PREFACE.

IN presenting the following pages to the public, the compiler is well aware, that there must be several inaccuracies and deficiencies; but he can assure them, that no exertion on his part has been omitted to procure correct copies of every list deemed of the least general utility; and he trusts, where mistakes have occurred, they will be found of minor importance.

Several alterations have occurred since the work was put to press; and these, as far as have come to his knowledge, he has noticed at the end under the proper head.

From the very short time allowed for the execution of the work, (almost the whole being collected since Martinmas last), it has not been in the power of the publisher to arrange the lists in the manner he wished to have done; but he trusts, from their number, their variety, and usefulness, the DUNDEE DIRECTORY FOR 1818 will meet the approbation of those gentlemen, who have so far honoured the compiler as to patronise the undertaking.

Dundee, Dec. 22, 1817.

A SHORT

ACCOUNT OF DUNDEE.

DUNDEE is a royal borough in the county of Angus or Forfar, seated on the N. bank of the river Tay, about 12 miles from its mouth, in $56^{\circ} 27' 23''$ N. latitude, and $3^{\circ} 2'$ W. longitude from Greenwich. It is a large and well-built town, consisting of several streets, diverging in every direction from the market-place or highstreet, which is a spacious square 360 feet long by 100 feet broad. On the S. side of this square stands the Town-house, an elegant structure, with a handsome front, adorned with piazzas below, and overtopped by a neat spire 140 feet in height: this building, which was finished in 1734, contains the guild hall, the court room, town-clerk's office, with vaulted repositories for the town records, and apartments for the Dundee Banking Company's office: the prison occupies the upper story. At the E. end of the square, the incorporated trades in 1776 erected an elegant 'Trades' hall, with a superb front of Ionic pilasters, and a neat cupola: the lower flat is occupied by shops, and the upper flat contains rooms for each incorporation, and a large hall for general meetings, which is now occupied as a subscription coffee-room, on the most liberal and extensive plan. Nearly opposite to the Trades' hall, in the W. end of the square, there is a neat Episcopal chapel. At the S. E. corner of the square, about 100 feet from the Trades' hall, stood the Castle-hill, so called from the ancient castle. It was composed entirely of a hard basaltic whinstone, which has lately been quarried away at a great expence, and a fine spacious street, called Castle-street, has been opened to the harbour: on the east side of this street stands the Scots Episcopal chapel, a neat building, after the Gothic stile; and immediately opposite is the Theatre, erected by subscription, and fitted up in the most elegant manner. A small distance W. from the great square, is the Old Church, in which were originally four places of worship, and which when entire had been a very magnificent building, with a large square Gothic tower, or steeple, of 156 feet high, at the W. end of the church. It is said to have been erected by David Earl of Huntingdon, in 1189, and dedicated to the Virgin Mary, in gratitude for his deliverance from shipwreck, in which he had nearly perished within sight of the town, on his return from the third crusade. On an eminence near the street called the Cowgate, the incorporated trades, in conjunction with the kirk-session, built St. Andrew's church, with a fine spire 139 feet high, exhibiting one of the purest specimens of modern architecture: there is a neat entry to the church by a broad gravel walk, with grass plots and shrubberies, laid out in the most elegant style. About a mile from the town, on the rising ground towards the hill of Dundee, is Dudhope Castle, an ancient building, converted some years ago into barracks, for the accommodation of a complete regiment: the wards for the men occupy the old building, and a new and elegant building was at same time fitted up for the officers: there is an extensive parade in front of the officers' barracks, and a large field for exercise immediately behind. Dundee has also a Sailors' Hall, which is often used for public meetings; and there are many Friendly Societies, for the support of poor members. In 1798 an Infirmary was built, for the reception of indigent sick: many years ago a Dispensary was established, under the patronage of Lord Douglas, one of the principal benefactors: which is now united to the infirmary, where the poor receive medicines gratuitously, by presenting a recipe from the attendant physician. A Lunatic Asylum also has lately been built, a little to the northward of the town: it is a very handsome building, and, it is expected, will be soon ready for the reception of patients. A spirit for literature and education manifests itself in Dundee; for, besides the public grammar school, and the English schools, which are well supplied with good teachers, there is established an Academy, or rather College, for mathematics, the French and Italian languages, and the polite arts; with proper professors in the different branches, and a large apparatus for natural and experimental philosophy. Most of the streets of Dundee are neat, and the houses well built, but the new streets are spacious and elegant. The town is well supplied with water, many families having drawwells on their own property, and every street having a public well of excellent water conveyed in leaden pipes. The harbour is advantageously situated for trade, admitting easily trading vessels of the greatest burden; and when finished according to the present plan, will be one of the first in Scotland. The Tay, opposite to Dundee, is about two and a half miles broad, and being sheltered by the high lands on each side, affords a safe road to vessels of any burden, where they may lie at anchor till the tide admits them into the harbour. Close by the quay, there are three large public warehouses, besides numerous warehouses belonging to individuals. The principal and staple manufacture is linen, of various kinds: osnaburghs and other coarse linens, for foreign markets, are manufactured, supposed to the annual amount of 200,000*l.* and canvas or sail-cloth, which was lately the chief manufacture, the demand for that article being greatly increased in time of war: besides these, a considerable quantity of sack-cloth and cotton bagging is annually made for exportation. Several cotton works have been attempted, but have not been successful.

