dun ; mor, great ; morachd, majesty : it is sometimes pronounced as in the French foret, Latin forum, and English glory ; so fonn, a tune ; tonn, a wave ; tom, a bush.

U is founded as oo in the English good, fool ; so fudar, powder ; udal, distress ; ur, new, &c. ; some pronounce it as the consonant v in uam, saying vuam. It is changed into V in the proper name Walter, for we say Valtair.

E is pronounced as the Greek epsilon ; thus, edal, a treasure. It is seldom alone in a syllable, but is generally followed by a, u, or i, and so forms a diphthong.

E, the propoun he, is founded broad, like eta in the Greek, or as e in the English, fellow, prunella.

I has its natural sound, as the Latin filius, or the French

French fils, and the English feet; so innis, an island; imigh, to go.

C H A P. III.

Of the Consonants.

B before h sounds v; thus, leanabh, a child, is read leanav; leabhar, a book, leavar; labhairt, speaking, lavairt.

C is equivalent to k in English, as cos, a foot; co-throm, just; ceart, right.

The pronunciation of the c, in some parts of the continent and islands, like chg, is certainly a corruption. Some dialects in Scotland still give it the natural sound of k, and so the Irish universally pronounce it. If there be no real difference between chg and c, why should they write uchd or uchg, the breast, and not uc; lochd, harm, and not loc; naomhachd, and not naomhac, since they write mac, but pronounce it machd, breacan, yet pronounce it breachgan, and focal, but pronounce it fochgal? The Irish rightly write lochd, uchd, naomhachd, &c. and pronounce them so; and breacan, mac, and focal, and pronounce breakan, mak, and fokal.

D before and after e and i is sounded as g in the proper name George; thus, dilis, dear, is pronounced as if jeelish; plaid, a plaid or mantle, is pronounced pladge, or as the syllable plaid in the French plaideur;

DIA,

Dia, God, Jeea. After the broad vowels a, o, u, it is sounded with the palate, as da, two; do, to him; dubbh, black. D before h and after i in the termination of a word is mute, as buanidh, a reaper, sgriobhidh, will write; but dh in the beginning or middle of a word is pronounced as y in the English words you, your, yellow, yawl; thus, dhuit, to thee, is pronounced yuit; dh'ol, to drink, is nearly yawl. The termination adb is pronounced as awy in the word lawyer.

F before h is silent, as an fhoid, of the turf, we say an hoid; in other respects the same as in English.

G is sounded as in the word grow.

1. Note, however, that agh in the beginning or termination of a word is read like y in you, yawl; as, ghabbh, I took, is sounded yabbh, gradhughadh, loving, grayachay, (the ay being as awy in lawyer,) though the termination adb is sounded a only.

2. Agh, ugh, are properly read in the middle of words ach, uch, or ax, ux, according to the Greek.

M before h, or nib, sounds v, as lamhb, a hand, lav; claidhamhb, a sword, clayav; mb is mute in the pronoun dhanib, to me, and sometimes in the middle of words, though always written.

S before and after e and i is equivalent to sh in English;

English ; thus feol, a sail, sheol ; innis, an island, innish ; eisd, hearken, eishd—Before and after a, o, u, the same as in English : thus, tanas, an apparition ; aslin, a dream ; sugan, a rope ; soillair, clear ; the pronoun so, this, pronounced sho, only excepted. S before h in the beginning of a word is always mute ; as shiubhal mi, I went ; hiubhal mi *.

P. pb is sounded f in the beginning of a word ; phobul, to a people ; phosadh, to marry ; phogadh, to kiss.

T is sounded with the palate, but softer than in English. It is also mute before h ; thus, cruth, a form or shape, crub ; thuit, he fell, huit ; thog, he lifted, hog.

L, N, R, are immutable consonants, and never have the aspirate h after them in the past tenses of verbs, and the inflected cases of nouns, as the other letters, but seem then to be pronounced as if reduplicated ; thus, leabb, I read, lleabb ; nairich, he affronted, nnairich ; reub, he tore, rreub.

Sg, sr, sp, ft, do not obtain the h in the beginning of a word, but tr does, as treoruidh, direct thou ; threoruigh, he directed,

Gz

* The late Rev. Mr. Macfarlane, who, of all the Highland Ministers, best understood the Orthography of the Galic, has, however, committed a very glaring mistake with regard to the letter S ; he always writes leis, shibb, shin, sho, instead of leis, sibb, sin, so.

Gn and cn in the beginning of words are often pronounced gr and cr; thus, gnuis, the countenance, is gruis; cnaimb, a bone, craimb; bainionn, female, bairinn.

C H A P. IV.

Of Diphthongs.

DIPTHONGS are twelve, viz. ao, ae, ai, ea, ei, eo, eu, ia, io, iu, oi, ua.

Ai is sounded as ai in the French travailler, to labour; thus, pailtar, plenty; caill, a loss; faidh, a prophet; ait, a place; aitas, gladness, &c.

Ea is sounded like ea in the English bear, to bring; bear, the wild beast; as seachran, an error; mear, cheerful, sportive; fear, a man; bean, a woman; seanduine, an old man; feart, authority. Sometimes like ea in the proper name Lear, and the verb fear; so fearr, better; mearlach, a thief; feachd, forces.

Ei sounds like ai in the word sailor, fail, or a in pale, tale, male, &c. so eisd, hearken; teine, fire; fein, self; eiram, I rise; geimnach, lowing.

Eo sounds as eo in the word pigeon; so ceol, music; seol, a sail; beo, alive.

In the diphthong eu the u serves only to lengthen
the

the signification or sound of e; as censadb, a crucifixion, may be orthographied ceisadh; or as the e in female; beus, habit; beul, a mouth.

Ia has both letters heard in one syllable; thus, Dia is one syllable; Diadhachd, divinity, is but two; and Diadomhnaich, Sunday, three syllables.

O! molaibh Dia, oir'ta é maith!

Iu is founded like oe in shoe, or ew in stew; thus, iul, a guide, is read ewl; siubhalam, I go or pass, shewvalam; civil, of music, cewl; fiu, worthy, few; siucar, sugar, shewcar.

Io is pronounced like an i long, or ee in English; as in feel, fees, lees; or i in the French Sire, silence, &c. as anios, up; fios, knowledge; fior, true; fioridh, for ever; ionnas, treasure.

Oi is founded like oi in oil, foil, soil,—oigh, a virgin; coill, a wood; moidhach, an hare; soighdair, a soldier.

Ua has both vowels pronounced in one syllable; so fuar, cold; suas, up; anuas, down; ruadh, red; ag tuar, foreboding, &c.

In ui, the u is long and i heard, or founded like oo in fool, good, food; so fuil, blood; suil, the eye; cuil, of the back; muill, of chaff, &c.

C H A P. V.

Of Triphthongs.

HERE are these five triphthongs, aoi, eoi, eai, iui, uai; the two first vowels of which are of the diphthongs already mentioned, found the same, and the third vowel is heard; as in these words, aois, age; maoisach, a fallow-deer or doe; feoil, flesh; sdiuir, a rudder or helm; iuil, of a guide; uait, from thee; duaís, a reward; cluais, of an ear.

The above observations with regard to orthography will, I apprehend, with the assistance of a few books, not only be sufficient to preserve this copious and expressive language, but make a stranger better acquainted with it in one month, than he could be with the English or French in six, by consulting all that has been written on either of these subjects.

We will now give a small collection of words divided into syllables, for the use and practice of the Reader, writing the same in an opposite column, spelled according to assistance taken from, and reference made to, the French and English, to express their sounds. Let this mark * distinguish French-like syllables, and this + the English.

An-eo-lach,	*ain⁺-eo-lach,	ignorant.
Ainm-ol,	ain[*]⁺-ol,	renowned.
Cint-ach,	cint-ach,	sure.
Diomh-an-ach,	jeev⁺-an-ach,	idle.
Deas-fhoc-lach,	jeas⁺-oc-lach,	witty.
Mio-chaird-ol,	mee⁺-char-jol,	unfriendly.
Eud-mhor,	aid⁺-vor,	jealous.
Aidh-ear-ach,	ay⁺-ar-ach,	glad.
Aol-tigh,	aol[*]⁺-toy,	a college.
Sgiob-al-te,	sghee⁺-bal⁺-ta,[*]	neat, tight.
Di-cia-daoine,	jee⁺-cia[*]-daogne,	Wednesday.
Ball-leath-air,	ball⁺-lea⁺-ir,[*]	a goff-ball.
Sgoth-long,	scob⁺-long,	a yacht.
Cain-adh,	caign-ay,	scandalizing.
Feoirn an,	feoir[*]⁺-nan,	a straw.
Sdiuir-adh,	slew-ray,	steering at the helm.
Fuaidh-al,	foy⁺-al,	sewing.

These words comprehend most of the sounds in the language, and are pretty nearly expressed as marked in the second column.

Of Nouns Substantive.

TH E parts of speech are eight—Noun, Pronoun, Verb, Participle, Adverb, Preposition, Interjection, Conjunction.

The Genders are two, Masculine and Feminine ; that is, e or i, he or she.

Since the Galic language personifies every object, inanimate as well as animate, the distinction of gender is the principal difficulty ; and this is what renders the Gael's first attempts to speak English so ridiculous, diculous, every substantive being either e or i, that is, he or she. Neither termination (except that all nouns in og and ag are feminine), nor any other circumstance but immediate distinction of sex, and custom, can determine the gender. They talk of a stone, a spoon, a window, a fiddle, a shoe, a hat, a chair, and a knife, as a she; but a stocking, a coat, a stool, a fork, as he or it. Nouns, however, having a alone in the last syllable, before one or more final consonants, are generally masculine; as, aodan, a face; abhar, a cause; cogadh, war, &c.

Nouns having o in the last syllable are generally masculine; as, corp, a body; ceo, mist; bord, a board; bonn, the sole, or base of any thing.

Nouns which have a diphthong in termination, the last vowel of which is broad, are generally masculine; as, beul, a mouth; meall, an heap; gaoth, the wind, &c.

Nouns which have a diphthong in termination, the last vowel of which is slender, are feminine; as, uine, time; uair, an hour; cuis, an affair; compaitl, a company, &c.

Agents in air and oir are masculine: all nouns in og and ag are feminine.

The Numbers are two, Singular and Plural; as, moidbach, a hare; moidbaich, hares; fiadh, a deer; feidh, deer.

There are six Cases, Nominative, Genitive, Dative, Accusative, Vocative, and Ablative—in Galic, Ainminach, Geimheanach, Tabhartach, Gioranach, Gairminach, and Diobhalach.

The Declensions are two.

1. Nouns of the first declension have the nominative plural like their genitive singular ; as, moidhach, a hare ; genitive, moidhaich, of a hare ; nominative plural, moidhaick, hares.

2. Nouns of the second declension have their nominative plural in a or an ; as, cretoir, an animal ; plural, cretoira, or cretoiran, animals. At the same time, every noun is either definite or indefinite, that is, declined with or without the article. Indefinitely thus, moidhach, a hare ; definitely, an moidhach, the hare ; cretoir, an animal ; an cretoir, the animal.

The article an masculine of the nominative and accusative singular, is changed to am before nouns beginning with f, b, and p, if the noun be masculine. If the noun begins with a vowel, the letter t is prefixed in the nominative and accusative; as, an t ord, the hammer; if with an s, as flat, a rod or wand, an t flat, the s being silent. Nan of the genitive plural before f, b, p, is changed to nam; before a noun beginning with a c or g, is founded as if the last n were joined to the g; as nan ceum, of the steps, na nceum; nan cos, as if na ncos. When the noun is masculine, and begins with an f, the euphonic t is retained in the genitive, dative, and ablative singular; as, faoil, the world, genitive, an t faoil; dative, d'on t faoil; ablative, leis an t faoil: but if feminine, it is retained throughout the whole singular, except the genitive case; as, nominative, an t flat, the wand; dative, do'n t flat; accusative, an t flat; vocative, o' an t flat; ablative, leis an t flat. But this is only when it is definitely declined.

