The Surname Archer.

INTRODUCTION.

THE notices of any particular surname, scattered throughout the records of past centuries, although unassociated with any prominent historical events, and seldom occurring, save in the pages of the County historian, may yet acquire, by their union in a collective form, a certain amount of interest, as illustrating the fortunes of a member of the common family.

The Anglo-Norman Surname Archer, was not uncommon in the seventeenth century. Several families of local distinction, bore it in various parts of England, and amongst them, the principal was that of Umberslade, in Warwickshire, a family much more widely spread, than might be supposed, and the only one, of any note, which, unlike those of Coopersale, Lizard, Stoke-Archer, and Dover, is certainly, not extinct, although in the person of Andrew, second and last Lord Archer, the senior male line expired, in the year 1778.¹

The following are "arms" assigned to various families of the name:—

1. Archer, Cornwall—sable, a chevron between 3 broad arrows argent (the Lizard).
2. Archer, Trelaske, Cornwall—sab. a chev. engr. betw. 3 pheons or.
3. Archer, Essex—azure, a garb erect or betw. 2 laurel branches, tied by a ribbon in base on a chief emb. arg. 3 arrows, points down, betw. 8 ermine spots, two and two, in pale sable. Granted to T. Archer, of Chelmsford, in 1828.
4. Archer, Essex—ermine, on a chief azure, 3 lions rampant or. (Spelt also "Ancher.")
5. Archer, Essex—ermine, a cross sable.
6. Archer, Essex—erm. on a cross sable, a cresc^t. argent.

7. Archer, Lincoln—per pale gules and azure, 3 arrows or, barbed and feathered arg. Granted 24 March, 1684—crest, a dragon's head per pale, gules and azure, wings expanded, out of a mural crown, per pale, of last and third—to Robert Archer of Wainfleet.
8. Archer, Salop—sable, a lion rampant or.
9. Archer of Umberslade, Warwickshire—azure, 3 broad arrows or. Confirmed in 1597.
Arms of Achard—1. Or, a bend engr. sable.
2. Gyronny of 6 argent and gules, a label of 5 points azure.
3. Barry wavy of 6 argent and gules, a label of 5 points azure.
10. Archer—gules, 3 arches single or. This name appears rather to be Arches; the arms are quartered by Carew, and other old Devonshire families.
11. Archer—or, five fusils in bend sable.
12. Archer—azure, 3 arrows in pale argent.
13. Archer—argent, 3 pheons gules.
14. Archer—sable, 3 pheons argent.
15. Archer of Neithorp¹ (Herald's Visitation,—Brit. Museum), variation of Umberslade, quartering "Hulehale," "Sawcey," "Clebury," "Canke," and "Delamere," the whole charged in the nombril point with a cresc^t. for diff., the same difference being charged on the neck of the wyvern in the crest. No motto.
16. Archer (Lawrence-Archer), Scotland—per fesse, azure and argent, in chief 3 arrows or, in base a cross, raguly gules thereon a saltire of the third.
17. Archard, Yorkshire—or, 5 fusils in bend, sable.
18. Archard—argent 5 fusils in cross sable.
19. Awger or Ager, (or Ancher?) Kent and Glo'ster—ermine on a chief azure a lion rampt. arg.

N.B.—Although there is a sketch of Archer of Neithorp's arms, representing the paternal quarter, the same as that of Archer of Umberslade, the MS. itself has in writing, these words:—

Arms.—Three arrows reversed on a field argent.

Crest.—A griffin's head, from a castellated coronet.

Archer of Umberlade.

LIKE the origin of most of the patronymics of the earlier period of Anglo-Norman history, that of Archer appears to be involved in some obscurity; and it is doubtful whether the armorial bearings of the family were derived from the name, and that again from an occupation or profession, or were assumed either in fanciful reference to the name, or in allusion to the tenure by which John Archer, Champion to Thomas Earl of Warwick, held his estates of that noble—namely, by the annual payment of twelve broad arrows.

Robert L'Archer is sometimes styled, in the old charters of his time, Robertus Sagittarius,¹ which seems to give weight to the supposition that the name was derived from the warlike profession of its founder; and even so late as the reign of Louis XV., the French families of Archet² and L'Archer bore for their arms bows and arrows in variation.³

² A heraldic work, printed at Lyons. Temp. Louis XV.

There was a castle in Poitou called "Châtel l'Archer," which (circa 1373, vide Froissart) was held by the Lady Plainmartin, wife of Sir Guiscard d'Angle, afterwards Earl of Huntingdon (Froissart).

"The Archers of Lyons were Marshal's men, called 'Gens de Marechaussée.' William the Conqueror had a number of them at the battle of Hastings. It is supposed that the Norman Archers shot with an Arbalest."—Ency. Brit. 1797.

Sir John Fortescue, and Philip de Comines, mention the excellence of the English archers, as, indeed, do most writers.

³ With reference to "Robertus Sagittarius," "Richard Achard," or "Robert L'Archer," to whom K. Hen. I. made a grant of seven manors in Berkshire, including "Spersholt" and "Aldermanston," the following extracts from Clarke's "Parochial Topography of the Hundred of Wanting," &c. (Oxf. 1824), may serve to elucidate the subject:—

1. "The manor of Spersholt formed part of the royal demesne, till Henry I. (Madox, Hist. Excheq.) gave it with divers others to Richard Achard. His son William Achard held three knights' fees in Berkshire of the king in capite in 1166. Peter Achard died seized of it (Spersholt) in 1278, Robert Achard in 1299, and another Robert Achard in 1353."—(Liber Niger Saccarii).

We find the following with reference to one of the earlier founders of this family while yet in Normandy:—"In 1092, the friends of Henry the son of King William, obtained possession of the castle of Domfront. Its inhabitants pitying the misfortunes of the illustrious exile, sent one Harecher to invite him out of France," i.e. into Normandy. "This person," says M. le Prevost, "was not called 'Harchier,' but 'Archard.'" ¹ Mr. Stapleton thinks our author was correct in writing it "Harecherins," and considers that word synonymous with Archarius, which frequently appears in the Rolls of the Exchequer. We find there a Richard Archarius and a Richard de Domfront, whom he considers the same person. This inhabitant of Domfront received, from the gratitude of Henry I., seven manors in Berkshire. This grant is made to him under the name of Robert the Archer, and Henry calls him "Magister Meus." Wace, who calls him "Haschier," ² adds that it was to Paris he went to give the invitation of his friends at Domfront to the young prince. He was descended from another Achard, who appears as witness to the charter of the foundation of Soulois, in 1026, with this description, "Achardus, dives miles de Donnifronte."

In the Roll of Battle Abbey this name is written Archere.

Such are the conflicting opinions as to the origin of a name, yet much of the difficulty may safely be attributed to the incorrect and variable orthoepy of that comparatively remote period, when the simplest names were strangely metamorphosed by the barbarous Latinity then used, and which, after the lapse of centuries, cannot always be restored with precision, even by the tedious and analogical process of the antiquarian.

2. "In 1292 Robert Achard had a grant of free warren for the manors of Spersholt, Estmanton, and Westcote, which was confirmed by patent in 1402."

3. "In 1221 Robert Achard was rated at 30^s. for fifteen carucates of land in Spersholt, and 5^s. and viii^d. for two carucates and three quarters in Westcote."—Rot. Chart. 20 Edw. I.

4. "In the Church of the Holy Cross at Spersholt occur blazoned on the windows the arms of Achard—viz., or, a bend lozengy, sable."

5. "Temp. Edw. I. Sir Robt. Achard, Kt. of the shire. Arms—or, une beude sable, engraillé."

From the above it might be supposed that Robertus Sagittarius, Richard Achard, and Robert L'Archer, were not, as held by most antiquaries, one and the same person, and that, consequently, L'Archer and Achard are not merely variations of the same name. Moreover, it is not improbable that Robertus Sagittarius had no armorial bearings, but that his descendants at Spersholt and at Omberslade subsequently assumed or were granted theirs.

Guillim and other heraldic authorities have maintained as more honourable, those armorial achievements derived from warlike pursuits, and especially offensive arms, such as the three broad arrows of "Archer."¹

In a royal summons to the defence of the Isle of Ely, so early as the reign of Henry V., Richard Archer of Umberslade is styled "One that did bear ancient arms from his ancestors."²

The motto assumed, at a later period, by this family, "Sola bona quæ honesta," was that of the Emperor Ludovick IV. of Germany.³

Having thus briefly sketched the origin of the family of Archer of Umberslade, we shall now proceed to give some account of its possessions, in England, with other details, from more modern and authentic sources.

Umberslade.

PSH. TANWORTH.