The ancient name of Dundee was Alectum or Alec, but is said to have been changed at the time of the foundation of St. Mary's church by the Earl of Huntingdon, to Dondie, a contraction of donum Dei, expressive of his gratitude for his miraculous escape; others ascribe it to Dun Tay, "the hill of Tay;" but etymologies of names are at best unsatisfactory, and seldom useful. Though it was only erected into a royal borough by King William, it appears to have enjoyed many immunities and privileges previous to the reign of that prince: but, as all the records and evidences of its ancient rights were either destroyed, or carried off by Edward I. of England, application was made to Robert Bruce, after he had obtained free possession of his kingdom, that these rights should be recognised. In consequence of this application, Robert appointed two commissioners for recognising the rights of the burgesses of Dundee, by a charter dated at Aberbrothock the 22d day of June, in the 20th year of his reign. The commissioners accordingly repaired to Dundee, and having examined witnesses, found full and complete evidence, "that the burgesses of Dundee enjoyed in times of former kings the same privileges with those of any other most favoured and distinguished town in Scotland." On this recognition, King Robert gave to the town an infestment and charter, granting "to the burgesses, their heirs and successors for ever, all the liberties and rights of which they were possessed in the time of Lord William King of Scots, of blessed memory, before the same William conferred the said borough on his brother David." These rights appear to have been confirmed and enlarged by successive charters from many other princes; and finally confirmed by the Great Charter from Charles I. the articles of which were ratified by parliament, on September 14, 1641. The town is governed by a provost, four bailies, a dean of guild, a treasurer, and fifteen counsellors.— In ancient times Dundee was strongly fortified, and some remains of its ancient fortifications still remain at the Cowgate port. It had an old castle, which was demolished by the famous Sir William Wallace, who received his education in the town. The castle had proved very useful to Edward I. when he put a garrison into it to overawe the inhabitants; and Wallace getting possession, ordered it to be destroyed, lest it should fall again into the hands of the English. This treatment so exasperated Edward, that, taking the town by storm, he set fire to it; and many of the inhabitants, who had taken refuge in the churches, were burnt, along with their most valuable effects. It was thereafter taken and burnt by Richard II. and again by the English in the days of Edward VI. It suffered greatly during the troubles of Charles II. and the usurpation of Oliver Cromwell; being sometimes under one master, and sometimes at the mercy of another. It was taken by storm by the Marquis of Montrose; but in the last and most destructive siege, it was taken by assault, and completely pillaged by General Monk; at which time, so great were the riches of Dundee, that every private soldier in Monk's army had 60l. sterling of plunder to his share.

