11. Charter by Henry, son of Earl David, by which, for the salvation of his own soul, and of the souls of his predecessors and successors, he grants to God and St. Mary and St. Andrew the Apostle, for the sustentation of a chaplain, to serve for ever in the chapel of Inchemartyn within the granter's court, three marks of rent, viz., 20s. from two oxgangs of land which Richard, son of Roger, held of the granter, 10s. from an oxgang held by William Symple, and 10s. from an oxgang held by Alice, the widow, on the day on which the charter was given. The 40s. must be paid in the chapel of Inchemartyn to the said chaplain serving there by those that hold the land, 20s. on St. Martin's day, and 20s. at Whitsunday; in default of which payment on these days or morrow after, the tenants shall be bound to pay six pennies of penalty for every day, and the sum of 2s. for every oxgang of land till the said pennies should be fully paid. Further the said chaplain should have the dwelling house in which John the chaplain was wont to dwell, with the garden and court on the north side of the said dwelling, and a toft on the north near the court of the granter's grange: To be held to the said chaplain serving there, of the granter and his heirs, in pure and perpetual alms, as freely as any alms is held in the region of Scotland. The granter also wills the chaplain to be instituted by the granter or his heirs; or by the keeper of the land if the keeping of it came to another after the decease of the granter or his heirs: and the chaplain to be presented to the bishop of St. Andrews by the granter or his heirs, or the keeper of the land. Witnesses, Gilebert, abbot of Cupar, John, abbot of Lundores, Malcolm of la Hay, parson of Erole, Andrew of Striucling, parson of Inchethor, Robert, vicar of Forgrund, Gilebert of la Hay, Henry of Abernithin, John of Cambrun, Magnus of Monorgrund, Michael of Stratoun. 1st November 1241, .....

12. Charter by John of Pincerna, son and heir of Sir John of Pincerna, sometime lord of Elyhoke, selling and confirming to Sir John of Inchemartyn and his heirs for five score pounds sterling, of which he acknowledges the receipt, the whole land, with the pertinents, which the granter had in the tenement of Petmedil by reason of excambion of the barony of Elyhoke, except one acre which he had given to Adam his page (garcioni meo) for his life, after whose death the acre should revert to the said Sir John of Inchemartyn and his heirs: To be held to the said John and his heirs or their assignees for ever, as freely as the granter held it. Because his own seal was not well known the granter procures the seal of the deanery of Perth and Gowrie, to be affixed together with his own, at Inchmartin the Lord's day next before the Feast of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, 21st June 1304. Witnesses, Sir Richard del Hay, Sir Gilbert, his son, Sir John Cambrun, Sir Robert of Harcrasse, then sheriff of Perth, knights; Peter of Brunton, the constable of Perth, Michael Scot, younger, Roger Mortimer, Walter of Alithe, Thomas his son, David of Blar, Edmund of Leys, Andrew of Monorgrund, .....

15. Agreement or Indenture made between William, prior of the church of St. Andrews and convent thereof, on the one part, and John of

Melville, lord of that ilk, on the other part, to the effect that John of Melville, with consent of Thomas of Melville, his son and heir, gave and confirmed to the prior and canons serving God and St. Mary and St. Andrew the Apostle in the kirk of St. Andrews, a half carucate of land from his land and lordship of Prestoun, lying between the land of Rycardystoun on the east side and the land of Estyrhydeleffe on the west side, and between the land called le Hylle on the south side and the land of Parklyne on the north side, in pure and perpetual alms: To be holden free of all custom, exaction, or secular demand, or the king's forinsec service; the lords of Prestoun for the time answering for such service as belonged to the said half carucate of land. John Melville and his heirs, by special licence of the said religious men, shall have stones from the quarry within the foresaid half carucate of land of Prestoun, for building their own houses in their manor of Prestoun, and free ish and entry thereto. The prior and canons of St. Andrews give and grant to the chaplains serving and to serve God and St. Mary and St. Leonard in the church of St. Leonard of Retreuyne [Tartraven], all the small teinds pertaining to the said town of Retreuyne; reserving the teind sheaves of the said town and mortuaries for the corpse-present of the lord and lady of Retreuyne, used and wont; reserving to the vicar of Lynlythqu for the time four pennies for every dead body from the said town of Retreuyne, bequeathed to the foresaid vicar or his chaplains: Melville and his heirs ministering to the chaplain serving in the chapel all necessaries in food, and clothing, and pay of labour from the farms of their lands of Retreuyne and Prestoun, so that he shall require nothing from the prior and canons but the said small teinds; the chaplain to be chosen and placed in the church by the prior of St. Andrews, and removed by him if found deficient, another being surrogated in his place: the chaplain to make faith to the church of Lynlythgow, that it should suffer no detriment by him: Should Melville and his heirs agree with the chaplain to remain at table with them, it should be lawful to him or them to dispose of the small teinds during that time. If on account of civil war, and wasting of the country, or any unavoidable cause, there should be no chaplain in the chapel, the small teinds should be collected during his absence by the lord of Retreuyne, and the chamberlain of the prior and canons of St. Andrews, for the use of the future chaplain. If the land should be evicted from the said religious men through defect of warrandice of John Melville or his heirs, or the present agreement be infringed by them, the foresaid small teinds should revert to the prior and canons; and the foresaid half carucate should revert to the foresaid John and his heirs, if the said teinds were detained by the

- foresaid religious men. To one part of the indenture the seals of John of Melville, and Thomas of Melville, his heir, with the seal of William, bishop of St. Andrews, who confirmed all the premises, were appended; and to the other part the common seal of the chapter of St. Andrews, with the seal of the foresaid bishop, was appended. Dated at St. Andrews, 4th July 1345, ..... 9

36. Notarial instrument of Revocation, narrating that in presence of a notary and witnesses, a noble woman, Christian of Glen, daughter and one of the heirs of the late John of Glen of Balmulto, compeared, and of deliberate counsel asserted that she being under age and held in subjection and custody, had consented to a certain tailzie of the lands belonging to her in heritable right, made by the late David of Ogilvy, her husband ; but that now she was come to her liberty, she revoked and annulled such tailzie ; further, she asserted that formerly, in the time of David of Abirkerdore, her husband, she, compelled by him, had consented to an alienation then made of her fee and heritage of certain lands pertaining to her by heritable right, but now she being in her lawful widowhood, revoked such alienation as far as she might legally do it, protesting that such tailzie and alienation should do her and her heirs no prejudice. Done in the lodging of the vicar of Dundee, in presence of John, bishop of Brechin, Mr. John Wilson, (Willelmi,) official of Brechin, Richard of Crag, vicar of Dundee, William of Kamys, vicar of Glammys, John Wrycht, rector of the church of Kynnell, David Seres, vicar of Monymele, David Fotheringham of Poury, James Fotheringham, burgess of Dundee, Sir John Malcolmson and Sir James Bartholomewson, priests. 26th February 1445-6, ...

37. Notarial instrument, narrating that on the 21st of April 1449, Sir Andrew Ogiluile of Inchemartyne, knight, presented a part of an indenture before William Thyne, bailie of the burgh of Dundee, sitting in judgment, and craved John Idill, notary public, to make a transumpt of it, the writ being an indenture between Sir Andrew of Ogiluile of Inchemartyne, knight, and John of Wemyss of that ilk, to the effect that Sir Andrew shall have in exchange John of Wemys' part of the lands of Inchemartyne, in fee and heritage for ever, and John of Wemys shall have Sir Andrew's part of the lands of the Wemysschire, with his part of the lands of Glen and Elchoke, with the chemys thereof, in fee and heritage for ever: also the said Sir Andrew and John shall appear in Perth, in the kirk of St. John the Baptist, on Tuesday after Martinmas, 16th November next, before the five persons following, Henry Forstar, Andrew of Lundy, for the said John, William of Fentoun and John of Thorntoun, for Sir Andrew, with Sir James of Auchinleck of that ilk, knight, as oddman ; which five persons should value the lands, so that either party should have his own : Item, the said John should bring to the tryst one of these two, Thomas of Wemys of Rerece, and John Wemys of St. Andrews ; and Sir Andrew one of these two, Mr. Alexander of Guthery, or Robert of Foullerton, who should be sworn to end the cause as the other five, etc. If John of Wemys' lands of Inchemartyn were found better than Sir Andrew's lands of the Glen, etc., Sir Andrew should recompense to him or his heirs accordingly from the lands of Dron pertaining to Sir Andrew, or other of his lands ; and in case of the reverse, Sir Andrew shall be recompensed from the lands of Dron, pertaining to the said John. Item, if Alexander of Ogiluile, son and heir of the late David of Ogiluile, should marry one of the sisters of the said John, the said Alexander being in the fee of his lands of the Wemysschire and of Elchoke, the said John shall recompense to the said Alexander in exchange for his part of the said lands, lands as profitable and of as much value as he gave to the said Sir Andrew for his part of the foresaid lands, John and Alexander submitting, in case of disagreement, to the before-named arbiters. The parties also agree to underlie the ordinance of the arbiters as to all maills, count and reckoning between them, and specially as to the ward lands which Sir Andrew says he allowed Wemyss to enter to before his majority, viz., of Strathardill and Elchoke. For observing of which both parties give oath and hang their seals interchangeably with the seals of Sir John Froster of Corstorfin and Sir James of Auchinleke, knights, procured by the parties. Witnesses, John of Maxvile, Andrew of Wemys, George of Grinlawe, Archibald Wallace, Sir Patrick Lesouris, parson of Newtoun, Peter of Cochrane, and Sir Thomas of Kyrcauld, notary. 41. Extracts from the Sheriff-Court Books of Forfar, with decret at the instance of Sir Andrew Ogilvie of Inchmartine against Walter Tulloch of that ilk. In the sheriff-court of Forfar, held at the Castlehill of Montrose, by Walter of Ogilville of Bewfurde, depute of Alexander of Ogilville of Ouchterhouse, sheriff of Forfar, on the eve of Holy Trinity (1st May) 1452, compeared Sir Andrew of Ogilville of Inchemartyne, knight, and asked the sheriff what he had done to a brief of convention presented to him by Sir Andrew more than 40 days before, on Wat of Touloch of that ilk, touching his marriage and that of his son and heir. William Marschale, "mar" (mayor) of fee of the quarter of Arbroath, being called, proved that more than 40 days previously he had summoned the said Wat to compear, who being called compeared not. Sir Andrew then said he was coming to his claim of the said marriages and for non-defence after certain depositions proved in writ under seals of John of Lummisden of Ardry, Sir Andrew Ramsay, parson of Ouchtirdera, and John of Skir-ling, or the value of the marriage, being 200 merks for his own, and 300 for his son's, if they failed, and he asked a decree of court that these depositions formed reasonable proof. For "waiknes of curt" the decree was deferred to a court to be held at Forfar, 1st July next, which was duly held in the tolbooth of the burgh of Forfar, by John Carncorse of Balmyschener, deputy of Alexander Ogilvile of Ouchterhouse, sheriff of Forfar, when the action was again postponed to a court to be held the last of July. On that day (Monday, 31st July) Thomas Fentoun of Ogile, depute, held a court, when Sir Andrew of Ogilvile again asked decree. The court being advised, decerned the writs presented by Sir Andrew reasonable proof for the convention for non-defence and for his claim foresaid, which decree was pronounced by the mouth of the doomster, and command given to the mare (mayor) of the quarter of Arbroath to compel Tulloch to fulfil the convention within lawful time and as law will, .....

42. Attestation by Andrew Lundy, sheriff of Fife, that in the tolbooth of the burgh of Cupar, in the sheriff-court held there, 17th October 1452, Sir Andrew Ogylvyl of Ynchemartyn, knight, compeared and presented letters of procuratory made by Marjory Ogylvyl, his spouse, daughter of the late Sir John Glen, knight, lord of that ilk, and principal and eldest heir to him and to his spouse, Dame Margaret of Erskyn of Ynchemartin, constituting Andrew of Ogilvile of Ynchemartyn, her procurator, to appear for her on 17th October in the sheriff-court of Fife, or other courts necessary, and protest, as was done before by the late Sir John of Glen and Dame Margaret, his wife, and by Sir John of Wemys and Dame Isabella, his wife, in the sheriff-court of Fife before Sir George of Leysle, then sheriff of Fife, and in like manner by the said Dame Margaret in the sheriff-court of Perth, before Walter Stewart, then sheriff of Perth, after the death of Sir John Glen, her spouse, in her pure widowhood, respecting all alienations of fee and heritage that pertained to the late Dame Isabella of Ynchemartyn, wife to Sir Alan of Erskyn, made by the said Sir Alan or Dame Isabell in her marriage, or by any of her successors, unlawfully or contrary to the law of Scotland, and principally of the lands of Wemys-Tarwett, in the sheriffdom of Fife, Carrik and Glenerschquhi in the lordship of Kylbrochqwy, in the regality of Athole and sheriffdom of Perth; and that no such alienations or detentions of lands from her turn to her prejudice. Which letters were dated at Ynchemartin 10th September 1452, and being read in court, the procurator foresaid made protestation accordingly, in the presence of John Kynlouche of Cruwe, Daub Hay of the Naughtan, John Lummysdeyn of Ardre, Daub Barclai of Colerny, John Kynnere of that ilk, John Wemys of Kylmany, William Strathenry of that ilk, Dauy Balfour of Caraldstane, Alyschender Lothroisk of that ilk, Archibald Meldrum of Cleysche, Alyschender Thayn of that ilk, John Lummysdene, younger, and George Ramsay, apparent heir to the laird of Clatte. Thomas of Kyninmonde, the sheriff's depute, affixed his seal, in absence of the sheriff, on the 17th, while the sheriff affixed his seal on the 23d October 1453, ..... 37

43. Transumpt made in the chapel of Inchmartin, 8th July 1455, at the instance of Sir Andrew of Ogilvill of Inchmartyne, knight, of the following two letters:—(1) Precept by James, King of Scots, to James of Auchlek of that ilk, knight, Henry Forester, Andrew of Lundy, William of Fentoun, John of Thorntoun, narrating that though the king had summoned them to compear at Perth on a certain day, to have ended the exchange of certain lands between Andrew of Ogilby of Inchmartyne, knight, and John of Wemys of Methkill, they had disobeyed, wherefore the king charges them to compear on the last of October to end the submission made to them, under pain of recognition of their lands and arresting of their goods. Falkland, 9th November [1447]. Upon which precept execution duly followed. (2) Letters of denunciation by James, bishop of St. Andrews, directed to rectors of churches, etc., narrating that though Henry Forstar of Nudry, Andrew of Lundy, William of Fentoun, and John of Thorntoun, arbiters mutually chosen in the cause of excambion between Sir Andrew of Ogilvill of Inchmartyne, knight, and John of Wemys, had been warned by the bishop's letters patent to compear and end the said cause, under pain of excommunication, yet they had not obeyed his commands, and so had damnably fallen under sentence of excommunication; the bishop therefore excommunicates them, and charges the rectors, etc., to denounce them as excommunicated in their churches on all Lord's days, festival days, during the solemnities of the mass, etc. Given under the bishop's round seal at St. Andrews, 12th November 1447. Execution followed, dated at Perth, 20th November. Witnesses to the transumpt, John Ketht of Troupe, Sir Andrew Chepman and John Merciale, chaplains, William Cochrane of Cleggarne, Andrew Erth, William Scot, Robert Noroway, squires, John Hude, priest of St. Andrews diocese, notary, ..... 39
44. Letters by Alexander of Ogilvile of Duntrone, discharging Sir Andrew of Ogilwill of Inchmertyne, knight, of £80 Scots, in which sum Sir Andrew was bound to the granter for his sister Christian's part of their father's goods, and also for Alexander's heirship given in furtherance of his sister's marriage [cf. No. 39 supra]. Dundee, 21st August 1458, ..... 41

45. Charter by Andrew, Lord le Gray, with consent of his son and heir, and with consent of Andrew Gray, his son's son and heir, knights, granting, for a sum of money, to his well-beloved cousin, David of Ogilvy, son and heir-apparent of Sir Andrew of Ogilvy of Inchmartyne, knight, four oxgangs of land of Inchmartyne that are now in the hands of John Gall, farmer thereof, in the barony of Langforgound and sheriffdom of Perth : To be held to the said David, his heirs and assignees, of the granters and their heirs, in fee and heritage for ever, for payment yearly of a penny Scots at Whitsunday on the said lands, in name of blench farm, if asked only. 48. Obligation by which John of Vemys of that ilk, knight, binds himself, his heirs and assignees, to David of Ogilby of Inchmartyne, his heirs and assignees, in reference to their exchange of lands, that if David Boswell's part of the lands of the Drone should be lawfully recovered from the said John, yet the whole exchange of lands should not break, but the granter should have regress to Boswell's lands of Balmuto within three months, with recompence at the sight of friends for whichever lands were of better value: also for the "chemys" of Balmnto, giving therefor the value for which it was appraised to David Boswell. Perth, 26th March 1462, ..... 45
49. Licence by King James the Third granting to William Scot of Balwery and his heirs special permission to construct a castle or fortalice in his lands of Balwery, in the sheriffdom of Fife, to fortify it with walls and ditches, strengthen it with iron gates, and provide it in the upper part with engines of defence, and with all things necessary for the completion of the castle: also giving power to appoint constables, etc. Edinbnrgh, 23d February 1463-4, ..... 46
50. Retour of Inquest made before Alexander Creichtoun, sheriff-depute of Edinburgh, 23d April 1471, by John Sandelandis of Caldore, knight, John Forestar, William Hog of Keith, Alexander Malvyne, Andrew Wardlaw of Berntoun, Alexander Naper of Wrichtishous, Peter Dalzel of Carlowry, William Mowbray of Cambo, John Stewart of Lany, John Malvyne, James of Johnnestonn, Edward Sinclerc, Robert Dowglas of Halderstoun, Andrew Merchamistoun, Alexander Frog, John Lowranstonn of that ilk, and John of Abirnethy, who found that the late Thomas Melville of that ilk, father of Agnes Melville, died last vest and seised as of fee in the lands of the barony of Melville, in the sheriffdom of Fife, and that Agnes was his nearest heir, and of lawful age; that the lands were worth 100 merks Scots, and were held in chief of the king by ward and relief, and a common snit in the courts of the sheriffdom; being now in the hands of the king by reason of ward, by the death of the said late Thomas, who had died thirteen years before. Edinbnrgh, 23d April 1471, ..... 46

51. Charter by Henry, abbot of the monastery of Dunfermyne, and convent thereof, granting, with consent of his chapter, to William Melville of Rath, for homage and service done and to be done to the abbot and monastery, their lands of Rath, in the regality of Dunfermyne, and sheriffdom of Fife, which belonged to the said William heritably, and which he had resigned in the chapterhouse: To be held to the said William and his heirs of the abbot, monastery, and successors, in fee and heritage for ever, for the yearly sum of £5 usual money of Scotland, to be paid at Whitsunday and Martinmas, with ward and relief; and doing therefor forinsec service, with three suits of court at three head courts at Dunfermyne, and other services due and wont; under condition that neither William nor his heirs should knowingly receive to their mill any tenant of the proper lands of St. Margaret, nor build any mill for grinding corn, except on the lands of Pitconmark, on pain of recognition of the mill from the said William and his heirs. Dated at the monastery of Dunfermyne 26th May 1474, 47
52. Notarial Instrument of Ratification, narrating that in presence of William, [bishop] elect of Ross, commissary-general of William, archbishop of St. Andrews, and official of that diocese, within the parts of Lothian, with the notary and witnesses, Elizabeth Sibbald personally appeared, who, freely and spontaneously, gave her great oath on the gospels that in her consent to the resignation of the lands of the barony of Balgony, in the sheriffdom of Fife, in the hands of the king, James the Third, lord superior of the said barony, to be made in favour of Andrew Lundy, her son, no violence had intervened, nor was she in any way compelled by force or fear, but that her consent to the resignation proceeded solely from the favour and love she bore to her son, and she still desired the same to be observed according to the tenor of her procuratory thereupon made; nor did she wish to attempt anything contrary thereto; whereupon Alexander Cowttis craved instruments. Done in the dwelling-house of the said reverend father, in the town of Edinburgh, 5th March 1482-3. Witnesses, Alexander Inglis, archdeacon of St. Andrews, Thomas Mowtray of Markinche, George Kirkcaldy of Grange, and others, ..... 49
53. Notarial Instrument of Resignation narrating that in presence of the notary and witnesses, William Melville of Raith resigned his franktenement of his lands of Raith, Pitconmerc, Turbane, Pytscotty, Dwray, and Fedinch, and his franktenement of all his annual rents from the lands of Strathenry, and burghs of Dysert and Kirkcaldy, to John Melville, his eldest son and apparent heir, by delivery of a straw, in token of real and corporal possession of the said lands; and he also constituted the said John Melville his assignee to his leases of the lands of Easter Balbertane and mill thereof, of the lands of Powgulde and Dundownalde, with all right the granter had to the same, for all the days of his life. The said William then, upon oath, declared that he had granted no charters of any of the above-mentioned lands to any person, save to his said eldest son, and he further engaged to support the said John Melville in all his actions and causes, whereupon the said John Melville craved instruments. Done in the parish church of Kirkcaldy, 20th May 1491. Witnesses, David Boiswel of Glasmont, David Mailuile of Toulch, James Mailuile, and Alexander Mailuile, burgesses of Kirkcaldy, George Boisswell of Cragside, David Berkclay of Toulch, Thomas Kyngorne, burgess, and others, .....