"THIS being onely an antient Mannour House, was in H. 2 time partly given by Henry de Vilers (Sewer to Will. Earl of Warwick) unto Rob. Archer and Seliit his wife, and to the heirs of Seliit (in which grant it is termed 'Terra de Umberslade'), and the said Robert, called Rob. Sagittarins, and partly by Roger de Hulebale to her the said Seliit onely. From which Robert and Seliit I have on the next page¹ represented the lineall descendants with their matches, clearly warranted from the originall charters, and evidences of this antient family, whose principall seat it still continues.²

"Of William, the son to Rob. and Seliit,³ I find that he had a grant of much land here in Tanworth, by Waleran Earl of Warwick, about the beginning of K. John's reign, which is set forth by speciall boundaries, according to the use of those times; and likewise a Bull⁴ from Pope Gregory the IXth, for a peculiar chapell at this place, bearing date in 19 H. 3. In the windows whereof are yet standing, and of no less antiquity than E. 3 time, the arms of Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, Clinton Earl of Huntingdon, as also of this family, as they were then set up in glass: which Will. left issue John, who, being Champion⁵ to Thomas Earl of Warwick, obtained a speciall charter⁶ from the said Earl to himself and his heirs, for freedom to hawk and hunt everywhere within the territories of Tanworth excepting the Park, and to exercise all other libertics belonging to the said Earl within Monkspath and Ombreslade, paying therefore unto him and his heirs xii broad arrow-heads and a couple of capons at Whitsontide yearly. This John had issue John and divers other children, whereof Thomas was Lord Prior¹ of the Hospitall of St. John of Jerusalem in England in 14 E. 2, which John the younger matching with Margery the daughter of Sir Will. Traci of Todington in Gloucestershire (an eminent family in those parts), left issue John and Thomas. Of which Thomas, I find that, having been in that rebellion with Thomas Earl of Lancaster in E. 2 time, he obtained a pardon² by the means and intercession of his uncle the Prior of St. John's.³ But to the before-specified John succeeded Thomas; and to him another Thomas, who, by his deed bearing date the Munday next after the Feast of the Purification of Our Lady 49 E. 3, did, for the reverence he bore to the said blessed Virgin, as also to S. Thomas the Martyr, and all saints, and for the health of his and his wife's souls, and of the souls of Thomas le Archer his father, Margaret his mother, his ancestors, and heirs, and all the faithfull deceased, grants license to Ric. de Montfort and others to amortize certain lands lying in Tanworth, and held of him for the founding of a Chantry in the Chapell of Our Lady and S. Thomas the Martyr within the Church of Lapworth (as I shall there more fully show), which Thomas was one of the Esquires to Thomas de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, as appears by the said Earl's grant,⁴ bearing date at Worcester 20 Martii 1 R. 2, whereby he conferred upon him, by the title of 'dilecto nobis scutifero Thomæ le Archer pro bono et laudabili servicio quod nobis impendit et impendit in futurum' (for so are the words of his charter), a certain yearly rent of cis. iiiid., issuing out of sundry tenements of the said Earl in Worcester, to enjoy during his life; and in 21 R. 2,⁵ was in commission for the assessing and collecting a XVth and Xth, then granted to the King in Parliament. This Thomas wedded Agnes the daughter⁶ to Sir Walter Cokesey of Worcestershire, and had a special indulgence⁷ from Pope Boniface IXth for the making choice of a confessor that might pronounce plenary remission to them of all their sins, whereof, with contrite hearts, they should make confession at the time of their deaths.

* "Coelebs"—This is probably a mistake, for in Uffington Church, Berks, is the monument of an Edward Archer, Esq. who was buried there in the first year of the reign of King James I., on which appears the Arms of Umberslade, IMPALING . . . a chevron, These must have been the arms of his wife. Perhaps this may be the tomb of "Edward" his nephew.

“To him succeeded Richard his son and heir, who took to his first wife Alice¹ the daughter to Will. Hugford of Middleton in Shropshire, and at length heir to her brother, being then the widow of Sir Thomas Lucy of Charlecote, Kt., from which lady the families of Lucie and Archer are both descended.² Which Richard was one of those persons of note in this county who in 7 H. 5 had command to serve the King in person for the defence of the realm, all those then required so to do being such as did bear antient arms by descent from ancestors (as the words of the writ do import).” He afterwards married other wives³—“viz. Margaret, the widow unto Thomas Newport of Ercall in Shropshire, by reason whereof he resided there upon her jointure; and Alice, the daughter and heir to Will. Ley of Stotford in Staffordshire. He was in 20 H. 6 constituted Sheriff of Staffordshire. In 35 H. 6, suggesting that he was to attend the King’s service at Barwick upon Twede, under the command of Henry Percy Earl of Northumb., then Captain of the said toun and castle, he had a patent⁴ of protection dated 8 Junii; but the King, being advertised that he did not go with the said Earl, accordingly revoked it.⁵ In his later time he lived at Stotford before mentioned, and there made his testament,⁶ 18 Jan., 9 E. 4, whereby he bequeathed his body to sepulture in the Church of St. Mary Magd. here at Tanworth, giving unto the fabric thereof four marks, and appointing that xii. pounds of wax should be burnt about his hearse on the day of his funerall, as also that there should be viii. new torches made and lighted at his said requies, especially during the celebration of Mass; which torches to be held by 8 poor men, each of them having a russet gown, with meat and drink for that day; and departed this life⁷ in 11 E. 4, being then 86 years of age. To whom succeeded three Jolns,⁸ as also another Richard, one of the Esquires of the body to King Henry the 8th, whose great-grandchild Sir Simon Archer, Kt., being a gentleman much affected to and very well verst in antiquities, hath (besides the view of his own private evidences whence what I have exprest of this family is faithfully asserted) with great freeness and curtesey imparted unto me very many rarities for the furtherance of this present work.”

Various Possessions, &c., of Archers' of Umberslade.

“MONKSPATH.—This, though it be onely a large tract of ground without any habitation thereupon, carrieth the reputation of a Mannour, having been given by Will.¹ Earl of Warwick in H. 2 time, to Roger de Hulehale and his heirs, to hold with other lands by the service of a 4th part of a Kts. fee. The bounds thereof being in that grant set forth by certain high ways, small brookes, and other noted marks, one whereof is called Monkespeth, and gave denomination at first thereto. Which path I suppose was so named in regard that the Monks of Stoneley past so oft that way to Bordsley Abbey in Worcestershire, for the reasons I have in my discourse of Stoneley expressed. To the posterity of the said Roger de Hulehale it continued for 4 descents, but then did Will. his great grand-child (scil. son of Robert, son of Will., son to the the said Roger) sell it² unto John the son of John le Archer, in H. 3 time, for lx. marks, Robert his son in 20 E. 1 confirming the grant; since which time it hath continued in the family of Archer, and is to this day in the possession of Sir Simon Archer, Kt., of whom in Umberslade I have already made mention. But besides this Mannour before spoken of, there is another here called vulgarly Little Monkspath, and held of the Mannour of Tanworth³ by the 4th part of a kts. fee, having been antiently⁴ possesst by the Mountforts of Colshill, and sold in our time by Sir Edw. Mountfort, Kt., to — Warner, vicar of Tanworth, and is since come to Mr. Archer.”

“HENLEY IN ARDEN.—In a south window of the chapel between Harwell and Aston, and near ‘Catesby,’ are the arms of Archer of Umberslade.”

“COUGHTON.—In the church near the seat of ‘the antient family of Throgmorton,’ are eight distinct shields of that family on their rich monuments, in all of which are quartered the arms of Umberslade.”

“BISHOPSTON.—This manor, formerly in the possession of the family of Catesbey, was sold to Andrew Archer, Esq. of Tanworth.”

“BETLESWORTH.—By charter in H. 2 time, William Earl of Warwick, in giving Monkspathe to Roger le Ulehale, has it thus: ‘Quicquid habuit in Berthelwortha, scilicet totum tenementum quod Ricardus senior et Ric. junior de se tenuerunt.’ Then did this continue unto the family of Ulehale, and went with Monkspath unto John le Archer.”

“BOTLEY.—In H. 2 Robert de Stadford (possessor also of Wooton) gave to the Canons of Kenilworth certain lands lying in this place, with the homages and services of severall persons, as also to Geoffrey Malore and his heirs, all those lands, homages, and services, which he likewise held of him here, reserving the payment of a sparrowhawk to himself and his heirs by the said Geoffrey and his heirs, which Geoffrey was of those Malories that resided at Tachbroke in this countie, from whom descended John Malore, who in 9 E. 3 had free warren granted to him in all his demesn lands here and at Tachbroke before specified, as also at Wooton on the woulds in Leicestershire, and from him another John, who, with Ankitell Malore, his son and heir, by their deed, bearing date the Thursday after the feast of S. Michael the Arch Angell, 22 H. 6, aliened it to Richard Archer, Esquire, and his heirs, whose posteritie have ever since enjoyed it; Sir S. [FROM DUGDALE'S "WARWICK;" "EXTINCT PEERAGES," BY BURKE; BANK'S "DORMANT AND EXTINCT BARONAGE OF ENGLAND;" JACOB'S "PEERAGE," ETC. ETC.]