The parish of Dundee is extensive, being six miles from east to west, along the banks of the Tay; its breadth varies from one to four. The soil is in general uneven, but many places are abundantly fertile, and the appearance is beautiful, particularly the south slope towards the Tay. The Law, or Hill, of Dundee is situated on the north side of the town, rising in a conical shape to the height of 525 feet above the level of the Tay; on its summit are the distinct vestiges of a fortification, which tradition ascribes to Edward I. On the lands of Balgay are large rocks of porphyry. There are several quarries of sandstone, of very hard texture, containing many quartz nodules imbedded in it; but the principal stone used in building is brought from the Kingoodie quarry, in the parish of Longforgan. Along the shores of the Tay, Scots pebbles are found in great variety. Dundee has given birth to many great literary characters, of which we may mention Hector Boece, or Boethius, first principal of King's college of Aberdeen, the author of a good history of Scotland, and one of the chief restorers of learning in his time; Dr Kinloch, physician to James VI. and Mr Goldman, merchant: some Latin poems by these two gentlemen, inserted in the second volume of the Poetæ Scotigenæ, are universally admired for their purity of language and elegance of composition. Fletcher of Saltoun, Dempster of Dunnichen, the gallant Lord Viscount Duncan, and the Earl of Rosslyn, (late Lord Loughborough), natives of Dundee, are characters which would attach celebrity to any place, and their names will always be gratefully remembered by every Scotsman.

In 1792, the number of inhabitants in Dundee was estimated at 24,000; in 1801, the number returned to government was 26,084; and at the present, it may be fairly computed at 30,000.

Passage at the Ferries of Woodhaven, &c.

Regulations to be observed by the Boatmen, and others, plying the passage between the counties of Fife and Angus, by the ferries of Woodhaven, Newport, Balmerino, and Ferry-port-on-Craigs, in Fifeshire, and Dundee and Broughtly Castle, in the county of Angus; established and enacted by the Justices of his Majesty's Peace for the said counties of Fife and Angus.

1. The said Justices judging it necessary, for the service of the public, have enacted, and do hereby enact, that there must always be three stout boats, and three pinnaces, belonging both to the Dundee and Woodhaven ferry side; and two boats and three pinnaces at the east water, or Newport ferry; that one of the boats at each of the Dundee and Woodhaven ferries, must be at least 20 tons carpenters measurement; the remaining two, at each of these ferries, must not be under 14 tons burden. At the Newport ferry they shall not be under from 10 to 12 tons: each of the pinnaces not to be under 22 feet in length in the keel, and at least 7 feet broad.

2. That there must always be, at least, in these boats, two good ferrymen and a boy, and the same number in each of the pinnaces when they cross; and that on all occasions, night and day, Sundays, and holidays, these boats must cross, except when it is blowing so hard that the Superintendent gives it as his opinion, that it is impracticable; and such Superintendent must be appointed at each of the ferries for that purpose: the one for Dundee to be under the appointment of Mr Malcolm, Superinstendent at Dundee for the time; those for Woodhaven and Newport to be under the appointment of Mr Morrison of Naughton, Mr Wedderburn of Wedderburn, Mr Berry of Tayfield: the one for Ferryport-on-Craig to be under the appointment of Mr Dalgliesh of Scotsraig; and the one for Broughty Castle to be under the appointment of Mr Guthrie of Craigie.