54. Contract or Indenture of Marriage between William Melville of the Raith, Effem of Lundy, his spouse, and William Melville, their son, on the one part, and John Gowrlay, elder of Lamlethin, on the other part, to the effect that John Gourlay, son to the said John Gourlay, elder, should marry Elspat Melville, daughter of the said William Melville of the Raith, as soon as the law of holy kirk allowed; and that therefore the said William Melville, Effem, and William, their son, their heirs, executors, and assignees, should pay to the said John Gowrlay, elder, the sum of 200 merks Scots, 40 merks at the completing of the marriage, and 18 merks yearly thereafter till paid. In security of this sum a letter of assedation and lease of the lands of Fedynch was to be given to the said John Gowrlay and Elspat his spouse, for thirteen years, at a rental of 36 merks yearly: 18 merks to be yearly deducted therefrom till the whole 200 merks were paid. It is provided that the said Elspat should be honourably sustained in meat and clothes till they had ingathered the first crop from Fedynch, security to be found for payment of the rent. On the other hand, John Gowrlay, elder, was bound to infest John Gowrlay, younger, Elspet, his spouse, and their heirs, in the lands of Cargowre, in fee and heritage. Should any cause of divorce be found afterward by consanguinity or affinity, the said John Gowrlay, younger, shall pay the expenses of a dispensation within year and day under the pain of 200 merks, to be paid to the said Elspet, her heirs or assignees. Both parties are sworn to observe the indenture; to the part remaining with John Gowrlay, elder, the said William Melville of the Raith has affixed his seal, and because Effem had no seal of her own she procured the seal of James Malwin, burgess of Kirkcaldy, while John Gowrlay affixed his seal to the part remaining with the said William and Effem. 55. Retour of Inquest made before David Cowper, bailie of the regality of Dunfermline, specially constituted under commission from James, archbishop of St. Andrews, and commendator of Dunfermline, etc., by James Orrok, David Orrok of Sillebabee, Thomas Boiswell in Pitlochquhy, John Aytoun, Thomas Boiswell in Fynmonth, Henry Boithwell, Thomas Boiswell in Stentoun, John Walwod in Touch, and others; who found that the late John Melville of Raith, father of John Melville, died last vest and seised in the lands of Raith, Pitconmark, and Torbane, in the regality of Dunfermline and sheriffdom of Fife; that the said John is nearest heir to his late father, and is of lawful age; that the lands are now worth £100, in time of peace were valued at £5, and are held in chief of the said archbishop for service of ward and relief and rendering an annual rent of £5 to the commendator and convent and their successors; being in their hands as superiors by the death of the said late John by reason of ward and unrecovered sasine during the space of nine years or thereby. Taken in the burgh of Dunfermline, 29th October 1502, ..... 53
56. Precept by John Wemys of that ilk, knight, directing William Mailwyn, Robert Mailwyn, Thomas Mailwyn, and William Schewes, to give sasine to John Melville of Raith, the granter's son-in-law, and Margaret [Wemys] his spouse, and to the longer liver of them, in conjunct fee, of the 12 merks of land of Methill, in the regality of St. Andrews and sheriffdom of Fife, in special warrandice of the lands of Wester Raith, in the barony of Lochoreshire and sheriffdom of Fife, alienated by Sir John heritably, as is fully contained in his charter made to the said John Melville and Margaret Wemyss thereupon. Dated at Edinburgh 28th July 1503. Witnesses, Gawin Wemys, Robert Mailwyn, and others,..... 54
57. Notarial Instrument, narrating that in presence of the notary and witnesses, Euphame Lundy, relict of the late William Melville of Raith, compeared, and discharged Sir John Melville, knight, of Raith, of her third of the lands of Raith, the sum of 20 merks Scots, to be yearly nplifted from the said lands: and further she leased the lands of Fedeinche to the foresaid John and his heirs, for five years from the Whitsunday after the expiry of John Gourlaw's terms of the same, Sir John and his heirs paying the customary dues. In consideration of which quitclaim and lease the said Sir John is obliged to cause Jonet Bonar [his mother] discharge the said Euphemia, and David Melville and Andrew Melville, sons of the said Euphemia, of all goods taken by them from the house of Raith and lands of Glenestonn, when they held the said house of Raith. Witnesses, Thomas Mailvil, Robert Mailvil, and others, Robert Young, M.A., notary. 20th April 1506,..... 55

58. Precept by King James the Fourth to his bailies of the burgh of Disart, superiors of the annual rent underwritten, narrating that because by inquest made at the king's command by his sheriff of Fife, and retoured to chancery, it was found that the late William Melville of Raith, grandfather of John Melville of Raith, knight, died seised in an annual rent of 22s. Scots, furth of the tenements and lands of the late Alexander Mailuile and the heirs of the late James Swan, in the Kirkgate in the burgh of Disart, and that Sir John was lawful heir of his late grandfather, etc., the king therefore charged his bailies to give sasine of the same to the said John, when he had done what he was bound by law to do for the said annual rent. 67. Charge by King James the Fifth, narrating that it was shown to the king by James, Earl of Morton, that although John Multrar of Seyfeld had been denounced rebel and put to the horn as fugitive for the slaughter of the late Richard Moffat, committed within the earl's regality of Dalkeith, by which all the said John's moveable goods should belong to the earl, yet the said John still intromitted therewith; wherefore the king charges his messengers to pass with the earl's officers of his regality, and poind for the escheat of the said John's goods, and to take no deforcement, unless landed men or men of substance should become responsible. Edinburgh, 6th November 1526. The execution is indorsed to the effect that on 19th December James Bisset, messenger, and William Blakwod, officer to James, Earl of Morton, passed to the lands of Seyfeld, in the regality of Dalkeith, and poinded two oxen belonging to John Multrar of Seyfeld; and when the messenger was delivering the oxen to the earl's officer, "the said Johnne Multrar and his complices rais and maisterfullie reft and tuke fra me the saidis oxin," and deforced him, in sign whcreof the messenger broke his wand and took witnesses,... 62
68. Notarial Instrument of Appeal, narrating that in presence of the notary and witnesses there compeared John Melville of Raith, knight, John Ogilbe of Innerquharate, William Bonar of Rosse, James Forsycht of Nyde, James Kyrcauld of Grange, Alexander Oroke of Celebawbe, and Walter Ogilbe, holding in their hands a certain schedule of paper, containing in it the form of an appeal, which they delivered to the notary to be read and copied, as follows:—Appeal by the parties named, their accomplices, friends and familiars, who thought themselves aggrieved and oppressed by James Symson, official principal of St. Andrews, because, as had come to their knowledge within three days, he had fulminated against them certain pretended letters, inhibitorial or monitorial, containing ecclesiastical censures of excommunication on the part of John Multrar of Sefeild, they not being summoned, confessed, or warned, or convicted of any fault or contempt; secondly, although they had been present with the officers of James, Earl of Morton, at the apprising of the goods and grain of the said John Multrar, for payment of £60 Scots, lawfully adjudged to the said James Kyrcauld, they were guilty of no contempt, since every competent judge could put his sentence to execution, and combine others with him in ministration of justice, besides which they had the king's command to be present, yet the said reverend lord official had fulminated his letters of excommunication against them; thirdly, if it were alleged that, at the time of the apprising, Sir Andrew Prat, chaplain of the said John Multrar, had presented to them the official's letters, such allegation was false, for Sir Andrew had expressly denied he had any letters from his reverence or his office, but asserted he was charged by the said John Multrar to tell them they were excommunicated, and such letters or process were totally unknown to the appellants, who therefore appeal against his process and ecclesiastical censures of excommunication to Pope Clement the Seventh, and to the most holy apostolic see, and most earnestly crave "apostolos" [letters dimissory to certify their appeal]. Done in the notary's chamber, in the burgh of Kyrcauld, 20th February 1526-7. Witnesses, George Balcanquell, Sir William Challand, chaplain, and others. An indorsation bears that, on the 15th March, Spens, procurator for John Melville of Raith, knight, and other appellants, intimated the appeal to the lord official, and received letters dimissory, .....

85. Notarial Instrument of Appeal, narrating that, in presence of the notary and witnesses, there compeared an honourable woman, Elen Naper, widow, relict of the late John Melville of Raith, knight, and presented her schedule of appeal to the notary as follows :—Appeal by Elen Naper, relict, etc., feeling aggrieved by John, archbishop of St. Andrews, primate of Scotland, etc., or his official principal of St. Andrews, or his deputies, first, because, at the instance of Sir George Kedzow, alleged chaplain, the archbishop had fulminated pretended monitorial letters on an alleged provision of a pretended chaplainry, against the rentallers and others for paying to him the rents, etc., belonging to the pretended chaplainry, called the chaplainry of John Multra of Markhensche, within the parish church of Kinghorn Easter, and also against the appellant for payment to the said Sir George Kedzow of 12 merks Scots, as due to him for the year 1549 from the lands of Raith, Pitconmur, and Turbane, as if the appellant were the lady and possessor of the said lands, whereas before Whitsunday in that year, by reason of the death of the knight, her spouse, adjudged to death, the lands had fallen into the hands of Mary, Queen of Scots, James, Earl of Arran, governor, or George, abbot of Dumfermling, as lords superior; secondly, the annual rent claimed, if any existed, must therefore have reverted to the lords superior, unless it had been made in mortmain, which was not the fact; third, so far as the appellant cultivated the said lands she did it only by tolerance of the queen, etc., and she therefore appeals from the archbishop to Pope Paul the Third and the holy apostolic see. Done in the parish church of Kirkcaldy, 30th March 1550. Witnesses, John Halden, Sir Symou Cowane, chaplain, and others. An indorsation intimates that on the 5th of April 1550 the present appeal was intimated by Mr. John Robisoun, appellant's procurator, at the stall of the archbishop in the choir of the metropolitan church, but because the archbishop was absent, living at present out of St. Andrews, the procurator protested that his present intimation and craving of letters dimissory and seeking the archbishop at his stall should be accounted in place of such letters. Witnesses, Sir Andrew Ballon, prior of Inchmaholm, Mr. Patrick Cokburn, Henry Douglas, son of Henry Douglas of Drumgarland, and others. Also on 5th April the procurator intimated the appeal to the lord official principal of St. Andrews, and craved letters judicially: who granted to him letters refutatory. 86. Letters directed by Mary Queen of Scots to her sheriffs of Edinburgh, Stirling, Fife, Perth, to the lion-king-of-arms and his heralds, intimating that of her special favour, and at the request of the most Christian king of France, she had forgiven and remitted to James Kyrkcaldy of Grange and Mr. Henry Balnaves of Halhill, all crimes of treason, lese-majesty, and other crimes committed by them before the date hereof, especially in the turbulent time of her minority, and received them as her faithful and obedient subjects. And further, lest if they should be called before any judge at the instance of any private party, especially for what was done at the siege of the castle of St. Andrews, the queen's mercy and grace might rather do them harm than good, she therefore takes them under her protection and safeguard, and exempts them from all judges, spiritual and temporal, concerning any crime which may be imputed to them, especially from the time they entered the castle of St. Andrews till the present date, and that for the space of two years. The sheriffs in that part are therefore directed to charge the chancellor, lords of Session, etc., not to grant letters against Kirkcaldy or Balnaves at the instance of any person during the time foresaid, on pain of deposition from their offices. Given under the signet at Paris, 17th February 1556. Signed, Maria. An indorsation states that proclamation of this exemption and safeguard was made at the market cross of Edinburgh, 24th May 1557. Witnesses, Lyon, and Ross, heralds, Bute and Carrick, pursuivants, Creichtoun of Lugtoun, younger, and others, ..... 95

96. Proceedings at an inquest on the service of John Melville of Raith in the court of the regality of Dunfermline, held, notwithstanding Passion-week, under dispensation of the king and queen, by Patrick Hackat of Pitfirren, and William Durrye, bailies of the regality. The inquest comprised William Kyrcaidie of Grange, knight, David Wemis of that ilk, David Lyndsay of Kyrkforthir, James Gyb of Ballyngkyrk, and other persons of inquest. An objection was taken by John Kynnynmonth in Coilquhalie, to the serving of the brief because he had an instrument of sasine of an annual rent of 26 bolls of oatmeal and six bolls of beir of the half of Turbane, dated 27th September 1557, in which half lands John Kynnynmonth and Isobel Betoun, his spouse, were infeft. To which John Melville of Raith answered, the instrument alleged could give the said John Kynnynmonth no interest to stop the service, because, so far as the said half lands had been alienated to the late Archibald Betoun of Capildra by the late John Melville of Raith, knight, the lords of Session, by decret dated 5th May last, in a process at the said John's instance against John Betoun of Pitlowthe or Capildra, heir of the said Archibald, had decerned them to be lawfully redeemed ; and also, being only for an annualrent, the said John Kynnynmonth's claim could not stop the service. And, accordingly, the inquest served the said John Melville of Raith in the lands of Raith, Turbane, and Pitconmark, conform to an instrument of sasine of the late John Melville of Raith, his father, dated 24th November 1502 ; and John Kynnynmonth protested that such service should not prejudice him in his annualrent aforesaid. Raith to the said Margaret Scott, spouse of the said late John Melville, elder, of Raith); and further the king unites the whole lands into one free barony to be called THE BARONY OF RAITH, the manor place and fortalice of Raith to be the principal messuage: To be held of the king and his successors in fee and heritage, for payment yearly of £5 Scots of annual rent, with ward and relief, performing forinsec service, with three suits of court at the three head courts at Dunfermline, and fulfilling all conditions in previous infeftments of the said John Melville of Raith and his predecessors, heritable feu-farmers of the same. Edinburgh, 3d February 1626,..... 157

121. Testament-Dative and Inventory of the goods and gear of the late John Melville of Raith, in the parish of Kirkcaldy and sheriffdom of Fife, who deceased intestate in the month of January 1626, given up by Margaret Scot, his relict, and by David, Mr. Thomas, Bathia, Margaret, and Effie Melville, their bairns and executors-dative, decerned by decree of the commissary of St. Andrews, 22d March 1627. The sum of the inventory is £853, 6s. 8d., the debts owing by the dead £163, 13s. 4d. The testament is confirmed by Mr. James Wemyss, commissary of St. Andrews, 20th April 1627, ..... 161

122. Commission by the Convention of Estates, the noblemen, lords of parliament, commissioners of shires, and commissioners of burghs for the parliament of Scotland, narrating the condition of affairs in church and state, and that they have unanimously chosen General Sir Alexander Leslie to be general of all the Scots forces, foot and horse; they further promise obedience to him in his military charge, he being answerable to the Council of State and supreme judicatories of the kingdom, civil and ecclesiastical. The commission to endure so long as they were necessitated to be in arms for the defence of the Covenant, religion, crown, and country. 9th May 1639, ..... 162

123. Commission by the Estates of Scotland, narrating that in consideration of the wars concluded against the kingdom in the Council of England and parliament of Ireland, and begun by the governor of the castle of Edinburgh and Englishmen therein, who had shot at the burgh of Edinburgh, etc., and of their experience of the great wisdom, diligence, and affection of General Sir Alexander Leslie of Balgony, knight, in the discharge of the former commission granted to him, they have chosen him to be general of all the Scots forces, and promised dutiful obedience to him, engaged to maintain the general and his posterity, and refund any loss he might sustain; he being answerable to the Council of State and supreme judicatories of the

- kingdom, civil and ecclesiastical. The commission to endure so long as they were necessitated to be in arms for the defence of the Covenant, for religion, crown, and country, or till it was discharged by the Estates. Edinburgh, 17th April 1640, ..... 164
124. Patent by King Charles the First, narrating that he understood how great honour and esteem General Sir Alexander Leslie of Balgony, knight, had acquired in Germany and Sweden, and other foreign regions, etc., and thereby had added honour and reputation to the ancient kingdom of Scotland, wherefore the king creates and constitutes Sir Alexander and the heirs-male of his body, Earls of Leven and Lords of Balgony, granting him and them the title of earl and lord of parliament: To be held of the king and his successors in all his parliaments, etc. Dated at the palace of Holyroodhouse, 11th October 1641, ..... 167
125. Commission by King Charles the First, narrating that the Estates of Scotland, from their sense of the constant peace lately established between the kingdoms of Scotland and England, had, on the first rumour of the Irish rebellion, offered to the king sitting in plain parliament, 10,000 men to repress the rebellion, if the parliament of England would accept the same, who received the offer with the greatest affection, and by a commission decided as to their subsidy and pay, etc. Further, having had experience of the courage and endowments of Alexander, Earl of Leven, Lord of Balgony, and his prudence and good fortune in leading of armies, the king, with advice of his Privy Council, makes him commander of the said army of 10,000 men, levied and to be levied in the kingdom of Scotland for the repression of the Irish rebellion, with power to transport the same to the kingdom of Ireland, and especially to the province of Ulster, and to use all necessary means for the suppression of the said rebellion, the earl and his officers being answerable to the king and lords of the Privy Council. Dated at York, 7th May 1642, ..... 168
126. Testament of John, Lord Melville of Monimail, in which he gives directions to those whom he had appointed to execute his will after his decease for numerous legacies to be paid to various relatives and friends. Dated at Monimail, 8th May 1642, ..... 170
127. Testament of Alexander, Lord Balgony, constituting William, Master of Cranstoun, Sir John Ruthven of Dunglas, knight, Walter Dundas, younger, of that ilk, Sir John Leslie of Newtoun, knight, one of the senators of the college of justice, Arthur Erskine of Scottiscraig, and John Rentoun of Lambertoun, tutors-testamentary to

Alexander Leslie, his son, Lady Catherine and Lady Agnes, his daughters, or so many of them as shall not be past the age of tutory at the time of his decease ; Arthur Erskine, Walter Dundas, younger, and John Rentonn, or any of them, to be sine quo non, they or any of them, with any two of the other tutors, to be a quorum ; and appoints John, Earl of Rothes, Hew, Lord Montgomerie, Alexander, Earl of Leven, Captain John Leslie and Mr. James Baird, advocate, to be overseers, and exact an account from the tutors every year. Edinburgh, 12th January 1644,..... 172

128. Bond of Provision by Alexander, Earl of Leven, Lord General of the armies of Scotland, narrating that though he had provided his estate to his grandson Alexander, Lord Balgony, son to Alexander, Lord Balgony, his son, and his heirs-male and of tailzie, yet by the infeftments thereof he had power to contract debts affecting the said lands. Wherefore for a provision to be secured to Mistress Katherine Leslie, only daughter to the said late Alexander, Lord Balgony, he obliges himself, and his heirs, and specially the said Alexander, Lord Balgony, his heirs and successors in the said lands and heritages, to pay to Mistress Katharine Leslie, her heirs, executors and assignees, the sum of 40,000 merks Scots, at Whitsunday or Martinmas immediately following her age of fourteen years ; and because by the entail the said Mistress Katharine was excluded from succeeding to the lands, it is declared that an additional 20,000 merks, making in all 60,000 merks, shall be paid to the said Mistress Katharine immediately after the death of Lord Balgony, should he die without heirs. WILLELMUS, Dei gracia Rex Scottorum, omnibus probis hominibus tocius terre sue, clericis et laicis, salutem : Sciant presentes et futuri, me concessisse, et hac carta mea confirmasse, Galfrido, filio Ricardi de Inuerkunnigglas, donacionem illam quam Patricius, abbas de Dunfermline, et eiusdem loci conuentus, ei fecerunt de terra de Balweri : Tenendam sibi et heredibus suis, in feudo et hereditate, per rectas diuicias, predictae terre et cum omnibus aliis ad eam iuste pertineutibus, ita libere et quiete, plenarie et honorifice, sicut carta predicti Patricii, abbatis, et conuentus testatur ; saluo seruicio meo : Testibus, Willelmo, capellano meo, Willelmo de Boscho, magistro Nicholaio, medico meo, Alexandro, filio Thoraldi, Herberto de Camera, Adam, filio eius, Johanne de Striuelin, Ricardo Reuel ; apud Clacmuan, primo die Marci.

11. CHARTER by HENRY, son of Earl David, to a chaplain in the chapel of Inchmartin, of three merks yearly. 1st November 1241.

OMNIBUS hanc cartam uisuris uel audituris, Henricus, filius Comitis David, salutem : Noueritis me dedisse, et hac presenti carta mea confirmasse, pro salute anime mee et animarum antecessorum meorum atque successorum meorum, Deo et beate Marie et sancto Andree apostolo, ad sustentacionem vnus capellani qui perpetuo deseruiet in capella de Inchemartyn infra curiam meam, tres marcas redditus, scilicet, viginti solidos de duabus bouatis terre quas Ricardus, filius Rogeri, tenuit de me, et decem solidos de una bouata terre quam Willelmus Symple tenuit de me, et decem solidos de una bouata terre quam Alicia, uidua, tenuit de me, die quo illa carta data fuit, scilicet, die omnium sanctorum, anno gracie millesimo ducentesimo quadragesimo primo. Et sciendum est quod isti quadraginta solidi debent solui in capella de Inchemartyn dicto capellano qui ibidem deseruiet per illos qui tenebunt dictam terram, scilicet, viginti solidi die sancti Martini in hyeme et viginti solidi die Pentecostes. Et si ita contingat quod illi qui tenebunt dictam terram defecerint in solucone dictorum denariorum soluendorum die sancti Martini, uel in crastinum, et die Pentecostes uel in crastinum, dicti tenentes dabunt sex denarios de pena quolibet die et summa[m] duo solidorum pro qualibet bouata terre dicto capellano donec dicti denarii plenarie persoluantur. Preterea sciendum est quod dictus capellanus habebit mansionem in qua Johannes, capellanus, solebat manere, cum gardino et curia ex parte aquilonis dicte mansionis et unum toftum ex parte aquilonis iuxta curiam grangie mee: Tenendas et habendas dicto capellano qui dicte capelle deseruiet de me et heredibus meis, in puram et perpetuam elemosinam, adeo libere sicuti ulla elemosina datur liberius in regione Scoeye. Volo autem quod dictus capellanus instituatur per me uel per heredes meos, et si custodia terre aduenerit post diccessum meum uel heredum meorum dictus capellanus instituatur per custodem terre; et quod dictus capellanus presentabitur domino episcopo Sancti Andree per me uel per heredes meos si ita contingat, uel per custodem terre: Et ut hec mea donacio et carte mee confirmacio rata et stabilis perseueretur, huic presenti carte sigillum meum apposui; hiis testibus, Gileberto, Dei gratia abbate de Cupro, Johanne, eadem gratia abbate de Lundors, Malcomo de la Haye, persona de Erole, Andrea de Striueling, persona de Inchethor, Roberto, vicario de Forgrund, Gileberto de la Haye, Henrico de Abernithin, Johanne de Cambrun, Maygnus de Munnorgrund, Michaele de Stratoun, et aliis.