I.

FULBERT L'ARCHER¹

Came into England with William the Conqueror. His name occurs in the Roll of Battle Abbey. His son—

II.

ROBERT L'ARCHER,

Obtained considerable grants² from King Henry 1st, whose tutor he had been, and acquired the lands of Umberslade, in the county of Warwick, as a marriage-portion with his wife Seliit,³ daughter of Henry de Villiers, sewer to William de

² "Henricus dei gratia," &c., "sciatus nos dedisse et concessisse Roberto l'Archer magistro meo et hæred. suis," &c., "maner de Aldermanson, Fynchamstead, Coletrope, Spersholt, Chewlewe," &c., "in Com. Berks."—(Charter.)

³ This marr. portion was a grant of the said Henry de Villiers' whole land in Umberslade in wood and in plain, except the lands that Willm. de Westancroft held of him, paying 2 marks of silver and 6 pennies yearly to him at the feast of Michaelmas for all services thereunto belonging. To which deed are witnesses Roger de Hulehale, William de Hulehale, and others.

William Earl of Warwick (who died before Henry 2) granted to Roger de Hulehale the land which Fulke (or Fulbert) L'Archer held of him and his heirs in Omberslade; and the said Roger, by his deed, grants the said lands to Seliit the wife of Robert Archer; also his lands that Fulke held in Omberslade, granted to him by William Earl of Warwick, whereby it is probable that Fulke L'Archer, who came in with William the Conqueror, had possession of Umberslade, and that Hulehale and Villiers settled it on Seliit and Robert L'Archer and their heirs, for it does not appear how they were related.

Newburgh Earl of Warwick, all which possessions were by Henry 2nd to his eldest son confirmed.

Robert L'Archer had three sons—1. William, his successor. 2. Richard L'Archer of Taneworth (who voluntarily came into the court of Walleran Earl of Warwick, and abjured and quitted claim to William his brother of all his right to the whole lands in Taneworth which Robert L'Archer his father held). 3. John, who, writing himself son of Robert L'Archer, releases John, son of William L'Archer, an annual rent which he owed him.

III.

WILLIAM L'ARCHER.

He m. Margery, d. and co-heir of Sir John Sawcey of Orton Sawcey, Leicestersh. Was succeeded by his son—

IV.

JOHN L'ARCHER.

He married Margery, d. of William Barneville. He had, being champion to Thomas Earl of Warwick, obtained special charter from that nobleman, granting to himself and his heirs the privilege of hunting and hawking everywhere within the territory of Taneworth except the park, and of exercising all other liberties belonging to the Earl within Monkpath and Omberslade, paying to the said Earl and his heirs twelve broad arrow-heads and a couple of capons yearly, at Whitsuntide, as an acknowledgment.

This John Archer died in the 35th Henry III., leaving four sons—1. John; 2. Thomas; 3. William, rector of Pilardinton; 4. Robert, rector of Queinton; and two daughters—1. Alice; 2. Elie, m. Ralph de Erscode. The three younger sons appear to have been churchmen. Thomas¹ the 2nd was Prior of St. John of Jerusalem in England, temp. Edward II. The eldest son—

¹ He resided at the hospital situated in the square of Clerkenwell, now denominated from thence St. John's Square, that hospital being the chief seat in England of the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, or Knights Hospitallers, as they were also called, from having an hospital at Jerusalem for the accommodation of pilgrims. These Knights are reported once to have had 19,000 lordships in Christendom, and their Prior in England was reckoned the first Baron in the realm.—(Bank.) As Lord Prior of St. John, he grants to Sir Ralph de Cobham, Kt., and Mary his wife, the manor of Dartford in Kent, dated "in domo fontis clericorum juxta London."—(Jacob, 1767.)

Thomas Archer presented to Willm. de Aslachy, his clerk, the advowson of a living in the lordship of Sibethorpe, Notts.

Purchased of William de Hulehale the manor of Monkspath, adjoining Omberslade. This John married Margery, daughter of Sir William Tracey of Todington, in the county of Gloucester, and was succeeded by his eldest son—vi.

JOHN ARCHER.

Married Isabel, daughter of Ralph Erscote, Esq., of Erscote, in the county of Warwick, by whom he had two sons and two daughters; and dying in the 22nd Edwd. III., was succeeded by the elder son—vii.

THOMAS ARCHER.²

Married Margaret, daughter and co-heiress of John Malley, Esq., of Malley, in the county of Salop, and had issue—1. His successor; 2. Gilbert, who, writing himself of Taneworth, had license from the Crown in the 16th Richard II. to give to the prior and convent of Kenilworth one messuage, with divers lands at Hitchenden, in the county of Buckingham; 3. Joane, married Wm. Shelly, Esq. This Thomas Archer's will³ is dated "Thursday next after the Feast of St. Thomas the Martyr, 1372, and he was succeeded in that year by his elder son—

Flanfore Manor was also in the gift of Thos. Archer.

This Thomas Archer, it appears, nearly ruined, by his inaptitude for business, the order over which he presided, in England. Leonard de Tibertis was appointed by Elian de Villeneuve, the Grand Master of the Order, Commissioner to inquire into the State of Affairs in England, and the result was, that Thomas the Archer, feeble with age, was compelled to resign his office.—Vide "The Knights Hospitallers in Englande." Printed for the Camden Society, 1857.

THOMAS ARCHER.

In 1373 he had a command in the army of John of Gaunt, and fell into the hands of the French and Burgundians in a rencounter at Ouchy le Chasteau, near Soissons,¹ on the 20th Oct. in that year, being surprised when foraging² with Sir Matthew Redmayer, Sir Thos. Spencer, Sir Hugh Brudenel, Sir John Bouchier, and other Knights and Esquires.³ In the 49th Edward III. he was again in France, under Thomas Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, from whom he rec^d a pension⁴ for his services, dated at Worcester, 20 Martii, 1 Richard II., in the 21st of which latter reign, he rec^d a special pardou, dated June 8, for all manner of transgressions, and for whatever he had acted contrary to his allegiance, &c., in behalf of Thomas late Duke of Gloucester, Richard late Earl of Arundel, and Thomas Earl of Warwick; after which, in the same year, he was in commission for assessing and collecting a fifteenth and tenth then granted to the King in Parliament. This Thomas Archer married Agnes, daughter of Sir Walter Coke of Cokesey, in the co. of Worcester, and grand-daughter of Hugh Cokesey and of Dionis his wife, one of the four sisters and co-heiresses of Edmund le Boteler, by whom he had 3 sons. He died, after being bedridden for three years, in the 84th year of his age, on the Feast of Pentecost 1425, and was succeeded by his second but eldest surviving son—

Sancye to Margaret his wife, during her life. She was one of the daughters and co-heirs of John Malley of Malley, in the parish of Mortimers-Clebury, in the co. of Salop, and he had by her good possessions, as is evidenced by the deeds of the family.—(Jacob.)

IX.

RICHARD ARCHER.

One of the persons of note in the county of Warwick summoned in the 7th of Henry V. to serve the King in person for the defence of the realm, being, according to the writ, "one that did bear ancient arms from his ancestors." He married first, Alice, daughter of Wm. Hugford, Esq., of Hugford and Middleton, in the county of Salop, sister and heiress of her brother Wm. Hugford, and widow of Sir Thomas Lucy, Knight of Charlecote, by whom he had issue one son—

John, who married, in the 25th Henry VI., Christian, widow of Henry Sewal of London, and only daughter and heiress of Ralph Blacklow of the same city, and of his wife Joan, heiress of Thomas Coke, alias Malling, of West Malling, Kent, by whom he had an only son, John. King Henry VI., by his letters patent, dated 12th May, in the 8th year of his reign, retained this John Archer, Esq., by his factors or attorneys, to convey in ships all manner of provisions for victualling the town and fortress of Calais. This John Archer fell in battle in 1463, on the side of the Earl of Warwick against King Edward IV. His widow remarried, in the 3rd of Edwd. IV., Hy. Beech, Esq.

