PRONUNCIATION AND SPELLING.

“Caol ri caol ’s leathan ri leathan.” “A broad to a broad and a narrow to a narrow.” This refers to the Gaelic vowels, and fixes the spelling of the words and the pronunciation of the consonants.

Gaelic vowels are divided into two classes:—the broad vowels, a, o, and u, and the narrow vowels, e and i; and the rule means that a consonant must be flanked by vowels of the same class. That is to say, if preceded by a narrow vowel they must be followed by a narrow vowel, and if preceded by a broad vowel they must be followed by a broad vowel. As the language is largely made up of prefixes and suffixes this rule must be carefully adhered to, and narrow or broad vowels added, as the case may be, before affixing the necessary termination. All feminine nouns form their plural by adding an to the sing. Take the noun “sith” (shēē), a fairy, and adding an for the plural would give sithan. This would form a breach of the rule, as the th is preceded by the narrow vowel i, and followed by the broad vowel a. To keep to the rule it is necessary to add an e before the suffix, the correct spelling being sithean (shēēūn). Again all regular verbs form their future by adding idh to the root. Take the verb tog, lift, add idh to form the future tense, and you get togidh, which is another breach of the rule, as the consonant g is preceded by the broad vowel a, and followed by the narrow vowel i, and an a must be added to keep to the rule, and the correct spelling of the word is togaidh.

Aspiration.

Aspiration consists in placing an h after a consonant. This is sometimes necessary for grammatical purposes, and sometimes for euphony.

The following consonants are aspirable, viz. :—b, c, d, f, g, m, p, t, and s, when followed by l, n, r, or a vowel.

The following are inaspirable, viz. :—l, n, r, sg, sm, st, and sp.

T (a) before a narrow vowel, as ch in cherry.

(b) before a broad vowel, as in English, but softer.

Th, like English, h in has.

LESSON I.

VERB BI (BEE), BE THOU.

This is a most important verb, as it is so often used in the language. It enters into so many combinations, forming as it does the present tense as well as the compound tenses of all the verbs, and in conjunction with the preposition, Aig means possession, or to have. The pupil must consequently get a thorough grasp of it in all its forms, all of which are here given in detail. This is the only verb which has a present tense. In all other verbs the present tense is compounded of the verb Bi and the present participle.

The verb has four tenses, viz.:—Present, Past, Subjunctive, and Future. There is also the Imperative Mood.

Each tense has two forms, viz.:—Dependent and Independent, and the Future has a third, which we may call the relative, as it only is used after the relative pronoun in the partitive Ma.

The Independent is only used for the affirmative expression, as—“they are,” “the men were,” etc., while the dependent form is used for all other forms, viz.:—Negative, Interrogative, Conditional, etc.

The Dependent form depends for its meaning on the partitive which is prefixed. A partitive is thus a sign placed before the dependent to fix its meaning. The partitive has no translation in itself, but it fixes the true meaning of the verb, thus the interrogative partitive “An” prefixed makes it interrogative, and the negative partitive “Cha” makes the same verb negative. (See Partitives, page 00.)

The verb always precedes the noun, and is not declined for person or number; thus, having got the form, every number and person is obtained, as:—

Tha mi (hâ mee), I am.	Tha sinn (ha sheeñ), We are.
Tha thu (hâ oo), Thou art.	Tha sibh (ha sheev), You are.
Tha e (hâ e), He is.	Tha iad (ha ād), They are.

PRESENT TENSE.

Ind. Tha (hâ).

Dep. Beil (bpāl).

Tha mi (hâ mee), I am.

Am bheil mi (um vāl mee), Am I?

Cha 'n eil mi (chan yāl mee), I am not.

Nach 'eil mi (nach āl me), Am I not?

Ma tha mi (mu hâ mee), If I am.

Mur 'eil mi (mur āl mee), If I am not.

Ged a tha mi (ket u thâ mee), Though I am.

Ged nach 'eil mi (ket nach āl mee), Though I am not.

Gu bheil mi (ku vāl mee), That I am.

Nach eil mi (nach āl me), That I am not.

It will be noticed that Nach occurs twice with different meanings, but no ambiguity should occur, as, when it is the interrogative partitive, it comes at the beginning of a sentence or clause, and when the relative negative it is in the middle and follows its antecedent.

Were the dogs swift? Yes.

Subjunctive.

Indep. Bitheadh or bhiodh (vee-ugh), Would be.

Dep. Bidheadh or biodh (bee-ugh).

The Subjunctive is the only tense in which any change takes place throughout the tense, and this change occurs in the first person both singular and plural, in which case the pronouns have become amalgamated with the verb. The independent forms of the whole tense is given to show this, and in the dependent forms the proper termination is given, and the pupil must be careful to note the change for the first person singular and plural.

Singular.

1. Bhithinn or Bhiom (vee-ing or veeum), I would.
2. Bhitheadh thu (vee-ugh oo), Thou wouldst be.
3. „ „ („ „ a), He would be.

Feidh	(faych)	Deers.
Na caorach	(nu kuruch)	The sheep.
Caillte	(kayltche)	Lost.