74. CASE submitted to the Lords of Session for SIR JOHN MELVILLE of Raith against JOHN MOUTRAY of Markinch. Circa January 1533-4.

MY LORDIS OF COUNSALE,—Thir ar the querelis criminalle thairof and ocasioness for to be considerat be yowr lordships for the part of Jhone Mailuile of Rayth, knyght, James Kyrkaldy of Grange and our freindis referrit to yowr lordships betuix ws, and Jhone Moultray, Markinche, Dauid Wallinche, his brether, and thair freindis as followis :—

In the first it is to be considerat be yowr lordships that we and owr partie beand at tendirness familiaritie, the lard of Seyfeild wetset his land vpoun vj<sup>c</sup> merkis, and offerit the samyn to vmquhile Andro, archebischop of Sanct Andrews, to tak the tak of the Abthane ovr my heyd, I being assignait to my fader sister, hewand vj yeris takkis to ryn at that tyme, and thairthrow causit me gyf thre hundreth li. for renewing of my said tak quhilk I mycht haif hed for xl li. of befor.

Secundlie, the said lard of Seyfeild wedset ane pairt of his landis of Tyre to my Ladye Sinclair vpoun iij<sup>c</sup> li., and offerit the samyn vnto me my Lord Mortoun for nonentress of the landis of the Grange, and causit me, the said James Kirkaldy, gyf ane mair inconuenient of the samyn.

Thredlie, efter that Patrik Kirkaldy, my brother, hed mariit ane kynnisvoman of the said laird of Rathis, hereter of certane laudis and akeris besyd Kingorn, the said laird of Seyfeild purchest the nonentress of the saides landis to his sone fray Doctor Kingorn thau hewand entress thairto, and be vay of deid braik vp thair durris, and spulzeit thair cornys for the profetis of the samyn, sekand allwais brek and truble, and makand occasione thairof but ony maner of occasione done to thame of befor.

Ferdlye, vpone Asche Veddynnisdye twa yeris befor the slauchter, the said laird of Seyfeild being at the mess in Kingorn, and aduertist that I was cumand to the kyrk in sober mauer in my passage to Edinburgh, rais fray the consecration in the mess and come fryth with drawin sueirdis to the kirk stile tyll stop me tyll entre to the kirk, and hurt the Laird of Grange at that tyme, etc.

Fiftye, cumand hayme fra the kingis service and raid vpoun the thevis, I, the said laird of Raith, passit in cumpany with the lardis of Veims and Balgony, without ovr seruandis, tyll heir mess in Kyngorn, and or the mess vas done the young laird of Seyfeild, with viij personis in his company, seyand me quiete at the mess, send for thair jakkis to the Seyfeild, aud, or the mess ves done, arayit thame and invadit me in the kirk yaird, and fowr of thame straik at me all ane quhill we war red, quhair Wod his seruand hapnit to be hurt, etc. etc.

Sextlye, I passand fra the Rayth to Kircaldy to my lord of Sanct Andrewis in ane schort quhit cot traistand na invasione, the laird Seyfeild beand aduertist of my cuming, and hewand his jak and knapskall tursit reddy with hyme, send ane spy furthe Kyrcaldy to the burn besyd the abbottis hale tyll espy me aud my cumpany, and quhen he was aduertist of my cuming he and his folkis arayit thame in thair geir and send for the laird of Pettedy aud his folkis, quhilkis war driukand in the towne, and reprevit thame of thair tary and schew that I wes cumand, and that he vald ueir get ane bettir tyme of me and myne, and the laird of Pettedy ansuerit thair was na sic caws as to mak slauchter, and disswardit his purpois, sayand that I hes freindis in cuntre, and thane he ansuerit—Fy one ye, Jhone Vallanche, I trowit neuir better in thi haud—and thane Pettedy woux crabbit, and said he suld gang forthir than he durst gaug, and reft tway axis and halbertis furth of Alexander Balcanwellis howse, and my lord of Sanct Andrewis prayit hyme to abyde with hime, and nocht to gang and mak prowocatione, sen the laird of Rayth was cumand to speik with hyme, and said, Ye haif bene oft togydder with me of befor but skayth, and thane he ansuerit, And I wer x and he xx he durst nocht hald the gait, and he saw my face, and with that ruschit furth of the lugeing with his seruandis and drew thair suerdis be I com within the portis, and quhen he come neir me I cryit to hyme and prayit him tak the half of the gait, and he ansuerit againe—Fy, set vpone the tratoris, and sua I was hurt in gret danger in diuerse pertis, and the said laird of Pettedy and his seruandis quhilkis come befor the laif makand prouocatioune and strykand happynnit to be sclaine in thair persute, and in ovr vtir defence, as all the cuntre knawis. And at that sammyn tyme Androw Traile, being with thame in company and seruice, was hurt to the deid, and leuit twa dayis thaireftir, and diuerse tymis befor his deces he declarit to syndry of his freindis as is abone writine, and how the laird of Seyfeld hed lyit of befor vij tymis in that yeir for my slauchter, and how that he and vtheris thre tuke vpone hand that day to await vpone my persone alanerly and to slay me, and that ilk ane of thaim straik at me the sammyn day, houbet it hapnit vpone hyme and thaim quhilk thai deuisit for me, and thankit God thairof, and send ane noter and vther chapelane tyll ask me forgyfnes of the sammyn : And all this was downe be thair sekyng and occasione, and but ony provocatione of me or myne, the said lard of Pettedy being tender with me and in my howse within vj dayis of befor, as the principalle of his frendis knawis, and beris nocht the querele of his slawchter vpone me, becaws thai knaw it wes nocht of my prouocatione nor sekyng, bot in my pure defense, as said is, etc., etc.

Sevintlye, I being with the kingis grace in Merose, the lard of Seyfeld mett my kynissman, Schir James Mailuile, chapellane, one fut, he being vpone horse, at the towne end of Keirkcaldy, and lychtit vpone hyme, and chasit hime, and howsit hime, and brak wp the durris vpone hyme, and had selayne hime had he nocht eschapit be ane bak dur. Auchtly, vpone Sanct Margrettis day last by past, Henry Vallanche, Gorge Vallanche, with vther complices, set vpone Johne Kircaldy, broder to the said laird of Grange, in the criit fair of Dumfermeling, and had sclaine hime had nocht bene his pure defence, and thairthrow braik the lavborghis fundin be thame of befor the baillie of regalite, the said Johne was maid quite be ane assize, and that wther partie was fugitiue, and wald nocht entre, and swa hes taken the said cryme vpone thame, etc.

Finalie, vpoun the natiuite day of ovr lady last by past, my servandis being in Kingorn at the evinsang, the said Daid and Hendry Vallanche, James Traile and Daid Vemis, and thair complices, crewaly set vpoun thaim for thair slauchter in the kirk yaird, behynd thair bakis, quhill thai red and put fra thame, and in the redding they hurt Marione Kirkaldy, syster to me, the said laird of Grange, with diuerse vtheris persewingis, sekingis, and occasiones maid to me and my seruandis, as all the cuntre knauis, etc.

Beseking heir for yowr lordschips tyll consydder, and tyll wey wyisly the crimes, faltis, and occasiones forsaidis committit vpone me and my seruandis, and tyll caws ws haue assythment thairof as efferis, etc., etc.

75. ANSWERS for SIR JOHN MELVILLE of Raith to the complaints and charges of JOHN MOUTRAY of Markinch. Circa January 1533-4.

THIR ar the poynttis of dittay efter folloving, that Jhone Moltray of Markinche and Jhone Moltray, his sone and apperand air, George Walllinche, Henry Walllinche, [Walter] Hoig, James Traill, William Robertson, and Auchinlek sit of in the justice air of the regalite of Dunfermline.

In the first, on Asche Weddinisday, twa yeiris precedand the May, in the yeir of God ane thowsand fyff hundretht and twenty nyne yeiris, the said Jhone Moltray of Markinche, his sone forsaid, and thair complices abone writing, being in the parroche kirk of Kingorne Estir, at the mess, and aduerteist that Jhone Mailwill of the Raitht, knycht, James Kircaldy of the Grange, and thair daly hovssald sernandis, nocht boiddine in ony maner of rayment, bot as thai vsit daly peciably to ryd, being on thair passage to Edinbnrgh, nocht knawing ony ewill, bot intent to haif hard mess wythin the said parroche kirk of Kingorne Estir, aduerteist of thair cuming, furiously wyth seitt purpose and mynd to hane slane the saidis Jhone Mailwill, knycht, and James Kircaldy, nocht boiddine in wappinnis and geir to defeynd thame, the saidis Jhone Moltray and his sone forsaid, wyth thair complices, raise fra the consecratioun of the mess and come furth of the kirk and the kirk yaird to the kirk still wyth drawine swirdis in feir of weir, and thair cruylie as commone oppressoris and breikaris of the kingis pace, and stoping his liegis the commone kingis strett, seitt apoune the saidis Jhone, knycht, and James, and thair sernandis, and hnrt the said James Kircaldy of Grange, nother ferand God nor the kingis grace, as it is manifest and notorlie knawine wyth all the cuntray.

Item, secundlie, nocht lang thaireftir the said Jhone Mailwill of the Raitht, knycht, was cumand fra ane raid that our sonerane lord maid vponn the thewise new cumand fra the kingis seruice throucht the tovne of Kingorne, nocht knawing ony ewill, being accompaneitt wyth nobill men, Daid Wemis of that ilk, and James Lundy of Balgony, passit quietly wythont ony sernandis to the parroche kirk of Kyngorne Estir, to do thair denotioun and heir mess, as gud Cristine men suld do, nocht dovtand ewill of ony man, thai being quiettlie at the mess, Jhone Moltray, sone and apperand air to the said lard of Markinche, seing the said laird of Raitht wythont his sernandis, quiett at that tyme, or the mess was donn, send to the Sefeild, wytht aucht persouns wytht him, for thair jakkis, knapskavis, and wther wappinnis gayning for weir, and or the mess was down arraiett thame, and inwadit the said lard of Raitht wythtin the kirk yaird, and fowr of the saidis personis straik at him ane lang tyme iu seitt purpose, malice, and forthowcht feloun, to haue slaue him, and at that tyme ane callit Woid was hurtt of thair prouocatioun and onseitting, as it is manifest and notorie knawing throcht all the cuntray.

Item, in the moneith of May, the yeir of God i<sup>m</sup> v<sup>c</sup> and xxix yeiris, the saidis laird of Markinche, Jhone Moltray, his sone and apperand air, George Wallinche, Henry Walliuche, wytth thair complices and thair seruandis, come furtht of the Sefeild in feir of weir boiddine, wytth jak, steill bonat, swird, and buclar, excep the lard him selff that come and ane furrit govne ou him, and gart ane boy turss his jak and steill bonatt to the tovn of Kircaldy, wytthin Alexander Balkankill luigyug wytthin the regalite of Dunfermling, and thair, quhen he was aduerteist that the said laird of Raitht suld haue cummen and spokkine wytth my lord of Sanct Androis for syudry erandis he haid ado wytth his lordschipe at that tyme, the said laird of Sefeild send ane espy furtht of Kircaldy to the burue besyd the abbottis hall to espy of the said laird of Raithtis cuming, and quhen he was aduerteist of his cuming the said laird of Sefeild and his folkis arraeitt thame in thair geir, and he him selfe pat on his jak and steill bonat and twa gloffis of plaitt on his handis, and send for the laird of Pittadye and his folkis, quhilkis war drinkand in the tovue of Kircaldy, and repreiffit thame of thair tarye, and shew that the laird of Raitht was cumand and that thai wald newir geitt ane better tyme of him and his. And the laird of Pittadie anserit that thair was uay sic cause as to mak slawchter, and disswadit his purpose, sayand that the laird of Raitht haid frendis iu the cuntray, and thane the laird of Sefeild ansueritt, Fye on ye, [Jhone Wall]inche, I trowit newir better in thi hand. To the quhilkis wo[rdis] the lard of Pittadie wox crabbit and angry, sayand, [he suld] gang forder thane the laird of Sefeild durst gang, and [reft] twa axis and halbartis furtht of Alexander Balkankill howse, and my lord of Sanct Androis prayit him to abyid wytth him, and nocht to gang to mak prouocatioun, sene the laird of Raitht was cumand to speik wytth his lordschipe, and said, Ye haue bene oft togidder wytth me of befor but skaytht; and thane the laird of Sefeild ansuerit, And I wer ten and he twenty he durst nocht hald the geitt, and he saw my face, and wytth that ruschit furtht of the luing wytth his seruandis and complices aboun writtine, and drew thair swirdis, all thir communicatiouns, prouisiouns, and prouocatiouns being prouidit of seitt purpose, malice, and forthowcht feloun apoun auld feid, for the slauchter of the said laird of Raitht, he nocht knawand ony ewill, nor thair prouisions of ewill aboun writtine prouidit for him, bot innocently, efter his commone maner of gangiug ouprouidit for siclik defens, bot in purpose, wytthout impediment of his aduersaris to haue spokkine wytth my lord of Sanct Androwis, for his necessar erandis come to the toвне of Kircaldy, haiffand on him ane schort quhitt cott, wytht dowblett and hoise, and ane reid bonat on his heid, the quhilk habeitt and rayment declaris his innocence that he knew nay ewill for the tyme, and swa he enterit, and his seruandis wytht him, in at the west port of Kircaldy, and incontentent as he enterit wytht in the said port, the laird of Sefeild, wytht his complices aboun writtynne, prouidit as is forsaide for the cruell slawchter of the said laird of Raitht, of forthowcht feloun, apoun auld feid, cruelie come apoun the said laird of Raitht, and thane the said laird of Raitht, seing the prouisoun maid for his slawchter, cryit to the laird of Sefeild, and prayit him to tak the half of the gaitt, and he ansuerit agayne—Fy, seitt apoun the tratouris. And swa the said laird of Raitht was hurt in diuerse partis of his body in grett dangeir of his lyff, and the laird of Pittadie and his seruandis happinnit to be slane of thair awine prouocatioun on seiking and perswitt on the said laird of Raithtis and his seruands vtir defense, as is notorlie knawine throcht all the cuntray and is manefest, because the said laird of Sefeild was prouidit of forthowcht feloun geiritt and armitt in feir of weir for the said laird of Raithtis slawchter, and he wytht sic ane habeitt as is aboun expremitt, nocht boiddine nor armitt for ony ewill: And to fortife the premisses at the samyn tyme of the onseitting be the said laird of Sefeild, ane man callit Andro Traill being wytht him in his company and seruice, was hurt to the deid, and leiffitt twa dais thairefter; and diuerse tymis before his decese he declarit to syndry of his frendis as is aboun writtine, and quhow the laird of Sefeild haid lying of before vij tymis in the yeir forsaide for the said laird of Raitht slauchter, and quhow that he wytht wtheris thre twik apoun thame that day to awaitt apoun the laird of Raithtis persoun alanerlie, and to slay him, and that ilk ane of thame straik at him that samyn day, quhobeit it happinnit apoun the said Andro and his complices that was dewisit for the said laird of Raithtis slawchter, and the said Andro, movit of consciens, send ane notar and ane wther chapilane to the said laird of Raitht to ask forgiffnennis for the samyn: And all this aboun writtine was doun be the said laird of Sefeild and his complices forsaide of thair awine onseiking, prouocatioun, and forthowcht feloun and lying in waitt for his slauchter, but ony prouocatioun of the said laird of Raitht, as is notorlie knawine, and for the fortifeing of the premisses, the laird of Pittadie, quhilk was tendir wytht the laird of Raitht, and in hovse wytht him vj dais befor, to quhome he aucht na feid nor ewill woill, as the principall of his frendis knawis, and beris nocht the querell of his slauchter apoun the said laird of Raitht, because thai knaw it was nocht of his prouocatioun nor on seiking, bot in his puir defense, as God and all the cuntray knawis.

conforme to custome and vse of the cuntray, nor na wder maner of way bot be manifest raiff and oppressioun wyththaldis the samyu, and hes haldine be the space aboun writtine, as all the cuntray knawis notorlye.

Ye sal wyt that it standis so with me that I may nocht do as I wald openlie. But I hawe bene of gud mynd toward the besynes that the said captanis hes ado in thir partis for ye and vther freindis beyng qwhar ye are knawis that I dwell amang vnfaythfull neibowris qwha hes cawsed the autoryte to be extreme to me and my freindis. But, thankis to the Lord, I hawe pwt of the worst, my gud freind the laird of Ormistoun and Monqwhany and Niniane Cokborn can adwertis qwhat my part hes bene sene the feild, and befor ; my gud brether and companions, Captane Schir Jhone Borthik and Doctour Durhame and Jhone Leslye can testife of the fyrst purpuss was done that was plesand to the Kyngis Maiestie, quhom God assoilze, and belewid I swld hawe bene remembrit with ane of the fyrst in thir partis. As for nowellis it is belewid that thir Frenchemen swld desyr part of castelles, and qwhat the qwene and gowernour consentis to I can not wreit. The Erle of Ergyle makis stark and cumis one Donde. Had ye lycence of my Lord Protectour to cume in Lowdeane ye mycht get great intelligence, and do gud service to my Lord Protectour. As this contrey standis ye may not weill be heir withowt hurt to freindis. The gentillmen that is in Fraunce is all ewill tretit and put in sindry partis fra vtheris ; myght thay be relewit thay mycht do my Lord Protectour gud seruice. Thai will get na help of this contre. I hawe gottin the lard of Grange twa sonnys relewit furth of ward, and swa is the lady of Grange and sewin of hir barnis, and hes not bot I gewe them. I hawe send to the lard of Ormistoun as ye wreit. I can geit na payment of Dawid Sybbet. The lard of Mawhill hes payed. Sumter of Ochtermoinsse sayes he borrowit in the campe viij crounis fra the laird of Monqwhany, and payit his taker qwhen the army lay in Leith, and all vther thingis that occurris I sall adwertes the laird of Ormistoun into wreit at lenth and serve trewly qwhar ye are and lippen after na kyndnes in thir partis sa lang as this autorite rynges and commend me to speciall freindis Capten Schir Jhon Borthik and Doctor Durhame, and Jhone Leslye, with Walter Malwill and Walter, and sva fair ye weill in the Lord. 85. APPEAL by HELEN NAPIER, relict of Sir John Melville of Raith, against sentence of excommunication. 30th March 1550.