Richard Archer married secondly, Margaret, relict of Thos. Newport, Esq., of Ercall in Shropshire, ancestor of the Earls of Bradford; and thirdly, Joane, daughter and heiress of Wm. Ley, Esq., of Stotford, in the county of Stafford. In the 7th Henry VI., Richard Archer had summons to attend the King in France, to be present at his coronation there; Sir Ralph Bruce, Sir Edwd. Dodingfell, and Nicholas Burdett, with others of the county of Warwick, being also summoned. In the 19th same monarch, he served the office of Sheriff for the county of Salop, and the next year, that of Sheriff for the county of Stafford, in which shire he resided, at Stotford. He died in the 85th year of his age, anno 1471, when his estates in the counties of Salop, Stafford, and Bedford, devolved upon his grandson—

X.

JOHN ARCHER.

Born in 1449, married Alice, daughter of Sir Baldwin Mountfort, Knt. of Coltshill, in the co. of Warwick; and dying at Omberslade 4th Dec. 1519, was succeeded by his only son—

Archer

IN VARIOUS COUNTIES, ETC.

Worcester.

THERE are but few records of the collateral branches of the Archers of Umber-slade; for although the chief line of that ancient family maintained its position and inheritance throughout all the troubles and disasters of English history, the offshoots appear to have decayed.

1. In the church of Welland, Worcestershire, is a tablet with the following inscription:—

“John, son of Humphrey Archer of Tanworth in the county of Warwick, Esq.,
29th May, 1640, together with several of his children and grandchildren.”

In the Visitation of Worcester, Harl. MSS. 1566, A.D. 1569, Plut. LVIII. 13, f. 145, is given the pedigree of this John Archer, thus—

ARMS.—Archer, impaling barré ermine and azure; in chief erm. a mountain-cat, and below it a lion ramp. crowned.

PEDIGREE FROM THE “COMPOSITION PAPERS.”

EDWARD ARCHER, of Hanley Castle, = Eleanor Frewin.
co. Worcester, ob. Aug. 1649.

From this John Archer, it is asserted, was descended William Archer of Stafford, who, marrying Anne d. of ——— Baldwin, Esq., of Kinsale, had by her—

1. William Archer, d. s.p.
2. Clement Archer, 16th Lancers, who had a son—
 1. William Henry Archer.¹

2. In the chapel of Castle Morton, Longdon, is a tomb with this inscription:—

“H. S. E.

“The body of Mr. Robert Archer, once minister of this church, a branch of that ancient illustrious family of Omberslade Hall in the county of Warwick. Obiit 19 Martii 1713, æt. 70.”² The epitaph of his wife follows. “And of Hannah his wife, dau of Edward Moor of Suckley Court, gent., ob. 19 Jan., 1700. And of Hannah their youngest dau., who died Feb. 8, 1719.”³

² Antiq. of Worcestersh. 1799.

³ Vide Robert Archer in Par. Reg. Barb. 1685.

In the Cathedral, Barbadoes, is a slab to the memory of John Frewen, ob. 1669, æt. 44.

There is the record of the baptism at Welland of “Thomas,” the sonne of John Archer, gent. (Bap. April 20, 1680.) There is also at Doctors' Commons the Will of Edward Archer, gent., Worcester, 1649. The testator mentions his son-in-law, Thomas Bache, and his son William Archer. The witnesses are Alice Knowles,* Rice Smith, George Hill.

Edward Archer, 1649, of City of Worcester, buried in chancel of Lanley Church, county of Worcester. Leaves to his son-in-law, Thomas Bache—

- 1 Cleanser, 1 cupboard, 1 dozen harden napkins, 1 damask sheet, 1 flaxen cupboard cloth, 1 pair harden sheets, 2 harden board cloths, 1 taffetre beaurife cloth, the shorter part of the green carpet, 1 flaxen towell, 1 hempen towell, 2 hempen towells, 2 pewter candlesticks, 1 butter-dish, 2 saucers, 1 pillow, 1 pewter pot, 1 little brass pott, 1 possnett, 1 brass basting spoon, 1 flesh forke, 1 silver wine boule, 1 feather bed, boulder, and pillow, 1 blankett, 1 pair harden sheets, 1 pair pot-hookees, 1 chopping knife, 1 chafing-dish, 2 low stools with green fringe, 1 spitt.

Leaves to his son William—

- 7 Needlework cushions, 1 dozen layd-work napkins, 1 pair hempen pillowbeers, 1 set of taffetre curtains with worked valence with silk fringe, the longer part of the green carpet, 1 flaxen towell, 1 basin and ewer, 1 flaggon, 1 ———, 2 plates, 1 pillowe, 1 kettle, 1 pomett, 1 dripping-pan, 1 silver and gilt salt with a cover, 1 feather-bed with boulder and pillow, 1 blanket, 2 coverletts, 1 tablecloth, the two bigger brass potts, 1 payre of racks, 1 payre of pot-hooks, 1 gridiron, 1 skimmer, 1 broach, 1 low green chaire, 1 large carpet, 1 great kettle. Residue of household stuffs and personal estate to said son William.

Executor—His son William.

Witnesses—Alice Knowles, Rice Smith, Geo. Hill.

* Matthew Knowles is a witness to the Will of Thos. Archer, Barbadoes, 1709.

Lancashire, Cheshire, Derbyshire, Stafford, Oxford.

1. In one of the churches of Chester there is a monument to a person of the name of Archer, bearing a tablet with the following inscription:—

“To the memory of William Archer, 2nd son of Richard Archer, gent., of Shrewley, Warwickshire—ob. 24 July 1787, an. æt. 37.”¹

2. John Archer of Kendall, gent. His arms are engraved in Lee’s Lancashire, and are 3 broad arrows in pale.²

Mention also is made casually in the same work of a Dr. Archer of Kendall.

3. “Doc. of Civil Law.” “For the same degree supplicated one Richard Arche, LL.B., but was not admitted. In 1526 I find him to be Principal of Broad Gates Hall by the name of Richard Archer, and now, 1538, to be the King’s Chaplain and Canon of Windsor. On the 28th Dec. 1551 he was made treasurer of the Church of Salisbury, on the death of Matthew Wooton.”³

It appears that Sir Simon Archer of Umberslade was a student at Oxford, and it is not improbable that the above Richard Archer may have been his relative.⁴

4. In the Herald’s Visitation of Oxfordshire occurs Archer of Neithorp or Netherthorpe, from county Warwick.—(Harl. MSS., Brit. Mus. 1480, fo. 57; 1557, fo. 49, 6.)

The arms given are those of Umberslade, quartering “Hulehale—Sawcey—Clebury—Canke—Delamere—with a crescent in the nombril point of the escutcheon for difference. The wyvern’s neck in the crest is also charged with a crescent.”⁵

5. “Ricus le Archer—Hakelowe magna de tentis in Pecci foresta Derby—32 Edw. 1.”

6. “Thomas le Archer—Huckelowe magna ex^{ta} in alto Pecco foresta Derby—27 Edw. 3.”

7. “Thomas le Archer—P’esona eccl’ie de Elmesete pro priore de Brerete—Bresete magna maner 3^{tra} P^s nt de Peverel honore—Bosmere hund^r reddit 20^d ibm 6 ‘Osseton’—‘Elmesett’—‘Whatfield’—v marcate terr’ ibm emanen Rico fri ejusdem Thome—(Edw. 3).”

Richard Archer of Neithrop,⁷ near Banbury, co. Oxon, by his wife Mary Bull, had three children, viz., “Anne, first daughter; Rowland Archer, eldest sonne, about (A.D. 1634) 13 years of age; Katherin, 2nd daughter.”

Will of Richard Archer (clerk) of Pesone, co. Derby; Will dated 24 Dec. 1658, pro. 6 Jan. 1659. Testator mentions his mother, "Ellen Archer;" his brothers, Robert, Francis, John (of Threwston-Janner, and his daughter Mary); his sister Ann m. — Wilson. He mentions his cousin, Mary Lausett, and her daughter Mary; his cousins, John Rowlandson, John Shorthose, John Kelsall, and John Moore of Shorley; his cousin, and executor, Samuel Archer, and his uncle, Lawrence Moore. Directs that he may be buried at Edensone.

Will of Thomas Archer of Eccleshall, co. Stafford, tanner; dated 19 Aug. 1656, pro. 19 Nov. 1657. His wife Dorothy. His brother Richard Archer. His children, John and Anne, both under age.¹

Buckingham, Norfolk, Suffolk.

2. The Revd. B. Archer of Queinton, Bucks, who espoused in the eighteenth century Katherine, daughter of W. Stonestreet, Esq., of Halon, (and d.s.p.) may have belonged to the Warwickshire family, for we find that there was a branch of it in the time of Edward 2, settled here;² Robert, fourth son of John Archer, grandson of Robert L'Archer, having at that period been Rector of Queinton. Yet this may be no more than a coincidence.³

It appears by Berry's Sussex Genealogies, that the Revd. B. Archer, who married Katherine Stonestreet (by whom he had an only child, a daughter who d. unm. 1803 at St. Stephen's), was the son of the Revd. B. Archer, Rector of Queinton, Bucks (his monument is on the outer wall of his church), by Anne Kemp or Ingelo, a widow lady, and that his father was born in 1696.