General Rules.

The Nominative and Accusative are always alike in both numbers.

Do is the sign of the dative; le or leis of the ablative.

All definite names have the article; indefinites have not.

The flexion of a Celtic noun does not, like a Greek noun, consist in an inflected article and termination only; nor a Roman noun, with its termination inflected; nor like the French, English, or Italian, in particles: nor yet like a * Hebrew noun, in syntax; but is declined definitely, with an article, a change of the vowel or diphthong of its termination, and by introducing the aspirate h after the initial consonant. Thus, am moidbach, the hare; genitive, an mhoidbach, of the hare; dative, do'n mhoidbach, to the hare, &c. or indefinitely, dative, do' mhoidbach, to a hare; genitive, moidhaich, of a hare.

The most common terminations of this declension are, adb, ach, and all patronymicks and gentiles which end in ach; as, Albanach, a Scotsman; Eirinach, an Irishman; Muilach, an Isle of Mull Man; Boidach, a Bute Man; Arrunach, an Arran man; Lochlunach, Lochlunach, a Dane; Francach, a Frenchman; Spainach, a Spaniard; Feudailtach, an Italian; Caimbeulach, a Campbell; Stuartach, a Stuart; Friosalach, a Fraser: Grantach, a Grant; Gordanach, a Gordon; Donalach, a Macdonald, &c. In the plural, Albanaich, Eirinaich, Muilaich, Boidaich, Arrunaich, Lochlunaich, Francaich, Spainaich, Feudailtaich, Caimbeulaich, Stuartaich, Friosalaich, Grantach, Gordanach, Donalaich, &c. Scotfinen, Irishmen, Mullmen, Butemen, Arranmen, Danes, French, Spaniards, Italians, Campbells, Stuarts, Frasers, Grants, Gordons, Macdonalds, &c. Some end in an; as, fuaran, a spring; fuarain, springs;—some in ull; as capull, a mare, capuil:—some in adh, such as, cruinuchadh, a congregation, cruinuchaidh; sioladh, a syllable, siolaidd; fluagh, an host, floigh:—and some in as; as, iongantas, a wonder, iongantaos; neual, a cloud, has neoil; eun, a bird, eoин; cnoc, a hill, cnoic; mac, a son, mic; tarbh, a bull, tairbh; cliabb, a basket, cleabb. Nouns which have their nominative plural the same as their genitive singular, are also of this declension. There are many nouns used by provincialists in the plural of both declensions; such as, mairt, or marta, cattle, kine; cuirp or corpa, bodies, &c.

The Rev. Mr Macfarlane, in his translations and psalms, uniformly uses ibh in the dative and ablative plural; which I think too much resembles the Irish dialect. Do na Muilaichibh, leis na Caimbeulaichibh, would have a harsh sound to any provincialist of Scotland.

Of the Singular Indefinite of both Declensions.

The Genitive singular indefinite is formed by putting an i after the last vowel of the nominative ; as, fuaran, a spring ; genitive, fuarain. But if the noun has i in the nominative, the same is the genitive ; as, cuisle, a vein ; genitive, cuisle, of a vein : crios, a girdle ; genitive, crios.

Nouns in iabb and iath change ia into ea in the genitive, as sliabb, a mountain ; genitive sleabb, of a mountain : cliabb, a basket, the chest or breast ; genitive, cleabb : sgiath, a wing : genitive, sgeath, of a wing : Dia, God ; genitive, Dea.

Nouns in iar and ial form ei in the genitive ; as, cial, wisdom, ceil ; ciar, ceir. Those in ean, eal, eac, change the diphthong ea into i in the genitive ; as ceann, a head ; genitive, cinn, of a head : meall, an heap ; genitive, mill : leac, a slate ; genitive, lic.

Monosyllables beginning with an a or o, change them into ui in the genitive ; as alt, a joint ; genitive uilt, of a joint : ord, a hammer ; genitive uird : bonn, a base or coin ; genitive, buinn.

Nouns in ta, de, ca, pa, have the genitive like the nominative ; as, cota, a coat ; cloica, a clock ; colpa, the leg ; plaide, a plaid.

Monosyllables having a, o, or u after an initial consonant, change these into ui in the genitive ; as ball, a ball, or any member of the body, a place ; genitive, buill : moll, chaff ; genitive, muill : cul, the back ; genitive, cuil. The

The Dative singular is formed from the Nominative, by putting the letter h after the initial consonant, and prefixing the sign do; as, moidhach, a hare; dative, do mhoidhach: cretoir, an animal; dative, do chretoir.

When the Nominative begins with a vowel, dh prefixed is the sign of the dative; as ord, a hammer; dative, dh'ord: oran, a song; dative, dh'oran.

The Vocative is formed from the genitive, by putting h after the initial consonant; as, genitive, moidhaich: vocative, mhoidhaich; cretcir, of an animal; vocative, chretoir, O animal!

If the noun begins with a vowel, the vocative is like the genitive; as genitive, uird; vocative uird: Eoin, of John, John's; vocative, Eoin, O John!

Of the Plural of the first Declension, indefinitely.

Nouns in adh, ach, an, ull, which are the most common terminations of this declension, and some monosyllables, have their nominative plural like the genitive singular; as cruimuchadh; genitive, cruinuchaiddh; nominative plural, cruinuchaiddh: genitive, moidhaich; nominative plural, moidhaich: genitive, fuarain; nominative plural, fuarain; capuill, of a mare; nominative plural, capuill, mares.

The Genitive has h after the initial consonant; as mhoidhach, chruinuchadh, fhuaran, chapull.

*Do bhrat lan fhreann daimond
Do bhraon ni foils' air lar **.

If the Nominative singular begins with a vowel or diphthong, the genitive plural is the same; as fuaim ord, the noise of hammers.

The Vocative plural of this declension is the same as the vocative singular; mhoidhaich, O hare! mhoidhaich, hares!

The Dative is formed by adding the h flection to to the nominative plural; moaidhaich; do mhoidhaich.

Of Definites of the first Declension.

The Genitive singular definite of nouns in adh, ach, &c. of this declension, is formed from the vocative singular indefinite, by putting the article an or a' before it; as vocative indefinite, mhoidhaich; genitive definite, a' mhoidhaich, of the hare; eoin, O bird! an eoin, of the bird.

But if the noun be of the feminine, h is thrown away, and its feminine article put before it; as vocative indefinite, ghealaich, O moon! genitive definite, na gealaich, of the moon.

.. Nouns

* Macdonald's Alt an t-siucair, a most beautiful Description of a rural Scene.

Nouns beginning with the immutable consonants l, n, r, never admit the flection h; as leabhair, of a book; definite, an leabhair, of the book, &c.

The Dative definite is like the dative indefinite, having the article before it; as, do mhoidhach; definite, do'n mhoidhach, to the hare. If the noun begins with a d or t, the h is omitted; as, do'n damh, do'n tarbh.

The Vocative is like the nominative; as, am moidhach, O am moidhach!

All other nouns, except those noted of the first, are of this declension, the most common terminations of which are these, ad, aid, air, ar, eir, ir, or; some in an; also ill, il, os, ath, unt, iu, og, ag, in, ain, uirt, ub, uth, is, eis, idh.

Of Definites of the Second Declension.

So much having been said under the first declension, and the difference of the second being so small, little remains to be observed here; I shall therefore only note a few particulars of the second.

If the Noun be of the feminine gender, the genitive definite is formed from the indefinite, by prefixing the article na; as, cois, of a foot; genitive definite, na cois, of the foot. And if the noun feminine begins with a vowel, the letter h is prefixed, to shun the hiatus; thus, ailne, beauty; genitive definite, na h ailne, of the beauty: eagnai, wisdom; genitive definite, na h eagnai, of the wisdom.

Nouns beginning with the immutable consonants l, n, r, do not admit of the flection h; so rinnag, a star; genitive, rinnraig, of a star; definite, na rinnraig, of the star.

Of the Plural definite of both Declensions.

All nouns of this declension have their nominative plural in a or an; and when the word following begins with a vowel, rather in an; so laoidh, an hymn, laoidha, hymns; treud, a flock, treuda; ionad, a place, ionada; palluin, a temple or palace, palluina; dorus, a door, doruifa, contracted dorsa; namhaid, an enemy, namhaida, contracted naimhda; coinnal, a candle, coinnlan, by elision of the a; crioch, an end, or the limits of any thing, crioscha; oigh, a virgin, oigha; machair, a field, machaira; muc, a sow, muca; anam, a soul, anama; claidhamh, a sword, claidhamba; targaid, a target, targaida; lamb, an hand, lamha; beannachd, a blessing, or compliments, beannachda; trioblloid, trouble, triobloda; cloch, a stone, clocha; craobh, a tree, craobha; carruig, a rock, carruiga; piobair, piobair, a piper, piobaira; fiadbuis, a witness, fiadbuisa; offag, a blast, offaga; sguab, a sheaf, sguaba; uinog, a window, uinoga; gaoth, the wind, gaotha.

The genitive definite plural of nouns of the first declension is formed by prefixing nam, or nan, the article, to the nominative singular indefinite: of the second, by prefixing it to its nominative plural, and sometimes the termination is dropt; as, moidhach, nam moidhach, cretoira, nan cretoira.

Some Nouns ending in a in the singular, change a into icha or in in the plural; as cota, a coat, coticha, cotin; plaid, a plaid, plaigidcha, plaiddin; uisge, has sometimes uisge, oftener uisgicha; eige, a web, eingicha; leine, a shirt, leintach, leintin; sliabh, a mountain, sleabhte. The terminations idh, and ich, have icha; as, buanidh, a reaper, buanicha; ramhich, a rower, ramhicha.

Proper Names are thus declined:

- N. Ceantir, Kintyre.
- G. Chintir, of Kintyre.
- D. Do Cheantir, to Kintyre.
- A. Ceantir, Kintyre.
- V. Chintir, O Kintyre!
- A. Le Ceantir, with Kintyre.

C H A P. II.

Of Adjectives.

AS the flexion that a Noun Substantive undergoes in the singular, is the introduction of an i into the termination (if there be more than one syllable), and putting the aspirate h after the initial consonant; the same flexion must the adjective undergo to agree with its substantive. On the concord of adjectives and substantives, the following observations are to be considered :

1st. When the termination of a noun ends in a or an in the plural, the adjective agreeing with that case, has no h aspirate nor flexion in its own termination; as, na claidhamba mor, the broad swords; na pais-dan beg, the little children. The same holds good, when any case of nouns of the first declension is changed to an or a; as for, na fuarain, na fuara-na, &c.

2d. The h aspirate of the substantive noun is retained by the adjective, and throughout the cases; as, as, moidhaich mor, of a great hare; definite, a' mhoidhaich mhoir, of the great hare.

3d. Nouns of the first declension have the h flexion in the plural ; but never any in termination.

Of Comparison.

THREE are three degrees of Comparison; the Positive, Comparative, and Superlative.

The Comparative is formed from the genitive singular indefinite of the positive; i. e. by making the last vowel an i, and adding e to the positive; thus, laidir, strong; genitive indefinite, laidir; comparative, laidire, stronger; luachmhor, precious; genitive indefinite, luachmhoir; comparative, luachmhoire, more precious: dubh, black; duibhe, blacker; geal, white; comparative, gile, whiter. It is resolved by no, than, the conjunction.

The Superlative is like the Comparative, and is distinguished only by the words that follow, and are governed by it; as, laidire agibh, the strongest of you; luach-mhoire dbin, the most precious of us; duibhe acca, blackest of them; gile aginme, the whitest of us; maisiche am measg an t fluainn, handsomest among the people. The particle ro put before any adjective is equal to the English very or most, the French tres, and the Latin per; thus, ro bheartach, very or most rich; tres or fort riche; perdives: ro bhochd, very or most poor; lien, tres, or fort pauvre; perpauper. Note, that neither the comparative nor the superlative undergo any change by flection.

