MIDDLE-BRETON HOURS.

EDITED,

WITH A TRANSLATION AND GLOSSARIAL INDEX,

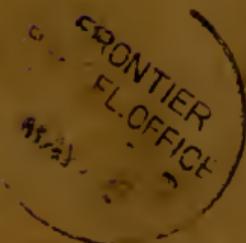

BY

WHITLEY STOKES.

CALCUTTA : 1876.

THE primary object of this little book is to save from the chance of loss a Middle-Breton text of which only two copies are known to exist, one in the possession of M. Pol de Courcy of S. Pol de Léon, the other in that of the Countess de Kergariou of the Château de la Grand Ville, department of the Côtes du Nord. That text is here reprinted from a transcript made and given to me by Viscount Hersart de la Villemarqué, and he has had the great kindness to read with Madame de Kergariou's copy a proof of every sheet of my reprint, and to add from M. Pol de Courcy's copy the Breton contained in a sheet which is wanting in Madame de Kergariou's.

The Horæ Britonnicæ et Latinæ (such is the title given to it by M. de la Villemarqué), as described in the preface to his edition of the Grand Mystère de Jésus, Paris, 1865, is a small quarto of 203 folios, printed in gothic characters and ornamented with vignettes, signed by Geoffroi Tori. The title-page is wanting; but the date is indicated by an entry on the verso of folio 154 (namely) Almanac eguyt peuar bloaz uarnuguent 'Almanac for the year twenty-four.' Now, as printing did not exist in 1424, and as books were not printed in gothic in 1624, M. de la Villemarqué concludes that the date was 1524, and the vignettes, he says, are of this epoch.

I have also reprinted extracts from a Missal (printed in 1526) and a Catechism (printed in 1576), which I found at the end of M. de la Villemarqué's transcript.

The translation is as literal as I could make it.

The glossarial index will, I hope, be of some use to the few Celtic scholars enlightened enough to believe in and practise the comparative method.

HORÆ BRITONNICAЕ ET LATINAЕ.

THE transcript begins with a Latin calendar for the year . . 24 (Almanac eguyt peuar bloaz uarnuguent, as it is called in the Table of Contents, fo. 154b), giving in four columns, first, the golden number; second, the Sunday letter; third, the day of the month; and fourth, the festival, &c. The following extracts are said to tend to shew that the year was 1524:—

Martius.

XII | d | XXII | Primum Pasche.

Aprilis.

VI | d | XXVI | Vltimum Pasche.

After the Calendar come the following:—

- * Alphabetum puerorum [‘A. a. b. c. d.,’ etc.]
- Oratio dominica* [‘Pater Noster,’ etc.]
- Salutatio angelica* [‘Aue Maria,’ etc.]
- Symbolum Apostolorum* [‘Credo in deum,’ etc.]
- Benedictio mensae* [‘Benedicite, dominus, nos et ea que sumus sumptui benedicat dextera Christi,’ etc.]
- In eleuatione Corporis Domini* [‘Aue, salus mundi,’ etc.]
- In eleuatione calicis* [‘Aue, sanguis preciosa,’ etc.]
- In secunda eleuatione corporis Christi* [‘Paternoster. Aue salus, aue uita,’ etc.]
- Responsa misse* [‘Et introibo ad altare dei,’ etc.]

The Paternoster in (the) easiest Breton that is possible.

By Giles de Kaeranpuil, Parson in Cledguen.

Our Father who art in heaven, king and creator of all good things, from you without fault comes forth* the fruit of all the goodnesses.

Hallowed be your name by as many Christians as have been born, that we may render to you honour and glory of all our work and speech.

Let come your kingdom to us comfortingly, to hasten our salvation, for the desire of your joys it is that nourishes our souls.

Do on earth as in heaven. Your great puissance is unequalled. We beseech, lastly, that your will be done.

Give to our bodies the material bread, to our souls the bread celestial, to-day, while we shall be here, your precious Body for sake of the best.

Forgive us our sins—you are the Father of mercies—as we forgive ever our neighbour and our debtors.

And leave us not to be tempted by our foes, nor vanquished by the flesh, by the world, by the evil spirits, we beseech you, our true Lord!

But deliver us through your might from all our sorrow and suffering. From our Adversary's bonds, make us free always.

The Ave Maria in Breton.

I hail you, glad of face, Mary, Virgin, who art full of favour. In your body free from sin the Saviour of the world shall be conceived.