3. "There was a family of Archer at Sudbury, in Suffolk, of whom Nicholas was a citizen of London, and, as appears by his will in 1487, he was a man of considerable wealth, leaving large bequests to many churches in London and the country, for masses, &c. for the repose of his soul. As his father's name was John, and his brothers John and Richard, names which, especially Nicholas, are of frequent occurrence in the Cornish (Lizard) family, it is probable they were nearly connected.”¹

4. “Rogerus L’Archer,” Rodlesworth (Norfolk), “Wilesham—Floketon—Somershams”—Holton—Brindwenham and Stretford—Free warren in these places granted 39 Edw. 3.²

There was a family of this name in Norfolk in the 14th century.³ — le Archer, by a daughter of John de Bohun, had four children, viz.—

1. Thomas le Archer, Rector of Elinset, 1330—Ld. of Riddlesworth, Norfolk.
2. Richard le Archer, brother of Thomas, 1330.
3. Thomas le Archer, brother of Thos. and Richd., 1330.
4. Agnes le Archer, sister of Thos. and Richd., 1330.

Roger le Archer of Howton, Suffolk, 1330, Ld. of Riddlesworth by the will of Tho. le Archer. He had two sons, the youngest of whom, by name Thomas, m. in 1341, and died in 1375; and the elder, Roger le Archer, m. Alexandrina, daughter of Sir Wm. de la Mote, Knt. (who died before 1384), and had a daughter by her, named Beatrice le Archer, who m. Sir John Roos, Knt. (1389), and had two daughters, Cecilia Roos, and Anne Roos, who m. Thos. Archer of Archer's Court, Kent.

“Archer's Court,” says Hasted, “is a manor in the northern part of the parish of River. In the time of King John it was in the possession of Solomon de Dovere. He was succeeded by his son Gregory de Dovere,”³ but in ancient records there is no farther mention of this name, nor of the manor, until it “came into the possession of a family named Archer, and sometimes L'Archer, from whom it acquired the name of Archer's Court.”

Nicholas Archer held it in the first year of K. Edw. 2. His son, William Archer, paid aid for it in the 20th year of that reign, at 100 acres of land held in sergeantry. At length, when the Archer family became extinct here, the manor was alienated to Baudred.⁴

⁴ Inquisition, 48 Edw. 3.

In the 20th Edw. 3, William Archer and Thomas Whitfield paid aid for the manor of Castney Court in Kent, at the making of the Black Prince a knight, at half a fee, which the heirs of Stephen de Bocton held at Kersener of the barony of Saye. Maxton, in the parish of Hougham, is another manor, which, in the time of K. Hen. 3, was in the possession of Stephen Manekin. It was sold by Alice, his daughter, to William, son of Nicholas Archer of Dover, and he paid aid for it in the 20th year of K. Edw. 3 at one quarter of a fee. His son, William Archer, in the 21st year of the next reign (K. R. 2), passed it away by sale to John Alkman.¹

The manor of Alkman was held at half a fee by Nicholas Archer of Dover, in 20 Edw. 3.

In the return of Barons of Kent to serve the Parliament, occurs, 22nd Edw. IV., at Westminster, the name of John Archer.

It is somewhat remarkable that this family of Archer, which, it appears, was possessed of considerable property and influence in the reign of King Edward 3, should have disappeared so rapidly from the records of the county of Kent. Even the name itself became uncommon; and the few remaining notices of it which we have been able to discover are contained in the following extracts:—

1. William le Archer between 1365 and 1482 was Rector of Saltwood Church and Hythe Chapel.
2. Thomas Archer, Prebend of Rugmer. Patron of the living of Throwley, 1757.
3. Henry Archer, s.T.P. Rector of Faversham, and of Mersham, ob. 1744.
4. Henry Archer, s.T.P. Rector of Herne, 1724-6.
5. Capt. James Archer acquired the 3rd of the manor of Huntingfield Court by m. with Anne Hasted.

Archer, of Stoke-Archer, Gloucestershire.

1. Nicholas Archer held two plough tillages in Stoke, 15 Ed. 1., by the service of providing a man with bow and arrows to attend the King's army forty days when it marched against the Welsh.¹

Edmond Archer held Stoke-Archer, 7 E. 2. It was held of Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Gloucester and Hertford. Jeffrey Le Archer held the manor of Stoke-Archer, 24 E. 3, and Cicely his widow was seized of it the same year.

Mention is made by Rudders of a certain Robert Archer, who, in the 20th Hen. 3, acquired the manor of Shipton Solers in Gloucestershire, by his marriage with one of the co-heirs of Richard Cormeille. Stoke-Archer in Clare took the name of Archer from the family, surnamed Le Archer, which held a manor there by the service of providing a man with bow and arrows at their own charge.

Archer of Little Heny, Essex.

This family appears to have been connected with one of the same name in Gloucestershire. In his notice of Bourchier's Hall in that county, Morant has these words, "There is another (estate) sometimes called a manor and named Archer's, from its ancient owners, for Robert Archer held half a knight's fee here of John de Vere, Earl of Oxford, in 1366." "John Archer," continues the same author in another place, "did homage to the Earl of Oxford at Hedingham Castle, 2nd Feb. 1497, for a moiety of this manor" (Little Heny), "then called Le Ry." "Nicholas Archer, succeeding his father, paid a relief in 1500."¹

Archer of Coopersale, Essex.

The Archers of Coopersale, or Coppersall, have also the patronymic of De Bois, or De Boys. The name of Coppersall in the hundred of Ongar, says Morant, "doth not occur in records before King James I. time."¹ The family of Archer, continues the same writer, "derive themselves from Simon de Bois, who attended King Henry Vth at the Battle of Agincourt, for which service he received a pension. This Simon, at a shooting-match at Havreing near Bower with the said King, performed so well, that the King ordered his name should be changed to Archer." Simon's successors were—

The manor of Netherhall, Harlow, passed to John Archer of this family.

The Archer-Burtons of Woodlands, Hants, now represent this family, in consequence of the marriage of Anne, sole heiress of John Archer of Ongar, Park Hall, with John South, Esq. of Latton, Essex, the father of the present Lancelot Archer-Burton, Esq.

Archer of Malgraves Manor, Essex.

Edward Archer, gent., who died 27th April 1600, held this manor, containing by estimation 350 acres, and Malgrave Mead 10 acres. Whether he acquired this manor by marriage with its heiress or not, there is nothing to show. He left a son, Henry, who died 16th November 1623, and his son and heir was Henry; but after him we find no mention of the family. Edward Archer of Malgraves, was also proprietor of the manor of Goldsmiths in Essex.

Dr. Thomas Archer was Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, A.M., in 1582; and Chaplain to his near kinsman, Dr. John May, Bp. of Carlisle, in Nov. 1584. On the death of Bp. May, in 1599, he became chaplain to Archbp. Whitgift.

In 1589, he was presented to Houghton Conquest. In 1605, he preached before K. James at Hawnes (or Haynes as it is now called) from Song of Solomon, ii. 15, and was immediately sworn in as King's Chaplain.

² On the other side of the folio 34 there are the following curious entries:—

An epitaph of Thomas Bulward who had bene Clerk of Houghton Conquest for the space of fyftie yeeres compleat, who deceased the third day of April, Anno Dom. 1626. at, Regni Regis Caroli, secundo.

In w^{ch} night the Church of Houghton was robbed, the theeves braking in at the window of the North side of the Church, who with a coulter of a plough brake open the vestry dore, And did steale and carrie away from thence, A newe Surplesse, also a faire linnen diaper cloth, used

He preached also and

as appears by the two next entries.

Dr. Thos. Archer's Monument is mural, and of stone . . . He is represented as preaching, being in a niche. Over the arch of the niche are these words, “Sustine et abstine.” On the stone beneath the cushion are the following words: “Intns: si bene ne: labora.” On one side, on the middle of an Ionic Pilaster, with an hourglass on Sundayes to be layd over the Communion Table, And they brake up twoe locks of the poore mans box, and carred away all such mony as they found in the Box.

Of Thomas Bulward Clerke who dyed the third of Aprill, 1626, in the eveninge.

Reast the well Bulward for since thou lost thie breath
Wee all doe see, No man can be exempt from death,
For what will death doe, unto the simple slave,
That durst assault him, who made for death a grave.
In peace sleep on good Bulward of the we have no need,
For William day is chosen clerke allreadie in thy steade
The Saunce Bell now hath trined by the all that it can,
And now by thie death, Thou showest thou wert a man.