Of Pronouns.

AS the Prepositions that generally govern different cases are so united with the simple pronouns (though still their composition may be seen), I think it most proper to write them as one word, without any mark of contraction.

Singular.

Singular.

N. Mi, misē, I.

G. Mo, of me, my.

D. Dhamb, dhambse, to me ; dhambse, to me, myself.

A. Me, me.

V. —————

A. Leam, with me ; uam, from me ; annam, in me ; agam, with, or at me ; affam, out of, or from me ; dhim, from off me ; chugam, to me ; marrium, with me ; tharum, over me ; orm, upon me.

Plural.

N. Sinn, finne, we ; finne, we ourselves ; (nosmet.)

G. Ar, of us, our. It has ne added to the according substantive ; as, ar cretoira-ne, &c.

D. Dhuin, dhuine, to us.

A. Sinn, finne, us.

V. —————

A. Lein, leinne, with us ; uain, uaine, from us ; annin, annine, in us ; agin, aginne, with us, in our possession ; affin, affine, out of, or from us ; dhinne, from off us : chugin, chugin, to us ; marrin, with us ; tharin, over us.

Note, that fein and se, when added to the simple pronoun or substantive, are equivalent to the Latin met, metipos, the French propre, or English self, selves ; as, mo lamb-se, my hand ; mo lamb fein, my own hand ; mi fein, myself.

Singular.

Singular.

- N. Tu, thou ; tusa, thou, thyself.
G. Do, of thee, thy.
D. Dhuit, to thee.
A. Thu, thee.
V. Thusa ! O thou !
A. Leat, with thee ; uait, pronounced vuait, from thee ; annad, in thee ; agad, at, or with, or in the possession of thee ; affad, out of, or from thee ; dhiot, from off thee ; chugad, to you ; marriut, with you ; tharad, over thee ; ort, on thee.

Plural.

- N. Sibh, ibh, ye ; sibhse, (vosmet.).
G. Bhar, of you, your.
D. Dhuibh, dhuibhse, to you.
A. Sibh, sibhse, you.
V. O sibhse ! O ye or you !
A. Leibh, leibhse, with you ; uaibh, uaibhse, pronounced vuabhbse, from you ; annaibh, in you ; agibh, at, or with, or in the possession of you ; asibh, out of you ; dhibh, from off you ; chugibh, to you ; marribh, with you ; tharibh, over you.

Singular.

N. E, or eisín, i, ise, he or she.

G. A, a, of him, of it, of her, or his, its, her; it writes se after its concordant substantive.

D. Dh'a, dhasan, dhi, dhise, to him, it, to her.

A. E, eisín, i, ise, he, it, her.

V. ———

A. Leis, leisan, lea, lease, with him, it, her; uaidhe, uaiche, from him, her; aige, aice, at, or with, or in the possession of him or her, it; annsan, in him, in thee, in it; inte, in her, it; as, out of him, it; aisde, out of her; dhe, dhi, from off him, her; chuige, to him, it; chuicca, to her; marris, with him, it; marria, with her; tharis, over him, it; thairte, over her; air, on him; urra, on her.

Plural.

N. Iad, iad, idse, they.

G. An, an, their; it writes se after the following substantive.

D. Dhoibh, dhoibh, dhoibhse, to them.

A. Iad, iad, iadse, them.

V. ———

A. Leo, leosan, with them; uatha, from them; asda, out of them; annta, in them; ac, of them; acca, at, or with, or in the possession of them; dhiu, of them, off them; chucca, to them; marriu, with them; tharta, over them.

Singular.

N. Co? cia? ciod? who? which? what?

G. Cho? whose?

D. Co dha? to whom?

A. Co? which? what?

V. ———

A. Co leis? with whom, what? whose? co uaiddh? from whom? co ann? in whom, which, what? co aig? with whom? or at, or in whose possession? co dheth? from off whom?

The Plural is the same.

A, the relative who, that.

N. A, who, that.

G. ———

D. Do a' do, to which, to whom.

A. A, whom, which.

V. ———

A. Leis a, ler, with whom, which; af a, out of whom, which; ann a, in whom, which; uaiddh a, from whom, which; aig a, with whom, at whom, in whose possession: Uaidh, I think, might be wrote o when it is not joined to the pronoun, as in uait; thus, o an duine, from the man, is better and easier read than uadb an duine.

So, this, is equivalent to hic in Latin ; and sin, he, that, to ille, iste, indeclinable. Ud, or od, is somewhat relative, and is, in other respects, exactly what la is in French, and there among cockneys ; for we say an tigh od, that there house; cette maison la; egin, some ; eile, other ; cheudna, same ; sa bith, however, are put after pronouns and substantives ; as, co sa bith, whosoever ; duine eile, another man ; an duine ceudna, the same man.—Gach, every ; gach uile, contracted chuile, all, every, are put before the substantive. Gach uile requires the h flexion in the substantive following ; gach uile dhuine, every man, all men.

Ti, he, the man who, whosoever, is used thus ; an ti dhiarras gheibh, he that seeketh shall find.

Though the Prepositions with which chuige, chuica, chucca, are compounded, and seem to be of the dative, they, nevertheless, when separate, govern the genitive.

C H A P. IV.

Of Verbs.

VERBS have two Voices, the Active and Passive.—There is scarcely any change of person in either number, that being almost always immediately discovered by the nominal or pronominal nominative following the verb, whether regularly formed, or by the auxiliary verb and the participle; as, chrui nich mi, I gathered; chrui nich thu, thou gatheredst; chrui nich e, he gathered, &c. or bha mi (ag) cruinuchadh, I gathered, or was gathering; bha thu (ag) cruinuchadh, thou wast gathering, &c.

In a Galic verb, what the Latins call the Gerund or Substantive derived from the verb, is the principal part from which the other tenses are formed and modified.

In the flection or conjugation of a verb, particles, the auxiliary verb to be, the aspirate after the initial consonant, and now and then a change of termination, form differently the different tenses. In order to decline a verb, after having the gerund or substantive, or the name of the action before it relates to person, time, or modification, the present participle is formed by putting ag before the radix, which always governs the genitive in discourse, and has no change in gender: so from cruinuchadh, a collecting or gathering together, is formed (ag) cruinuchadh, the present participle. Ag is more elegantly written before participles beginning with a vowel; as, ag iarridh, seeking.

To form the Infinitive, decline the radix as a substantive, as far as the dative case, which is the infinitive present; there is no other tense of this mood: thus, thus, cruinuchadh, the radix or gerund, signifies a gathering together, or assembly. The dative of which is do chruinuchadh, to gather or assemble. But when the verb begins with a vowel, the infinitive is formed thus; as, orduchadh, commanding, ordering; dative, dh' orduchadh, the infinitive, to command.

There are two participles perfect: the first is of some use in the active, but more in the passive. The one is formed by putting the preposition air instead of ag, as (ag) cruinuchadh, assembling; air cruinuchadh, assembled. It receives genders thus: For the masculine it assumes the aspirate h and puts a, the genitive of the person, between it and the preposition air; as, air a chruinuchadh, he assembled; Latin, congregatus; for the feminine it assumes only the possessive pronoun a, which is the genitive feminine of e, i; as, air a cruinuchadh, she assembled, congregata. The a, however, is often lost when the verb begins with a vowel; as, air orduchadh, he assembled, for air a orduchadh. In the feminine the euphonic h is prefixed; as, air a h orduchadh.

In discourse, this participle governs the genitive of any of the possessive pronouns put between the air and the verb, and the genitive of a noun when put after it; as, tha mi air mo threoruchadh, I am directed; air treoruchadh an duine, directed the man. When the dative is put after it, it translates the ablative absolute of the Latins; as, air treoruchadh dh' amh, dhamb, I having directed; air eirachd, or cirigh, do'n ghrian, the sun having risen.

The other Participle is formed from the radix, by changing its last syllable into te; thus, treoruchadh, directing; treoruichte, directed; cruinuchadh, assembling together; cruinichte, assembled.

The present, the past, and the future tenses only are formed regularly; but the auxiliary tha, I am, in conjunction with the participle, gives rise to the imperfect, perfect definite, and pluperfect.

Though some say a language has only as many tenses as are regularly formed without the auxiliary, yet I am of opinion, a verb cannot be better conjugated than by stating it in all its different times of action whatsoever; on this account, therefore, in order to ascertain the different ways of speaking relative to action in the Galic, and at once to shew a verb so arranged into moods and tenses, by which every possible disposition of the Galic verbs, so various in their moods and tenses, may be resolved; I am of necessity obliged to introduce, perhaps, an unusual number of moods.

As the different particles of conjunction and adverb contribute to the variety of moods in this language, I shall endeavour to shew the modes of them in separate classes. These I will denominatively call, Indicative, Interrogative, Responsive, Conditional, Negative, negative, Subjunctive, Optative, Imperative, and Infinitive.

A language modifies a verb so many different ways, either by a change of termination, or the assistance of auxiliaries, and the influence of different particles. The Galic moods are, however, reducible to these :

The Indicative, which at the same time serves as Responsive; and as Conditional, by putting the conditional particles ma, if; nuair, when; antra, when, &c. before it.

The Subjunctive, which, with the particle an before it, serves as interrogative, and as the negative, which takes the particle of negation cho an, cho, or that of the Irish dialect, ni an, no, not, before it, and cho do before the past tense, and the particles chum agus go, to the end that, &c.

The Optative has an imperfect and some past tenses peculiar to itself, with the particle nach, utinam, I wish that, O that! This mood and its most common tenses may be seen in that most beautiful text, in this language peculiarly pathetic : O! nach ro iad glic, nach tuigadh iad so, nach cuimhnadh iad an crioch dheirannach. “O! that they were wise, that they understood this, that they would consider their latter end!” There is also the imperative and the infinitive. The following is an example of a regular verb :

Verbs beginning with vowels or diphthongs, or with f, have dh in the past tenses ; as eisdam, I hearken ; dh'eisdm, I hearkened ; with an apostrophe after the dh'. In verbs beginning with f, however, the f is put between the d and h. The dh retains its wonted force and sound ; thus, fosgalam, I open ; dfhosgal, I opened, is read as dh'osgal.

Remarks

Remarks on the Verbs.

The adverbs antra, nuair, when; ma, if; are joined with the past tenses of the Indicative, but always with the Subjunctive; thus, nuair chruinich iad clocha, when they gathered stones together; with the Subjunctive, nuair ghabhas iad comhnuidh, when they shall rest.

The adverbs cho, not; cho do, not; an, the interrogative particle; the conjunctions chum agus gu, so that; ionas gur, insomuch that; chionn nach, because not; bbri nach, because not; nach, not; are used also interrogatively; was not? would that? and are always put before the Subjunctive mood; so, cho chruinich iad na clocha, they will not gather the stones. Chum agus gu ro iad air an cruinuchadh, (or) cruinichte, sc that they were assembled, or gathered together. Chionn nach ro iad cruinichte, because they were not gathered together. Nach is an optative particle; thus, O nach cruinuchadh iad! O that they would assemble!

Ag, the sign of the participle present, is not always written before the verbs beginning with consonants; as, tha mi smuintuchadh, I am considering; in place of tha mi ag smaintuchadh. In poetry it is used or neglected as best suits the poet; but before participles beginning with a vowel, it is indispensable; as, tba iað iad ag imthachd, they were departing. When the last word before ag ends with a vowel, and the participle begins with a vowel, the g only is retained; thus, bha mi'g eisfachd, I was listening.

Interjections.

INTERJECTIONS are common to the Galic with all other languages. Whatever changes may happen to languages, this part is always secure, and will continue the same whilst the feelings, the sighs, and the groans of the Philosopher and the Savage are alike. These sounds, if not articulations, seem little different from those of the brutes. They are the efforts of Nature to relieve itself in certain cases. They are the fewest words in any language, and on which Grammarians have always had least to say.