It is not through human nature that your chastity has been preserved: the Lord is surely with thee a virgin since the birth.

Blessed is the fruit of thy womb, Jesus, Son of God, the saviour of the world, who is descended from the heaven like a man to restore human nature.

Holy Mary, mother of God, succour us swiftly* in our sadness :
pray your Son, our true Lord, to forgive us our sins.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS OF THE LAW, OR THE OLD LAW

Translated from Latin into Breton to the profit of the lay folk.

The First Commandment.

Let us confess by mouth and believe in heart that there is one God almighty, just and righteous, creator, saviour, redeemer and our master, who preserves us, who guides us, whom we manifestly worship as God, King, Lord and Father, whom we ought to love (and) to worship above every good, who giveth us to eat and to drink and as much as we need to cover us, every hour, and patience as regards the body and the spirit because of (the) storm and utter defeat of our ordinary Adversary, whom we shall drive from about us with the succour from Him.

So long as we love Him as we ought (and) worship Him as we can, with a true heart and perfect faith, with hope and charity, we shall have, by His assurance, without many griefs or sufferings, long prosperity for our bodies and the Paradise for our souls.

To make senseless things like idols let us not set our heart in any wise,* (or) to worship or honour them because of any divinity (therein); for God the Creator of a surety taketh displeasure at seeing our weakness when we take the idols to worship them or to love them, in lieu of our God and our Creator, who desires our heart and our mouth to be dedicated clearly to love God our Lord.

According to the tenor of His law in His first commandment, ye should make† a difference between images and idols :

for the images, because of remembering God (and) the saints with reverence, are needful to the lay folk : with reason and seemliness they are put in churches.

The Second Commandment.

The precious Name of the Lord God, thou shalt employ in righteousness with righteousness and reverence. To every Christian it is allowed to use the Name and to call upon it for sake of a special remedy. If it is needed by justice, thou shouldst swear by it without more. He who shall swear by it without reason, before God who sees him† shall endure confusion.

The Third Commandment.

The day of the sabbath and the sun, we should observe with true counsel in order to make prayer (and) to perform good works which will be pleasing to God the Father: to think and speak of Him, to employ ourselves, small and great: to spend the holy day in reformation of our life: to record in our memory, through all our work and speech, the resurrection of God.

The Sundays and the worthy holidays, as a work holy and divine, there is a command to keep them to every true and perfect Christian.

In labour nor in work, still less* in singing, they are not employed in any wise: God's command and the Church agree in this thing: need is to keep them for sake of the best.

A drunkard, a courranter,† a ready perjurer, a dancer, a lustful and shameless (man) makes the good time grievous‡ when it is broken out of insolence.

Honour God thy true Lord, ask pardon for (thy) sins, that at the end, when the enquiries shall come, thou mayst not be a prey to the devils.

The Fourth Commandment.

heavens, (and) who sees all our deeds, thou shouldest honour the first, and thou shalt have from Him life in this world of long duration and be put gently (?) into his favour.

The Fifth Commandment.

Thy Christian brother thou shalt not slay, in will or in deed. To be a murderer in heart is incomparably without reason, and before God a great offence, like unto that of Judas. To be a murderer in deed is an offence very enormous, for the image of the Creator is effaced from the world. Through violence in every excess His majesty is offended.

The Sixth Commandment.

Lewdness above every crime is forbidden by God. Whosoever shall practise it will be blameworthy before God: of His vigour and justice he shall endure on account of punishment the pains of this world first, (but) those of the other world are the greatest.

Every reasonable Christian should take pains to beware of falling into sin of this sort, so that he may keep from being damned.

The Seventh Commandment.

Our neighbour's goods, if we hold them through any evil gain, we ought to render them to him without lawsuit or partition. God is just in every weal: let us render to him all his wealth.

If we wish to be saved restitution is necessary. A punishment because of greed of goods is the loss of the souls.

The body, the goods, and the life, the witness ruins, slays through falseness. Above everything thy conscience should banish wrong of this kind, for of every word ill-spoken we shall render count at the end of the world before the blessed Saviour.

The Ninth Commandment.

Thy neighbour's wife, when thou shalt see her, thou shalt not regard through hope of satisfying desire through the sin of lust. Do not covet her so long as her husband shall live. Against God's commandment if thou doest it, thou wilt be worthy* of every ill-luck and sadness.

through long pain. Of his house, of his gold, of his servant, of his ox, of his ass or of his horse, let us not have care or thought.