IN Dei nomine Amen : Per hoc presens publicum instrumentum cunctis pateat euidenter quod anno incarnationis Dominice millesimo quingentesimo quinquagesimo, mensis vero Martii die penultimo, indictione octaua, pontificatus sanctissimi in Christo patris et domini nostri domini Pauli diuina prouidentia pape tertii anno decimo sexto, seu alias, sacrosancta sede apostolica per obitum prefati sanctissimi nunc vacante; in mei notarii publici et testium infrascriptorum presentia personaliter constituta honorabilis mulier, Elena Naper, vidua relicta quondam honorabilis viri, Joannis Melwill olim de Rayth, militis, animo et intentione (vt asseruit) prouocandi et appellandi et que realiter et cum effectu secundum formam chedule appellacionis dandam de facto appellauit et prouocauit. Quam appellacionis chedulam mihi notario publico subscripto in hanc instrumentalem formam publicam redigendam tradidit, cuius chedule tenor sequitur :— CUM appellacionis seu prouocationis remedium ab vtroque iure sit salubriter introductum vt nedum lesis, grauatis et oppressis, verum etiam plus posse ledi, grauari et opprimi se formidantibus in futurum eius presidio debite succurratur. Hinc est quod ego Elena Naper, relicta quondam honorabilis viri Joannis Melwill olim de Rayth, militis, sentiens me lesam, grauata et oppressam, timensque me plus posse ledi, grauari et opprimi in futurum, per vos reuerendissimum in Christo patrem Joannem miseratione diuina Sancti Andree archiepiscopum, totius regni Scotie primatem, legatum natum, vestrumve officialem Sancti Andree principalem aut alios vestros ad hoc commissarios seu deputatos. Ex eo primo quia vos, reuerendissime archiepiscopo predictae, per vos seu prefatum vestrum officialem aut alios vestros deputatos, ad instantiam et pro parte cuiusdam domini Georgii Kedzow asserti capellani quasdam pretensas vestras literas monitoriales simplices cum exequutione parata seu alias literas vestras ordinarias super quadam pretensa asserta prouisione sua cuiusdam pretense capellanie ipsius contra singulos reddituarios et alios ad obtemperandum eidem de fructibus, mercedibus, annuis censibus ac redditibus annuis pertinentibus ad suam pretensam capellaniam, nuncupatam capellania[m] Joannis Multra de Markhensche ac situatam infra ecclesiam parochialem de Kingorn Estir, necnon contra me ad persoluendum eidem domino Georgio Kedzow, asserto capellano predicto, de duodecim merchis monete vsualis regni Scotie tanquam eidem debitis de terminis Pentecostes et diui Martini vltimo preteritis anni quadragesimi noni seu de aliis summis, vt asseritur, debentibus eidem vt capellano dicte capellanie pro dictis terminis seu aliis per eum annuatim leuandis et percipiendis de terris de Rayth, Pitconmur et Turbane, jacentibus infra barroniam et vicecomitatum de Fiff seu forsan aliis terris, fulminastis seu emanari fecistis acsi essem earundem do[mina et] possessor seu alias possiderem et tenerem predictas terras : De quarum literarum fulminatione sic emanatarum contra me seu aliter nunc infra vnam horam ante hanc meam interpositam appellationem jampridem et de nouo ad antea de quo vobis notario publico harum serie solemnitatem legalem et fidem facio : Et id qui . . . (posito apud me concesso) quod ex huiusmodi terris olim debebatur ex aliquo fortuito casu, titulo, ratione seu quouis iure ad tempus seu aliter tanta merces annue capellano prefate capellanie de predictis terris, attamen eedem terre nunc imo ante predictum festum Pentecostes anni quadragesimi noni in hunc miserabilem statum et casum deuenerunt, quod ex eisdem terris ego vt occupatrix seu cultrix earundem huiusmodi annuam mercedem eidem domino Georgio vt capellano nec soluere aut satisfacere debeo quouis iure titulo aut ratione, quia eedem terre ante dictum festum Pentecostes deuenerunt in manibus serenissime nostre principisse Marie regine moderne ac illustrissimi domini nostri gubernatoris Jacobi, comitis Arranie, eiusdem nostre regine protectoris, seu reuerendi in Christo patris Georgii miseratione diuina abbatis de Dumfermling et couentus eiusdem, tanquam dominorum superioritatis omnium et singularum predictarum terrarum necnon totius domini et terrarum de Rayth, ratione obitus dicti quondam militis, mei sponsi, ad mortem adiudicati propter nonnulla crimina per eum (vt asserebatur) perpetrata contra serenissimam dominam nostram Mariam reginam predictam. Et pretextu confiscationis omnium bonorum ipsius quondam militis, mei sponsi, tam immobilium quam mobilium, terrarum ac domini eiusdem, et prout de presenti in manibus prefate serenissime domine nostre regine et prefati illustrissimi domini gubernatoris seu abbatis et couentus monasterii de Dumfermling predicti tanquam superiorum earundem sunt et extant. Secundo, prefatus annuus redditus si qui ex terris specificatis in literis dicti domini Georgii Kedzow de dominio de Rayth ex ipsis quondam dominis de Rayth concessus quoquo modo iure seu titulo extiterat, seu terre ex ipso dominio per dominos [de] Rayth pro tempore donate extiterant, nunc idem annuus redditus ex eisdem terris annuatim leuandus ; necnon et ipse terre tam libere per predictam confiscationem et publicationem bonorum dicti quondam militis intuitu mortis eiusdem et assertorum scelerum per eum perpetratorum reuerse sunt ad dominos superioritatis earundem acsi ab initio nunquam fuerint concesse, et sic nullo iure, nullo titulo, nulla causa seu ratione extat talis annuus redditus seu merces ex huiusmodi terris annuatim soluendus eidem domino Georgio Kedzow capellano nisi ab initio idem annuus redditus seu terre fuerint et sint et ipse terre mortificate in perpetuum ad mortuam manum ecclesie quod minime extat factum. Tertio, ego si et in quantum easdem terras seu aliquas ex dominio de Rayth colo, manuro aut laboro, id quidem facio iure, causa et titulo, seu potius tollerantia et patientia supreme domine nostre regine et domini nostri gubernatoris seu aliorum superiorum earundem terrarum in quorum manibus de presenti extant, quare minime vllo iure cogere ad quicquam inde soluendum prefato domino Georgio, quare eedem litere nulliter, perperam, male et inique et absque omni cause cognitione, nulla citatione contra me preuia aduersus me emanata (vestra reuerendissima paternitate et reuerentia, vt par est, semper saluis) indebite, male, perperam et inique vt supra : Ob igitur premissa grauamina mihi alias illata et grauiora in posterum forsitan inferenda a vobis R[euere[n]dissimo patre in Christo] vestroque officiali ac deputatis seu deputandis, pluribus aut vno, vestrisque pretensis literis contra me emanatis predictis ac monitionibus, excommunicationibus, aggrauationibus, reaggrauationibus, interdicti sententiis aliisque sententiis, censuris quibuscunque per vos vestrumve officialem seu deputatos latis seu ferendis, fulminatis seu fulminandis, ad sanctissimum [in Christo patrem] et dominum nostrum dominum Paulum diuina prouidencia papam tertium modernum, ac sacrosanctam sedem apostolicam in his scriptis prouoco et appello ac apostolos peto cum instantia debita et vicibus repetitis, subiiciensque me omniaque bona mea mobilia et immobilia presentia et futura tuitioni, protectioni et omnimode defensionis dicti sanctissimi domini nostri pape, eiusque sacrosancte sedis apostolice : Protestans solemniter de hanc meam appellationem addendo, diminuendo, corrigendo et ad calamum reformando, quociens opus fuerit et de iure licebit ; cum ceteris clausulis necessariis et oportunis omnibus. Super quibus omnibus et singulis prefata Elena a me notario publico subscripto petiit sibi fieri instrumentum seu instrumenta publicum seu publica, vnumve plura. Acta erant hec in ecclesia parochiali de Kyrkealdy, horam circiter duodecimam meredianam, sub anno, die, mense, indicione et pontificatu quibus supra. Presentibus ibidem Joanne Halden, Jacobo Mwresoun, Thoma Hutsoun, Jacobo Litster, Patricio Pratt, domino Symone Cowane, capellano, cum diuersis aliis testibus, ad premissa vocatis pariter et rogatis.

Et ego Walterus Ninian, presbyter Sancti Andree diocesis, publicus auctoritate apostolica notarius, quia [etc. in forma communi].

[Dorso.] Die quinto mensis Aprilis anno etc. quinquagesimo, indictione et pontificatu retrospectis, intimata fuit hec presens retrospectiva appellatio per magistrum Johannem Robisoun, procuratorem appellantem, apud stallum Reverendissimi Sancti Andree infra chorum in ecclesia metropolitana eiusdem, qui illic accessit gratia petendi apostolos a reuerendissimo Sancti Andree moderno. Et quia idem reuerendissimus nunc deget vltra civitatem Sancti Andree, cuius personalem presenciam nequit habere pro apostolos petendo et recipiendo, quos primo secundo tertio trina vice ibidem apud stallum debite cum instancia petiit et postulauit, et causante absencia dicti reuerendissimi et dicta sua petitione protestatur quod huiusmodi iutimatio et apostolorum petitio ac requisitio ipsius reuerendissimi apud stallum, vt predicatur, habeantur et reputantur loco apostolorum, et quod huiusmodi appellatio reputatur pro legitima intimata. Super quibus dictus magister Johanues Robison actornatus a me notario publico subscripto sibi fieri petiit instrumeutum seu instrumenta. Acta erant hec infra ecclesiam metropolitauam Sancti Andree hora circiter decima antemeridiem aut eocirca ; presentibus ibidem venerabilibus viris, domino Andrea Ballon, priore de Inchmaholmo, Magistro Patricio Cokburn, et honorabilibus viris, Henrico Doyglas, filio Henrici Doyglas de Drumgarland, Bartholomeo Levynstoun et domino Thoma Colling, capellano, testibus requisitis et teste et mea manuali subscriptione.

Quinto Aprilis predicto prefatus Magister Johannes Robison, procuratorio nomine quo supra, intimauit presentem appellacionem domiuo officiali Sancti Andree principali et apostolos petiit judicialiter ; quiquidem dominus officialis judicialiter solo uerbo coutulit apostolos refutatorios, et desuper prefatus magister Johannes Robison procuratorio nomine quo supra petiit instrumentum. Acta erant hec judicialiter infra ecclesiam metropolitanam Sancti Andree hora intermedia ad vndecim ante meridiem aut eocirca, coram his testibus Magistris Jacobo Rolland, Andrea Trayll, Jacobo Tuedy, Johanne Sybbald, et Johanne Brovn, requisitis et teste mea manuali subscriptione.

86. PROTECTION by MARY, QUEEN OF SCOTS, to JAMES KIRKCALDY of Grange and Mr. HENRY BALNAVES of Halhill. 17th February 1556.

MARIA, Dei gratia Scotorum regina, vicecomitibus nostris Edinburgi, Stirlingi, Fifæ, Perthæ et eorum deputatis ac vicemgerentibus, necnon dilectis nostris Leoni armorum regi, Rossæ, Butæ hæraldis, Richardo Trowp, nunciis, vicecomitibus nostris in hac parte coniunctim et diuisim specialiter constitutis, salutem : Quatenus nos ex speciali gratia et fauore nostraque autoritate reginali, et rogante ac requirente charissimo patre nostro christianissimo Galliarum rege, condonauimus ac remisimus dilectis nostris Jacobo Kyrkcaldy a Grange et magistro Henrico Balnaues a Halhill omnia prodicionis et lesæ maiestatis crimina vnaque quæuisque alia crimina per eos aut eorum quemuis quouis tempore anteacto ante datam presentium, maxime autem turbulento tempore nostræ minoritatis et infantie facta et commissa; eosque in nostram pacem, fauorem, misericordiam et gratiam tamquam nostros fideles et obedientes subditos recipimus, veluti in nostris remissionis et indulgentiarum literis eisdem desuper datis et concessis fusius ac latius continetur et exprimitur: Veruntamen si nos tolerare contingat eos aut eorum quemlibet citari aut in ius vocari coram iudice quouis, aut iudicibus spiritualibus aut temporalibus intra fines nostros, quouis de crimine antedicto ad instantiam cuiusvis partis particularis, ciuilitate aut criminaliter, veluti nostrarum legum rigor exigit, (maxime autem circa ea quæ commiserunt tempore obsidionis arcis Sanctiandree), quæ nostra est misericordia et gratia magis illis obfuisse quam profuisse videretur, fauore et gratia versis in odium ac rigorem eadem poena proposita nocenti atque innoxio, dum versa vice quæ in illos grata et misericors extiteramus atrox et seuera facta videbimur, atque fiet vt gratiam et misericordiam nostram nullus consequatur effectus: cum quæ ab illis commissa et perpetrata sunt crimina, ac illis præcipue imputanda veniunt, facta et commissa sunt tempore obsidionis arcis Sanctiandree, dum per nostram auctoritatem et copias illorum vita et sanguis oppugnabatur et adiuuantibus copiis charissimi patris nostri Galliarum regis christianissimi armorum vi atque potentia eiecti atque expugnati sunt: Itaque quæ ab eis commissa sunt crimina atque maleficia in vite capitisque discrimen ne caderent (quæ vnique lege naturæ tueri licet) facta et perpetrata censentur. Nos igitur præmissorum rationem exacte ponderantes et diuersis aliis rationibus motæ, prædictos Jacobum Kyrkcaldy a Grange et magistrum Henricum Balnaues a Halhill, auctoritate nostra supradicta, eos et eorum quemlibet sub nostra protectione, saluagardia et defensione suscepimus, eosque eximimus et eorum quemlibet tenore presentium suscipimus et eximimus ab omnibus iudicibus tam spiritualibus quam temporalibus intra terminos regni nostri quauiscumque de causa aut crimine quod illis imputari poterit ante datam presentium, tam ciuilitate quam criminaliter, maxime vero et precipue a tempore quo prædictam arcem ingressi sunt vsque ad diem concessionis ac datæ presentium, hancque nostram exemptionem, protectionem, saluagardiam et supersedere volumus inuiolatam seruari et custodiri pro spacio et tempore duorum annorum proxime et immediate sequentium datam presentium. Volumus igitur et stricte precipiendo mandamus vobis et vestrum cuilibet quatenus, visis presentibus nostris literis, nostro nomine et auctoritate requiratis, imperetis et precipiatis cancellario nostro, dominis consilii et sessionis iusticie, iusticiarie clerico et aduocato nostro, necnon omnibus aliis iudicibus et officiariis, tam spiritualibus quam temporalibus generaliter et specialiter intra finis nostros, nequis illorum presumat concedere aut dare cedulas aut literas ad instantiam cuiusvis personæ aut partis constitute intra terminos regni nostri contra et aduersus predictos aut eorum quemuis, quauiscunque de causa, actione aut crimine, factis aut commissis per eos aut eorum quemlibet durante tempore prescripto, absque speciali consensu, licentia et mandato nostro aut charissime matris nostre, Mariæ, Reginae viduæ, regni nostri protectricis, gubernatricis et vices nostras in eodem gerentis : Quinimo desinant atque desistant illos quouismodo citare aut in ius vocare, aut contra et aduersus eos procedere quouis quæsito colore, vt supradictum est, sub omni poena et muleta in quam cedere possunt contra maiestatem nostram reginalem et auctoritatem hac in parte ; deponendo eos et eorum singulos suis officiis ea ex parte si ipsi aut ipsorum aliqui presumant aut intendant obstare et contrauenire huic nostre plenarie et mature deliberationi et voluntati hac in parte : Datum Lutetiæ Parisiorum, sub nostris manuali subscriptione et signeto, die xvij<sup>a</sup> mensis Februarii anno Domini millesimo quingentesimo quinquagesimo sexto, et regni nostri anno decimo quinto.

11th April 1566. [Copy.]

CURIA tenta regalitatis de Dunfermyng in pretorio eiusdem per dispensationem supremorum dominorum nostrorum regis et regine per Patricium Hackat de Pitfirren et Willelmum Durrye, balliuos dicte regalitatis, coniunctim et diuim, xi die Aprilis anno Domini 1566.

Sectis vocatis et curia affirmata.

The quhilk day James Nicolsoun, schiref in that part, producit our souerane lord and ladyes letteris to the bailzeis abone specified, chargeand them to fence and hald court and proceed in the serving of Jhone Maluils of Ratht brewes, nocht-withstandyng the feriat tyme of passioun owk, dispensand thairwith be thir letteris of delyuerance of the lordis of thair counsaill of the dait the xxviij of Marche and of thair reignes the first and xxiiij yeris, and werifiet the executioun thairof conform to his indorsatioun.

The samyn day Jhone Maluill of Rayth producit ane breif, dewlie execut, proclamit, and indorsat, and desyirs proces conform to the desyer thairof, and the saidis bailzeis causit the officer to call gif thair was any parteis to obiect aganis the said breif, executioun and indorsatioun thairof, quhilk executioun was verified be the said officer conform to the indorsatioun of the said breif.

The sammyn day comperit Jhone Kynnynmonth in Coilquhalie, and askit hym to be admitted for his entres to obiect aganis the brief purchast be Johne Maluill of Rayth foirsaid, and all that may pas thairwpon. The judgeis admittes the said Jhone to say thairto as law will, and requirit gif he wald obieck aganis the breif, executioun or indorsacioun. The said Jhone ansuerand had na thing to obiect aganis the executioun, proclamatioun, or indorsatioun thairof, bot desyrit the clame to be producit; and the said Jhone Maluill tuk act of court that quhair the said Jhone Kynnynmonth nor nane vtheris comperan hed any thing to obiect aganis the proclamacioun, executioun, and indorsacioun of the said breif, and desyrit proces, and persones summonit vpon the inqueist to be callit, quhilk wes granted.

The saidis personis of inqueist, summond be our souerane lord and ladyes letteris, comperand, was resaut, sworn, and admitted, and na persone comperit to obiect aganis the saydis persones of inqueist, and thairwpon the said Jhone Maluill requerit act of court.

The sammyn day comperit the said Jhone Kynnynmonth, admitted for his entres, and askit the claym producit be the said Jhone Maluill of Rayth, and als askit the said Jhons fatheris instrument of seasyng to be producit, and the dait thairto to be insert in the court buik.

The said Jhone Maluill of Rayth alledgit the said Jhone Kynnynmonth suld not be hard as partie to desyer exhibicione of the said seasyng, bot it is sufficient to shaw the sammyn to the inqueist wnto the said tyme that Jhone Kynnynmonth produce his title and entres to that effect, protestand he be not admitted thairto wnto the productioun of the sammyn, and for werificacioun thairto; and the said Jhone Maluill of Raith breif producit his clame seruit as narrest and lafull ay to wmqhile Jhone Maluill, his father, of the landis contenit thairintill, and for werificatioun thairto producit ane instrument of seasyng, of the dait xxiiij of Nouember, the yeir of God ane thowsand v<sup>c</sup> and twa yeris, vnder the note of Alexander Trumbill contenand Jhone Maluill of Rayth, knycht, that last desesit, to be infet and seasit in all and haill the landis of Rayth, Pitconmark, and Turbane, with the pertinentis as at mayr lenth is contenit in the sammyn.

Comperit the said Jhone Kynnynmonth, and producit ane instrument of seasyng of ane annuellrent of twa chalders of wittall, viz., xxvi bollis ait meill and sax bollis beir of all and haill the tane half of Turbane, with the pertinentis, of the dait ane thowsand v<sup>c</sup> lvij yeris the xxvij day of September, vnder the sygne and subscriptioun manuell of Cudbert Riche, notar public, in the quhilkis half landis of Turbane, the said Jhone Kynnynmonth and Issobell Betoun his spous, vas heritable infet, and in respeck thairto the said Jhone alledgeis that the said Jhone Maluill of Rayth aught not to be seruit to the saidis half landis of Turbane be reasoun the sam ar full, and in cais the said inqueist scruis the said Jhone thairto the said Jhone Kynnynmonth protestis for wilfull errorr, manifest wrang, reductioun of the sammyn b[e] remeid of law, tyme and place, and thairupon askit act and document thairwpon.

The said Jhone Maluill of Raith alledgit the pretendit instrument be Jhone Kynnynmonth can gif hym na entres to stop the seruice, conform to the claym and seasyng producit, bot he awght to be seruit notwithstanding the sammyn, becais the saidis half landis, in sa far as thai wer any way analeit to wmqhile Archebald Betoun of Capildra, be the said wmqhile Jhone Maluill of Rayth, knycht, the sammyn ar decernit be the lordis of our souerane ladyes sessioun, be debtfull proces, led befor them at his instance, as ayr to the said wmqhile Jhone, his father, aganis Jhone Betoun of Pitlowthe (Capildra interlined), as ayr to the said wmqhile Archebald, lafullie redemit as the decreit of redemptioun past thairwpon, of the dait at Edinburgh the v day of May last, was subscriwit with Mr James Magyll, clark of the register, in the self purportis ; and namely, in respeck the said Jhone Kynnynmonth seasyng concernis only ane annuell rent, afoir specified, quhilk cannot stop the seruice of the said Jhone Maluill to the haill landis, bot he beyng seruit thairto, he hes the sammyn with the burdyng, quhilkis decretis he producit for verifeyng of the said alledgeance. And wpon the production of the seasyng afoir mentionat be Jhone Kynnynmonth for stoppyng of seruice, conform to the breif and claym, requirit act, protestand aganis hym for sic pane as he may incur of law in contrawenyng and opponyng hym to the lordis decretit ; in respeck of the quhilk desyrit his pretendit entres to be repellit be the judgeis, and the said Jhone Maluill to be seruit as said is notwithstanding the sammyn. And the judgeis ansur heirvpon.

The said Jhone Kynnynmonth ansurit to the alledgeance foirsaid, maid be the said Jhone Maluill of Rayth, alledgeis that he and his said spous ar heritable infest in the said annuell rent of the said half landis, and neuer warnit for redemptioun thairof, and incais the said inqueist serue the said Jhone Maluill of Rayth, protestis as afoir for remeid of law.

The judgeis, nochtwithstanding the entres and titilles producit be Jhone Kynnynmonth, decernis proces, and the inqueist to proceed to seruice, accordyng to thair conscience, wpon the quhilk the said Jhone Maluill requirit act.

The sammyn day William Bonar, in name and behalf of the haill inqueist, tuk act and instrument that thair was na obiectioun maid be any persone aganis the breif, proclamacioun, executioun, and indorsacioun, clame, and seasyng producit for verificacioun thairof, bot only Jhone Kynnynmonth, quha producit ane pretendit seasyng of ane annuell rent of twa chalderis wittell foirsaid, gywin to hym be alienacioun of Jhone Betoun, haldin of hym selfe alanerly, quhilk on nawayes may stop the seruyng of the said Jhone Maluill of the saydis landis.

The said inqueist seruiss the said Jhone Maluill of Rayth, of the landis of Rayth, Turbane, and Pitconmark, with the pertinentis, conform to the retour to be gyvin in wpon euerylk poynt of the said breif. The sammyn day the said Jhone Kynnynmonth protestis that the seruyng of the said Jhone Maluill, of the landis of Turbane, hurt hym not in his said annuell of ii chalderis of wittell foirsaid, nor his ryght in the quhilk he is heritable infest : And thairwpon tuk act and instrument.

132. PROTECTION by KING CHARLES THE SECOND in favour of the COUNTESS OF LEVEN. 7th July 1675.

Charles R.

WHEREAS wee are informed that Countesse of Levin is under diverse processes of horning, captions, acts of warding, and arreistments for severall summes of money resting to her creditours, which shee is willing and able to pay, if shee had for some competent time freedome to her person for setleing her affaires; and considering that her freedome from hornings, captions, acts of warding, arreistments and executions of the law against her person may and will tend to the greater benefite of her creditours in generall, and her own better subsistance, than her restraint and imprisonment by them can produce: Therefor wee, out of our princely bounty and goodnes, doe hereby give and grant our royall protection to the said Countesse of Levin from all hornings, captions, acts of warding, arreistments, and executions of the law against her person for any civill claime or debt for the space of three yeares, to commence from the date hereof; commanding hereby all judges, magistrates, messingers at armes, and all others, our officers of justice whatsoever, no wayes to stop, trouble, or molest the said Countesse of Levin in her person for any civill claime or debt dureing the space foresaid, as they will answer the contrary; provided alwayes that shee pay to her creditours the annual rents of her just debts. Given at our court at Windsor Castle the 7th day of July 1675, and of our reigne the 27th year.

By his Majesties command,

LAUDERDALE.

133. ACT of the COMMISSIONERS OF THE TREASURY regarding the value of a feather as the blench duty of Balgony. 17th July 1675.