They express

ccara. lo. behold

Laughter, as, ah! ah! ah! ah!

Grief, och! och! mo chreach! my ruin! mo thruaidh! my misery!

Derision, as, hah! aha! mo nair ort! fy on you!

Fatigue, as, heich ho!

Admiration, as, oh! ho!

Imprecation, mulachd dho, pox on't!

Demonstration, feuch! behold!

Terror, chugibh! chugibh! cuideadh. cuidighadh.
 och. hey day!
 bobo. cabhair.

Ge, though.

Giodheadh, however, notwithstanding.

Ma, if.

Ach, but.

An, the Interrogative Particle, changed (like the article) into am before b, f, p.

Nach, no, O that!

Eadhon, namely, that is to say, viz. i. e.

Gu, that, changed into gur before words beginning with a vowel, and the consonants f, b, p, f, m, n.

Chum agus gu, to the end that.

Ionas gur, so that.

Na, than.

Mun am, mun an, if not; mur, if not.

C H A P. IX.

Of the Formation of the Parts of Speech.

AFTER considering the various inflections of the parts of speech, it is natural to enquire into their formation. Ideas vary with things, and the names of things with ideas. The formative nouns are Diminutives, Collectives, Abstracts, Agents, and Actions.

1. Of Diminutives.

All Diminutives of the feminine gender in this language end in og or ag; those of the masculine in an, by subjoining these syllables; as, nian, a girl; nianag, a little girl; caillach, an old woman; caillachag, a little old woman: fguab, a sheaf; fguabag, a little sheaf: leanabh, a child; leanaban, a little child: duine, a man; duinan, a little man, a mannikin, homunculus. Few or none of the christian names are diminutive.

2. Of Collectives.

Collective nouns are not confined to any termination. Among many the following may be reckoned:

Au Fheine, the Fingalians, or followers and army of Fingal, king of Morven, and hero of Ossian's Poems. Fine, a nation or tribe; clann, a clan or family, the followers and descendants of a Baron or Chieftain, literally children; crodh, cattle; pobul, people; buidhan, a band; compait, company; uaifile, gentry.

3. Of Abstracts.

Most of the Galic abstracts terminate in achd or as. Achd is generally a feminine termination.

Some adjectives in achd add as for their abstract; as, gairdach, joyful; gairdachas, joyfulness; miobhuidhach, ungrateful; miobhuidhachas, ungratefulness; dubhach, sad; dubhachas, sadness. Some change the ach into as; as, beartach, rich; beartas, riches; fiuntach, generous; fiuntas, generosity; athreach, penitent; athreachas, penitence.

Some substantives and adjectives which have i in their last syllable, have as rather than achd sometimes added; or the termination changed to as; so, cruaidh, hard; cruas, hardness; carid, a friend; cairdas, friendship; suairc, gentle; suaircas, gentleness; math, good; mathas, goodness; cliambin, a kinsman; cleamhnas, affinity; udar, an author; udaras, authority; neo-ghlioc, imprudent; neo-ghliocas, imprudence; sona, happy; sonas, happiness.

Those in ol or al prefer achd; as, surdol, industrious; surdolachd, industry; sroal, prodigal; sroalachd, prodigality: neothaincol, unthankful; neothaincolachd, unthankfulness: cirtal, courtly; cirtalachd, courtliness, courtesy; cairdol, friendly; cairdolachd, friendliness: aidhol, hospitable; aidholachd, hospitality: coinol, kind; coinolachd, kindness, clemency: moral, magnificent; moralachd, morachd, magnificence, majesty.

Some add ach; as, naomb, holy; naombachd, holiness: seamb, meek; seambachd, meekness: geamni, chaste; geamniachd, chastity: iriosal, humble; iriosachd, humility. All, likewise, that end in or or mhor, add achd; as, ceolor, musical; ceolorachd: mor, great; morachd, majesty, greatness: feolor, sensual; feolorachd, sensuality.

The irregular adjectives form the following abstracts; lugh, less; lughad, littleness, smallness: moa, greater; mead, greatness: leatha, broader; lead, breadth; airde, higher; airde, height: olc, bad; olcas, badness; giurra, shorter; giurrad, shortness.

4. Of Actions.

Actions are the verbal nouns, derived from verbs, or the present participle of a verb; thus, cruinuchadh is, at the same time, the participle and the verbal noun. They generally end in adh; as, fiosruchadh, knowledge, knowledge, or judgment, from fiosrucham, to judge or enquire into; iriosluchadh, humiliation, from irioslucham, I humble; misiuchadh, encouragement, from misiucham, I encourage: meadachadh, multiplying or increasing, from meaducham, I encrease or multiply.

Some end in in; as, faicsin, from faicam, I see; cluintin, hearing, from cluinam, I hear; teasargain, deliverance, from teasargam, I deliver. Some end in achd; as, cantairachd, an hymning or singing, from canam, I sing; mosgaltachd, vigilance, from mosgalam, I wake or watch.

5. Of Agents.

darfacere

Agents or doers subjoin oir, and sometimes air, to the present participle of verbs; as, scriobhadh, writing; scriobhadoir, a writer or attorney: tagradh, a pursuing or process; tagradair, or fear tagraidh, a prosecutor: or by changing the termination into air; as, Cruthichoир, the Creator, from cruthuchadh, a creating.

Some write the termination fheар in place of oir, affecting an idle knowledge in the etymology of words, at the expence of hurting the eye of every reader with the bristly appearance of an useless assemblage of consonants. No more consonants than are necessary to express the true pronunciation of words ought to be written; and since the number of diphthongs diphthongs and triphthongs are ascertained (as attempted in this Analysis), many of the consonants formerly written become superfluous. It would be as just in Latin to write amatvir instead of amator, as to write in Galic flanuigh fheair in place of flanioir.

Some are formed by adding ich; as, buain, reaping; buanich, a reaper; snamh, swimming; snamhich, a swimmer.

Others are formed by making the name fearr, a man, or bean, a woman, govern the action in the genitive; as, fear-tighe, an husbandman; bean-tighe, an housewife: fear-ceaird, a mechanic; fear-buile, a freeholder, a laird, sometimes a tacksman or lessee; fear-bainse, a bridegroom; bean-bainse, a bride; fear-moirt, a murderer; riogh, a king; bean-riogh, a queen; diuc, a duke; bean-diuc, a duchess; priunse, a prince; bean-phriunse, a princess; iarla, an earl, bean-iarla, a countess; baran, a baron, bean-bharain, a baroness; morair, a lord, or great man; bean-morair, a great lady: tiarna, a general name for a proprietor or lord over any thing, commonly an esquire, has bean-tiarna, applied to gentlewomen in general, as the English word Lady.

Some are also formed by making the collective words luchg, or muintir, govern the action in the genitive; as, luchg faire, watchmen; luchg fairg, seamen; luchg seanachais, historians, &c.

6. Of Adjectives.

All Collectives end in ach, agach, or anach, terminations equal to osus in Latin ; thus, ballach, spotted, full of spots, is formed from ball, a spot ; bainach, milky, from baine ; badanach, full of locks ; cathach, of or belonging to battles, from cath, a battle ; griannach, sunny, from grian, the sun.

Those which signify tendency end in ol ; so, feimol, necessary, from feim, use, necessity ; laichol, daily, from la, a day ; coinol, kindly, from coinas ; srool, prodigal, from sro, prodigality ; misnachol, courageous, from misnach, courage ; gaisgol, valiant, from gaisge, valour ; ainmol, renowned, from ainm, a name.

Those that subjoin or to the primitive, signify abounding in, full of ; as, sultor, full of sap, from sult, fat ; Trenmore, a man of strength and valour, one of Ossian's heroes ; tlachdor, handsome, from tlachd, a liking, handsomeness ; ceolor, in the Irish dialect ceolmhor, musical, eminent in music, from ceol, music ; Cathmor, great in battle, one of Ossian's heroes, from cath, a battle.

All gentile or patronymic Adjectives end in ach ; as Albanach, a Scotsman ; Erinach, an Hibernian ; Sasganach, an Englishman ; Francach, a Frenchman ; Fedaltach, an Italian ; Lochlunach, a Dane.

Adjectives that shew possibility and facility prefix so ; as, so thuigse, easy to be understood, intelligible ; so thogal, easy to be lifted up or acquired ; so dheante, easy to be done, possible. Those that denote impossibility prefix do ; as, do-thuigse, difficult to understand, unintelligible ; do-thogal, not easily taken up or acquired ; do-dheante, that cannot be done, impossible.

7. Of Numerals.

Aon and da, one, two, have the aspirate h after the initial consonant of the noun agreeing with it, and which in discourse always come after. All others agree with it ; thus we say aon fhear, one man ; da fhear, two men ; but we say tri fir, three men ; ceithar fir, four men, &c. as far as aon deug, eleven, and then we go on as before, aon fhear deug, da fhear deug, but we say tri fir deug, &c. always putting deug after the substantive.

The substantive always stands between the unit and the ten, when the substantive must agree with the unit ; thus, aon fhear, one man ; da fhear, two men ; aon fhear deug, eleven men ; da fhear deug, twelve men ; tri fir deug, thirteen, &c.

Of the Formation of Verbs.

All nouns of action may be conjugated as verbs, without any addition of termination, by observing the flexion of the examples already given ; as, eisdachd, hearing, conjugated eisdam, I hear ; mosgladh, awaking ; mosgalam, I awake, &c.

Every verb has in the syllable or syllables that compose it, something expressive of its signification, whether rough or smooth, hard or soft, strong or feeble, frequentative or diminutive. These, however, are more commonly expressed in this language by the auxiliary verb, and their vast diversity of adjectives.

The frequentative is expressed as in the participle leimnach, often leaping or hopping.

“ ‘S iad a’ leimnach o Ossag gu ossag.”

Ossian’s Temora, Book vii.

Of Adverbs.

Every adjective noun may be converted into an Adverb by prefixing the syllable go ; thus, math, good ; go math ; well ; aidbarach, glad ; go aidbarach, gladly, &c.

C H A P. X.

Of the Composition of the Parts of Speech.

TH E richness of a language consists in the number of its primitives, and their capacity of various composition. The original simple principles of the Galic make it far excel any of the modern, and rival the most ancient languages. The little variegated flexion of its nouns and verbs, which is peculiar to itself, and the abundance of its compositions, render it capable of beautifully describing and expressing the emotions of the mind, without the aid of foreign words; hence it is, that the illiterate peasant on the hills of Scotland, having, in his infancy, had his mind stored with a certain number of primitives and their different modes of inflection, by an easy, though a various combination with a certain number of particles, speaks his language with elocution, a natural Demosthenes; and there is no word in the language, however compounded, but he understands.

Neither is this language deficient in the terms of art. In Ethics, Jurisprudence, Theology, and Natural History, words are not wanting to express our thoughts, and to instruct others: even in Mathematics, and Natural Philosophy in all its parts, terms can easily be rendered from the Greek into the Galic, by decomposing them in the original, and then translating lating and joining them afresh; an advantage of which no modern language is possessed.

Composition is effected in Galic by prefixing the prepositions ; as, neo-impochadh, unconversion ; an-eolach, ignorant ; or by rightly uniting simple words ; as, grian-stad, the solstice ; cru-chaochladh, transfiguration ; ceart-chreidach, orthodox ; fein-speis, self-love.

The combinable prepositions are in the Galic inseparable, and are as follow :

Ei, equivalent to the English not.

So, equal to the English termination ble.

Co, equal to con in the Latin.

Ao, equal to un.

Ath, again ; equal to the Latin re.

Mi, un.

Neo, un.

An, very, too ; the Latin per ; as, an-mhor, very great ; eidir, between.

They are thus compounded :

Ei-criona , foolish, un-	Mi-chriodhol , disheartened, wise.	discouraged.