Into his cupboard nor into his chest let us not enter without his consent, in order to enrich ourselves. So much as he possesses in this world, belongs to him alone to make distribution (thereof) in works of charity.

Whoso covets a neighbour's goods, by a true sentence casts himself into the power of the Adversary.

Conclusion of the Ten Commandments aforesaid.

Let us keep our spirit from evil thought, our bodies from evil deed. Our sins are many, God's mercy is great. (But) His justice will not fail in the case of the obstinate. Let us make our conversion to God with a true heart, with grief and contrition, satisfaction and penance, which are necessary to every Christian.

The knowledge, the love and the might of God make holiness in every place, through faith, charity and hope.

If we wish to please the Lord let us observe His commandments.
 If we wish to have the Life, let us consider them night and day, not with mouth only, but with heart and with works, for whoso speaks and doth not in Paradise has nothing.

God the Creator through love of us hath given us His law for our guidance day and night, even unto Paradise a place of rest.

Let us prostrate ourselves without any weariness, body and heart, before our God : let us beseech His grace and His might to observe His ordinance.

Keep the law, true servant, or thou wilt be deprived of the wage.

The Third.

The feasts appointed in (the) diocese, beware lest thou break them by any labour: in God's service thou shalt employ them, and to call on Him to succour thee.

The Fourth.

A fast from sin and from food at Lent (is) commanded to thee, the twelve days and vigils, when thou shalt be in age and a perfect state (i. e., old enough and in good health).

The Fifth.

Dispose thy soul and thy conscience to receive thy God and thy Saviour at Easter, with a true repentance, and live no more as a sinner.

THE WORKS OF CORPORAL MERCY.

The First.

The first, without any glory, of the works of mercy regarding the body is to give food to him who is in poverty.

The Second.

The second (work) of mercy which is also ordained to thee, (is) to give to drink in good time to him who is thirsty.

The Third.

To cover the limbs of the poor (man) with decent clothing, to the misfortunes of his body places a hindrance.

A prayer very devout to the Lady Mary and to her blessed Son Jesus.

Dove humble, kindly, gentle Mary, who was pierced by the five wounds, Bright-white Star, our Mother without fault, your Son expressly without any respite, his^a back on a Cross without any rest, present our request unto his majesty.

Through the true love, that is between you and your Son, I beseech you intercede for me with him always, (and) through the drops and the wet tears which washed your face quite, make my accord through your request, seeing your Son, the Saviour of the world, crucified on a cross-tree, his flesh wounded, his blood spilt, from the front of the head to the sole of the foot. I supplicate you with a true heart, present to Him my prayer.

Through the crown of thorns with which his precious head was encircled and wounded, obtain for me before his face to have the pardon and the grace when I shall end, that I may be pure from all the sins that are in this world.

You are the advocatess in every state for every sinner and sinneress, Lady so sweetly you preach you leave no one in trouble. Whosoever shall beseech you will in nowise be found afraid before Jesus.

Clear Sun, white Moon, as bright as heaven, Light and Example to every soul, unto you I recommend my soul, through His death on cross and the great chastisement which your Son had without any shelter, to you, Mary, I supplicate.

The Queen of the Heaven! be thou pleased to take care of the death and the life, that I may be able to amend my evil state, and to go without delay before God the Father, and at the end of the last day to appear among the just.

The sins against the Holy Ghost whereof there is no remission except through great penance.

Rash abuse of the mercy of God.

Despairing wholly of the mercy of God or of His salvation.

Making oneself an adversary of the Catholic truth against one's conscience.

Being sorely troubled by an obstinate envy because of the luck, prosperity and virtue of our Christian brother and neighbour.

Delaying stubbornly in sin with an obstinate heart without any desire of repenting or of putting an end to one's evil life.

The five sins

which tend beyond the others, which procure the wrath of God, and are said to cry vengeance before Him : wilful murder : sin of sodomy : oppressing and trampling on the poor : usury : keeping their wage from the true labourers and the poor.

The signs of a true Church.

¹ Lords, the banns of these people have been by us thrice made, and again we make them, so that if there be any one who knows an impediment why the one should not take the other in marriage, he may declare it.

² We know not ought save good.

³ You M. and you N. promise the one to the other to hold loyal companionship in the sacrament of matrimony in health and in sickness, until the death, even as is by God commanded and by the Church ordained.

⁴ N. with this ring I wed thee, and with my body I will worship thee, and of my goods thou shalt have share and dowry, as is the custom of the country.