ATT Edinburgh, the sextinth day of Julij, j<sup>m</sup> vj<sup>c</sup> sevintie five yeirs, anent the petition given in to the lords commissioners of his Majesties thesaurie by Catharin, Countes of Levin, and George, Lord Melvill, her tutor, bearing that wheras the blench duties of some of the petitioners lands is a white pannash or a single feather (not a plumash of feathers) to be paid at the house of Balgony at Whitsonday yearly, si petatur tantum, and that a single feather is bot of a small value, and that hitherto in regard of the payement thair of at the tyme and place aforsaid, the same hes not bein valued by the saids Lords more then roses or blasts of horns (which are the frequent reddendoes of blench holding), these never being intended as ane emolument of the superiority, like a fewdeuty, bot as ane symbol of recognizency therof allenarly, being only paid at the tyme and place aforsaid, si petatur tantum, as said is; and in regaird thair of ther wes never anything sought by your lordships, by the shireff of the shyre, for the said feather since the first infetment herof thir many yeirs bygone, yet the petitioners ar informed that the saids lords hes put now a price upon the said single feather, and liquidat the same to one hundred pundis Scots, which does not only extend to a very great sune for bygonis, bot will likewise be a perpetuall considerable yeirly burdein upon the petitioner and her successors in all tyme comeing: It is therefor humbly desyred the saids lords may delay the modification or liquidation of the price of the said single feather whill the petitioner be hard theranent, and in the mean tyme to discharge the shireff of Fyfe, or his deputs, from calling or charging for the same, aither for the present duplication or for bygonis. The lords commissioners of his Majesties thesaurie having considered the above writtin supplication, doe adhere to their former determination in liquidating the feather abovespecifeit to one hundred pundis Scots, which the petitioner is yeirly to pay to his Majesties cash-keiper, and that they fitt an æque therupon yeirly, beginning the first yeirs payment therof in the moneth of July instant, for the yeir j<sup>m</sup> vj<sup>c</sup> sevintie four yeirs; and the saids lords declare the petitioner to be frie from payment therof of all yeirs and terms bygon resting awand unpeyed preceiding the said yeir j<sup>m</sup> vj<sup>c</sup> sevinty four, in regaird it wes a blench duty, and never demanded.—Extractum de libris actorum scaccarij per me, etc.

136. INSTRUCTIONS to GENERAL DRUMMOND as Justiciar. 4th December 1684.
[Copy.]

INSTRUCTIONS given by his Majesties privy counsell to Gennerall Drumond, in prosecution of a commissione of justiciarie granted to him, of the date the 4 December 1684.

1st, Yow are to goe to the southern and western shyers, quhair severall rebells and fugitives and thair adherents and acompliceses doe haunt and resort, and committ great insulancies and abusses, and for your assistances in reduceing and punishing them conforme to your commissione, yow are to take with yow the forcess following, viz., the halfe of the troope of guard, etc., and with them yow are to persew, take, apprehend, and kill the forsaid rebells and thair recepters.

The 22 of November 1684.

The lords of counsell ordaine any persone who owns, or will not disowne the laite traiterous declaratione upon oath, whither they have armes or not, to be immediatly put to death, this being allwayes done in presence of tuo wittnesses and the person or persones haveing commissione from the counsell for this effect.

137. PETITION of CATHARINE, LADY MELVILLE, to PARLIAMENT.
12th June 1685.

To his grace the Duke of Queensberrie, his Majesties high commissioner, and the honourable estaits of parliament, the petition of Cathrin, Lady Melvill ;

Humbly sheweth,—That the petitioner being informed that the lords of the articles have proceided against the Lord Melvill, her husband, in the proces of treason depending against him, and have sustained that article of the lybell relaiting to his alledged corresponding with the rebells at Bothwelbridge, and sending messages to them, and have found the same proven. It is now humbly represented for the petitioner (who, if her husband be forfaulted, will therby be depyved during his life of all means of subsistance, which gives her a sufficient interest to make this humble address) that the forsaid article of the lybell ought not to be sustained, and is cleirly elided and taken off, in so farr as the Duke of Monmouth being fully impowered by his commission vnder the great seall, dated 12 June 1679, to treat with the rebells, and give them truces and remissiones, and to doe all other things which he should think expedient for his Majesties service, he did accordingly direct and authorize the Lord Melvill to send propositiones to the saids rebells, and to receave some from them, in order to their laying down their armes, and submitting to the kings mercie, which is instructed by a wryte vnder the Duke of Monmouths hand, which is now produced, with a double of his commission, and it is supposed that it will appear wpon the re-examinatione of the witnesses that he had a warrand, and consequently the Lord Melvills sending any message to the rebells in obedience to the generalls order being a warrantable act, the said article of the lybell is therby taken off, and if this had bein represented to the lords of the articles, the petitioner humbly conceaves it would have bein sustained.

May it therfor please your grace and the honourable estaits of parliament to consider the petitioners case, and what is now represented against the forsaid article of the lybell, and the cleir instructiones therof, from which she humbly conceaves it will evidently appeir that her husband did act warrantably, and consequently that the said article aught not to be sustained to inferr any cryme against him, and the petitioner shall ever pray.

KATHAREN MELVILL.

Edinburgh, 12 [June 16]85.—My lords commissioner his grace, and the lords of the articels having hard this bill and instructions, they refuse to grante the desayr therof, in respect that the defender not conspiring, noe defence can be admitted for him.

138. ADDRESS by the HERITORS OF THE SHIRE OF AYR to the PRIVY COUNCIL.
23d June 1685.

Air, 23 June 1685.

WEE, noblemen, gentlemen, and heritores within the shirreffdome of Air, being this day conveyned within the Tolbuith thair of, by warrand of the Earle of Dumbartoune, comander in cheiff of his Maiesties forces, and in his absence, Livetennent Generall Drumond being present with us, did propose and demand of ws the secureing the peace of the said shyr, by purgeing therof off these rebellious persones, which ar now and hes bein in severall places of the same in armes against his sacred Maiestie, and his authoritie, lawes, and liberties of this kingdome, and to discover the harborers and resettters of these rebells, and wee, out of the deip sence wee have of our duetie and alleadgance to his sacred Maiestie, his lawes, authoritie, peace, and tranquillitie of this realme, and of our great abhorance wee have to such rebellious principills and practices, doe vnanimously offer (to our outmost endevoours) ourselves and these wnder our comand, to extirpat, kill, and apprehend all the saids rebels, and to bring ther harborers, reseters, aiders, counsellors and advysers, to condigne punishment, and to burne ther houses, and secure ther whole cornes, cattell, guidis, and geir belonging to them, and craves his Maiesties authoritie to ws for that effect, and to grant war-rand of justiciary to such persones as your lordships shall think fitt within the said shyr, and in respect wee have bein severall tymes disarmed, and that the places wher these rebels comonly haunts ar in grounds vnaceessable by horses, therefore, wee humbly crave that his Maiestie allow to ws such ane number of footmen, aither of the forces or militia, with armes and amonitione, for assisting ws in execeuting of the said comissione, as your lordships shall think fitt, and what wther methods his Maiestie or his counsell shall be pleased to preseryve to ws for the forsaid effect, wee ar and shall be most reddey to observe, and have all of ws vnanimously choisen the Earle of Eglingtonne our preece, and have heirby authorized his lordship to signe this humble adress in our names, which wee hold to be also obleidgeing upon ws, as if ilk ane of ws hade subserivit the same ourselves.

139. CONFERENCE between JAMES STEWART and GEORGE, LORD MELVILLE, about assisting Argyll's Expedition. c. 1685.

JA[MES] ST[EWART] came to Rotterdam to the Lord Melvill the Saturday befor Argyle parted from Amsterdam, and brought with [him] a letter from the Pres[ident], he himselve proposed to Lord Melvill to give bond for a certain sume of mony for what Argyle had lifted, etc. The Lord Melvill answered he knew nothing of what mony the Earle Argyle had borrowed, nor how he had employed it, but quhat he heard by general report, neither knew the grounds quharon Argyle went on, nor qnhairupon he built, he kept those things to himselve, and had saide he was not bound to give ane aecount to others, and told James, both then and befor, what had passed upon this heade, which was the reason he would never goe again to Amsterdam to any mor of their meetings, etc. He told James expresslie that he would [not] medle in engadgeing for any of that mony Argyle had borrowed, nor did thinke himselve any way oblige[d] to doe it, he neither being privy to it except ex post facto and by report only, nor ever did desire any whatsoever to lend the said mony, nor promise any maner of way to give security for any part or portion of it, he was not to blame or censure what other men did, but was the most proper judge of his own actions and what was fitt for himselfe to doe, and he belived he himselfe and others wer not satisfied with the conduct mor than he, although they had patcht upe ther bussines again upon what terms they themselvs knew best, his scruples still remained, and thought that thwarting in the beginning, or rather befor the undertakeing, lookt not weell, etc. All which Mr. St[ewart] acknowledged, and gave Lord Melvill, as he said, a particular of [quhat] had past amongst them, and pretended to [be] more dissatisfied with Argyle[s] way than he, but still urged that since differences wer some way composed and the undertakeing was determincd, that since he did not goe himselfe he would give bond for a part of the mony, and used what arguments he thought fitt, that Staires had done the like, and it would be a thing he would never be trowbled for the payment off, etc. Desired likewise he would send some ready mony as Stairs had done, etc. Melvill still absolutly refused, and to the former reasons added that quhat Staires had done was no rule to him, he knew upon what considerations he had acted which he was not to canvass, etc., for the litle mony he had sent, they wer not in equall circumstances any maner of way, for he had a good estate, was in the possession of it, had his sons at home in good employments, had mony abroad, while Melvill was declared fugitive, had his estate sequestrate, had no mony but burden, knew not either how himselfe should subsist, or how his wife and children should gett bread, and though ther was some litle mony in Mr. Russells hands, which he had the disposing of, yett it was but a small business, neither could he call it weell his own, it being most his sone L[evens] who was at Paris and could gett no correspondance kept in Brittain, had his accompts and debts at P[aris to] satisfie; that it was fitt for him if possible to remove from that, that was all his wife and any freind that would concern themselves could doe for both, and litle or no prospect of any further, he see no reason why any man or wife in Rotterdam, or elsewhere, should prescribe to him what to doe, especially since they knew not his circumstances, and since it might take the most of that was in Mr. Russells hand, if not more, to gett his sone out of France, which [he] was concerned about whatever others wer, he thought it un-reasonable demand to desire any of it; and for giveing bond for any of that mony, etc., saide he was possitive he would not, nor did he see any reason for his doing it, he had smarted enough already for the projects of others in Holland quhen he was at a distance, and that he then warned of the inconveniencies when he heard of them, and it was that that had brought him to the condition he was in, and brought many in bad circumstances, he wished this undertaking might not have bade consequences, for if it should miscary, probably it might occasion the ruin of that interest they pretend for, and the extirpation of the party, and that others had great hopes of succeeding, since ther was no considerable grounds for them given to him he might be excused thogh he could not be of the same opinion till he knew better how they wer founded, and he knew others more than he wer not satisfied with the conduct not long before, how all was pact now he knew not, and so was positive he [would] not engadge for any of that mony, which [was] given and advanced upon other considerations then his security or any ground from him, besides he said it might be thought but a cheat for him who had no estate to give bond quhen he knew not how to pay, etc. Mr. St[ewart] had not mnch to say but quhat he hade said before and was answered, bnt saide those concerned wer now agreed, and that they wer determined and ready to goe, etc., and that ther was yett mony wanting, etc., that whatever hade been they and cariage of some which he did dissaprove as much as he, yett it being a publicke concerne, and his freinds engadged for, whom he knew had a kindness as P. W. etc.; and that mistaks wer removed, and the persons come to better understanding, etc., he pressed he would give bond for some mony which was yett. Melvill replied that what mony was given was done already, and advanced upon another trust, etc., that he would not at all medle in it; for his freinds that wer to goe alongs he had freindshipe and kindness enough for them, but was in no capacity of advanceing mony to them, and he knew non would upon his bond. He said possibly ther might, and if ther was not, he was in no hazard, etc. Upon which he was prevailed with to give a bond for 500 lib. for ther use, or as they should concert it; upon which Mr. St[ewart] presented him a blanke bond both as to ssume and person. Melvill, after the ssume was agreed too, would have the person names insert, for he knewe not in what hands it might fall, nor how it might miscary, and the draught being drawen, and litle tyme to wrett over, James being pressing to have it away soon, that ther might be time to raise the mony, for he did not lett Melvill know they wer already sailed, if he knew, though they wer befor this communing; and Mr. Stewart haveing commended Mr[s.] Smith as so good and religious a woman, and upon whose credite and interposition all the mony had been raised, as he saide; Melvill would have her name insert in the bond, though he knew her not but by report, nor remembers that he had seen her that he knew her, bnt looking wpon her as a conscientious woman, if either the bond should miscary, or the conditions on which it was granted should not be performed, which was to advance of new 500 lib. upon the receat of that bond, which was thought was equivalent to his sending and desireing it; he would gett her oath upon the payment of the mony as aforsaide, and if not, he did not thinke himselfe oblidged for the payment. have[ing] had no kind of transaction nor medleing in the advance of any mony more or less, but what should be after this advanced upon the receat of this bond; and for long after this he never heard quhat was become of this bond till he was at Dewsburgh, for Mr[s.] Smith had never spoke any such thing to him, nor had the least insinnation of the payment of any mony, thogh he see her afterwards; thogh he knew shee was designing to send some supplies to Argyle a good while after he went away, James Stewart had [said] quhen askt what was become of the bond that he knew not, but had sent away the night after to Amsterdam, but that the persons wer gone from that, and the carier hade taken it to the Tezell with him quhen Melvill was at Dewsburgh, for before he had been wandering much upe and down he wrott to J[ames] St[ewart].

It was advanced and employed without his knowledg and without any desire from him directly or indirectly, and he had never receaved on grott of it, nor knew how nor quhen nor what lent except by what he saide, which was nothing to him. As for that argument that he would never be trowbled with the payment of it, it was nothing to him, that he did not know that, etc., either their affaire would cary or not, if it did according to what he saied, ther would be a generall course taken for the payment, etc.; and so ther was no need of his bond, if it did miscary he would be looser enough, etc., and knew qnhat he would doe, etc., and was not willing to have such a bond over head needlesly, have[ing] as before saide neither gott any of the mony nor given the least ground to any to advance less or more of, nor never haveing the least treateing or communing with any person who advanced it, nor so much as acquaint with nor warrand or comissionateing any other whatsoever, directly or indirectly to doe it, and that what [was] advanced was upon the confidence and assurance of others, etc., and still refused, James acknowledged had not been weell traited by A[rgyle], etc., and so Melvill and Mr. St[ewart] parted that night.

The nixt day, in the eveniug, Mr. St[ewart] came again to M[elvill] to press his former desire, and told it might be ill constrned, etc., that he answered, he could not helpe, he was no waies to blame, but because he would not snbject his reason to other mens dictats, which he see no cause for, he was [not] to blame others actions, desired the liberty of the jndgement of discretion as to what was proper for himselfe to doe.<sup>1</sup>

140. REPORT of JOHN MILLER, captain, on preparations of war at Brest and Nantes. May 1689.

I, JOHN MILLER, having been att the toun of Nantez in France, with my ship a moneths tyme, wes informed the tyme I wes ther, that ther wes fourtie thousand stand of armes shipped at Brist, tuo thousand barrells of powder, four hundreth caices of pistolls, twenty thousand sadles, with match and other things conforme. I saw great quantities of the afforsaid armes and amunitione carieing from Nantes to Brist, which came down the river of Nantes, with cobarrs, and they had with them a great quantitie of speds, shovells, and howells.

The French fleet, consisting of thretty tuo men of warr, four great fley boats sailed from Brist the twenty sixt of Aprile last for Kingsaill in Ireland. It wes confidently reported the[y] had aboard twenty thousand men; in which number wer English, Scotts, Irish, and French, and fyftie horses sent by the French king to King James, wherof I saw fyftein att Nantez.

When I wes vpon my way homeward I saw lying att anchor in the mouth of the river of Brist, vnder Saint Mathews cloyster, three French men of warr bound for Brist, to make vp ane neue fleet for Ireland. This last informatione I had from tuo French fishers, that came from Brist the twenty sevinth Aprile.

Whyle I lay att Nantez I saw abundance of French troops evry day, marching towards Brittanie and Normandie, and a great many foot suldiers levieing, and wes informed the uhall kingdom of France wer mustred once a weik in touns and countrie; the Duke de Shan being appoynted overseer att Nantez. This toun did make offer of ane hundreth and fyftie thousand crouns to the King of France, besydes ther ordinarie tax. It wes reported ther that all the cities and touns in France conforme to ther abilities wer to doe the lyke, and that ther wes sent over with the fleet six millions of money to K. James.

Ther are severall ships still going of from France to Ireland with cornes, wherof four came with me the lenth of Vshant.

141. COUNCIL OF WAR at Derry. 19th June 1689.

A COURT Martiall held on board his Majesties shipp the Swallow, June the 19th, 1689.

Major Generall Kirke, president.
Colloncl Stuart.

Collonell Sir John Hanmer.
Lieutenant Collonell St. John's.
Lieutenant Collonell Woolseley.
Lieutenant Collonell Dompierre.
Lieutenant Collonell Mainvilliers.
Lieutenant Collonell De la Barte.

Captain Gillam, commander of the Greyhound.
Captain Sanders, commander of the Henrietta yacht.
Captain Boys, commander of the Kings-Fisher ketch.

That by all that wee can see or hear, it is positively believed that there is a boume cross the river a little above Brookehall, at a place called Charles's Fort, where one end of this boume is fixed, the other extending to the opposite point. The boume is said to consist of a chain and severall cables, floated up with timbers ; at each end of which are redoubts with heavy canon. The sides of the river are entrenched, and lined with musketteers. Besides this obstacle in the river, severall intimations have also been given of boats sunk, stockado's drove with great iron spikes, but in what manner wee could never perfectly learn, but 'tis certain that they neither want boats, timber, etc., to effect anything of this kind. The accident that hapned on Saturday the 8th instant to the Greyhound fregate is evident proof that they are in a capacity to bring down canon anywhere they should be opposed. So that should anything bee attempted in going up this streight channell, and miscarry therein by severall accidents as may happen as the shifting of a wind striking ashore, or damages received by their great guns, there is very little reason or hopes left to think to get off, and if no other opposition should bee then the boume, which if not broke by our attempt, the breadth of the river is so narrow as that the shipp will certainly run ashore. This loss, tho' great to his Majestie, would bee of much more and of greater consequence in the leaving the enemy possessors of so many great gnns, with our stores of warr and victualls, which if they had they would certainly make a more formall attaque upon the town of London-Derry, which to this time they have not attempted, wee suppose for no other reason then for the want of artillery enough, besides the miscarriage would so dishearten the town and encourage the enemy as to bee of extream consequence, besides since the Greyhound and the rest of the fleet's being here wee never have received any intelligence from London-Derry which gives us great reason and some assurance that they are not extreamly pressed by the enemy, or want of ammunitiion, or provisions of mouth.

All this being considered, 'tis the opinion of us now sitting at this councill, that 'twill be more prudent, and for his Majesties service to stay here till a greater force joins us, so that wee may bee a sufficient number to make a descent and force the enemy to raise the siege, by which means the town will bee succoured, or that the town should have sent us advice of every particular relating to this affair, by which wee may with safety take other measures.

142. WARRANT by KING WILLIAM THE THIRD for a Commission to DAVID, EARL OF LEVEN, to be Governor of the Castle of Edinburgh. 4th July 1689.

William R.

OUR soveraigne lord ordaines a letter to be made and past under the great seale of his ancient kingdome of Scotland in due forme, making mention that his Majesty being resolved to bestow the charge and trust of constable and governor of his castle of Edinburgh upon his right trusty and welbeloved cousin and counsellor David, Earle of Leven, as a person of so great loyalty and integrity as renders him every way qualified for exactly discharging the duties of so eminent a trust : Therefore to have nominated, made, constituted, and appointed, likeas his Majesty by these presents nominates, makes, constitutes, and appoints the said David, Earle of Leven, during his Majesties pleasure only, constable and governour of his Majesties said castle of Edinburgh, giving, granting, and assigning, likeas his Majesty (with the advice and consent of the lord high treasurer and lord treasurer depute or lords commissioners of his Majesties treasury for the time being, and of the rest of the lords of his Majesties exchequer) hereby gives, grants, and assigns unto the said David, Earle of Leven (during the space foresaid) all rents, duties, casualities, emoluments, immunities, and priviledges whatsoever pertaining and belonging thereunto any manner of way. To be brooked and enjoyed by the said David, Earle of Leven, as fully and freely in all respects and conditions as any other of his prediceffors, captains and keepers, or constables and governours of the said castle did possesse and enjoy, or might have possessed and enjoyed the same by vertue of any gift or commission from any of his Majesties royall prediceffors; with full power unto him by himselfe, his factors, servants, or others in his name, to intromitt with, uplift, and receive for his own use and behoofe the aforesaid rents, duties, casualities, and others above mentioned belonging to the said castle, beginning the payment of the victuall rent for the whole crop and year of God one thousand six hundred and eighty nine instant, and also of the silver rent belonging thereunto for this present year at the ordinary terme and time of payment of the same, and both so forth to be continued yearly thereafter during the space foresaid; with full power also unto him and his foresaids to call and pursue for the same as accords of the law, and to give discharges and receipts thereupon, which his Majesty declares to be valide and sufficient to the receivers, commanding the said David, Earle of Leven, constable and governour of his Majesties said castle of Edinburgh, to observe and follow all such orders, directions, and commands as he shall from time to time receive from his Majesty, in pursuance of the trust hereby reposed in him. And his Majesty ordaines the said letter to be further extended in the most ample and best forme, with all clauses needfull, and to pass his Majesties said great seale per saltum without passing any other seale or register: In order whereunto these presents shall be to the directors of his Majesties chancellary and their deputs for writing the same, and to the lord high chancellor, or lords commissioners appointed for keeping the great seale, for causing the same to be appended thereunto, a sufficient warrant. Given at the court at Hampton Court the 4th day of July 1689, and of his Majesties reigne the first year.

May it please your Majesty.