3. It is recommended by the Justices to Lord Douglas, who has the privilege of licensing the ferry boats, that no new boats or pinnaces be licensed, but those coming under the description mentioned in the first article; and that each of these boats and pinnaces, with the list of their crew, must be registrate in a book, kept under the appointment of the Magistrates of Dundee, before they can be allowed to ply at any of these ferries; and that the boats who have been already licensed, are also to comply with this injunction. And in order that the proper conditions of the said boats and pinnaces may be ascertained, the said Justices authorise and empower the said Superintendent at Dundee, at all times he may think necessary, to inspect, or cause to be inspected, the boats and pinnaces plying at the said passage; and in case he find any of them not in a proper and sufficient condition for that purpose, he is hereby authorised to stop the boatmen from plying the passage with the boat so found insufficient, until the proprietor of the said boat do procure to him a regular bred and respectable carpenter's certificate of its sufficiency; and that the licenses of such boats be suspended, until they are put in proper order and repair, in terms of the report; and that none but those licensed and registrated as aforesaid, are allowed to serve on the passage, or interfere with the licensed and registrated ferrymen, in any respect.

4. That one of these boats and a pinnace must be constantly at each of the above-mentioned ferries, to serve the lieges, and obliged to cross instantly when ordered, at the present fares, as herein after expressed. And it is further enacted, that no double or additional freights be exigible by the boatmen for crossing under cloud of night, or although the boatmen, from stress of weather, and the wind being contrary, should be obliged to land at Ferry-port-on-Craig, or Balmerino, on the Fife side, or Broughty Castle on the Angus side, the hardships being the same to the passengers as the boat's crew: and it is likewise enacted, that a boat or pinnace must always be stationed at low-water mark.

5. It is enacted that the boats belonging to the respective ferries of Woodhaven, Newport, Ferryport-on-Craig, Dundee, and Broughty Castle, be the only boats which have a right to their turn at the said ferries; and all other boats and pinnaces must, in an hour and a half, set out, in order to return to their own ferries, except in the case of there being no boats at the ferry to which they belong, and then they are obliged to set out for the said ferry without loss of time: that if any boat take in passengers, or goods, at the ferry where they have no right to their turn, they are obliged to account for the freight of such passengers and goods to the birth-boat where such goods or passengers are taken in: that a boat is obliged to depart at high-water, and another at half tide, if the wind is westerly, and at half ebb, if the wind is easterly, and that in the event of a single passenger offering, at the ordinary fare of such passenger: that the birth-boat must, on no account, be hired, or freighted, but must wait the above periods, for the accommodation of passengers.

6. It is enacted, that the name of each boat, the master's name, and the tonnage of the boat, must be painted both in the inner and outer stern of each boat and pinnace, so that passengers may know whom to sue when they are not served in terms of the regulations: and that each night, one of the licensed ferrymen, or boys, must be on the watch, to attend the service of the public; and that each of the boats or pinnaces must have always a printed copy of the regulations to show, otherwise to forfeit their freight; and that pinnaces are excluded from taking on board carriers baggage, or luggage of any kind. Pinnaces are hereby restricted to take six passengers and no more; and all yawls are restricted to four passengers.

7. That the following rates and fares are to be exacted and levied at the said passage, and no other, on any account whatever:—

DUNDEE ACADEMY.

Mr DUNCAN, Rector and Teacher of Mathematics, Natural Philosophy, and Chemistry.

Mr GAULD, Teacher of Arithmetic, Book-keeping, Geography, English Composition, History, Logic, and Moral Philosophy.

M. LEGENDRE, Teacher of the French, Spanish,
 German, and Italian Languages.

Mr MUDIE, Teacher of Writing and Drawing.

The whole course of education is finished in two Sessions of ten months each. The Session begins in October, and ends in July.

During the first Session the pupils attend Mr Duncan for mathematics, in the various branches of theory and practice, viz. geometry, plane and solid;
 plane trigonometry, with its application to heights, distances, levelling, and navigation; mensuration of surfaces and solids, with the application to land surveying, guaging, &c.; the method of representing solids by sections and projection; fortification; algebra, with its application to interest, annuities, and geometry. They likewise attend Mr Gauld for arithmetic and book-keeping in all the parts both of theory and practice, English composition, and geography. They are two hours a-day with Mr Duncan, and other two with Mr Gauld.