De Sacramento extreme unctionis

[ibid. fol. xl.]

Tunc ostendat Sacerdos infirmo crucem dicens :

Ecce signum crucis in qua Jesus Christus Dominus noster passus est mortem et passionem pro nobis ut nos redimeret a morte inferni. Credis hoc ?

³ A catechism and instruction for the Catholics, very necessary at the present time for the teaching and the learning of the youth, first composed in Latin by M. P. Canisius, doctor in theology of the Society of the name Jesus. Afterward is an abridgement of that which ought chiefly to be said in the sermon of the mass to the lay folk, turned now for the first time from Latin into Breton, by Giles de Kaeranpuil parson in Cledguen Pochaer and lord of Bigodou. A Paris, etc.

(a) And leave us not to fall into temptation.

² I salute you, Mary, full of grace : the Lord is surely with you. Blessed are you amongst all the women. And Jesus the fruit of your womb is also blessed. Holy Mary, Mother of God, pray for us sinners. Amen.

I confess to God Almighty and to the glorious Virgin Mary and to all the saints, for I am a miserable sinner (for the woman, it is right to say, a miserable sinneress). Greatly have I sinned as well by dreams as thoughts, as well by utterances as deeds, and in every kind of sins and other evils done by me through forgetfulness and also by performance.^a Therefore confession of them I will make, saying : ‘My fault, my fault, my greatest fault and sin’ ; and I will pray with glorious Virgin Mary and all the saints and saintesses to pray the Lord our God Almighty for me a sinner, so that He may have mercy towards me, and forgive me through His grace and mercy. So be it !

^a i. e. sins of omission as well as of commission.

 b in Middle Breton regularly represents original BH. Thus breuzr brother, Skr. bhrātr, badezaff to baptise, root BHAT, bezaff to be, root BHU, bara bread, Ir. bairgen, root BHRAG, Curtius No. 162, bech burden=fascis, benaff to cut, root BHAN, bez tomb, bed, Goth.
badi, birviff=serve, bleut flour, bleuzuenn flower, brein stinking, root BHRAG. There are no sure examples of b representing original B; if indeed there was such a sound: bleiz bellua, bouch buck, Skr. bukka, bram crepitus ventris, may possibly be instances. In baradoes paradisus
b stands for p in anlaut. Between vowels b represents p: thus di-boell madness, ebaul colt and the loan-words pebr piper, scubaff scopare, sebeliaff sepelire. So in auslaut mab son is=the older map. Examples of b from G through the intermediate Gv are beu live (g)vivus: bron mill, Skr. grāvan: and perhaps balaznenn, W. banadl genista. In bihan little, W. bychan, the b may stand for sm: cf. σμικρός. In bro country compared with O. Ir. mrug the b represents m. In barr vertex (Skr. varsh-īyas higher, varsh-man height, Lat. verr-uca), ber veru, and bran raven, b represents v, which has become b owing to the influence of r. In loanwords b often stands for v: thus becc vetch (Lat. vicia), bergiez viridarium, berzut miracle (virtutem), bescont vicecomes, bilen vilain, burtul vultur. Assimilation of b to m is found in cam claudus (=σκαμβός) and the loan-words lim limbus, and plom plumbum.

 2. ch, *the lingual surd spirant, pronounced as in French, occurs chiefly in loan-words, and there generally represents an elder c: thus chaden catena, O.Fr. *chadaine, chaloni canonicus, chanchaff Fr. changer, chapl cable, chom to delay, Fr. chômer. But it sometimes comes from g through the intermediate sonant spirant: thus chilpat to yelp, A.S. gilpan to boast, chot jaw, O.Fr. joe, Ital. gota. In some pure Breton words it has arisen from s: chede see thou (*sell-te), chetu see ye (sellit-huy), or from t: di-hinchaff deviare, from hint via. In chouc collum its origin is obscure.