These containe your Majesties warrant for a letter to be past under the great seale of your ancient kingdome of Scotland, nominating, making, constituting, and appointing David, Earle of Leven, during your royall pleasure only, constable and governour of your Majesties castle of Edinburgh, giving, granting, and assigning unto him (during the space foresaid) all rents, duties, casualities, emoluments, immunities, and priviledges whatsoever thereunto belonging, as fully and freely, in all respects and conditions, as any other of his prediceffors, captains and keepers, or constables and governours of your Majesties said castle did possess and enjoy, or might have possessed and enjoyed the same by vertue of any gift or commission from any of your Majesties royall prediceffors. The payment as well of the victuall rent as of the mony rent belonging thereunto beginning for this present year of God 1689, and both to continue yearly thereafter during the space foresaid in manner fully above mentioned. 143. NOTE OF EVENTS in Scotland at the Revolution, with ADDRESS from the PRIVY COUNCIL to WILLIAM, PRINCE OF ORANGE. 24th December 1688.

ABOUT the beginning of September 1688, the counsell being informed by the chanclore that it was the kings pleasure to put the kingdome in a posture of defence against forraigne invasions, they, in the first place, judged fitt that the castle of Stirling should be made a garrison, to keepe communicatione betwixt the southerne and northerne shyres, and ordored Generall Douglass to reinforce the garrison, and supplie it with all provisions necessary; and further ordored letters to be directed to the severall sheriffes within the kingdome to convene the gentlemen heretours to see what condition they were in to serve his Majestie: Therafter ther came ane letter from the king to the counsell ordoreing the heall standing forces, execept the garrisons, to march into England, which accordingly was done: Therupon the counsell ordored the fourt part of the millitia, foot and horse, to be sent out with fourty dayes loane, and Livtennent Generall Monro to be commander in cheiff within the kingdome of the forces; therafter, upon the 7th of December, the said detachment was ordored to be disbanded, and in place therof ther was a leavie ordored of four companies of foote, each consisting of 120 foote, one livtennent, one ensigne, and three serjants, which was done accordingly; some of the horse were lykwayes keep up; therafter the chanclor acquainted the counsell that it was his Majesties pleasure that the magazine should be transported from Edinburgh Castle to the castle of Stirline, and therupon ane warrand was granted accordingly: Therafter the chanclor deserted the counsell, and a great tumult happened in Edinburgh, quhairof the counsell transmitted ane full accompt to his Majestie by the Earle of Breadalbane, and the Earle of Lithgow, Bishope of Glasgow, Advocate, Solicitar, and Sir William Paterson, one of the clerks of counsell, alloued to repare to courte, and the Marquess of Atholl, Douglass, Southeske,

Hoom, Lauderdale, Kinaird, Strathmore, justice clerk, Castellhill, and Lochore, declared ther resolutiones to stay and attend his Majesty's affairs in this juncture. The Marques of Atholl was allowed to trate with Duke Gordon for surrendering the castle to quiet the tumult of the cittie, and accordingly ther were certaine articles conserted in ane acte of counsell, and offered to the duke, which he postponed and deferred to give answer to untill he knew the kings pleasure. The counsell being acquainted by a letter from the Earle of Pearth of his seasure and imprisonment in the Tolbooth of Kirkaldie, they recomended to the Earle of Marr to transporte him to the castell of Stirling, and to keepe him closs prisoner therin. Upon the 24 of December the Marquis of Atholl communicats to the counsell a letter he had from the bishop of Glasgow signifieing that it was his opinione that the counsell should address the Prince of Orrange for his protectione and calling of a parliament for secureing the Protestant religione, the present established lawes and goverment, which letter was ordered to be recorded; and therupon ane address to his Highnes the Prince was ordored to be drawn accordinglie, quhair of the tenor followes:—

To his Highness the Prince of Orrange, etc., from the counsell of Scotland.

Wee, haveing sometyne agoe humbly represented to his sacred Majestie the necessitie of calling of a free parliament, and considering the great zeall which your Highnes hath manifested for the Protestant religione, your good intentiones for these kingdoms, and particularly for Scotland, exprest in your declaratione, the eminent dangers to which your Highnes hes exposed your persone, and the vaste treasure you have expended for our safety, these certaine evidences of your Highnes piety and generous inclinationes and undertakeing, doe invite and assure us humbly and earnestly to address to your Highnes for your protection and assistance in procureing a free parliament to this kingdome of Scotland, in which our religion may be secured in the most comprehensive termes for including and uniteing all Protestants, and that the just rights of the crown, the property and liberty of the people may be established upon such solid foundationes as may prevent all fears of future attempts upon our religione, or divisions and animosities amongst ourselves, the glory of God, the honour of your Highnes, the wellfare and happieness of this kingdome. Sic subscribitur, Atholl, Douglass, Cassills, Linlithgow, Strathmore, Lauderdale, Kinaird, Geo. Lockharte, Ja. Dalrymple, J. Lockhart, Alexr. Malcome. Edinburgh, 24 December 1688.

144. MEMORIAL from DAVID CAIRNES respecting his services at Londonderry, with CERTIFICATE by CHARLES, EARL OF SHREWSBURY. 11th March 1689.

To the right honourable the lords of the committee for Irish affaires. This following Memoriall I humbly presume to lay before your lordships :—

That as the citty of Londonderry was the first place in Ireland which took up armes and resolutely opposd the enemy on this late revolution, so I was (at least) one of the first gentlemen that concurd to and encouragd the defence of the same at that tyme, or that appeard openly there or in that kingdome in armes in defence of our selves and the Protestant interest.

That I was also the first soon after (in a very stormy season) sent over from that citty as their publique agent to make application here for releef, which accordingly I did for diverse months together with my utmost dilligence, as your lordships (I presume) may remember, and by certificate then from the cheif secretary does yet appeare, but without any the least consideration for the same to this day.

That since then I have been diverse tymes imployd from his Majestie and your lordships on the publique service in long and dangerous journeys and voyadges through these kingdomes towards releef of the said citty and kingdome, with many remarkeable hazards of my life, and very narrow escapes both by sea and land, as is known to many, in all which I have (as I truste) acquitted my selfe with utmost fidelitie and dilligence, and doe appeal to your lordships if it be not so. I brought yow in also Mr. Browning, my freind, by whome that citty was at last releevd, albeit he lost his life in the action, and by advice I sent over in July last, our two little vessels taken by the French frigots were retaken.

That I am not only for the present deprived of all my estate and concernes in Ireland (where the same wholly lay), but have lost much thereof beyond all retrieve in houses and buildings about Londonderry, burnt and pulld down to the ground with my own consent in Aprile last for preservation of that place (a considerable part of the suburbs whereof belongd to my selfe), and by my early relinquishing my own affaires and family there from the 11th of December before, to serve the publique, have been a particular sufferer, besides the loss of my brother (an officer at Derry) and many more of my neare relations there dureing the seige.

That I was bred to the study and practice of the lawes of these kingdomes, havinge been a councill at barr in Ireland these 14 yeares past, or above, and am (I would humbly hope) the more capable to serve his Majestie and the publique in any office or place there his Majestie shall please, and albeit there be many of the gown from thence very worthy and deserveing gentlemen, yet nevertheless I am bold to say (and hope without offence to any) that in poynte of exposing my life so often to utmost hazards in travelling, and toyleing so extreemly, and appeareing so early for the publique and Protestant interest, I stand single and alone, as all must allow. I speake not this out of vanitie, for I only indeavoured my dutie, and have covered the same with much silence ever since your lordships and others have seen.

Your lordships were pleased some while since to expres your selves very kindly towards me, what yow would doe for me with the king as soon as occasion servd. Wherefore now since his Majestie and your lordships are (as we heare) about ordering some civill establishment in Ireland, or so much thereof as reduced, I humbly presume to reminde your honours hereof now in tyme, that yow would please to interpose with the king in my behalfe, that as I appeared early there for his Majesties and Protestant interest I may also, if he thinke fitt, and as some marke of his royall favour and acceptance of what lay in my power to serve him, be amongst the first imployd by him over there in order to the resettlement of that kingdome and his Majesties interest therein, to which I would most willingly contribute my utmost indeavours as he shall please to capacitate thereunto.

DAVID CAIRNES.

Charles, Earle of Shrewsbury, Waterford, and Washford, etc., one of the lords of his Majesties most honourable privy councill and principall secretary of state. [Copy.]

Mr. David Cairnes, the bearer hereof, being appointed by the committee for Irish affaires forthwith to repaire to Londonderry, These are to certifie whome it may concerne, that the said Mr. Cairnes hath for these two months last past attended constantly his Majesty and the councill in behalfe of the said citty, and that he hath behaved himselfe with prudence, dilligence, and faithfullness. Given at the court at Whitehall this 11th day of March 1688<sup>8</sup>.

145. CERTIFICATE that ALEXANDER IRVINE and DANIEL SHIRRARD helped to shut the gates of Londonderry. 20th August 1689. [Copy.]

WEE, whose names are subscribed, doe certifie that Alexander Irvin and Daniell Shirrard of Londonderry, were two of the very first who of themselves appeared there for their present Majesties intrest, who with soome others of the young men of that place who joyned them did on the seventh day of December last resolutely seize the keys of the gates of that citty and shutt upp the same suddenly, not onlly against a regiment of Irish Papists then ready to enter in therat, butt against the wills and minds of divers of the considerable Protestants therein, who opposed them, which had it not been don then, wee belive had never been in the cittys power afterwards to have don, and from thenceforth they continuied as active and forward in defence of the same as possiblie they could during there abroad in that place, they being both officers in the citty's companys, butt withoutt any pay, at there own chairge and expence, as wittness our hands this 20th day of August 1689.

148. INFORMATION as to the garrison of Tarbat Castle. 1689.

MY Lord Strathnavers companies who lay at Tayne and Cromerty upon the 13th of October last, beeing all called to Balnagown because of ane allarum the laird gote of the descent of the Highlanders to plunder the countrey, the three companies who came from Tayne, and one company from Cromerty stayed in the parishes of Kilmuire and Loggie untill the 15th day, most of all laying on my Lord Tarbats lands; the 15th day beeing a stormy day of wind and raine, and Wishart, major to the Lord Strathnavers regiment, beeing quartered with Balnagown; they two advised that three of the companies should goe and possess themselves of Castle Tarbat, the other companie beeing guarding the house of Balnagown. They did come to the doores and broke up the dore of the entry that goes the steps of the stare, and because it did not readily yeeld, the bolt of the lock beeing bowed, they cutt out as much of the dore as the lock was fixed to, and so entered, they broke up all the rest of the doores of the house, and made the upper dyning roome and the drawing roome there where the best furnitor was there slaughter roomes, abused the haill hangings, which were of arras, and because the grates which were in the chimneyes were too litle for dressing of their provisions they sett the fyres upon the marbles led before the chimneyes, and the heate of the great fyres rent the marble to peeces, the hangings all besmeared with blood, and the haill roomes where they hade fyres, are all blacked with the smoak, so that the plaistering in the beast roomes are as if in murning, much of the glass in the windowes all broke, and some few trunks broke up, but litle mist as taken away, at least yet known, because Lady Bettie and her maide wer at Invernes, and none of them come to Tarbat since. None of the office houses troubled, but many of the tennents leused, they haveing taken there wadders and meall, and none of Balnagownns troubled. They stayed there foure dayes and fyve nights, untill the master of Tarbat was advertised, and he acquainted Sir James Leslie, who immediatly sent ordours to Major Wishart to remove from Castle Tarbat. But dureing there abode in the parish of Kilmuire there were sextie men quartered on Duncan Forbes, 30 on John Patersone, and the rest in Miltoun and Meddat. The souldiers drew the cornes out of the stacks for strae to ther beds, and none payed for what they gote save few of the officers.

The haill locks of the doores were broke. This allarum proved false and groundles, and many afterwards.

149. PETITION by JAMES MURE of Ballybregah to KING WILLIAM THE THIRD.
[1689.]

To the kings most excellent Maiestie, the humble petition of James Mure of Ballybregah in the county of Downe and kingdom of Ireland, Esquire,

Most humbly sheweth,—That your petitioner haveing occasion to leave that kingdom some time before the Irish army came down into Vlster, and hearing of their cruelties against the Protestants, and how they were broken and dispers'd and ruinated by them in the county of Downe, and your petitioner's wife and children (to his utter ruen) were forced to fly from his estate and all his concerns, and to retire for the safety of their lives into the kingdom of Scotland, where your petitioner did procure the number of fifty men and horse in order to fight against the said Papists : and that he and his said men are now ready and most willing to serue your Majestie in defence of the Protestant interest in any place where your Majestie shall please to command him, and that before your petitioner left what he had in Ireland, offered upon your Majesties coming to London to have raised a troope of horse at his own proper cost and charges (which by his petition to your Majestie did more at large appeare); but the regiment being broken, he prosecuted it no further.

May it therfore please your Majestie to take into your serious consideration your petitioners great loss and his famillyes ruen, and to bee graciously pleasd to grant him your Majesties commission to make his said men an actuall troop under his command, to be annexed to that regiment of dragoons offered to bee raised by the Lord Cardross. And that the same may be put into the muster rouls to receive pay from the time they shall appeare full and compleat. Which, tenderly considered, your petitioner, as in humble duty bound, shall ever pray, etc.

150. MEMORIAL of the IRISH PRESBYTERIAN MINISTERS to GEORGE, LORD MELVILLE. 1689. [Copy.]

Whereas it hath been thought that our petition to his Majestie is not as yet so seasonable, his lordship may be pleased to consider that this is the most seasonable juncture wherein the king can evidence his royall bounty to the ministers of our persuasion in Ulster.

First, at this time all our ministers in Irland and Scotland are destitut of any meanes of subsistence. These in Scotland (being a far greater number) have not so much as to transport themselves with their families to Irland, and there to settle, except they get some help, and therefor wee pray for that share of the publick collection, if the king think fitt, or what other way may seem proper to his Majesty.

Nixt, that country of Ulster being now, as wee hear, freed from Irishes, so as ministers may safely return to their places, yet the country being wholly impoverished, no probable way can be expected for ministers till it please God the country be more planted by return of the people, and withall they themselves in more capacity to subsist, which cannot be supposed will be for some considerable time; and therefore it is wee petition the king for some small allowance to each minister for a time (they being in number about nyntie), which we humbly suppose may be granted (if his Majesty in his wisdom so judge) out of the estates of the rebels of Ulster, which shall there fall into his Majesties hands, or any other way his Majesty best pleases.

155. INSTRUCTIONS by COLONEL CANNON to his Messengers to KING JAMES THE SEVENTH. Ante 1st May 1690.

1°. To represent to the king the necessity for sending over his grace, the Duke of Berwick, with a considerable force of horse and foott with all possible diligence, and that if his grace does not come very speedylie, his Majesties interest in Scotland must certainly suffer extremely by it; and if possible his grace can be here in a short tyme with four thousand foott and two thousand horse and dragouns. It is my humble opinion (as the nobility and gentry stand now presently affected) that not only we shall be able to beatt all his Majesties enemies in Scotland, butt likeways give a great diversion to England; ther will also be a necessity for his grace, when he comes over, to bring provisions with him for some tyme for both horse and foott.

2°. To acquaint his Majestie with the present miserable condition of the officers which came alongst with me, having now no more money nor credite, and lost all their equipage, are incapable of putting themselves in a capacity of serving his Majestie, unles some supply be immediatly sent over to them, conform to their severall qualities.

3°. To desire his [Majestie] may be pleased to send over some blank commissions for regiments, ther being severall persones of worth here whom his Majestie has not been informed of, who are both capable and willing to raise regiments if commissions were given them.

4°. To press his Majestie that one of yow be sent back to us with his commands with all possible speed, it being a very great incouragement to the clanns, and others his Majesties good subjects, to hear often from him ; and that the litle vessell which transports yow may be ordered to stay here, that we may be able to give his Majestie ane account of any thing of moment that shall fall out in this place.

5°. That his Majestie would be pleased to send a commission for a councill to be holden upon all occasions, and that since ther is not here so many of his Majesties ancient councill as to make up a corum, that his Majestie will be pleased to nominat so many of his subjects now in armes for him as to make up the same.

6°. To send a commission of justitiary to suppres robberies and depredations which are frequently committed, to the prejudice of his Majesties interest.

7°. To send over ane order to press all lukewarm and trimming persons either to declare for his Majestie or be treated as enemies in caice they decline.

8°. In regaird my Lord Dundie and the chiftains of clanns were the last year att great expenses during the tyme of their randivous, vntill such tyme as those chiftains of clanns which were furdest off could joyn them att the place of randivous, and now are not in a capacity to doe the same, therfor they begg of his Majestie that he would be pleased to consider it, and send over either money or provisions sufficient for the subsistence of their men during that tyme.

156. REPRESENTATION by the PARLIAMENT OF SCOTLAND to KING WILLIAM THE THIRD. September 1690.

To the King's Most Excellent Majestie, the humble representation of the Lords and Commissioners of shires and burrowes of the kingdom of Scotland, undersubscribers, members of this current parliament, now adjourned till the eighth of October next.

Nothing, save the great and generall surprise of this long distressed and at present unsettled kingdom upon the late adjournment of your most loyall parliament for so long a time, and in so criticall a season, with the deep concern of your royall interest therein, would possibly have induced us to this so necessar a petition. Bot the visible consternation and discouragement of thousands of your good subjects delayed in the reliefe and comfort which at this time they assuredly expected, with the advantages that we apprehend your Majesties enemies, both within and without the kingdom, may think to reap by such an interruption, being our only motives, we cannot, we dare not be silent. And therefore, to prevent these evill consequences, we, in the first place, most solemnly protest and declare, in the presence of God and men, our constant and inviolable fidelitie and adherence to your Majesties royall title, right and interest, so frankly and chearfully recognosced by us in this current parliament, wishing and praying for nothing more under the sun then your long and prosperous reign, as that wherin the securitie of all our lives and liberties, and also of our holy religion, more dear to us then both, is infallibly included. It was the perswasion we had of the justice as well as the necessitie of your Majesties heroick undertaking for the deliverie of these kingdoms, with the conviction of the Divine confirmation that appeared in its glorious success, that moved most, if not all of us to endeavour and concurr most heartily in the late meeting of the estates for the advancement and establishment of your Majestie upon the thron, when some discovered their disaffection, and wer too open retarders and obstructers of that good design. And it is from the same true affection and zeale that we do now most heartily make the above mentioned protestation to obviat all the misconstructions your enemies may make in this juncture. Nor are we less assured of your Majesties most sincere and gracious intentions to performe for us to the utmost all that the estates of the kingdom have either demanded or represented as necessary and expedient for securing the Protestant religion, restoring their lawes and liberties, and redressing of their grievances according to your Majesties declaration for this kingdom. Neither can it be imagined that so wise and just a king as your Majestie is will ever be perswaded that so loyall a parliament as this is can be induced either to wish or design any prejudice to or diminution of your true interest and prerogative ; bot such as have slavishly served and flattered arbitrary power and tyranny will be alwayes studying for their own sinistrous ends, to state a separat interest betuixt king and people, a practice which we are confident your Majestie abhorres. Bot that we may clear ourselves upon this present occasion to your Majesties full satisfaction, and refuting of all misrepresentations we can incur on any hand, we shall briefly rehearse to your Majestie the votes past in this present parliament to which the royall assent is not given, with such short reflections as we hope may tend to the better vindication of all concerned. The first act upon which the vote of parliament hath passed is that declaring the priviledge of the estates of parliament to nominat and appoint committees as they shall think fit, and excluding therfrom the officers of state, unles they be chosen, and omitting what the parliament hath already represented to your Majestie as reasons of their vote. It is humbly conceived that this act is exactly framed to the extent of that grievance, which, together with the rest, is desired in the instrument of government to be redressed unto us in parliament. The second was ane act abrogating the act of parliament 1669, asserting the kings supremacie over all persones, and in all causes ecclesiasticall ; and this act is so exactly conforme to the second article of the above mentioned grievances, and the forsaid act of supremacie in itself is so dangerous to the Protestant religion, as well as inconsistent with the establishment of any church government, that we doubt not your Majestie will ever approve all that voted to it. The third is ane act anent persones not to be employed in publick trust ; and all the ruines and distresses of this kingdom have so certainly flowed from the persones therein noted, especially such as by their contriving of and concurring in the dispensing power have thereby eminently endangered our religion, and overturned all the fences of our libertie and propertie (which we have good ground to believe the parliament would have extended but to few persones) ; and your Majestie in your declaration hath so justly charged the same upon evill and wicked counsellors (the only persones pointed at in this act), that we are perswaded that you will find it absolutly necessar for attaining all the ends of your Majesties glorious undertaking for our reliefe. The fourth is ane act concerning the nomination of the ordinary lords of session, and the election of the president, to witt, that in a totall vacation they be tried and admitted or rejected by parliament; and in a particular vacation they be tryed and admitted or rejected by the other lords; and that the president be chosen by the lords themselves, conforme to our old practique and express statute. And this act is so agreeable to practise, lawes, and acts of parliament, and so necessary for the true and equall administration of justice (the great securitie of all kingdoms), that your Majestie will unquestionably approve it. The fifth and last is ane act ordaining the presbyterian ministers yet alive who wer thrust out since the first of January 1661 for not conforming to prelacie, and not complying with the courses of the times, to be restored. And this act is in itself so just, and so consequentiall from the clame of right, and agreeable to your Majesties declaration, that less in common equity could not be done. And here your Majestie may be pleased to consider, that though prelacie be now by law abolished, yet these few ministers, not exceeding sixtie (though restored, as they are not for want of the royall assent to the forsaid act), would be all the presbyterian ministers legally established and provided for in Scotland. It is not unknown to your Majestie what have bene the sad confusions and disorders of this distressed countrey under prelacie, and for want of its ancient presbyterian government. And now the whole west and many other parts of Scotland are at present desolate and destitute, having only ministers called by the people upon the late libertie, without any benefice or living or convenient place to preach in. It is also certaine that there are many hundreds of forfaulted and fyned persones and others who are yet waiting to be restored and refounded according to the clame of right and your Majesties gracious instruction theranent. It is true the last thing proposed by your Majesties commissioner in parliament was a supply of money for maintainance of the forces so necessary for our present defence. And we should have proven ourselves ingratefull to your Majestie, and false to our own interest and securitie, if we had absolutly refused it. Bot there being a sufficient and certaine fond to maintaine all the forces, and support all other incident charges of the government for some moneths, all that we demanded was that some things visibly necessar for satisfaction of the countrey, and the better enabling and disposing them to pay the said supply, might be first exped. We are confident that the vote of parliament, which was only for a short delay, will not give your Majestie the least ground of offence. And now having presumed to lay these things before your Majestie with all humble submission, purely out of dutie, for preventing the evill construction of your Majesties enemies, and for our own just vindication, we most humbly beseech your sacred Majestie graciously to consider what is here represented, and in prosecution of your Majesties acceptance of the clame of right and your declaration for this kingdom, to take such course as you in your royall wisdom shall think fit for passing the forsaid acts of parliament, and redressing all our other grievances. And we, your Majesties most humble petitioners and faithfull subjects, shall, as in dutie bound, ever pray for your long and prosperous reign over us.