Theeves after thie death expected, an Alteration
Els would they never, have broken into the Church in such a fashion
But theeves to be puritans oh! it is strange to affirm or say
But puritans they wear, for they stole the Surplesse awaye
Charitie to the poore sure they had none, But sutle like a fox,
Braking into the Church, they Robd the pore man's Box.

Piclocks they scorned for to use, They had a strike in store
They with the coulter of a plough, Brake ope the Vestrie dore
And fynding ther noe coine, They grewe to be full of wroth
And in ther Thevish humour stole away a new communion cloth
Thus in one night, we lost our Clerke, Broke was our Vestrie dore
The communion cloth was stolne away, And Robbed wer the poore.

[In the margin opposite to this last poem, there is the following entry:—“The Church window they brake with the coulter of a plough, wrested an Iron Barr in the window apeces. by the North dore.” The word apeces, i.e., in pieces, is worth noting.]

[The Thomas Bulward mentioned above scratched his name upon the Pillar which supports the Tower Arch, where it still remains.]

above the words, "Sic transit vita;" on the opposite side, in the same position, with a death's-head above it, is the motto, "Respice finem," and beneath, the following Inscription:—

 ANNO ÆPÆTIS 76.

Above the monument are his Arms, with those of his wife, in stone, painted.

In 1629, he made a monument for himself, and died in 1630 (1631 according to the present reckoning.)

His burial is entered thus:—Mr. Thomas Archer, Parson of Houghton Conquest, was buried the 20th January, 1630.

A. D. 1638. Anna Archer, sepulta Aug. 21st (his widow).

Dr. Archer left £100. to be laid out in land for the advantage of the poor of his parish, and the rent of the Poor's Pightles (pightle, a small field) is duly divided according to his Will every year about Christmas.

Dr. Thomas Archer, Rector of Houghton Conquest, &c. Bequests under his Will:—

1. A piece of land of £1. per ann. or failing this, £20. to be thus bestowed, 10s. for a sermon on Trinity Sunday annually, and 4*d.* to each of twenty poor persons till all be spent.

2. His Great Bible of the last edition, which cost £2. 3s., and is bossed with plate, and buffed in back with buff leather, to the Church at Houghton [Lost].
3. To Meppershall, whereof I was some time the unworthy minister, £10. to the poor, either at once or as principal for a perpetual revenue.
4. To the poor. (He expresses £1. by "twenty shillings," sometimes adding "in gold.")
 - (1) Of Ampthill, £1. 6s. 8d.
 - (2) Of Shefford, £1. 6s. 8d.
 - (3) Of Millbrook, 13s. 4d.

 - (5) Poor prisoners of Bedford "Goale," £1.
5. To lame Charles Foster of Ampthill, 3s. 4d.
6. To Anne Archer, his "beloved wife," £350. and his folio English Bible, ed. 1582.
6. To his "cousen Timothy Archer," all his "Note Books on Divinity, hoping he will continue and become a profitable member and minister in the church of God. Also to make him a ring, if he pleases, £1. in gold, and a gown which was sometime HIS FATHER'S, which his mother gave me after my BROTHER'S death."¹
7. To the four children of Timothy Archer, viz., Elizabeth, Frances, John, and Mary, to each of them £2.
8. To my loving sister ELIZABETH ARCHER, of London, a piece of gold of twenty shillings, and to my cousin Yeene and my wife, to each of them in gold, twenty shillings.
9. To my COUSEN JOHN ARCHER, of London, DRAPER, in gold, £1.
To my cousen Francis Archer of London, Glover, £1.
10. To my cousen Anthony Archer, my godson, in money, £1.
11. To Edward Archer and Nicholas Archer dwelling by Sudbury, to each of them, in money, £1.
12. If there be any of the children of my sister Bentley, to each of them, £1. that shall take notice of my death.
13. To my cousen William Major of St. Edmundsbury, and Katharine his wife, to each of them, in gold, £1.
14. To MY COUSEN Mr. Whiting, Chaplain to the Earl of Bedford, in gold, 10s.
15. To my cousen Mrs. ELIZABETH ANSTELL, of Barford, in gold, £1.
16. To Sir Edmund Conquest and Lady Elizabeth his wife, £1. each in a piece of gold, and all their children 5s. in gold each.
Sir Rich. Conquest, Sir F. Clarke and his wife, each £1. in gold.

Mr. L. Conquest and his wife, "a piece of gold of twenty shillings" each.

To two other Conquests, 5*s.* each. Mrs. Anne Conquest, £1.

Mr. Awdley, £1. Mrs. E. Awdley, 10*s.*

To three other persons 10*s.* each; to George Noble and his wife, £1. each, and to his god-daughter Margaret Noble, £2.

17. To J. Weaver and J. Whitaker, 2*s.* 6*d.* each, "to buy if they please, a pair of gloves." To 18 ministers of neighbouring parishes, to each in gold, five shillings, to buy if they please, a pair of Gloves.

To Alice Wheeler, widow of Mr. R. W., Minister of Kempston, £1.

18. To John Wheeler and F. Wheeler his sister, my servants, £5. each. To two god-daughters, 2*s.* 6*d.* each. To Wm. Fynner and Anne Robinson, my servants, 5*s.* each; and W. Day, Clerke of Houghton, and J. Chesne, do. of Meppershall, 5*s.* each.

Sole executrix, and residuary legatee, Anne Archer. Mr. Th. Audley, the elder, and Mr. Lewis Conquest, supervisors and overseers of the Will.

(Witnesses to the Will of Thomas Archer of Houghton Conquest).

"Witnesses, as a true copy, of the original, to this Will:—

"John Parote, Roger Tuthill, Henry Pigott.

"Witnesses to the original Will written by myself, Henry Pigott."

A Latin P.S. states the Will to have been proved at Bedford, March 2, 1630.

Dr. Archer gave a silver chalice with a cover to Houghton Church, which is still in use. Dr. Archer, in his MS. Book, mentions the weight and cost of this cup. The whole cost was £6. 11*s.*¹

Dr. Archer's Arms were—Azure 3 arrows argent.² His initials are frequently found with an arrow in pale, point upwards, between them.

On the lid of the chalice above-mentioned, Thomas Archer's arms are represented impaled with "Between 3 lions' heads affrontée, a hound courant, all within a border engrailed (no tinctures)."³

¹ I am indebted to the courtesy of the Rev. H. J. Rose, the present Rector of Houghton Conquest, for the notes.

² Might they not have been originally "Or"? His cousin's (Dr. Timothy Archer's) Arms at Meppershall are—Azure, 3 arrows Or, two and one.

³ The tinctures should be—Sable for the field, azure for the charges, and gules for the border. This appears to be the coat of arms of Heneage.

This family of Archer appears certainly to have been a branch of that of Umberslade, for all the members of it bore the same Arms; a liberty which would not have been tolerated at that period, and in the days too, of the particular Sir Simon Archer—the friend of Dugdale.

Meppershall, Bedfordshire.—In the parish church here, there is a monument to Dr. Timothy Archer, similar to that of his relative at Houghton Conquest. He is represented as preaching in a cassock and bands, with a red cushion before him. The figure is half length, and about the size of life. The doctor wears a moustache and imperial; the whole is of painted stone or marble. The arched canopy enclosing the figure is adorned with ears of ripe corn, an hour glass, scull and cross bones, and sundry other emblems of time and mortality. The Coat of Arms surmounting the canopy bears the following blazon:—“Azure three broad arrows, points down, Or,”—impaling “Or, 3 garbs gules.”¹

The inscription on the monument is as follows:—

“Timothius Archer”
Sac. Theol. profess. per 42 annos
Rector huius ecclesiæ ecclesiæ et de Blunham
Multos expertus casus
Sæquestratus et post longum restitutus
Hic tandem in pace requiescit
Obijt 2^{do} Decembris 1672
ætatis suæ 75.

Archer—Leicestershire.

In his Antiquities of this county, Nicholls, quoting Wadland's MS. N. on Dugdale's Warwickshire, mentions that, in the time of Henry 2, one Picot Archer made a gift of certain land in Drayton to the nuns of Polesworth—"Picot Archer dedit nunnis de Polesworth temp. Hen. 2 bona pro portione terre in Drayton."¹ Who this Picot Archer was, we have been unable with any certainty to determine.

Some centuries subsequently, we find that Richard Archer, a baillie and collector of Leicester, received a grant of land from his townsmen for services rendered to the city. In an ancient MS. the transaction is thus given: "At a hall for agreement with Richard Archer for his travel for four years in obtaining this free farm, and in consideration that by his diligence and knowledge the particulars contained in the grant of the Queen" (Elizabeth) "to the town was found out," &c. "And whereas the said Archer hath by grant of the corporation 2 yards of land in the south field of Leicester."