 d, first, represents original D as in dant tooth, dazr tear, dec ten, dervenn oak, deho dexter, doe god ; secondly, it represents original DH, *as in drouc evil (root dhrugh, Skr. druh), du black (Ir. dub, O.N. dökk) : thirdly, it represents original T between vowels, as in ledan broad, Ir. lethan, πλαρίς, trede tertius and the loanword chaden = catena : fourthly, a weakened t in anlaut thus drindet=trinitatem, dluz=tructa : fifthly, in inlaut it arises from j and then becomes z=W. dd. Thus dez dies, *dijas, W. dydd, Ir. dia, heiz barley, W. haidd, Skr. sasya, trugarez mercy=Ir. trócaire, leuenez joy Ir. láine (lavinia), lauarez dicere, Ir. labrae, carantez amor Ir. cairde, neuez new Ir. núe, danvez materia W. defnydd, Ir. damnae. In the combination nd the d is often assimilated : thus gonn scio ex go-n-d root VID, binniguet benedictus. In the combination rd the d becomes z : thus barz mimus, Gaulish bardus : in the combination ld the d is protracted to t and then c is vocalised, for example, scautaff, eschauder, excalidare. Lastly, d is sometimes lost between vowels (feal fidelis), and often, after becoming z, at the end of words : thus quere shoemaker = W. crydd, trede third, W. trydydd, pevare fourth, W. pedwerydd.*

- f, the labial spirant, generally occurs in loanwords, but is sometimes in anlaut found in pure Breton words, such as faezaff vincere, felch splen (Ir. selg), frau jackdaw, fri nose, froan nostril (Ir. srón), fazyaff to stray. Certainly in some, and probably in all, of these cases the f has arisen from sp. In inlaut f (generally written ff) represents, first, pp, as in stouffaff to stop: secondly, v provoked by a preceding c'h or r, as in golfaz a washing-beetle (golch-vaz, batt) and the loanwords sparfel epervier, O. Span. esparvel, OHG. sparwari, abeufriff = abeuvrer: thirdly, v provoked by a subsequent n (as in naffn famine, W. newyn, Naffnet Namnetes, staffn palate Zend çtaman, and the loanwords laffn lamina and scaffn scamnum) or by a subsequent r (as in leffr liber, loffr leper, Ir. lobur), or by a subsequent h due to the accent on the following syllable, as in couffhat to remember, taffha to taste. In caffeut to find, reuffyat remigare, afet to kiss, amprefan rubeta and the loanword steuffenn stamen, striffaff to strive, the f is perhaps due to a lost h (cav-h-eút, steuv-h-énn, etc.), of the same origin. F also arises from p in position with r (corff corpus), and from the guttural spirant ch (luffet lightning, W. lluched, conniffl cuniculus). In auslaut, v whether from b or m, is sharpened into f: thus palff=palma, barff=barba, faff=faba, cuff blandus=Ir. cóim, reuff rudder=Ir. rám, liff = lima. In loanwords f represents Latin f or ph: thus coffes confessio, dauffin delphinus (Provençal dalfin).

quere: g, fourthly, stands for c weakened in anlaut—thus gant with (O. W. cant), gueffret at the same time, golchadenn culcita, goural coral. g, fifthly, has arisen from v, as in gloan (v)lana, goa=vae, goas=vassus, gousperou vespers, gruizyaff radicare: g, sixthly, has arisen from j in the loan-word Guenveur=Januārius.

*g is lost between vowels, as in bro Ir. mrug, correenn corrigia, dleout debere, dren spina, Ir. draigen, coulet coagulum, W. ceulad, fauenn fagus, fraeill flagellum, gre grex, gueaff texere, Ir. fige, le oath Ir. luige, leal legalis, saez sagitta, siell sigillum, teu Ir. tiug, thick, truez Ir. tróige, ty τέγος, yen frigidus (ex *yagino: cf.  h: this spirant represents, first, original S, as in hat seed, haff summer, hanter half (sam-ter), haval similis, Ir. samail, heiz barley, Skr. sasya, hint way, Ir. sét, hep without, secus, hy she
Ir. sí, hir long, Ir. sír, Lat. sérus, ehoc salmon (esocem).
So the combination SV becomes ho, now c'hw, thus hoar sister, hueru bitter, W. chwerw, Ir. serbh (i. e. serv), huerzin to laugh, W. chwerthin, huech six SVAKS, hues sweat. Secondly, it stands for the spirant ch in marhec horseman, ahel = W. echel axle, *bihan little = W. bychan, buhez life = W. buchedd, gvivancia, deho = decheu. Thirdly, in loanwords, it sometimes represents f, as in hual = fibula and huevrer = Febrarius, W. chwefror.
Fourthly, in loanwords, it sometimes stands for c, as in hiffuis camisia, W. hefys, hoarays = quadragesima, horellat = Fr.