During the second Session they attend Mr Duncan chiefly for natural philosophy and chemistry.— In a few weeks they finish the remainder of mathematics, viz. conic sections and spherical trigonometry. They may have a course of fluxions if the class contain a sufficient number of young men of talent to render it advisable. They proceed to natural philosophy, which occupies them about seven months, and includes the various branches of—general laws of motion; statics; dynamics; laws of gravity near the surface of the earth; collision of bodies; mechanics, properly so called; hydrostatics; hydraulics; pneumatics; optics; electricity; magnetism; and astronomy, with its application to dialling and navigation. They employ the rest of the Session in chemistry. During the same year the pupils attend Mr Gauld for a revisal and extension of the branches of the former Session; and also for civil history, moral philosophy, and logic. This class is also two hours a-day with Mr Duncan, and other two with Mr Gauld.

During either, or each Session, the pupils may attend M. Legendre, for the French, German, Spanish, or Italian language; and Mr Mudie for writing and drawing.

The various parts of mathematics, natural philosophy, and chemistry, are illustrated by experiments with a suitable apparatus.

I A. B. swear, that as a Justice of Peace, within the County of Forfar, in all the articles of the King's Commission to me directed, I shall do equal right to poor and rich, after my cunning, wit and power, and after the Laws and Customs of this realm, and Statutes thereof made; I shall not be of council with any person, in any quarrel depending before me, and that I shall hold the Sessions after the form of the Statutes thereof made: and the issues, fines, and amerciaments, that happen to be made, and forfeitures that shall fall before me, I shall cause to be entered, without concealment, or embezzling, and truly send them to the King's Exchequer: I shall not let for gift, or other cause, but well and truly I shall do the office of a Justice of Peace in that behalf; and that I shall take nothing for my office of Justice of Peace to be done, but of the King, and fees accustomed, and costs limited by the Statute: I shall not direct, or cause to be directed, any warrant by me to be made, to the parties; but I shall direct them to Bailies of the said county, or other of the King's officers, or ministers, or other indifferent persons, to do execution thereof. The out-patients since the opening of the Infirmary, in the spring of 1798, amount to 14,530 ; which, added to the number of patients in the Dispensary that preceded the Infirmary, makes a total of 22,696. The in-patients of the Infirmary, since its opening, amount to 1335.

The property belonging to the Governors of the Infirmary consists of the fabric itself, its furniture, and the contiguous enclosed ground; which, together with what the Infirmary is built on, makes about half an acre; and L.700 lent out at five per cent.

For the benefit of those out-patients who are confined to their own houses, the town and suburbs have been divided into the following districts.

First District, under the charge of Mr Lyon Alexander—From Perth Road Toll to Tay Street, and southward of the Hawkhill Road.

Second District, under charge of Mr Alexander Bell—From Perth Road Toll to Tay Street, northward of the Hawkhill Road, including Scouringburn and all the adjacent buildings.

Third District, under charge of Mr P. Nimmo—From Tay Street to the Wellgate, including the Overgate, north side of the High Street, and north side of the Murraygate.

Fourth District, under charge of Mr John Crichton—From Tay Street to St. Andrew's Street, including the Nethergate, Shore, south side of the High Street, Seagate, and south side of the Murraygate.

Fifth District, under charge of Mr Andrew Willison—From St. Andrew's Street to Lilybank and Bottlework, including Dens, Bucklemaker Wynd, Forebank, and Blackcroft.

Sixth District, under charge of Dr Huie—From Murraygate to the top of the Bonnet Hill, east side only.

Seventh District, under charge of Mr William Dick—From Dudhope Wynd to Butterburn, on the west side of the Hill only.

Eighth District, under charge of Mr James Stewart and Mr William Hogg—From top of the Wellgate west to Culloden, the whole of the Chapelshade, Dalfield, and Rosebank.

The following extract from the Regulations of the Dundee In-firmery, shows the conditions upon which individuals and societies may be permanently or occasionally connected with it, as Governors, or as having a right to recommend out-patients.