158. PETITION of MEETING of PRESBYTERIAN MINISTERS. 1690.

To his grace their Majesties high commissioner, and the right honourable the lords of their Majesties privie councill.

The meeting of Presbyterian ministers at present in Edinburgh ;

Humble Shew,—That where your lordships by your former acts of the 12 and 23 dayes of Julie last were pleased upon a representation from us to ordain letters of horning to be direct by delyverance of any of your lordships number upon certificats from presbyteries, in favours of such Presbyterian ministers as in or before the year 1689 did come in the place of former couformists who had either deserted or were removed or deprived in mauer specifyed in these acts, and that for the stipend of the said year and crop 1689, and upon production of decreits of localitie, and furdur did allow to such ministers who being unfixt have in severall presbytries in the west served particular vacant churches per vices, haveing no other fixed charges, one of the vacand stipends of the said paroches by appointment of the presbytries, deduceing what was payed to these ministers by the people upon voluntarie contribution, as the said acts containing other heads more fully bear : Which acts, albeit very favourable and full, yet according to what is customary in such cases, are found in the particular execution to need your lordships gracious explication in the points following, viz., First, in that letters are ordained to be directed in the cases therein set donu for the crop and year of God 1689, without adding (which no doubt was meaned), and since syne and in tyme comeing : Secondly, in that your lordships obledge us to the production of decreits of localitie as a necessar ground for the saids letters, whereas we find that through the change of tymes, the abstracting of these decreits, and the loss and disorder of the registers, they are for most part not to be had, so that for not production thereof ministers are frustrat of their necessar mantinance, and most be obleided to raise and follow long processes to their great charge and distraction, even when the heritors and others lyable in payment are willing to pay, but only desyre a warrand : And thirdly, that the allowance for unfixt ministers is restricted (which was our fault) to presbytries in the west, and to ministers come from Ireland, whereas we find that the same case and exigence occurs in severall other parts of the kingdome where ministers and preachers have served by turns, and att tymes without any allowance out of the stipend, tho' then and still vacant. For remedy of which things wee humbly crave that it may please your grace and lordships to declare, first, that in the cases specified in the said acts we shall have letters at our instance, not only for the crop and year 1689, but since syn and in tyme comeing dureing our incumbencie ; secondly, that where decreits of localitie cannot be had, letters may be direct upon the testificats of presbytries of our entry and admission, at our instance against the heritours and others lyable, and in use to pay without necessity of producing the saids decreits. Seing that this was not only the privileged of ministers in all tymes, and is likewise (as wee are inform'd) a case excepted from the late act against generall letters. But also that it can infer no prejudice since that persons (which certainly will seldom happen) wrongously chargd may easily suspend, and on what terms your lordship shall think fitt to allow ; and thirdly, that your lordships wold be pleased to extend the forsaid allowance given to unfixt ministers, to the effect that as the presbytries in any part of the kingdome shall testifie in their favours they may have the same allowance out of stipends vacand as was formerly granted to presbytries in the west, which particulars as wee humblie presume your lordships will find reasonable, so they would greatlie tend to the preventing of needless charges and diversions to us in the work and exercise of our ministrie. Like as we most also crave libertie to add that wee find that in severall places the former conformists have deserted since the said 13 of April 1689, and the people have called and the presbytries planted ministers in their place, and yet the heritors and others lyable in payment of the stipends doe scruple to doe the same because the churches are neither declared vacant by the said act of parliament, nor the conformists deserting (as said is) formally depos'd, and therefore wee doe further beseech your grace and lordships that seing the parity of the law and reason is the same, it may be declared that where the former conformists have deserted, although since the 13 of April 1689, and their churches are planted and provided as said is, the Presbyterian ministers come in their place may have letters upon testificats of their presbytries testifying the former ministers desertion, and the Presbyterian ministers entry, sicklike as if the desertion had happened before the said 13 of April, conform to the act of parliament and your lordships former act made in this mater.

D. WILLIAMSON, mod<sup>r</sup>.

159. PETITION by ARTHUR UPTON, Esquire, to raise a Regiment of Irishmen in Scotland. Circa 1690.

ARTHUR UPTON, Esquire, a gentleman of a very considerable estate in Ireland and numerous family, did, by vertue of his Majesties commission in February last, at his own charge, raise a regiment of foot under his own command, and two troops of hors under the comand of two of his sons, which did faithfully serve his Majestie untill they were broken by the Irish rebels.

The Convention of Estates of Scotland, on consideration of his forwardness and faithfulness in his Majesties service, and of his present circumstances, were pleased to order that he should have a comission to raise a regiment of foot there, and that William Cuninghame, Esquire (his son in law), should be his leutenant collonel, as by a certificat under the Earle of Argile and the other commissioners hand may appeare.

He humbly desireth that (if it please his Majestie) he may have a comission to raise a regiment of foot in Scotland of the Irish Protestants there, with an order to some of his Majesties stores for armes, he being not able as formerly to provide them at his own charge, or (if this be not agreeable to his Majesties inclination) that he may have his comission to raise a regiment in Ireland.

Severall other gentlemen (who likewise at their own charge, for his Majesties service raised hors and foot in Ireland, and whome the people there do most affect to follow) are desirous again to serve his Majestie in his army in Ireland, as officers in Mr. Upton's regiment.

Indorsed : Esquire Upton petitione desiring warrant to raise a regiment of Scots Irishes in Scotland.

30th June 1691. [Copy.]

WEE, Major Generall Buchan, Brigadier Sir George Barclay, generall officers of King James the 7th his forces within the kingdom of Scotland, to testifie our aversione of sheding Christian blood, and that wee designe to appear good Scotsmen, and to wish that this natione may be restored to its wonted and happy peace, doe aggrie and consent to ane forbearance from all acts of hostilitie and depredations to be comited upon the subjects of this natione or of England untill the first day of October nixt, providing that ther be no acts of hostilitie or depredations comited upon any of the kings subjects who have bein or are ingadged in his service under our command, ether by sea or land, we haveing given all necessarie orders to such as are under our command to forbear all acts of hostilitie by sea or land untill the forsaid tyme. Subscribit at Achallader the 30th of June 1691.

Whereas the chiftans of clans have given bonds not to comitt acts of hostilitie or depredations befor the first day of October nixt upon the conditions contained in the forsaid bonds, and in regard that the officers sent by King James to command the saids chiftans have by ane unanimous consent in ther council of war aggried to the said forbearance, therfor I, as haveing warand from King William and Q[ueen] Marie to treat with the forsaid Highlanders concerning the peace of the kingdome, doe heirby certifie that the forsaid officers and chiftans have signed ane forbearance of acts of hostilitie and depredations till the first day of October nixt, wherfor it is most necesarie, just, and reasonable that no acts of hostilitie by sea or land or depredations be committed upon the saids officers, or any of ther partie whom they doe command, or upon the chiftans or ther kinsmen, frinds, tennents, or followers, till the forsaid first day of October. Subscribit at Achallader the 30th of June 1691. Sic subscribitur.

161. SUBMISSION on behalf of the LAIRD OF GLENGARY by RONALD MACDONALD of Aughtera. 30th December 1691.

I, RONALD M'DONALD off Aughtera (being comissionated by the laird off Glengary and the rest off the gentlemen now att Invergarry, in behalfe off themselves and thair freinds and followers), doe propose that if the government shall think fitt to grant a safe passe to Major Generall Buchan and his friends and servants, to the number off ten or twelve, and the like passe to Major Generall Cannon and the same number off his freinds and servants (whom they thinke they are bound in honour not to desert), to passe to any part they think fitt beyond the seas, the said Glengary, with his freinds and followers, will lay doune their armes and submit to King William and his government; and tho (many off them being Roman Catholickes) [they] thinke not themselves qualified to take the oath prescribed, yet they will give sufficient security for their peaceable deportment in all tyme comeing. This (on the tearmes afforesaid) I promise (as I am intrusted in their behalves) shall be punctually performed, as witness my hand att Fort William the 30th day off December 1691.

162. VINDICATION of his Administration by the EARL OF MELVILLE to the KING, with corrections in Mr. Carstairs' handwriting. [Circa 1691.]

YOUR Majesties affairs not haveing allowed an opportunity of giving an account either of my management or my sentiments as to what I conceive concerns your Majesties interest and service, I do in obedience to your Majesties command presume to take this way of doeing my duty for your Majesties satisfaction as to both.

I can say that it was more duty and zeale for your service that prompted me to be concerned in publick affairs than any interest of my own, and though I shall always retain a dutiful sense of your Majesties goodnes and bounty to me and myne, yet I may be bold to say that they and I have improved them for the best advantage of your Majesties interest, without that regaird to the advancement of ourselves that can make us lyable to any reproofe from your Majesty, or just censure even from our ill willers.

I cannot boast of merit in serving of your Majesty, while all that I could or can doe can not but come short of what I and all true Protestants of these kingdoms doe owe to him who, under God, did deliver us from greatest misery.

But haveing reason to think that my actions have been misrepresented, I hope it will not be displeasing to your Majesty if I give some short account of my deportement as to any trust I have had the honour of from you.

How much involved publick affairs were when, by your Majesties command, I went down to the Convention of Estates in Scotland, and with what success, through God's blissing upon my faithfull endeavours, I did extricat them, and ansuere beyond my own expectation the design of youre Majesties instructions in procuring a speedy settlement of the government without those limetations that might be uneasie to you, or a deminution of the lusture of the regall pouer in your royall person, are things that I shall not trouble your Majesty with.

When I had the honour to be sole secretarrie of state to your Majesty for your ancient kingdom all my advices and actings were, according to my capacity, regulated with a respect not so much to the gratefeing of the humor of any party as the laying of such foundations as might give no just ground of complaint to any, but might make all sensible that in a hearty submission to your Majestys government they might expect your protection. Upon this design there was such a nomination of persons to be in the severall judicatories of the nation as was calculatted to what I did then take to be your Majestys true interest, both with a respect to your affairs in England and the takeing away of all pretence of disafection from your subjects of Scotland ; and this will sufficiently appear, if it be considered that by doing thus I was exposed to the displeasure of not a few of my own persuasion, and did the rather lessen then advance my interest in the kingdom, many of those I then named being persons in whom I had no particular concern, and from whom I have had litle proof either of gratitude or kindenes, having alwise resolved that integrity in your service, and your Majestys favour should be my only support.

If anything was done in the councell or any other judicatory against those that were looked upon as favourers of Episcopacie that looked like violence, it was none of my fault, I haveing laid out myselff in frequent advices to have things caryed with a suteable moderation ; but I cannot but say that the noise that haith been made of severity haith been very much beyond what there was ground for.

When I had the honour to be your Majestys comissioner, I found myselff engaged in perplexing circumstances, for some of those that were called the Club had made a strong party both in England and Scotland, covering their black projects with faire pretences suted to the genius of your friends in both kingdoms. While they suggested to the English that your Majesty did design to use an absolute power in the government of Scotland, and that they would have the same fate when you was once master of your affairs, to their friends in Scotland they did insinuate that the king did not resolve that the Church government should be settled, and that such as were high for the Church of England had got such an ascendent at court that Scots Presbyterians could expect little countenance.

Haveing by these methodes, and a pretended zeal for such a frame of Presbytery as they knew your Majesty could not grant, imposed upon many of your Majestys friends as well in as out of parliament, they joine with the Jacobites, who are by them persuaded to take the oath of alegiance that they might be in a capacity to sitt in parliament, and there disturb your busines, and advance the interest of their late master ; and thus their party came to be of a double bottom both in England and Scotland, and a coming short of success in their projects was lookt upon by them as uixt to impossible. In this posture, sir, were matters when I came into Scotland, and ther only wanted a spark to enflame the kingdome ; and I doubt not but if your Majesty had adjurned the parliament once more, these malecontents had involved us in blood and confusion, which, considering how deep the designe was laid, as haith been found since, might have been attended with fatal consequences.

I finding that the best way to breake the snair which these men had laid was to undeceive such of your Majesty's faithful subjects as had been imposed upon by them, did therefore think it necessarrie for your affairs to give the Presbyterians of Scotland (who are almost the only persous you can rely upon in that kingdom) that satisfaction which might be consisteut with your Majestys honour and the present posture of matters in England.

There were, sir, tuo things that your Majesty was particularly concerned should be done in the settlement of church government in Scotland ; on was that Episcopall ministers dissenting from it might be tolleratted by law ; another was that there might be a particular test to be taken by those ministers that were to enioy benefices, that the excludeing any from that advantage might not be by an arbitrary rule.

Both these I was much concerned to have done to your Majestys satisfaction, and therefore as to the first it is expressly enacted in the statute establishing Presbyterian government, that such as shall be found of a sober life sufficiently qualyified for the ministry, willing to oune and submitt to the established government of the church, and sound in their principles as to doctrine, of which the Confession of Faith is to be the rule, shall not be troubled.

As to the second thing desired by your Majesty, I found that an express formal act of tolleration would meet with much opposition in the parliament, and therefore I was under a necessity of being satisfied with what was equivalent, and did as I conceived effectually answere your Majestys desire, which was the rescinding of all penall lawes whatsoever against Protestant dissenters from the established church government, which lawes having been made with greatest severity against Presbyterians in the former reigns, did now come to be in force against those in whose favours they were made. But that the government might not be at a disadvantage by the rescinding of these lawes and the dissafection of those ministers that were to be tolleratted, therefore it was enacted that no minister putt out for not praying for King William and Queen Mary should be permitted to preach either in churches or meeting-houses until they appear before your Majestys councill and take the oath of allegiance to your Majestys, promising to pray for you, declaring also and subscribing that they own your Majestys as king and queen not only de facto but de jure. By this act, sir, as the government is secured against the bad effects of seditious praying and preaching, so a liberty to worship God in their own way in meetings is secured to the Episcopall clergie upon their complying with the terms above mentioned, which are as easie as possibl<sup>e</sup> could be in a consistencie with the security of the government.

As to the takeing away of patronages, tho it was frequently and earnestly desired of me by the Presbyterians, yet I did still forbear to do any thing in that matter till the French fleet was upon the English coast, and a dangerous conspiracy against your Majesties government was discovered, and I haveing reason to think that affairs in England were in a dangerous posture, while all packets to me were stopt for some time, did conceive it was for your Majestys service to dismiss the parliament of Scotland with as litle discontent as might be, and to gratifie the Presbyterians in the busines of the patronages in a way that might be least offensive. As to what concerns the settlement of the church government I have done nothing but what your Majesty did impower Duke Hamilton to doe, and the settlement of it upon the foundation of the Act 1592, was what the parliament, being influenced by the Club, would not then listen to, and it is well knowen that Sir James Montgomery did strongly argue against it as confused and contradictorie, and giving the king too much power over church assemblys. Your Majesty also will allow me to put you in minde hou much the members of parliament in the first session were so prepossessed, by the influence of malecontents, with apprehensions of designes as to arbitrary power that they would not hear of settling the church without redressing of all pretended civil grivances, which considerations will, I hope, justefie the integrity and good designe of my management, so that I hope I may say your Majesties parliament was dismissed with greatest contentment to themselves without suffering your Majestys prerogative to be in the least encroached upon as to the grand alcadged grievance of the session, or permitting your clemency to be bounded by an unlimited incapacitating act, which so much was pleaded for by some.<sup>1</sup> I shall only beg leave to say that I cannot enough admire that those persons should complaine of what was done for the satisfaction of Presbyterians in the settlement of the church, who by their combinations against your Majestys government, conterarie to their alegiance, did make what was done absolutely necessarrie for the saifty of your Majestys interest. As for what concerns other things done in the two last sessions of parliament, I shall not trouble your Majesty with any account of them while they speak for themselves.

As for the busines of Broadalbans treaty with the Highlanders, I shall presume to say that tho both before your Majesty came from Holland and since, before you was putt to so great expense as you have since been putt to, that it was fitt to take off by money some of the cheif of the Highlanders, and that it was your Majestys interest to have as many of the Highland superioritys in your own hand as could be fairly purchessed, without doeing violence to any particular person, but I must take the boldnes also to say that I did and do think that the obligeing of the heads of the clanns to give good security for the peaceable behaviour of their dependants would have been a surer foundation of peace amongst men who can be tied by no faith, and this was that which the law did allow. I do not see, indeed, any great prejudice to the publick interest by Broadalbans articles, in so fare as they relate to particular persons, nor doe I take upon me to condemn the granting of an indemnity to the Highlanders for their rebellion against your Majestys government, but I durst never have advised the freeing of them from all obligation to make satisfaction for the depredations and robberies comitted by them against your Majestys best subjects, this being the thing which is grievous to your Majestys faithful servants. As for the affronts which some did putt upon me in the management of that and other businesses, tho I could not but be sensible of them ; yet respect to your Majestys service did make me burie in silence my resentments, though I regrated more upon a nationall account than my own.

As to such whom it may be fit to employe, in the management of publick affairs

<sup>1</sup> The grievance of the Session was that when the whole of the judges' seats were vacated by the Revolution, the king nominated the new Bench, while the Parliament claimed the right to appoint them. The point was keenly contested, the President Stair, his son, Sir John Dalrymple, Melville, and others, standing out for the prerogative of the crown.

The Parliament at last yielded as mentioned in the text. The unlimited incapacitating Act debarred all persons who had held office under the preceding reigns from being again employed in the government. It passed the Parliament, but happily the Royal assent was refused.

in your kingdom of Scotland, I must confess that I cannot well perceive the necessity of employing at present any that are jealous by those that have been all along faithfull to your interest, the ballance being too much already upon that side ; and the clamours that have been made of your councill haveing been either groundlesse, or proceeding only from the opposition that was made to the granting of unseasonable favors to such as were known enemies to your interest. Yet seing important reasons, which it were presumption in me to enquire into, doe make your Majesty think it fitt to employ some such, it is my humble opinion that those who are least obnoxious to your people, and have never been active against your government, may be pitched upon, and who I take to be such I shall give my sentiments, without prejudice against any man, whenever your Majesty shall think fitt to putt the question to me.

I did speak to your Majesty of the busines of the roop of the excise at Edenburgh, not out of any particular concern of mine in the parties interested, but because it did seem plainly to me a packt busines for the support of the interest of some particular men, without a suteable regard to that of your Majesty ; and because I did conceive it was not reasonable, by an irregular closing of the roop, to prejudice your good toun of Edenburgh, who have given signall proofs of their loyaltie to your Majesty, and were willing to give more than the other party did which only consisted of tuo or three particular persons.

Thus, sir, I have taken the boldnes to give your Majesty an short but true account of my management, and also to offer my advice as to what I humbly judge may be for your service.

166. OBSERVATIONS on a REPORT by SIR JAMES MONTGOMERY of Skelmorlie, to KING JAMES THE SEVENTH, on the state of political parties. Circa 1693.<sup>1</sup>

SKELMURELYS informations when he went to France were favourable enough for King James interest. He had corresponded with many of a long time, and, as informed, he justefied his oun carriage that any confessions he made to M[elville] were nowayes prejudiciall to King James interest, and were not such as people might talk (it was easie to say this, there being no witness), that it was a forced putt, etc., their whole designe being discovered to M[elville] long before, and confessions made by some, and M[elville] had taken great care non should make their escape, and given out warrants for apprehending him amongst others. By this means he did see no way to escape but by coming in to M[elville] and acknowledging what he allreddie had discovered. And this he did not till he had assurance of saife regress. This he belived to be the saifest course, and thought M[elville], being a man intent upon what he thought the public concern, would pass any privat resentment (though he had given him great provocation), and be easily taken with this discovery, and give him his pass, which he did.

But tho M[elville] doubted allwise his sincerity, yet he thinks he was resolved then to have made a full discovery to the queen, seeing their busines broaken. His reasons are because he told many things he needed not, which were found to be true otherwise, and gave advices good enough, tho disingenious in some things. He also told where his strait lay, least those of the English who were on the plott should keep their interest at court, and so the matter would be stifled. R[oss] said likewise so, and this M[elville] thinks was the reason why he withdrew when he came to London, and did not goe neer the queen for a good time, nor so frie as he had undertaken, and that R[oss] resiled from what he once said to her, because their correspondents and intimates had persuaded them the matter was so managed as the plott should be stifled, and not fully enquired into, but that M[elville's] busines should be done at court, who had been but too diligent and successfull, and they would find wayes to gett him misrepresented and accused, in which, if they prevailed, all was secure, and they might goe on with their designe without haizard. In this Mr. F. was very busie, and endeavoured to diswade A[nnandale].

Skelmurely did accuse Melf[ort's] measures and advices,<sup>1</sup> laid the blame of the miscarriages on them, and the delay of the supplies, and gave King James still encouragement enough for carying on the busines, and advised him to follow these measures for Scotland, that in the first place some of the bishops that have been laid aside, of most repute, should be sent for to France, and have the Prince of Wailes putt under their tutorie, the better to remove peoples jealousies, and that there was no haizard in it, for they would neither breed him a Whigg, nor instill in him any mortall heatred to the Church of Rome. This seemd to relish with some of the French ministers, but not then with King James and his queen. Nixt, if that an invasion should be resolved on, no French souldiers should be employed, unless some officers, and some to assist by councill. That for Scotland, as the matter had been managed, it might be caryed without great difficulty, the zeale of King Williams party being much cooled, and discontents still growing, both because of burdens, want of trade, and insolency of the soulderie, etc. That his friends had taken courage, seing themselves secure, and the government, he belived, durst not take any nottice of them unless when some officious and witeless person did give information, which they ordered so that (tho a litle busines might seem to be made in the time) that for the most pairt it is let fall again, which the more wise of the other partie observeing, they have given over informeing or prosecuting any thing of this kinde.

that letter sent from Ireland in ansuer to

That King James partie were nou for the most pairt in a good understanding amongst themselves, all privat differences being removed.