croller, hamblit = Ir. caplat. Fifthly, h is developed before an accentuated vowel. This is clearly seen in loanwords like guin-h-ezr = venátor, gou-h-in vagína, com-h-azr = commáter, pro-h-em proóemium, rem-h-et = remédium, vail-h-ant valéntem, salin-h-ezr salinárium (with the meaning of salinum), melin-h-ezr molinárius, maing-h-ezr masnáda. It is frequently found in native words. Thus, man-h-éguer glover from máne glove. So guenn-h-a-enn wart, Mod. Ir. fionna, quing-h-enn garlic, Ir. cainenn, bu-h-an cito (W. buan), bou-h-azl W. bwyell, cam-h-et step, W. cam, the superlatives bihan-h-afu, divez-h-afu, facil-h-afu, guell-h-aff, pur-h-afu, the verbs quer-h-omp, vi-h-omp, vi-h-et, gra-h-enn : infinitives in -at, such as couff-h-at, bez-h-at, blas-h-at, cazrhat, ezvezhat, nevezhat, etc., were doubtless all accented on the ultima, which, in an earlier stage of the language, was the penult.

h is prefixed in h-ac and, h-anu name, h-aznat known, h-unan one.

It is lost in abit, abitaff, enor, eur, etc.

n. The dental nasal n represents original N in na not, nau nine, nerz force, nes nearer, neuez new, noaz naked, nezz nest, ny nephew, nyz niece, an- a negative prefix, anavon souls, un one. It is prefixed in noabrenn cloud (vapor), Corn. huibren W. gwybren: nouen unguentum, nouhen oxen: it is inserted before t in mintin matin, mintr metre, muntrer murder, and before cc (= q) in punec puteus. It has arisen from r in the loanword turzunell turtur, from l in pestinance pestilence, and nignelenn ligneul, from m in exent exemptus and prount promptus. It is lost in anlaut in azr coluber, W. neidr, eff heaven, W. nef, and the loanwords yell, Fr. nielle, Lat. nigella, Ormant Norman, Ormandi Normandy.

The palatal nasal, written n, gn, ngn, occurs in quignhen garlic = W. cenin-en leek, and often in loans from the French, such as assinaff assigner, banyer, pignat to ascend, Ingneau Ignace, main-ghez mesgneé masnada. In saingner = saliere, it stands for l.

The lingual nasal, written n, occurs before the lingual ch and j: thus chanchaff to change, Anjau Anjou, rengenn rein, Ital. redina.

P is rarely kept in the neo-Celtic languages. The following are the only tolerably sure examples in Breton : palarz = W. paladr 'shaft,' (cogn. with palanca [O. W. *palach pl. pelechi gl. clavae] whence palancatum 'contextus et series palorum'), pell far (περάτος), perenn pirum, poues cessare (παίνω), perc'hen possessor (Lith. perkū kaufe). It is lost in the anlaut of the following words : ezn bird, evaff bibere, lies many, often (cf. plus, πλεῖων), ledan πλατύς, leur=floor, leun = plenus, liu color, loet=Skr. palita, re-nimis (pro), reau pruina. It is lost in inlaut in hun = svapna, somnus, ny nepos, oar ὑπερ, guo = ὑπο, quere shoe-maker (κρηπίς, Rhys), quelorn pail (καλπή, Rhys), and in the loanwords stoeaff to stoop, soez = stupidus.

p has sprung from kv in anlaut in pal spade (σκάλλω), passat to cough (A. S. hvosta), pemp quinque, penn head, Ir. cenn, peuar quatuor, poazat coquere, preff vermis, Ir. cruim, prenaff to buy, Skr. krināti, prenn wood (quernus), pry clay, Ir. cré, perz part, Ir. cert, *root SKARD, the pronouns piu, pe, pep, the conj. pan, and in poell sense, Ir. ciall in di-boell, per basin, caldron, W. pair, Ir. coire and pret Slav. kratū ‘mal’: in inlaut: di-bab to select (root SKAK, Fick³ 804), ebeul foal (equus), glueb moist, Ir. fliuch, root VALK from VALGV, enep face ἐρωπή, root AK, mab son, Ir. mac, hep without (Lat. secus), and the pronouns nep, pep.*

In pe ‘or’ (lit. ‘sit’) the p has come from b (bh), but how?

In loanwords p is a prolected b in poesell bushel, plousenn straw, canap hemp, chapl cable, divempraff to dismember, pinvizic rich. In penestr window it has come from f.

p is inserted as a fulcrum between m and r (quem-p-ret = W. cymeryd): between m and s (cam-p-s alb, com-p-s to talk); and between m and n, as in colum-p-nen column, dam-p-naff damnare, hym-p-n hymnus, and the plurals of the first person in mp ex m-p-ni.