1. Every person or society subscribing one guinea per annum, shall be a Governor, and entitled to have two out-patients constantly on the medical or chi-rurgical lists, and one in-patient in the year; and in case of a greater subscription, a proportionable number.

2. Every person or society subscribing half-a-guinea per annum, shall be entitled to have one outpatient constantly on the medical or chirurgical list;
but shall not be considered as a Governor, or be entitled to vote at any general meeting.

3. Every person subscribing ten guineas, or making up his contribution in any one year to that sum, shall be a Governor for life, and entitled to all the advantages of an annual subscriber of one guinea.

4. Every person subscribing twenty guineas at one time, shall have the same privileges as an annual subscriber of one guinea, he and his heirs for ever; or, in his option, the same privileges during life as an annual subscriber of two guineas.

5. Every person subscribing five guineas, shall be entitled for life to the same privileges as an annual subscriber of half-a-guinea; and upon subscribing half-a-guinea per annum, shall be a Governor, and entitled to all the privileges of an annual subscriber of one guinea.

6. Every corporation, parish, or society, which shall contribute ten guineas to this charity at one time, shall be entitled to all the privileges of an annual subscriber of one guinea during the life of the person who shall be deacon, minister, preses, or box-master, of such corporation, parish, or society; but the option must be made at the time the money is paid. And for all smaller sums, the same privileges shall be enjoyed for a proportional time.

7. Every corporation, parish, or society, which shall contribute twenty guineas at one time, shall be entitled in all time coming to the same privileges as an annual subscriber of one guinea.

It is to be observed, that notwithstanding these regulations, the Infirmary is open to receive all persons who may meet with dangerous accidents in the town or neighbourhood, making instant chirurgical aid necessary, although there be no recommendation from a Governor accompanying the patient.

ORPHAN INSTITUTION.

The Orphan Institution, established in 1815, (designed as an asylum for the destitute orphan, and likewise to afford a plain and suitable education to the children of such families as might be in truly needy circumstances), owes its origin, not to the influence of any individual, but to the benevolence of an enlightened and discerning population. The first traces of it are to be found in notices published in the local newspapers, and circulated in handbills:—a plan at the same time was submitted to the test of public opinion before an attempt should be made to procure subscription.—The general outline was so much approved, that a large subscription was procured with little difficulty.

Those more actively concerned then ventured to call a meeting of the subscribers on the 8th of June, 1815—when to them was submitted the plan of the Institution, which met their unanimous approbation, as the basis of the future operations of the Directors, who were also chosen at this meeting from among the subscribers.

Orphans in the orphan house, 1817—35—fed, clothed, and educated.

Children of the poor receiving a free education, - - -	155
Total, - - -	190

The boys are taught English grammatically, writing, and the first rules of arithmetic.

The girls—English, writing, a little arithmetic, sewing and knitting. The orphan girls residing in the orphan house are also taught spinning, washing, and other domestic operations as may tend to fit them for becoming expert and useful servants.

The funds of the institution are supported by voluntary subscriptions, donations, legacies, collections at the churches and chapels, &c.—And in the whole establishment the greatest economy is attempted to be combined with the greatest utility.

Teachers—Mr David Adam
Miss Margaret Hendry.

RATIONAL INSTITUTION.

The Rational Institution is a Scientific and Literary Society, which commenced in 1811; and consists of Ordinary, Honorary, and Corresponding Members. The object of this Institution is the diffusion of knowledge; for which purpose a Library, Museum, and Philosophical Apparatus have been procured: and it may be safely averred, that the various objects of which these departments are composed are excellent of their kind. And in order that the Library, &c. may be rendered as extensive as possible, each Ordinary Member contributes Twelve Shillings and Eightpence per annum. Weekly meetings are held, when Lectures or Essays are delivered, and Questions of a Scientific or Literary nature are discussed: But no dispute of a Theological or Political nature, which may have the smallest tendency to call forth party-spirit or sow the seeds of discord, is permitted.