In the charter to Leicester, June 1st, in the 41st year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, the name of Richard Archer again occurs as one of the selected "company of eight and forty."

At Doctors' Commons, London, there is to be found the will of a certain Richard Archer of Leicester, dated 1640.

There is also on record a lease of Wigston's Hospital, Leicestershire, dated August 2, 1672, to Robert Archer, gent., at a rent of 30s. per an. And again, in the "Accounts" of Hungary Newbury, relative to the same transaction, 1636, there occurs the item of £1. 10s. paid to Mrs. Archer.²

Archer—Berks.

The Archers who settled at Welford about 1650 became extinct in the male line on the decease of John Archer, Esq. of Welford, and, as it appears, also of Coopersale, Essex,² leaving (by his wife, Lady Mary Fitzwilliam, daughter of John, second Earl of Fitzwilliam) an only daughter and heiress, Susanna, married to Jacob Houblon, Esq., of Hallingbury, Essex.³

“Welford House,” says Lyson, “may be reckoned amongst the deserted and dilapidated mansions of the extinct gentry.”⁴

Welford, in the hundred of Faircross, is a manor which had belonged to the abbot and convent of Abingdon, and descended from John Archer, some time one of the Barons of the Exchequer, whose son settled at Welford in consequence of his marriage with the daughter and heiress of Richard Jones of that place. Abraham Jones, the first of the family (his grandfather), settled at Welford, was son of Sir Francis Jones, alderman of London.

The manor of Peysmer or Peasmore, in Berks, was bequeathed in 1776 by Mr. Shirley to John Archer, Esq. of Welford.

Sir John Archer, Knight, one of His Majesty's Justices of the Court of Common Pleas, who married Eleanor, daughter of Sir John Curzon of Kedlestone, Bart.—so created 17 Charles I.,—was the first Archer of Welford.¹

1. John Archer.
2. Richard Archer, had a son (2nd.)

William Archer, whose son—

Henry Archer, Esq. of Coopersale, m. Ann, dau. of Simon Crouch, Alderman of London, and died 1615.

Henry Archer had by his wife, Ann Crouch, a son—

Sir John Archer, Kt. one of the Judges of the Common Pleas, who was born in 1598. He married Eleanor, dau. of Sir John Curzon, of Kedlestone, Derbyshire, and by her had a son and a daughter.

1. John, of Welford, Berks, ob. s. p. 1705, m. the daughter and co-heiress of Richard Jones, son of Sir Francis Jones.

¹ Collins' Peerage; also Record Office, Fetter Lane, London:—"1661. John Archer, Serjeant-at-law in Barbadoes, receives a free pardon, and is appointed a Justice of the Bench in England." Sir John Archer had been a Republican, holding office under Cromwell's Government.

In the church of Uffington, near Faringdon, there is a curious old monument, evidently that of a member of the Umberslade family from the arms (viz., 3 broad arrows impaling a field charged with a chevron.) It bears the following inscription:—
 “Here lieth the bodie of Edwarde Archer, Esquire, buried the 27 Daie of Julie and in the first yere of the reign of our Sovereigne Lorde, King James, and in the yere of our Lorde God, 1603.”¹

Will of Edward Archer of Wicklestome, in the parish of Faringdon, co. Berks, yeoman. Will dated 4 May, 1649, pro. 8 April, 1652. Testator mentions his wife Margaret; his brother William, of Great Coxwell, and his children; his godson, Edward Symmons, to whom he leaves the bulk of his property. He directs that he may be buried at Shillingford.

In an ancient charter occurs the name of Ausgerus or Aucherius, the second Abbot of the Abbey of Reading, Berks, who “founded a house near the church, dedicated to St. Mary Magdalen, for poor lepers.”² Probably these names of the second Abbot are synonymous with Archer;³ and this supposition seems the more plausible, as, in the time of King Henry I., Robert Archer of Tanworth held seven manors in this county; and moreover, St. Mary Magdalen was the patron of the family chapel of the Archers of Tanworth, Warwickshire.⁴

At Doctors’ Commons, London, is recorded the will of Richard Archer of Berks, 1643.

Archers of Westmoreland and Cumberland.

2. In the parish of Low Layton is a monument of stone on which is a brass plate bearing this inscription—

"Here, under this stone, lyeth buried the body of Henry Archer of Layton, Esquire, who deceased the 4th day of October in the year our Lord, 1585, being of the age of 59."

In the work from which we quote² the author adds: "This gentleman gave to the parish wherein he lived 20 shillings a-year to be disposed to such poor people as should be at church on Whitsunday."

1. Will of Charles Archer of dated 26 March, prov. 7 Oct. 1659. Testator mentions his children, John, Anne, Charles, Richard (his Executor), and Joseph. He mentions also his land on the North Lessome, and leaves a legacy to Charles, son of John Archer.

2. Will of Joseph Archer, citizen and goldsmith of St. Leonard's, Foster Lane, London, dated 25 May, prov. 13 June, 1659. Mentions his wife, but without name; his children generally; his cousins, Anne Wilson, Jane and Susan Moore; his cousin Mary, dau. of his bro. John; his brother Robert (and his son Robert). Bequests to the poor of the parish of St. Leonard's and of Snelston, co. Derby.

Witnesses, Francis and Benjamin Archer.

3. Will of John Archer of St. Martin's in the Fields, London, 1682. Money to the poor of the parish thro' Dr. Tennison. Rest of his estate to wife Bridget, executrix. Witnesses—Dorothy Goffe, Henry Hughes, Richard Baleson.

In 1687 his brother, Edward Archer, is mentioned after the probate of the Will.

(Decimo octavo die mensis Januarij, Anno Dni. 1687, ant. Com^o. Edwardo Archer, &c).

4. The Will of Edward Archer of Edgeware, co. Middlesex, yeoman, date 21 Oct. 1641, prov. 20 March, 1642. His sisters—1. Winifred (unm.). 2. Katherine, relict of Wm. Edlin of Hatchend. 3. Elizabeth, m. to John Lamb of Hendon. His executors—1. John Haley of Boramwood, and 2. Henry Haley of London, both sons of his brother-in-law.

5. Will of Thomas Archer of London, citizen, date Nov. 3, 1654, pro. Feb. 8, 1654-5. His wife Katherine; his sons—1. Thomas; 2. John; 3. Edward. Property in Christ Church, near St. Nicholas Charttes, London. His godsons, Thomas Archer, son of William Archer of Cheston, and Thomas, son of Peter Archer of Hatfield.

6. Will of Thomas Archer of St. Dionis, Backchurch, London, date 14 Feb. pro. 11 March, 1654. His brother and sister, Mathias Archer, and Elizabeth Mannder. The following are also styled his brothers—1. Alexander Hicks (three children, John, Ann, and Elizabeth). 2. Ananias Bayliffe (four children, Thomas, Ann, Sarah, Elizabeth). His cousin, Sara Upton. His sons—1. Edward; 2. William; daughter "Mary."

7. Will of John Archer, clericus of — (obit.), date 17 April, 1649, prov. 3 Mar. 1649. His wife Susanna; his son, under age; his brothers—1. Theophilus; 2. Francis. Two brothers are mentioned, one a scholar at Rotterdam, the other in New England.

This Will, which is either very loosely written, or perhaps very incorrectly copied, is brief, and appears to have been taken down from testator's lips by one Philip Nye, and by him signed; and a commission was issued to the widow Susanna. It does not commence in the usual manner, but begins, "I have £1500." &c. &c. "The scholar at Rotterdam" occurs once or twice, also "the brother in New England;" but without specifying either by name. The copy of the will is so unintelligibly expressed, that it is difficult, although very short, to ascertain its meaning with any degree of perspicuity.

8. Will of Peter Archer, dated June 27, 1665, adm. 1671, mar. 21. He is described as a mariner of the good ship Mary, upon the high seas. He was formerly of Edmounton, co. Middlesex, and died unm.

9. William Archer of Godstone. His Will dated 17 Aug. and prov. 17 Oct. 1650. His wife Dorothy, and his children, William, Alice, Mary, John, and Richard, are mentioned. All the latter were under 22 years of age at the date of the Will. Edward Archer, a subscribing witness.

10. Will of William Archer (or Archer), of Newington, co. Surrey. Will dated 26 Jan. prov. 31 Jan. 1650-1. Testator mentions his sister Abigail (m. to ——— Morris), his wife Joan, his dau. Elizabeth, and his sons-in-law, Geo. and Wm. Moore.

Archer in Cornwall.