- r represents original R in radenn fern, rann part, redec to run, rez, rez law, reuff rudder, ruz red. It is put for l in fraeill = flagellum, mesperenn = mespilus, and sabron = Fr. sablon. It is inserted in the loanwords orfeb-r-er = orfèvre (= acc. sg. aurifabrum), ord-r-enaff = ordinare, sca-r-puler = scapulare : so in the modern ma-r-tolod = matelot. In the loanwords arsaut = assault rs has arisen from ss, as in French Marseille = Massilia and orfraie = ossifraga. R is lost in the loanwords plast = plastrum, proff to proffer, and terrest = terrestris. Where it was retained after st, it must have been sounded very lightly, for we find maistr rhyming with manifest supra p. 8. It is assimilated to a following f in offebrer orfeuvre = aurifaber.

s, the simple dental spirant, is always lost in auslaut. In anlaut it regularly becomes the guttural spirant h (v. supra p. 80). But it remains in a few genuine Breton words, such as sae robe, seiz seven, sellet to see. In the combination sv the s also became h and subsequently c'h. In the combination sc the spirant often remains intact: thus scaff light, scoaz shoulder, Skr. skandha, squeiaff to cut, (σ)κείω, Lat. scio, Skr. chhyāmi, squeut shadow, Ir. scáth. But it sometimes drops, as in queuz = (σ κῆδος Fick³ i. 805.) The combination cs becomes in native words c'h, as in huech = sex, but in loanwords it becomes either sc (lausq=laxus) or s, as in flus flux, es-freizaff exfrigidare, lisiu lixivium, bisest bisextus. In the combination st both letters are sometimes preserved intact, as in staffn palate (Zcnd çtaman), stautet mingere (to stale), sterenn star, struyaff (to sneeze). But sometimes s assimilates t (sevell to arise, root stam, serch concubine, cf. στοργή, soez stupidus), and sometimes t assimilates s, as in nezz nest ex *neth, *netta, brout goad, urdeutsch *brosda, yet 'boullie,' Skr. yūsha, Lat. jus, quet 'bit' Lat. ce(s)-na: sometimes in inlaut both s and t are lost, as in caer, Ir. cathair castrum, hoer Ir. sethar sister, and perhaps creuuenn crusta, and sometimes the t becomes c, as in guisc vestis and ascorn οστέον. In the combination sp the s has changed p to f and then dropt off. In the combinations sn, sl, sm the s has gone leaving no trace. Thus nadoez needle, Ir. snáthat, neudenn thread, Ir. snáthe, neuf to swim, Ir. snám, nezaff nere (σ)νήθω, nezenn nit, Ir. sned, lazaff to slay, Ir. slaide, leuquernenn maw-worm (root SLAK 'schleichen' Fick² 552), loncaff glutire, Ir. slucaim, menauet awl σμυρίη, moguet smoke σμύχω, for σμυκω. In inlaut s disappears between vowels: louenn louse, teuel root tus. In sclear Fr. clair, sclacc Fr. glace the s is prosthetic. In esgal Fr. égal, and prosn Fr. prône the s is a 'stummes zeichen.' In loanwords s is sometimes written c (as in cim simia), cc, cs or cz.

 t represents original T in tanau = tavaFóç, tenuis, taru bull, tat father, Lat. tata, térra, teffal obscure, root TAM, teil = τῖλος, teu thick, ty té̄yos, tut gens, Umbr. Osc. tauta, tota, touta ‘city,’ root TU, try three, troat foot = Ir. acc. traigid-n, root tragh, cant hundred, ta thy, te thou. In loanwords t sometimes stands for c: thus blot foot-stool, O. Fr. bloquel, tatin Fr. taquin, rebet Fr. rebec, confitaff conficere, as conversely, c stands for t in scruyvell strigilis, and in the native words ascorn ðɔr̥éor, guise vestis. In loanwords final t is often a projected d; thus, cot code, disaccort absonus, Ouit Ovidius, palut paludem, remhet remedium. In loanwords, again, nt and lt arise respectively from nd and ld. Thus cantoell candela, confuntaff confundere, depantaff dependere, foultr Fr. fouldre, fulgurem, poultr Fr. pouldre, pulvcrem. The groups ct, tt, become z. In the group rt the t becomes, first, th and then z; thus nerz, W. nerth, Ir. nert. In the group lt the l is vocalised. Between vowels t sinks to d, and in loanwords it is sometimes lost: thus auron=abrotanum, terrouer=territorium.