So-thuigse , intelligible.	Neo-bhasor , immortal.
-----------------------------------	-------------------------------

Co-chomun , an union of so-	Eider-theangichte , inter-ciety, a communion.	preted.

Ao-dochas , despair.	An-trom , over heavy,
-----------------------------	------------------------------

Ath-nuadbuckadh , a re-	(pergravis.) newing.

The following Substantives may serve as a specimen of Galic nouns compounded :

Geur-chuisach , expert,	Geur-fgiathach , sharp-winged.
keen.
Lan-shoilleir , evident.	Fuar-bhean , cold mountains.
Buan-mhairachdain , long-liv'd.
Molt-fheoil , mutton.	Binn-foclach , shrill-voiced.
Mart-fheoil , beef.	Grian-stad , a solstice.
Muc-fheoil , pork.	Marc-fhlugh , cavalry.
Ceithar-chosach , four-footed.	Taobh-tuath , the north country.
Ioma-chosach , many-footed.	Cliu-thoiltunach , praiseworthy.
Gorm-bhreac , mixed with blue.	Aird-mheannach , high-minded.
Geal-lamha , white-hand-ed.	Culidh-bhroftidh , an incentive.
Mala-mbin , meek-eyed.	Du-fhocal , a parable.
Cam-shronach , the name Cameron, crook-nosed.	Fein-fhointach , self-sufficient.
Cam-beulach , Campbell, wry-mouth'd.	Grian-chrios , the zodiac.
Du-glassach , Douglass, dark-grey.	Fa-scriobhadh , an appendix.
Craobh-sheanachais , genealogical tree.	Geur-leanbhin , persecution.
Treun-laoch , an hero.	Idhol-aoradh , idolatry.
Gear-ghobach , short-bill'd.	Idhol-aoraidh , an idol.
	Nua-bhriouchadh , transubstantiation.

Of compounded Verbs.

All active compounded nouns may be resolved into verbs, and may be conjugated by the examples given, like regular verbs; others are declined by means of the auxiliary; and many verbs which in other languages are compounds, in the Galic have the compositive preposition immediately following the verb; thus, athnuadhuchadh, renewing, is the active substantive compounded of ath again, and nuadhuchadh, making new, is resolved into a verb; thus, athnuadhicham, I renew, &c. dh'athnuadhich mi, I renewed; athnuadhuchidh mi, I shall renew, &c.

In these verbs which admit of the flection h after their initial consonants, the same is introduced in both parts of the compounded verb, where the consonants are not immutable. The n in the second part of the past tense, dh'ath-nuadhich, is immutable, and therefore has no h; but in this verb, athghinam, I regenerate; dh'ath-ghin mi, I regenerated, it is perceptible.

Geur-leanbhin, persecution, is conjugated by the auxiliary; thus, tha mi geur-leanbhin, bha mi geur-leanbhin, &c.

Verbs have some component particles after them, in-

in this manner, snamham, I swim ; snamham tharis, I swim over, across, thus,

“ Mar gblas-fgiath, roi thaomadh nan nial,
 “ Snamh tharis tha gealach na h oich.”

OSSIAN.

Of the Adverb in Composition.

As all primitive, so all compounded adjectives and participles are used adverbially, by prefixing the syllable go ; thus, impoichte, converted; neo-impoichte, unconverted; go neo-impoichte; criodhol, hearty, cheerful; neo-chriodhol, disheartened, sorrowful; go neo-chriodhol, sorrowfully, in a sorrowful manner.

SYNTAX is the proper disposition of words in a language.

General Rules.

I. An adjective and the article agree with a substantive in gender, number, and case, (the substantive always going before the adjective) ; as, an (or) a' chaoradh bhan, the white sheep; an duine bochd, the poor man.

Is uamhorachd do'n tiarna na beoil bbreugach,
Prov. xii. 22.

Coimhdhidh bean ghrasor onoir; agus fir laidir saibhras, Prov. xi. 19.

Imich as fianuis an duine amidaich nuair nach mothuich thu ann beul an eolais, Prov. xiv. 7.

“ Mhoraig chiataich a' chuil dualaich,
“ Is e do luaidh a tha air m' aire !

Macdonald's Odes.

The possessive pronouns mo, my; do, thy; and the masculine a, his, its; have the h aspirate after the initial consonant.

“ O Dhia is tu mh Dia, go moch
“ Do iarramh thu gach la
“ Ro thartor ata m'anam bochd
“ Ann geall ort fein do ghna.” Psal. lxiii.

When the noun begins with a vowel the aspirate is lost; as, m'anam; d in do, thy, is changed into t before a vowel; as,

O pill rium us dean trocair orm,
Thoir neart do t' oglach fein.
Do mhac do bhan-oglaich faraon
Dean fuasgladh ann a fheim.

The possessive a, his, its, before nouns beginning with vowels, often sinks, and is lost. Thus,

Dhoirt

Dhoirt e anam amach, he poured out his soul; instead of dhoirt e a anam, &c. to shun the hiatus.

In this case, if a is the feminine possessive, the h euphonic must be introduced; thus, dhoirt i a h anam amach, she poured out her soul.

The Irish, and even the Scots, needlessly prefix an n to the possessive a of either gender; thus, le na lamb, with his hand; whilst le a lamb, sounds agreeably enough, because the vowels are broad and small.

It is somewhat difficult to know, whether the a be masculine or feminine when the noun begins with any of the immutable consonants. The distinction depends on the sense of the sentence; when feminine, the l, n, or r seems in reading and speaking as if double; thus, le a lamb, with his hand; le a lamb, with her hand, is pronounced as if le a llamb.

As the letter a seems to have so many significations, and to serve so many uses, it may be proper here to settle its extent.—The letter a, in the modern books in Galic, I believe, has as many different meanings as the iod has amongst the Rabinical Doctors of the Jews in their traditions and Caballa. Even Mr. Macfarlane, and Mr. Stewart, the translator of the Scotch version of the New Testament, have written this letter of many meanings without any fixed rule. With them and others,

A signifies bis, her.

A, relative pronoun that.

A, for ag, the sign of the present participle.

A, sign of the infinitive.

A, a preposition, before the names of places signifies to.

A', for an, the article the.

A, for O! a sign of the vocative ; as, a Dhia, O God !

I leave it to any one who has the least knowledge of grammar, whether it be possible for even those who naturally speak the language, to distinguish the one from the other, where the whole may recur twice or oftener in one page. In order therefore to settle the whole, I have consulted the genius of the language, and dismissed them all except three, which I explain as follows :

A', for an, the article used before such nouns of the feminine as begin with particular letters, such as b, c, p, m, &c. as, a' chaoradh, the sheep ; a' bhiaistog, the worm ; a' bhean, the woman.

A, the relative pronoun that, which has generally its antecedent substantive immedately before it, and which distinguisheth it from

A, the possessive pronoun, bis, her, its.

First, the relative, and then the possessive, may be seen in the following examples :

Is sonadh an ti a gheibh eagnai, agus ari duine a gheibh tuigse.

Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding.

Oir is fearr a ceannachd na ceannachd airgaid, agus a tairbh na or glan.

For the merchandise of it is better than silver, and the gain thereof than fine gold.

II. A verb agrees with its nominative after it immediately ; as, chruinich mi, I assembled ; scriobh e, he wrote ; ghlac iad, they received.

Duisgidh fuath, imreason ; ach folachidh gradh gach cionta.

Hatred stirreth up strife ; but love covereth all sins.

Teasairgidh trocair & firin an riogh : agus le trocair cumar suas a chathair.

Mercy and truth preserve the king : and his throne is upholden by mercy.

The relative a, and the pronoun an ti, he, require the aspirate in the verb, though in the present tense ; thus,

An ti chuiras, is e a bhuainas.

He that soweth shall reap.

III. When two substantives come together signifying different things, the latter is put in the genitive; as, mulach a' chin, the crown of the head; bonn na cois, the sole of the foot; lamb fir, a man's head.

'Tha mallachd De an tigh an droch-dhuine : ach beannuchidh e aitra an ioraic.

The curse of the Lord is in the house of the wicked : but he blesseth the habitation of the just.
Prov. iii. 33.

Na tig asteach ann casan nan ciontach; agus na gluais ann slighe nan droch-dhaoine.

Enter not into the path of the wicked ; and go not in the way of evil men.

Names of quantity also govern the genitive ; as, moran ionnais, much treasure ; began sonais, little good.

IV. Partitives, Superlatives, and Interrogatives govern the Dative, and sometimes the Ablative plural ; as, co agin? which of us? aon dhiu, one of them ; aon is laidre do'n Pheine, the strongest of the Fingalians.

Is onoraiche anois an gniombh,
No coig ceud mile bola ;
'S fearr aon siola dfhail 'f ann stri
Na Galloinfhion air borda.

Macdonald's Odes.

V. The

V. The measure of any thing has the preposition air before the dimension ; as, da fhichid traigh air doimhnachd, forty feet deep.

VI. Adjectives of plenty and want govern the genitive or dative ; thus, ianfion, full of wine ; fallamb do thuigse, void of understanding.

All those Adjectives which signify any affection of the mind have the preposition air before the following nouns ; thus, math air fairge, experienced at sea ; eolach air lagh, skilled in law, juris peritus.

VII. An active verb governs the Accusative ; as, bhuail e me, he struck me : scriobh e littir, he wrote a letter :—Duisgidh fuath imreason : ach folachidh gradh gach cionta.—Hatred stirreth up strife ; but love covereth all sins.—Prov.

N. B. We cannot with strict propriety say that the Galic has an accusative, because the nominative and accusative are always the same. This construction means, that the noun (next to its immediate nominative) following the verb must be of the nominative case. To prove this, duisgidh imreason is the verb and nominative, as well as duisgidh fuath, only fuath is here next the verb : so both are of the nominative ; the situation only determining the nominative or person, and the governed noun.

EXCEPTION. If the verb be of the infinitive, or of any of the combined tenses, where the participle occurs, the noun following is of the genitive case ; as, dh'eisdachd sgeoil, to hear news ; ag rusgadh nan craobh, stripping the trees. And if the word governed be any of the pronouns, it must go before the verb ; thus, Bhraithre ionnbin tha an scrioptoir ag ar brosnuchadh ann iomad ait, &c.—Dearly beloved brethren, the Scripture moveth us in sundry places, &c.

Here I think it proper to interdict the false constructions common in conversation, and which the Rev. Mr Macfarlane of Killinvir, the only person who seems to have studied the genius of the language, frequently falls into. Instead of writing ag ar brosnuchadh, he writes, as it is rapidly pronounced in common speech, gar brosnuchadh ; nor does he at the same time account for the part of speech gar, but leaves it mysterious and undetermined. In like manner gam, instead of ag mo ; as, ag mo bhuairadh, disturbing or tempting me ; gam bhuairadh : so gam eisdachd, or ga m' eisdachd, in place of ag m' eisdachd, hearing me, or listening to me : so likewise gan, in place of ag an ; as, gan eisdachd, instead of ag an eisdachd. The cause of this mistake, I am certain, is writing from the ear only, without an allowance for the velocity of sound.

VIII. The infinitive (formed by the dative of the present participle) follows a verb of motion ; as chuaidh aidh e dhufgadh chlach, he went to raise stones ; or has the noun governed going before it; as, tha e ceart Dia mholadh, it is right to praise God : and if an adjective come before it, though at a distance, the aspirate h is dropped, or the nominative of the participle is used ; thus, Is egin dhamh scriobhadh, I must write ; tha mi deonach dol amach, I am willing to go out.

IX. The auxiliary verb ata, or tha, and is, with the prepositions ag or le, govern the ablative ; tha e agad, you have it ; is leam e, it is mine.

X. When a substantive comes after the participle perfect of the active voice (made by putting air before the present), the substantive following is put in the dative ; as, air labhairt dhamh, I having spoke, or when I spake. This construction is equivalent to the Latin ablative absolute.