1. The Archers of Lizard were a very ancient and honourable race, which became extinct in the male line in the time of King Edward IV., when the heiress married Levelis of St. Burian, a gentleman of an ancient Cornish family, which can be traced back certainly, to the year A.D. 1020.¹

The Archers of Lizard were connected by marriage, in 1340, with the families of "Trewren" and "Matthews" of Penetenny, which latter became extinct in 1700.

In the church of St. Burian, the Archer arms occur, in old carved woodwork, amongst the quarterings of other families.

3. John Archer (lineage uncertain) represented Helston in Parliament, temp. Hen. VI.

After this period the name of Archer does not occur in any of the public records or registers of Cornwall till the year 1640, when the burial in London of a certain Joseph Archer is entered.

4. Archer of Trelaske.—The founder of this family was John Archer, Rector of Carhayes, to which he was instituted, 1644.

LINEAGE.—John Archer, Rector of Carhayes, had a son, Nicholas, who inherited from his uncle, Richard Archer of St. Kew, all his property, but dying without issue, he bequeathed his property to the eldest son of his brother Edward.

This Edward Archer m. 1683 Judith Swete, and his son m. Sarah, co-heir of John Addis of Whiteford. The estate of Trelaske came into the Archer family, by the bequest of William Addis, in 1741, he having inherited it from John Addis, who had purchased it in 1703.¹

The manor of Trelawney came into the family by purchase in 1791.²

Archer.

West-Indies, America.

DURING the seventeenth century the surname Archer was comparatively common to what it is at present; and in the older colonies of the West Indies, at the former period, there were many persons of the same name, though probably not of the same family. Amongst the principal christian names of these Archers may be noted, Peter, Leonard, Anthony, Edward, Robert, Thomas, and John; names which will be found on reference to the Bedford, London, Berkshire, Lincoln, and Worcester branches of the Warwickshire family.

The earlier Archers, in Jamaica, appear to have come from a parent-stock; probably settled in the neighbourhood of London, and likewise at Swindon.¹ It was not until about the year 1748, that a branch of the Barbadoes Archers emigrated to the larger island. In a Will, recorded in Jamaica, in 1769, mention is made by the testator, of his being the eldest son of his father, then residing in Barbadoes.

In the Records at Fetter Lane (London), may be seen a notice of the pardon, by Charles II. granted to John, afterwards Sir John Archer, then living in Barbadoes, and the preferment to a benefice (Hinton) in England, of Edward Acher, also exiled there.

COMMUNICATED BY E. C. LONG, ESQ.

. . . . ARCHER.

The descendants of the original Jamaica Archers appear to have founded families in the South of Ireland, and also about Dublin.

In the islands of Barbadoes and Jamaica, may be found many evidences of the fall and revival of old English families, who went thither during the political commotions of the seventeenth century, to avoid danger, to restore their fortunes, or to make them.

As some of these families again rose to opulence, they gradually returned to the mother-country; and, in the course of one or two generations, quietly "settled down"¹ amongst the landed gentry, or recruited, not only the Baronetage, but even the Peerage.

Perhaps as much was due to wealth as to ancestry. At any rate, there was a species of "conservatism" prevalent amongst those immigrants, that is almost unknown in more recently-settled colonies; and, indeed, this is not difficult to account for, when we consider the different classes, as well as motives, which produced the emigrants of the seventeenth, and of the nineteenth centuries.

In the former century, the West India Islands only received a portion of the political and other refugees, New England having been an equally favourite resort.

When the "members of the Opposition" (1641), says a distinguished historian² "began to despair of the fortunes of their party—to tremble for their own safety, and to talk of selling their estates and emigrating to America." He continues—"Many old and honourable families disappeared and were heard of no more, and many new men rose rapidly to affluence."

The Parochial and State Records of Barbadoes and Jamaica, prior to the year 1700, are full of distinguished names, and even titles; and from these, many desirable contributions to existing pedigrees, and family histories, might be made.³

Here we find the obscure and defaced monuments, rudely or handsomely sculptured, with the armorial devices of families, now scarcely remembered, but which were once well known as adherents of the Charleses, the 2nd James, or as followers of Cromwell, Here also are the quaint Wills of an expatriated gentry; the marriage of a noble

Here are bequests of "silver spoons"—of "my best sword and pistols"—"my small tortoiseshell box, set in gold," and such like items. Legacies to parents, children, or other relatives "in Ireland," "if they be still alive;" and many similar particulars, which indicate the state of society sufficiently intelligibly.

OTHER RECORDS, NAMES OF PLACES, ETC.

At the Record Office, Fetter-lane, London, in a MS. book (Barbadoes), are the entries to the following effect:—

“1660. John Archer, Sergeant-at-law in Barbadoes, receives a free pardon, and in 1660 is appointed Justice of the Bench in England.”

“1660. Carl. 2. Edward Archer of Barbadoes preferred to the living of Hinton, in England.”¹

The old Parish Registers of St. Lucy, Barbadoes, having been destroyed in a hurricane, all the records prior to 1755 have been lost.

By "Wills," it appears that the Archers of St. Lucy and St. Philip were one and the same family.

In St. Lucy's parish is an estate of this family, now much reduced, called Carolina. Adjoining it is a picturesque bay and promontory, called "Archers."

The original house of the Archer family was destroyed during a hurricane.

Carolina estate was originally called Cleburie. It is a curious coincidence, that the Archers of Umberslade quartered the Arms of a family of this name.

The Archer estates in St. Philip's par. were called "Archer's," and "Foul-Bay-Brathwaite." They adjoined each other, and that of the Weekes family.

They had also other small properties in the island.

NORFOLK:—Attached to a deed (now in the muniment room of King's Coll: Cambridge) relative to a grant, to Bricot Priory, Suffolk, is the seal of Richard le Archer, of Norfolk, (p. 33 ant.), bearing his arms, viz:—Purp. 3 broad arrows, points down, 2 and 1. Legend, "Robert Archer."—At Diss, in Norfolk, was discovered, not many years since, a very handsome mediæval seal, bearing the following arms and legend:—A bent bow, with arrow fixed—"Sigillum Roberti le Archer."

Another seal, of the date 1366, is that of Robert le Archer (p. 39), who held under De Vere, Earl of Oxford. It was dug up a few years ago at Riven-hall, Essex, and is now in the possession of T. C. Archer, Esq.—Legend, "Sigillum Roberti le Archer." Arms, ermine, on a bend sinister, a broad arrow bendwise.

WARWICK AND LONDON:—The seal of the Lord Prior Thomas le Archer (1320) is figured in Sir Edward Bisse's Notes to Spelman's Upton's Heraldry (1654), and presents one of the earliest examples of supporters (lions), with the legend "S. patris Thome le Archer."

WEEVER'S MONUM: p. 528:—"Orate pro anima Henrici Archer qui ob. 2 die Sept. A. Dm. 1480" (Thistleworth.)

THE SHIP "MORA," which bore William the Norman to the Conquest of England, had for its figure-head an archer shooting with a bent bow. (On "Streat Place," by W. H. Blaauw, Esq., 1850.)

IRELAND: *—The name of Archer is on record in Ireland from the time of Edw: III., and is more especially found about Kilkenny. In 1343, William Archer received a Treasury order for his expenses in relieving, with Archers, horsemen, and arms, for 13 days, Castle Kevin, in Wicklow. In 1358, Roger Archer was a Guardian of the Peace in Waterford, about which time K. Edw: granted to Gregory, son of John Archer, all the lands then in his occupation within the liberties of Kilkenny; to hold for his life, with remainder in fee to Elias, son of Adam Archer. In 1393, Henry Archer was Provost of Kilkenny, and in 1432, William Archer received a recognition of his services in resisting the IRISH enemy. In 1612, John Archer had a grant of the Manor of Mothell, the castle of Corbetstown, and certain rectories with tithes in the same county.

In 1625, Walter Archer died seized of sundry rectories, in Carlow, and left 5 sons, viz:—1. Henry, his heir. 2. Thomas, who served K. Chas. I. in Ireland. 3. James. 4. John. 5. Patrick, and a daughter, Catherine.

Patrick and Walter Archer were members, of the Supreme Council, of Confederate Catholics. In 1668, Esther, widow of Francis Archer, and John, their son and heir, had a grant of upwards of 1000 acres in Meath.

The attainders, of 1691, include six of this name—three in Kilkenny—the others in Dublin, Meath, and Mayo. On their estates claims were preferred, at Chichester House.

In Lord Kenmare's regiment (temp: Jac. II.) there was a Lieut. Archer, and in Sir Howard Oxburgh's, another Lieut. Archer. In Lord Louth's regiment (1689) there was a Capt. J. Archer, and a Lieut. R. Archer.

In 1661, Patrick Archer signed the "remonstrance" of the Roman Catholics.

In 1690, Henry Archer of Kilkenny, was an assessor of taxes.