V. In native words original v has become g (v. supra p. 78) or b (v. supra p. 64), or has been vocalised (v. supra p. 100), or has been lost, in anlaut, as in loffan rope, Ir. loman, root VAL Curtius No. 527, in auslaut as in ban sow, W. banw, Ir. banb. The v in native words has, as a rule, arisen either from a vowel-flanked b (as in aval apple, avonn river, bevez reus, Ir. bibdu), or a vowel-flanked m, as in sevell surgere, root stam, anavon *anima*e, and the -vet of ordinals. So in loanwords caval caballus; scruiaff scribere, di-vouzellaaff to disbowel : cavel camelus, niver numerus, pluvenn pluma. In loanwords v is sometimes lost: thus in inlaut priet 'maritus' (privatus), or vocalised, as in fulenn favilla.

Z, the sonant dental spirant, has originated, first, from t combined with itself, c, r, l or n, thus ex tt: Breiz Brittannia, nezz = Ir. nett,

*W. nyth nest, coz old, huez flatus, W. chwyth, and the loanwords baz baculus, caz cattus, W. cath, lizerenn, littera, W. llythyr, saez sagitta, W. saeth. From ct: crezenn cicatrice, W. creithen, Ir. crecht, eize eight, noaz naked, W. noeth, Ir. nocht. traez littus, W. traeth, Ir. tracht, yez language, W. iaith and the loanword striz strictus: so, probably, nyz = neptis, Ir. necht, sez = septem, Ir. secht and sezun = Ir. sechtman = septimana, courz = W. croth = κρυπτός. From rt: guerzaff to sell, W. gwerthu, guerxit spindle, W. gwerthyd, nerz strength, W. nerth, Ir. nert, perz part, W. parth, Ir. cert f. (in desert, tuaiscert, cerdd Chuind, Amra Chol. 130, root SKARD) and the loanwords berzut miracle (virtutem), deserz desertum, porz porta. From tr: azr natrix, breuzr frāter, louazr alveus, Gaulish lautro (gl. balneo) λαυρπόν, azrec compunction, Ir. aithrige, and the loanword guezr vitrum. From tl: seuzl heel, W. sawdl, alazn breath, for *anazl, W. anadl, balazn broom for banazl, W. banadl and the loanwords Bezleem, sizl situla. From tn: aznaout to recognise, W. adnabod, ezn bird, W. eden, Ir. én, ex *petna. In loanwords z sometimes represents a simple vowel-flanked t: thus costez side, It. costato, Fr. côté, caritez caritatem, bouzellou bowels (botellus), creiz creta, fouzaff futuere, sez silk, seta.*

z, secondly, comes from d, now or formerly flanked by vowels or combined with r: thus asezaff sedere, beuziff to drown, W. boddi, Ir. bádud, bleuzuenn flower, A. S. blaed, bloaz year, W. blwydd, Ir. bliadan, bez sepulchre, W. bedd, cueuz regret = κῆδος and the loanwords azeuliff adorare, courrezaff to curry, Ital. corredare, prezec praedicare, fez fides. From rd: barz = bardus, er-guerz gressus, querzet pergere = W. cerdded to walk, garz W. gardd. So when the d has arisen from j: cleiz left, Ir. cle, dez dies, Ir. dia, heiz barley, Skr. sasya, trugarez, Ir. trócaire. From dr: cazr beautiful, Gaulish cadro-s, καδ in Κάσσουνδας, κεκασμένος (Rev. Celt. II. 424) and the Ir. cadhb i. cain, H. 3, 18, p. 634, col. 2. This z is sometimes sharpened into s (cc), as in gousoch ye know, fez fides, scoacc shoulder, Skr. skandha.

*z, thirdly, comes (through an intermediate s?) from the guttural spirant ch. Thus: dazrou tear, from *dasrou dachrou, δάκρυ, dezrou o begin, W. dechreu, oz, hoz your, Corn. (ag) as, W. awch, and sezlou to listen, if it be connected with σιγηλός for σικηλός, Curtius, No. 572 and schweigen.

z is sometimes a mere ‘stummes zeichen,’ as in quezguen coquina M. J. 201 s. quezn back, M. J. 43 a, squeezenn splint, bouhazl axe. So s in esgal equal, and in the Old French esve water.