XI. The interjections O, and some others, come before the vocative ; as, O dhuine ! O man !

EXCEPTION. Anaobhin, and mairg, like the Latin hei and ve, govern the dative ; as, anaobhin dhuibh, woe unto you.

XII. The subjunctive particles cho, cho'n, cho do, not, chum agus gu, as observed under the article of Verb, are joined with the subjunctive mood. And,

XIII. The conditional particles ma, if; nuair, when; antra, when, &c. before the indicative; examples of which follow :

Subjunctive.	Indicative.
An cruinich mise? do, or can, or may I gather ?	Cruinicham , I gather.
Am bheil thu ag cruinu- chadh? art thou gather- ing?	Tha mi ag cruinuchadh , I am gathering.
Cho ro sinn ag cruinu- chadh , we were not ga- thering.	Bhasinn ag cruinuchadh , we were gathering.
Chum agus gu do chruinich sibh , so that ye gather- ed.	Chruinich sibh , ye gather- ed.

XIV. In all languages conjunctions couple like tenses and cases; as, damfidh thusa us seinidh mise, you shall dance and I will sing; a' bhean & na paisdan, wife and children.

GALIC LANGUAGE.

B O O K IV.

P R O S O D Y.

SOUNDS are either quick or slow, rough or smooth, strong or feeble. From the various modifications of these in a language, may, perhaps, be discovered, the manners, the temperament, and feelings of a people, at the time of its formation. The Gael, when their language was formed, seem to have been in that state of society, when the arts of peace and war were not entirely strangers ; when it was an approved maxim, to “ bind the strong in “ arms, but spare the feeble hand, be a stream of “ many tides against the foes of thy people, but like “ the gale that moves the grafts to those who ask thy “ aid.”

"aid."—Parcere subiectis, debellare superbos. Such was the genius of the language in the days of Tremor and of Fingal; and even now it is the most suited either to rouse the soul to feats of arms, or inspire pity in the relentless breast;

"To soften rocks, and bend the knotted oak."

"The intermixing of long and short syllables renders a language most agreeable. Italian words, "like those of the Greek and Latin, have this property almost universally, the English and French "words are generally deficient; in the former the "long syllable being generally removed from the end "as far as the sound will permit; and in the latter, "the last syllable being generally long *." But what renders a language chiefly agreeable, is its power of expressing in sound the nature of the thing signified; this is the true standard to estimate the merit of a language, and tried by which, the Galic will be found inferior to none.

In the Galic certain letters have strong, bold, smooth, or solemn sounds. O and u are bold, strong, and solemn. The combinations ai, ei, are cheerful and soft; as failte! hail! compaitl, company; aighar, joy. Ao is soft and solemn; as, ⁺doradh, worship; aois, old age. Eo, io, are musical; as, ceol, music; seoladh, sailing; iosal, low.

Consonants likewise have their inherent power of expression.

expression. L, and the combinations bh and mb are soft and meek ; as, liobha, smooth ; sleamhin, slippery ; seamb, mild ; caomb, meek.—C and g, with their combinations ch and gh, are soft, sprightly, and forcible.—R is angry and proud ; as, troid, scolding ; brod, pride ; ardan, haughtiness.

All syllables are long or short in their sound ; words are made up of one or more syllables ; and a sufficient number of words compose a sentence. A sentence, therefore being constituted by words of one or many syllables, or feet, which are long and short, the sentence itself must have many syllables, or feet, long and short. Prose and verse, then, differ only in this, that the first is irregular, and written according to every one's fancy ; but the last is always fixed, and subject to rule.

Of Rhime.

No language is more susceptible of Rhime than the Galic ; it is not, like the Greek and Latin, chained to certain terminations, which refuse rhyme, but at once admits of all the variety of ancient and modern versification.

Final rhyme in Galic does not consist in terminations of similar letters, but in the last strongly pronounced vowel or diphthong in a word. Thus, Ceo! and coir ; nan and beann ; taom, caoin ; sioth, sios ; non, trom, &c. are true rhimes ; as,

Inghina Shalem ! duisgibh nois an ceol
 Dh'orana neamhidh 'n guth is aird' is cóir !
 Neamhidh mar dhiriuchd anuas an iocshlant taom
 Us ann an geal-fhath siol an fhras go caoin !
 Faic togal suas a chean ard Lebanon,
 Faic air na cnoic ag damhsadh cranna trom.

It has also, as well as the English, double rhyme.

" You'll find, if once the monarch acts the monk,
 " Or, cobler-like, the parson will get drunk ;
 " Worth makes the man, and want of it the fel- low,
 " The rest is all but leather or prunella.

So,

Faic neoil lan spios ag eirachd suas o Sharon,
 Us lus-mhaoth Carmel dea-bholadh nan Speuran.

Of Measure.

The Galic poetry, unlike the English, which is generally confined to dissyllables and monosyllables, admits of words of any length. Galic poets never yet wrote by any other rule than the ear, and certain pieces of music; and for that reason, though we may easily see what sort of measure each piece delights in, the uniformity of the same number of similar measures in every line, does not always return. This may be easily accounted for, by observing, ing, that all compositions have hitherto been orally repeated, and which, by different persons, will ever be differently performed : whereas, had these pieces been written, every one would have repeated them alike. Even Ossian's poem could not be scanned ; for every reciting bard pronounced some words differently, and sometimes substituted one for another. Nevertheless, the poetry always pleases the ear, and is well adapted to the music for which it was originally intended ; and the language and composition seldom fail to please the fancy, and gain approbation.

Having no correct edition of any poem in the language, we can only in general observe what measures their poets employ, and recommend regularity and method to future writers. Since vocal effort by nature is the same in all languages, the Galic measures by the same feet as every other tongue ; viz. Dactyles, Spondees, Iambs, Trochees, &c.

Dactyle -oo, one long, and two short syllables ; as, aithrachas, repentance ; dleasdanach, dutiful ; bachlagach, of, or belonging to curling locks.

Spondee --, two long syllables ; as, iomlan, perfect ; oscion, above.

Iamb oo-, a short and a long syllable ; coineal, a candle.

Trochee -o, one long, and one short syllable ; as, samhradbh, summer ; geamhradbh, winter ; car-rach, spring ; faomhar, harvest ; crabhach, religious.

Of the different Sorts of Poetry.

Heroics of ten feet are generally iambs ; thus,

Neamhidh ! mar dhriuchd anuas an iocshlaint
taom,
Us, ann an geal-fhath, siol an fhras go caoin !
Le tin's le lag ni cuiduchadh an lus,
O dhoinnunn fasgadh, dubhradh fuar o theas ;
Gach eucoir sguiridh, siubhlidh ciontan sean,
Us togidh Ceartas ris ag tein a meigh ;
Mach thar an t faol flat ola sinidh Sioth,
'S ann truscan geal theid Neochiontas 'nsin fios.

The measure of Ossian's poetry is very irregular and various. Generally he has couplets of eight, though they do not rhyme, and seven, and sometimes nine syllables. These feet are most commonly trochee and daftyle. The trochee occupies the first, daftyle the second and third, and a long syllable ends the line. Thus,

Thanic errach le sioladh nan speur,
Cho d'eirich duill' uaine dhamh fein.
Chunic oigna me samhach 's an talla,
Agus bhual iad clairsach nam fonn.
Bha deoir ag taomadh le gruaidhan Mhalmhin ;
Chunic oigh' me 's mo thuiradh go trom.
C'uim' am bheil thu co tuirsach a' m' fhianuis,
Chaomh Ainnir og Luath-ath nan fruth ?

An ro e sgiamhach mar dhearsa na greine?
 Am bu cho tlachdor a shiubhal's a chruth?
 'S taitnach t f'honn ann cluas Ossian,
 Nighain Lu ath-ath nan fruth dian.

Ossian's Malvina's Dream.

These lines have beauties that the translation, notwithstanding its excellence, has not been able to display.

The Editors of the Galic Psalms confined their measure to eight and six syllables; thus,

Sior-bheannuchibh Dehobha mor,
 O! aingla treun ann neart,
 Tha deanamh iarrtais mar is coir,
 Ag eisdachd re a reachd. Psal. ciii. 20.

The following stanza, from a beautiful ode by Macintyre, though originally wrote to a certain tune, however, preserves a regular return of rhyme. The lines are alternately nine and seven syllables; the second and fourth rhyme; and sometimes the first and third.

Do chuach-fhalt ban air fas co barrail,
 'S a bhar lan chaniag us dhual;
 T'aghaidh ghlan, mhalta, naraich, bheanal,
 Dho dha chaol-mhala gan ghruaim;
 Suil ghorm, liontach, mhin-rosg, mheallach,
 Gun di cur sal' ann do ghruaidh,

Dead

Dead gheal iobhri, dhionach, dhaingean,
Beul bidh nach canadh ach stuaim.

Shiubhladh tu fasach airidh gline,
'S an ait ann cinnadh an spreidh,
'G am bleothan mu chro ; 's bhith'dh choir na h
innis,

Laoigh og ag miradh 's ag leum ;
Cho mheasa do lamh 's tu lamh ri coinnail
No'n seomar foilleir ri grein,
Ag fuaidhal 's ag faineadh bhan us phionar,
Ann am chur grinnis air greus.

The same poet, though illiterate, exclusive of his tune, seems to have a design in making the second and fourth, and sometimes the first and third rhyme with each other, as in the preceding example. The following stanza from his Description of Coire Cheathaich, has in the first line ten, and in the second nine syllables.

'Sa'mhaddin chiuin-gheal, an t-am dliamh dusgadh,
Aig bun na stuice b'e 'n sugradh leam :
A' chearc le sgiucan ag gabhal tuchain,
'S an caolach cuirtal ag durdal crom.
An dreathan furdal, 's a rioblaid chiuil aige,
Ag cur nan smuid cheth go luthor binn,
An truid 's am bru-dhearg, le moran unaich,
Re ceilar fundach bu shiubhlach rann.

There is a poem composed by the same author,
the

the variety of which is singular. It is called Beindorain. The stanzas are very long. The first is recitative; of which the first line is iambic, and consists of seven syllables; the second of four syllables, the three last make a dactyle. The second couplet repeats the same feet, and then goes on in the most diversified measures of dactyle, trochee and iamb. One imagines, on reading them, he sees an army of men on a hasty march; sometimes running, sometimes halting at once, then slowly moving, again running, and stopping at once, in strange variety. Macintyre, in this poem, imitated Macdonald, who wrote two pieces, in the same style, set to Piobairachd—

The following is a specimen from Macintyre :

B'i sin a' inhaøflach luainach,
 Feadh organan ;
 Bioaichan nan bruach
 'S aite comhnuidh dhi,
 Duilagan nan craobh,
 Criomagan a gaoil,
 Cho b' e 'm fotruis.
 A h aigna ea-trom suaire,
 Aobhach ait gan ghruaim,
 Cean bu bhraise, ghuanaiche,
 Gheraiche ;
 A' chre bu cheanalt fluaim,
 Chalich i go buan
 Ann glean a' bharaich uaine
 Bu nosaire.

Second part, slower.

'S i 'n eilaid bhieg, bhinnach,
 Bu ghunaiche fraonadh,
 Le cuinein geur, biorach,
 Ag fíradh na gaoithe,
 Gasganach, speirach,
 Feadh chreachan na beine,
 Le eagal roi theine,
 Cho teirin i aonach, &c.

Third part, slow.

Cho b' aithne dhamh co leanadh i
 Do fheara na roin tòrpa,
 Mur faicadh e dea-ghean urra,
 'S tein farasda 'n a co-dhail,
 Go fàitach bhith 'n a h earalas,
 Tein am faigse dhi ni'an corruiich i,
 Go faicilach, gle earralach,
 Man fairich i 'n a coir e, &c.

These different measures are called urlar, siubhal, and An crunluath.