When I was there yesterday the boy was not present, but he will be here to-night or to-morrow. The farmer was in the town when I was there. These cows are in the corn again to-day, they were there yesterday also; don't let them be there again to-morrow. That girl is not here now, she is gone. Is the window not broken? No. The dog is not in this field, it is in yon wood. There are deer on the hill. Were the men not here last night? No, they were in the boat. Though you will not be ready I will be. Be steadfast and let us not be afraid. Let not fear be on you. The deer were not in the wood, they were on the hill. These boys were not in the boat, when we were there they were on the beach. If the sheep were not in the pen they would be in the field. When the shepherd was on the hill the dogs were hunting. The dogs were swift, but the fox was very cunning. Don't let that stick be lost. Let the window be opened. When the shepherd was there the farmer was in the town, but if he will be at the market again to-morrow, the farmer will be there also.

VERB "HAVE." (bi with the preposition aig).

There is no equivalent in Gaelic to the verb "have." When it indicates possession it must be translated by the verb bi with the preposition aig (to) thus—"I have a book" becomes in the Gaelic idiom "a book is to me," and similarly in all its forms. This is the same form as the Latin Liber est mihi—A book is to me; I have a book.

Examples.

Has the boy not a knife? (Is a knife not to the boy?)
Nach 'eil sgian aig 'a ghille. The girl has not two books.
 (Two books are not to the girl). Cha'n 'eil da leabhar
aig a' chailleig. Though he had not the money yesterday he will have it to-morrow. (Though the money was not to him yesterday it will be to him to-morrow). Ged nach robh an-t airgid aig an de, bithidh i aig am maireach.

The verb know is in Gaelic to have knowledge (knowledge is to) tha fios aig. Ex. Do you know if he has a boat? (Is knowledge to you if a boat is to him).
Am bheil fios agaibh ma tha bata aig? No, I do not know.
Cha'n eil, cha'n eil fios agam.

If he did not know where the boat was how did he know that you had it? (If knowledge was not to him where the boat was how was knowledge to him that it was to you?)
Mur an robh fios aig, far an robh am bata, cia mar a bha fios aig gu'n robh e agaibh?

EXERCISE.

Vocabulary.

Aig an iasgair (āk un eeuskur) to the fisherman.

Agam (akum) to me.

Aig (āk) to him.

Da (tâ) two (takes noun in the sing.)

Co aig am bheil? (kō āk um vāl) (who to whom is) who has.

Co aig an robh (kō āk un rōv) who had.

An-t airgid (un tarigaid) the money.

Aig a' chailleig (āk u challig) to the girl.

Cu (kōo) a dog.

Agaibh (aktiv) to you.

Caora (keûra) a sheep.

Thoilichte (holichtche) pleased.

Eile (eûle) other (placed after the noun).

Fichead (fēēchüt) twenty (takes the noun in the singular).

Coig (kōoik) five

Tasdain (tastin) shillings.

Thogadh (hòküch) would build. Tigh (teuy) a house.
 Sam bith (sum bee) any (placed after the noun).
 An trath so (un trâ shô) just now.
 Gu cinnteach (koš kēēntchēech) certainly.
 An uiridh (un oōry) last year.

GAELIC INTO ENGLISH.

Am bheil bata aig an iasgair? Tha da bhata aig. Tha da each aig an tuathanach. Co aig am bheil an sporran? Tha i aig Ian. Co aig an robh am bata? Bha e aig an iasgair. Bha am bata aig Donhuill ach cha'n eil e aig a nis. Ma bhitheas an-t airgiod aig a' chailleig bithidh an tigh aig a' ghillie. Tha da chu aig a' chiobair. Nach eil leabhar agaibh? Cha'n eil. Am bheil Gaillig agaibh? Tha. Bithidh sgian aig a' ghille. Bha fichead caora aig an tuathanach. Bha bata aig Ian an de ach cha'n eil e aig an diugh. Na'n robh sgian aig a' ghille bithidh e gle thoilichte. Cha robh fios agam gu'n robh sibh an sin. Mur eil fios aig an tuathanach gu'n robh an gille an sin bithidh fios aig a nis.

ENGLISH INTO GAELIC.

I have not a book. Have you not? He had a horse yesterday. The fisherman has a boat, but he will have another to-morrow. He had not five shillings. The boy has not the knife. If the boy had not the knife, who had it? The girl had it. If the farmer had the money he would build a house. If you have not the horse just now, will you have it to-morrow? Yes, certainly. Do you know if the man has a boat? I do not know if he has a boat just now, but I know he had one last year.

Bi with preposition air (on).

When the verb have is used to express any quality of the mind or body, the verb Bi with the preposition air on is used, it is thus said to be on the individual.

Ex. He has the fever. (The fever is on him),
Tha am fiabhras air.

He is afraid. (Fear is on him), The eagal air.

He is hungry. (Hunger is on him),
Tha an -t acras air.

The man was astonished. (Astonishment was on the man), Bha iongantais air an duine.

Be not afraid, oh little flock. (Let no fear be on thee, oh little flock), Na biodh eagal ort a threud bhig.