That most of all the men of greatest interest and pairs favoured his cause, and were readie to show themselves on occasion, and some did better service in owning King William's government then otherwise.

That he himself knew who had given him assurances, and that they had not appeared openly proceeded from the circumstances of the time, not want of inclination. That his adversaries were no way numerous nou, comparatively to his friends, neither were many among them either of pairs or interest.

That it was not to be questioned but that many of the forces in the country would joyne any who appeared for him when occasion should offer, considering hou they were made up and of whom. That they were nou well quitt of Angus and Levens regiments, whom the country trusted more then all others, and at this time the Whiggs are as much affraied of most of the souldiers amongst them as they would be of so many French.

So that no great opposition was to be expected from any within the country, they wanting a head in whom to concenter, and its rationall to conjecture that M[elville] will not medle much when he may be convinced that he cannot nou doe it to any purpose, and cannot but be convinced of the weaknes and fooly of the pairty, especially being in some manner laid aside and not trusted as formerly. Besides there will not be wanting endeavours for getting him and his sones out of their employments, which, if it take effect, may have severall consequences, etc.

The effects of it will be good, for that pairtie will be thereby disoblged and discouraged, and many allreddie upon the apprehension of their dainger and weaknes are courting your friends favour.

That the castles were in no good condition to make any considerable or long resistance, litle care haveing been taken to fortifie or suplie them with sufficient garrisons or provisions, besides what designes might be to surprize them.

That notwithstanding of all this he was not to advise any present impression (for things there were naturallie working for his Majesties service) untill the French king should come to a resolution anent what was fitt to be done. But if he thought himself in a condition to make any impression in England or Ireland, and all things sufficiently disposed for that, he thought trouble in Scotland would weaken King Williams hands in Flanders, and in that caise it might be saifely adventured upon, for probablie they might carie that kingdom without much opposition in a few weeks, except the castles, which they hoped also to gett easily, for the only thing that might stick with some of estates in the country and hinder them from appearing so early as could be wished was least England should poure down men upon them. But for ansuer, its a long march, except they be posted on the border beforehand, but this is not probable, and so the kingdom might be caryed before they could come down. Secondly, its not probable, considering the present conjuncture, and your friends concert in England, that many could be spaired to send down least those left behinde should find too much work at home. Then if there should be such a partie sent down as were not able to beat the Scots, it would prove so much the better for your interest by divideing and weakning King Williams forces. And lastly, supposeing the uttmost that could be said, and that the Scots should not be able to make head against them on the border, they could easily retreat to their fastnesses, considering the situation of their country, untill the other were wearied and the country in the meantime opprest, which would still be advantageous for his interest.

That he might now entertain correspondence more saifely then formerly, and he would not want persons whom he might trust saifely to communicat his commands by word to his friends, for there was now no such prying into things as when Mel[ville] was with the king and trusted by him.

The tuo secretarries will give on ane other work enough to doe for preserving of themselves and getting the ascendent of on ane other, which will chiefly take them up so that both of them for strengthning their own partie will be obliged to employe those who are favourable to your interest, and who will be found ready to serve you on occasion.

Its fitt to send home all the Scots who are cited to appear in Scotland except such who are most obnoxious and will not like to adventure, and such who may be usefull to make ane impression when it may be thought fitt, for others can be in no haizard as things are manadged, seeing all that will be required of them is only beal for their living peaceably, which they need not scrouple, for when a comotion shall come baile will not be gott lookt after.

Wheneuer it shall be resolved to adventure on Scotland less force will suffice then formerly I proposed, for as I told before peoples inclinations are much altered, and some who were enemies before are nou begining to look over their shoulder and would be content to be saiffe, for they see no good end of their present course, and beginne to apprehend their present settlement cannot stand long, and even those who have made no application as yet are become more civil and obliging to your known friends then formerly, which is a good token.

King William cannot now make any great alteration in the government without prejudice to himself. He will be loath to turn out those of quality, interest, or parts, least it disoblidge them, neither hes he many of abilities or parts to employ should he doe otherwise. It was a good step for your interest when M[elville] was gott removed from him, and if his sones or any of them could be gott removed from their employments, it would be ane other good on. We were in hopes that R[aith], who is a mettled man, should haue been out of employment ere now, for it was talked he was to demitt, having mett with something like ane affront, as he thought. Some hoped likewise that L[even], who is somewhat high and warm, should have been disoblighed by haveing a deputy-governour imposed upon him without his knouledge and consent, and his regiment taken from him, tho of any Scotsman he had haizarded most for King William, for considering this and the great offers he refused from your Majestie, it would seem he resolved not to be disoblighed. By which it would appear that the children are also biggott as the father, whom no man can gaine but to that which he himself thinks to be right. Its good he is of so uncomplacent a humor, else he might have had more interest with his king still then he hes.

I humblie differ from your Majestie as to your opinion of M[elville] as to his being so wise a man that you need to fear him ; and as to King Charles opinion of him, it might proceed from a mistake and not being throughly acquainted with him. Its true he is a reserved man, and Solomon tells, a fool when he holds his peace is counted wise. As for his carriage in all the plotts that he could never be reached, and his aversion from Monmouth and Argyles busines, this is not simply to be imputed to his great wisdom or foresight. The last may have proceeded from pick or emulation, as that he would not alltogether follow but rather lead, and might be dissatisfied that his advice was not soon enough asked nor enough taken in Argyles enterprize ; and as to the Duke of M[onmouth], the difference then betuixt him and his Dutches, who is M[elville's] relation, might be the reason. Besides, his carriage might proceed from too great warrines and fear. You see he came not over with the Prince of Or[ange,] tho he was, without doubt, accessorie to his designe ; and for myself, I did indeed attribute all that was called his witt to his warrienes and timorous disposition till his carriage in parliament 1690, tho both I and others took wayes, both at that time and before, to affright him, besides our endeavours to make things heavie to him ; yet all would not doe, and became successfull beyond expectation. But much of this might proceed from good luck more then good guyding, tho it must be acknouledged he managed with more clossnes, steadienes and firmnes then we did imagine, and was luckie in his discoveries, which broak all measures. But grant he were so wise a man, tho I think his son R[ai]th beyond him for pairts, your Majestie needs not apprehend him much (for gained he cannot be), neither need you be anxious about it, for if he be wise he will never think it his interest to goe burn his fingers again and expose himselff to no purpose, for in the station he is in, as he is yoaked he cannot doe much, for neither of the seccretarries have any kindenes for him, but rather are jealous, and will doe all they can to keep the king from ever employing him further then at present.

But to return. If there should be any rysing amongst some biggot people, which can be aprehended nowhere but in the west of Scotland, it may probablie tend to the good rather then prejudice of your Majesties interprize; for a mob without a head signefies nothing. Besides, even in that country your Majestie wants not abundance of friends amongst the nobility and gentry, and some of these even of the peoples own persuasion.

But for preventing any such comotion your declaration would be rightly and cautiously worded and your indemnity large, and few or none excepted, to take away all jealousies and prevent dispair, for wayes enough may be found afterwards to reach any you have a minde to.

And rather then chalange and upraide any for their carriage, to regrait their being seduced and misled, so that when people begin to entertain some hope of mercy, and small hopes of any security if they shall make any opposition, it may make the most bigott to sitt still.

If L[even] could be gott removed from the castle of Edinburgh, and the same putt in any other mans hand that may pretend to it, there might be hopes of gaineing it, which would make your busines easie. There hath been endeavours used at a distance to sound his inclinations, but all to no purpose.

The reasons of my being of ane other opinion then I was formerly, are the chainge of circumstance. If your friends could all have been persuaded to take their places in parliament in anno 1690, your interest could have been caryed on in a parliamentarrie way, but this severalls could not be brought to. Nixt, when I advised that the impression should have been made on the west of Scotland, your Majesty was then maister of most pairt of Ireland, so the busines did seem easie, when the prince did designe over there with most of his forces, I advised the impression might be made from Dunkirk, as more easie to be accomplished then by sending any assistance from France or Ireland by the west sea. But the assistance promised, both of men and money, failing, and the discouraging news of the defeat of your Majestys forces at the Boyne first, and then at Crom-daile, coming to your friends ears, damped them much, and our designe discovered ere we knew therof, disapointed the whole. What we expected from the north of England also failed, which discouraged those with us from appearing who were readie. Now I am of opinion that much less then halff of the force I then proposed would be sufficient when any such enterprize shall be adjusted, only the provisions of money and armes would be larger then formerly was desired. As to Scotland, I am of opinion the impression should be made from the east sea, some place neer the Sound, which, if rightly manadged, may be done without observation and in a short time. But there needs no precipitation, your interest being still growing; only your Majesty must have patience untill the French counccills think fitt to give you assistance, and till matters be rightly adjusted betuixt them and your friends in England. As for what relates to England, I leave it to the Earle of Midletoun, and shall give your Majesty or him account what I shall learn.

I shall likewise be satisfied if you think fitt to discourse with some of the French ministers, and I doubt not but if it be made appear to them that a tenth part less sum then they are obliged to expend otherwise, may be of more advantage to the interest if bestowed on Scotland, but they will listen to it. Its my opinion that when your Declaration shall be readie to be published, the French king should emitt ane other in favours of Scotland, renewing and ratefeing all the old priviledges that those of that nation did enjoey in France, which would much take with that country, they not haveing that antipathy at the French which the English have, but rather a kindenes for them. This many would be ready to grasp at, as they did at the union with England four or five years agoe, which was proposed for your service by some.

It would likewise be of advantage if there could be ane order gott to discharge Du Bart and those under him from troubling the Scots ships which trade towards the Sound, unless it were some nottoriously disafected persons, for there are many honest maisters of ships and tradeing merchants that suffer by the loss of trade, and the cargow of these ships that trade in these seas is of no considerable value, so the loss would be but small, and this would serve to ingratiat you with the people, while their grumbling and grudging doeth still containue against England for being denied of frie trade.

Besides, by this there might be Scots bottoms gott for your service when needfull and might be fraughted on other pretences.

Its not to be imagined but England will beginn to weary at last with this so expensive war, and may come to weary of giving money; however, the raising of such vast sums from the people, with the decay of trade, will occasion grumbling.

The prince is so intent in carying on this war against France that its thought he mindes not other things so much, and his eagernes in that will occasion his exposing of his person more then others will think necessarrie or fitt, and so he may either come to fall in his interprize or precipitat himselff in some inconvenience, which, if it should fall out, would probablie dissolve the confederacie, and so you would have a very faire game.

Its true the princess is popular and well beloved amongst the people, but tho she should oppose your Majesties restouration as formerly (as its hoped she will not if she see the difficultys great); yet she is but a woman, and cannot be in all her kingdomes at once, nor act and travell as a man could doe to suppress disorders timeously. Good officers who are popular and zealous against your interest are wanting, and nominall ones are not much valued.

If things once should but take a turn they might run as fast to the on ballance as formerly they did to the other, for all men act not by principall but most by interest, and its often seen that when people beginn to be disatisfied and to apprehend chainges even those who have been very fordward in a course strive to gett off to the other side on the formost horse.

Another thing I would advise is that seing we missed of getting the parliament of Scotland disolved through so many of your friends refusing to qualefie themselves either to elect or be elected, is that when ever the parliament shall meet, your friends may be proposers, at least chieff promotters of a large supplie, and if they could gett it caryed for life, etc., it were so much the better, for then there would be no need of frequent meetings of parliament from sitting, quherof (as they are yet constitute) most opposition may be to your designes.

From this severall advantages will flow, they will gett more credit with the prince, and any who would oppose will be the worse lookt on by him.

Then the greater the burdens be that are laid on the country the greater will be the grumbling of the people, especiallie if they think their money misaplyed, and your friends will be the better furnished with arguments to misrepresent the government, and to hold furth to the people that tho they chainged governours yet not the way of governing, that their burdens are greater then before quhen there libertys were encroached upon, especiallie as to the Church, so better to have back their old maister again, who no doubt haith learned now by experience to help and redress many things formerly grivious, I say rather then to serve a strainger who hes studied to serve himselff of them, and entrusted straingers, and is managed by their counccills who had acted so soon against his own Declaration, and in stead of redressing grivances hes employed severall of those persons who were the chieff actors in the late times.

The difference betuixt the tuo sisters is of use.

We have not failed in many of the projects we laid down for your service, but of that in getting the commons of the west of Scotland (a most bigott people) disarmed, which we were once in hopes of, and seing that would not take, we have not been wanting to agrivat their disapointments as to the Church, which is their Dagon, so its to be hoped their zeale will cool by degrees.

I question not but your Majestys friends in England will have ane eye upon Bervick and Carlisle, and endeavour what they can to make ane interest both in the touns and garrisons, for the carying or surprising of these would be of great advantage to your Majestys interest.

168. INFORMATION by SIR JOHN M'LEAN about a proposed Jacobite rising.

The substance of Sir John M'Lean's discourse with me.

IN July 1702 the Lord Lovat came to France, and told Sir John M'Leane that he had matters of great importance to communicatt to the late queen, but befor he wold tell them he required a promiss from her not to reveall anything of what he said to any of her ministers, which she did make him; and therupon Sir John M'Lean carryid him to the queen, as he did afterwards by her direction to Monsieur Torcy, to whom, as he had befor to the queen, he said that he was come from Scotland, perticularly from the Highlands, wher he had discoursed with many heads of clanns, perticularly Stuart of Appin, Sir Ewin Cameron, Sir Don. M'Donell, and others, from whom he brought assurances that they wold rise in armes with 10,000 men, if they wer asisted from France with money and armes and troups], to suport and protect them in getting together. Monsieur Torcy, after comunicating this to the French King, and some defficulty of sending men, assur'd them that his master wold furnish them with money and armes, and also men, so soon as his affairs wold admit of the last, and the number agreed upon was 5000, which wer to be transported from Dunkirke, and landed at Dundee, from whence the march was short and easy to the foot of the Highlands, to which, if need wer, they might retrat, and in the mein time might make a stand, and oppose any of the queen's forceses that might be sent against them, and give time and opportunity to the Highland clanns to assemble and come to them, and form and increase the army to be super[i]our to all the queen's forces in Scotland, and to facilitat this designe, 500 men mor to be sent from Brest to                      and seize the fort of Innerlochy, which could not resist cannon, being commanded by hills near it. This wold give security to ships coming into the river, and be a means to convey supplys of all kinds from tim to tim as ther should be occasions. The execution of this project was delayed partly, as has been said, because the French king could not spair his troupes, partly because his fleet was not in a condition to oppose us, and then the men he sent wold be lost, if they could neither be seceured nor brought off, and partly because he did not entirly rely on the Lord Lovet's information and assurance, and partly that he might see the event of the Scotch parliament, which also he might judge of the temper and disposition of the Scotts, as well as by some further enqueiry which he resolved to make. And in ordor to it, he had thoughts of sending some Frenchmen to Scotland with Lord Lovet, to bring a just accompt of what might be expected from them; but the hazard of a Frenchmans being discovered by his language, the difficulty of his making enquiries for want of the Scots language, and the easiness of deciving him by shewing fals parsons to him under the heads of clanns, diverted him from this thought, and therfor Lovet was sent backe in May last, with Captain Fraser, and Captain John Murray, who had long bein in the French service, with ordors to come backe as soon as the Scotts parliament was ended, with destinct accompts of the inclinations of the S[c]otts, and what ther number wold be which might be relyd on to joyn with the French, and at Sir John M'Lean's coming from Paris they wer expected backe, but wer not returned. But upon the accountt they should bring depended the operation of this designe.

Besids this Captain Murray, ther was another James Murray who was sent to Scotland, with ordors to speak with Duke Hamilton (to whom on Bell had bein sent befor, with like directions, and dyed in Holland), and to engage him in the intrest of Franc[e] for the suport of the Prince of Wales. Ther had been other messages sent to him, but the queen told Sir John M'Lean she had had no answer, and therfor ordored Sir John M'Lean to sound Duke Hamilton, and if he found him disposed to her servie[e], then, and not otherways, to communicat to him this project. This he was also to doe to the Lord Athol and Lord Marshall. Sir John M'Lean sayd also that Stevenson, a banquier, was formerly sent to Duke Hamilton, and at his return was put into the Bastill, which they thought was occasioned by the Duke Hamilton's trusting him, and to prevent his discovery, Duke Hamilton being cautious of speaking with any that came from St. Germain's, when the factions wer so great that nothing was secrett, and therfor wold send by parsons of his own choosing. Being asked how he knew thes persons wer so sent, he answered that the queen told him so.

He said he saw severall Scotts gentlmen in France in the tim of peace, perticularly the Lords Montrose, Hay, Seaton, Roxborow, who disired to pay ther respects and wait on the late king, but [he] refused them, saying it wold be known, and might do them harm, and he was enough assured of ther fidelity and good inclinations without that ceremony.

He dos not know the particular errand of David Lindsay, but says he has been severall tims sent into Scotland. He says Lindsay was the man who carry'd the draucht of a letter prepared by the Lord Dundee and others for the late King James to signe, and send to the convention of estats, with ordors to deliver it to non but King James himself; but was deluded by Lord Melforts, who prepared a differant leter, and supp[ressed] this. He says this story he had from my Lord Dundee himself. Ther is on Mrs. Fox in custodie who came over with Sir John M'Lean; she was a great freind of Lord Melforts, and after his disgrace turned to the other syd, and has been all along a very intriguing woman.

176. ACCOUNT by Lieutenant ROBERT CAMPBELL of his search for the DUKE OF ATHOLE and others. 23d March 1708.

IN obedience to the ordors I received for searching for and conducting the persones of the Duke of Athole, the Viscount of Stormont, the Lord Nairne, and the Lord Drummond to Edinburgh, I went from Stirling upon Wednesdays morning, the 17th instant, to the castle of Drummond, where I mett with my Lady Drummond, and I enquired for my lord, and my lady told me that my lord was not att home, nor had been for severall dayes past; excepting that last night, and that he went away again that morning, but could not tell whither he went. From thence I went straight to Stormont, wher I mett with my Lady Stormont and the master, and was informed by them and severall others that live therabout, that my lord was not att home, but had gone away that morning before I came there, which was on Thursday the 18th instant. And on the same day I went to the house of Nairne, wher I also mett with my Lady Nairne, who told me that my lord was att Paisslay. The next day, being Fryday the 19th instant, I sett forrward from Dunkell to the Blair of Athole, wher I gott notice the Duke of Athole was; and being come there I was told my lord was in the castle, and haveing mett with Cornett John Murray, I desired him to acquaint my lord duke that I was come there and had ordors to speak with his grace. Accordingly Cornett Murray went and brought me back word that my lord duke desired I would send in my ordors to him, that he might see the same; upon which I took out my ordors out of my pocket and shewed them to the said Cornet Murray and allowed him to read the same, who, after reading therof, went back to the duke and returned the second tyme with this answer, that the duke said he was not obleidged to answer the Earle of Leven's ordors, or some such words to that purpose, and that he would not allow of any dragoons to come within his gates; notwithstanding of which I went with the said Mr. Murray to the gate of the castle wher severall persones wer standing, and haveing knocked thereat was refused access, but was told through the gate without oppening of it that my lord duke was indisposed, and would allow noe access to him; wherupon I returned back to my garrison where the troops lye, with the tuo dragoons that wer alongst with me att all the forsaid places. But after I left the Blair of Athole and was some myles gone from itt, I gott notice that the Viscount of Stormont and the Laird of Strwan Robertsons were in company with the Duke of Athole att the tyme I was there. I also acquainted the Lady Drummond, the Lady Nairne, and the Lady Stormont, when I was att these places, what my orders wer, and was allowed by them to make what search I pleased. This is signed by me att Edinburgh, the twenty thrid of March 1708. RO. CAMPBELL, Liv<sup>t</sup>.

179. DEATH-BED DECLARATION by DAVID, EARL OF LEVEN, that certain charges made against him by JAMES FRASER of Culduthell were false. 8th March 1719.

I, DAVID, Earle of Leven, being at present under sickness and indisposition of body, but of intire memory and judgement, and not knowing what the event of my present sickness may be, or if I shall recover my health, so as to have an opportunity of vindicating myself from the aspersions thrown on my honour and integrity by the person after named, do therefore, in the presence of God, and of my friends and others after mentioned, testify and declare that the accusations laid to my charge in an affidavit emitted by one James Frazer, third son to Frazer of Cullduthell, at London, some short time after his present Majesty King George his accession to the throne, wherein I am charged with corresponding with the late Earle of Perth to the prejudice of the government I then had the honour to be trusted by, is altogether false and groundless, and that the letters therein said to be written by me, with one inclosed written by Simon Frazer of Beaufort, now Lord Lovat, to me, in prejudice of the Pretenders interest, and said to be shewn by my Lord Perth to the said James Frazer, never were written by me, or any other person at my desire, or with my knowledge, or any letter of the said Simon Frazer's, now Lord Lovat, transmitted by me to the Earle of Perth, I never having written to or corresponded with the Earle of Perth directly or indirectly since his departure from Scotland at the Revolution; and all this I declare to be truth before God, and do sign the same in presence of Andrew Melvill, doctor of medicine, Robert Hay of Struie, doctor of medicine, James Mackgill of Rankellor, Alexander Melvill of Balgarvy, Captain Neill Mackleod, late of his Majesties Third Regiment of Foot Guards, and John Edmonstone, writer in Edinburgh, and of this declaration at my earnest desire, before all whom I did emit the same, at Balgony, this eight day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen years.