There is a species of poetry peculiar to the Gael called Iurram and Orain luathaibh. The music of the Iurram has always that mixture of grandeur and melancholy that never fails to gain its end. They are sung on board of ships and buirlings by the sailors, when they row or work, to deceive the time. The subject subject is generally the life and actions of some chief or relation. The language is such as to express the sentiments and actions described ; the music, expression, and the strokes of the oars, coinciding in such exact time, both the sailor and passenger forget their hardships and fatigue, even in the most inclement seasons. The Oran luathaidh, with the same view, is sung when they work on shore, and derives its name from luthadh, milling or fulling. Till very lately, fulling of cloth by mills was not known in the Highlands, and in some parts is not yet introduced. They fulled their cloth by laying it wet on an extended frame of rods wattled together, around which were placed as many women as could conveniently be employed, who, by an alternate motion of their feet, kept the cloth in perpetual rotation. One of them, in the mean time, sung the verse, and all the rest at once joined in the chorus. And even at this day, when these songs are sung in genteel company, a lady's handkerchief or a gentleman's bonnet supplies the place of the piece of cloth, every one taking hold of a corner. The time of this species of singing is not so quick as that of the Reel, nor so slow as the Iurram. It is exceedingly lively, however, and justifies what a French gentleman observed of the Scots music : La musique Eccojoise sur tout pour le divertissement & toucher le coeur. The following is a specimen of an Oran-luathaidh :

I.

'Togamid fonn air luathadh a chlolain,
Gabhainid ceol us orain mhatha.

Chorus.

Horo gu'n togin air shugan fhathasd,
Horo i io man d'theid mi laidhidh ;
Horo gu'n togin air shugan fhathasd.

* I thought it proper to give some pieces in prose and verse, both as specimens of the right Orthography, and as illustrations of my Grammatical System. And here I must observe, that the few books hitherto published in the language, however excellent the composition may otherways be, are so inaccurate in respect of orthography, that I can hardly select one paragraph without making amendments. The Rev. Mr. Macfarlane's translation of Baxter's Call to the Unconverted, printed by Foulis of Glasgow, 1750, is the most accurate that has appeared ; but he too has his errata ; they are few, however, and when we consider that he had no guide to direct his course, we must ever admire his ingenuity.

SENSEIBILITY.

Dear Sensibility! source inexhausted of all that is precious in our joys, or costly in our sorrows! thou chainest thy martyr down upon his bed of straw, and it is thou who liftest him up to heaven. Eternal fountain of our feelings! It is here I trace thee, and this is thy divinity that stirs within me: not that in some sad and sickening moments “my soul shrinks “back upon herself, and startles at destruction;” mere pomp pomp of words! but that I feel some generous joys and generous cares beyond myself; all come from thee, great, great sensorium of the world, which vibrates, if a hair of our head falls to the ground, In the remotest desert of thy creation. Touched with thee, Eugenius draws my curtain when I languish; hears my tale of symptoms, and blames the weather for the disorders of his nerves. Thou givest a portion of it sometimes to the roughest peasant, who traverses the bleakest mountains. He finds the lacerated lamb of another's flock. This moment I behold him leaning with his head against his crook, with piteous inclination looking down upon it. Oh! had I come one moment sooner! it bleeds to death; his gentle heart bleeds with it.

Peace to thee, generous swain! I see thou walk-est off with anguish; but thy joys shall balance it;
for happy is thy cottage, and happy is the sharer of it, and happy are the lambs which sport about you.—

STERNE.

Mr Pope's MESSIAH translated into Galic Rhime.

Inghina Shalem! duisgibh nois an ceol;
Dh'orana neainhidh 'n guth is aird' is coir,
Aflina Phinduis us nam maidanan,
Dubhradh nan craobh, us fuarana nam beann,
Ni 's mo cho 'n ail —Mo ghuth,anois duisg thus'
Ri bili naomh Ifaiais bhuin-air thus.

Gu uairan eile faicin ghlaodh am bard :
 Torchidh maidan, 's beiridh maidan mac !
 Feuch ! eir'chidh beangan, mach o fhreimhach Iess,
 Feadh speuran, chuiras dea-bholadh, le bhlaths'.
 Us air a dhuille trialldh 'n spiorad naomh,
 Air bhar ni tuirlin 'n colum diamhir, caoinh.
 Neainha ! mar dhriuchd, anuas, an ioc-fhlaint, taom,
 Us, ann an geal-fhath, siol an fhras go caoin !
 Le tin, 's le lag ni cuiduchadh an lus,
 O dhoinunn fasgadh, dubhradh fuar, o theas.
 Gach eucoir sguiridh, siubhlidh ciontan sean,
 Us togidh Ceartas, ris ag tein, a meigh ;
 Mach, thar an t saol, flat-ola sinidh Sioth,
 'S ann truscan geal theid Neochiontas 'nsin sios.
 Seachad na blianaidh, eiradh mhaddin ait !
 O ! leim gu sollus, leanaibh chaoimh bith breit.
 Tha Nadur, luath, ag deifruchadh a gibht,
 Curthachd fos, 's, do ghna, a tuis, ag sibht :
 Faic togal suas a chean ard Lebanon,
 Faic air na cnoic ag dainhsadhl cranna trom :
 Faic neoil, lan spios, ag eirigh suas o Sharon,
 Is luf-mhaoth Carmel dea-bholadh nan speuran !
 Eisd ! air an fhasach thiamliidh, tha guth ait ;
 Gleusibh an t fligh' tha Dia, tha Dia ag teachd :
 Dia ! Dia ag teachd 'nsin fhreagair guth nan creug,
 Us ghlaodh na beantan, labhairt, Dia ag teachd.
 Binn'bh iosal shleibhta, eiradh ard na glin,
 Tilla 'n saol 'g a ghabhal, o na neamhdha, tein !
 Uinhiachd, bhar bar crom, Shedair thugibh dho,
 Conhrad chairga, uisgan bras dean ròd !

Cluinidh

Cluinidh am balbh, tha 'n flanioir ag teachd,
 Gheal baird o shean! an dall chibh e gle ait.
 O sgiathan tiugh an t amharc glanidh e,
 Air chlach-shuil dhorch an la togidh e:
 Bheir do na cluasa duinte guth gu cluin;
 Us oran nuadh air fonna, ceolor, binn,
 Seinidh am balbh; gan troisn̄an criplach theid
 Uallach, thar altan leim, mar mhac an fheidh.
 Gearan no cumhadh, 's an t saol, cho bhith, ni 's mo,
 O'n suilan uile glanidh e na deoir.
 Ann geomhlan cruaidh, 'nsin, ceanlar sios am bas,
 'S ann Antiaro gruamach iofrain gath theid lás.
 Mar threudich math a choimhdas cruin na caoraidh,
 Innaltrádh nuadh bhith's, go tric, ag iarridh,
 Chaoidhas luchd caitl, luchd seachrain threoruichas,
 'S an oiche ghleadhas, 's an la innaltras;
 Na uain og togidh suas, 'n a lamh, go caomh,
 Gach aon ag altram, ann a uchd mar naomh;
 Marsó mor-churam, do an chinadh-dhaon,
 Gabhidh Ath'r caoinh nan lin a tha 'n ar deidh.
 Ni 's mo, cho 'n eirich riochd, ann aghai riochd,
 Ni 'n tachir gaifgaich, tograch, ie aniochd;
 Air magha, fos, cho'n fhaicar iana glas,
 Cho duisg, ni 's mo, fuaim stuic ard-fhearg, gu cath.
 Na lain, gan fheim, 'n an corrain nitar croin,
 Do'n chlaidhamh-da-lajmh nitar coltair trom.
 'Nsin palluina theid suas, us ni am mac,
 Lan aoibhnach, 'ni sin thosich ath'r o shean;
 An craobha fion, d'an sliochd fein, dubhtradh bheir,
 'S, an lamh a thug go toirbheartach, 'nsin gheibh.
 Jonadh an treudich glacidh 'm fasach lom,
 Nuair chibh e feur, us neonain, fas so bhonn;

Criosgidh,

Cliosgidh, nuair, measg nan carruig, thartor, chruaidh,
 Ni easan, leimnach, monar ann a chluais.
 Ann garaidh chruaidh, roi garradh dion nan dragon,
 Air chirith tha cuilc, us luachir turadan.
 Measg ghlean thartor, cuirinichte le dreas,
 Tha giubhas birach, us cran buicie deas ;
 'N ait lom-phreas fasidh, dofrach, an cran dait,
 'S an miortal boltrach far ro droch-luinach.
 Air magha gorm le mic-tir theid na h uain,
 'S an tiogar sdiuridh clan bheg measg nan cluan ;
 Gluaisidh le cheil, an leoghan us an daimh,
 Us glanidh nathair cos nan taisgalach ;
 An leanabh, beadradh, togidh ann a lamh
 Na dearca ballach, us an Nathair neimh, Toilichte, sealidh lannir uain an scoil,
 'S le 'n teangadh chrocach, agus gath, ni spors.
 Eirich o Shalem ! tha le follus crunt',
 Do chean ard tog ! na bith'dh do shuila duint'.
 Faic mic, us nighana, tha 'ndiugh gan bhreith,
 Faic feadh, do chuit, na h ail a tha gan bhith,
 Am buidh'nan cruin, ag eirich, air gach taobh,
 Ag iarridh beatha, deonach bhith air neamh.
 Faic ducha coimhach, gu do dhoirfa, teithadh,
 Trial ann do shollus, ann do theampul feithadh ;
 Ma t' altair ghraonach tha na riogha cruin,
 Us gibhta trom do fhas nan Sabean !
 'S ann dhuits' air spiosa Idume, tha blath,
 Us mein an oir am beanta Ophir fas.
 Faic doirfa neaimh, go graonach, fosgladh dhut ;
 Us meadhon-la go foilsach, 'g eirich ort.
 Ni 's mo cho dath a' ghrian a' mhaddin chiuin,

No mhaddiuog, no teachd an 't soluis uir ;
 Ach dorch, us foluicht' ann an dealradh glan
 Solluis do chuirt-se, tha gach sollus fann ;
 'S leat fein an la ! foilsach, ur, do ghna !
 Lochran o neamh, bheir sollus dhuit go brach.
Trath'chidh an cuan, mar dheatach trialidh neoil,
 Mar dhus gach creug, leaghidh na cnoic mar cheir,
 Ach fhocal daingan us a chumhachd treun,
 Mairidh do riochd, riaghlidh Messiah fein !

MALVINA's DREAM, by OSSIAN.

'S e guth anaim mo ruin a tha 'nn,
O ! 's ainmach gu aislin Mhalmhin' thu,
 Fosgluibh-se talla nan speur,
 Aithra Oscair nan cruidh-bheum ;
 Fosgluibh-se doirfa nan nial,
 Tha ceumma Mhalmhine go dian.
 Chualam guth a' m' aislin fein,
 Tha fathrum mo chleibh go ard.
C' uime thanic an Offag a' m' dheigh
O dhubbh-shiubhal na linne od thall ?

Bha do sgiath shuimnach ann gallan an aonaich,
 Shiubhall aislin Mhalmhine go dian,
 Ach chunic is' a run ag aomadh,
 'S a cheo-earradh ag aomadh m' a chliabh :
 Bha dearsa na greine air thaobh ris,
 Co boisgal ri or nan daimh.

'S e guth anaim mo ruin a tha 'nn,
 O ! 's ainmach gu m' aiflin fein thu.
 'S comhnuidh dhuit anam Mhalmhine,
 Mhic Offain is treine lamh.
 Dh'eirich m' osna marri dearsa o near,
 Thaom mo dheoir measg shioladh na h oiche.
 Bu ghallan Aluin a' t fhianuis mi Oscair,
 Le m' uile gheuga uaine ma m' thimchiol?
 Ach thanic do bhas-sa mar Offaig
 O 'n fhasach, us dhaom mi sios.

Thanic earrach le sioladh nan speur,
 Cho d'eirich duill' uaine dhamh fein ;
 Chunic oigha me samhach 's an talla,
 Agus bhual iad clairfach nan fonn.
 Bha deoir ag taomadh le gruaidhan Mhalmhine ;
 Chunic oigh me 's mo thuiradh gu trom.
 C' uime am bheil thu co tuirsach, a' m' fhianuis,
 Chaomh Ainnir-og Luath-ath nan fruth.
 An ro e sgiamhach mar dhearsa na greine ?
 Am bu cho tlachdor a' shiubhal 's a chruth?
 'S taitnach t fhonn an cluais Offain,
 Nighain Luath-ath nan fruth dian.

Thanic guth nam bard nach beo,
 Am measg t aiflin air aomadh nan sliabh,
 Nuair thuit codal air do shuilan soirbh,
 Aig cuan mor shruth nan ioma fuaim,
 Nuair philt thu flathal o 'n t seilg,
 'S grian la thu ag fgaolta na bein.—
 Chual thu guth nam bard nach beo :
 'S glan fáitil do chiuil fein.
 'S caoin fáitil nam fonn o Mhalmhine !

Ach claoindh iad ann gu deoir ;
 Tha solas ann Tuiradh le sioth,
 Nuair dh'aomas cliabh tuirse gu bron ;
 Ach claoindhih fad-thuirse siol doirthuin,
 Fhlath nighain Oscar nan cruidh-bheum.
 'S ainmach an la gan nial
 Thuitas iad, mar chuisag, fo 'n ghrian,
 Nuair sheallas i sios 'n a soilse,
 Andeigh do'n dubh cheathach siubhal do'n bheinn,
 'S a throm-chean fo shioladh na h oiche.

TRANSLATION.

IT was the voice of my love ! few are his visits to the Dreams of Malvina ! Open your airy halls, ye fathers of mighty Toscar ! unfold the gates of your clouds. The steps of Malvina's departure are nigh. I have heard a voice in my dream. I feel the fluttering of my soul. Why didst thou come, O blast, from the dark rolling of the lake ? Thy rustling was in the trees, the dream of Malvina departed. But she beheld her love, when his robe of mist flew on the wind ; the beam of the sun was on his skirts, they glittered like the gold of the stranger. It was the voice of my love ; few are his visits to Malvina.

But thou dwellest in the soul of Malvina, son of mighty Ossian. My sighs arise with the beams of the east ; my tears descend with the drops of night. I was a lovely tree in thy presence, Oscar, with all my branches branches round me ; but thy death came like a blast from the desert, and laid my green head low ; the Spring returned with its showers, but no leaf of mine arose. The virgins saw me silent in the hall, and they touched the harp of joy. The tear was on the cheek of Malvina : the virgins beheld me in my grief. Why art thou sad, thou first of the maids of Lutha ? was he lovely as the beam of the morning, and stately in thy sight ?

Pleasant is thy song in Ossian's ear, daughter of streamy Lutha ! Thou hast heard the music of departed bards in the dream of thy rest; when sleep fell on thine eyes, at the murmur of Moruth. When thou didst return from the chace, in the day of the sun, thou hast heard the music of the bards, and thy song is lovely. It is lovely, O Malvina, but it melts the soul. There is a joy in grief, when peace dwells in the breast of the sad. But sorrow wastes the mournful, O daughter of Toscar, and their days are few. They fall away like the flower on which the sun looks in his strength, after the mildew has passed over, and its head is heavy with the drops of night.

Claidhamh Guth-ullin, or the Sword of Guchullin.

Chuir e an claidhamh, fada, fiorchruaidh,
Fulanach, tean, tainic, geur,
'S a chean air a chur ann go focair,
Mar chuis mholta gan dochair lein,
'S e go dirach, diafadach, dubh-ghorm,
'S e cultuidh, cumtadh, conalach,
Go leathan, liobhadh, liobharadh,
Go focair, fasdadh, so-bhualte,
Air laimh-chli a' ghaisgaich ;
Gur aisaiche do naimhdan a sheachnad,
No tachairt ris 's an am sin ;
Cho bu lughe no cnoc fleibh,
Gach ceum a dheanadh an gaisgach.

TRANSLATION by Sir James Foulis, Bart.

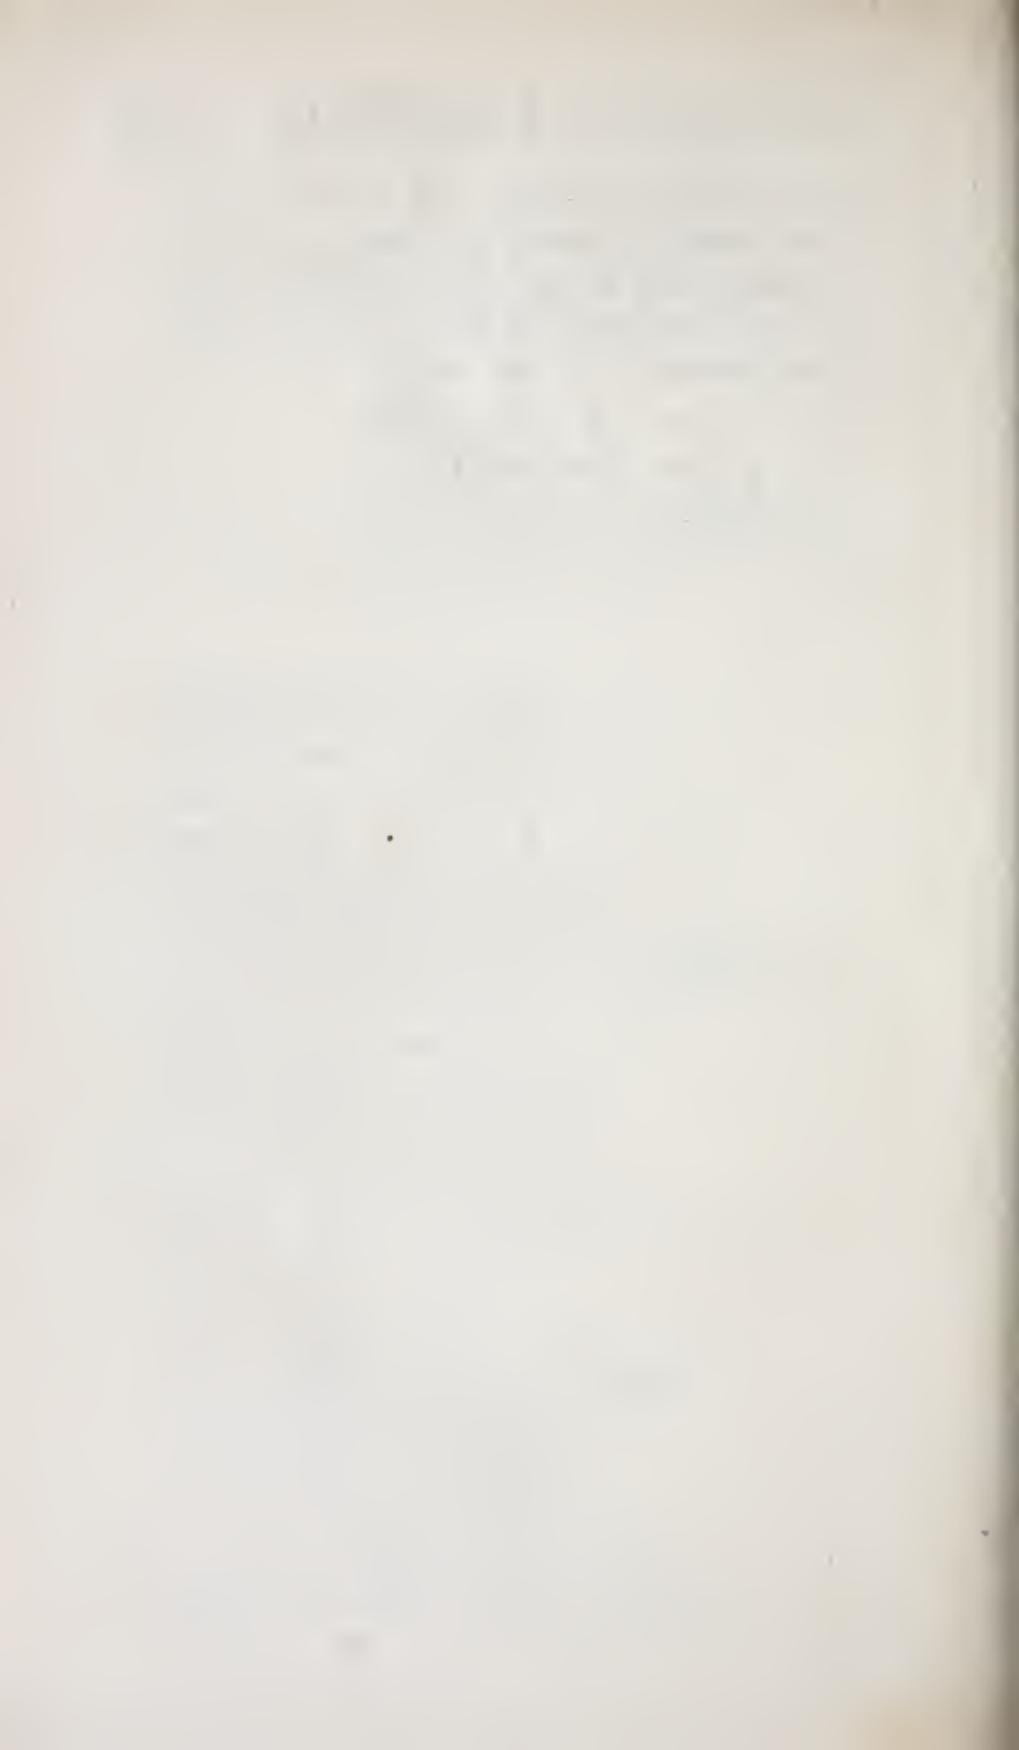

He seiz'd his sword, thick, broad, and long,
Well forg'd, well hammer'd, temper'd strong,
Polish'd, of purest metal made,
Like lightning blaz'd the shining blade ;
Jagg'd like a saw, it tore and hewed,
Inur'd to slaughter, blood embrued ;
Dire horror, and destructive fate,
On the fell edge attentive wait ;
'Twas certain death its stroke to feel ;
Strength-withering, life-devouring steel,

Ev'n valiant foes, struck at the sight,
 Durst hope no safety but by flight;
 Their ranks wide scattering all abroad,
 From hill to hill the hero strode.

ODE from a MS. Collection in the Possession of Miss Campbell of Blandfield.

'S luaimnach mo chodal an nochd,
 Ge beo mi, cho bheo mo thlachd,
 Mo chriodh air fearg ann 'm uchd,
 'S trom dubhach m' intin go beachd.
 'S anns an arach, annso shios,
 Tha bean is meachire, min-gheal cruth,
 Deud air dhreach cailc 'n a beul,
 Bu bhinne no teud-chiuil a guth.
 Mar chobhar an uisge ghloir,
 Mar shrios eala ri uisge mear,
 Glan leug mar an cathamh-cuir
 Dfhag thu me gan chobhair ann d' dheigh.
 Slat ur nam faina fionn,
 Bean is mine, moghar, suil,
 'S a gruaidh, mar an caoran dearg,
 Air lasadh mar dhealbh an rois.
 Meoir fhionn air bhafa ban,
 Uchd sollus is aile sruadh,
 An gaol a thug mi dhi r'a luadh
 Ochon nan och, is cruaidh an cas!

Cho dirich mi aonach no bein,
Mo cheum air a lagadh go trom,
Aighar cho tig air mo ghnuis,
Gus an dean an uir me flan.
Mar ghraine mulaich na deis,
Mar ghallan 's an og-choille fas,
Mar ghrian ri folach nan reul,
Bu thu fein am measg nam mna.
